The West Texas VA Health Care System will be conducting its annual VA Cadets/Cadettes Nursing Youth Volunteer Program from June 14 to July 20, beginning with a two-day orientation.

This service promotes understanding in the field of nursing, offering cadets and cadettes hands-on experience under the supervision of the Big Spring VA Hospital medical staff.

"The main focus is Hanslik that we want them to show an interest in the medical field," said Iva Jo Hanslik. "We have an in-depth orientation, teaching the volunteers how to take vitals, prepping and preparing patients, and we allow them to observe and assist with minor surgeries."

The program is limited to 12 candidates, selected by a committee comprised of the nursing staff. Anyone 14 and older is eligible to apply. Propective students are required to submit a written essay expressing their interest in the nursing field to be reviewed by the nursing staff and will undergo an interview. The six-week program focuses on a variety of hospital settings including extended care, outpatient clinics, radiology, opthamalogy and emergency care.

"We want to encourage these young people to participate and Hanslik at (432) 264-4824.

Experience gives Spurs edge over Jazz

By JAIME ARON

AP Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO — Back when the Utah Jazz had Karl Malone, John Stockton and other playofftested veterans, they had a simple way of dealing with postseason newcomers: Patience.

"Let the other team make a mistake. That's what you do when you have guys who know how to play and how to play with each other," coach Jerry Sloan said. "The other team will screw it up.'

Two games into the Western Conference finals, Sloan is seeing it happen again — only this time, it's his club lacking the onship-savvy San Antonio Spurs taking advantage.

Tim Duncan, Tony Parker and the Spurs easily won the first two games of the series, taking over both on second-quarter meltdowns by the Jazz that smacked of exactly what Sloan was talking about: badly missed shots that shouldn't have been taken, sloppy turnovers, blown defensive assignments and silly things like failing to box out on free throws.

Utah has trailed since there was 5:17 left in the first quarter of the opener, a span of 90 minutes, 43 seconds that's about as lopsided as the difference in know-how, and the champi- playoff experience between these night. teams. The Jazz have eight players in their first postseason, while San Antonio has six guvs left from its 2005 title team.

> "We are going to play the game and take the shots that are there and make the plays that are there," Duncan said following a 105-96 victory Tuesday night. "Those are the times we have made our runs. It is not by design. It is not by anything else other than we are playing possession to possession.'

Both teams were off Wednesday as the series began a midweek break. The scene shifts to Salt Lake City for the next two games, but not until Saturday

Utah is 6-0 at home in the playoffs and beat San Antonio in both regular-season home games, giving the Jazz hope of making it a series again, or at least regaining some respect.

"We proved we can score against this team, we haven't proved we can stop them yet," All-Star forward Carlos Boozer said. "We know if we tighten up our defense a little bit more in Salt Lake, we should have a much better chance.'

As Utah reviews what's happened so far, coaches and players may be frustrated to discover

Bulldogettes ready to claim another region title

By JONATHAN HULL

Herald Sports Writer

COAHOMA — In 15 seasons of softball competi-Coahoma's Bulldogettes have made a state record eight appearances at the state softball tournament, and they would like nothing better to make it nine. To do that, however, they must first overcome Hawley's Lady Bearcats, in a bestof-three Region I, Class 2A championship series.

They will face District 5-2A rival Hawley in a bestof-three series, with Game 1 slated for 2 p.m. Friday at Abilene Christian University. Game 2 is set for 2 p.m. Saturday with a third game, if necessary, scheduled to take place 30 minutes after the completion of the second game. The series victor will become Region I champions and will advance to the state tournament held in Austin the next week-

The Bulldogettes and Lady Bearcats are very familiar with one another, having played three times during district play. Hawley won the first matchup, 3-0, dealing Coahoma its first ever district loss in more than a decade of softball competition.

"Hawley is the best 2A team that we've played this season," Bulldogettes head coach Tadlock. Tracy expected to see them again at this stage of the playoffs. They've got a strong pitcher, but are a pretty tough all-around team. We were sluggish offensively in that first game with them."

