With a little more than a month left to register to vote in the November election, local officials are urging area residents to double check their voter preparedness.

Ready to walk the walk? Alzheimer's Association needing volunteers

By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer

Officials with the local chapter of the Alzheimer's Association say the need for team and individual participants for the annual Memory Walk is still at a critical level, with just four teams currently signed up to take part in the fund-raiser.

Sign-ups are currently under way for the annual event, which will give area residents a chance to raise funds for the Alzheimer's Association while raising awareness of the debilitating disease within the community, according to Memory Walk Coordinator Rick Stovall.

What: Alzheimer's Association Memory Walk.

Where: Haynes Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park.

When: Sept. 18. Registration: 8:30 a.m.; Opening ceremony: 9 a.m.

"We want to continue to encourage the good citizens of Howard County to support the Memory Walk through donations, walking and spreading the word. We still desperately need team and individual participants," Stovall said. "People can sign up individually or as a team. The process is very simple. All they have to do is go to the Web site and set up their team's account. Once that's done, donors can actually make their contributions in person or online, which is very convenient for a lot of people.

"It's going to be a very good time for everyone. Anyone that would like to walk with us on that day is more than welcome to come out, whether they are raising funds or not. While raising money for the Alzheimer's Association is certainly a priority for us, the Memory Walk is about raising awareness."

Stovall said prospective teams and walkers can visit http://memorywalk2010.kintera.org/faf/home to get more information on the Memory Walk, which is slated for Sept. 18, or to sign up to participate.

"The day of the Memory Walk, we encourage people to bring their children but please be sure they are supervised and bring your dogs on a leash," Stovall said. "Also, we want to encourage everyone to get in touch with their elected officials to support legislation called 'The Alzheimer's Breakthrough Act of 2009 (S. 1492/H.R. 3286)' to increase funding for research and treatment of Alz-

News in brief

Obama presides over end of Irag combat mission, Mideast talks; more guarded hope than triumph

WASHINGTON (AP) — Straddling war and peace, President Barack Obama is about to formally end the divisive U.S. combat role in Iraq and restart talks between Israelis and Palestinians, a moment defined more by relief and hope than triumph.

On Tuesday night, Obama will tell the nation from the Oval Office that the U.S. role in Iraq has changed for good, with the remaining U.S. troops to play a supporting role to Iraqi forces. It will be a milestone with no celebration or banners in a still unresolved war, one that wages on years longer and at greater cost than most Americans ever imagined.

The next day, Obama will make his largest investment of political capital to date in the trying Mideast peace process. He will welcome Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas for individual talks and a joint dinner, the prelude to direct negotiations between the leaders on Thursday with Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton as host.

Put together, the events amount to what the White House considers to be the capping of Obama's initial phase of foreign policy in the region and the starting of another. Officials see a picture in which Iraq is taking on self-reliance, the Mideast process is showing life, the international sanctions against Iran are taking hold and the added military muscle Obama ordered in Afghanistan is in place. All are considered progress toward solutions requiring deep patience.

Yet there are no victories to declare, and weary Americans have seen turning points come and go. The risk for Obama comes in defining expectations on pursuits that can fall apart at any time, often over events outside his control.

Career prosecutor takes charge as DOJ's elite Public Integrity unit recovers from Stevens case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's Public Integrity Section has a storied 34-year history of pursuing corruption in government and safeguarding the public trust.

That trust was breached, however, when some of the unit's prosecutors failed to turn over evidence favorable to the defense in their high-profile criminal trial of Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who died earlier this month in a plane crash.

Now Jack Smith, a 41-year-old prosecutor with a love for courtroom work and an impressive record, has been brought in to restore the elite unit's credibility.

Before Stevens, Public Integrity's renown was built on large successes - like the prosecution of the Jack Abramoff lobbying scandal and convictions of federal and state judges, members of Congress and state legislators, military officers, federal lawmen and bureaucrats and their state counterparts over the years.

