Special to the Herald Survivors of cancer and their caregivers are the stars of every Relay for Life. The 2010 Relay theme is "A world with less cancer is a world with more birthdays," and the survivors will share a large birthday cake to celebrate another year of life. Those celebrants, wearing their distinctive purple shirts with the logo "'Happy Birthday' is a victory song," walk or ride the Survivors' Lap, cheered on by everyone attending Relay. Then they are joined by the caregivers, those who play a large role in the lives of anyone who has had cancer.

The Survivor Committee for the Howard Glasscock Relay for Life is composed of both cancer survivors and caregivers: Marcie Lykken, Bonnie Miller, Debbye ValVerde and Koi-Debbye ValVerde came into firsthand contact with cancer when her dad, Tim Salazar, was stricken with pancreatic cancer. She helped care for him, seeing how difficult it was for him to ask for aid in personal

Big Spring Junior High student gets third place during state science fair

Special to the Herald

SANANTONIO—BigSpring Junior High School student Bailey Pittman was an award winner at the ExxonMobil Texas State Science and Engineering Fair held earlier this month.

Pittman, the daughter of Paul and Wendy Pittman of Big Spring, was awarded third place in environmental management. She is the first BSJH student to place this high at the state science fair, according to Darrel Ryan, director of federal programs for Big Spring Independent School District.

An eighth-grader, Pittman has always had an interest in science, because this subject fits in with her goal of becoming a pediatrician when she grows up. She is very involved in her science class and has the desire to learn all that science has to offer, Ryan noted. Her science fair project consisted of two solar ovens — one made from a shoe box and the other from a little larger box. She had just started working on her project when the earthquake in Haiti occurred. She then decided to add information on how her solar ovens would be able to help et us be clear. We support the idea of enhanced border enforcement, but we support it as one ingredient in the recipe of comprehensive immigration reform. Enforcement only doesn't work as a national strategy to control illegal immigration.

McCain, Kyl plan for Arizona ignores very real problem

In October 1994, we supported the launch of Operation Gatekeeper, which helped secure the California-Mexico border and bring order to the San Diego sector. But when the Clinton administration cracked down on the flow of illegal immigrants into California, it squeezed more illegal immigrants across the border into Arizona.

Those illegal immigrants might have kept right on going to points north in search of work had Arizona employers refused to hire them. That didn't happen. Cities all over the Grand Canyon State were booming, and there was a hunger for cheap labor. In fact, so many illegal immigrants wound up working and settling in Arizona that the state now has the most illegal immigrants in the country in terms of a percentage of the total population.

To reverse that trend and regain control of the Arizona-Mexico border, Republican Sens. John Mc-Cain and Jon Kyl this week channeled the spirit of Operation Gatekeeper and announced a 10-point enforcement plan aimed at the border. The Arizona senators want the Obama administration to send 3,000 additional Border Patrol agents to Arizona, deploy 3,000 National Guard troops to the border, increase funding for programs that help local law enforcement agencies fight drug and immigrant smuggling and require that anyone caught crossing the border illegally more than once serve 15 to 60 days in jail.

All this is needed, the senators said, because the federal government has failed to secure the border.

This is disappointing. McCain and Kyl know better than that. Representing a border state, they know that there is no shortage of personnel or resources on the U.S.-Mexico border. There are more than 20,000 Border Patrol agents, according to the Homeland Security. Four thousand — or 20 percent — are in Arizona. The senators should also know that it's not wise to concentrate all your focus on the border and ignore what happens in the heartland or, in this case, even just the rest of Arizona. You can have all the Border Patrol agents and National Guard troops you want on the border and, if employers are still hiring illegal immigrants in Tucson, Phoenix, Flagstaff and other cities throughout the state, illegal immigration will continue. It would have been nice to see McCain and Kyl take a hard line against employers.