The Lady Bearcats' pitching didn't find as much success against the Bulldogettes in their last two encounters of the season. Coahoma took the second game, 3-0, then dominated Hawley for a 7-0 victory in late April that allowed the Bulldogettes to advance into the playoffs as the 5-2A champion, while Hawley began the postseason as the league's runner-up. Hawley pitching didn't strike out a single Bulldogette batter in that third meeting.

"We're growing everyday. Sometimes it's hard to remember that we are a really young team with only one senior on the roster," said Tadlock. "We're a smart, athletic team. The more we see a pitcher, the more we jump on her."

Freshman ace Heather Newton will get her usual start in Game 1 of the best-of-three series. She combined with senior Ami Martinez to earn the

Morneau homers again, Rangers lose 5-3

The Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Justin Morneau says he enjoys hitting at Rangers Ballpark in Arlington, and the numbers back him up.

Morneau homered for the third time in two games and Boof Bonser won his third straight leading start, Minnesota Twins over the Texas Rangers 5-3 on Wednesday.

The AL MVP in 2006 hit his 14th homer of the season, a solo drive in the third on an inside fastball off Robinson Tejeda (4-4) to give Minnesota a 3-1 lead. For the series, Morneau went 5-for-13 with three homers and seven RBIs. In the last two seasons at the Rangers' stadium, he is 14-for-36 (.389) with six homers and 15 RBIs.

"I like playing here," Morneau said. "The ball carries pretty well here. The wind seems always to be blowing the ball out to right-center. You just have to square it up and it's got a good chance to go out."

Sammy Sosa pinch hit for Texas with two on and two outs in the ninth and struck out, remaining two home runs shy of 600.

Bonser (3-1) allowed two runs and six hits in five couldn't hit his spots and innings, struck out six and walked two. Joe Nathan, the Twins' fifth pitcher, got three outs for his ninth save in 10 chances as Minnesota finished a 4-5 trip.

Victor Diaz Texas' broke his bat on a doubleplay grounder in the ninth. The shattered barrel of the bat struck Nathan on the back of his right leg, but the reliever remained on the mound, fanning Sosa three batters later.

When Nathan was struck with the piece of the bat, Twins medical personnel and manager Ron Gardenhire sprinted to the mound to check on the right-hander. Nathan limped for a few seconds, but when he ran a few strides, Gardenhire was convinced that his closer was OK.

"(Nathan) said, 'I'm fine. Let's go before it tightens up," Gardenhire

Tejeda gave up five runs and three hits in threeplus innings, throwing 86 pitches.

"He couldn't find his rhythm with any of his pitches," Rangers manager Ron Washington said. "He fought as hard as he could but just couldn't find his rhythm. He they waited him out."

Kenny Lofton and Mark Teixeira had three hits each, and Teixeira drove in two runs for the Rangers, held to four runs in the final two games of the three-game series after scoring 14 in the opener. The Rangers left 14 on base in the finale.

"We had some opportunities but we didn't cash in," Teixeira said. "They made some pitches. This is one of the best pitching staffs in the majors. It's tough not to press offensively. But we'll start getting 'em in."

Torii Hunter's RBI single in the first gave Minnesota the lead, then Texas tied it in the bottom half on Teixeira's run-scoring double.

Luis Castillo, who had three hits, singled home the go-ahead run in the second. Morneau's thirdinning drive gave him homers in consecutive games for the third time this season.

Teixeira's RBI single in the third made it 3-2. With the bases loaded and one out, Ian Kinsler struck out and Ramon Vazquez grounded out.

"The fastball I threw to (strike out) Kinsler was that San Antonio has dominated without doing anything spectacular. Even in Game 2, when the Spurs set a franchise playoff record with 13 3pointers and Parker had a career playoff-best 14 assists, those were simply byproducts of what the defense gave them.

