'Epic' debuts tonight

BSHS comedy to run through the weekend

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

They don't make movie epics like they used to.

"Epic Proportions," a play being staged by the Big Spring High School Theater Department beginning tonight, is a comedy chronicling the pitfalls facing a well-intentioned but ultimately clueless movie crew as it attempts to produce the next big epic.

Show times are 7 p.m. tonight and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday in the BSHS Auditorium. Admission is $3 for adults and $2 for students.

"Epic" takes place on a movie set in the Arizona desert and centers on two brothers, Benny and Phil, extras on the movie. The both fall for Louise, the person in charge of the extras, and tensions — and comedy — ensue.

"I'm going to borrow a line from the show: 'This is a story about a lot of things,'" said Tabitha Wright, BSHS Drama Department director. "We have 11 actors portraying 28 characters and timing is key in comedy. I am really impressed with their ability to play a variety of roles and bring something unique to each character.

"It has a lot of one-liners in it," she added. "This is just a good, old-fashioned comedy — with a few twists here and there."

This marks Wright's debut as head of the theater department. After five years as an English teacher at BSHS, she "jumped at the chance" to replace Tracie Lindsey

Police use Taser in domestic case

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

A Big Spring man found himself on the wrong end of a Taser Wednesday evening after law enforcement officials say he lunged at a police officer.

Arthur Nanny, 49, of 105 Eighth St., was arrested and charged with assault on a public servant and resisting arrest during an altercation at his home at approximately 7 p.m. Wednesday, according to police officials.

"Officers were called to the home on a report of a domestic disturbance," said Sgt. Tony Everett, public information officer with the Big Spring Police Department. "There were several intoxicated subjects at the residence. Nanny made several threatening remarks to the officer, and then lunged for him. That's when the officer used his Taser on him."

Everett said the Big Spring man suffered no injuries as a result of being

HawkFest

Saturday event promises activities for entire family

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Howard College is having a party — and everyone's invited.

The college's first-ever HawkFest, billed as a fun-filled event for the entire family, will be held between 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday on the HC campus.

HawkFest was the brainchild of the college's Student Government Association and Marsha McNew, student life coordinator for the college.

"This is a chance for Howard College to give back to the community and to provide something for our students, as well," said McNew. "It's a family event. It will have something for everybody, both on campus and off."

Hawkfest will be held in the area immediately south of the student union building. Parking will be available in the Memorial

Time running short for Angel Tree applications

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Friday will be the last chance for area residents to apply for the annual Salvation Army Angel Tree program, as the local charity gets ready to march headlong into the holiday season.

And while the local Salvation Army will have plenty to do this holiday season, it appears the workload presented by the Angel Tree efforts won't be overly burdensome.

"We were expecting at least 350 applicants for the program, but as it stands right now, we only have about 150," said Capt. Terrie Cheshire. "We've had 93 families — those are the kids — approved and 67 seniors. And with Friday the last day to sign up, I don't know that we'll have many more than that when it's over."

Cheshire said the only applications that will be processed after Friday will be ones involving emergency situations.

"Emergency applications will only be accepted from people who have just moved to town, women who are separated from their husbands or their house has burned," said Cheshire. "It will have to be an emergency situation similar to these."

According to Salvation Army Social Worker Paula Lafler, she and the rest of the Salvation Army staff will be ready to take applications through Friday af-

FRIDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL REVIEW

Area Roundup: GC hosts No. 5 Indians

By JONATHAN HULL
Sports Editor

GARDEN CITY — Last time Garden City faced a team considered to be on of the state's best six-man squads, the results weren't so favorable.

The Bearkats (7-1, 1-0) get a chance to redeem themselves at 7:30 p.m. Friday when they host the fifth-ranked Fort Davis Indians (8-0, 7-1) in a game expected to decide who will be Division I, District 8 champion.

Garden City's contest is just one of several important district matchups from around the Crossroads' area taking place Friday. Other local games include Ira's Bulldogs visiting Grady's Wildcats with a playoff spot on the line. Sands travels to Gail to face the second-ranked Borden County Coyotes. Finally, Stanton's Buffaloes, who have won three of their last four games, try to remain undefeated in District 7-A while playing host to Tahoka's Bulldogs.

In Garden City, the Bearkats were humiliated in their first game of the season by Abbott — currently ranked third in Division I six-man — finding themselves on the wrong side of the 45-point mercy rule as they fell, 57-12.

However, since then, the No. 11 Bearkats have won six consecutive ballgames — they have seven wins due to a forfeit by El Paso Immanuel Christian — and haven't really felt challenged in any of those victories, expect for a 66-60 performance against rival Robert Lee.

Meanwhile, Fort Davis has defeated all but one opponent courtesy of the 45-point mercy rule. The only team able to compete for a full four quarters against the Indians was Division II's third-ranked squad Sierra Blanca. Still, the Indians beat Sierra Blanca by 22.

Last season, the Indians and Bearkats competed in one of the most competitive districts in recent memory at any level of football in the state of Texas. The league featured four teams ranked in the Top 12 at one point in the year.

However, despite strong seasons, only two teams make the postseason in six-man and Grady and Rankin were able to clinch those spots, despite Garden City sharing a piece of the district title.

Garden City tailback Cole Schwartz (34) picks up a block from quarterback Levi Schaefer (12) in action from the Bearkats' 60-6 homecoming victory over Amarillo Holy Cross last week. Garden City gets a more formidable visitor to Bearkat Stadium Friday, when No. 5 Fort Davis comes to town.

Steers encounter former 5A foe Abilene Cooper

By JONATHAN HULL
Sports Editor

It's been more than two decades since the Big Spring Steers have matched up with former Little Southwest Conference foe Abilene Cooper. The 23-year hiatus from the rivalry ends at 7:30 p.m. Friday night, when the Steers host the Cougars in a District 4-4A contest at Memorial Stadium.

"The players are really excited about playing Cooper," Big Spring Head Coach Phillip Ritchey said. "Cooper's history speaks for itself. They're a good, storied football team and they could still compete at the 5A level this season."

Big Spring Steers quarterback Matt Ritchey turns the corner on a sweep play as a Frenship defender pursues in District 4-4A action Oct. 10 at Memorial Stadium. Ritchey and the Steers return to Memorial Stadium at 7:30 p.m. Friday to take on Abilene Cooper.

The last meeting between the two squads was played in 1985 with Cooper winning 27-15. Big Spring's last win over the Cougars came in 1983 to the tune of 14-11. Overall, Cooper leads the series 18-7.

The Steers moved into Class 4A in 1986 and Cooper finally joins them more than 20 years later. With the demotion in classification, however, comes high expectations.

The Cougars have been ranked as high as fifth in the Class 4A state poll, but fell out after dropping three straight close games to solid Class 5A schools. One of COAHOMA — The Coahoma Bulldogs (0-2, 4-3) and their fans were riding high after a 4-0 start to the season. However, after three straight weeks of frustration resulting in a 0-and-2 start in District 7-2A, the Bulldogs now find themselves fighting for their playoff lives.

Enter the rival Colorado City Wolves (1-1, 4-3).

A team that is vastly improved from last year's squad that won only three games including a 1-6 mark in the old District 5-2A. The futility of Colorado City was even worse two years ago, when it finished winless.

However, the Wolves have turned things around and appear ready to make their first appearance in the postseason since 2005.

It's a natural rivalry with just 30 miles separating the two schools. Last year, Coahoma dealt the Wolves their worst loss of the season, 27-5.

"We know that they remember last year's game," Coahoma Head Coach Stacy Martin said. "We can't let that affect us though. We have enough to worry about."

In order for the Bulldogs to have a chance, they will have to eliminate the mental miscues plaguing them for the last three weeks.

"We knew Kermit and Ballinger were going to be really good teams. The game against Jim Ned, we feel like we let that one get away," Martin said. "We have to focus, remember our assignments and keep our heads in the game. You can't keep giving good teams extra chances and expect to win."

