College slicing budget

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

In response to a "suggestion" from state leadership, Howard College is slicing $1 million from its operating budget over the next two years.

Howard, along with Texas' other community colleges, universities and other agencies, are being asked by state officials to look for ways to trim 5 percent of their expenses to help the state weather the economic downturn.

A letter signed by Gov. Rick Perry, Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst and House Speaker Joe Straus, gave the agencies until Feb. 15 to submit the plan.

"And we've done that," Howard College President Dr. Cheryl Sparks said. "We have cut certain operating expenses and in the area of salaries, we are freezing positions — we

Film society revamps its plans By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer

There's been a change of plans.

That's the message Brandon Johnson, spokesperson for the Big Spring Film Society, is delivering this week, as the schedule of outdoor film screenings slated for 2010 is being scaled back.

"Realistically, trying to put on three screenings right now isn't possible," said Johnson. "To be honest, we don't have the money or the volunteer power just yet to pull it off. So I have canceled the June 18 screening of 'Poltergeist' and moved 'Raiders of the Lost Ark' tentatively to July 9. The screening for 'Jurassic Park' on Scenic Mountain will still be Aug. 28, however. "By pushing 'Raiders' to the middle of the summer, it will also give us more time to spend making the screening as special and memorable as I would like it to be. I'm really excited about it, and I really feel like the venue — the Comanche Trail Amphitheater — will make it something families will remember for years to come."

Moving the screening of "Raiders" to July will also give the society more time to work on the film contest planned for the event, said Johnson.

"The change in date also means the Indiana Jones short film contest is back on," he said. "The rules will be pretty simple. It needs to be five minutes long or shorter and have something to do with Indiana Jones. Filmmakers also need to keep in mind that this is going to be a spouting profanity in his underwear.

family event, so they can't have Indy "Whatever format you choose — DV or HD — the finished product will need to be burned to a DVD. If anyone has any questions about the contest they can email me at cruiser1977@gmail.com or uberthoth@gmail.com. I think the contest is going to be a lot of fun, and it will be interesting to see what sort of ideas

The film society was forced to cancel its meeting last week due to inclement weather and scheduling conflicts, according to Johnson, with a makeup meeting expected to be held in late

March. "The meeting we had scheduled for this past Thursday was postponed due to a lot of conflicting events," said Johnson. "Mostly because the snow shut everyone down, and a lot of things had to be moved around. I'm looking tentatively at March 25 for the next meeting, but I'll let everyone know as soon as we set that date in stone."

Johnson said he hopes to see the number of volunteers and sponsors within the society grow in the coming year, allowing the group to expand the number of screenings and special projects it can bring to the Crossroads area.

"One of the most important aspects of what the society does is the men and women who donate their time and hard

Texas boy, 13, dies in sand tunnel collapse

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) - A Santa Fe-area boy has died in the collapse of a sand tunnel he was digging in the family's back vard.

The Galveston County Sheriff's Office identified the victim as 13-year-old Josh Stone.

A news release says the victim was discovered late Friday by his brother, with the teen's lower legs the only part of his body showing from the sand pile. Investigators say it appears the sand collapsed around the victim.

The sheriff's department says the victim was last seen alive around 2 p.m. Friday. The teen was discovered missing nearly three hours later when the children's father returned home from work.

Stone was transported to Mainland Center Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Teen arrested after driving into crowd

EL PASO (AP) — Officials say an 18-year-old El Paso man was apparently angry about being asked to leave a gathering and so drove his car into a crowd in a parking area. Two male teenagers were injured but are expected to recover.

The El Paso County Sheriff's Office said Sunday that a 17-year-old was pinned under the the Mitsubishi Lancer and a 16-year-old was struck and suffered a broken leg. Witnesses said the driver in the early Saturday incident had to be forced out of the car so the 17-year-old could be pulled out from under it. The 17-year-old suffered bruising and internal injuries.

The driver remains jailed on two counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

TYLER - Even as authorities closed in, one of the two suspects in a string of east Texas church fires attended a Sunday service and went to a Baptist ministry on his junior college campus for a free meal.

