a special group of students.

"These will be for those students who are at risk of dropping out, who need individualized instruction. Students who are not successful in a regular school setting," explained Superintendent Steven Saldivar.

As explained by the superintendent, they may include students who, because of work or family issues, cannot attend classes during a normal school day.

"These are students who are probably never going to do well in a regular classroom environment. They don't just need help with math or something like that," Saldivar to accommodate a student's individual needs, whatever they may be.

"The key is being flexible," said Saldivar, who hopes to hire instructors - only a handful - specifically for the career academy.

Lady Buffs down Ralls

Rally from 2 runs down to claim playoff victory

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

SNYDER — Down by two runs in the playoffs against the No. 3 team in the state was not a position the Forsan Lady Buffaloes wanted to be in Thursday afternoon — so they changed the circumstances.

The Lady Buffs rallied from an early deficit to claim a 6-3 victory over the Ralls Lady Rabbits in the first game of their best-of-three regional quarterfinal softball playoff series Thursday at Western Texas Col-

Forsan (20-3) has not had to make a habit of coming from behind this season, but Coach Shanna Roberts was certainly glad to see the Lady Buffs pull off the rally, especially in such a pressure-packed situation as the playoffs.

"(Rall's) pretty tough," Roberts said. "We got down at the beginning of the game, but we were able to fight back. I told the girls that we have to expect games like this in the playoffs. But I'm proud of the girls. They came back well."

Pitching, defense lead Coahoma past Coleman

Herald Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — The Coahoma Bulldogettes didn't get a record number of hits Thursday against Coleman, but they certainly did the most with what they had.

The Bulldogettes managed just four hits off Coleman pitcher Rynn Harris, but that was enough as they fought their way to a 3-0 victory over the Bluekatts in the first game of their best-of-three Class 2A regional quaterfinal playoff series Thursday afternoon.

"We didn't play our best, especially offensively," Coahoma Coach Tracy Tadlock said. "Their pitcher ... had us a little off-balance; she threw pretty good. But (Coahoma pitcher) Heather Newton played well and we played good defense behind her .. (Coleman) never got a runner past second base."

While Coahoma didn't set any offensive records Thursday, neither did Coleman, managing just four hits off

Newton. And the Blukatts added to their own misfortunes by committing four errors

The Bulldogettes scored their first run in the second inning. Left fielder Jordan Martin led off the inning with a double, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a Lauren Ruiz groundout to make the score 1-0.

Three Coleman errors led to two Coahoma runs in the fifth inning.

Ruiz reached base on an error, then scored when Katie Dunn singled and went to second on an error. The third Coleman error — an errant pickoff throw — brought home Laurel Nix, who was pinch-running for Dunn.

That was more than enough run support for Newton, who stuck out 10 and walked none.

"We hit the ball hard (Thursday), but several of those were right at defenders," Tadlock said. "(Coleman's) errors were costly to them, but when Heather throws well and we play good defense behind her, we don't need a lot of runs to win"

Coleman's biggest threat to score came in the third, when the Bluekatts put runners on first and third with two outs. But Newton snagged an Ashley Grissom liner back up the middle to end the threat.

The two teams resume their series today at 5 p.m. at the San Angelo Central softball field. Game 3, if neccesary, will be at noon Saturday.

Hard work pays off for Montez

By STEVE REAGAN

STANTON — A strong work ethic has propelled Adam Montez to a spot in the University Interscholastic League Class 1A state track meet.

Montez, a junior at Stanton High School, will compete in the 400 meter run at the state meet, which begins today in Austin.

He qualified for the state meet by finishing second at regionals with a time of 52.1 seconds, which puts him in the back half of the state field, but his coach, Danny Arista, was quick to note that Montez ran a time of 50.5 seconds in the regional preliminaries, which would put him in the thick of the medal hunt.

Arista added he wouldn't be surprised if Montez returns from Austin with a high finish.