Another source of distress this season for Martin and the Bulldogs is the quarterback position and the plague FORSAN — Win and you stay in the fight. Lose and you might as well start brushing up on your jump shot.

The Forsan Buffaloes (1-6, 0-2) are faced with just that dilemma Friday night, as they are on the road to take the field against the Plains Cowboys (4-3, 0-2).

Kickoff is slated for 7:30 p.m. in a game that, for the winner, leaves a glimmer of hope to grab one of the three playoff spots in District 7-A.

"We know what is on the line Friday night," said Buffs Head Coach Tommy Thompson. "Our coaches know, our players know and our fans know. The one thing working against us right now is those blemishes on Cooper's record came at the hands of crosstown rival and third-ranked Abilene High. Cooper fell, 20-13, but had two opportunities to at least tie the score as Abilene put together two goal line stands in the contest.

"Cooper's losses have come to very good teams," noted Ritchey. "They had every opportunity to upset Abilene and then lost in overtime to a Lewisville Hebron squad just a couple years removed from a state championship. They've shown they could still play in Class 5A."

Cooper is currently 2-0 in District 4-4A, dispatching Hereford, 42-13, and San Angelo Lake View, 54-14, with little resistance.

On the other hand, nothing has come easy for the Steers of late. After playing strong in the first three games of the season, the Steers have been on a steady decline over their past four matchups.

A big part of Big Spring's struggles center around a significant amount of injuries. Nine Steers sat out last week's 25-21 victory over Plainview and a number of those players will also miss Friday's contest.

Among those out against Cooper will be all-state middle linebacker Cade Hollandsworth and all-state running back Monte Anderson. All-district safety Tyrone Clemons will also sit out the game as will starting defensive tackle Steven Henry.

"I think we've played well considering all the injuries we've had," said Ritchey. "I can't think Cooper is taking us too seriously because of how we've played recently, though."

The Steers get two defensive contributors back this week with linebacker Martin Yanez and defensive end Quentin Ausbie gaining medical clearance to play.

The defense will need all the help it can get as Cooper features the district's top rusher, Amon Pimpton.

Pimpton is averaging 7.1 yards a carry and has 1,162 yards and 11 touchdowns in seven games.

"We have to focus on Pimpton 100 percent," said Ritchey. "He's a huge part of their game plan every week and he's also a great player. It's definitely going to be a challenge to stop him. That's why it's so important we returned the players we did on the defensive side of the ball."

Offensively, the Steers get Zamir Linton back, who sat out the Plainview game last week after suffering a shoulder injury against Frenship. Linton started at tailback against Frenship, but will move back to the slot position as LaRay Woodard gets his second consecutive start in the backfield for the Steers. Woodard gained 57 yards on 10 carries against Plainview.

"We're still a little wary about Zamir's shoulder and feel like LaRay would have more success running inside and absorbing hits," said Ritchey. "Zamir will be in the game plan as a receiver."

Throwing the ball might not come easily for the Steers, though, as Cooper features one of the state's top safeties, Will Ford.

Ford is a Texas Tech commit and has the attention of every team Cooper faces.

"He's a great player and you have to scheme around him," said Ritchey of Ford. "He's great in coverage and fills very well against the run."

Ritchey says Tyler Tannehill should figure more into the game plan at quarterback this week, not just because he's the Steers' best option in the passing game, but also because of Matt Ritchey — who has started every game this season as the Steers' signal caller — having to start at middle linebacker.

In the end, Ritchey's biggest hope is that Cooper is simply sleeping against the Steers and looking ahead to next week's matchup against Frenship.

"It's got to be hard for them to stay focused on us," said Ritchey. "They've scouted us twice and we didn't look very impressive in either game they attended. We're going to hope they're looking past us to Frenship next week and then maybe we can sneak up on them and steal a win."

Coahoma Bulldogs quarterback Nathan Deporto runs past a Ballinger defender in District 7-2A action last week at Bulldog Stadium. The Bulldogs lost their third straight game and face rival Colorado City Friday still searching for their first district win.

"It's still up in the air," Martin commented when asked who was going to call the signals Friday night. "Nathan (Deporto) and Josh (Paniagua) have both taken snaps this week in practice. Nathan is still day-to-day so we will see. Pete Acosta is still out and he is another that has played back there this year. We will just have to wait and see."

In Colorado City, the Bulldogs will see a team returning nine players on offense that Martin knows will test a Coahoma secondary Ballinger quarterback Tucker Travis scorched last week for 326 yards.

It's a problem Martin hopes has righted itself this week.

"Colorado City is going to come out and throw the ball and we have to be ready for it," Martin said. "We have to be aligned right and stick to our assignments. If we don't do that, we are going to be in trouble."

Leading the way for sixth-year Head Coach Frank Johnson is 5-10, 165-pound senior Clint White, while Jamarcus Brooks carries the brunt of the Wolves ground game.

Senior Manuel Garza and sophomore Derrek Gutierrez have emerged as White's favorite targets with L.C. Johnson and Tyler Higgins proving to be valuable outlets as well.

"They have a good team and are fighting to make the playoffs the same as we are," Martin said. "The fact that these two schools don't like each other just makes it more emotional. The boys are going to have to remember this is just another game and not get caught up in all of that."

One thing Martin noted as a bit of a source of comfort for the Bulldogs is they know their fate is totally in their own hands.

"That is the only thing we can look at in a positive light. We know that if we make the playoffs or not totally depends on if we take care of business and win the rest of our games. If we do that, we will make the playoffs and we will go from there," Martin continued. "We are just going to take it one game at a time and see where it takes us."

News in brief

Bomb threats reported before KC explosion

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Authorities are investigating two bomb threats made shortly before an explosion and two-alarm fire that ripped a popular Kansas City restaurant.

Investigators from the Midwest National Response Team of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives spent most of Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hereford House.

Officials plan to release some investigation findings at a Thursday afternoon briefing.

The Monday blast blew a sizable hole in the brick veneer on the building. Damages are estimated at more than $1 million. The restaurant is closed indefinitely.

Less than an hour before the explosion, someone called Kansas City police saying a bomb was at a nearby gas station. A few minutes later, another report said a bomb was under the gas tank at a liquor store.

Sgt. Tony Sanders said officers found no bombs.

Va. mall apologizes for dumping Santa

MCLEAN, Va. (AP) — One of the Washington area's biggest malls is apologizing for firing their longtime Santa Claus.

Tyson's Corner Center in McLean, Va., recently told Michael Graham of Sevierville, Tenn., not to come back after 18 years.

Graham says it was too late for him to find another gig. He hired a lawyer to demand his job back and a down payment that was due Oct. 1.

News of the dispute sparked hundreds of calls, an on-line petition and threats to boycott the mall.

A spokeswoman for mall operator Macerich said Wednesday that the company was offering a "deep apology" to Graham and his fans and promised to help him find a Santa job this year.

Graham's lawyer said no one has yet directly apologized to Graham but that they are open to working out a resolution.

States target sex offenders before Halloween

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Authorities have arrested 24 sex-offense suspects during a two-day sweep, part of a national crackdown on sex offenders before Halloween.

The majority of arrests this week were of sex offenders who violated their registration requirements. The Lone Star Fugitive Task Force planned the roundup specifically for Halloween, officials said.

"There's a lot of kids that are going to be on the streets pretty soon," said Tom Smith, the supervisory deputy U.S. marshal, who headed the sweep.

Such sweeps are part of a nationwide law enforcement trend targeting sex-offense suspects or registered sex offenders on or before Halloween and more severely restricting their activities that night.

In Missouri, four sex offenders are suing over a new state law that requires them to avoid all Halloween-related contact with children, remain inside their homes and post a sign saying they have no candy to keep trick-or-treaters away. The ACLU of Eastern Missouri filed suit on the offenders' behalf in federal court Wednesday, arguing the provisions are too vague to enforce.

