An executive session to consider personnel matters tops the agenda for Howard County commissioners, as the court prepares to meet Monday morn-we'll just have to wait and see."

According to the meeting agenda, the personnel matter was placed on the agenda by County Judge Mark Barr, who declined to comment on the nature of the session at this time. "I really can't discuss the details beyond what's on the agenda," Barr said. "However, I imagine there will be some action taken on the matter once we come out of executive session, so

The remaining items on the agenda are mostly routine matters, as County Auditor Jackie Olson will present the commissioners with invoices and purchase requests, as well as present a monthly financial report. Olson is also slated to discuss budget amendments with the court.

County Treasurer Teresa Thomas will also meet with commissioners, giving the court reports on personnel considerations and payroll.

The Steers had to beat Snyder by at least 13 points for a playoff berth, but as the Tigers continued to roll, time started to run out on Big Spring's sea-

Snyder jumped on Big Spring early, courtesy of a 2-yard and 5-yard touchdown run from the Tigers' Brandon Davis. After the first Davis touchdown, on the first play of Big Spring's first offensive possession, Steers quarterback DaVonte Anderson fumbled the ball and Snyder returned it close to the goaline. That set up the 5-yard run from Davis and in an instant, Big Spring was down two scores. Looking at the statistics, Snyder's No. 1 offensive weapon in quarterback Kennan Ward didn't have much of an impact running the ball, something head coach Phillip Ritchey pointed out he does well. He had five carries for 52 yards, but he did complete 10-of-14 passes for 144 yards and a touchdown.

"Nobody's stopped him all year long," Ritchey said. "Even in the Brownwood game, they were in that game for a long time. They're going to be a hard team to stop in the playoffs. Forsan beats Hawley to end season

BY ADAM COLEMAN

FORSAN — Forsan finally got the win it was searching for after a few down weeks.

The Buffaloes finally got back to scoring a lot of point through the likes of Brendan Roman, Kolten Self and Ty Johnson after a 47-36 win over Hawley to end the season Friday.

The Buffs had taken losses to Idalou, Coahoma and Stanton before Friday's game.

"It was a good game," head coach Jason Phillips said. "We played really well both sides of the ball. Offensively, we were kind of back to our old self. De-

"It was just good to see those guys finally pull it back together and play as well as they did Friday." Jason Phillips, fensively, they stepped up when we needed them to and they had a lot of big plays as well. Even our special teams made a couple of key plays. (Hawley) onside kicked every single time but one and we were having to make plays on special teams."

Johnson was the key in Friday's win, accumulating 13 carries on 266 yards and three scores. Quarterback Foster Burchett was 5-of-13 for 126 yards and four touchdowns and two picks. Self had two catches for 75 yards and two scores. Roman had a touchdown catch as well.

Forsan head coach

This was nowhere to be found a few weeks ago in those losses to Idalou and Coahoma, where the Buffs were shut out. Against Stanton last week, Forsan started to get things back on track, but couldn't prevail.

they need."

Maybe Snyder's defense is what won the Tigers this game, however. Ritchey said the Tigers were small but quick on defense and they blitzed regularly, never giving the Steers a chance to get anything going on offense. The Steers were without a few starters on offense. Offensive linemen Tanner Henry was sick and center Julian Ramirez and running back Pete Chavarria didn't suit

At about the 10-minute mark in the second quarter, after a 32-yard touchdown run from Snyder's Xavier Malone to make it 21-0, Garrett Stuteville got snaps at quarterback. Ritchey said Anderson nicked his ankle a little bit, but at the same time, he wanted to give Stuteville some time in the game. Stuteville finished the game at quarterback in the fourth quarter.

"They're going to go far," Steers right guard Jackson Watkins said. "We should've tried to take care of business early on in the season, not having to wait until the last game, but it is what it is. We played hard."

Even with no playoffs, Ritchey and his players are still proud of their season.

The Steers (5-5, 2-2 in District 5-3A play) lost all six skill players on offense and a few key players on defense coming into this season, leaving some uncertainty as to what he was going to put on the field this fall. Considering the circumstances, he is proud his team had a shot at a playoff berth in the end.