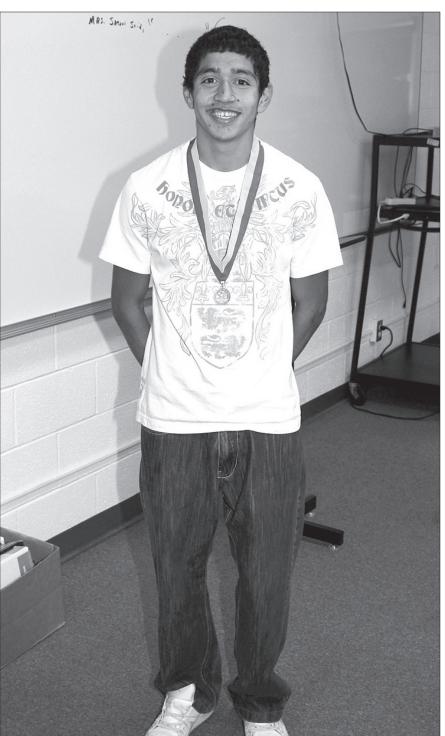

"His time is only seventh-best among state qualifiers in the 400, but that doesn't count him out," Arista said. "I thoroughly believe that, on any God-given day, anything can happen, especially at the state meet."

"He's just a tremendous kid," Arista said of Montez, who competed in the 400 and 800 runs as well as the 1,600 relay this spring. "He not only tries to motivate himself, but the other kids around him.

"And he has a good work ethic. He doesn't believe in anything but hard work," Arista added. "We have a motto on this team— 'Hard work beats talent when talent doesn't work hard'— and Adam lives by that motto. When

Astros sweep Cards behind Norris gem

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bud Norris has been so dazzling against the St. Louis Cardinals, Albert Pujols referred to him as Chuck Norris earlier this week.

It seemed more of a compliment than slip of the tongue, especially after the 25-year-old righty kicked sand in the Cardinals' faces once again. This time, he pitched the Houston Astros to a 4-1 win Thursday for a three-game sweep.

In 28 career innings against St. Louis, Norris is 4-0 and has allowed one earned run.

"I've been lucky enough to have four good starts against these guys and I just hope to keep going," Norris said. "I know what I'm capable of when I do it right."

As the game progressed, the Cardinals' Ryan Ludwick thought Norris' fastball gained a few mph.

"He's pitched lights out every time against us," Ludwick said. "All of a sudden it was 95 and 96 and you could see the confidence building."

Hunter Pence hit a threerun home run for Houston, which posted its first sweep in St. Louis since taking a three-game series in April 2004. The Cardinals have lost seven of nine.

Houston's Lance Berkman

extended his streak of reaching base to nine in a row with a double and two singles before grounding out in the eighth.

"I knew I hadn't made any outs but I didn't give it a whole lot of thought," Berkman said.

"I knew I would make another one eventually, so wasn't worried about it." "I was hitting .190 coming in so I expected at some point I was going to get some hits," he said.

Norris (2-4) struck out eight and walked none in eight innings. He gave up one run and six hits. Though he's 8-7 with a 5.10 ERA lifetime, Norris his ERA against St. Louis is 0.35.

"I think it's a very short time before we expect it from Bud all the time, with the stuff that he has," manager Brad Mills said. "He just threw the ball great."

Norris had lost three straight starts going into Thursday's game, allowing 16 earned runs in 13 2-3 innings. Norris thrived under a different catcher, Humberto Quintero.

The Astros scored all four runs in the third, perhaps taking advantage of Chris Carpenter's temper.

penter (4-1) and Carlos Lee had a staredown and then exchanged words after Lee popped out with two runners on base, leading to both benches and bullpens streaming on the field, although nothing got overheated.