But its stumble — not disclosing exculpatory evidence as Supreme Court precedent requires — was equally large. It was so serious that Attorney General Eric Holder, one of Public Integrity's distinguished alums, stepped in and asked a federal judge to throw out Stevens' convictions.

Video shows trapped Chilean miners crying, but saying they are doing better

SAN JOSE MINE, Chile (AP) - A new video of 33 men trapped in a mine under Chile's Atacama Desert shows them sending greetings to their families, talking about how they are doing better since receiving food and breaking into tears as they talk about loved ones.

In the video released Sunday, the men are shirtless because of the heat in the mine and wearing what look like white surgical pants, special clothing sent down to help keep them drv.

Most are upbeat, expressing gratitude to their families and the rescuers for the support they are receiving via handwritten notes sent to them through three small bore holes. Authorities also send food, water, medicine and other goods to them through the three holes.

But when it comes time to speak about their wives and children, many of the men break down.

"I'm sending my greetings to Angelica. I love you so much, darling," says 30-year-old Osman Araya, as his voice chokes and he begins to cry. "Tell my mother, I love you guys so much. I'll never leave you, I will fight to the end to be with you."

Russian nursing home blaze kills 9

MOSCOW (AP) - A blaze that killed nine people at a Russian nursing home early Monday apparently started when an elderly resident doesed himself in gasoline and set himself on fire, investigators said.

Daria Korovina, a spokeswoman for the regional Emergencies Ministry, said two other people were injured in the fire at the facility in Vishny Volochek in the Tver region, about 200 kilometers (120 miles) north of Moscow. Some 480 people were evacuated, she said.

The prosecutor-general's Investigative Committee, Russia's top investigative body, said preliminary inspection showed that an 86-year-old resident of the facility committed suicide by self-immolation, starting a blaze spread through neighboring rooms, killing eight other people.

Also Monday, a fire of uncertain cause broke out in a wooden building that is part of a halfway-house complex for the mentally ill in the Ulyanovsk region, 500 kilometers (300 miles) southeast of Moscow, but there were no injuries, the Interfax news agency reported.

Hurricane Earl threatens north Caribbean, expected to gain force

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Hurricane Earl lashed northern Leeward Islands with heavy rain and strong winds Monday after strengthening into a Category 2 storm. Hotels were shut tightly overnight as tourists sought shelter inside their rooms.

The U.S. National Hurricane Center in Miami said Earl could become a major hurricane Monday night or early Tuesday.

"It is possible that Earl could become a Category 4 hurricane as we get into the middle to late portions of the week," hurricane center specialist Michael Brennan said.

Official: 2 of Alaska village's 4 officers fatally shot

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - A standoff was under way Sunday in a tiny southeast Alaska village after a man fatally shot two of the village's four full-time police officers the night before, then barricaded himself in his home, local officials said.

Hoonah police officers Tony Wallace and Matt Tokuoka died after the shooting late Saturday, said Bob Prunella, city administrator. He didn't know what led to the shooting but said it was witnessed by Wallace's mother, who was visiting from Florida, and Tokuoka's wife and children.

The suspect, 45-year-old John Marvin Jr., barricaded himself in his home, and Alaska State Troopers and other law enforcement agencies were at the scene, authorities said.

There was no sign of a quick end to the standoff, Prunella said Sunday evening. It was unclear how long Marvin had been inside the home.

"We'll be doing the mail-in ballots similar to the way we did them last year. Anyone who wants to vote by mail needs to call in and request their ballot, or send a written request to our office." According to Bloom, requests for a mail out ballot must include the voter's name, address of residence inside Howard County, the reason for their request and the address the ballot should be mailed to.

If the reason for requesting a mail out ballot is the voter will be out of the county during the election, Bloom said the ballot must be mailed to an address outside Howard County, as well as mailed back from outside the county. "We're hoping this will help our college students, military and voters temporarily work-

Howard County voters will have several local races to weigh in on, including the battle for the Precinct 2 seat on the county commissioners court. Republican nominee Donnie Baker face Democratic will nominee Jim Sinclair. Incumbent Jerry Kilgore lost the contest for the Republican party's nod in March. "This is a disease that will touch everyone's life at some point. A relative, a friend or you personally will develop this devastating disease. Please help us by joining the fight to find a cure.'