With guards Deron Williams and Derek Fisher unable to stay in front of the speedy Parker, the Jazz overcompensated by packing the lane once he got there. That left shooters wide open on the perimeter and Parker had no trouble finding them. They then had no problem finding the bottom of the net. Brent Barry went 3-for-3 on 3s in the breakout second quarter and Bruce Bowen 3-for-3 in the fourth quarter, when the Spurs pushed away Utah's final challenge.

Sloan can deal with a strategy that backfires. What he's tired of seeing is how his team responds to it, saying they have a tendency to hang their heads and take bad shots.

"They think, 'I haven't touched the ball in a little bit and I will fire one up there,' and it doesn't go in," he said. "I'd rather the guy drive the ball to the basket and come up with something there rather than pulling up on some of those shots we took." Even when the Jazz rallied, they couldn't come all the way back. "We would shoot ourselves in the foot," Sloan said. "We would give them an easy basket, a layup or a wide-open shot. They just took advantage of our inability to be able to see what's going on." It's worth noting that Utah has done an admirable job just getting this far.

The Jazz overcame a home-court disadvantage — despite having a higher seed — to beat Houston in the first round, winning Game 7 on the road after getting in the same 0-2 hole they're in now. Good fortune, including the NBAnot reseeding the win. "Tahoka played between rounds like the NHL does, earned a second-round matchup with bottom-seeded Golden State instead of top-seeded Dallas and Utah took care of the Warriors in five games. Now the Jazz are facing a San Antonio team that's not only more experienced, but also more talented.

Boozer and Williams admit they hope to one day be as good as Duncan and Parker, with Sloan calling Duncan "probably the best player that's ever played the position, the way he plays it."

Manu Ginobili has been a dominant force off the bench and the Spurs' role players have filled their roles well.

one of my better pitches," Bonser said. "I got the better end of it this time. I battled today. I didn't really have much command, but we pulled through and got the W."

Jason Tyner hit into an RBI forceout in the fourth off C.J. Wilson and scored on a wild pitch that increased Minnesota's lead to 5-2.

Pinch-hitter Frank Catalanotto had an RBI single in the eighth off Juan Rincon.

Yankees 8, Red Sox 3

With several issues swirling off the field for the New York Yankees, Andy Pettitte kept things steady for them on the diamond.

Pettitte and the Yankees ended a busy Wednesday with a victory over Boston. Pettitte (3-3) pitched seven innings, Hideki Matsui homered off an ineffective Curt Schilling and New York beat the Red Sox 8-3.

The left-hander allowed one run and nine hits with one walk, lowering his ERA to 2.66 and improving to 14-6 against Boston.

Light-hitting Mientkiewicz also connected and Derek Jeter passed Joe DiMaggio for fifth place on the franchise hit list to help the Yankees take two of three in the series and move within 9 1/2 games of AL East-leading Boston.

When the Bulldogettes ran across Tahoka's Lady Bulldogs last week, some thought that the game could turn out to be a real dogfight. Both teams were sending a strong pitcher to the mound, and Tahoka's ace had only given up one run in two playoff games, leading the Lady Bulldogs into that Class 2A regional semifisolid defense, as well, making that offensive prowess overpowering. Tadlock gives a lot of credit for Bulldogettes' defensive success this season to catcher Janice Gonzalez. He feels that she can completely shut down an opponent's running game with her arm behind the plate.

The Bulldogette offense was prolific Saturday against Tahoka. Coahoma put six runs on the board Tadlock makes it clear he doesn't expect as lopsided a final in any of the regional championship series with the Lady Bearcats.

"We've got to continue to put the ball in play and pressure Hawley's defense," he said. "We have to avoid striking out at the plate and make Hawley work defensively to beat us."

prospects were not too good. To begin with, there was at least one trump loser, and on top of that there was either a diamond or a club loser. depending on what South discarded on dummy's third heart.