Such activity wasn't unusual for 19-year-old Jason Robert Bourque, a former Eagle Scout and high school debate champion who grew up McAllister, Bourque's in a small church not far from 10 others that authorities believe have been set ablaze since Jan. 1.

But officials say they found weapons and books detailing atheism and devil worship during a pre-dawn raid at a home where Bourque was arrested Feb. 21. In a separate raid in San Antonio, authorities captured Daniel George childhood friend from First Baptist Church in tiny Ben Wheeler. Bourque and McAllister, 22, each face one count of felony arson for a fire at Dover Baptist Church near Tyler, about 90 miles east of Dallas. They are suspects in nine other church fires that were ruled arsons and three attempted church break-ins, according to court documents. Both men are being Sparks said the college will cut $847,000 from the Howard College budget and more than $300,000 from SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf during this biennium to bring the district into compliance with the state mandate.

Although the original letter from state leadership merelv asked for ways for the agencies to trim their budgets. Sparks said the college decided to act as if it were a set-in-stone requirement.

"As gathered we information from sources in Austin and we continued to watch state revenue trends, it appeared that we needed to plan accordingly," Sparks said. "We determined that the prudent course of action would be to go ahead and implement

the plan."

Pending further instructions from the state, the college is merely "setting aside" the revenue for now rather than sending it directly to Austin, she added.

Sparks said she was unsure how the cuts would effect college services.

"We will certainly try to limit the number of services we cut," she said. "But, with a tighter budget, that will be more difficult."

Also, the timing of the budget cuts are making a big impact.

"It's more difficult at this time of the year to make cuts," Sparks said. "Many of the things we budget for, we spend the money at the start of the fiscal year in September. As it stands now, we are having to cut money budgeted for day-to-day operations."

It is still to be determined how long the cuts will be required. Sparks said information she's received indicates they will effect this biennium and next, but the picture is unclear after that.

"Of course, if the economy rebounds, that will paint a more positive picture as we

Congress should see if NHTSA can be more effective

he key questions that emerged from Wednesday's hearings on Toyota's sudden acceleration problems are whether the sources of the defect have been pinpointed and whether the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is equipped to adequately deal with such issues. It is by no means clear that either question has been resolved.

With the president of the giant automaker, Akio Toyoda, apologizing to members of a congressional committee for the deaths that have occurred as a result of sudden acceleration, it is no longer a question of the firm seeking to evade responsibility for the problem. But another Toyota executive admitted to the committee that it still doesn't know all the causes of the dangerous phenomenon.

The hearings have also disclosed that earlier responses by the firm to complaints about sudden acceleration may not have been fully forthcoming to the public or federal regulators. The Detroit FEDERAL News reported on an internal 2009 memo in which Toyota safety officials crowed to their superiors that they had saved $100 million by limiting an early recall to floor mats rather than admitting a possible mechanical defect.

Since then, there have been recalls to deal with sticky gas pedals, and there are still worries that there may be an electrical system flaw that may lead to sudden acceleration.

Congressional hearings are targeting NHTSA for its failures to prod Toyota for more extensive investigations of defects or to move more quickly beyond its initial insistence that the acceleration incidents were solely the result of floor mats becoming stuck under gas pedals.

Critics of Toyota's responses were certainly given more ammunition with the statement made in a QUITS an e-mail by Jim Press, a former member of the Toyota board of directors, that the firm had been "hijacked" by "financially oriented pirates." Press said Toyoda had the values needed to "save" the auto giant if he received enough support from others in the company.

Based on the president's testimony, the firm is now committed to rectifying its problems.

It can best do that by acting on Toyoda's promise to vigorously work to solve the puzzle of sudden acceleration.

Toyota's possible culpability in covering up its at their peril. problems is under investigation by a federal grand

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

All right, leave the pity party!

elf-pity is no party, my friends! Perhaps we've all thrown one of these at least once in our lives. Maybe we know some folks who throw one every day.