"We didn't really know coming in," Ritchey said. "Any time you lose six skill guys, it's kind of scary. We had those linemen coming back and they did a great job really in my opinion leading the team. We had a really good running attack this year.

"We had a good team. I can't say that enough. Doesn't show that on the record, but I think you ask a lot of the coaches we play against what they thought about us, they'll tell you that we have a pretty good football team."

The Steers lose 28 seniors this year, including key players like Watkins, Dayvion Young, Chavarria and Ander-

Anderson's story this season was interesting. He emerged during two-a-days to take over the quarterback spot and give the Steers a dynamic they didn't have at that position last season.

He said he enjoyed his time with his fellow seniors.

"Dayvion, Jackson, all of them are great players," Anderson said. "All of them are great kids and students and great people to be around. I really enjoyed playing with them this year. They always stay positive. They always worked hard and came to practice every day. They led everyone on the team by example. They did things right."

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn has had "no contact whatsoever" with a man who allegedly tried to secure payment from Mississippi State during the recruitment of Tigers quarterback and Heisman Trophy hopeful Cam Newton, according to a person familiar with the situation.

Newton also said Friday he has done nothing wrong.

The NCAA is reviewing the recruitment of Newton, but Auburn has not received a letter of inquiry, the person told The Associated Press on Friday on condition of anonymity because the person was not authorized to comment publicly.

"Cam's eligibility has at no point been in jeopardy," the person said. Newton, who will start for the third-ranked Tigers against Chattanooga on Saturday, denied any wrongdoing.

"I didn't do anything wrong," Newton said Friday before stepping on the bus to the team hotel to Montgomery. "I'm blessed to be at Auburn right now and I'm sure the smoke will settle."

Asked about how tough the past two days had been, Newton said: "It's been all right. I've had worse days, but God continues to bless me throughout this process, me and my family and most importantly the team."

The person familiar with the situation said Auburn's compliance office has reviewed personal and church bank records of Newton's dad, Cecil, as well as phone and e-mail records of the Tigers' football staff, and is "extremely confident there was no wrongdoing" during the school's recruitment of the quarterback.

The person told AP that the Southeastern Conference informed Auburn months ago of the allegations reported by Mississippi State.

Price and Barnes

Leighanna Price and Ryan Barnes, both of Midland, exchanged marriage vows June 19, 2010. The ceremony took place at Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ with Mark McCormick, uncle of the bride, officiating.

Leighanna is the daughter of Steven and Jennifer Price of Big Spring and the granddaughter of Frank and Vola Moore of Stamford and Alvie Price and the late Patsy Price of Seagraves. Ryan is the son of Steven R. Barnes of Edmond, Okla., and Karol Barnes-Smith of Yukon, Okla., and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Barnes of Edmond, Okla., and the late Rose Jones and Andrew Evakich of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin side draped A-line with beaded lace bodice and tiered lace trim skirt with a chapel length train. The bouquet was made of yellow roses, pink roses and tiger lilies.

Holly Price of Big Spring attended her sister as maid of honor. Stephanie Hammonds of Lubbock attended as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Tiffany Stallard of Palm Harbor. Fla.; Raelynn Bean of Artesia, N.M.; Candice Brewer of Lubbock; and Kayla Darbyshire of Whiteface. Bridesmaids wore horizon blue strapless gowns and carried matching bouquets of the bride's.

Nathan Barnes, brother of the groom, of Oklahoma City, Okla., served asbestman.Groomsmen were Patrick Barnes and Shawn Barnes, the groom's brothers, of Oklahoma City, Matt Elder of Oklahoma City and Collin Caldwell of Clarksville, Tenn. Drew Barnes, cousin of the groom, served as candle lighter. Ushers were Jason Price, brother of the bride, of Albuquerque, N.M., and Kyle Barnes, cousin of the groom, of Oklahoma City.

A reception was held at The Courtyard in Big Spring. The bride's table featured a tiered cake made of different varieties of cookies topped with a single layer of chocolate cake adorned fresh flowers. The groom's table featured a chocolate cake with The University of Oklahoma Meteorology School insignia. A meal was followed by a night of dancing and karaoke.