Alzheimer 's disease is a progressive brain disorder that gradually destroys a person's memory and ability to learn, reason, make judgments, communicate and carry out daily activities. As Alzheimer 's progresses, individuals may also experience changes in personality and behavior, such as anxiety, suspiciousness or agitation, as well as delusions or hallucinations.

According to information provided by the Alzheimer's Association, the number of people suffering from Alzheimer's disease and other types of dementias is expected to skyrocket in the coming years. Current estimates indicate more than 340,000 Texans already suffer from the disease, with numbers expected to go as high as 470,000 by 2025.

Nationwide, a staggering 5.3 million people already suffer from Alzheimer's disease, which is the seventh leading cause of death in the United States. More than $172 billion is being spent each year on treating and caring for Alzheimer's patients, with an estimated 10.9 million unpaid caregivers in America alone.

OTHER VIEWS

Nurses' primary responsibility is to the patients

nurse's primary job is: A) To take care of her patients? B) To protect her doctor? To most of us, the answer seems obvious. So we were pleased that two nurses, Anne Mitchell and Vickilyn Galle, won a settlement from Winkler County, Texas — the county that not only fired them after they blew the whistle on a questionable doctor but prosecuted them on criminal charges to boot.

In 2008, Mitchell and Galle began to voice concerns about a new hire, Dr. Rolando G. Arafiles Jr., to their superiors at Winkler County Memorial Hospital in Kermit. But nothing happened.

So last year, Mitchell and Galle quietly filed a complaint with the state medical board. Among other things, they alleged that Arafiles had failed to diagnose appendicitis; used an odd olive-oil solution to treat a resistant bacterial infection; and sutured a rubber scissor tip to a patient's finger.

Soon after the doctor was notified of the charges, Winkler County Sheriff Robert Roberts asked the board to send him a copy of the complaint. The board assumed he planned to investigate the doctor. Instead, Roberts — a golfing buddy of the doctor's — used it to identify the whistleblowers.

The small town's power structure rallied to Arafiles' defense. The hospital fired both nurses, claiming they'd violated patient privacy by making a confidential report to the state. The county attorney pressed felony charges.

Luckily, not all power lies in the hands of smalltown officials. Jurors acquitted Mitchell earlier this year — and hugged her, too. The county dropped the charges against Galle.

The Department of State Health Services fined the hospital $15,850 for firing the nurses and inadequately supervising the doctor. And the Texas Medical Board charged Arafiles with numerous violations. Given all that, it's no surprise that last week, Winkler County commissioners voted unanimously to settle the nurses' lawsuit. Considering the ugliness of the facts, $750,000 seems a bargain.

Leaving home for real or the past two weeks, I've been traveling across the country interviewing law students who have applied for jobs at my law firm. I talk to young people from New York who want to be in California, and to young people from California who want to be in New York. Some days, it seems like the only constant is that (almost) no one wants to be where they're from - and where their family is. When I was applying to college, my mother told me I could apply to any school within the Boston subway map. I stayed inside that circle for college and law school and, but for a few quick interludes in Washington, until I was pregnant with my daughter, 20 years ago. Since then. I've lived three thousand miles away from those familiar subways, in a city that is now my home.

SUSAN

When I ask the young people from California why they want to go to New York, and the ones from the east why they're determined to go west. I hear what you'd expect: new challenges, different weather, boyfriends, girlfriends, to make a name...

They laugh when I say, "But your poor mother." Occasional-ly, they suggest that their mothers should move, but most aren't serious about it.

Moving is easy, exciting, an adventure — when you're young. Later, not so much. I love Massachusetts, my old home. Sometimes, late at night, I even study the real estate ads in my old hometown. But it's not even a fantasy. My parents are both gone. The world I left doesn't exist anymore. Neither does the person I was.

