Early Establishment Of UN Trusteeship Council Assured

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(AP)—Early establishment of the United Nations Trusteeship Council apparently was assured Tuesday by small nation support of proposals advanced by the United States and Britain in an effort to speed action.

A survey of delegates revealed that the small powers were ready to go along with the United States and Great Britain in opposing a Russian attempt to define at this time what states are "directly concerned" in the draft trusteeship agreements.

This position became apparent immediately after Monday's hectic battle in the Trusteeship Committee, at which Russia criticized Britain for not offering a Palestine trusteeship agreement to the United Nations and the United States flatly accused the Soviet of "constantly preventing formation of a trusteeship council for the old League of Nations mandates. Russia Presses Issue

John Foster Dulles, U. S. delegation expert on trusteeships, last week asked the UN to avoid at this assembly any attempts to define what states are "directly concerned" in draft agreements, declaring that any attempts to iron out just what the phrase meant would serve to delay setting up the Trusteeship Council.

But Russia continued to fight that point, and proposed Monday that a sub-committee be established to deal with the issue.

Representatives of the small nations, as well as some of the big powers, expressed fear that if the interested parties to an agreement were defined now the veto might be extended from the Security Council into the Trusteeship Council.

For, they explained, an "interested party" could block a trust agreement by merely saying that he did not approve of it.

New Operation Will Save Lives, Prevent Death Of Blue Babies

CHICAGO —(AP)—A new way of performing the operation to save the lives of "blue babies"—introducing a surgical feed previously considered impossible—was announced Tuesday by three Northwestern University physicians.

Instead of connecting with a less important artery, the surgeons for the first time tapped the body's main artery, the great abdominal aorta, which springs from the heart's left chamber and gives rise to all the arteries of the circulatory system.

Physicians said the operation would not benefit all "blue children," who are born with crippled hearts, but would help the majority to overcome otherwise hopeless invalidism and in some cases prevent death.

Details of the new surgical technique, first performed on a human being (a 21 months old girl) only two months ago, were announced in the Journal of the American Medical Association by Drs. Willis J. Potts, Sidney Smith and Stanley Gibson of Children's Memorial Hospital at the university's medical school.

They said the operation achieves the same result as one originated by Dr. Alfred Blalock and Dr. Helen E. Taussig, who in 1944 performed the first successful operation on a "blue baby" at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

The malformed hearts of "blue babies" cannot pump enough blood to the lungs to pick up the vital oxygen needed by the body. This deficiency results in blue fingers, purple lips, bluish complexion and, sometimes, death.

Army, and Billie, Obie, Howard, Vernon and Joe, all of Midland; one daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Faye Hogue of Big Spring; four brothers, Henry of Lamesa, Rob of Midland, four sisters, Mrs. Sam Box of Gatesville, Mrs. Leafie Coker of Houston, Mrs. Velma Morris of Cleburne, and Mrs. Lorraine Boone of Goldsmith.

Truman Told To Take Middle Road For GOP Support

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON —(AP)— Republicans stipulated Tuesday that President Truman will have to go down the middle of the road in his legislative proposals if he wants their cooperation in the new GOP-controlled Congress.

From Senators William F. Knowland (Calif.) and C. Wayland Brooks (Ill.) came assertions that their fellow Republicans will not accept what Knowland called a "pac-drafted" law-making program and what Brooks labeled "completely socialistic proposals."

"We don't want the nation to swing either too far to the left or too far to the right. We want to keep it on an even keel. And we don't want any pac-drafted legislative program shoved at us as it has been in the past."

Brooks said he wondered whether the president's conciliatory bid Monday for a political truce on pressing national problems would be any more lasting and effective than Truman's appeal for the same sort of cooperation when he took office.

Without dissent, Republican leaders pledged their efforts toward continuing present foreign policies unchanged. But Senator Elbert Thomas (D-Utah) said test of full Republican cooperation with the president on this score will come when treaties are placed before the Senate.

Tires Lie Rotting In Pacific

(Official U. S. Navy Photo from NEA Telephoto) Thousands upon thousands of unused surplus tires lie rotting where they have lain for more than a year, deteriorating in the sun, rain and salt spray of Okinawa, now too weatherbeaten for use. They are part of the $5,000,000 worth of Pacific Island equipment which the government recently handed over to China as part payment of the "Yuan Debt."