By Steve Becker

The slam was not hopeless, though, since there were two legitimate chances to make it. Accordingly, after winning the heart lead in dummy, declarer led the jack of spades and took East's queen with the ace as West followed low.

Next came two more heart win ners, South discarding a club, followed by the A-K of clubs and a club ruff, on which West discarded a diamond. Had the clubs divided 3-3 instead of 4-2, the slam would have been in the bag at this point since dummy's fourth club would provide a parking place for South's diamond

But even after the clubs failed to break, the battle was not yet lost. South still had one last chance, and so, with fingers crossed, he exited with a trump in the hope of finding West with both the king of spades and king of diamonds.

The hope became a full-fledged reality when West won the trump lead with the king and was forced to return a diamond or a heart, handing declarer the slam.

Annie's Mailbox •

Dear Annie: My sister, "Linda," died two months after years of ago, struggling with cancer. We were very close, and I'm still grieving. Linda was married nearly 20 years, but I never felt I knew her husband, "James." During her illness, James never showed Linda affection I would have expected. In fact, the lack of grief from both James and his children made it difficult for me to deal with my loss.

However, last week, I received very a disturbing letter from James. He suggested we get together for a "night of fun." He said he hadn't had much sex in the last few years because of Linda's illness, and implied that I also wasn't getting any due to my taking full-time care of an elderly relative. He figured we could help each other out. He actually said that by satisfying his physical needs with me, he'd be in a better position to emotionally become involved with another woman once he was ready to date again. To top it off, he said, "Linda would want this." T absolutely was shocked and sickened. After several days, I sent him a response. I told him I found his letter deeply disturbing and inappropriate, that I would never consider such a proposal, and that I didn't think my sister would ever have condoned such a thing. I urged him to seek counseling and told him never to talk to me about this again. I am furious with

James and feel somehow molested. I never gave him any indication that I had sexual feelings for him. I wonder if the stress has made him lose his mind. Should I tell anyone? Are his children safe? I destroyed the letter because I couldn't stand to have it in my possession. How will I ever be able to look him in the eve again? --Confused in Kentucky

Dear Confused: James is lonely and has wildly inappropriate expectations, but we don't think he has lost his mind or is a danger to anyone. You've told him to back off. Good. Now you need to pretend it never happened. When you see him, don't bring up the subject and don't respond if he brings it up. If necessary, walk away.

Dear Annie: When a husband is driving, and his wife is in the passenger seat and there another female is passenger seated in the right back, for whom should the husband open the car door first? -- Just Wondering

Dear Wondering: It's so nice that someone still opens car doors for others. If it's your mother, mother-in-law, grandmother or a person needing assistance, open her door first. Otherwise, it doesn't matter.

2008 Democratic presidential contenders on Capitol Hill face critical vote on Iraq war

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential contenders on Capitol Hill will cast critical votes on the Iraq war this week, when lawmakers decide on a $120 billion bill to keep military operations afloat through September.

The House planned to vote Thursday with the Senate to follow suit by week's end.

The legislation does not set the deadline for U.S. troop withdrawals many Democrats wanted. Unable to achieve the two-thirds majority needed to override one presidential veto because of such a deadline Democratic leaders announced Tuesday they would proceed to provide money for the war anyway because they wanted to support the troops.

"I believe as long as we have troops in the front line, we're going to have to protect them," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del. "We're going to have to fund them."

Biden was alone among the potential Democratic candidates in immediately pledging his support for the

Israeli troops round up Hamas lawmakers, bomb moneychangers, in new offensive

NABLUS, West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops in the West Bank arrested more than 30 senior Hamas members Thursday, the army said, including a Cabinet minister, legislators and mayors.

The roundup came hours after Israeli planes struck what the military said were money changing offices and other businesses in Gaza which were channeling

The raids were part of a concerted offensive against the Islamic militant group, in retaliation for its rocket attacks from Gaza on Israeli border towns.