Lee said he yelled in frustration but not at Carpenter, and noted that Carpenter had been vocal after Berkman's RBI single the previous at-

"I guess he's allowed to yell and say anything he wants because when Lance got that hit he was screaming and yelling and saying all kinds of stuff, Lee said.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, and the bidding has gone:

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands? 1. ♠ A853 ♥ 74 ♦ AKJ102 ♣ 82

1. Two diamonds. The choice lies between bidding two diamonds or two notrump. Having opened with minimum values, which have not grown at all with partner bidding suits you don't fit well, your limited strength and rebiddable diamond suit should be identified at this point. It's best to try to slow partner down a little, since up to this point he has no idea how strong or weak a hand you have

2. Three diamonds. Partner has made two forcing bids, so you must assume there's a good chance for game, and possibly even a slam. To inform partner of the unbalanced nature of your hand and at the same time let him know that your highcard values exceed those of a minimum opening bid, you jump to three diamonds. This should make it easier for partner to choose the best final 3. Five clubs. This dramatic leap to game constitutes a very strong slam try. It guarantees powerful trump support and, in conjunction with your two prior bids, identifies a void in hearts, or at most a singleton. Partner doesn't need much for a slam to mature. Indeed, if he has the spade and diamond aces plus good clubs, a grand slam is a virtual laydown.

It would be wrong to jump-raise to only four clubs. That's what you'd do if the king of clubs were the jack. Partner should credit you with a hand that looks just about like this one.

4. Three notrump. Having made two ambivalent bids so far, you now come out of your shell to let partner know that you have a relatively balanced distribution and values well above those of a minimum opening bid. This tells the story of your hand about as well as it can be told.

Once you make this bid, the rest is up to your partner. Ordinarily, he'll have no problem deciding what to do next. He may pass, elect to play the hand in a suit contract or possibly proceed toward a slam. In any case, he's the captain of the ship the rest of

Guerrero single lifts Rangers over A's

ARLINGTONa (AP) — After all the squawking about balking, Vladimir Guerrero left no doubt about the ending.

Guerrero lined a one-out, RBI single deep into the left-center field gap in the 12th inning Thursday to give Texas a 2-1 victory over the Oakland Athletics in a game in which one balk became a base hit and another led to the ejection of the Rangers catcher. "It's really a weird situation," said C.J. Wilson, the Rangers starter who had the balks. "We won the game and that's really the most important thing.'

Guerrero was 0 for 5 before his liner off closer Andrew Bailey (0-1) drove home Michael Young. Texas took two of the three in the series matching the AL West's top teams. Jake Fox had three hits for Oakland, including a single in the fourth on a pitch from Wilson that umpires had signaled was a balk. But Fox hit the ball, so he wound up with a base hit and Wilson wasn't charged with "Everybody moves up, the balk's ignored, and the runner can continue to try to advance and can be put out," umpire crew chief Tim Tschida said. "It's rare. It probably happens three, four times a year."

Wilson got called for another balk in the seventh, when he flinched his body while still on the rubber without delivering a pitch. Home plate umpire Bob ner Josh Donaldson from second to third base.

"He said he started and stopped," manager Ron Washington said. "That was Balkin' Bob back there. That's all I can tell you." Washington came out for an extended conversation with Davidson only after catcher Matt Treanor got ejected. Treanor was facing the mound when he got tossed for a conversation with the umpire that quickly escalated. "I said something about the balk initially and it developed into something more personal after that," Treanor said. "He was grilling me basically and it comes down to I was telling him I'm not disrespecting you the way you're disrespecting me, I guess in so many words. ... I didn't feel like I deserved to be tossed."

Tschida said Treanor was ejected for "excessive arguing" after being told to stop. Washington wasn't thrown out of the game.

Tschida said Treanor used profanity in disputing the call. "He balked. Matt's reaction immediately was he turned around," Tschida said. "He wouldn't let it go. Over the shoulder, he kept doing it, and that was it."

On the pitch before that, Cliff Pennington hit a fly down the right-field line that he and manager Bob Geren both thought was fair and would have scored Donaldson. Geren came out to question first base umpire Alfonso Marquez. Pennington eventually grounded out to end the inning.

Elvis Andrus led off the 12th walk and Josh Hamilton singled before Guerrero's winning hit.

Rangers reliever and the loser in the 13-inning series opener Tuesday, worked around a leadoff single in the 12th.

A balk was being discussed even before the game, when Geren questioned the umpires' postgame decision the previous night that resulted in a call against Athletics pitcher Gio Gonzalez. In Oakland's 10-1 loss Wednesday night, Gonzalez was initially charged with a throwing error after he awkwardly stepped off the rubber and threw wildly to the plate when Ian Kinsler suddenly broke from third base. About a half-hour after the game after viewing a replay, the umpires called the press box and said it was actually a balk.

