City officials hope to avoid rollback election

By THOMAS JENKINS

The Big Spring City Council gave the preliminary goahead for a proposed tax rate that eclipses the 2009-2010 rollback rate by more than 3 cents on a 6-1 vote Tuesday night, a decision city officials are hoping won't trigger a rollback election.

On a 6-1 vote — with Councilwoman Stephanie Horton the lone dissenter — the council gave the city staff the OK to move forward with a tax rate of $1.0132 per $100 valuation. The rate, which is the same number used last year, will generate approximately $90,000 more in revenue due to a rise in certified values in

The driver was traveling south on Highway 87 when he failed to negotiate the turn onto Ranch Road 33 due to his speed, Parker said.

Trustees OK budget shift, call for election

Big Spring Independent School District voters will go to the polls Oct. 10 to decide whether to approve a tax increase that's more technicalitv than reality.

BSISD trustees voted to push the maintenance and operation portion of the district's tax rate past the rollback rate of $1.04 per $100 valuation during a special meeting Tuesday evening, prompting them to call for a tax rollback election.

In reality, the district's overall tax rate will remain unchanged — trustees are simply shifting debt service payments over to the maintenance and operation side of the budget in order to take advantage of an opportunity to significantly increase state aid to BSISD.

By artificially zeroing out the district's debt service tax case, including Guerrero Olivas, aka "Screech," 26; John Guzman, 30; Reynaldo Nava, aka "Rat," 27; and Carol Ann Rivas Nava, 20.

The indictment in the investigation, which charged a total of 17 defendants and was unsealed Feb. 26, alleged that from 2001 until Dec. 13, 2008 — when six of the defendants were arrested — the alleged members of the Latin Kings conspired to distribute multi-kilogram quantities of cocaine and marijuana throughout Texas and elsewhere.

'The 11-count indictment ... charges each of the defendants with conspiracy to distribute and possession with intent to distribute cocaine and marijuana," said acting U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Texas James T. Jacks shortly after the indictments were unsealed. "Three defendants are also charged with conspiring to deal in firearms. The indictment also includes drug distribution charges and various firearms charges, including using and carrying a firearm to commit murder during and in relation to a drug trafficking crime."

Officials with the BSPD say the Latin Kings are believed to be responsible for the May 4, 2008, drive-by shooting that claimed the lives of Valerie Garcia, 20, and Michael Cardona, 21, both of Big Spring, and injured several others.

Jose Robledo Nava — allegedly the Texas leader of the Latin Kings — along with Gabriel Lee Gonzales, Eduardo Daniel Mares, James Johnathan Cole and Robert Allen Ramirez are currently under federal indictment for the slaying of Garcia and Cardona, according to court documents.

According to the indictment — which was engineered by Jacks and Assistant Attorney General Lanny A. Breuer of the Criminal Division — the defendants acquired the cocaine and marijuana from Mexico and brought it to the South Texas region, where it was packaged, stored and transported to Big Spring, Lubbock and Midland for further distribution.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Cody L. Skipper of the Lubbock division of the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Northern District of Texas and Trial Attorney Joseph A. Cooley of the Criminal Division's Gang Unit are prosecuting the case, according to the U.S. Department of Justice.

$230,000 in additional funding, all of which the council has indicated would be used to finance a new municipal swimming pool.

"We did pay off a 2002 refunding bond issue in February of this year, and that will free up 2.9 cents, which is no longer legally required for debt services," said Walker. "Rather than eliminating that, the staff is proposing and the council is considering rolling those funds into the general fund rate for one year, and when the rate is set next year, we'll pull that rate (2.9 cents) right back out and fund a new municipal swimming pool. It probably won't be enough debt service, so in all likelihood we'll lower the general fund rate at that time to fully cover the debt service on the new pool without raising rates overall. "I estimated the proposed rate would yield $3.774 million," she continued. "However, the tax base will actually generate a little more than that, approximately $90,000 more. The council's direction tonight is that we'll look at the possibility of taking all of those dollars, both from the 2.9 cents plus the additional $90,000, and we'll restrict that money for moving forward with the pool, and if we don't use it all, we can roll that into the debt service fund and have it for future debt service."