Maryland has an almost identical law and last week sent 1,200 violent and child sex-offenders a paper sign in the mail that read "No candy at this residence," which they must post on their front doors or possibly face a parole violation.

South Carolina has a 5 p.m. Halloween curfew for sex offenders on probation or parole. They cannot give out candy or have their outdoor lights on.

In New York, the Division of Parole requires registered sex offenders to stay home or in designated locations and makes spot checks to enforce the rule. Sex offenders also can't answer the door to trick-or-treaters, have Halloween candy in their possession or dress in costume.

Texas requires registered sex offenders to turn off their porch lights and prohibits them to have any exterior decorations between 5 p.m. and 5 a.m., with parole, probation and police officers checking to see if they comply.

Those opposed to the crackdowns say they unnecessarily scapegoat sex offenders who already are complying with the conditions of their parole.

Chrysler cutting 1,825 jobs at 2 plants

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler LLC will cut 1,825 jobs by eliminating one shift at a Toledo Jeep plant and accelerating the closure of its sport utility vehicle factory in Newark, Del., because of the slowing global economy and a shift toward smaller vehicles.

About 825 workers at the Toledo North Assembly Plant will be laid off indefinitely as of Dec. 31. The Newark closure also will be effective at the end of the year and affect about 1,000 jobs, the company said Thursday in a news release.

The cuts are about 6 percent of Chrysler's U.S. hourly work force of 33,000.

The Toledo factory makes the Dodge Nitro and Jeep Liberty. Both have been selling slowly this year due to high gas prices and a slowing U.S. economy.

The Newark plant makes the slow-selling Dodge Durango and Chrysler Aspen sport utility vehicles. It originally was expected to close at the end of 2009.

Auburn Hills, Mich.-based Chrysler said in a statement that the changes will adjust inventory to better match consumer demand. Through the first nine months of the year, the company's U.S. sales have fallen 25 percent from the same period last year, the largest decline of any major automaker.

"The markets are facing unprecedented turmoil and we are in a time of historic change in the auto industry," said, Frank Ewasyszyn, Chrysler's executive vice president of manufacturing. "These tough, but necessary steps are vital to our long-term viability."

The privately held company said it would work with the United Auto Workers union to handle the layoffs in a "socially responsible manner."

The company in the past has offered buyout and early retirement programs to workers affected by plant slowdowns and closures.

Chrysler spokesman Ed Saenz said the Toledo North plant now is operating on two shifts. It has a total of 2,100 employees, 1,800 of whom are blue-collar.

The event will be highlighted by a concert by country music artist and Big Spring native Mark McKinney, along with Crimson Soul, a Christian rock group.

"This is something we've wanted to do for a couple of years now," McNew said. "We thought this would be a great way to combine the concert with a fall festival atmosphere."

McNew promises a "plethora" of booths, featuring a wide variety of food, stalls featuring traditional fall festival games such as ring toss, basketball toss and cake walk and newer attractions such as a climbing wall and pneumatic rides.

Another feature to this year's event will be the costume contest. Times for the various age group competition are:

- Ages 0-2 and 3-5 — 6 p.m.
- Ages 6-9 and 10-14 — 7

In his ruling Wednesday, U.S. District Judge Neil Wake ordered that anyone housed in intake units longer than 24 hours must receive a bed or mattress. Inmates must also have access to working sinks and toilets and care that meets their medical and mental health needs, he ruled.

Jail reform advocates recently revived a 1977 class-action lawsuit, saying that the rights of inmates awaiting trial — who have not yet been convicted of a crime — are violated when they are denied adequate housing, food and health care.

The courts had previously issued orders in 1981 and 1995 aimed at bringing conditions at the jails in Arizona's most populous county into compliance. Wake's ruling Wednesday updated a 1995 decree.

While ordering a series of improvements, the judge did find that the jails — which hold some 10,000 inmates — already met or exceeded constitutional requirements in some respects, and ended some provisions of the 1995 decree.

In a news release issued Wednesday evening, Maricopa County Sheriff Joe Arpaio said he was pleased the case was over.

"I have always maintained that we run a safe and constitutionally adequate jail system," Arpaio said.

Arpaio, who took office in 1993, has described himself as "America's Toughest Sheriff."

"All they have to do is come by the office between 9 a.m. and noon, or 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.," she said.

The application process is simple, according to Lafler, and for some area children it could be the difference between waking up with gifts under the tree Christmas morning and waking up to nothing.

"They need to come in and bring a picture ID for all of the adults, Social Security cards for all of the household members living there, birth certificates for children 12 and under and proof of income," said Lafler. "That means check stubs from work, food stamps, AFDC, TANIF, HUD or any of those types of income. They need to bring those in with them, because we do verify them. They also need to bring in a copy of all of their expenses, as well as a list of what their children might want for Christmas, including clothes sizes and shoe sizes."

"The picture ID has to be a state issued ID, not the kind you can get at certain convenience stores. Also, they need to be sure to bring either the Social Security card itself, or a print out from the Social Security Office. It has to appear on something official, even DHS (Department of Health Services) records."

Once the names and gift ideas are collected and put on the Angel Trees in the form of cards, area shoppers will have the opportunity to brighten a child's holiday by choosing one and purchasing items for them.

The trees will be erected in area stores and shops, according to Lafler.

AN ENCOURAGING WORD

By Eddy Pitchford

I am supposed to vote for the candidate whose agenda casts the most votes for me. I am offered guidance in this process by famous people, who endorse a particular individual.

Should I watch a given movie because an elected official endorses a particular actor or actress? I am not inclined to base my two-hour Hollywood entertainment choice upon Washington-based opinions. However, I am expected to make a four-year commitment to a specific Washington politician because of Hollywood-based opinions???

When Jesus began His ministry, the endorsement from heaven declared, "This is My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." (Matthew 3:17) The agenda of Jesus voted for you at the cross. Indeed, His commitment is longer than four years - it is eternal!

Does your life prompt people to vote for Jesus Christ?

Utley, Hamels lead Phillies to Game 1 win

By RONALD BLUM

AP Baseball Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The waiting game turned into a winning game for Cole Hamels, Chase Utley and the Philadelphia Phillies.

Hamels escaped trouble to win his fourth postseason start, Utley hit a two-run homer in the first inning and the Phillies beat the Tampa Bay Rays 3-2 in the World Series opener Wednesday night.

The worst-to-first Rays flopped in their first game in baseball's ultimate event, managing just five hits — none after the fifth inning.

For now, this puts an end to the rest vs. rust debate.

"I don't think it threw off our timing too much," Utley said of the six-day layoff. "I think tomorrow we should definitely be more back on track."

Philadelphia will try to make it two in a row at Tropicana Field when Brett Myers pitches against James Shields in Game 2 Thursday night.

The team that won the opener has captured the Series 63 of 103 times, including 10 of the last 11. But the team with home-field advantage has taken 18 of the last 22 titles.

"It's huge," Phillies closer Brad Lidge said. "You try and downplay it, but obviously you're coming into a place like this, you want to make sure you get the first game, especially because you got your ace on the mound. It's really important to do that."

Hamels, MVP of the NL championship series, improved to 4-0 with a 1.55 ERA this postseason. He had only a pair of 1-2-3 innings, but the composed 24-year-old left-hander allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings.

"I think for a starter it's almost better sometimes, just because it gives you more time to heal up," Hamels said.

Ryan Madson pitched a perfect eighth. Lidge worked the ninth for his 47th save in 47 chances this year, silencing the Rays and their cowbell-clanging fans.

"If you want to take the wind out of the sails," Phillies manager Charlie Manuel said, "you shut the cow bells up and get some home runs. That will do it — except in Citizens Bank Park. If you hit enough there, they ring a bell. They ring the Liberty Bell."