Be that as it may, even if the federal government were able to seal the Arizona-Mexico border, what good would that do? It might give politicians in Arizona something to crow about for a while. But, sooner or later, the problem would return. And in the meantime, all those illegal immigrants who are now entering the United States through Arizona would just go farther down the road. New Mexico, here they come.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

A key relationship with You, Lord, will bring pleasant surprises.

Don't let Iran be a nuclear power hile we wage war in Iraq and Afghanistan — nations that may well deserve our scorn, but countries that do not have the capacity to hurt us — the real enemy goes unchecked. Iran, a country run by an American-hating Holocaust denier, gets ever closer to having nuclear weapons while we essentially do nothing. Not only does

Iran's President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad pretty openly hate the United States, but in that country

he's considered a moderate. His boss, the actual leader of the country, Ali Hoseyni Khâmene'i, dislikes America so much that in comparison he makes Osama bin Laden look like he might soften up and come over to the White House for a beer. At least Iraq now has a government that we essentially installed as does Afghanistan. Admittedly, despite our helpful job recommendations, neither country's leader seems to actually like America, but it seems unlikely that either one would actually attack us. Afghanistan and Iraq likely harbor terrorists who have the ability to do harm to the United States. Unfortunately, full-scale invasions and open warfare are not only ineffective methods for rooting out these villains, our presence actually creates sympathy for the terrorists.

It's hard to bomb a secret Al Qaeda that moves every day and lacks a conventional military profile. Hiding from armies in the mountains of Afghanistan or the anonymous sands of Iraq has not proven to be difficult for terrorist leaders specifically because their lack of organization and traditional structures specifically makes them elusive.

Taking Iran out of the nuclear arms race would be relatively simple as its fairly hard to hide full-scale nuclear facilities from detection. Sure, a country might buy some black-market plutonium and build one bomb, but actually producing your own warheads requires factories that our satellites can find.

While, the administration of George W. Bush ignored Iran as a nuclear threat and President Barack Obama continues that policy, the Secretary of Defense, Robert Gates, has at least tried to sound the warning. In January, he circulated a memo that appeared in press accounts this week, which stated the follow-

"If Iran obtained the fissile material, designs and triggers needed for a nuclear weapon but did not assemble a bomb, Washington would be unprepared to counter the country's emergence as a 'virtual' nuclear weapon state."

President Obama must not let Iran become a nuclear power. If that means giving them a warning and then bombing any site suspected of being part of the country's nuclear program, then

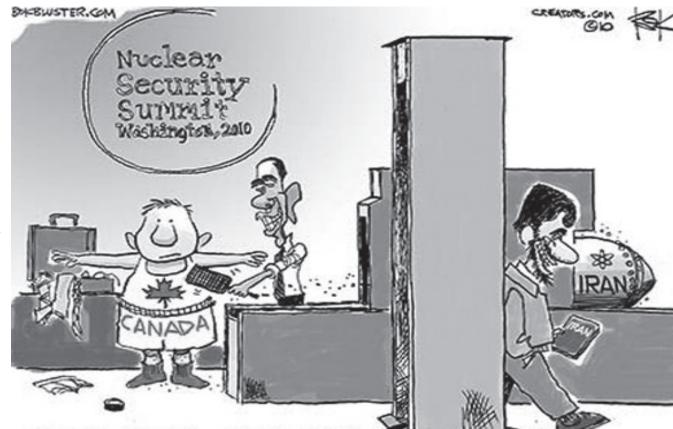

You cannot negotiate with reli gious fanatics and Ahmadinejad and are most Khâmene'I will not be reasonable in their handling of nuclear weapons. These are lunatics who mean to do us harm. They are not hiding their intent and they can't hide their weapons.

America must not strike maliciously or without warning, but if Iran refuses to abandon all efforts to obtain the ability to create nuclear weapons, then the U.S. military must take that option away.

This isn't a hidden terrorist that we can't find or shadowy cells plotting evil below the radar, these are full-fledged comic book-style super villains who mean to kills us all.

Fortunately, we already have the weapons to stop them from ever harming the United States. It's unclear though if we have the courage to do what must be done.

