A potentially dangerous situation exists everytime the fire alarm goes off in Ozona. Traffic is stopped at the intersection of busy Hwy 290 and Hwy 163. This alone creates some problem. There is always one or more impatient motorists who insist on passing up the waiting line of cars and running the risk of running headon into a fireman rushing to the fire station or into the fire truck as it rushes to the fire. Then again, there are always firemen who are late. They run the risk of a head-on crash with the fire truck as it leaves. We really have some gung ho firemen in our volunteer department and many of them are "at the ready" before the second whistle blows. These two situations cannot be corrected. There will always be the impatient motorist and the late fireman.

However, the third potential danger could be easily averted. That's the people who make a habit of following the fire engine to the fire. With the emergence of the C.B. radio, fire engine chasers have really come into their own and Ozona has more than its share. People with no business in the vicinity of a fire and no reason to follow the truck besides idle curiosity. create a hazard to themselves, the firemen and interfere with operations in general. This could be easily eliminated by simply keeping out of the way.

We are fortunate to have an enthusiastic group of volunteer firemen. They get no pay, they are never out on strike, they are ready to serve the community day or night, and members of the community owe them a debt of gratitude. This could be paid in part by staying out of their way and allowing them to do their job. So the next time the fire alarm goes off, or you hear the report of a fire on your C.B., don't rush to the scene, unless you have a very good reason to be there. If it's your house, place of business or your vehicle you might have good reason to go chasing after the fire engine, otherwise you don't. Avoid disaster, let the firemen do their job unhindered, control morbid curiosity and we can eliminate at least one danger when the fire alarm goes off.

To really get the full affect of maintaining open cows, producers need to get to the "brass tacks" of figuring their out-of-pocket costs for these non-productive units, advises Billy Reagor. county agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service,

kk We are getting more and more calls about stray dogs and more and more calls about dog poisonings. This newspaper has had its say about the large packs of dogs roaming the streets, it's a disgrace. Apparently, they belong nowhere nor to anybody. And on the other hand it seems to be only pets who happen upon the poison. Usually pets belonging to children or family pets that seldom get out of their own yards. We need to take this up with the commissioners court. They are the governing body in this town and county. A newspaper can rant and rave and prophesy doom, but if that doesn't get the city fathers moving on a project, the only thing which can is a delegation of citizens, preferably registered voters. on hand to make their wants known when the court meets, The next court meeting is Monday, Jan. 12. In other words, calling your commissioner about problems is much more likely to get results than calling your newspaper. Not that we don't enjoy hearing from our subscribers now and then, but we really feel that we've had so much to say on the subject that another article or picture would border on nagging, and we still would not get results. -- 0--

Similarly, a certified statement is acceptable for documenting birth of a veteran's child and as proof of age and relationship in disability cases.

These cost figures are based on the assumption that all cows are pregnancy tested, vestigating an armed robbery with the open cows culled at which occurred at the Poco weaning. Taco late last Tuesday evening,

Again, assuming a 90 per cent crop, the cost per calf weaned reaches $122 if open male subjects, possibly in their cows are held until the next calving and increased to $128 knife point around 7 p.m. They if the open cows are kept to be rebred. With the 70 per cent calf crop, open cows kept until the next calving boost the cost per calf to $141, while the cost figure skyrockets to $164 if the open cows are kept to be rebred.

This difference becomes even more dramatic when looking at breakeven prices, points out Reagor. With the open cows kept for rebreeding and considering an average weaning weight of 450 pounds, the breakeven price for the 90 per cent calf crop would be $28.44 per hundred weight compared to $36.44 for the 70 per cent calf crop.

Thus, the decision to keep open cows could literally spell disaster for the cow-calf producer, emphasizes Reagor.

Detente Test In Angola

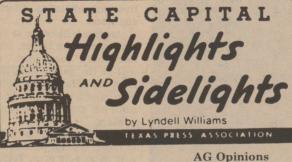

The Angola issue is now thrusting itself dramatically to the forefront of American foreign policy concerns and U.S.-Soviet relations. Like a bull pawing at the earth before his charge, Secretary of State Kissinger is escalating U.S. rhetoric against Soviet intervention in Angola, but it is still not clear how he intends to back up his words. Although there has been some covert U.S. involvement on the side of those forces trying to block the Soviet-supported MPLA faction from taking over, this has been more than matched by the entrance of Soviet heavy weapons and Cuban troops. Since Russia has not backed off, what can, or should the U.S. now do to effectively stop this Soviet power drive into Southern Africa?