Manuel could crack the jokes. Not much to yuck about for the Rays and their fans. While Carl Crawford homered, playoff stars

B.J. Upton and Evan Longoria went a combined 0-for-8.

Scott Kazmir, selected two picks ahead of Hamels in the first round of the 2002 amateur draft, struggled with his control and gave up three runs, six hits and four walks in six innings.

Philadelphia could have romped but went 0-for-13 with runners in scoring position and stranded 11 runners.

Their other run even scored on an out, an RBI grounder by Carlos Ruiz.

Seeking the city's first major title since the NBA's 76ers in 1983, Philadelphia had six days off after beating the Los Angeles Dodgers for the NL pennant, while the Rays didn't finish off the Boston Red Sox until Game 7 on Sunday night.

Jimmy Rollins, Philadelphia's

leadoff batter, flied to right fielder Ben Zobrist, who has made just two regular-season career appearances at the position. But then Jayson Werth walked and Utley, after fouling off a bunt attempt, homered on a 2-2 pitch, sending the ball into the right-field seats and becoming the 34th player to homer in his first Series at-bat.

Only 13 of Utley's 33 homers during the regular season were against lefties, and Kazmir allowed just one homer to a left-handed batter in 131 at-bats, with Boston's David Ortiz connecting Sept. 15.

Philadelphia had a chance to pad the lead in the second following two walks, but Upton, the center fielder, made a nifty one-hop throw to the plate on Rollins' fly to short center, and catcher Dioner Navarro applied the tag on Shane Victorino for the inning-ending out.

Tampa Bay loaded the bases with one out in the third on two singles around a walk. But third baseman Pedro Feliz went to his left for an impressive pickup on Upton's grounder and started an inning-ending 5-4-3 double play.

"Definitely the kind of momentum swing into our favor," Hamels said. "If they can load the bases with less than two outs and not be able to score, then you definitely have the upper hand."

To get that piece of the district, the Bearkats had to beat Fort Davis in the final game of the season. They utilized the 45-point mercy rule for a 78-32 victory.

This season, the star for Fort Davis is Adrian Hernandez, who leads the team in rushing, receiving and passing yards.

Garden City's offense hasn't been dominated by the performance of one individual this season, however, all-state utility back Jake Schwartz has scored five touchdowns in each of the Bearkats' past two games.

Sands at Borden County

ACKERLY — Anyone with a desire to win six-man Division II, District 6 must go through the Borden County Coyotes. That could hold true for teams desiring a state championship as well.

The second-ranked Coyotes (7-0, 2-0) are expected to receive their toughest test of the district season at 7:30 p.m. Friday, when the Sands Mustangs (5-2, 1-0) visit Gail.

The Mustangs are fresh off their first district game — a 52-0 victory over Westbrook. The win currently places them second in the league as the Mustangs attempt to make their first trip to the postseason since 2002.

Anything less than a state title could be viewed as a disappointment in Borden County. They're led by Michael Cooley, who has rushed for 1,078 yards in seven games. As a team, the Coyotes average 363 yards of total offense per game.

Sands will rely upon its strong junior class led by quarterback Johnny Rogers and tailback Daniel Armendariz. The duo has combined to have a part in more than 90 percent of Sands' touchdowns this season.

The Coyotes and Mustangs share one common opponent this season — Sterling City. Sands fell to the Eagles, 58-40, while Borden County topped them, 74-40.

Ira at Grady

LENORAH — Things got complicated for Grady's Wildcats last week. Once heavily favored to win the Division I, District 7 title, Grady is now fighting for its postseason life after falling to first-year six-man squad O'Donnell, 32-27.

The Wildcats (5-2, 0-1) host Ira's Bulldogs (4-3, 1-0) at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Tunnell Field. Entering the season, only three teams — O'Donnell, Grady and Ira — were expected to compete for the two playoff spots available in District 7.

Now, with a loss already to O'Donnell, the Wildcats could find themselves on the outside looking in if they're unable to pull out a win against the Bulldogs.

The key to stopping Ira is to contain all-state running back Andy Rivera. Rivera rushed for 3,148 yards and 51 touchdowns last season.

The Wildcats did find some success shutting him down last season in the second round of the playoffs, when they defeated Ira, 66-46. They were able to separate from Ira in the second quarter as they held Rivera to just 71 first-half yards. The two squads traded scores in the second half and Rivera finished with 195 yards and two touchdowns.

Grady quarterback Dylan Cox had 216 yards and five touchdowns in that game and has been an even bigger part of the Wildcats' offense this season.

Tahoka at Stanton

STANTON — Momentum plays a huge part throughout a football season and for right now, Stanton's Buffaloes have that pivotal 12th man on their side.

The Buffs have won three of their last four games with the only loss in that span coming courtesy of Class A's fifth-ranked Iran.

Last week, Stanton upset Seagraves, 19-13, improving to 2-0 in District 7-A play.

The Buffs can further their already strong chances of making the playoffs with a win Friday as they host Tahoka's Bulldogs (2-5, 1-1) at 7:30 p.m. in Buffalo Stadium.

The Buffs have found a dependable workhorse to ride for the past four games as senior tailback Robbie Noland has topped 100 yards in each contest, including a 272 yard performance against Forsan two weeks ago.

Your initial impulse should be to try to establish dummy's fifth club. When you project the play, however, you realize that this is not feasible. You can play the ace of clubs, ruff a club, cross to a spade, ruff another club, cross to the queen of diamonds and ruff another club to establish the last club, but there will then be no way to reach it.

When the deal occurred, declarer arrived at this conclusion, but saw that the club suit might be utilized in a different way. Accordingly, after taking the first trick, South cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club, entered dummy with a trump and ruffed another club. The purpose of these plays was to place the burden of guarding the remaining clubs on just one defender. If that defender also had four or more diamonds, 13 tricks would be assured.

After ruffing the third club, declarer drew trumps and cashed his high heart. At this point South held the ♠ AK73 and ♠ J, while dummy had the ♦ Q65 and ♠ 87. East, in the meantime, had been reduced to the ♣ K and ♠ J1084.

When declarer next cashed the spade jack, discarding a club from dummy, East had no safe discard. No matter what he did, South would score the rest of the tricks. Observe that the same would be true if West rather than East had held the length in both clubs and diamonds.

Elites in both parties to blame for economic woes

If you talk to Democrats these days, they'll tell you that the economic meltdown is all the fault of George W. Bush and the GOP. Republicans, understandably, have a different story, blaming the disaster largely on bad home loans made by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, both beloved of Democratic politicians.

Hey, it's an election year, what do you expect?

Even so, it would be wrong to let campaign rancor obscure a truth voters should face squarely: The fiscal calamity now rocking the nation was brought upon us by both parties.

Consider these three landmarks on the primrose path to quagmire:

In the spring of 1998, a leading government financial regulator named Brooksley Born informed Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, Clinton Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin and Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Arthur Levitt that the booming but unregulated market in credit derivatives posed a major threat to the financial system.

According to The New York Times, Greenspan and Rubin pushed back hard against her watchdog proposal, later joining Levitt in lobbying Congress to ignore Born's advice. Congress then effectively stripped Born's agency of its regulatory power.

In 2000, the Commodities Futures Modernization Act expressly forbade the government from regulating credit-default swaps, a risky form of private insurance. At the last minute, Republican Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas attached the legislation co-sponsored by two Democratic senators to a mammoth appropriations bill. It passed 95-0, and President Bill Clinton signed it into law.

Absent government oversight, the credit-default-swap market ballooned and was estimated to be worth $40 billion to $62 billion before its ongoing collapse, which would have taken down the giant insurer AIG if not for a U.S. government bailout.

In April 2004, the five members of the SEC met to consider a request by the big five Wall Street investment banks to repeal a rule limiting the amount of debt their brokerage departments could assume. Under the rules, the banks had to have $1 in cash for every $12 of debt it took on. The requested rule change would have exempted the power quintet from the rule.