Give me that mountaintop view!

o you ever feel like your life is nothing but an uphill journey? I've found that when I make such a complaint it's because I'm more focused on the climb particularly each step I'm striving to make – rather than the broadening view surrounding me as I go up.

I had never stood on a mountaintop before my trip to Italy — much less stood on any snowcovered mountain. So when my friend suggested we take a gondola ride to the top of Italian

ANNETTE BRIDGES alp, Monte Baldo, I said yes with some trepidation.

Now I realize that I took the easy and fast way up. Most mountains don't have a way to comfortably ride to their top. So I suspect mountain climbing usually involves a slow walk and a steady pace with perhaps times where crawling is even appropriate. And undoubtedly, there would be many needs to take a break and rest along the way.

I can't help but think if I had walked my way to the top of this mountain, I might have been more prepared for how I felt when I got there.

"Breathtaking" is a good word, and it wasn't a physiological reaction to the high altitude. We trudged through the snow to Baldo's scenic point. I wanted to look down at times to make sure my feet were following the path, but it was almost impossible to not constantly look up and outward to the infinite horizon encompassing me.

I had to pause many times — Amen not for rest — but to take in a deep breath of appreciation for the beauty and observe the new vista I had come upon.

I had no idea there would be countless numbers of other mountaintops that would be capturing my gaze — I suspect only visible by air or on top of a neighboring mountaintop. I was surprised by the many hillside villages tucked discreetly away in between mountains. And I thought, "I never would have known they were there."

The butterflies and anxiety I felt before boarding the gondola left almost immediately as I stepped foot on the mountain. With every step, I gained an air of calm, confidence, composure, equanimity and self-assurance that I've never felt before.

I didn't need to ski or ride the snow mobile, although these would have been fun to learn and experience. It was enough — at least that day — to just be

Hawks, Midland split Saturday doubleheader

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

To call Saturday's doubleheader between Howard College and Midland College "wild" might be putting things mildly.

For more than seven hours, Howard and Midland took turns battering each other and, at the end, the difference between the two squads could have been measured in microns. Midland held off a Howard home run barrage to take the opener, 11-10, while Howard escaped with a 13-12 victory in the error-plagued night-

Lewis, Young lead Rangers to win

Lewis needed a couple of innings to figure out that he should throw more than just his fastball.

Lewis started doing a better job of mixing his pitches after giving up four runs in the first two innings, and the Texas Rangers went on to an 8-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Sunday.

Lewis (3-0) threw 50 pitches and allowed eight baserunners in the opening two innings before settling down, getting 16 consecutive outs from the second through

A mound visit from pitching coach Mike Maddux in the second helped convince Lewis to change his approach.

"I just kind of got out of rhythm," Lewis said. "I was using my fastball too much. (Maddux) said, 'Mix in your off-speed stuff. Don't get too comfortable with your fastball.'"

Lewis, who spent the last two seasons with Hiroshima of the ARLINGTON (AP) — Colby Japan's Central League, matched a career high with 10 strikeouts and allowed four runs and seven hits over 6 1-3 innings.

"Colby was outstanding," Rangers manager Ron Washington said. "He got off to a rough start, but he righted the ship. He was throwing his pitches a little too much over the plate. Then he got a feel for his breaking ball, and got the fastball down in the zone. He showed he can come out there and struggle, and still get it done."

Michael Young had three hits and drove in five runs, and David Murphy homered in support of

"We needed one of our guys in the middle of that lineup to come through, and Michael did it," Washington said. "I can't say enough about what he can do in crucial situations."

Tigers rookie Austin Jackson hit his first major league homer, leading off the game with a 410foot shot off Lewis' 2-0 pitch that sailed onto the grass hitter's background in center field.

Ramon Santiago followed with a single, and Santiago raced home on Johnny Damon's double that stretched his hitting streak to 12 games. Don Kelly's RBI single later in the first made it 3-0.