After Fox's balky single in the fourth Thursday, Landon Powell walked to load the bases before Donaldson's single made it 1-all.

Andrus hit an RBI single in the third and extended his hitting streak to 13 games, the longest active in the majors.

Wilson allowed a run and four hits in seven innings. The lefthander's ERA dipped slightly from 1.51 to 1.48.

Oakland starter Ben Sheets pitched into the seventh, allowing a run and three singles with eight strikeouts. He had given up 17 runs over 7 1-3 innings his previous two starts on the road, when he became the first A's pitcher to give up at least eight earned runs with his fourth hit, but was then in consecutive starts. bat against Forsan Amanda starter Longorio. Melissa Martinez and Shelby Calderon opened the game with back-to-back singles, then advanced to second and third on Mari Castro's sacrifice bunt. A groundout by Allison Martinez scored Melissa Martinez and Calderon came home on a wild pitch.

After that shaky start, however, Longorio settled down, striking out eight and walking four while limiting the Lady

Rabbits to four hits.

Her teammates, meanwhile, took a couple of innings to figure out Ralls starter Calderon, but wasted little time after that turning the game around.

The Lady Buffs fiscratched the nally scoreboard in the third inning. Leadoff hitter Kevy O'Brien reached base when she was hit by a pitch, went to second on a sacrifice bunt from Miranda Park and scored on a single by Ambra Hill. When the hit rolled past Ralls centerfielder Desiree Sanchez and rolled to the wall, Hill easily circled the bases to score the tying run.

"There was no doubt about sending Ambra home," Roberts said. "She's really fast on the bases and if we can get her in scoring position, any hit is going score a run."

The Lady Buffs took the lead for good when Kelsey Jones scored from third base on a wild pitch in the third inning, then broke the game open with three runs in the fifth. They loaded the bases on a hit batsman, a single and an error, setting the stage for right fielder Brittney Roemer, who hit a Calderon pitch into the gap in right-center for a three-run triple.

"Brittney's been a consistent batter for us all year; she's probably been our third or fourthbest hitter all yaer," Roberts said. "We're pretty strong, top to bottom, in our lineup. You can't concentrate on stopping just one or two girls."

Longorio worked out of one last jam in the seventh, striking out Calderon with two outs and two runners on to end the game. The teams resume their series at 11 a.m. Saturday at Western Texas College. A third game, if necessary, will follow immediately afterward.

Corpus Christi Memorial Coliseum teardown starts

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A pick-a-brick offer in Corpus Christi is a way to get a free souvenir of a landmark structure.

Memorial Coliseum is being demol-The city has asked A&R Demolition to move piles of bricks, meant for disposal, to a parking lot for pickup by anyone who wants a piece of the decades-old venue. The city of Corpus Christi will keep some of the bricks, plus a memorial plaque that will be part of a new salute to veterans.

A&R project manager Vernon Carr says demolition is expected to be finished within 45 days. Architectural demolition of the walls should be complete by Saturday.

Memorial Coliseum, with capacity of more than 5,000, opened in 1954 as Corpus Christi's main event center. The larger American Bank Center opened in 2004. Redevelopment efforts for Memorial Coliseum failed.

Austin officials vote to boycott Arizona

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin City Council has voted to cut business and travel ties with Arizona to protest the state's new law targeting illegal immigrants.

A unanimous council vote adopted the resolution proposed by council member Mike Martinez. The Austin American-Statesman reports the resolution calls for an end to all city business travel to Arizona. Exceptions are travel for police investigations, providing humanitarian aid or to protect Austin residents health and

Lawsuit filed in Houston student beating incident

HOUSTON (AP) — The family of a 13-year-old whose alleged beating by a former charter school teacher was caught on a cell phone video filed a lawsuit Thursday against the teacher and the school.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of Isaiah Reagins by his mother, Alesha Johnson.