The bride is a 1996 graduate of Big Spring High School. She earned a bachelor of arts in English from the University of Texas Permian Basin and a master of arts in mass communications

For America, this is a jobs strategy," the president said in a speech to the U.S.-India Business Council. The remarks also were aimed at U.S. voters who punished Democrats in the midterm elections in part over continued high unemployment.

Obama said it should be a "win-win" relationship with India, but in a nod to U.S. sensibilities he also acknowledged concerns in the U.S. about outsourcing.

"There still exists a caricature of India as a land of call centers," the president said.

He said people in India also are concerned about the impact of U.S. goods coming into their country, but contended that growing trade could only benefit both sides in the long run. He said he sees huge untapped potential in the relationship, noting that India doesn't even rank among America's top 10 trading

"There is no reason this nation can't be one of our top trading partners," the president

To that end he said the U.S. would seek to reform export controls that resulted from administrations' concerns about India's nuclear industry. The changes, which have been much sought-after in the business community, include relaxing controls on India's purchase of so-called "dual use" technologies that could be used for civil-more than 150 arrests as a crowd broke windows and knocked down fences, protesting a Los Angeles court decision to sentence a white former transit officer to the minimum term for fatally shooting an unarmed black man.

Friday night's unrest was the latest in the case against defendant Johannes Mehserle, which has provoked periodic racial strife in Oakland since he shot and killed Oscar Grant while trying to arrest him on an Oakland train platform nearly two years ago.

es, and removing a few of the last remaining Indian companies on a socalled "entities list" of groups that face restrictions on doing business in the U.S.

The commercial deals he announced include the purchase of 33 737s from Boeing by India's SpiceJet Airlines; the Indian military's plans to buy aircraft engines from General Electric; and preliminary agreement between Boeing and the Indian Air Force on the purchase of 10

For the most part, the deals were already pending, but the White House contends Obama's visit to India helped finalize them. Officials said the deals would support 53,670 U.S. jobs, but it was not clear how many, if any, new jobs would be created as a result.

Obama addressed the business leaders shortly after arriving in Mumbai, where his first stop was at the Taj Mahal hotel to commemorate the 2008 terror attacks that killed 166 people across the city. The president said he intended to send a signal by making Mumbai the first stop of the trip and by staying at the Taj, which was a target during the terror

"The United States and India stand united," he said. "We'll never forget."

But illustrating the difficulties of the U.S.-India relationship, Indian commentators quickly seized on the president's failure to mention Pakistan. Pakistan was the home of the 10 assailants, the place where they trained and

The protests erupted hours after Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Robert Perry sentenced Mehserle to a two-year prison sentence, provoking immediate anger from the victim's family and friends who demanded a much harsher punishment.

"Oh my!" Grant's mother Wanda Johnson shouted. She burst out of the courtroom saying, "He got nothing! He got nothing!"

Grant's uncle, Bobby Cephus Johnson, said outside court: "I do believe it's a racist criminal justice system." But he added that the family the base they used to launch the attack.

Pakistan is also India's archrival — but a linchpin for Washington and its allies in the war in Afghanistan.

After his remarks on the terror attacks, Obama visited a museum in a home where Mohandas Gandhi once lived.

The president is aware of sometimes being perceived as antibusiness in corporate America, and said after the elections that he wanted to change that perception. Much of Obama's day Saturday appeared geared toward that goal.

Before speaking to business leaders, he met separately with some of them, letting reporters look on as he tied his mission to U.S. job creation and proclaimed the importance of working with fast-growing economies.

The White House also arranged for four American chief executives who are in India for the occasion to brief reporters traveling with the president. They talked up the importance of India as

► Anniversary

Leon and Nelda Alfano

Leon and Nelda Alfano of Big Spring celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with family and friends during a reception held Friday, Nov. 5, 2010, at the Salvation Army Church.

The reception was hosted by their children, Ralph Alfano and Kenneth Alfano and wife, Audrey, all of Big Spring, and the late Pam Alfano Weatherby.

Leon Alfano was born in New Haven, Conn. He moved to Big Spring after he retired from the U.S. Air Force.

Nelda Cooley Alfano was born in Singer, La. She moved to Big Spring with her husband after he retired from the Air Force

The couple first met on a bind date while Leon was stationed in Louisiana. His roommate was dating Nelda's best friend.