All five commissioners — three Republicans and two Democrats — agreed to the rule change. And the Wall Street thoroughbreds were off to the races. Bear Stearns, for example, assumed $33 in debt for every dollar it held in assets. As we know, it all came crashing down this year.

Wall Street lobbying cash, plus what investor George Soros recently called the quasi-religion of "market fundamentalism," found eager takers on both sides of the aisle for two decades. It's not a politically useful or emotionally satisfying conclusion for Democrats or Republicans, but it can't be denied that this economic debacle is a bipartisan achievement.

THE DALLAS MORNING NEWS

OK, let's skip the liberal label

There's little doubt America is a center-right nation, which is why Barack Obama denies and conceals his liberalism and packages himself as a harbinger of hope and change.

Obama's policies represent change all right: change from almost everything our Founding Fathers considered sacred and vital to the preservation of individual liberty in America.

He also offers hope: hope for those who share his shame in what America has become, what it stands for, and what makes it unique in world history.

Hope that an unenlightened America can be remade by this "transformational" man in an image pleasing to George Soros, the Hollywood elite, MoveOn.org, the Daily Kos and Michael Moore.

But if labels bother you, let's look at Obama's alliances and policies and let them speak for themselves.

If you are so intoxicated with "hope" that you believe Obama wasn't aware of and not in sync with the Rev. Wright's militantly racist and anti-American views or his black liberation theology, then it's probably too much to ask for you to be objective about his links to Bill Ayers and ACORN.

Instead of restating Ayers' despicable actions and beliefs, I just want to know whether Obama believes Ayers has been rehabilitated, which he suggests when he touts him as "a professor of education."

Though Obama says he was just 8 years old during Ayers' Pentagon-bombing days, he doesn't mention that he was an adult when he served on boards with Ayers, launched his state Senate campaign at his home, and gave a glowing jacket endorsement for Ayers' book.

Nor does he tell you that just a few short years ago, Ayers stomped on the American flag and reaffirmed his pride in his criminal acts.

Concerning ACORN, what do you suppose the mainstream media would do to John McCain if an organization he represented, whose members he trained and who he promised would play a pivotal role in formulating his presidential policy agenda, were caught red-handed trying systematically to subvert the election process throughout America?

As for Obama's leftist policy positions and attitudes, how do you think the following would sit with most Americans?

— His enabling of infanticide by arguing and voting against the Induced Birth Infant Liability Act in the Illinois Senate, which would have protected babies who survive failed abortions.

— His support of open borders and driver's licenses for illegal immigrants.

— His casual endorsement of Marxist redistribution of wealth.

— His plan to let the Bush tax cuts expire, resulting in a massive tax increase for tens of millions, and his tax credits to tens of millions more not paying income taxes, all while fibbing that he's going to cut income taxes for 95 percent of Americans.

— His plans to increase spending an estimated $1.3 trillion, not to mention the obscene dollars he would send overseas with the Global Poverty Act.

— His condemnation of our liberation of Iraq from the brutal dictator Saddam Hussein in furtherance of our national security interests yet promising military interventions for humanitarian reasons where we clearly have no national interests at stake.

— His opposition to the surge in Iraq and his plan to withdraw and jeopardize our imminent victory and the region's stability.

— His reckless plan to embroil us in a quagmire in Afghanistan and agitate Pakistan, our important ally in the war on terror.

— His naive commitment to negotiate with tyrants without preconditions.

— His inclination toward unilateral nuclear disarmament.

— His constant references to America's former greatness and his promises to restore our position of respectfulness in the world, betraying his full agreement that we've earned this supposed international disrespect.

— His forfeiture of American sovereignty to international bodies in obeisance to the pantheistic religion of global warming.

— His Keryesque schizophrenia on guns and the Second Amendment.

— His derision of small-town Americans as bitter clingers.

— His thuggish approach toward those who dare to oppose him, such as Joe the Plumber, or anyone in St. Louis, whose criticism could have subjected them to criminal prosecution.

— His outright mocking of the Bible while adamantly insisting he's a strong Christian: "Which passages of Scripture should guide our public policy? Should we go with Leviticus, which suggests slavery is OK and that eating shellfish is abomination? How about Deuteronomy, which suggests stoning your child if he strays from the faith? Or should we just stick to the Sermon on the Mount — a passage that is so radical that it's doubtful that our own Defense Department would survive its application?"

Truthfully, I'm barely getting started.

But can you honestly tell me Obama would have a prayer of being elected if he were honest about his agenda and allies and if the media, which share his radical views, weren't in the tank for him?

McCain sticks to his guns

In an age of craven politics, John McCain is not afraid to swim against the tide. When Americans soured on the Iraq War and had begun telling pollsters they wanted out, McCain pushed for a surge of U.S. troops in Iraq. Today, casualties are down dramatically and Iraqi troops are defending Iraqis. Now the outcome of this war need not be that more than 4,100 American troops fell for a failed effort, which only confirmed Osama bin Laden's belief that America, when faced with losses, would cut and run.

In a political primary that had most Republicans playing to the GOP base, McCain pushed for an immigration reform bill that infuriated those primary voters. The experts said it would kill his nomination. He pushed for a second vote. Only when that second try failed did McCain then acknowledge that the federal government has to do more to curb illegal immigration before extending the path to citizenship to those illegally in America today.

I disagreed with McCain on the amnesty aspects of his bill, but I had to respect that he was determined to honor the drive of those who, if not particularly concerned about obeying the laws of their new country, worked hard to claim a stake in this melting-pot nation. McCain's image as a Republican maverick is attractive. That's why Barack Obama has spent millions of dollars tarnishing it. On big issues, McCain has bucked the GOP establishment. He opposed the pork-laden farm and energy bills supported by President Bush (and Obama). Ditto Dubya's under-funded Medicare prescription-drug program. That's because McCain has been the too-rare-in-Washington Republican who saw it as his job, not just to pay lip service to stopping unnecessary spending, but to stop it.

I know that if he is elected, McCain will drive me nuts. For one thing, he'll do a better job of working with Democrats than Republicans because he believes in compromise. He can be weak on policy issues. When he talks energy or climate change, he talks on the surface, not in detail.

Many fault his campaign for operating on an ad hoc basis, but that's what happens when you have more talent than money.

The Palin pick? It energized a group of voters who have felt marginalized — and McCain has to win before he can govern.

Is McCain "erratic"? So Team Obama argued after McCain suspended his campaign and went to Washington to push for the $700 billion Bush bailout measure. The McCampaign suspension failed to deliver enough GOP votes to pass a bill in the first House vote, so you cannot call it particularly successful.

And McCain's failure to return to Washington after the first presidential debate lacked follow through.

In the end, the whole episode smacked of opportunism — not fitting a senator who had put country first on immigration and Iraq.

And I, for one, want a president who looks to Iraq and recognizes his obligation to settle matters so that U.S. troops need not return there in our lifetime.

The next president will inherit federal spending on overdrive. The next president will have to work to balance, not only the federal budget, but also Social Security and Medicare accounts. Will he keep proposing more unfunded spending to spread the goodies around, or will he take on the difficult tasks needed to bring fiscal discipline to a hung-over Washington?

I have never seen Obama tell people they will have to pay more to fund his many new programs. First he trashes Bush for deficit spending and an "era of easy money," then he promises Americans more government programs and more tax cuts.

Now I think McCain is over-promising on tax cuts, too. But I have seen McCain brave the polls on Iraq, the Republican base on immigration and the GOP establishment on spending. He has shown himself to be willing to do the unpopular in order to accomplish the necessary. I don't always agree with him, but I always have to respect him.

Romo says return before mid-November doubtful

By STEPHEN HAWKINS
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Tony Romo's broken little finger has become a big issue for the struggling Dallas Cowboys.

The two-time Pro Bowl quarterback, who wanted to try to play last week despite the broken pinkie on his throwing hand, said Wednesday he now doesn't expect to play again until at least mid-November.