The young people I talk to aren't just crisscrossing the country. Many have spent extended periods on the other side of the world. They expect to live many places in their lives, to hop on planes to live in places I won't ever see.

But what about your mother, I ask. They laugh.

I spend a lot of time thinking about this business of letting go — letting go of the children God gives to us for such a brief time before they go off on their own; letting go of old homes, old friends, old places and old dreams. From these students' perspective, it's all about more new and different, bigger and better. From mine, it sometimes seems like just the opposite.

I am less ambitious than I used to be. What I seek is not more, but grace. Not power, but serenity. Not the ability to hold on to what I cannot hold, but the peace to enjoy what I have and hold back the tears of loss.

I remember doing these same interviews as a student, certain that I knew where I was going and what I wanted; determined to get there faster, better, stronger; trying to persuade the old person on the other side of the desk that I was smarter and tougher and surer than the person who came before me and the one who would come after; certain that happiness was just a "callback" or an "offer" away.

Sometimes, these days, I want to reach across the table and tell them not to worry so much, not to give us power we really don't have, not to care so much about what we think of them. Really, we don't know so much. We look at transcripts, at numbers on a page, at who went to what school. It means something, but so much less than we pretend it does.

The truth is that it will all work out somehow — not necessarily the way we planned, not necessarily the way we choose, but its own way, some way. Play your cards as best you can, and enjoy the game. Wherever you go, there you are. And whatever you do, don't forget to call home.

For their part, the nurses say the case was never about the money, that they just want to move on with their lives. We hope that those lives include new nursing jobs. The world needs more nurses like them.

Coen is the 30-year-old editorin-chief of Jezebel, a popular blog geared to women 18 to 34. More than 200,000 readers visit the site each day. Count me as one of them. I outgrew its target audience some time ago, but the prose is crisp and the writers smart. I learn things.

CONNIE SCHULTZ over the top of her sundress. Her previously small waist was whittled to the size of a 10-yearold's.

Jezebel posted both photos with a damning critique, and its regular feature "Photoshop Of Horrors" was born. Since then, the website has harpooned a variety of magazines and clothing companies for altering alreadybeautiful women to look like space creatures' failed attempts to fool us into thinking they're human.

Coen's latest target is Madison magazine, which ran a digitally altered photo of actress Jennifer Aniston, who, like most women whose images were manipulated, was already plenty pretty. Just not perfect, as defined by a multibillion-dollar industry that wants every woman in America to believe her only hope for salvation lies in buying the endless line of clothes, makeup and ridiculous gadgets it exists to sell.

As long as fashion magazines alter women's images, Jezebel's Coen vows she will call them out one digitally distorted photo at a time.

"Remember that every day, a young woman somewhere sees one of these overly polished pictures for the first time ... and has no idea that they're not real,' she wrote earlier this week. "She may very well have no idea that most waists don't really bend without a roll of flesh, that a 40-year-old woman actually does have some wrinkles, that no mascara will make one's lashes magically long enough to tickle her eyebrows. What the girl does know is that the pictures show What Is Beautiful. She thinks they are reality. And maybe she doesn't have someone in her life to point out that this is complete and utter bull—. So we'll do that, and we'll do it over and over again just to makes sure that everyone knows what's up."

Coen has since posted the back-and-forth correspondence between Jezebel and Joan Cargill, who works for Management Artists and accused Jezebel of copyright infringement for posting the original photo of Aniston without permission.

Take it down, said Cargill. Nope, said Jezebel.

I called Cargill's office but was transferred to an unnamed male "I can't comment on that, as Ms. Cargill is out of the office," he said. "Good day." And then he hung up.

Coen says that her ultimate hope is that we start calling out this hypocrisy every time we see it. She is particularly adamant about the responsibility of my generation.

"I would say to older women, 'You have an obligation to point this out to girls," she said in a phone interview Tuesday. "Every time your daughter sees a woman's photo that you know isn't real, you can ask her, 'What's wrong with this picture?""