The council recently held a work session to discuss the construction of a new city swimming pool, a move made necessary by the recent closure of the existing pool due to its inability to meet federal regulations. The current cost of a new swimming facility — which includes a number of improvements over the existing facility and a major increase in capacity was presented as $4.2 during million meeting

Walker said earmarking the funds raised by the 2.9 cents already built into the budget, along with the additional revenue, could help fund the debt service on the new pool.

"We're also looking at the possibility of the city performing quite a few of the services related to demolition, dirt work and site work, various things we can do to keep future debt issuance at a much lower rate for the swimming pool," said Walker. Councilwoman Stephanie Horton said she refused to support the tax rate because the funds the council is expected designate toward building a new pool are not being restricted. "I wanted to see those funds earmarked strictly for a new pool," said Horton following the meeting. "And there was talk of doing that, but it was never done.

budget we can have."

That's why I didn't vote in favor of the tax rate."

In the end, however, Walker said the proposed tax rate will only equate to an increase in taxpayer's bills if there was an increase in the property's value. "We're not raising the actual (tax) rate. However, if your appraisal did go up, if your property value went up, even if we lowered the tax rate your liability might be higher," said Walker. "It all depends on how much the value of your property went up, and that's something that is completely out of the city's hands. If the proposed tax rate (of $1.0132 per $100 valuation) is approved and the value of your property did not go up, your tax liability should be identical to last year."

If a rollback election were successful in stopping the proposed tax rate, the city would be forced to adopt the effective rate, which would cause a budgetary shortfall of nearly $250,000 when compared to the currently proposed bud-

"If the citizens feel that strongly about it and don't feel the city has put together a good budget or isn't being fiscally responsible with their tax dollars, a rollback election is always possibility," said Walker.

That fact provided the inspiration for the trustees' action Tuesday.

Our View

KBSB project deserves our solid backing

't's a point we've made here before, but it bears repeating — we never seem to run out of good causes. What's more, it's patently clear that Big Spring and Howard County residents love a good cause. Anyone doubting that fact need only look at the successes enjoyed by each year's Relay for Life, the annual United Way campaign, Pops in the Park, and just about every other public endeavor in our community.

Keep Big Spring Beautiful officials are hoping that holds true when it comes to their plans to renovate Comanche Trail Park, and in the process, earn money for even more projects.

KBSB members are planning several projects to enhance the park in an effort to win the Keep Texas Beautiful's Governor's Achievement Award, a $130,000 grant the organization would use to improve three entrances to the city.

"To win the award, we need some kind of big splashy project that includes the city, county and civic groups," said KBSB's Walter Ward. "To do that, we plan on renovating Comanche Trail Park (with) small projects that are easily doable but would make the park a more attractive place."

However, to get the ball rolling, KBSB needs our help. The first planned project involves the installation of 10 to 12 stone benches in the park, which the group hopes to finance through business, church or civic group sponsorships.

Each of the benches costs $400, but to defray those costs, Ward said KBSB would like sponsors to buy full, half or quarter sponsorships. Those organizations' names or logos would then be placed on bronze plaques set in the benches.

That, however, is only a start.

Plans also call for the construction and placement of several "You are here" signs that would help visitors better locate park attractions, which the group also hopes businesses and other organizations will "adopt." KBSB is hoping to purchase 80 dome-top lids for the park's trash barrels at $80 apiece.

While the projects are being spearheaded by KBSB, they are actually a multi-agency effort that hutchison also includes the Convention and Visitors Bureau $\,$ U.S. Senator and the city of Big Spring.

KBSB will be sending out solicitation letters to area businesses, churches and civic groups soon Phone: 202-224-5922 and will encourage donations on the projects through the end of this year.

Whether the group wins the state award not, Ward said renovation of the city park will be a KBSB priority for years to come.

"We would really like to to see our park become the best city park in West Texas," he said.