For one thing, we should dismiss the argument of many on the State Department's African Bureau that "Angola really doesn't matter," that even if the Soviet-backed MPLA forces win the Angolan civil war, they will simply astound the Soviets with their ingratitude and promptly kick them out after victory. That is a rationale for inaction at a time when the U.S. dare not be passive.

Angola, it is clear, is a form of Russian test of the state of U.S. willpower in the post-Vietnam climate of U.S. public opinion. Here is as clear a test of the meaning of detente as can be offered. At the Helsinki summit last summer, detente was said to include non-interference in the affairs of other nations. And yet here we have the Soviet Union, as U.S. ambassador to the U.N. Moynihan has been strenuously pointing out, leading a new form of European colonialism in Africa.

Diplomatically, there is a very tangible way that Kissinger can quickly give emphasis to his warnings on Angola. Let him call off his January trip to Moscow to talk about another SALT

Shrinking, Swelling Soil Costs Millions Each Year

Some of Texas' largest cities are built on soils that shrink when dry and swell when wet. Such soils cost property owners uous strip are the cities of Beaumont, Houston and Victoria. All these cities were originally market cities for the agricultural products grown in their black soils.

Texas has about 10 million acres of clay soils which are noted for these swelling, shrinking properties. The cities of Fort Worth, Dallas, Waco and Austin are located on a strip of these black, deep, uniform clay soils.

One advantage of shrinking, swelling blackclay soils is the ability they have to store water. They often have enough stored water to get a crop through an extended dry period, whereas soils with less clay do not.

Another characteristic can be either an advantage or a disadvantage: when these soils are worked while wet, they become nearly impermeable. In an ordinary field this is a disadvantage, but for rice production, where continuous flooding during the growing season is desirable, it makes an ideal soil.

"Shrinking, swelling soils are among the worst soils on which to build houses, roads, runways and pipelines," says Dr. Kirk Brown, soil physicist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES).

"These soils may rise of the year and immediand fall as much as 4 inches from wet to dry,' according to Brown. "Cracks may open to a width of 2 inches and may be 6 feet deep. "Such volume changes cause roads to break down, pipelines to rupture, and houses and foundations to crack and

The U.S. has taken a strong verbal stand. Now it is essential that we show that this is no bluff.

Lenient Judges: Cause Of Crime?

In the wake of the shocking Justice Department report that over 20,000 people in the United States were murdered in cold blood during last year, comes the inevitable question: Why?

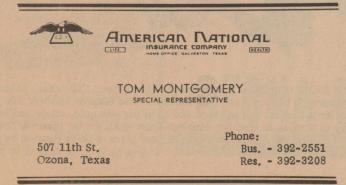

Surely, one of the answers must be that of the extreme leniency being shown by the courts to convicted criminals, including murderers. Of all the complaints made by the late J. Edgar Hoover, former Director of the FBI, the one he probably repeated most often was against judges and courts who are "soft on criminals." But there is ample evidence that the "soft on criminals" attitude is still widespread.

One Associated Press story recently told of a convicted murderer in Des Moines, Iowa, who was freed by a Federal Circuit Court because, AFTER he had been picked up by police and advised of his right to remain silent and have an attorney, he led the officers to the location of the body of the ten year old girl he had slain. The circuit court ruled that the convict "had not intelligently waived his right to remain silent or to have an attorney present." And so they let him off.

In Montgomery County, Maryland, a convicted killer -- who the foreseeable future for had shot to death an eighteen-year-old Montgomery College freshman with a sawed-off shotgun -- was given a sentence of 15 years in prison, with 11 years suspended, and then was allowed to go free on bond pending a review of the case. The killer, if imprisoned at all, could be released on parole almost immediately but -- the news story said -- "probably would not be considered for parole for one year."

One of the strange features of the Maryland case is that under Maryland State Law, there is a five-year mandatory sentence which is supposed to be enforced for anyone who uses a gun in the commission of a crime. Yet, according to the National Rifle Association in Washington, up until December, 1975, not one criminal using a gun has served one day in jail under the statute.