As a mother, I learned the propaganda kicks in early. I still remember the first time my daughter looked at herself in the mirror and said, "Mommy, this coat makes me look fat." She was 5.

Dear Annie: My wife and I have been together for 17 years — married for the past nine. This is a second marriage for both of us. We have no children together.

Things were good for the first several years, but then I became complacent and lost interest. Sex happened only on rare occasion.

We started doing things separately. My wife told me she loved me, but she'd met a man who made her feel good and wanted to be with him.

Annie, I knew she was unhappy with me, but I didn't want our marriage to end. So I gave my consent for her to spend more time with she said I should go out and meet someone.

Three weeks ago, my wife and her boyfriend went out of town for the weekend, and I decided to go for a few beers. I met "Nancy," and we really hit it off.

Being with her was exciting, and I felt alive for the first time in years.

Here's the problem: When I told my wife about Nancy, she went ballistic.

She broke down and said she is still in love with me, and the thought of my being with another woman is more than she can handle.

A's take series, cut Texas' lead to $7\frac{1}{2}$

won his third consecutive start and the Oakland Athletics cut their AL West deficit to  $7\frac{1}{2}$  games with an 8-2 victory Sunday, taking two of three in their series with the division-leading Texas Rangers.

Sports

Mark Ellis and Kevin Kouzmanoff homered for the A's off Colby Lewis (9-11), while Cliff Pennington snapped out of a 2-for-24 slide with two singles and a sacrifice squeeze bunt.

Gonzalez (12-8) left with a 7-2 lead after throwing 65 of his 95 pitches for strikes in six innings on another hot day in Texas. The left-hander is 7-1 with a 2.10 ERA in 10 day games this season.

Lewis missed on his eighth attempt to get his 10th victory, and six of the seven runs he gave up in 52-3 innings were earned.

It was the right-hander's shortest outing since pitching only five July 16

ARLINGTON (AP) — Gio Gonzalez at Boston when he got his ninth victory. Lewis is 0-6 since and Texas has scored only eight runs while he was on the mound in those eight games.

> There is only one more series between the AL West's top two teams the final five weeks of the regular season. That is a four-game set Sept. 23-26 at Oakland, which has an 8-7 series lead.

> Josh Hamilton drove in the only two runs for Texas, with a two-out bloop RBI single in the third and his 31st homer in the sixth. Hamilton has five homers his past 10 games and raised his majors-best batting average to .359.

> Hamilton's 403-foot blast off the facade of the second deck of seats in right field was the only homer allowed by Gonzalez his last seven starts. Gonzalez has given up only 11 homers over 167 innings this season.

Oakland went ahead to stay when

Ellis broke a 1-all tie with his third homer, a towering flyball that dropped just beyond the 14-foot wall in leftcenter field.

The A's scored twice in the fifth for a 4-1 lead after Lewis' throwing error on what should have been an inningending double play.

Lewis fielded Kurt Suzuki's comebacker, but threw the ball way wide of second base and into center. Pennington scored and Daric Barton moved from first to third before then scoring on an inning-ending double play.

First baseman Jorge Cantu snagged Jack Cust's hard grounder at the bag, wiping out the force at second. Suzuki got caught up between first and second and avoided being tagged long enough for Barton to score.

Kouzmanoff led off the sixth with his 12th homer, before Pennington had his squeeze bunt and Coco Crisp an RBI single to chase Lewis.

Oakland had the bases loaded with no outs in the third with is Nos. 2-4 hitters coming up, but managed only one run on Barton's sacrifice fly. In the bottom of the inning, Hamilton drove in Julio Borbon, who had an infield single and advanced on a sac bunt.

Notes: Oakland is 30-13 in day games, best in the majors. ... Texas plays its next 10 games on the road. ... The Rangers plan to activiate RF Nelson Cruz (right hamstring) from the disabled list before Monday night's game in Kansas City. He was 4 for 11 with a stolen base in three rehab games for Double-A Frisco. ... Rangers manager Ron Washington said every pitcher in the rotation will get an extra day off rest with the upcoming off day Thursday. That includes struggling Cliff Lee, who has pitched every fifth day for Texas since he was acquired July 9.