We couldn't agree more. We've long maintained that virtually every community in West Texas would love to have a facility like Comanche Trail Park, and that we seem to take it for granted.

So we encourage our readers to help get involved in the KBSB projects. And, if your business or organization can help out, call 935-6455 and make these plans a reality.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

With you, Lord, we aren't skating on thin

A dose of Cuban reality or those who still had naive illusions about changing Cuba by befriending a couple of old tyrants, Raul Castro offered a dose of reality Saturday.

"I wasn't elected president to return capitalism to Cuba or to surrender the revolution," said the younger of the Castro brothers in an obvious response to the Obama administration's calls for social and political reforms on the communist island. "I was elected to defend, build and perfect socialism, not destroy it," he said as he addressed the Cuban Parliament, composed entirely of militants of the Castro dictatorship. The Associated Press reported that they gave him a standing ovation. Between Fidel and Raul, the Castro brothers have ruled Cuba with an iron fist and without free elections for 50 years. They have done everything humanly possible to crush their critics and political opponents. Yet Raul has the gall to keep claiming that he was democratically "elected" when he took over for his dictator brother last year. Because he was "elected" by the Cuban Parliament, Castro claims he was chosen through a democratic process.

The whole world knows they have a one-party system, that Cuban legislators are simply a bunch of puppets of the regime and that the Cuban people would boot the Castro brothers out of office if real elections ever were

But these old cynics just keep repeating their tired rhetoric, all about how the United States should not try to interfere in Cuba's internal affairs, blah, blah blah ... and Cuba's sovereignty, blah, blah blah.

Of course, what they want is for us to butt out of the way they keep violating the human rights of the Cuban people. They use repression, fear and intimidation to prolong their stay in power, and they simply will not allow anyone to challenge or weaken their absolute control of Cuba.

Castro said his government "won't negotiate (its) political or social system and ... won't ask the United States to do so. We should mutually respect our dif-Respect? Does this mean we should respect his right to imprison people simply because they disagree with his regime? What about his right to organize goon squads to verbally and physically assault political dissidents? Or his right to keep the island as a prison from where you need government permission or risk drowning in order to escape? Should we respect his right to censor the press and the churches and violate every civil right and freedom that we hold

Can we respect a regime that systematically violates all the principles that make us proud Americans? Can we look away as atrocities are committed only 90 miles away from U.S. shores? I don't think so!

The cynicism of the Castro brothers is such that you want to dissect their sentences in order to expose just how arrogantly they try to insult our intelligence.

When he says the Free World doesn't have the right to butt into Cuba's internal affairs or even to ask about how he treats the Cuban people — because he doesn't ask the United States to negotiate its political and social system — anyone can see that the man's face must be made of Anyone can see that in order to improve relations between these two countries, it is not the Americans who need to change. It's the Cubans! We already have a free press, free elections, freedom to express ourselves, a free country! Yet as long as the Castro brothers are alive, they simply will not allow such freedom to flourish in Cuba. In fact, they think their totalitarian system will survive even after their muchanticipated demise. In a rare comment about life in Cuba after the Castros are gone, Raul said Saturday that those who expect the regime to perish with "the death of Fidel and all of us ... are doomed to failure." They want Cuba's enslavement to be permanent.

Remember when, back in April, Raul said he was willing to talk to the United States about "human rights, press freedom, political prisoners — everything"? Remember how all the "useful fools" in the American news media assumed that was the end of the U.S.-Cuba cold war? Remember that the media described those comments as "an extraordinary overture" and "a major softening of the communist island's stance"? Remember that one week later, Fidel Castro took it all back and explained that Raul had been "misinterpreted" and that they had no intentions of changing the system that sustains their dictatorship?

Well, this time it is Raul who has made it perfectly clear that he and his brother intend to die in power and that no one — including President Barack Obama — will be allowed to stand in their way.