Molotov Indicates Russia May Agree To Reduce Arms

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
NEW YORK —(AP)— Fresh evidence that Russia may eventually agree to some form of international inspection to enforce disarmament, including elimination of atomic weapons, was seen Tuesday in an assertion by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov that Russian and American arms reduction proposals can be "harmonized."

At the same time he declared that an armaments race has already started, and he urged prompt action by the United Nations to stop it.

From Secretary of State Byrnes came a promise that the American government, which is insisting on an inspection system, would have more to say on disarmament "at the proper time," and British Foreign Secretary Bevin declared that in the effort to obtain worldwide arms reduction "my government will not fall behind."

The three spoke Monday night at a dinner of the Foreign Press Association after completing their first review here of five projected Axis satellite peace treaties. Reports on their work to date showed them to be still stalled on all major issues ranging from control of Trieste to free navigation on the Danube River.

One source of prolonged dispute between the United States and the Slav states appeared to have been removed, however. Diplomats reported Byrnes had informed the Foreign Ministers Council Monday that the United States had ordered occupation authorities in Germany to release several hundred seized Danube River vessels of Hungary and other Eastern European countries—something those countries, with Russian support, have been demanding for months.

$25,000 Gift To Midland Hospital

A $25,000 gift to the Midland Memorial Hospital Tuesday increased the total contributions and pledges received to date to $224,106.99.

Dr. John B. Thomas, president of the Memorial Foundation, announced the $25,000 gift, but said the donor had requested his name not be made public.

Sponsors of the hospital campaign, who propose to raise $500,000 with which to build a modern 75-bed hospital in Midland, pointed out that the Christmas season affords a most appropriate time to make contributions to the hospital fund.

"Christmas is a season of giving and of happiness, and the Midland Memorial Hospital affords a most worthy cause to which to make a gift at this time," sponsors said.

Persons planning to make contributions are urged to do so before the end of the year.

30 Die, 70 Hurt In French Train Wreck

METZ, FRANCE —(AP)— At least 30 persons were killed and 70 injured when an East-bound local train on the Paris-Strasbourg line smashed into the rear of another Eastbound local standing in the station of Revigny-Sur-Ornain, 138 miles east of Paris.

Fog blanketing most of Northern France was blamed by rail officials for the accident.

The second train drove into the Revigny station with such force, news agency reports said, that all six passenger coaches of the waiting passenger train were smashed and persons standing on the station platform were killed, along with those in the cars.

George's Talk Marks Opening Of British Labor Parliament

LONDON —(AP)— King George VI, in a parliament-opening speech presenting the views of his labor government, called Tuesday for legislation continuing conscription for the British armed forces and for nationalization of inland transport and electric utilities.

The monarch presented his message to parliament after a traditional ride through London streets during which he was guarded against any possible attack by Jewish extremists by every policeman Scotland Yard could spare — more than 5,000 all told.

The king's speech marked the opening of the second parliament since labor took over the reins of government and took place amid war-pump and ceremony of centuries-old tradition—and the reality of the most elaborate and stringent precautions since the 1939 and 1940 bombings attributed to the Irish Republican Army.

Urges Peace With Germany
The king urged negotiation of a peace with Germany under "conditions which will foster true democracy, will guarantee the world against further attempts at world domination and will remove the financial burden which occupation has laid on my people."

Indicating the government's intent to work for eradication of international trade barriers, the king spoke of his "earnest hope" for the success of negotiations now under way in London for expansion of world commerce and employment.

He also announced the government's desire to improve living conditions in Britain, promising increased housing and increased food supplies to a nation weary of shortages and rationing.

Election Held For Burma
Foreshadowing continued conscription to maintain the strength of the armed forces—a policy to which labor heretofore has been wholeheartedly opposed—the king declared:

"My ministers recognize the urgent need for securing an adequate flow of volunteers for the regular forces, and their efforts to stimulate recruitment will be intensified. My government will forward with every means at their disposal the policies with regard to the governance of India laid down in the statements made by them and by the mission of my ministers which recently visited India.

"Steps are being taken to hold elections in Burma early next year, as the necessary preliminary to further constitutional progress."

Britain, by its example and leadership, will work for the promotion of all nations toward greater freedom and prosperity," the king said, adding:

"I trust that at an early date a treaty will be concluded with Austria which will enable all forces of occupation to be withdrawn from that country."