Murphy's first homer of a season, a two-run drive in the first, got the Rangers within a run, but the Tigers moved to a 4-2 lead in the second on Santiago's RBI

"After the first inning, I was like 'I've got to clean things up," Lewis said. "Our bullpen has been run out there a lot. But the guys stepped up huge coming back with two in the first after giving up three early."

Texas answered with a fourrun second as Tigers starter Rick Porcello (1-2) issued a bases-loaded walk to Elvis Andrus

Astros complete sweep of Pittsburgh

HOUSTON(AP)—The Houston Astros have gone from baseball's last winless team to one of its best.

Lance Berkman hit his first home run, Carlos Lee and Pedro Feliz drove in two runs apiece and the Astros completed a three-game sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates with a 10-3 victory on Sunday.

The Astros have won eight of 10 games after losing their first eight. A difficult early schedule was a big factor in the rough start — they faced San Francisco, Philadelphia and St. Louis in the first three series.

Houston's starting pitching has been reliable from the beginning, but the offense is producing now that Berkman is back after missing the first two weeks with a knee injury. The Astros averaged 1.75 runs in their first eight games, and 4.6 in their last 10.

"I think we have as good a team as anybody in the National League right now," Berkman said. "But you have to be sharp when you play those teams, or you're going to get beat. We weren't sharp and we got beat. Now, we're back together, everybody's here, everybody's healthy and we're play-

Charlie Morton (0-4) gave up five runs and five hits in three innings for the Pirates, who've lost six in a row after a 7-5 start.

Morton has allowed 24 earned runs in 13 1-3 innings this season, but the offense was also misfiring on Sunday. The Pirates had 14 hits and stranded nine runners.

"When you get down big, it emphasizes how tough it is to score runs," Pittsburgh manager John Russell said. "We did start to swing the bat well, and I hope we can build off that. Now, we need to be able to swing with guys in scoring position."

Garrett Jones, Ryan Doumit and Andy LaRoche singled in the second inning to give Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead. Myers then fanned Morton for his 1,000th career strike-

Spurs push Mavs to brink of elimination

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — If Spurs coach Gregg Popovich hasn't already done so, he may want to apologize for calling his role players "dogs."

Because they put the Dallas Mavericks on the brink of elimination.

Tim Duncan had a miserable 34th birthday and Manu Ginobili looked as bad at times as his bandaged-up nose. But George Hill scored 29 points and San Antonio beat the Mavs 92-89 on Sunday night to take a 3-1 lead in their first-round series.

Popovich called out his supporting cast after losing Game 1. But it was his Big Three who had little bark in Game 4.

The Spurs have won three straight since Popovich's tongue-lashing, and they've put the Mavs on the edge of their third first-round exit in four years.

Game 5 is Tuesday night in Dallas.

It could be a rough-and-tumble elimination

Tempers flared as the Mavs threw away a 14-point lead in the third quarter, none more so than when Eduardo Najera was ejected after hooking a hand around Ginobili's head and sending him belly flopping to the floor.

A livid Popovich leaped from his chair and began stomping toward the basket before being slowed down by his assistants. Minutes earlier, Richard Jefferson and Jason Terry had to be separated when words escalated in the third quarter. Just more fuel on an already intense Texas

Dallas might need to tap into that aggression to stay alive.

It was three years ago that the top-seeded Mavericks were shocked in the playoffs by eighth-seeded Golden State. Dallas is now in danger of getting ousted by the No. 7 Spurs.

Only eight teams have come back from being down 3-1 in a best-of-seven series.

The Mavs can no longer count on shutting down San Antonio's Big Three as enough. Hill was 11 of 16 from the floor, while Jefferson scored 15 points and Antonio McDyess had 10.

Duncan had four points and made just 1-of-9 shots — a roaring success for Dallas, considering Duncan scored at least 25 points in the first three games. Tony Parker scored just 10 points off the bench.

Wade scores 46, Heat stay alive

And he screamed.

terms," "In kid-friendly Wade would say later, "I was telling him he was hot."