But he says he still is willing to negotiate with the United States. And that probably will be enough for some naive Americans to argue that they see an opening and that we need to lift the U.S. embargo against the communist island without preconditions. These are the same fools who think that somehow, American tourists will go to Cuba and help liberate the Cuban people, even though tourists from all over the world have been going there for many years and have been unable to put a dent in the Castro repression

These are the same useful fools who actually believe that after a half-century of perfecting their repression, the Castro brothers somehow will be willing to give it all up.

Let's not be so naive; the Castros want the embargo lifted, but only if it doesn't require them to loosen their grip on power.

When he spoke to his puppet Parliament Saturday, Raul noted, "I wasn't elected president to return capitalism to Cuba or to surrender the revolution."

But if he had stopped talking after the first four words, for the first time in 50 years, he would have been honest.

our budget can be stretched and money can be used to purchase needed materials.

The library has received a couple of "football" biographies. Warren Moon is the only player who has been inducted into both the Pro Football and Canadian Football Hall of Fame. Moon lost his father to alcoholism and in order to have a positive role model, his mother enrolled him in a Pop Warner League team. Warren pursued his dream of playing quarterback even when faced with discouraging words from his coaches. In Moon's book, he talks about his life: a divorce, death threats, racist taunts, his deep disappointment at not winning a Super Bowl ring and his push for greater safeguards for players (Moon sustained six concussions during his career). An inspirational book; "Never Give Up on Your Dream: My Journey" (B MOOW) by Warren Moon is in the biography section.

Along the same lines, is a book authored by Loreane Tomlinson, mother of NFL MVP LaDainian Tomlinson. "LT and Me: What Raising a Champion Taught Me" (B TOM L). Loreane shares her secrets to nurturing a strong, God-fearing man in spite of all the temptations available to players in any high-pressure sport. It is packed with behind-thescenes information, photos that have not been published before, and perhaps most important of all, what she did right and then where she failed. I didn't realize it, but LT is from Marlin, Texas, and played for TCU. (Shows how much I follow football!) Like Moon's book, this can be found in the biography section. More biographies: "Lance," by John Wilcockson; "Prairie Tales," by Melissa Gilbert; "Singing Was the Easy Part," by Vic Damone; "Duchess of Death," by Richard Hack (this is about Agatha Christie); "Magnificent Desolation," by Buzz Aldrin and finally "Late Edition: A Love Story," by Bob Greene. I just finished reading

Richard Hack's "Duchess of Death: The Unauthorized Biography of Agatha Christie" (B CHR A) and it was absolutely fascinating. I have always enjoyed reading her mysteries and this gave an added dimension to the how and why she wrote. While her books toward the end of her lifetime were not as good as the prior ones, they were well-crafted stories. A super biography on an interesting character.

How about a trip back in time? "The Road to Woodstock," (781.660 LAN M) by Michael Lang, is the story of (duh!?) the festival that broke open the free love era. Forty years ago, on Aug. 15, Richie Havens was the first act to ascend the stage at the Woodstock Music and Art Fair in Max Yasgur's fields. The story of the festival begin with Lang's desire to put on a concert where people could come and go, listening to all kinds of music. Come they did, crowds of several hundred thousand people came together in the rain, mud and music. Revisit the 1960s from the comfort of your home.

Sophie Kinsella writes light-hearted romances and in her newest one there is a touch of mystery, too. "Remember Me?" (F KIN S) is the story of a 25-year-old working girl (no, not that kind!) who wakes up in the hospital with perfect teeth, a toned body and a highpowered job as corporate big shot. However, nothing is as it seems, secrets pop up everywhere, motives are murky, and how is she to figure what has happened? This is a good book to read while it is so hot outside. 2009 Property Tax Rates in HOWARD COLLEGE

This notice concerns 2009 property tax rates for HOWARD COLLEGE. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$4,212,785
Last year's debt taxes	$1,911,505
Last year's total taxes	$6,124,290
Last year's tax base	$2,202,982,01
Last year's total tax rate	$0.278

This year's effective tax rate:

(Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)

In the first year a hospital district or city collects the additional sales tax to reduce property taxes, it must insert the following lines unless its first adjustment was made last year.