Jap Reparations To Be Determined At December Meet

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Edwin W. Pauley said Tuesday that the United States has invited all nations claiming Japanese reparations to a conference in Washington early in December.

Pauley, who is President Truman's reparations representative, told reporters after calling on the president that all claimant nations except Russia have indicated a desire to be represented at the conference.

Pauley added, however, that "we will proceed even without Soviet acceptance."

He said the United States is "very anxious" to begin movement of Japanese factories to claimant nations. As one example, Pauley said the Philippine government is claiming more than $100,000,000 worth of Japanese plants.

Pauley indicated that the Russians do not want the Manchurian factory matter on the conference agenda.

He added that delays in settling reparations have "injured millions of people who have been unable to rehabilitate themselves" because of lack of factory facilities.

Pauley told reporters he had submitted a comprehensive report on Japanese reparations supplementing an interim report he filed last December. He said the final report on Japan had been filed with the State Department in April.

As to Germany, Pauley declared the reparations question there "is being stymied because of inability of the four powers to operate Germany as an economic unit."

(NEA Telephoto) Rev. A. Powell Davies of the fashionable Unitarian Church in Washington, D. C., looks over the photo of Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy cutting an A-bomb explosion cake that prompted the reverend, from his pulpit Sunday, to charge as being "obscene" and "utterly loathsome." The picture appeared last week on a Washington society page and showed Admiral Blandy and his wife cutting a specially designed cake of angel food for a reception marking the dissolution of the joint Army-Navy Task Force No. 1. Mr. Davies told his congregation, "If I had the authority of a priest in the Middle Ages, I would call down the wrath of God upon such obscenity. Gossamer Glitter

Wool ascot—gay neck-warmer.

By EPIE KINARD
NEA Staff Writer

New York—(NEA)—Ascots that sprout butterfly wings and chiffon saris that come straight from the shoulders of the Hindu woman make new concepts to spill out of your scarf drawer this fall.

Both newcomers are as functional as they are fancy. The wool ascot, striped in vintage and fruity colors, makes a gay neck-warmer for cardigan suits and collarless dresses. Bias-striped in two-toned combinations, this chin-lifter contributes warmth without adding bulkiness or weight.

The job ahead of the chiffon sari is to spread a diaphanous film of illusion over the naked look of strapless gowns. Stole-length and glitter-lit, the sequin-sprinkled sari can be worn over one or both shoulders for sheer drama or it can hold every hair in place on the head that is making an entrance.

Apple-Face With Pop Corn Hat Makes Novel Table Decoration

Here is a novel table decoration, made of pop corn and apples to brighten up a holiday party.

Cover a large shiny apple with the same "sugar-syrup" used in making pop corn balls. Put on a nose, eyes, and mouth with pop corn and raisins. Make his hat from pop corn welded together with the syrup. Set the new "apple face" in a pop corn collar, as shown in the picture.

To make syrup, mix one cup sugar one-third cup water, one-fourth cup butter, three-fourths teaspoon salt in a sauce pan and cook, stirring until syrup makes a brittle ball in cold water. Add three-fourths teaspoon of vanilla, stirring only enough to mix it through the hot syrup. Pour the cooked syrup over the apples. To make the pop corn hat, pour syrup over popped corn, mix well. Wet your hands slightly and shape the hats to fit the apples.

The horn of plenty will decorate the banquet tables.

Clever Costume Tricks Multiply Usefulness Of Basic Black Purse

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

You can be as purse-proud with one pocketbook as the gal who has a wardrobeful, if you pick the right bag and know how to multiply its dress-up roles.

Ready to help you map your strategy is bag-designer Jean Meadow. This top-notch stylist, who creates bags for the fashionable elite, names as the best single choice for all-around wear a basic black faulle pouch. She reminds you that black goes with any costume color, and that it is appropriate for wear the year around.

If you are a pint-sized girl, she says your bag should be small. Only girls who have the height to carry off big bags, warns this designer, should pick the more sizeable ones.

To make your simple black bag qualify for many costume roles, use these tricks that Miss Meadow suggests:

For afternoon wear, attach a gold clip to your bag. And wear gold costume jewelry. To make your bag look gala for evening, pin on a sparkler, ensembled with your night-time jewelry.