It can be easy to justify our sorrow. We feel people have done us wrong, our life is spinning out of our control, our dreams have been shattered, or we see ourselves as the victim of circumstances. So we may believe we have good reason to be down and depressed.

BRIDGES

We need to leave this pity party, my friends, because these thought patterns are toxic and never They will destroy our hope for a better tomorrow and stifle us into a martyr complex that will blind us from our purpose and potential. Besides, no one has a good and happy time at a pity party!

I've held a few pity parties in my life. My favorite occasion for one is when I'm feeling unappreciated and misunderstood.

During a recent pity party, I came across a definition of selfpity which explained that selfpity doesn't come from a sense of worthiness but from a sense of unrecognized worthiness. And it referred to self-pity as the response of unapplauded pride and a wounded ego.

I hated to think of myself as having a wounded ego. Was my basis for feeling unappreciated and misunderstood really my Admittedly, I may not be able to change the behavior and thoughts of the people around me, but I can change how I respond to them. Just the acknowledgement of this fact made me feel empowered and encouraged - no longer the helpless victim.

I couldn't help but remember the story in the Bible about the man healed by the pool of Bethesda. (John 5:2-9) Now truly, if ever someone could have been justified in his feelings of selfpity, this guy would have been one. He had been an invalid for 38 years. And for years, he had waited by this pool to be healed. The rumor was if you were the first to get in the water at a certain time, you would be cured of whatever ailment you were suffering from.

When Jesus came upon this man, he asked him, "Would you like to get well?"

Instead of a resounding "Yes!" the man gave an excuse of why he couldn't. He said, "I can't, sir, for I have no one to put me into the pool when the water bubbles up. Someone else always gets there ahead of me."

Of course, Jesus knew this man didn't have to get into the pool to be healed. He knew God created him upright and healthy, and these qualities were his innate spiritual nature now and always. So Jesus told him. "Stand up, pick up your mat, and walk!" And so he did. No more excuses, no more being a victim of circumstances, no more pity

When we feel the weight of the world is on our shoulders or we feel put upon or victimized, we can do something about our plight. I saw a sign that read, "Do you rise and shine or rise and whine?"

Whining, even when we feel it's justified, will not help — will not result in healing, progress or resolution. So quite simply, it's a waste of our time!

We can learn to stop self-pity when it attempts to creep into our thoughts. It may be normal to at first feel sad or sorry for ourselves when things go wrong. But we can immediately turn our sorrow into positive action. We can surround ourselves with things that bring joy and happiness and experience whatever makes us laugh. We can choose thankfulness as our ticket out of self-misery. If need be, we can make a list of all the good that has ever happened in our lives. We can't feel sorrowful and grateful at the same time! And Jesus did give us instruction on how to treat those that mistreat us when he said, "Love your enemies. Let them bring out the best in you, not the worst. When someone gives you a hard time, respond with the energies of prayer for that person..." (Matthew 5:44)

A wounded ego and unapplauded pride is not the best in me or you. We can leave behind anything and everything that is holding us back or keeping us down. And we can all rise and shine to a new day of joy, peace of mind, and infinite possibili-

Maybe if teens talk about sex, well, maybe

ast Monday night, two teenagers in the Midwest stood before their city's school board and essentially pleaded that the grown-ups in charge change how sex education is taught in their district. Their courage was a timely reminder that we ignore our children

The first student to speak in the room of 150 or so in attendance was 17-year-old Daniel Sparks.

Teenage boys don't come any more clean-cut or poised than Danny. In a strong, steady voice, the high-school junior in Parma, Ohio, Cleveland's largest suburb, attacked the district's abstinence-only-untilmarriage sex education program taught by Operation Keepsake.

The program may sound like a military exercise, but it sends kids virtually unarmed into a sexually complex and potentially dangerous world.

This, Daniel told the school board, is poor public health.