The couple was married Nov. 5, 1960, in De-Quincy, La., by Brother Gillis.

The Alfanos have two grandchildren, Justin Weatherby of Stanton and Darren Weatherby, who is stationed in Germany and serving in Afghanistan with the U.S. Army; three step-grandchildren; two greatgrandchildren, Isabella and Alex Weatherby; and four step-greatgrandchildren.

Leon retired from the Air Force in 1978 at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene. He served 20 years in the Air Force and was stationed in Louisiana, Mississippi, France, Ohio, Maryland and at Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring.

After retiring from the Air Force, Leon worked for Jack Cathey Construction, Midland Memorial Hospital, Malone and Hogan Hospital, Big Spring State Hospital as an LVN and the Coronado Hills Apartments until 2004.

Nelda worked for Hall and Bennett Hospital for many years until it closed. She was manager of the Coronado Hills Apartments from 1990 to 2004 and was a door greeter at Walmart.

Leon's hobbies include flying and guns, while Nelda enjoys bingo, reading and quilting.

Our View

COFT: We all need to be participating ver wonder what it's like to be far from home and away from family and friends during the holidays? That's something military personnel serving in Iraq and Afghanistan will know all too

So the Christmas for our Troops Inc. gift drive, currently ongoing in Big Spring and other West Texas communities, is designed to send our military personnel a little bit of home for the holidays Debbie Burrow, local director for the drive, said the inspiration for the drive is simple to let troops serving in combat zones that the folks back home haven't forgotten them.

"A major part of it is just to let them know we're thinking about them," Burrow said.

Now in the sixth year for the drive, Burrow says they hope to send 2,500 boxes to troops this year. CFOT requests that individuals limit their donations to items that can be easily packed and shipped in 12-inch-by-12-inch-by-5.5-inch boxes. The size and quantity of each item should be appropriate for one individual to use or consume.

Among the requested donation items are:

 Over the counter medication such as Tylenol, Pepcid, Claritin, antibacterial ointment and soap, cough drops and eye drops.

· Toiletries such as deodorant, Kleenex, toothpaste and toothbrushes and Band-Aids.

 Food and powdered drink items, including cocoa, powdered Gatorade and lemonade, trail mix, sunflower seeds, nuts, beef jerky and Ra-

• Necessities and fun items such as socks, batteries, DVDs and CDs, magazines and paperbacks, Christmas cards, knit gloves and caps, toys and Hoppe's No. 9 gun solvent.

Cash donations will be accepted also.

Drop off items or cash donations at Hardison Appliance Service, Harris Lumber, Wells Fargo Bank, State National Bank, Walmart, Sears, St. Paul Lutheran Church, Bowlarama, Alive in Christ Lutheran church, First United Methodist Church, First Christian Church with an incident that occurred and Mr. Scrubs Oil Change.

For more information, contact Burrow at 267-7165 or 270-8554.

We encourage our readers to take part in this worthwhile project. There's no doubt in our minds that if any of us was serving over there, we'd be looking forward to a little bit of home coming our way at Christmas.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

When we study Your word, Lord, one heavenly thing will lead to another.

The wrath of Latino voters ou can threaten to deport some of our relatives or to limit our use of the Spanish language or to denv our vouths college educations or even to deny citizenship to some of our U.S.-born children, and we might let you get away with it especially if our so-called friends in the Democratic Party need to be taught a lesson for breaking so many promises. But if you buy

TV time to sell yourself as a fearmongering racist, that's where Latino voters draw the line. That's the lesson we immediately can learn from the way Latinos voted in Tuesday's midterm elections. We don't act. We react! And it takes a lot of abuse for us to do so. But when we finally do, it's with a vengeance!

That's the reason the overwhelming majority of Latinos voted to re-elect Sen. Harry Reid in Nevada. Many weren't really voting for the Senate majority leader, who has failed them in many ways. They were voting against his Republican challenger, Sharron Angle, who has offended them in many ways.

It was all about payback! Just a few weeks ago, many Nevada Latinos were expressing disappointment with Reid, whom many considered one of those Democrats who needed to be punished for failing to deliver comprehensive immigration reform when he controlled a supermajority in the Senate.