Book Week November 10-16

Books are Bridges

This year's Children's Book Week celebration, November 10-16, marks the emergence of this event as a truly international campaign for "more books for more children." Thirty-nine countries around the world are planning Book Week programs in the interest of enlarging the present meagre reading opportunities for children. The theme, "Books are Bridges," suggests the role books can play in developing every child's awareness and understanding of the world beyond his own front porch.

Libraries, schools, bookstores and civic groups over the country will make an intensified effort during this week to awaken the nation to the importance of books to children. They will introduce books to children who have never had an opportunity to read outside of school, who have never seen a book to read "just for the fun of it."

These groups will be backed solidly by the Children's Book Council, sponsored by the Association of Children's Book Editors, and by the twenty-seven national organizations which cooperate with the Council.

National Headquarters of Book Week, 62 West 45th St., N. Y. C. 19, will provide upon request a free manual of suggestions for Book Week programs. Posters, book marks, and other Book Week aids may be ordered from the manual at cost price.

A New 'Solution'

"It is only in a last resort," Heikal Pasha of Egypt told the UN General Assembly, "that one should think of re-establishing refugees in other parts of the world."

As he spoke, the American Military Government in Germany was cleaning up bomb damage to a denazification office in Esslingen, and hunting the terrorists responsible for anti-denazification outbreaks there and in Stuttgart. As he spoke, Rome police were still rounding up suspects after a bomb had been placed in the Chamber of Deputies as part of a lawless anniversary celebration of Mussolini's march on Rome.

The remnants of nazism and fascism were stirring in their grave of military defeat. Some were acting with a boldness that they had not shown since the deaths of Mussolini, Hitler and the regimes they created. Others, like-minded but less violent, were contriving to sow dissension among the wartime Allies by rumors and accusations.

These were the people who, in their time of strength, created the problem of today's refugees. They are the people whose democratization is a long, difficult process which demands wisdom and force.

One might cold-bloodedly say that the process of democratization could be made harder by an attempt to repatriate Europe's Jewish refugees in their old homes where old hatreds exist. Or, more humanely, one might say that it would be a cruel decision which would risk exposing those Jews to further danger of violence. Their days of fear should be of the past, not the future.

Heikal Pasha did not mention the Jews by name. But it is evident that he was speaking of them, and for the Arab League. "Resettlement of refugees," he said, "must under no circumstances be imposed on a sovereign nation, or when such resettlement goes against the freely expressed wishes of the populations of this or that region."

That, then, would seem to be the Arab League's "solution" to the Jewish refugee problem. Literally applied, it could close every door in the world to the first victims of Nazi persecution. They could be forced on no sovereign nation. No dependency could be compelled to admit them if anyone objected.

In contrast is President Truman's reiterated statement, expressed in a letter to Arabia's King Ibn Saud, that he favors a concerted effort to "open the gates of other lands," including ours, "to these unfortunates," and that he will ask Congress for special legislation to admit a number of them above our present immigration quota limits.

It would be more comforting to see some evidence of "concerted effort" from other United Nations members within the UN organization, and of a possible effort by the UN to unshackle the muddled British mandate of Palestine.

Zionist claims and the question of a Jewish state in Palestine are important. But it does not seem wise or just to make all action await their settlement. The first concern is surely the health, safety and welfare of the refugees. Until some action along that line is taken, the liberated Jews of Europe will continue to be the victims of their liberation.

The High Cost Of Chaos

In a recent series of articles S. Burton Heath spelled out some of the costs of our postwar industrial upheaval—loss of pay by idle workers which wage increases will not repay for many years; loss of profit to industry; loss of sorely-needed goods to consumers. Now comes Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, to add another item on the bill.

In an article in Collier's magazine called "You've Got to Make a Profit," Wilson computes part of the General Motors strike losses in taxes. The corporation originally estimated that reconversion would cost about $500,000,000, and that enough cars and profits could be made in the first postwar year to avoid using the "carry-back" provision of the wartime tax law, which was a credit on the excess profits taxes of converted industries that might be used to cushion the cost of reconversion in the first postwar year.

But, says Wilson, it cost $100,000,000 to keep the company going during the unproductive strike period. That and subsequent delays have raised the estimated reconversion cost to $750,000,000. GM has borrowed $125,000,000 and will have to use accumulated reconversion funds and yet undetermined millions of carry-back credit.