Is it any wonder that all sorts of crimes, including murder, are increasing in frequency and numbers? When are the courts going to signal the criminals that crime doesn't pay?

Bob Krueger Reports U.S. Representative 21st District

Last weekend I had the opportunity to visit with constituents across the district and talk with them about their concerns. One of the repeated questions that they asked was "What can be done to protect our older citizens in this time of high prices and unemployment?" There are two activities in the District that are addressing these problems particularly well. One is in San Antonio where the Foster Grandparents Program got its start. This program uses federal funds to pay the minimum hourly wage to retired or unemployed older citizens who work with young people who do not have much opportunity for contact with adults. Many children come from families where only one parent lives at home. These children have a particular from adults. Through the Foster Grandparents Program they do have that chance.

break apart. "The rise and fall alone is bad enough, but to make bad matters worse, it often isn't uniform.

"The soils below the what they do is less important than the fact that they are doing something together and that the children can assess their own growth by the examples of their elders. The town of Kerrville also has a center for the elderly of which that town is very proud. "Dietert Claim" provides numerous services for the elderly. Dietert Claim is an organization of older citizens who work together to assist one another and to provide services for themselves and for the community On a plot of land given by the Dietert family is a recreation center for older citizens from Kerrville and the surrounding area. These citizens find assistance there for their needs in transportation, a meals-on-wheels program, and recreation. While I visited with their members. their choir was singing patriotic songs of which they have done a recording. The group was begun out of local stimulus and of substantial local and state participation and planning. The federal role is minor and the sense of shared commitment and of self-direction which the members of the group enjoy has prevented the program from becoming impersonal and distant in the way that many federal programs can.

Those who wish to find examples of good self-help, welfare programs with minifederal government would do well to look at these two programs. Any program that genuinely assists our older citizens in sustaining and maintaining their dignity and sense of work in our fast and fast-changing society deserves our attention and appreciation.

REDDY'S Conserve and Save Tips

- Using your range more carefully can mean significant savings on your fuel bills. Avoid the temptation to keep opening the oven door. You lose up to 20% of the heat every time you do.
- ☆ Pre-heating the oven and baking only one dish or heating a few rolls is wasteful. With a little planning you can cook an entire meal in the oven.
- Reduce heat as soon as practical. When water is boiling, medium heat will keep it boiling. Use pans with tight-fitting lids to conserve heat.

NOTICE

TO THE TAX PAYERS OF CROCKETT COUNTY WHO ARE PAYING TAXES ON THEIR PART OF THE GAS PRODUCED ON THEIR LAND:

Prichard and Abbott of Odessa and Fort Worth who are hired to make the oil and gas tax on Crockett County gas and oil produced in Crockett County, receive a salary, about $40,000 per year, exact $39,998. They also receive a percent of the tax they figure out, the larger the tax the more money they receive.

Prichard and Abbott will have a meeting with Crockett County Commissioners next Monday, January 12, 1976. All persons paying gas or oil taxes in Crockett County should attend this meeting, and learn about how they are being taxed.

For instance, our wells are in Canyon and Clearfork formation. They produce under 5 million cubic feet per day. In dollars, they produce about $900 per day. Our tax on this to Crockett County is over $17,000 per year, nearly $18,000.

One Ellenburger field in Crockett County produces one hundred million cubic feet per day or in money $2,000 per day to one ranch owner. His total tax is $8.800 per vear.

Another ranch, Ellenburger field, produces fifty million cubic feet per day, or about $1,000 per day to the owner of the land. The annual tax to Crockett County is $3,400 per year (thirty-four hundred),

The reason Prichard and Abbott give for this great. great difference in my taxes and other fields in Crockett County is:

"Your gas comes from Canyon formation, is better gas, and is supposed to last after going down for several years to a low point and keep producing a little gas for about 16 years. The Ellenburger fields are supposed to play out entirely in about 12 years. Therefore, we are giving the people who own Ellenburger fields a tax less than a half of what we are giving you, because your field is a Canvon field."

We have already had Clearfork and Canyon wells to play out overnight. The fact is that if Canyon wells live longer than Ellenburger wells, we will still be paying taxes after the Ellenburger wells are dead and paying no taxes.