The most prominent Hamas politician to be arrested was Education Minister Nasser Shaer, considered a pragmatist in the movement. His wife, Huda, said soldiers knocked on the door of their home in the West Bank city of Nablus and took him away. Troops also seized Shaer's computer, she said.

It was the second time Shaer was arrested in a roundup of Hamas members in the past year.

Castro says he is getting better, eating solid food, after several operations

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's recovery from intestinal surgery 10 months ago was delayed because the first of several operations he had went badly, the communist leader said in a statement that gave the most detailed account of his health since August.

Castro, 80, said in the Wednesday statement that he is now eating solid food and improving after "many months" of intravenous feeding. It was the most information released about Castro's condition since his Aug. 13 birthday, when he asked Cubans to be optimistic but not rule out possible "adverse news."

"It was not just one operation, but various," Castro wrote in the statement that the government sent to international media by e-mail. "Initially it was not successful and that had a bearing on my prolonged recuperation."

Expected to be published in state newspapers and read on radio and television broadcasts on Thursday, the statement did not say when Castro might appear in public again or resume Cuba's presidency.

"Today I receive orally everything my recuperation requires," the convalescing leader wrote.

'Gang of 12' senators works to decide fate of bipartisan immigration deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just off the Senate floor, a dozen Democratic and Republican senators huddle twice a day to decide whether proposed changes to a bipartisan immigration compromise are acceptable tweaks or fatal blows to their fragile agreement.

Survival of the deal that would allow 12 million unlawful immigrants to stay in the U.S. legally regarded as the best chance to overhaul immigration this year — depends in large part on how effective this "Gang of 12" is in insulating the plan from major changes.

The team grows or shrinks according to what the issues are. At its core are the unlikely partners who cut the deal, led by liberal Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and conservative Sen. Jon Kyl, R-Ariz. Assistance comes from GOP centrist Sens. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina, Mel Martinez of Florida and Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania.

They sit in overstuffed crimson leather chairs; Senate aides and senior White House officials look on. The team pores over lists of proposed amendments from both parties. Some are deemed acceptable, while others are deal-breakers that must be killed or modified to avoid alienating a key bloc.

There is a real commitment to absolutely do our best to see that the agreement is not unraveled," Kyl

"We're trying to avoid killing the deal."

Voter ID measure dies in Senate without a vote

By JIM VERTUNO

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN — The subject of angry debate and one senator's life-and-death balance between his health and politics, the bill to require voters to show photo identification or two other forms of ID before casting ballots died Wednesday night in the Senate without a vote.

Under Senate rules, midnight Wednesday was the deadline for the bill to come up for debate before Monday's end of the legislative session.

'We're not going to do it," said Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, the Republican who presides over the Senate.

Democrats, who claim the identification requirements would suppress poor and minority voters, had vowed to filibuster the bill — and threaten other bills — if it ever came up. Dewhurst and other Republicans argued the measure is needed to combat voter fraud. It had already passed the House.

Under Senate rules, it would have taken 25 of the 31 members to pass the bill before the deadline and Democrats had 11 votes to block it.

The bill had been at the center of a Senate melodrama of angry debate, cursing and fingerpointing when Republicans previously tried to take the bill over Democratic objections.

In recent days, the focus was on Democratic Sen. Mario Gallegos Houston, who had a liver transplant in January. Gallegos bucked his doctors' advice and symptoms that his body might reject the organ to stay at the Capitol. A Republican colleague had set up a hospital bed in a room outside the Senate chamber so that Gallegos could be ready to vote.

"I just wanted to be the 11th vote to block the bill," Gallegos said.

Legislature must fund state parks

exas' horribly neglected state parks system is at a crucial crossroads. Its fate now rests in the hands of Texas House and Senate budget writers.

In recent years, that's been a sure-fire recipe for disaster. But this year, it appears that the moneystarved parks system might finally get the dramatic funding increase that it so clearly needs. Recent reports indicated that funding might rise from a starvation level of less than $25 million to as much as $85 million.