That carry-back is a sum of tax money that would have been paid if reconversion had been speedier. Doubtless other similar sums will be employed by other companies for similar reasons. It all adds up to a lot of taxes that haven't been paid but will have to be paid some day by you-know-who, commonly referred to as little John Q. Public.

No Curtain Call

A Texas gas company has sued for an injunction to prevent an American manufacturer from delivering 183 miles of iron pipe to the Russian government before it fills an order for a $54,000,000 natural gas pipeline to California.

Perhaps the Texans feel that the pipe would be used to hold down the iron curtain, not roll it up.

An Ohio music store was broken into four times and musical instruments stolen. Police are looking for an underworld band.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

John Bull's municipal council elections give us further good indication of the general political trend in his tight little island—good enough, in fact, so that we are safe in labeling it as being fairly close to middle-of-the-road, with a moderate tendency to the left.

Final results in 360 cities and towns show this apportionment of the 2,319 seats: Labor (Socialist) 1,041, Conservative 647, Independents 534, Liberals 96 and Communists one. The Laborites scored a net gain of 159. However, we shouldn't overlook that at the same time the Conservatives not only held their own but made a gain of four. Equally significant is the fact that the Communists hold only one seat, as against the six they had before.

This tends to confirm the consensus of observers that when John Bull installed his brand new Socialist government last year he had no intention of becoming a long-haired radical. It certainly demonstrated anew that there is no trend toward the extreme left.

However, this middle-of-the-road England is a far different country from what it was when your columnist first went there thirty odd years ago. You wouldn't think it possible that there could be such a vast social, political and economic changes in that comparatively brief span.

During the past generation there has been a leveling off. Great fortunes and estates have been broken up by heavy taxation. The landed gentry is fast disappearing, and with it many cherished traditions. Meantime there has been an upward surge of the lower strata of society.

When I first went to England the old school tie still reigned supreme. Gentlemen were born, not made. A member of the aristocracy was a gentleman ipso facto, even though at the same time he might be a terrible rotter. A tradesman couldn't be a gentleman because he wasn't born that way—and neither could his son, even though he had degrees from a dozen universities and was a delightful person to meet.

All that began to change after World War I. This was due partly to the fact that taxation compelled a lot of once wealthy ladies and gentlemen to go to work, and partly to the insistent demands of the lower ranks for their place in the sun. The pace has accelerated with passing time until we witness the astonishing advent of a Socialist national government, and find the Socialists the strongest party in the municipal councils.

Boyle Learns In 102 Miles Of Travel People World Over Long For Peace

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody who takes a trip abroad, brings forth a baby, writes a book or crawls safely out of a train wreck asks himself:
"What did I gain from this experience?"
So like any other tourist—for foreign correspondents, however they may dislike to think so, are basically just long-term tourists in an expense account—I took out my battered notebook to thumb back and see what four years of war and peace overseas had taught me since. The notebook had a few statistics:

I had gone around the world—by 1967 who won't have?—and traveled 102,000 miles. Some 50,000 were by jeep, 50,000 in 16 different types of aircraft, and 2,000 on my own bunnions and assorted oxcarts, burros and one flea-ravaged camel that spent 20 years learning the long way around a pyramid.
I had visited 50 countries and six continents. That's a lot of moving for a fellow who used to argue with his wife over who would walk down to the corner stand to buy the first edition.
The notebook held many memories. I had helped cover a world war, climbed the Eiffel Tower single-handed and spent a nice afternoon conversing with a young lady in Bali who never saw a three-base hit or a brassiere.
I saw a lot of battles, a few riots, a couple of revolutions, and many bread and rice lines. I talked to several thousand people, from General Eisenhower—he said, "Hello!"—to a Bombay fakir who could tie himself into a pretzel, but didn't serve beer. And what did it all do to the "me" that was?
Well, travel is still broadening, so I beamed up 10 pounds, harvested another chin and lost enough hair to make me first cousin to a cue ball. And I learned a lot of odd and useless things, such as:
That foxholes make more friends than cocktail parties.
That Calcutta hotels have more rats than guests, and more servants than either.
Three Fundamentals
That the Chinese have lots of fun and children, while the Indians just have children.
I also learned at least three fundamental things.
(1) That men and women in all lands—from a Bronx taxicab driver to a lady hoidcarrier in Bombay—ache for peace, freedom and security for their children in a world better than they themselves have known.
(2) That they all, deep in their hearts, are willing to accept any pattern that will lead them nearer that eternal goal.
(3) And that, to gain it, peace must produce new heroes of compromise and tolerance in many countries to defeat fresh ambitious villains again piping the old Hitler tunes of distrust, prejudice, pride, and greed.