But then the Republicans selected Angle, a tea party demagogue who would say or do anything to get elected, and when she proceeded to mount one of the most vicious anti-Hispanic campaigns in U.S. history, Reid won the Latino vote by default — and it gave him the margin of victory on Election Day.

After apparently giving up on expectations to win any significant support from Latino voters several weeks ago, the Angle campaign went nuclear against Latinos. In a series of attack ads designed to portray Reid as "the best friend an illegal alien ever had," Angle used images of menacing brown-skinned actors crawling through fences to depict "illegals sneaking across our border, putting Americans' safety and jobs at risk." She used images of actors portraying Latino gang members and iuxtaposed them with images of threatened white families "struggling with the nation's highest unemployment." It's sad.

We live in the 21st century, a time when political fear-mongering is done through expensive TV spots, a time when politicians buy TV time just to show that they can be as racist as some of their potential supporters, a time of tea party wackiness, when some politicians feel they have a license to encourage discrimination against Latinos. We've come a long way, baby backward!

Lesson learned from Tuesday's elections: Only the wrath of Latino voters — when they no longer can withstand racist aggression — can set back some of these race-baiting politicians.

You would have to go back several decades to encounter the kind of outright racism and xenophobia-based politics that, unfortunately, enjoyed a revival in many midterm election races this year.

But clearly, Sharron Angle was the champ. She even won a "Baity," Salon's award for one of "the most egregiously race-baiting campaign ads of the year."

Clearly, Angle felt she had more to gain by appealing to Latino haters. And it backfired — big-time! Her racist TV spots — combined with a dirty Republican campaign to discourage Latino Democrats from voting — actually drove even more Latinos to the polls! Early exit polls showed that Hispanic voter participation in the Nevada senatorial race probably exceeded that state's Latino turnout in 2008.

A few weeks ago, no one could have predicted this.

In a state with the nation's worst unemployment, foreclosure and bankruptcy rates, even many Latinos were ready to vote for any other reasonable alternative, especially because Reid also failed to deliver on immigration.

But Angle was not a viable alternative — certainly not for the people she scapegoated to try to get elected.

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter is for the citizens of Big Spring who have children who attend schools in the Big Spring Independent School District. This letter is in connection Thursday, Oct. 28.

Imagine that you're at work and you receive a call that your 9-year-old child is walking near Pizza Inn because the secretary from their school did not take a proper message and sent the wrong kid on the bus.

As a parent you are under the impression that your child is safe while they are in school. This secretary obiviously does not know how to take a proper message in asking the parent who the child's teacher is or even grade of the child.

So how is a parent supposed to have confidence in the school when they send their child, who has never ridden a bus since he's been at the school for four years, to get on a bus to go home? My child has been walking home from school since kindergarden because his grandmother lives half a block from the school.

Now, a few years back, when my oldest child was in kindergarden, I got CPS called because my child had chocolate milk on his neck. But allow my 9-yearold child to walk down the busiest road in Big Spring, who do I call for the school's neglect for driver drop a child off that has never riden that bus before?

Amen me and my child? How does a bus

The cause is the bus driver was a substitute who should have been trained properly, rather than just leave a 9-year-old three miles away from home.

Obvisiously, the school secretary was not properly trained to take a message so that the right child got on the bus.

So, as parents, do have peace of mind that the proper protocol was taken so that this mistake does not happen again because the scenario could have been much worse. Luckily a friend of the family saw my child walking, otherwise, who knows what could have happened?

At our house we have had to tighten our belts. No doubt we will have to pull it even tighter until our country gets back on track.

becomes necessary to cut back on spending, it's not fair to be forced to pay the upkeep and gasoline for personal use city vehicles.

It's true! And it's easy to prove it. You can see city vehicles (sometimes with kids and all) shopping at Walmart, out for coffee, out to lunch and, in general, "doing errands."

I've even seen them on or about the first and 15th of the month at the bank.

Take notice yourself; it's not that hard to do. I have even seen fire trucks at various places when there is no need for it to be there. I can only assume it's for private

Try this: See how many city vehicles you notice that don't appear to be on official use and multiply that by however many days in a month. The city has to pick up the tab and guess who supports the city? You do.