M) by Maryann McFadden; and "Hope in a Jar", (F HAR B) by Beth Harbison. These are chick books, so guys will need to go for something else. Amanda Grange retells Jane Austen's "Pride & Prejudice" from Fitzwilliam Darcy's point of view, in "Mr. Darcy's Diary (F GRA A).

Her device for doing so is an imag ined diary of a clever sort: Grange reproduces, word for word and comma for comma, conversations from the original novel, but shifts the perspective to reported speech in Darcy's first-person, with his commentary on the encounters. Between the reconstituted passages, the reader is treated to Darcy's ongoing reflections on Hertfordshire society, his family obligations, his sister and, most crucially, Elizabeth Bennet and her family. While not as polished as other books told from Darcy's point of view, it is an enjoyable read.

was reading an article the other day that was just filled with things I didn't know. - As I was reading, I was thinking about how interesting it is to learn new information, but also how important it is to realize that there is a lot of information that we do know but don't stop to think about.

Let's review some of these things.

You know that you cannot make someone love you; all you can do is be someone who can be loved. The rest is up to them.

You know that no matter how much you care, some people just don't care back. You know that it takes years to build trust and only seconds to destroy it.

You know that it's not what you have in your life but who you have in your life that counts.

You know that you can do something in an instant that will give you heartache for life.

You know that you should always leave loved ones with loving words; it may be the last time you see them.

Parent's Corner: 'You know that

You know that you can keep going long after you think you

You know that you are responsible for what you do, no matter how you feel. You know that either you control your attitude or it controls

You know that learning to forgive takes practice.

You know that there are people who love you dearly but just don't know how to show it. You know that just because someone doesn't love you the way you want them to that it doesn't mean they don't love you with all they have. You know that it isn't always enough to be forgiven by others; sometimes you have to learn to forgive yourself.

You know that no matter how bad your heart is broken or your plans have been destroyed, the world doesn't stop for your grief.

You also know that just because you think something is true doesn't make it true. Let me tell you a story to illustrate this

A young couple moves into a new neighborhood. The next morning while they are eating breakfast, the young woman sees her neighbor hanging the wash

"That laundry is not very clean," she said. "She doesn't know how to wash correctly. Perhaps she needs better laundry soap."

Her husband looked on, but remained silent. Every time her neighbor would hang her wash to dry, the young woman would make the same comments. About one month later, the woman was surprised to see a nice clean wash on the line and said to her husband, "Look, she has learned how to wash correctly. I wonder who taught her this."

The husband said, "I got up early this morning and cleaned our windows."

And so it is with life. What we see when watching others depends on the purity of the window through which we look.

Cowboys' Spencer ready to join Ware in QB hunt

JAIME ARON

AP Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO — Anthony Spencer might have the cushiest spot in the Dallas Cowboys' lineup.

As the outside linebacker opposite reigning NFL sacks leader DeMarcus Ware, Spencer has the luxury of knowing offensive coordinators aren't setting up their pass protections to avoid him. If anything, quarterbacks trying to avoid Ware might almost certainly will have fewer blockers in front of him.

At least, that's how things shape up now. Spencer's goal is to make teams worry about him almost as much as "Teams are going to be focused on Ware no matter what I do," Spencer said. "It's just how I respond to it. If I'm making plays and making sacks off the edge, that's going to make teams respect both of us and make move toward Spencer and teams them change their scheme a little more."

> When Bill Parcells switched the Cowboys to a 3-4 defense in 2005, he spent the 11th overall pick on Ware, a college defensive end who could be retrained as a quarterback-seeking outside linebacker. That experiment worked so well that in '07 the Cowboys spent their top pick on Spencer, another college defensive end.

> That year, Greg Ellis was Dallas' incumbent at the "other" OLB spot and he didn't like the idea of a rookie coming in to take his job. Ellis was so motivated that he had his best season, going to the Pro Bowl for the first time and winning the NFL's comeback player of the year award. Spencer actually started the first six games and played in all 16, but he was clearly the third man in a three-man rota-

Hayes to the Hall

'Bullet' Bob finally joins NFL's best

JAIME ARON

AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Now that Bob Hayes is going into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, people hearing his story for the first time are going to wonder what took so long.