Cowboys' starters may play again in preseason

DALLAS (AP) — The pointments. Dallas Cowboys are running out of excuses for their sloppy preseason. They're also running out of time to clean things up.

So coach Wade Phillips is considering doing something he'd rather avoid: play his regulars in the exhibition finale Thursday night.

The Cowboys are expecting to be Super Bowl contenders, yet Tony Romo has led the starters to one touchdown in four games this summer and it came on a drive that began 8 yards from the end zone. In a 23-7 loss to the Houston Texans on Saturday night, the first-teamers turned the ball both times they were in scoring position. The defense got run over, too.

said he didn't see much emotion and intensity, either.

"I would hope we'd have some antidotes for some of these things," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said. "We've got to be ready to play. We can't afford any bad nights."

The Cowboys have a laundry list of explanations for how they've played in August: They aren't game-planning. They don't want to reveal too much of their playbook. Guys are worn out from the NFL's longest training camp. Five starters are out with injuries (most are expected back by the opener).

They've also talked about needing to show at least glimpses of being the club that gained the most yards in franchise history last season, and that hasn't happened vet.

Phillips seasons in Dallas, Phillips has never used his regulars in the final preseason game, instead taking a long look at guys fighting for backup jobs and roster spots.

> Then again, the Cowboys haven't been this concerned this late in the preseason. It's especially jarring for them considering that by playing the Hall of Fame game, they had an extra week of practice and an extra game.

"If we didn't have such a veteran team I'd be more concerned than I am," Jones said.

Working things out in practice sounds logical, but the schedule released a few days ago listed Tuesday as the only practice before facing Miami at home Thursday night.

"We're not ready for prime time yet," Phillips said. "If the players aren't ready to play for the first regular-season game, then I need to get them ready to play. ... If we see that things are correctable and we can correct them in practice, we'll do that. If we need more game time, then we'll just have to do it."

Offense and defense weren't the only disap-

"If you're resting on anything you did last year, then you're already behind," Romo said. "I don't think that's the case. I think our team needs to look at each other and just continue to improve and get better."

In his three previous for 44 yards.

If the starters play, receiver Dez Bryant might join them. He has recovered from a high ankle sprain, but the club wants to be cautious with its prized rookie and probably wouldn't risk using him with backups.

Maybe another passing threat would help Dallas' running game.

Dickey leads New York Mets past Astros for 5-1 victory, series win

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitching, hitting, running the bases — R.A. Dickey did it all for the New York Mets. The way their offense has sputtered this summer, he probably had to if he wanted a win.

Dickey flustered the Houston Astros with knuckleballs and foiled them with his bat, leading the Mets to a 5-1 victory on a crystal-clear Sunday at Citi Field.

"Incredible. He's going to go out and give you a quality start every time and that's what he's done," catcher Josh Thole said. "Unbelievable."

Thole homered and Dickey keyed a second-inning rally with a two-run single that helped New York end Bud Norris' four-game winning streak. The Mets took two of three from the Astros and haven't lost a series at home to Houston since 2002.

Luis Castillo added an RBI single and New York went 4-3 against the Astros the past two weeks in a season series marked by some strikingly inept offense on both sides.

The 35-year-old Dickey (9-5) yielded six hits in seven-plus innings, lowering his ERA to 2.57. He also had a pair of singles and scored once to aid his own cause.

"It seems like his knuckleball is getting better as the season goes along," Astros manager Brad Mills said.

Feeling fatigued, Dickey asked manager Jerry Manuel to let him face at least one batter in the eighth. The right-hander was pulled following Tommy Manzella's leadoff single and received a warm ovation from the crowd of 32,779.

"I think what's important is to learn from past experiences," Dickey said. "I just didn't want to jeopardize us by trying to be the hero."