South Is Nation's Economic Riddle

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt long ago called the South the nation's No. 1 economic problem. It still is behind the rest of the country.

How much it is behind, although it has shown improvement, is made pretty clear in "Labor In The South," a series of articles in October's monthly Labor Review, a publication of the labor department. Briefly, the articles say this:
1. The South is losing people every year to the North and West. More people leave the South each year than go into it to live.
2. Southern income is behind the rest of the country.
3. Yet the birth rate in the South is greater than elsewhere.
4. With the population growing—but more and better jobs to be found elsewhere—people desert the South.
5. Because there are more and better jobs elsewhere, the people from the outside the South are not drawn there to live.
6. Far these reasons the South steadily is being drained of people. One-third of those leaving are negroes. Negroes don't go there to live.

Came the defense program and the war years. People flooded out of the South because there were more war jobs elsewhere. Between 1940-45 the south suffered a net loss of about 900,000 to the north and west. Migration Will Slow Down
Will the migration from the South slow down? Yes, the study says, if there's more large-scale industrialization there. Which means: more industry, more and bigger factories.
Or, the study goes on, a severe depression would keep the Southerners home since they couldn't find jobs elsewhere.
One outstanding reason for the difference between the income of the South and the rest of the country is this: So much of the South is devoted to farming.
And there's a difference between farming there and elsewhere: Farms are smaller, there are fewer farm tools, and the work done per man is less. But the study says:
"While per capita in the South is low compared with the average for the country, a definite and encouraging upward trend has been evident in recent years. (This is because, in part, farming has become a little less important and manufacturing a little more important.)"
Per capita income in the Southern states rose from 55 percent of the national average in 1929 to 69 percent in 1945.
In the 1940-45 period capita income payments to the civilian population of the United States went this way:
The United States average in 1940—$337. This became $791 in 1945.
All other states average in 1940—$666. This became $1,299 in 1945.

A few short weeks ago, customers were knocking down the doors of Max Aster's Savoy Meat Market in Cleveland, Ohio, to get at what little meat he had—when he had it. But times have changed since OPA controls were lifted. Now Max has plenty of meat, at reasonable prices, but has to give away nylons to attract customers.

CALL ME LIZ

by Rene Ryerson Mart

THE STORY: Red McFan, army pilot, comes home with a chestful of ribbons and a cocky swagger. He visits the varnish plant where he worked before the war as a laboratory helper. Old Man Condon, the big boss, greets him warmly. Red had saved his son's life in combat. Condon offers Red a chance to finish school and a part-time job meanwhile. School registration gets Red down but he looks forward to the double-date he and Russ have for that night.

IT was 8:30 before Russel sounded his horn out front. Red, who had been waiting impatiently for some time, went out. He saw that Russ was driving his convertible, the one he had had before the war. It had a wide front seat and a narrow back one.

The girl on the front seat with Russ slid over while Red squeezed through to the back compartment. He didn't know her at first. She had some kind of a white snood fastened over her dark hair and a white evening gown on under a short coat. He said, "Hello," when he saw who she was. He was a little surprised to see Elise Varney with Russ.

Elise smiled at him. "Now we'll pick up your girl," she said. She was experiencing a little pang of guilt. It was hardly fair not to warn Red what he was headed for.

"I went to Smith with Sally," she began. "Smith—er—"

"It's a woman's college," Elise said and knew her oblique warning was lost upon Red.

Russel slipped out from under the wheel when they arrived at Sally Clark's apartment. "I'll bring her down," he said.

A few moments later Russ came out of the apartment house door with a girl. Red let out a low whistle. The girl with Russ was the kind of a girl a GI dreams about or sees in the movies. Pale blond hair drawn sleekly on top of her head in a psychic knot. A classic face to match. She wore a yellow dress that fitted her slim body like the sheath of a lily and a silver glittering cape that made her hair seem even paler.

Red got quickly out of the car and stood attentively while Russ did the honors.

"Miss Clark—Mr. McFan." "Glad to meet you," Red said fervently.