Another thing, if you own 1/8 minerals and an oil company owns 7/8 of the minerals, their valuation should be seven times what your valuation is. The answer they give is "the oil companies are developing the county and entitled to a smaller valuation. "

Now we all realize the taxes in Crockett County have never been too high, and we appreciate that fact, but I do think they should be equally assessed for each taxpayer. I do not know how much Ellenburger wells have gone down in production in 1975, but I do know according to Gulf Oil Co. estimates are our wells went down 60% in 1975.

I do not know the solution to this situation. I do not even know if Prichard and Abbott tell the county what to assess taxes on or if the county tells Prichard and Abbott

January Sales Offer Vegetable Recipes Shopper SavingsNow Available Austin-Texas grain of 115.5 million bus

Storewide clearance sales in January offer a great opporunity for the careful shopper to save 10-50 per cent or even more, says Claudia Mitzel, consumer information specialist.

For the best selection, shop during the early days of the sale -- but for best prices, shop toward the end of the sale, she recommends.

Miss Mitzel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Some of the biggest savings luring January are found on Christmas cards, wrapping paper and decorations, but It's about 900 miles from the north of Scotland to the south of England, and when people make the trek on foot they usually start at the northernmost tip, in the village of John o' Groats.

John o' Groats was not always just the name of a place. It started off as the name of a person. His real name was John de Groot, and he was a Dutchman who settled in the north of Scotland. He had seven sons who quarreled over precedence

So John de Groot had a house built in octagonal shape. On each of the eight sides he had a door put in so that he and his seven sons could each have a personal entrance. There was also an eight-sided dining room-and an eight-sided table.

It is not recorded whether this scheme of things worked, but the house remained an object of curiosity for many years. Today the John o' Groats Hotel stands at the site of the octagonal house. Teacher's Scotch Information Centre can tell you there's nothing eight-sided about the hotel. But the small

Officials Pleased With Alien

Kesponse

Immigration officials are well pleased with the response of aliens in this area to address report requirements.

Mr. Joe F. Staley of the Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that although the program has been underway only 15 days, the number reporting thus far is well ahead of the number reporting during the same period last year.

Aliens have until the end of January to submit their address reports to the Government. Forms for the purpose may be obtained at any Post Office or any office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Nets High Yields, Lower Prices

AUSTIN--Texas grain farmers have ended 1975 with near-record crops and lower prices for most grains, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C White.

The temporary moratorium on U.S. grain exports is the major factor contributing to the lower prices, which are averaging $1-$2 less this year, Commissioner White said. Prices are now beginning to make a slight recovery, White added.

Wheat production hit a record 131.1 million bushels. The previous high was 116.9 million bushels in 1947. Wheat production across the nation reached an all-time high this year, with 2.1 billion bushels harvested. Texas producers contributed a major share of that increase, White noted. The sorghum crop will be 387.6 million bushels this year, exceeded only by the 1973 crop of 417 million.

Yield per acre is expected to be 57 bushels, an increase over the drought-affected 52 bushels of 1974. The 1975 Texas corn crop of 115.5 million bushels is

It was the winter of 1800 when the White House was ready for occupancy. Abigail Adams had the honor and task of being the first First Lady. History reveals that in the bumpy ride from Phil-adelphia to Washington more than half of her china tea service had been broken en route. Mrs. Adams had to replace it in time for the official reception or face social disaster. Why not celebrate the Bicentennial year with a formal or informal tea party in your own home? Invite friends and neighbors over and serve Bigelow's Constant Comment, an adaptation of a colonial recipe blending fine tea with orange rind and sweet spices.

Tips For Gardeners From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

After the severe cold of last week you may think it is too early to begin soil preparation, but be on the alert when the ground is in suitable condition to work.

Few practices promote good gardening more than having flower beds and borders spaded and manured well in advance of the planting time. To save time later on, get rid of winter weeds and grass where they are not wanted.

Pruning can be started now on established shrubs and trees. Cut out all dead and unwanted limbs to help enhance the beauty of the plant. They will put out new growth and cover the severe pruning. Some of these are the photinia, which grows very fast, wax leaf ligustrum, pyracantha, pittosporum and other overgrown evergreens. Finish this pruning by March first before new growth begins.