That could give the system desperately needed money to replace worn-out equipment and vehicles, hire new staffers to compensate for previous cutbacks, re-establish curtailed programs and perhaps even buy land for additional park space to serve fast-growing urban areas such as Dallas-Fort Worth.

Budget writers also should ensure that the $9.6 million that the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is receiving for selling a 400-acre tract at Eagle Mountain Lake in northwest Tarrant County can go toward acquiring a site for a large regional state park in North Texas, as Gov. Rick Perry and Parks and Wildlife Commission Chairman Joseph Fitzsimons have urged.

That's only fair.

The state is getting the $9.6 million largely from local government and private donors in Tarrant County, and the lake site initially had been purchased by the state for a state park but never was developed. The Eagle Mountain site is to become a local, nature-oriented park.

Parks lovers raised a public outcry after media reports by the Star-Telegram and others last year of the pathetic deterioration of the parks system. Texas ranks 49th among the 50 states in parks funding. It's up to the Legislature to ensure that the state once again becomes a responsible steward of the more than 100 parks and natural areas under its jurisdiction.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

When we are overly tired, Lord, may we trust in You for our life.

Amen

The immigration bill debacle

he almost-stealth immigration bill light-speeding its way through Congress represents all that is wrong with politics and an elitist political class that is too far removed from its constituencies.

There is so much wrong with this bill procedurally, and substantively, that one can barely scratch the surface in a short column, but I'll recapitulate some of the most egregious concerns and share a few pet peeves.

First, we are bogged down in a semantic debate over whether the bill constitutes "amnesty." Open-borders apologists take umbrage at the term, saying the bill does not constitute amnesty because illegal immigrants will be punished, never mind how inconsequentially.

But I would argue that those insisting it is amnesty are, in a sense, understating their case. In certain respects it's worse than amnesty. Not only will criminal violators of the immigration laws receive a mere wrist-slap for their infractions; they will be rewarded for them.

Consider the treatment of those convicted of other crimes — take stealing, for example. The convict not only faces criminal penalties; the law seeks to restore him and his victims to their status prior to the crime, to the extent that's practicable or possible. The bank robber is not allowed to retain the fruits of his crime. He must pay restitution, if applicable, in addition to whatever fines or jail time to which he is sentenced.

By contrast, millions of illegal immigrants under the bill would not be sent back home but would become legal permanent residents of this country. By being allowed to stay, they would be, in effect, keeping the fruits of their crime. More importantly, many of them would become recipients of federal government largesse via a smorgasbord of entitlements.

As reported in the Washington Times, the Heritage Foundation's Robert Rector calculates that during their lifetimes, they will likely receive "$2.5 trillion more in government services than they will pay in taxes." Among those benefits are Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, SSI, public housing, subsidized college education and Social Security Disability Insurance. So those persisting in challenging the amnesty characterization should be reminded that many illegals will be receiving an enormous economic windfall to accompany their anemic wristslapping.

Second, many of the bill's proponents have long resorted to adhominem assaults on the opponents, falsely portraying their valid, prudent, noble and patriotic opposition as racist, nativist and ultra-restrictionist.

But again, those who should have the burden of proof in this matter (the proponents) have turned the table on the opponents. How dare those who are promoting legislation that would flout the rule of law, reward criminal behavior, undermine our unique American culture, balkanize our society, dilute our sense of nationalism, make us more vulnerable to attack from our global terrorist enemies and coerce a massive redistribution of resources from lawful, taxpaying American citizens, call those who favor reasonable measures to preserve what is worth preserving about America — which has nothing to do with race or ethnicity, by the way — "racists"?

The misguided arrogance of those playing the race card to demonize open-borders opponents is staggering. Then again, inflaming the passions against your adversaries obviates addressing the issues factually.

I dare say that opponents of the bill would be opposed no matter the ethnicity or nationality of the windfall transferees. It's not about their ethnicity; it's not even primarily about them. It's about the rule of law, our national security, the American culture, the English language, national unity during time of war, the constitutional rights of American citizens and the fiscal concerns of American taxpayers and their descendants.