That hand — that player had never been hotter in a postseason game, either. And that's why Miami's season isn't over.

Playing what might have been his final game in Miami, Wade scored 46 points, 30 in the second half — both franchise records — and the Heat beat the Boston Celtics 101-92 on Sunday in Game 4 of their Eastern Conference first-round series. He made 16-of-24 shots, 5 of 7 from 3-point range, and outscored the Celtics 19-15 in the fourth quarter.

"Phenomenal," Celtics coach Doc Rivers said.

"Greatness," offered Heat coach Erik Spoelstra.

Heat forward Quentin Richardson went even further, likening his teammate to a superhero.

"Sometimes, you know, he puts on the cape, man," Richardson said. "There's not a lot of things you can do when he's playing that way." Boston would concur.

The Celtics still lead the best-of-seven 3-1, and get a chance to close it out in Boston on Tuesday night. But their worst fear came true Sunday.

Miami has hope.

"They did what they were supposed to do, which is defend the home court," Celtics forward Kevin Garnett said. "And now we're thinking the same thing going back home."

Richardson scored 20 points and Michael Beasley added 15 for the Heat, who wasted an 18-point, first-half lead before digging deep to extend the Leg cramps kept Wade off the court for the deciding moment of Game 3, the jumper that Pierce hit at the buzzer to give the Celtics a 100-98 win. So he spent Saturday getting his body right, chugging fluids, jumping into the won 14 of the last 15 between cold tank, hanging out in the pool with his mother Jolinda, visiting from Chicago.

On Sunday, it showed, never more than down the stretch.

He shot 5 for 6 in the fourth quarter and made all four 3-pointers, all coming in a 5-minute stretch and the last putting Miami up 93-82 with 6:12 remaining.

"I just thought, time to be aggressive," Wade said. "Very aggressive. So I was shooting all those shots, no matter what was going to happen. And I started to make a couple, so I got hot at the right time. Just wanted to will my team to this victory."

The Celtics were 6-0 against Miami this season, and had the clubs since April 2007. And yes, Boston made a big run, getting within 96-92 on a free throw by Allen with 2:36

Then a funny thing hap-

Or, more precisely, three funny things. Not only did Allen — a 91 percent foul shooter this season — miss the second, he missed two more with 1:50 left, keeping it a two-possession game. And when Dorell Wright missed a jumper with 1:29 left, Beasley swooped in, got the rebound and scored, making it 98-92.

Exhale, Miami. The season will go until at least Tuesday.

The Astros loaded the bases with one out in the third. Bourn scored on a fielder's choice before Feliz drove a tworun single to center for a 5-1 lead. Feliz had five RBIs in the series.

Brian Bass relieved Morton for the Houston half of the fourth and walked Bourn and Jeff Keppinger with one out.

Pittsburgh's pitchers gave up eight walks.

Lee then found the gap with a liner to right-center. He slid into third, Bobby Crosby's relay throw skipped away from LaRoche and Lee was awarded home for an 8-1 lead.

The Pirates loaded the bases and added a run in the sixth, but Myers got Aki Iwamura on a groundout to end the threat.

Mills replaced Myers with Chris Sampson for the seventh. Myers threw 91 pitches and wasn't happy with the decision.

"I didn't feel like I was tired or anything like that," Myers said. "I wanted to stay in there, but it was probably a good time to get me a break there and not let me throw 100 pitches every time I go out there, and be fresh for the next

With the game out of hand, Mills wanted to get some of his relievers work.

"He goes, 'I'm a pitcher," 120-pitch Mills said. "I said, 'Well, thanks. We only need 90 today.' That didn't go over too well."

Houston scored two runs in the seventh off left-hander Brian Burres. Tommy Manzella drove in the first with a double to right and Burres yielded a basesloaded walk to Keppinger to make it 10-2.

Jeff Clement doubled and scored in the eighth against Tim Byrdak, the first run allowed by the Astros' bullpen in 12 1-3 innings.