'Operation Keepsake has made me question education as a whole, for while they scared us into understanding what could go wrong, they afforded us no information on how things could go right," he said. "On how to protect ourselves, on the effectiveness of contraception, and empowering us with knowledge to make the right decisions before making the wrong ones." Daniel told the board that for 19 months, he has been unable to meet or even speak with those responsible for making decisions about how he and his classmates learn about sex, despite

"As a gay student," he asked, "how can I be expected to uphold a standard of abstinence until marriage when I live in a state where I cannot marry?'

Daniel's classmate who spoke, 16-year-old Jelena Loncar, borrowed from Operation Keepsake's own language to blast the curriculum for promoting gender stereotypes.

"I personally don't view men as predators or protectors," she said. "And I certainly don't view myself as a treasure or a target. I found it insulting and undermining that Operation Keepsake reduced me to a social stereotype."

Daniel and Jelena added that they are abstinent, but only because access to comprehensive sex education elsewhere helped them make informed and confident choices for their young

The audience was respectful during the students' speeches. There were audible gasps only after Jelena pointed out that in her high school's sophomore class alone, eight girls are pregnant.

Several parents came up afterward to congratulate the teenagers for their courage and to voice support. The superintendent assured Daniel that she will meet with him. She told me later she favors comprehensive sex education and will form a committee to "start the conversation." Most parents — liberal, conservative and somewhere in between — want their children to abstain from sex, but they also want them to be safe if they choose otherwise. The overwhelming majority of studies have shown, time and again, that abstinence-plus education is more effective than programs like Operation Keepsake.

Abstinence-only proponents are heralding a small study published earlier this month in the Archives of Pediatrics & Adolescent Medicine that showed for the first time that their brand of sex education reduced sexual activity by nearly a third in 12- and 13-year-olds. The study involved 662 African-American middleschool students in four low-income schools in the Northeast. An editorial accompanying the report cautioned against reading too much into this, and the study's lead author, psychologist John B. Jemmott III, agreed.

"Policy should not be based on just one study, but an accumulation of empirical findings from several well-designed, well-executed studies," Jemmott wrote.

Meanwhile, let's keep this in mind: The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported only three months ago that chlamydia, gonorrhea and syphilis continue to spread in the United States and that almost half of the 19 million new sexually transmitted infections each year affect 15- to 24-year-olds.

"We have among the highest rates of STDs of any developed country in the world," John Douglas, director of the division of sexually transmitted diseases at the CDC, told Reuters.

'We haven't been promoting the full battery of messages," Douglas said. "We have been sending people out with one seat belt in the whole car."

When it comes to protecting our kids, perhaps we need more teenagers like Daniel Sparks and Jelena Loncar in the driver's

QUESTIONS: "What's so special about lunar eclipses anyway?"

A lunar eclipse occurs when the sun casts the Earth's shadow onto the face of the full moon. Astrologically, this indicates some kind of gigantic culmination in your life. This is the grand finale, an ending, the finish line of some hugely important marathon you've been running for a very long time. Now, don't worry. Some endings we like. such as graduations or promotions that help us to leave an old job for one that's new and exciting. Even an engagement marks the end of your "single and looking" life, right? Of course, then there are those endings that can bring unwelcome news, too — such as a layoff or a breakup. But even these events are in your best interest and often turn out to be blessings in disguise. Lunar eclipses keep you moving in the right direction, even if that means knocking your caboose off of one track and onto another. The next lunar eclipse takes place on June 26, 2010, in the sign of Capricorn. It is just a partial eclipse, however, so the effects of it will not be felt as strongly as if the eclipse were total.

Dear Annie: I am 26, and my sister is 18 months older. We have never gotten along well, but recently, there has been a huge rift.

My sister and her boyfriend own a nice house, and she drives a new car.

I am recently divorced and am struggling to raise three children on my own. Our wealthy parents have been helping me out a great deal. They purchased a "beater" car for me and are paying the insurance.

They also have been giving me money for groceries and some basic bills. Still, we're barely getting by.

My sister is enraged that our parents have been giving money to me for necessities, but not to her.