"I don't know when I'll be back," Romo said. "I think definitely the idea now is to get healthy by that bye week."

That means Romo would miss at least two more games: Sunday at Tampa Bay and the following week at the rival New York Giants. The Cowboys (4-3), who have lost three of their last four games, then take a week off before returning Nov. 16 at Washington.

After being limited in his only practice last week, Romo was still listed as the backup quarterback Sunday at St. Louis. He even threw some passes before the game.

While the pain was tolerable, Romo couldn't take direct snaps. And because of the protective splint on his hand, he needed an extra two to three seconds to get a proper grip before making throws.

"I wouldn't have been able to play at any kind of level that would have helped this football team," Romo said.

Brad Johnson will start again for Dallas, this time against the Buccaneers, who had him as their starter when they won the Super Bowl six seasons ago.

Coach Wade Phillips said Romo didn't participate in practice Wednesday. The coach also said Brooks Bollinger, released by Minnesota at the end of training camp and signed the day after the season opener, will be Johnson's backup this week.

Romo, who started 32 consecutive regular-season games plus two playoff games, was initially expected to miss a month after he got hurt on the first play of overtime in a loss at Arizona on Oct. 12.

But Romo, who said he hadn't even missed a practice since high school, was throwing some passes three days later and indicated he wanted to try to play. He figured if he could manage the pain, he could play, so trainers tried several different protect wraps for his hand.

"You have to protect the finger enough that you can absorb some kind of hit, but to be able to do that, you mask the ability to throw the football, to grab it, to grip it, and that's been the problem," Romo said.

Romo doesn't even anticipate being able to play in an emergency role this week.

"I could go out there and probably be a below average player and I wouldn't help this team," he said. "And I would be risking it."

So unlike last week, the Cowboys go into this week's game knowing Romo will actually be out a month and isn't even an option. That should benefit Johnson and the rest of the offense in preparations.

FORSAN

that Plains knows it, too. I expect both teams to keep swinging until the final buzzer."

Forsan and Plains share identical district records this season, both holding an 0-2 record.

For the Buffs, a win could breathe life into a team looking for its third playoff berth in as many years.

"We have plenty of motivation, that's for sure," Thompson said. "For one, we have another opportunity to play up to our potential. Even more, this is a chance for our seniors to make it to the postseason for the third straight year."

Thompson's motto this year has become "Four full quarters," something he said hasn't happened with the Buffs since the early non-district game against Coahoma and McCamey.

"This is most definitely the key to beating Plains," said Thompson. "We have to play excellent football in all areas to achieve victory. We have the tools. We just have to put it all together and execute the game plan."

The Buffs are almost at full strength physically, missing only linebacker Zane Herrin, who broke his foot last week against Sundown.

With Herrin out, the defense will lean on Ryan Flores and Michael Mims as they attempt to

District 7-A Football Standings & Schedule

Team	Dist.	Overall
Sundown	2-0	5-2
Stanton	2-0	3-4
Seagraves	1-1	3-4

Plains	0-2	4-3
Forsan	0-2	1-6

Week 8 schedule: Forsan at Plains, Tahoka at Stanton, Seagraves at Sundown.

stop a Plains offense that likes to run the spread with dual-threat quarterback Chris Addison.

"Addison can hurt you in the air and on the ground," Thompson said, "but they also have some quality backs and receivers that we have to account for. They have a solid offense and have only hurt themselves on some late drives with untimely turnovers. We will attack them from the edges and play tight on the receivers to get them out of rhythm."

When the Buffs have the ball, Thompson said he intends to use good matchups on the outside where they hold a slight advantage in size and speed.

However, the running game will have to set up the pass.

"They are big up front and have good size at linebacker, too," Thompsons said. "We will have to counter that with some speed and quickness. Establishing the run game with Ty Johnson and Jace Sandridge will open up the passing game, where I think we can take advantage and get some points on the board."

A win Friday night could set up a possible chance to gain some real ground in the district the following week in Seagraves.

The Eagles lost last week against Stanton and stand at 1-1 in district as they play top-rated Sundown this week.

If Forsan wins and Seagraves loses, they will go into that matchup each holding a 1-2 record in 7-A, giving both squads a legitimate shot at claiming the third and final playoff berth in the district.

Dozen Wayland coeds vying for 2009 pageant title

Special to the Herald

PLAINVIEW — As Plainview native Terra Watson prepares to bid her reign as Miss Wayland Baptist University goodbye, 12 young women are deep in the throes of rehearsals for the pageant that will culminate in one of them taking her place.

The annual Miss Wayland pageant returns Nov. 1 at 7 p.m. in Herral Auditorium, featuring a nod to the university centennial by honoring previous title holders. With the theme "The New Girl in Town," the pageant will welcome back four former Miss Waylands as judges and another seven as guests for the event, which falls in the middle of Wayland's centennial year.

Much like the university, the pageant itself has a rich history. Started in 1972 as a preliminary to Miss Texas, the Miss Wayland pageant has left a lineup of young women who have represented the university in the community and often beyond. The future winner will be no different, as her year reign typically includes appearances at civic clubs, churches, banquets and other events as she is invited.

This year's group provides many options for such a title holder, and the pageant includes a talent presentation and evening gown competition to see many facets of the contestants. Following the opening number to the song from the musical "Hair-spray," emcee Jeff Kensmoe, assistant professor of vocal studies, will guide the audience through an evening of varied talents, a personal glimpse of the students and a final performance and walk by Watson before she crowns her successor.

"The opening number is just adorable, and the girls' personalities really come out in the pageant," said Ericka Miller, coordinator of student activities and the organizer of this year's pageant. "I've really enjoyed this group and getting to know them."

Contestants for the 2009 Miss Wayland title are:

· Casey Brazell: A sophomore from Lubbock, Casey is the daughter of Ricky and Jacque Brazell. A music education major, she is in International Choir — her sponsors for the pageant — leads a Freshman Ministries Bible study and teaches Music Together for the Academy of Fine Arts. She will sing for her talent.

· Kristin Blakely: A junior from Borger, Kristin is the daughter of Steve and Roxanna Blakely. An elementary education major, she is sponsored by Baptist Student Ministries, where she serves on the leadership team. She is also in Student Foundation, Ministerial Fellowship and Student Alumni Council. She will perform a monologue for her talent.

· Jamie Clark: A sophomore from Amarillo, Jamie is the daughter of James and Rachel Clark. Sponsored by Ministerial Fellowship, she is an elementary education major who plans to pursue ministry. She is involved in BSM, is a Connect group leader and is secretary for Ministerial Fellowship. She will play the piano for her talent.

· Joanna Jernigan: A junior from Shamrock, Joanna is the daughter of Joe and D'Anna Jernigan. Sponsored by Kappa Upsilon Chi fraternity, she is a recreation and camp management major. She is involved in Student Union Board, BSM, Judicial Council and the Ultimate Frisbee Players United. She will present a baking showcase for her talent.

· Morgan Metcalf: A sophomore from Big Spring, Morgan is a church music major. The daughter of Sonya Metcalf, she is in the Pioneer Band and Student Foundation. Sponsored by the Jazz Band, she will play the flute for her talent.

· Alissa Mitchell: A junior from Clinton, Okla., Alissa is a molecular biology major planning a career as an orthodontist. Sponsored by Student Union Board, she is in International Choir and the Pioneer Volleyball team. She is the daughter of Terrill and Chloe Mitchell and will sing for her talent.

· Maggie Mitchell: A sophomore from Lubbock, Maggie is a pre-nursing major and a member of the Pioneer Soccer team and the judicial council. The daughter of Mike and Denise Mitchell, she is sponsored by Fleming Mays Tower, her dorm. She will give a soccer demonstration for her talent.

· Rachel Morrison: A sophomore from Lockney, Rachel is the daughter of Calvin and Latesha Morrison. A psychology major, she is sponsored by Alpha Psi Omega and has been involved in theatre, Spanish Club, handbells and Habitat for Humanity. She will sing and play the piano.