After all, he changed the game.

Hayes brought a new kind of speed to pro football: Olympic gold-medal speed. "Bullet Bob" won two of them in 1964, tying the world record in the 100 meters and running one of the greatest anchor legs ever seen to bring the United States from far behind in the 400-meter relay.

He joined the Dallas Cowboys in 1965 and showed what he could do right away. In a preseason game, quarterback Jerry Rhome overthrew everyone, or, at least, so it seemed, until Hayes swooped in and caught the ball. Immediately promoted to the starting lineup for the opener, Hayes scored touchdowns on three of his first four catches.

That rookie year, Hayes led the league in touchdowns and became Dallas' first 1,000-yard receiver. The next year, he led the league in TDs again and cracked 1,200 yards, a team record that stood for 25 years. The Cowbovs also won their division for Simply put, he changed the game, bringing Olympic gold-medal speed to pro football.

A's shut down Rangers, 6-0

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Gio Gonzalez found a routine that helps keep him focused. After his best outing yet, he's not going to change it anytime soon.

Gonzalez threw 6 2-3 scoreless innings and Kurt Suzuki homered to help the Oakland Athletics beat the Texas Rangers 6-0 on Tuesday night.

"I have been working with Suzuki about having a routine; having him set up down the middle and let my stuff do the work," Gonzalez said. "I'm working on keeping my composure because that will help me go the distance."

Gonzalez, who won his third straight decision and his first at home since last Aug. 12, lowered his home ERA to 8.26 from 10.80 with his outing.

Mark Ellis added three hits and three RBIs as the A's beat Texas a second straight night. Michael Young extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a double in the eighth but the Rangers lost for the third time in four games.

Gonzalez (3-2) took a no-hitter into the fifth before giving up a two-out hit to David Murphy. He retired 14 in a row to that point.

"I saw a curveball, that's about it," Rangers' manager Ron Washington said. "You can't take anything away from the kid; he went seven innings, but it wasn't any shutout stuff."

Derek Holland (4-7) gave up four runs and four hits with four walks over 4 1-3 innings. He struck out four.

"I was trying to make too many perfect pitches and balls were getting away," Holland said. "I was just trying to do too much out there."

Suzuki hit his seventh home run of the season, a solo shot, with one out in the first. Ellis added RBI singles in the second, fourth and eighth, Cliff Pennington drove in a run in the eighth and Scott Hairston hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Gonzalez walked Young with one out in the first and allowed one Ranger to venture further than second base. "It's funny but it's the same stuff I've seen from Gio," A's manager Bob Geren said. "The difference is throwing it over

Jack Cust made a nice running catch just before hitting the right field wall to end the fourth, the closest the Rangers were to a hit until Murphy's single.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll make a selfsacrificing move in order to please someone or keep a situation flowing in a happy direction. It feels good to give, and yet you should really make it up to yourself as soon as possible. Do something just for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You've learned to control your emotions and your impulses, and you've also learned that too much control is no fun. There will be a chance to let loose and you'll be glad you seized the day.

and 18. ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I'm a Scorpio woman, 35. I've only had three boyfriends. Two years ago I decided I wasn't going to wait for a man to have a family and I adopted two children from foster care. My children are 8 and 11 and are very happy together. They keep me busy — both have ADHD and are always up to something. Part of me still wonders if I will ever meet a man who will complete this family." What a wonderful act of CREATORS.COM to children who need one. Your heart is expanding in ways you never imagined. In giving this gift, you have opened yourself up emotionally and increased the flow of love through your life. It will only continue to increase. Scorpios can be extremely discerning, and that has at times kept you from dating. But your naturally strict selection policy will now be an asset, as you must be very careful about whom you let into your new family. This fall, Scorpios have luck finding quality partners in a community professional and/or organization, at church or through religiously affiliated dating services.