Our parents have explained that she makes more than double what I do and has no children to support, but their words fall on deaf

When my husband figured out that it will cost us nearly $1,000 to attend (and we are on a fixed income), he said it is a waste of time and money and the wedding will happen whether we're there or not.

He prefers that we send a nice gift and our regrets. He didn't want to go to begin with. My husband is a very unsociable person and has never given my family the time of day.

This sister is my only living relative, and I don't want to hurt her feelings by not attending. What is a reasonable solution? — Not Sure in California

Dear California: The reasonable solution is to go by yourself if you can manage it.

You can celebrate with your sister while your husband avoids your family and spends less money.

Lady Steers third in pool at Midland tourney

Herald Staff Report

MIDLAND — The Lady Steers softball team gained some valuable experience at the Midland West Texas Classic over the week-

The Lady Steers went 4-2 in the tournament to finish third in their eight-team pool bracket. Big Spring's two losses came 4-1 against 5A Midland Lee and 5-0 against 5A El Paso Americas.

"I was pleased with our weekend," Lady Steers coach John Sparks said. "You walk away from that tournament with four wins and that's not a bad deal. The two teams that we (lost to) were 5A teams and we did stick with them.

"All in all, the effort from the girls was really good, and I think they had a good time."

Lady The Steers

opened the tournament with Thursday wins over Monahans and Grape Creek, teams Big Spring had beat the weekend before.

Friday, the Lady Steers' bats struggled in a 4-1 loss to Midland Lee. Still, Sparks was pleased with the way Big Spring made the game competitive.

Hunt struck out 12 Lee batters in the game.

"Midland Lee hits the ball really well,"

Sparks said. "Even though Kenzie had that many strikeouts, they did hit the ball hard. It was impressive."

Macy Briggs singled in Jillian Valle for the Lady Steers' only run in the game, which came in the seventh.

Big Spring's next matchup came with Crane, where the Lady Steers pounded the ball to a 16-0 win.

"Everybody hit, everybody ran, everybody did OK," Sparks something we need to said.

Logan Yarbar earned the win in the game, striking out six in a shutout performance.

Big Spring's final featured game matchup with El Paso Americas, which won the pool. Americas beat the Lady Steers 5-0 in the game.

"They had a pitcher whose changeup just killed us," Sparks said. "It's definitely work on, and that's my fault."

With Monday's game canceled due to rainy weather, the Lady Steers have their sights set on their own tournament this weekend.

The tournament features 24 4-5A teams from all over West Texas. Games will start Thursday and continue through the weekend.

Check the Herald for tournament results.

Herald Staff Report

ALBANY The Forsan Buffs were dominant over the weekend in the Albany tournament.

Buffs The beat Midland Trinity 8-1 and Breckinridge 7-2 on Saturday to capture the championship. The Buffs are 3-0 on the young season, all wins coming in tournament play.

Dylan Lowrey tossed a three-hit complete game in the win over Trinity, striking out seven and walking one. Herrin doubled twice in the game and Foster Burchett knocked in 3 RBI with a double. Patrick Robles and Elgin Suazo each had 2 RBI and Evan Burton finished with a double and RBI.

In Forsan's 7-2 championship win over Breckinridge, Peyton Parker allowed two runs in a complete game fivehitter, striking out eight with no walks.

Burton had two hits, including a double and three RBI. Herrin knocked in two runs on two hits.

Forsan plays Colorado City on the road Tuesday. First pitch has been changed from 7 p.m. to 4 p.m. due to weather concerns.

NATIONAL SPORTS IN BRIEF

Shaq to undergo surgery on thumb INDEPENDENCE.

Ohio (AP) — Shaquille O'Neal's regular season could be over. Now the Cavaliers hope the center they acquired for the postseason will be back in time for the playoffs.

O'Neal will undergo surgery Monday to repair his injured right thumb. He was examined Sunday by Dr. Thomas Graham at the National Hand Center in Baltimore. Graham will perform the surgery.

The Cavaliers said

Mahan beats Fowler in Ariz.