Also prune late flowering shrubs between now and March first. This will encourage thicker, more attractive shrubs. Examples, abelia, althaea, butterfly bush, crepe myrtle, elaeagnus, flowering willow, mallow hibiscus, vitex, tamarix (salt cedar) and others.

Award winning roses chosen to receive the 1976 All-American Rose selections include two hybrid teas, Yankee Doodle and seashell; the floribunda, cathedral; and the climber, America. All are in the salmon, orange and apricot colors. The America climber is the first to receive an AARS award in 18 years, and the only rose produced by an American hybridizer for the 1976 award.

Pest Management To Become

Computerized

The computer is now going to play an even bigger role in the overall design and evaluation of insect pest management programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service as the agency has appointed a data manager in pest management.

He is Jerry L. Henson, who is assigned to the Department of Entomology at Texas A&M University.

"With the coordinated educational programs in pest management currently under way in numerous crops in various areas of the state, the need for more detailed analysis of these programs is real, " said Dr. John E. Hutchison, state Extension Service director, in announcing the appointment artwork--new at BROWN of Henson. "We feel fortunate to have the services of Mr. Henson in this vital area, and we know that his contributions will lead to a more effective statewide program of insect pest management. ' Henson will be particularly working to develop a computer network for collecting and summarizing pest management program data and will give close attention to the economic evaluation of the pest management program. He will also develop computer simulation models for forecasting insect populations, added Hutchison.

The new data manager is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Henson of Monahans. He is a graduate of the local high school and attended Sul Ross State University where he was on the Dean's Honor Roll for three years. Henson received a B.S. degree in mathematics from Texas A&M in 1974 and recently completed his Master of Computer Science degree.

In many areas across the country there's abundant water underground, and many people are discovering they can tap this natural resource by drilling their own wells.

One man found that his savings would total $520.70 a year if he used his own well instead of depending on water district supplies. The figure includes electricity for running the pump, pump maintenance, and depreciation.

According to Durward Humes, executive secretary of the Ground Water Council, "If underground water is abundant in your area, as it is in most, and if you have a good working well, you're usually many dollars ahead if you use your own well. EPA Regulations May Delay Ag. & Industrial Construction

Certain new agricultural and industrial operations may be required to submit lengthy environmental assessment reports to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) nine months prior to construction if proposed regulations are put into effect.

According to Dr. John Sweeten, agricultural engineer sources include major irriin waste management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the proposed EPA

Gift Returning Guidelines

After the holidays, the gift-returning consumer can follow some easy guidelines to make the transaction as easy as possible, a consumer specialist says.

Know the store's policy on returning merchandise is Claudia Mitzel's major "rule of thumb. "

"Not all merchandise can be returned, especially personal environmental questionnaire products. Some stores will exchange gifts for another selection or give a credit receipt while other stores may give cash refunds.

"And some stores will not exchange merchandise bought at full price for merchandise sold at a reduced price, " the consumer information specialist pointed out.

Miss Mitzel is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"When returning merchandise, have receipts and hangtags on hand, if possible. This will be easier if you keep receipts and price tags together--and labeled for any gift you buy that may need returning.

If the store has a "Return Desk" or "Return Department, ' take the merchandise and sales receipt there--if not. go to the department where it was purchased. Only return merchandise to the store where it was bought. -- 0--

Parents are concerned about the controversial publicity appearing in regard to baby foods.

I've been closely involved with the development of Gerber products over the years. I used them for my children. All of my 18 grandchildren were raised on them. Let me assure you that

Gerber baby foods are safe and processed under strict sanitary conditions. A baby's tiny body is considerably more sensitive than an adult's. So every product must pass many tests for purity, safety and wholesomeness. In fact, specifications for baby food products are among the most rigid in the entire food industry. High standards of bacteriological safety are upheld through each step of food preparation. Home preparation, on the other hand, involves significant risk of bacterial contamination.

Chemical preservatives are not used to prevent spoilage in baby foods, which "keep" because they have been sealed and heat-treated under steam pressure to eliminate any possibility of spoilage as long as the seal is intact.

Parents are right to be concerned about anything affecting their babies, but they should know that baby foods are as safe, wholesome and nutritious as science and conscientious preparation can make them.