"By you putting your hands on my child, that's not punishment. I don't even beat on my son, so what makes you think you can?" Johnson said at a Thursday news conference after the lawsuit was filed. Science teacher Sheri Lynn Davis was fired Monday night from Jamie's House Charter School after video showing the alleged April 29 beating became public. Reagins allegedly suffered a black eye and other bruises in the incident.

"I'm sad because I didn't think she was going to hit me like that," Reagins said. Johnson said she has taken her son out of the school.

The Harris County Sheriff's Office is investigating the allegations against Davis.

Texas man accused of plane bomb threat

LUBBOCK (AP) — Federal officials say a contract employee at a Texas Panhandle airport has been indicted for allegedly threatening to place a bomb on a plane.

A release from the U.S. Attorneys Office in Dallas Thursday states that 20-year-old Johnathan Ivins was arrested late Wednesday at his Lubbock County home.

Ivins worked at Lubbock's Preston Smith International Airport.

The indictment returned Wednesday charges Ivins with single counts of imparting and conveying false information regarding the destruction of an aircraft, making a bomb threat and false information and hoaxes.

Information about whether Ivins had an attorney was not immediately available Thursday. He'll have his initial appearance Friday.

If convicted, Ivins faces up to 10 years in prison on the bomb threat.

Authorities: Pipe bomb found during drug raid

LUFKIN (AP) — Authorities say a pipe bomb has been destroyed after it was discovered during a drug raid in east Texas. Angelina County sheriff's Sgt. Allen Hill says the raid of a trailer home Thursday turned up the device in a brown paper sack in another trailer home on the property in Lufkin.

Hill says a bomb squad from the Bossier City, La., fire department was called in to destroy the pipe bomb. He said agents with the FBI and federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives also responded.

Hill told The Lufkin Daily News that the property owner was arrested after 27 marijuana plants and a half-pound of dried marijuana were found on the property.

Tough economy, more children in Texas foster care

AUSTIN (AP) — More children are ending up in foster care in Texas.

Department of Family and Protective Services Commissioner Anne Heiligenstein on Thursday told lawmakers that Texas will try to persuade more relatives of abused and neglected children to take the youngsters.

She says a federally backed program, starting Sept. 1, will pay relatives, who agree to be licensed as foster parents, to care for the youths. Child Protective Services spokesman Patrick Crimmins says Texas in January paid for foster care for 15,696 children. The state had budgeted for 14,586 youths. Child welfare authorities partly attribute the increase to families strained by the recession. Heiligenstein told the House Human Services Committee that about 500 Texas children have been in foster care for at least a decade.

Mother charged with capital murder in tot's death

EDINBURG (AP) — A grand jury indicted the 22-year-old mother of a slain toddler on capital murder and other charges Thursday, two days after her return from Mexico where authorities say she spent months on the run. Jamie Lee Rosales also was charged with two counts of injury to a child, prosecutors said. She was confined to the Hidalgo County jail without bond.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

May we trust in You, Lord, and let go of any grievances we may have with others.

Talking past each other

o you ever feel like you and your spouse are talking past each other? It's certainly easy to conclude that our politicians on the so-called "right" and "left" talk past each other constantly!

And there are times, I suspect, when parents and children may be guilty of the same. Since I can't do anything to change the behavior patterns of those I speak to, I can do something about how I listen and respond.

it, but I am humbly recognizing that I am the only place I can go to make a change. It's frustrating when one feels misunderstood.

And how can we be understood when no one is listening to what we're saying or our meaning is being misconstrued?

One thing is certain. If we continue to talk past each other, agreements will never be reached, good decisions will never be made and harmony and happiness will continue to elude

I'm the first to admit the challenge of understanding beyond my frame of reference and experience.

Empathy — with the attempt to put oneself in another's shoes — is a worthy effort but not one that is easy to genuinely accom-

Yet something is telling me that I must make a greater effort or at least want to make an effort, if ever I hope to have someone do the same for me. I think any change begins with a sincere desire. In fact, I believe if we have a sincere desire, anything is possible, doable and achievable.