He took Sally's arm and helped her into the car. Waited until she had adjusted the long skirt of her dress and then climbed in beside her.

RUSS started the car and the grinding of the worn gear shift discouraged conversation for a moment.

When it had subsided Red took a package of cigarets from his pocket.

"Care to smoke?" he asked. Sally Clark turned her lovely profile and met Red's gaze. "No, thank you," she said. "I never smoke."

She was surveying him with cool blue eyes.

"Russel says you just came back from Germany, Mr. McFan. I'd like to get your impression of the Russian question—did you meet any Russians there? Russian soldiers, I mean."

For a moment Red couldn't believe his ears. "Yeah," he said finally. "I met some. Say—do we have to be so formal? Why not call me Red?"

"Red? Haven't you any real name?"

"Real name. . . . Oh, I get what you mean. Listen, sweetheart, my mother was a fine woman and I treasure her memory, but she made one bad mistake and that was when she named me. So just call me Red. Take Sally, now—that's a cute name."

"I very much prefer being called Miss Clark, if you don't mind," Sally said.

Red stared at her. In the front seat Elise turned her head and called back. "Are you all right back there? Cozy?"

"It's a little chilly," Sally said innocently.

The reflection from a street lamp fell across Elise's face. For one second Red thought she was laughing, but he couldn't be sure.

RED didn't have much to say during cocktails and the dinner that followed. Sally finished Russia with the soup, took up the question of international cooperation with the entree, and added a flip to the dessert by airing her views on minority problems.

It wasn't until Elise suggested the Club Gloria for dancing that Red began to revive from the shock of Sally's chatter. This was more like it, he thought, looking around the dimly lit room with satisfaction. They were barely seated in a leather-lined booth before the music started and Red wanted to dance. If he could get this human icicle into his arms he might do better.

But Sally demurred. She didn't want to dance—yet.

Russ ordered drinks. Several rounds of them. The drinks began to take the edge off Red's disappointment. This was like old times.

He and Russ together and a couple of good-looking girls.

He leaned across the table confidentially. "Remember that last leave in Paris, Russ. This place reminds me of that club in Montmartre where we wound up that night. You remember where . . ."

"Wait a minute, Red," Russel said loudly. "Your glass is empty. Let me get some more." He made a great do of signaling the waiter and putting in their order.

How in the world had Red gotten off on this track, Russ wondered, and how was he going to stop him? He wasn't, it appeared.

Red was feeling better all the time and a whole host of memories was rising in his hazy mind.

"And remember Margie . . ." he began again. "Good old Margie. You know I miss the hussy."

Russ scrambled to his feet. His voice was desperate. "Come on, everybody," he said. "Let's dance."

America's Card Authority (Written for NEA Service)

Peter Levantitt, one of the active members of the executive committee of the American Contract Bridge League, visits many tournaments and is one of the most popular of the New York experts. He came into my office recently to discuss our campaign to raise funds for a new hospital unit for the fight against cancer in children, and at the same time he gave me the unusual end-play in today's hand.

Declarer played low from dummy on the opening club lead and West won with the king. West returned the jack of spades, North won with the ace and played the jack of diamonds. East won this with the ace and returned another club, and dummy's jack won. A small diamond was ruffed by declarer, the queen of clubs led and overtaken with the ace.

Now the eight of diamonds was led and West showed out. North ruffed and picked up West's trumps winning the last in dummy with the queen.

This left in dummy the king-ten of diamonds and seven of hearts, while declarer had the queen-ten-nine of hearts. East had to hold the queen-nine of diamonds and a heart, and West had the ace, jack and a small heart.

At this point declarer led dummy's seven of hearts, East won with the king and was end-played in diamonds.

If West had played the ace of hearts, he would have caught his partner's king and then he would have been end-played in hearts.

As the cards lay, declarer could have made this hand without the end-play by ruffing out two of his hearts and discarding one on the king of diamonds. But the play given is the way it actually happened.

Bronchos Eliminate Mustangs, 33-13, To Roll In State Race

By TANNER LAINE
FLY FIELD, ODESSA — Mighty Odessa Bronchos, which well might be one word this year, roared on down the Texas schoolboy football trail here Monday, stampeding over the powerful but not-champions today Sweetwater Mustangs, 33 to 13, before 12,000 holiday fans overflowing the stadium.