With a total of six luminaries in Thornton will always thrive in the spotlight.

yards per catch in 1970, the year the Cowboys went to their first Super Bowl, and again in '71, when Dallas won it all for the first time. That made him the first person to win Olympic gold and a Super Bowl; he's still the only one.

"This guy revolutionized the passing game and forced them to come up with the zone defense, just like Wilt Chamberlain forced them to change certain rules in basketball," Hall of Fame defensive back Herb Adderley Haves was a huge threat no matter who was throwing him the ball. He caught a 95-yard touchdown pass from Don Meredith, an 89-yarder from Craig Morton and an 85-yarder from Roger Staubach. The same day he notched the club-record 95-yarder, Hayes also scored from 52 yards out. He finished that game with 246 yards, another club record. "He could always just hit another gear and no one could beat him," said Staubach, a Hall of Famer himself. "Quarterbacks get used to wide receivers because they're pretty similar, but Bob was crazy-fast. You had to learn to get rid of it a lot quicker because his speed was so different than everybody else. ... You thought you'd overthrew him and he'd run under it like he had to slow down."

He was a heck of a punt returner,

Hayes led the league in total puntreturn yardage in 1967 and in yards per punt return in 1968. His average that season was 20.8; nobody has come within 2 yards since.

To put Hayes' career in modern terms, consider this: Over 11 years, he averaged more vards per punt return than Deion Sanders, more yards per catch than Randy Moss, scored more touchdowns than Michael Irvin and averaged a touchdown every 5.2 catches, compared to every 6.8 catches for Terrell Owens and every 7.9 for Jerry Rice.

And, get this — stats were a lot harder to come by in his era.

"You didn't throw the ball 45 times per game back then and receivers could get hit anywhere down the field," Staubach said. "That was the thing with Bob. They knew they couldn't catch him, so they were trying hit him."

It makes you wonder what Hayes would've been like with today's

"Oh, my goodness," said Adderley, who went head-to-head with Hayes while playing for Green Bay, then became his close friend as teammates in Dallas. "I don't know how they'd cover him unless they used two or three guys."

So, back to the original point: Why did it take 29 years after Hayes became eligible — and seven years after he died at age 59 — for the "Bullet" to finally land in Canton? Well, in 1979, just before he went on the ballot for the first time, Hayes pleaded guilty to delivering narcotics to an undercover police officer and spent 10 months behind bars. Although the conviction later was overturned, the damage to his reputation was done.

"That shouldn't have prevented him from being in the Hall of Fame, but I definitely feel it did," Staubach said. "I think most people feel that's the case because the facts are so overwhelming."

Hayes' supporters were really rankled in 1999 when Lawrence Taylor — who brought a new dimension to the linebacker's spot just like Hayes did to receiver, and also had his share of drug problems — was elected into the Hall on his first try. Taylor even had the public support of then-commissioner Paul Tagliabue.

"Why did they hold it against Hayes and not other guys?" Adderley said.

"He should've been a first-ballot Hall of Famer.'

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones helped revive Hayes' candidacy by putting him into the club's Ring of Honor in 2001. Hayes died a year later, but got another shot at the Hall when the senior committee made him a finalist in 2004. It took a rare second chance from the seniors for him to finally make it this time.

Even after all those years of waiting, the glory didn't last. Controversy returned. The sister who read a letter Hayes wrote in 1999 specifically for this occasion turned out not to be his sister, and there were plenty of questions about the legitimacy of the let-

On Saturday, however, the ceremony will emphasize the highlights of Hayes' career and life.

Staubach will be his presenter, followed by a video tribute. Bob Hayes Jr. will accept the honor on his father's behalf.

Hayes will join Jim Thorpe as the only Olympic gold medalists in Canton. He'll also be the 11th person inducted primarily for his days with the Cowboys.

"The common denominator about Bob is that he cared about people," Staubach said. "He wanted to put a smile on people's faces. And he was a phenomenal athlete."

I've wanted since I've been here. So I'm more focused than I was before just because I know that everyone is going to be counting on me. I've got to get my job done."