I can see how my husband has talked past me. Usually, I'm so busy thinking he's not listening to me or not understanding me that I'm not listening or caring about what he has to say. So I find myself as guilty as I think

What a vicious cycle talking past each other can be! One could conclude that we are a bunch of slow learners. I think Jesus came to this conclusion once. I often chuckle to myself when I read in the Gospels where the disciples couldn't heal a child and so they brought him to Jesus for healing. And Jesus' first comment was, "How many times do I have to go over these things?" (Mark 9:19)

So we may have to repeat ourselves from time to time. We may have to rethink our word choice or use a different emphasis on select words to get our point across. So do it. We must do whatever it takes to understand and be understood. Let's not give up on each other!

There are lots of theories out about how repetition impacts or improves our memory, but I'm not convinced mere repetition alone is what it takes for us to accomplish better understanding. No. I think it has much more to do with our desire — our sincere desire — to listen and to understand others. This desire results in the kind of effort that leads to mutual and accurate understanding.

When we are tempted to raise our voice in an attempt to clarify our stance or walk away in dismay or disappointment, we would be wise to rethink these actions. I have found that the louder I speak, the more defensive or close-minded the person

I'm directing my remarks to

BIG SPRING HERALD Friday, May 14, 2010

And I have been guilty of walking away when feeling misunderstood. In fact, it's my most frequent response. But I'm finally admitting the futileness of such action. Of course there are times, when I'm feeling angry for example, that walking away and cooling off before giving a response may be a wise move.

I feel certain, though, that if I really want to be understood better, I need to make sure I'm doing my best to understand. Communication, like any other aspect of our lives, is best served when we have the Golden Rule as our guide. This means listening and speaking to others in the way we long for them to listen and speak to us.

I must say that when I was in Italy, I was impressed by the conversations I witnessed between Italian men and women. I was awed by the full attention they seem to give each other. It was as if nothing else was going on around them but what was being said to one another. Something told me that giving my full attention is a skill to be improved upon.

So I'm going on record here, my friends. My desire — my prayer — is that I will endeavor to better listen to and understand my husband's feelings, needs and viewpoints.

And my desire is to do the same with my daughter and other family members, friends and strangers, too.

And hopefully, talking past each other will become a thing of the past!

Proms now and then eekends in America are electric with excitement this time of year, and one city, where razzle is exceeded only by dazzle is Houston. It is the "prom time" of year.

Each crop of high school seniors, it seems. tries to outdo last year's grads, who, in turn, were determined to "out prom" the class before them.

My wife and I, humming "oh-to-be-young" songs, watched the banquet room comings and goings of young ladies in glitzy formals and young men is garish tuxedos. In love with life, they strolled about as if garbed in everyday clothes thrown on a few minutes earlier. What we were seeing "up close" from our hotel lobby chairs was the culmination of several weeks of "prepping" by the young ladies, what with hair extensions, nail treatments, cosmetic applications, eyelash enhancements, dress coordination and much else.

For the guys, of course, it was a different story. More likely they had picked up rented tuxedos a few hours earlier, then enlisted help for identification, then adornment, of the several tuxedo pieces.

We've paid for entertainment not nearly so good. What a pa-

Hearing a growing chorus of "oohs and ahhhs" outside, we ex-Amen ited the revolving doors to check it out. We joined a crowd of gawkers watching a half-dozen couples emerge from what may have been a one-of-a-kind stretch limousine.

It was several shades north of Mary Kay pink, and, as a Hyatt Regency parking attendant noted, "Shut down the lights and it'll glow in the dark."

Our engagement in Houston was for a sedate church dinner honoring widows and widowers.

Mostly grandparents, their doting modes kicked in, shared photos, exploits and accomplishments.

One grandmother at our table requested prayer, explaining that it was her grandson's 18th birthday and that she had entrusted him with her new Cadillac for the evening. Maybe it was the one we saw later in downtown Houston — the one with Christmas lights on each side, blinking "Seniors '10."