Phillips said it hasn't necessarily been a season of turmoil for the Buffs. but getting a win to end the season after what they've been through the last three weeks is special. "We've had several injuries, some other things that went wrong for us this year," he said. "It was just good to see those guys finally pull it back together and play as well as they did Friday. Especially those seniors. It's good to send those guys out on a good note because they've been an important part of our program for a long time. It was good to get that going."

At 4-6, 2-4 in District 2-2A Division II play, the Buffs are not going to the playoffs. However, they did get two wins in district play in 2A after getting none in 1A last season. The other district win this year was a 35-34 win over Anson at home.

"This season was probably not as good as we wanted, but it was another step in the right direction," Phillips said. "I was proud of the guys for their effort this year."

Special to the Herald

Marcy House is inviting veterans to attend a free lunch and open house for veterans and their family members from noon to 1 p.m. Thursday.

The event, Marcy House officials said, is a small token of appreciation for veterans who served and sacrificed for the greater good of America.

Following lunch, veterans can tour Marcy House, a senior living community by Assisted Living Concepts Inc., to learn more about assisted living opportunities.

They will also have an opportunity to attend a presentation by Mark Tarplay, a local veteran of the Vietnam War and recipient of two Purple workers were released from their 69day captivity nearly half a mile below the Earth's surface. Innovative technologies, including precision drilling and customized sustenance delivery tubes were employed for one of the world's most difficult rescues. During the first 17 days, the miners had no contact with the outside world, and the shift foreman was praised for leading the group through this period with only a 48-hour emergency food supply.

According to Residence Director Janet Redden, Marcy House, located next door to Marcy Elementary at 2301 Wasson Road, promotes independence and individuality, while providing seniors with extra assistance in their daily routines.

In the end, the media described the extraordinary measures taken to survive as a feat of personal grit and collective cooperation in the hot, humid subterranean cavern.

While certainly not on the same scale as a life-ordeath situation, the stock market has persevered and has "grit it out" while showing remarkable resilience since the March 2009 lows. Innovative, creative Federal Reserve monetary policies, along with fiscal decisions, brought the U.S. economy and stock market back from the brink of disaster.

The result has been a remarkable performance for stocks during the past 20 months. There has been doubt and second-guessing throughout the market's climb, but to date it has survived every challenge, and Oct. 25, the Dow Jones Industrial Average reached the April 26, 2010, high once

Worries ranging from the European debt crisis to a double-dip recession, a long Japanese-style deflationary swoon, or — at the opposite end of the spectrum — a 1970s-style inflationary environment, all tested investors' perseverance through the advance. The most impressive display of resilience followed China's move to increase interest rates, coupled with more mortgage foreclosure woes in the banking sector. The initial result was a sharp plunge for stocks. However, this was followed by an equally sharp rise that erased the decline. Another positive was China's report that its third quarter gross domestic product grew by 9.6 percent, a signal that its economy is not slowing too quickly to cause a problem for the global economy. At the recent G-20 meetings, finance ministers and central bankers committed to avoiding a currency war in which countries race to lower their currency's value in an attempt to grow their way to prosperity with cheap products. Tensions had been increasing in recent weeks and the fear that countries would be unwilling to cooperate was becoming more of a stock market factor.

As the stories of the miners have drifted from newspapers' front pages, their hopes of movie and book deals and their brief period as international celebrities have given way to the realities of returning to lives in poverty-stricken neighborhoods. Many lack basic services and worry that things will not get any better. They also all face a search for work since the mine that employed them has filed for bankruptcy. There is hope that a special fund raised for their benefit will make it to the miners' pocketbooks and eventually their miraculous story will make it to the big screen.

Although stocks do not face these same dire consequences, there are still significant challenges before better times lie ahead.

With a short-term extended condition that makes stocks vulnerable to any or no news, more tests of the market's resilience and vulnerability are likely, especially given the background of a 13 percent rise in the S&P 500 since Aug. 31.

Sentiment polls are showing growing bullishness and shrinking bearishness. Earnings for the third quarter have been better than expected and the economy seems to be recovering from its soft patch of the past several months.

Beyond what we see as some rough going in the next few weeks, we expect the stock market to survive and thrive as 2011 approaches.