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Hunter Mahan won the Phoenix Open for his second PGA Tour title, coming from four strokes back to beat Rickie Fowler by a shot in a 1-2 finish for former Oklahoma State players.

The 27-year-old Mahan had an eagle and a pair of birdies in a late four-hole span to finish at 16-under 268. Mahan, whose first victory came at the 2007 Travelers

Could they realistically be expected to win four times in six days to capture gold?

The answer was a resounding yes.

"We talked about not getting discouraged if the tournament didn't go our way right off the bat," defenseman Scott Niedermayer said. "Believe in each other and get our team game the way it needs to be to win, and we did it."

To win, Canada withstood a remarkable and determined effort from a U.S. team that wasn't supposed to medal in Vancouver, much less roll through the tournament unbeaten before losing in the first overtime gold-medal game since NHL players joined the Olympics in 1998.

"No one knew our

Jason Doporto entered the game in the third with one out and the bases loaded, where he got a strikeout and a groundout to keep the Tors off the board.

Doporto tossed 2 2/3 innings and allowed one run, earning the win, before Chance Hart pitched a scoreless sixth for the save.

Josh Paniagua went 2-for-3 with two RBI and two runs scored. Lupe Abrego went 1-for-3 with a double and RBI, including a game-tying sacrifice fly early in the game.

Coahoma's game scheduled for today against Midland Greenwood has been moved to Tuesday at 4 p.m. in Midland, varsity only.

Coahoma finishes second in pool MIDLAND

The Coahoma Bulldogettes used solid pitching performances to finish with a 4-2 weekend in the West Texas Classic, earning second in their pool.

Heather Newton and Katie Dunn each went 2-1 in the tournament, with each notching a shutout. Newton struck out 37 batters in three starts, including 15 in a loss to Abilene High. Dunn notched 10 in her win over Greenwood.

The Bulldogettes beat Abilene Cooper 5-2, Marfa 7-0, Midland Christian 4-0 and Greenwood Midland 3-1 in the tournament. Coahoma's losses came 3-1 to Abilene High on Thursday and 4-3 to Odessa Permian on Friday morning.

The Bulldogettes are 7-4 on the season, with all their losses coming at the hands of 5A schools. The Bulldogettes will play Greenwood at 5 p.m. in Midland Tuesday.

four of diamonds. Everyone is occasionally guilty of becoming enamored of a particular hand and overestimating its value. All players should, of course, strive to keep such excesses to a minimum, as steady overbidding is a serious fault in anyone's game. The best policy in bridge is to try to bid your hands as accurately as possible neither overbidding nor underbidding them — but this is not always easy to do.

Consider this deal from the Italy-U.S. match in 1951. Howard Schenken was South for the American team and, at favorable vulnera-bility, decided to open one club.

He found his partner with a huge hand, and North never did let go until a small slam was reached. Schenken did everything he could to slow his partner down, but North had the bit firmly in his teeth and refused to let

The Americans were exceptionally lucky on the deal because, as the cards were divided, the slam could not be stopped. West led a diamond. Schenken won the trick with dummy's queen, finessed the jack of clubs, led a heart to the queen and cashed the A-K of trumps. When he next led another heart, West took the ace, and that was that. Declarer had 12 ice-cold tricks.

Schenken would have gone down had West held the queen of clubs, or had East held the Q-10-x-x of trumps, or had East held the ace of hearts, or if West had led a spade initially and East had the king.

North was extremely pleased by the favorable outcome, which was attributable for the most part to his highly optimistic series of bids. He knew he had dodged a bullet, and no doubt vowed not to press his luck quite as much in the future.

Tomorrow: Maximum security.

"But it's tough for a lot of guys to get in rhythm because they've been hurt, they've been out, and with the weather we haven't got to practice." Odessa is 2-1 on the year but should challenge Howard in the WJCAC, Smith said.

"In the coaches poll, I picked them first," Smith said. "If we can split with those guys, it will buy us another week to get some more guys back. Honestly, that's what we're going to have to do until we get into April."