At least one "prom" more than 70 years ago was pablum compared to current extravaganzas. Norris Chambers, keen of memory at age 92, still writes delightful weekly commentaries in White Settlement' newspaper, The Grizzly Detail. (Check out his columns at norrisc.com.) "The Old-Timer," as he calls himself, vividly recalls his only "prom experience" 75 years ago, when he was a senior at Cross Cut High School in 1935. His class of a dozen seniors was invited to attend a "prom" planned for seniors of the dozen or so schools in Brown County. Dressed in their Sunday best, Chambers and his classmates boarded an old yellow school bus - the kind with seats running lengthwise — for the hour-long ride over 20 miles of dirt roads to Daniel Baker College's cavernous gymnasium in Brownwood. He claims that most of the 200 or so guests didn't know a prom from a parking meter. They were "wide-eyed" at a big lay-out of food and impressed that a live band was playing popular music, including a hit tune called "Wahoo.' Soon, a representative of the Presbyterian college welcomed the guests, his voice booming through a loud speaker. The youngsters were invited to form lines around the gymnasium and to parade "around and around" while enjoying the music. He added a solemn warning: "Under no circumstances will there be any dancing."

Chambers recalls that they were back on campus at a seemly hour and no one felt short-changed.

Prom experiences make headlines these days. Some kids leasing a limo for their prom at the Oklahoma Aquarium were short-changed. They would have settled for an old school bus for the homeward trip, since the limo was repossessed right after they exited the vehicle. Surely they'd have welcomed use of the hottest-of-hot pink limousines that would have been the talk of lac, with twinkling lights spelling out "Seniors, '10" on the sides, would have been fine, too.

The youth meet Wednesday evening at 6:30 for devotionals and a planning time for activities. They recently had a bake sale which raised around $400 for Relay For Life. In the future, a car wash is planned and also summer youth camps are right around the corner. They go to Fort Davis Youth Camp. It is located at Morgan Mill, north of Stephenville. The camp is in memory of four teens who were killed by drunk drivers. The land was donated by a Missionary, Don R. Davis, whose two children were killed in a wreck, and Pastor Don E. Davis, whose children were killed in a different wreck caused by adrunk driver. It is a free camp where all workers donate their time.

Every egg must hatch or rot

Hatch or rot – that is the choice. Renowned author, C.S. Lewis must have been a keen observer of life. "You cannot go on being a good egg forever," he wrote. "You must either hatch or rot.

I must admit that there have

been a few times in my life when rotting seemed like the better option. Rotting is easy. It requires no effort. The rotting option must be the default button on many of our mental computers. Do nothing and rot. What an easy, readily available choice.

However, the more difficult

However, the more difficult option, hatching, requires deliberate action. It necessitates going into our control panels and clicking on the hatching option just to get started. Hatching, whether it means giving birth to a child, a new idea, or a new endeavor, is difficult work that always produces incredible change. A broken egg can never be mended, but the embryo of potential that once lived inside the shell must escape in order to survive. It must struggle in a new, perhaps hostile, environment in order to thrive.

For most of us, hatching is a life-time process. It is more than breathing the outside air for the first time and growing feathers. Hatching is about the intellectual, emotional, and spiritual development that continues after physical growth has reached its peak. The acquisition of new knowledge, pursuits, and goals is evidence of hatching while rotting is marked by inactivity. Hatching flows naturally into new opportunities, responsibilities, and stages of life. Rotting stifles productivity and robs life of joy.

In the spiritual realm, hatching might be compared to discipleship. The apostle Paul admonishes us to continually grow in our understanding of the Scripture: "Be diligent to present yourself approved to God as a workman who does not need to be ashamed, handling accurately the word of truth" (2 Timothy 2: 15 NASR)

When we diligently peck away at the shell that encapsulates us, we eventually are set free, and God approves of our faithful efforts to grow more like Him. But when we choose to rot instead of hatch, we destroy the potential that God created in each of us. Whether we like it or not, we can't continue to be good eggs forever.

But who's counting?!

Dear Margo: I am a 65-year-old man who's enjoyed a great sex life, from the age of 16, with more than 400 women. I am writing you about the wives who write about their husbands having affairs. Y o u women just don't get it. We are doing what we were programmed to do. The primary function of the male of the species is to breed. I married my first wife when I was 24. Shortly after the wedding, her sister and two of her best friends came on to me. When I told my wife

Dear Pat: Assuming you are sober, let me just say this: You were not meant to populate the earth single-handedou've misunderstood something along the way. I feel certain I am not the only one to take issue with your "theory" of biology.