Oscar-nominated actress Jill Clayburgh dead

DERRIK J. LANG

AP Entertainment Writer

Jill Clayburgh, the sophisticated Hollywood and Broadway actress known for portrayals of empowered women in a career spanning five decades, highlighted by her Oscarnominated role of a divorcee exploring life after marriage in the 1978 film "An Unmarried Woman," has died. She was 66.

Clayburgh

Her husband, Tony Award-winning playwright David Rabe, said Clayburgh died Friday surrounded by her family at her home in Lakeville, Conn., after a 21-year battle with chronic lymphocytic leukemia. He said she dealt with the disease courageously, quietly and privately, "and made it into an opportunity for her children to grow and be hu-

Clayburgh, alongside such peers as Anne Bancroft, Shirley MacLaine and Jane Fonda, helped to usher in a new era for actresses in Hollywood by playing women who were confident and capable yet not completely flawless. Her dramatic turn as a divorcee exploring her sexuality after 16 years of marriage in "An Unmarried Woman" earned Clayburgh her first Oscar nod.

"There was practically nothing for women to do on the screen in the 1950s and 1960s," Clayburgh said in an interview with The Associated Press while promoting "An Unmarried Woman" in 1978. "Sure, Marilyn Monroe was great, but she had to play a one-sided character, a vulnerable sex object. It was a real fantasy."

The next year, Clayburgh was again nominated for an Academy Award for "Starting Over," a comedy about a divorced man, played by Burt Reynolds, who falls in love but can't get over his ex-wife. For the next 30 years, Clayburgh steadily appeared in films and on stage and television, often effortlessly moving between comedic and dramatic roles.

Besides appearing in such movies as "I'm Dancing As Fast As I Can." "Silver Streak" and "Running With Scissors." Clayburgh's Broadway credits included Noel Coward's "Design for Living," the original production of Tom Stoppard's "Jumpers," and the Tony Awardwinning musicals "Pippin" and "The Rothschilds."

Clayburgh's work stretched across TV. She had a recurring role on Fox's "Ally McBeal" as McBeal's mother and most recently played the matriarch of the spoiled Darling family on ABC's "Dirty Sexy Money."

She earned two Emmy nods: for best actress in 1975 for portraving a tell-it-like-itis prostitute in the ABC TV film "Hustling" and for her guest turn in 2005 as a vengeful plastic surgery patient on FX's "Nip/Tuck." Clayburgh came from a privileged New York family. Her father was vice president of two large companies, and her mother was a secretary for Broadway producer David Merrick. Her grandmother, Alma Clayburgh, was an opera singer and New York socialite.

Growing up in a such a rich cultural mix, she could easily have been overwhelmed. Instead, as she said in interviews, she asserted herself with willful and destructive behavior — so much so that her parents took her to a psychiatrist when she was 9.

She escaped into a fantasy world of her own devising. She was entranced by seeing Jean Arthur play "Peter Pan" on Broadway, and she and a school chum concocted their own dramatics every day at home. She became seriousminded at Sarah Lawrence College, concentrating on religion, philosophy and litera-

Clayburgh also took drama classes at Sarah Lawrence. She and her friend Robert De Niro acted in a film, "The Wedding Party," directed by a Sarah Lawrence graduate, Brian DePalma. She is survived by three children, including actress Lily Rabe, Michael Rabe and stepson Jason Rabe.

There will be no funeral, own personal poll. I entered into a conversation with someone about his opinion on the political races around the nation. After listening to his solicited conclusion about a few key issues regarding the economy, health care and in what direction this country was headed, I decided that a little more education was all he needed to complete his political science degree.

My comment to him was that I was tired of the usual rhetoric, the over promises and under deliverance.

I believe that a good debate about politics is food for thought. This metaphor presented a question that I asked this man. Does the metaphor "food for thought" have any significance for you? I explained that a metaphor is applying a word or phrase to something that it does not apply to literally.

Well, he said that the other day he was eating a banana and he thought how closely related are to a monkey. He asked me if that was a good metaphor.

I wrote all this down because the truth should never get in the way of a good story. My political survey was over, as we both moved up in the line waiting to cast our deciding votes.