· Alayna Siebman: A junior from Childress, Alayna is an English education major. The daughter of Royce and Donna Siebman, she is president of Student Foundation and is involved in BSM, Student Alumni Council, SGA, Kappa Delta Pi and Sigma Tau Delta honor societies. Sponsored by Student Government Association, she will perform a swing dance for her talent.

· Allison Vetter: A sophomore from Robinson, Allison is sponsored by Student Foundation, of which she is a member. A music education major, she is involved in BSM, Pioneer Band and is a Freshman Connect group leader. She is the daughter of Bob and Leann Vetter and will play the French horn for her talent.

· Karen Wilson: A senior from Lubbock, Karen is sponsored by Alpha Delta Kappa sorority. The daughter of Hugh and Donna Wilson, she is a religion major with an emphasis on missions and plans to be a missionary. She is involved in ADK, Pioneer Band and Ministerial Fellowship and is senior class president. She will sing for her talent.

· Katie Word: A sophomore from Abernathy, Katie is the daughter of Terrie Arevalos and Kyle and Kathy Word. She is sponsored by the Pioneer Band, of which she is a member, and is a music education major. She is also involved in Senate, Jazz Band and was on the Koinonia Task Force this year. She will sing and play the piano for her talent.

Report: Hundreds of Texas Medicaid fraud documents lost in massive computer crash

AUSTIN (AP) — Critical data that's important to the state attorney general's Medicaid fraud prosecutions has been lost in a massive computer crash, in part because the documents were not backed up, a published report said.

As much as 50 percent of the Tyler Medicaid fraud division's files were destroyed in July when a server being repaired by a state vendor wouldn't restart. The scope of the damage is in dispute, The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday in its online editions.

Losing the documents means evidence crucial to convicting dishonest health care providers who ripped off the state's health insurance program for the poor may never be recovered. E-mails and other records obtained by the newspaper indicate some Tyler investigators lost up to 90 percent of their open case files.

"In spite of earlier assurances, the destruction of critical data has, in fact, occurred," First Assistant Attorney General Kent Sullivan wrote Monday in an e-mail to Brian Rawson, chief of the Department of Information Resources. Attorney General Greg Abbott's office "cannot afford to risk a recurrence of this event."

In all, 81 criminal cases and eight months of work in the attorney general's 13-person Tyler Medicaid fraud office were completely lost, according to an attorney general's report on the security breach. Those records are being painstakingly recovered by the vendor, the newspaper reported.

The new XF

Jaguar's new luxury sedan stylish, powerful

The new Jaguar XF was worth the wait as the much-anticipated replacement for the X-Type is finally here.

The five-passenger, rear-wheel drive performance-luxury sedan features Jaguar's bold new design language, yet under the hood, it is everything one would expect from a Jaguar — fast and nimble.

From the smooth, curved lines of the exterior design to the elegant cockpit, the XF is a fantastic vehicle.

From the moment you touch the door handle to unlock the door and push the start button, you not only hear that powerful V-8 roar to life, but you know you're in a special vehicle as the JaguarDrive Rotary Gear Selector rises from the center console into your hand.

The 2009 XF is available in three trim lines.

XF Luxury (base price starting at $49,975) is powered by a 300-horsepower 4.2-liter V-8 engine and mated to a six-speed automatic transmission to accomplish a 0-60 mph time of 6.2 seconds and an electronically limited top speed of 121 mph.

Standard equipment includes 18-inch Cynus-style alloy wheels, rear parking aid with touch-screen visual indicators, satin American walnut veneer, leather seating surfaces, a premium 300-watt sound system with in-dash CD changer, phosphor blue halo illumination and interior mood light and JaguarSense glovebox and overhead light operation.

XF Premium Luxury

(base price starting at $55,975) adds 19-inch Auriga-style alloy wheels, 3-stage heated front seats, burl walnut veneer, soft-grain leather seats, navigation system with DVD-mapping and voice guidance, JaguarVoice voice-activated controls and Jaguar Smart Key System with keyless entry.

XF Supercharged (base price starting at $62,975) adds a 420-horsepower supercharged version of the 4.2-liter V-8. It has the capability of achieving a 0-60 mph time of 5.1 seconds and an electronically limited top speed of 155 mph.

The Supercharged trim line also adds Jaguar's Computer Active Technology Suspension system (CATS), 20-inch Volans-style alloy wheels, front aid and rear camera parking aid, active ventilated heated and cooled front seats, rich oak veneer, Sirius Satellite Radio with a Bowers & Wilkins 13-speaker 440-watt sound system with portable audio interface and a remote amplifier with Surround Sound Dolby Pro Logic II, blind spot monitor and electronically operated rear window sunblind.

And yes, the XF drives as good as it looks.

Thanks in large part to the CATS suspension system, traction control and dynamic stability control, the XF hugs the road like its on a rail — well suited for the responsive, performance-oriented V-8 engine under the hood.

As performance-oriented luxury sedans go, the 2009 Jaguar XF is well suited to take on all comers in the segment.

Hats off to the Jaguar design team on the new styling. For those who have been anxiously awaiting the X-Type replacement, all I can say is it was well worth the wait.

The XF is a winner, and an absolute must test drive for those in the market for a performance-oriented luxury sedan.

some of those troubles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You may not realize the breadth of your commitments until you put them all on paper. You are as happy as you are organized. Write down the place and time of every appointment and you feel, once again, in control.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Everyone has unique strengths to wield. Through the next three days, your superpowers are surging. If you don't yet know what they are, they should be pretty obvious by the end of the day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're fond of getting others involved in your projects, especially if they have to do with healing or improving yourself. Just now though, you are your own best teacher, healer and improver. Trust yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You cherish the people who make you laugh almost, but not quite as much as you cherish those who you can make laugh. The one who finds you amusing, witty and fabulous is simply irresistible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). When you're in the right it's easy to find people who will take your side.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

And when you're in the wrong, well, it's just you and that loyal friend. It's good to be wrong some times, just so you can see who your true friends are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Life has gotten big and complicated. The details to keep track of are mind-boggling. Exercise makes it all better. Start walking and the good feeling in your body leads to peace of mind. Everything becomes manageable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You have the confidence to do what you haven't done before. It might be Rollerblading, investing in stocks or planning a party. Whatever the endeavor, your fresh take on it makes it a success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Family activities get a special dose of cosmic luck dust. The ones who usually find something to fight about will do just the opposite, finding something to love and admire about their kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). There is a method to your madness, though exactly what it is would be anyone's guess. Sometimes you don't know why you do what you do, but asking why is for less confident souls.

Continue honoring your instinct.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). What is needed is a dramatic statement. Your gestures of good will are gladly received, especially if they are grand. Making your supporters happy makes you happy, too.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I am a Virgo born 9/2/82. I moved from my family to live with my boyfriend, 10/3/81. He did some hurtful things to me. I moved away from family to be with him and he just abandoned me. Is he the one?"

Virgo women often think they can pull off a miraculous man-change, which only causes you heartache. Since you're a babe in the woods I'm obligated to dispense a practical warning about the hungry wolves. They're out there. It's not your fault. And the sooner you learn to recognize them, the better (you may not always -- as they may pretend to be someone they're not). Yet you can use your sign's infamous reserve to take things very slowly so you can evaluate what this man is really up to, while retaining your enchanting mystique. I don't know whether your guy was a wolf or just got in over his head. So chalk this one up to "lesson learned" and (silently) thank him for allowing you to cut your baby teeth on him. By the way, instead of wearing an innocent Red Riding Hood outfit, emulate your self-reliant sister Virgo Cameron Diaz by having tons of fun looking for Mr. Right Now.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: A Scorpio person psychically picks up on other people's motives and agendas. This makes them excellent strategists, although they don't always share what they know. Born with ultra-provocative Mercury and Mars joined in Scorpio, James Carville has insider knowledge of other people's business, which is infinitely valuable for a career as political strategist. Surely, he can also keep a secret.