Also, your concentration on sex is such that you might want to look into finding a hobby. The one you have, I assure you, will not go on forever. — Margo, amusedly

High school can be rough, in more ways than one

Dear Margo: I'm a high-school senior, ready to graduate. I attend high school in Southern California, where I have been living these past four years, but I am from San Francisco.

I've tried to establish a place for myself, but every attempt I've made to connect has gone to waste. There are only 20 students in my graduating class, and I can honestly say that I have nothing to do with them except for a quick "hello" in the morn-

The friends I did have are no longer friends because they've proved to be untrustworthy and mean. I feel like a nomad. I don't belong anywhere not at school, not in this city and, quite honestly, not even in my hometown. I am floating around not subscribe to the word "loser," and you shouldn't, either. With no more details than what you wrote, it is entirely possible that you are sensitive and living with the fabled "mean girls" of highschool lore. Twenty is a very small class, and my guess is that most of these kids were together before high school. (And Southern California can be, shall we say, a curious place. Do not ask me how I know this.) I know some terrific

Perseverance, the key to success

Character traits such as dedication, commitment, patience, self-discipline and hard work bring positive results into our lives. These principles are known as "kingdom principles." One very powerful character trait is the principle of persever-

The ways of the universe yield to kingdom principles, but God does not shower His special blessings on those who refuse to work. There are times, in His grace, that

JERRIE STOCKS

He may give blessing of favor or finances, but the general rule is that He does not give His blessings to those who are not willing to

In Matthew 7:7 Jesus said, "Ask and it will be given to you, seek, and you shall find, knock, and it will be opened to you." Then He tells us to keep asking, keep seeking, and keep knocking or perse vering, and we will receive. Jesus did not waste words, nor did He engage in casual, empty conversation. He said what He meant, and meant what He said. Therefore, every verse in the Bible is true and the promises belong to us. They are guarantees for our lives, if we are careful to do what He says. When Jesus told His followers to "keep on asking," He meant that they were to be persistent in their endeavors. If we are persistent, if we keep asking, seeking and knocking as He instructed, the doors will eventually open, but we must be tenacious until they do. We see the power of perseverance in the story of the chicken and the egg. The baby chick, still living in its shell, finds itself in a safe environment. For a period of time the egg keeps him cozy and warm. Before long, however, he feels restricted in his daily growth and the egg is not as pleasant as it once was. Soon the little chick begins pecking at the shell. He works very hard, gaining strength hour after hour from this God-ordained struggle. Before long, he breaks through the shell. He is free and ready for a new life, but his birth did not come easy. If the chick had not persevered, he would have died in the shell. Likewise, if we try to short-circuit God's process and plan for our lives, we too are cutting off our life connection and the plan God has ordained for us. Giving up simply because the going gets hard should never be an option. Perseverance is the road that takes us to our desired goal.

There is something about life that says, "I must grow." Every human and animal on the planet has within them an inborn need to grow and develop their full potential. When that potential is not met, feelings of lack, insecurity and hopelessness result. God's plan is that we work and persevere until we reach our goals and develop our God-given gifts.

God spoke the worlds into existence and He has given us a degree of this same power for our daily lives. For instance, if we think failure and negative thoughts, we forecast our own negative future and transmit failure to ourselves. On the other hand, if we think positive, faith-filled thoughts, we set ourselves up for success.

The Apostle Paul said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengthens me." He went on to say, "We are more than conquerors through Him who loved us." Paul's own spirit was indomitable, his mind was full of positive thoughts and he spoke forth faith.

One cannot bake a cake by the same recipe used to grill a steak. It is just that true and simple. On the other hand, enthusiasm is contagious. If we persevere and do not give up, soon the mountain will move and we begin to reap the good we have sown. When we change our thinking to line up with God's way, we will see success. It may be small at first, but soon it will grow. Perseverance may sound hard; it may even sound impossible, but it offers tremendous rewards. God bless.