For all purposes this battle was for the title in District 3-AA and perhaps of all West Texas for Odessa already has quieted the Amarillo Sandies quite handily.

With power and much football cunning the well-manned Bronchos definitely and with consistent yard-by-yard playing, simply beat out the willing but out-matched Mustangs.

In the scoreless first quarter the Odessans drove to the Sweetwater three-yard line but a penalty cost them five paces. Then they got to the seven, fumbled, and a Mustang pounced on the ball.

They did score first in the second quarter with Quarterback Hayden Fry absolutely fighting his way over center for a touchdown on the nine-yard line after a drive downfield from the Sweetwater 24 following a punt. Harold Dozier, place-kicking specialist, came in and booted the extra point.

A little before halftime the Bronchos notched another tally. Fry sneaked it over from the one-yard line at the end of a 26-yard drive after a weak Sweetwater punt slithered out of bounds on the Sweetwater 26. Dozier again converted with a perfect placement. Score: Odessa 14, Sweetwater 0.

Townsend Runs 90 Yards
Byron (Santone) Townsend, the Broncho bid for all-state, took the second-half kickoff after a pass-back from Fry and ran 90 yards for a touchdown. He headed straight down the middle and bolted through the bunch of tacklers then outran Doil Feagan and Shaff DeGaiish the last 50 yards to go over standing up and all alone. It was a tingling run. Swarming Mustangs blocked Dozier's try for point.

Sweetwater then unleashed a swishing pass attack—a weapon they needed to use much earlier. With Feagan hitting End Troy Stone the Pones went right on down. Feagan found End Fisher Mays, the tall boy, open right after the middle for a five-yard touchdown pass. Mays booted the extra point. The drive for touchdown was good for 69 yards.

Early in the fourth stanza Odessa showed it could play the forward-passing game also and Fry lifted one to Bob Moorman in the left flatzone and the end ran all the way. Dozier's kick was blocked. The touchdown pass-play originated squarely on the 50-yard line. Fry hit Moorman about the 35 and he galloped on.

Sweetwater Scores on Seconds
Again in this quarter Odessa ripped off a 50-yard touchdown pass-play this time with Townsend the receiver. The Rose robbed the ball from two or three Mustang defenders, behind whom he had worked himself and tore out. Townsend himself kicked the extra point.

With Odessa's complete second team in the game Sweetwater scored its second touchdown late in the fourth. Don Lambert (remember, Midland) bruised over from the one-yard line after a drive downfield of 80 yards. Mays' kick for extra point was low and wide. Sweetwater was threatening down around the 20-yard line of Odessa at the end but nobody in Odessa was worried. The game ended Odessa 33, Sweetwater 13.

The scoreboard:
Starting lineups:
Odessa: Mays, Sweetwater; Moorman, Bill, LT, J. Timmons; Headlee, LG, K. Timmons; Taylor, C, Lincoln; Foster, RG, Hinshaw; Dowden, RT, Smith; Moorman, Bob, RE, Stone; Fry, B, DeGaiish; Holderman, B, Feagan; Gabrel, B, Shaw; Townsend, B, Lambert.

Texas Appears Likely For Sugar Bowl Bid

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—By a simple process of elimination, the most likely Sugar Bowl football match appears at this date to be the University of Texas against any one of four Southeastern Conference schools.

This year the choice is wide—Georgia, ranked No. 3 behind Army and Notre Dame in the latest Associated Press poll—Georgia Tech, No. 7, Tennessee, No. 8, and Louisiana State, No. 11.

But Texas is the only other eligible outfit among the first 10 in the ratings. All the rest have other commitments, or bans against bowl games.

Texas Backfield Is Shifted For TCU Game

AUSTIN—(AP)—The University of Texas backfield will be shifted somewhat for the Texas Christian University game, a team which has upset the Longhorns from two championships in five years.

Bill Cromer, speedy freshman who showed well in the Baylor game, will move into the tailback slot. Bobby Layne will move to fullback and Ralph Ellsworth will move out of the starting lineup.

Cromer accounted for one touchdown against the Bears and helped set up the field goal by Bobby Layne which put the Steers ahead after trailing nearly three-quarters of the game.

Joe Magliolo, blocking back who suffered a broken arm in the Oklahoma game may be able to start against the Frogs. X-rays, upon which rest the final decision, will be taken this week. Magliolo will be honorary captain this Saturday.