It's especially shameful that many of the bill's greatest supporters are motivated by crass political concerns rather than the best interests of the United States. If it were otherwise, would they be so adamant about fast-tracking this bill and drafting it in duplicitous terms? On that note, be aware that some experts who have briefly studied the bill's fine print have noted that the bill's so-called "triggers" — the events that must occur as a sop to enforcement types before the wrist-brushings and windfalls kick in — are virtually defined out of existence in many cases by exceptions that swallow the rule.

One silver lining in this unfortunate series of events is that such cavalier displays of power by the elite governing class serve to catalyze patriots in this nation and crystallize their thinking about what is still right with America and worth preserving despite the highhandedness and callousness of those who masquerade as representing their interests.

Just say "no" to this legislation.

After reading my letter published in the Sunday, May 20, 2007, issue of the Big Spring Herald, I realized I made a mistake in the listing of the streets first proposed to be improved.

I meant to state that Main (not Gregg), Scurry and Lancaster were those being considered.

This error is not the fault of the Herald. You printed my letter as presented to you.

I apologize to the readers.

ARDIS McCasland Jr. BIG SPRING

TO THE EDITOR:

The traditional observance of Memorial Day, May 28, 2007, has diminished over the years. Many in the Permian Basin nowdays have forgotten the meaning and traditions of Memorial Day. At many of our cemeteries, the graves of the fallen are increasingly ignored and neglected. Most people no longer remember the proper flag etiquette for the day. While there are towns and cities in the Permian Basin that still hold Memorial Day parades, many have not held a parade in decades. Some people think the day is for honoring any and all dead, and not just those fallen in service to our country, and some look at it as a holiday to enjoy the fruits of their labors.

Memorial Day, originally called Decoration Day, a day of remembrance for those who have died in our nation's service, was officially proclaimed on May 5, 1868, by Gen. John Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, in his General Order No. 11. The official day was first observed on May 30, 1868, when flowers were placed on the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery. There are many stories as to the formal recognition service's actual beginnings, with many spontaneous gatherings of people to honor the war dead in the 1860s. It is not important who was the first. What is important, is that Memorial Day was established.

Memorial Day is not about division. It is about reconciliation; it is about coming together to honor those who gave their all.

The Permian Basin POW/MIA "Ride To Remember" to honor those who gave their all will be celebrated once again on Memorial Day, May 28, 2007.

All motorcyclists and members of the general public, along with veteran and military families are invited to the Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans Memorial at the Midland International Airport for a 9 a.m. memorial service and to then participate in a "Ride To Remember" to the Vietnam Memorial in Big Spring.

The "Ride To Remember" brings together veterans, families and friends who cannot participate in national programs such as Run For The Wall and Rolling Thunder to pay tribute and to remember and honor POWs-MIAs on a local and regional level.

Last year, this program brought together more than 600 motorcycle enthusiasts and supporters who rode for "Those Who Can't." This event has grown in such popularity it now incorporates civilian riders who previously may not have had a connection to a war or to a veteran, but who have taken up the cause honoring the men and women of our Armed Forces who have stood, or now stand in harm's way defending the freedom's we enjoy.

Today is Thursday, May 24, the 144th day of 2007. There are 221 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 24, 1844, Samuel F.B. Morse transmitted the message, "What hath God wrought" from Washington to Baltimore as he formally opened America's first telegraph line.

On this date:

In 1819, Queen Victoria was born in London.

In 1881, some 200 people died when the Canadian ferry Princess Victoria sank near London, Ontario. In 1883, the Brooklyn

In 1957, anti-American

In 1962, astronaut Scott Carpenter became the second American to orbit the Earth as he flew aboard Aurora 7.

In 1976, Britain and France opened trans-Atlantic Concorde service to Washington. In 1977, in a surprise