Bobby Parnell induced a doubleplay grounder from No. 3 batter Hunter Pence, then gave up a single and a double before retiring Jason Michaels to end the inning.

Hisanori Takahashi worked a scoreless ninth.

"Every time I go out there I feel like I'm learning something new," Parnell said. "I love going out in the tight situations, getting the thrill of throwing in close games."

Houston had won six of seven and 11 of 16. The Astros finished 6-4 on this trip for their first winning road swing since June 29 to July 5, 2009.

A surprise bright spot for the Mets this season, Dickey is making a strong bid for a role in New York's rotation next year, too. He threw 75 of 108 pitches for strikes Sunday, again showing an uncanny ability to command his dancing knuckleball - perhaps the most difficult pitch to master.

"His knuckleball's been outstanding. It's breaking so late," Thole said. "His 84 (mph) on his heater makes it seem like it's about 120 (mph) after 15 knuckleballs in a row."

Norris (6-8) entered 4-0 with a 3.03 ERA in six starts since July 28, including a 3-2 victory over the Mets on Aug. 19 at home. Houston was unbeaten in those six games and the righthander had gone at least six innings in all of them, but New York snapped that string.

David Wright drew a leadoff walk in the second and went to third on Ike Davis' double. A walk to Thole loaded the bases before Luis Hernandez struck out.

That brought up Dickey, who came

your move. All you have to do is go for it. Whatever you throw your heart into, the rest of you will get into, as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). In order to, as they say, "work the room," it helps if you've been in the room before — maybe not that exact room, but one like it. Keep signing yourself up to be in this type of room, and you'll soon be an expert.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Here is something you should know before you start talking: You may offer a humble opinion, but it won't be heard as such - it will be adhered to as the official word from above.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Some of your relationships are riding the teeter-totter of life. You're up and the other person is down, or you're down and the other person is up. It allows you the chance to support and balance, which you do brilliantly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll be in the support position, and you won't mind it at all. In the words of the famous Scorpio cowboy Will Rogers, "We can't all be because heroes. somebody has to sit on the curb and clap when they go by."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Better to live your principles than to talk about them. If you're over 30, people might tolerate a few words of your philosophy. But if you're under 30, they will just find you annoying.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Never mind about trying to make your family listen to you. Also, those people at work may not "get it" no matter how many times you explain it. It's hard enough right now to assert power over your own self. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll be parceling out the jobs today. Someone has to build, and someone has to do the maintenance. Make sure that most of the bases are covered before you begin. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It may appear that everyone else is having more fun than you, when actuality this is probably not true. In any case, it wouldn't hurt to liven up your schedule with a few playful breaks. TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (August 30). You will be an unwitting trailblazer this year. As you find your own way through society, you will help others make their way. In September, you'll connect with someone who has a positive influence on your overall emotional state. There's a promotion in November and important travel in January. Taurus and Aquarius people adore vou. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 2, 33, 19 and 41.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "Holiday, I have had a horrible run of bad luck. First, things went weird on the job, and I got laid off. I'm not exactly fired, but I'm not on the schedule until further notice. Then my girlfriend moved out and took most of the stuff even stuff that wasn't hers. Then I took a job working on commission. I work really hard but earn less than minimum wage. I feel like I can't catch a break. Do vou think it's my chart? My girlfriend used to say that the position of Saturn was pulling me down. I'm a Leo."

Though Saturn does have a magnetic force field, and it is certainly associated with hard knocks, I do not believe that its pull is prompting your bad luck. Some astrologers would disagree. I'm openminded to a fault, and yet I simply cannot get my head around the concept that the magnetic pull of planets messes up our lives — or makes them better, for that matter. What I do think is that astrology offers a colorful array of mysticism, storytelling and human experience that we can use to look at ourselves and our lives from an objective and creative point of reference. More tomorrow about getting out of this pickle!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: In almost every movie she is in, Cameron Diaz is shown dancing. Perhaps that's because the directors know that the joyful personality of this Virgo superstar (with Mercury in show-stopping Leo) is infectious and the audience will want to dance along with her. Her wide, bright smile continues to light up the big screen as she plays opposite Tom Cruise in action-packed the "Knight and Day."