Annie's Mailbox ®: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: I am a 20-year-old college student who works full time. My biggest problem isn't that I have to work so hard. It's that it seems I'm the only one who needs to. Many of my classmates receive grants and financial aid that cover tuition, books and living expenses. Some of them already have a degree. They go to school, start a career and then decide they don't like it and go back to school and some agency pays their way. How is that fair?

I have one shot at this. If I don't like the career I have chosen, I am stuck with it. I have applied for every type of student financial aid out there and have been denied every single time. I can't get a loan because I have no credit and no co-signers. My parents help me a little with tuition, but they have two other kids to provide for. I don't attend an Ivy League school, just a small community college. Frankly, I am ready to throw in the towel. Please tell me my hard work will pay off in the long run. -- Feeling Slighted in Ohio

Dear Ohio: It will pay off. However, we don't understand why you can't qualify for financial aid. Have you tried a Federal Stafford Loan, where your lack of credit is not an issue? Most colleges have a financial aid office. Make an appointment to talk to someone who can help you navigate the applications and find out why you haven't been able to get assistance.

Dear Annie: My elderly mother lives alone in a retirement community. My brothers and I do everything possible to help her remain independent. We call daily, see her weekly, assist with bills, doctors, groceries, etc. But what we can't do is satisfy her craving for attention.

Mother tells other relatives she is blind, which isn't true. She also says she doesn't have enough money for groceries, also not true. These little lies get the family members to worry about her, but it also makes them think we are not taking care of her. If they would ask us directly instead of passing judgment behind our backs, we would tell them. These relatives cannot imagine the stress we are under, and it would be nice if they offered to help or bothered to visit Mother and see for themselves that she lives quite nicely. -- Caring Child

Dear Caring: Don't tell us. Tell them. The next time you visit Mom, call Aunt Carol and Cousin Jim and ask them to come with you. Mention how much Mom would love to see them because her children visit all the time and it would be nice for her to see a new face. That should do it.

Dear Annie: I feel compelled to respond to "Still Grieving," who was accosted by religious zealots when her son died.

My father died unexpectedly over a year ago. Mom thought he was asleep, but he was not. It was quite a shock. About a week after his passing, I received a letter from someone I didn't recognize. The letter said my father would not go to heaven because he was the wrong religion, and if I didn't convert, I wouldn't go either. This was from a total stranger who apparently picked my name from the obituary.

It is cruel to do this to grieving people. I know my father is in heaven because he was obedient to God's word. There is a time and a place to share your faith and it should be done in a loving and compassionate way. These people only succeeded in making me angry. -- Forever Missing Dad

Dear Missing: These intrusive, intolerant folks are so blinded by their religious beliefs that they feel obligated to convert you. They should be ashamed of themselves.

Dear Annie: We live in an upper-middle-class neighborhood adjacent to a community park. Once a year, there is a "community day" at the park with a parade, rides for the children, ethnic food and fireworks. Since we live so close, we always open our house to family, friends and neighbors, providing food and refreshments, as well as some adult beverages.

My wife and I both drink in moderation, as do our friends, but there is one person in our circle who tries to set the drinking record every year. "Ed" begins drinking early in the day (he brings his own bottle of hard liquor), and by late afternoon, he is slurring words and unable to walk straight. He also abuses prescription pills and makes little effort to hide this fact. When he becomes rude, vulgar and obnoxious, as he eventually does, he embarrasses himself, his family and everyone who attends the event.

Ed's behavior has finally reached critical mass, so much so that we have considered closing our house and going away that weekend because of one drunk who ruins the party for 50 people. In years past, we have asked Ed to behave, to no avail. If we don't invite him, we will never hear the end of it at every other family event we attend. What alternatives do we have? -- Perplexed in Pennsylvania

Dear Perplexed: We would opt to stop inviting him regardless. If you don't want to do that, assign someone to "babysit." Arrange in advance for that person to take Ed home when he becomes too drunk to be properly social. You can try talking to him about this when he is sober, telling him his drinking is out of control and he needs help. Then give him the number for Alcoholics Anonymous (aa.org). It's in the phone book.

Dear Annie: Two years ago, my husband and I bought a vacation home on the coast. The problem is that my in-laws are there constantly. They never offer to chip in on the increased electric or water bill. Worse, they often arrive when we are using the place for our family vacation and horn in on our time. The last straw was when they showed up with friends and gave them a tour when we weren't there. The place was a mess because we were having it painted.

My husband finally took back the key he'd given them, but I can't believe we have to go to such measures. What else can we do? Shouldn't they have some common sense and be more respectful of our privacy? -- Coastal Blues

Dear Blues: They should have the sense not to abuse their visiting privileges, but they don't. Your husband made the right call. If the folks can't be trusted to respect your privacy and your home, they should not have access. But try to invite them for a visit now and then. It will soothe the hard feelings.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Confused and Frustrated," the 11-year-old girl whose parents fight so much she fears they will divorce.

Attention Parents -- GROW UP! It is your responsibility to provide a loving sanctuary for the nurturing of your child. You set the example for how she will handle anger, communicate with a spouse and raise your grandchildren. Fighting shows a lack of respect to your child, your spouse and yourself. It causes children to be insecure in their own home and makes them feel responsible for keeping the peace between their parents.

Attend an anger management class, and practice the techniques to resolve your differences in a loving and respectful way. Commit time and energy to your marriage so you can create a loving home for your children. Your choices should never become their responsibility. -- Jacksonville, Fla.

Dear Jacksonville: Thanks for the good suggestions. Parents need to realize what they are doing to their children when they allow them to witness constant discord.

This Date In History

Today is Thursday, Oct. 23, the 297th day of 2008. There are 69 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 23, 1983, 241 U.S. service members, mostly Marines, were killed in a suicide truck-bombing at Beirut International Airport in Lebanon; a near-simultaneous attack on French forces killed 58 paratroopers.

On this date:
In 1707, the first Parliament of Great Britain, created by the Acts of Union between England and Scotland, held its first meeting.
In 1864, forces led by Union Gen. Samuel R. Curtis repelled Confederate Gen. Sterling Price's army in the Civil War Battle of Westport in Missouri.
In 1915, tens of thousands of women marched in New York City, demanding the right to vote.
In 1942, during World War II, Britain launched a major offensive against Axis forces at El Alamein in Egypt.
In 1946, the United Nations General Assembly convened in New York for the first time, at an auditorium in Flushing Meadow.

1956, a student-sparked revolt against Hungary's Communist rule began; as the revolution spread, Soviet forces started entering the country, and the uprising was put down within weeks.

1958, Boris Pasternak was named winner of the Nobel Prize in literature. (However, Soviet authorities pressured Pasternak into relinquishing the award.)

1973, President Nixon agreed to turn over White House tape recordings subpoenaed by the Watergate special prosecutor to Judge John J. Sirica.

1987, the U.S. Senate rejected, 58-42, the Supreme Court nomination of Robert H. Bork.

1995, a jury in Houston convicted Yolanda Saldivar of murdering Tejano singing star Selena.

One year ago: Evacuations due to out-of-control wildfires in Southern California topped 500,000; President Bush declared a federal emergency for seven counties. Shuttle Discovery and its crew of seven thundred into orbit for a complex space station construction mission.

Today's Birthdays: Movie director Philip Kaufman is 72. Soccer great Pele is 68. Author Michael Crichton is 66. Rhythm-and-blues singer Barbara Ann Hawkins (The Dixie Cups) is 65. Actor Michael Rupert is 57. Movie director Ang Lee is 54. Jazz singer Dianne Reeves is 52. Country singer Dwight Yoakam is 52. Movie director Sam Raimi is 49. Parodist "Weird Al" Yankovic is 49.