'08, getting off to a great start in training camp, only to hurt a knee. He needed surgery and missed the entire preseason, plus two of the first three A hamstring problem cost him two more games. He never got the starting job back, finishing the season with only $1\frac{1}{2}$ sacks, $18\frac{1}{2}$ behind Ware for the team lead. Now Spencer is going into his third year. He's healthy, experienced and faces no competition; Ellis was released this summer. It's time for the Cowboys to see if

No. 93 can be anywhere as good as

"He's a tremendously good athlete," said coach Wade Phillips, who also is the defensive coordinator. "He has all the attributes you need to be a good player. ... Spencer has looked good in the running game. We knew he would. I think he is getting better and better passing game-wise. He is a natural pass rusher. Staying healthy and having the opportunity is the biggest thing for him."

At 6-foot-3, 256 pounds, Spencer is the perfect size for his role, with good speed to match. After 28 games of experience, and hours upon hours of film study, meetings and practices alongside Ware and Ellis, Spencer has long since shed the robotic feel of being an out-of-position defensive

"I definitely feel like a linebacker nowadays," he said.

It's also important to note that Spencer has played a lot, albeit mostly against the run. He was better at it than Ellis and that enabled the veteran to remain fresh to rush the quarterback. So Spencer didn't get many

'Clunkers' program likely to be extended

WASHINGTON(AP)— The Senate has cleared the way for a vote extending the "cashfor-clunkers" program, which offers car buyers rebates of up to $4,500 for trading in their gasguzzlers for new, higher-mileage models, setting aside Republican opposition to the plan.

Majority Senate Leader Harry Reid said Wednesday he had several very good conversations with Republican Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., and there is "a significant majority" that wants to move forward with the legislation.

Reid said the Senate would have to stay in session on Friday if lawmakers wanted to make changes to the bill.

Reid had said on Tuesday that he had the votes to pass a $2 billion extension already approved by the House. The funding would triple the cost of $1 billion rebate program and give as many as a half-million more Americans the chance to grab the new car incentives through September.

Car companies have credited the clunkers program with driving up sales in late July.

The list includes Honda Civics, Toyota Corollas and Dodge Calibers. The Toyota Prius hybrid, which gets 46 miles per gallon, according to EPA estimates, is the fourthbest-selling car. There is one SUV on the list, the Ford Escape.

The bidding: West North East South Dble 2 ♣ Redble Pass Pass Pass Redble Dble Pass

Opening lead — four of spades.

The language of bidding in bridge contains only 15 words: spades, hearts, diamonds, clubs, notrump, double, redouble, pass and the numbers one through seven. Nevertheless, despite this limited vocabulary, a competent pair will reach their best contract on the great majority of deals. But even the very best players occasionally get confused about the meaning of their bids. Witness this deal from a team match where the players got their wires crossed.

At the first table, South doubled

East's opening spade bid, and West likewise. South then bid two clubs, which West doubled.

At this point, South elected to redouble. He intended this as an SOS asking North to choose between diamonds and hearts. But North appar ently misunderstood the plea for help and passed.

A spade was led and returned. Declarer ruffed, played a diamond to the jack, ruffed a spade, led a diamond to the queen and ruffed dummy's last spade with the king. West overruffed and returned the seven of clubs, dummy's ten losing to the queen. Declarer later scored two more tricks, but went down two redoubled — 600 points.

The East-West pair had every reason to believe they had achieved an excellent result, until they learned what happened to their North-South teammates at the other table: West North East Pass Redble Pass Dble Pass Pass 1 NT Pass Pass Here, also, South made an SOS redouble, imploring partner to choose a suit. But the North player at this table was also impervious to South's plea, and the final contract became one notrump redoubled. West led a low spade. The ten lost to the ace, a spade was returned to West's king, and a third spade allowed East to run his suit. Declarer finished with only three tricks, going down four — 1,400 points!

Obviously, the bridge vocabulary just isn't big enough!

redoubled, showing 10 or more points. North passed, and East did Tomorrow: Good management.