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

Let's say – - as an academic proposition and independent of the hand on view — that you require three tricks in a suit where dummy has J-x-x and you have A-K-9. There are only two sensible ways to play this combination. One is to cash the A-K, hoping to find either opponent with the singleton or dou-bleton queen. The other is to lead low from dummy, planning to finesse the nine. This method succeeds when your right-hand opponent has both the queen and ten.

Mathematically, it is far better to try the double-finesse. The A-K will drop the queen only once in every 10 attempts, while the double-finesse will succeed about one time in four.

All-time great Jean Besse of Switzerland was declarer in today's deal from a match against Italy many years ago. He finessed the opening club lead unsuccessfully, won East's club return with the ace and drew trumps. He then cashed the K-A of hearts and ruffed a heart

After ruffing a club in dummy, on which West showed out, Besse was confronted by the problem of making three diamond tricks with the combination discussed above.

He led the three of diamonds from dummy, but after East followed with the four, Besse played the A-K of diamonds, caught the queen and so made the slam.

Why did Besse abandon the normal percentage play, which he was certainly aware of? Because he realized that in this case finessing the nine could not win, and that his only real chance was to drop the doubleton queen.

Besse knew that East had started with exactly two spades and six clubs, plus at least three hearts, so East could not possibly have the Q-10-4 of diamonds (which would give him 14 cards). His only hope, therefore, was that East had started with the Q-4 of diamonds.

Garden City, Grady get wins in Week 0

Garden City 48 Calvert 46

HICO — Garden City was tested early and often in its opener against Calvert, the No. 1 Six-Man team in Division II.

But the defending Six-Man Division I state champions left Hico with a 48-46 win Saturday.

"It was a close game," head coach Vance Jones said. "We had a couple of turnovers on the first two drives and allowed them to get up 13-0. We just came right back. We had quite a battle."

If the Bearkats wanted a test early this season, they didn't have to look past Week 0. Jones said Calvert might have been the best defense the Bearkats faced in a few years.

Before Saturday's game, Jones said Calvert had the defense to match the talent on Garden City's offense.

While Josh Colunga has been key for the Bearkats' offense, Jones said receiver Brian Hirt was impressive and a big reason why Garden City climbed back into the game.

"He had a couple of really good catches and big runs," he said. "Josh was his usual steady self. I thought our line did an outstanding job against their big defensive guys. It was just a pretty good effort."

Last season, the Bearkats dropped the season opener on the way to a state championship and after a win like Saturday's, Jones said this year's team is miles away from the one last season. He said this team is more experienced and knows what to expect every week.

Jones said a few players are banged up after Saturday's tough game and the Bearkats will use this week to recoup and prepare for Sterling City.

Grady 50 Sanderson 8

MCCAMEY — Gradv had no problems in its season opener with a 50-8 drubbing of Sanderson on Saturday.

Head coach Brad Cox said he was impressed the Wildcats' efforts at a point in the season where coaches usually have more questions than answers.

"It was the first game so you never know what to expect," he said. "But the kids played good defense, they played extremely hard and gave great effort."

Bryley Pikerton had a solid game with seven carries for 115 yards. The Wildcats defense was stingy to go along with the offense's potency. Sanderson had 126 total yards.

Cox said the team's depth showed in Saturday's and that will be key to the Wildcats' success as the season rolls along.

"We thought we had 12 guys that could play and I think we kind of proved we have a real deep team," he said. "All 12 of them went in and did their job. It was a total team effort. They proved there are several of them that can go get the job done."

This week, Cox said he wants to focus on limiting the penalties. The Wildcats had seven penalties for 90 vards.

Their home opener against Meadow so he moved second baseman Geoff Blum a few steps to his left, opening a large patch of terrain right where the pitcher hit the ball.

"I got myself into a little jam there in that inning and it was really my fault. I moved Blum out of position," is on tap for Friday.