NOTES: The Pirates have been outscored 55-9 during their six-game skid. ... Pence, Berkman and Manzella all accidentally threw their bats on swinging strikes. Pence also threw a bat

Pirates P Chris Jakubauskas was placed on the 15-day disabled list with a concussion and bruise after he was struck in the head by a line drive in Saturday's game. He was released from the hospital on Sunday. The Pirates recalled Burres and picked up Bass' contract from Triple-A Indianapolis before the game. The team also optioned right-hander Daniel Mc-Cutchen to Indianapolis and designated outfielder Brandon Jones for assignment to clear roster space for Bass.

BIRTH-

TODAY'S

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "What are astrological aspects, and how do work?"

An "aspect" is the relative mathematical angle between two planets. One theory is that when two heavenly bodies form specific angles to each other, their combined gravitational and electromagnetic fields yield predictable forces upon each other and upon Earth and, thus, upon the humans living here. There are four major aspects used in astrology: the conjunction, the trine, the opposition and the square. I will cover each of these major aspects separately throughout the week because each one has its own special qualities and functions. Not only do the planets make angles to each other as they travel across the sky day by day, but a snapshot of specific aspects were in place at the moment of your birth, which had an impact upon your personality. Think of it like a bottle of wine. Many factors determine the flavor and qualities of that wine: the richness of the soil, the ratio of sunshine to rain that year, etc. The same principle applies to people. The placement of the planets in relation to one another during the nine months of your fetal development had an affect on your position in the universe.

Annie's Mailbox ®

Dear Annie: Is it unusual for a 25-yearold to not know her sexual orientation?

In her senior year in high school, our daughter told us she thought she was gay.

She then had a relationship with another girl that didn't turn out well. When she was a college sophomore, she had a long-term relationship with a guy who treated her beautifully. It was the happiest we had ever seen her.

However, that relationship broke up, too, because he wasn't the right guy for her. (We agreed.)

Since then, she has dated men who have treated her poorly and women with whom haven't things

"clicked." She told me she is not opposed to dating men as long as they are decent guys. we will accept her for whoever she is. But tell me, Annie, isn't this kind of confusion unusual at this stage of the game? — Confused Parent Dear Confused: Not necessarily. There is often a lot of experimentation at this age, and it

If you are writing to us, it means you are getting ready to open up on the subject. Please don't be embarrassed to discuss it with the very people who can help you most.

And believe us, they've heard everything.

Dear Annie: Your response to "Frustrated in Pa." was not my favorite.

He said she was more interested in sex after a night out with the girls.

Along with other advice, you gave the impression that something else might be going on.

Assuming this woman is in her 40s, she is just like me. I, too, have a tendency to be more "vibrant" after being out with the girls.

Certainly a few drinks loosens anyone up, but the time away from dishes, laundry, kids, homework, bills, etc., along with time to be myself, makes me feel younger and sexier than anything.

It is sometimes hard to be in the mood at the end of a long day. "Frustrated" is probably tired and stressed.

To insinuate that she is doing more than decompressing offends me. Instead of blaming everything on menomaybe pause, should have suggested he talk to her honestly to see how he can help put her in that relaxed mood more often.— GladMvHubby

Understands

Dear Glad: We are all in favor of a girls' night out and understand how it can help relax an overworked, stressed-out

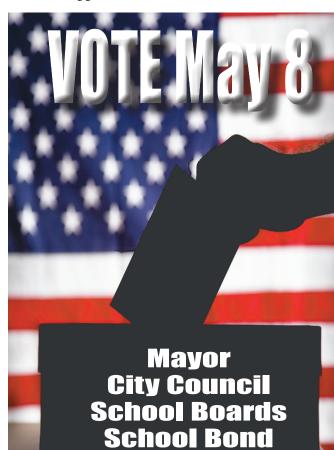

That wasn't his problem. It was that the only time they had sex was after such a night out, when the wife was completely drunk and her sexual appetite was voracious.

Your situation sounds normal. Hers does not.