North was very sympathetic. 'There wasn't a thing you could do finesses, East had a singleton diamond, and West also had to lead a diamond to beat you. I should have doubled four diamonds; they would have gone down three After North had finished, East pointed out that declarer could have made the contract by ducking the queen of diamonds at trick two. East said it was obvious from the bidding that the king would be trumped if it was played. If the king was not played, the defenders would then have found it impossible to stop the contract. If East discarded on the queen of diamonds and West led a third diamond East could ruff, but South would overruff, draw trumps and establish the clubs to bring home 10 tricks. His spade loser would eventually go on dummy's fourth club. Nor would it help East to trump the queen of diamonds, because declarer would then still have the king of diamonds in dummy on which to discard his queen of spades. South would lose only a diamond, a diamond ruff and a club on this line North had listened quietly to East's analysis, which was clearly correct. When East was through, North turned back to his partner and snapped, "Well, how come you didn't play it that way? Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

Saudi intelligence warned weeks ago that al-Qaida was plotting to put explosives on aircraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western officials are crediting a Saudi intelligence tip they received in early October, nearly three weeks before terrorists in Yemen managed to smuggle mail bombs onto airplanes, with heading off what could have been a series of catastrophic explosions aboard jetliners.

The Yemen-based al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula claimed responsibility Friday for sending the two bombs addressed to synagogues in the U.S. and intercepted in Dubai and Britain.

The group also said Friday it was responsible for the crash of a UPS cargo plane in Dubai in September and threatened even more attacks on passenger and cargo aircraft.

Investigators say they believe the UPS crash was an accident, not a terror attack, but they're not discounting the al-Qaida claim.

The Saudi tip contained no mention of cargo planes, or any details of the plot carried out last week, said U.S. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity to discuss classified matters. But they said it gave the U.S. and other Western officials enough of a warning to know what to look for when another Saudi tip arrived last week.

A CIA spokesman Friday night cited several allies that have provided key intelligence about terrorist activities.

Hospital overwhelmed after ferocious eruption at Indonesia's deadly volcano; death toll at 138

MOUNT MERAPI, Indonesia (AP) — The tiny hospital at the foot of Mount Merapi struggled Saturday to cope with victims brought in after the fiery volcano unleashed its most powerful eruption in a century — some with burns covering 95 percent of their body.

The only sign of life in one man, who's eyes were milky gray in color and never blinked, was the shallow rising and falling of his chest. Others, their lungs choked with abrasive volcanic ash, struggled to breathe.

Indonesia's most volatile mountain unleashed a surge of searing gas, rocks and debris Friday that raced down its slopes at highway speeds, torching houses and trees and incinerating villagers caught in its path.

It continued to rumble and groan Saturday, at times spitting gray clouds of ash and gas up to five miles (eight kilometers) into the air, dusting windshields, rooftops and leaves on trees hundreds of miles (kilometers) away Saturday.

Malaysia Airlines says it is temporarily canceling flights to Indonesia's capital following the eruption of the country's most volatile volcano.

The carrier made the announcement in a written statement Saturday. Singapore Airlines made a similar announcement.

With more than 90 people killed, many of them after succumbing to their injuries, Friday was Merapi's deadliest day in decades, but Sigit Priohutomo, who works at Sardjito hospital, predicted the toll would rise.

Tea party candidates complicated GOP's math - and hopes - in the Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tea party-backed candidates proved both a help and a hindrance to Republicans in the midterm elections, injecting enthusiasm into campaigns around the country but losing Senate seats held by Democrats in Delaware, Colorado and Nevada that the GOP once had big hopes of capturing.

Republican leaders and strategists are muttering that the same tea party activists who elevated speaker-to-be John Boehner and Republicans to power in the House simultaneously hobbled the GOP's outside shot of taking control of the Senate. Tea partiers largely spurned establishment candidates in the GOP primaries and helped nominate Christine O'Donnell in Delaware, Sharron Angle in Nevada and Ken Buck in Colorado.

All three lost on Tuesday.

"You let the voters decide," the nominees, Republican National Committee chairman Michael Steele said Friday. "It's a risk. Voting is a risk."

Republicans won Senate races in Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. That put them within three seats of a 50-50 split in the upper chamber. Vice President Joe Biden would have broken the tie and allowed Democrats to retain their majority.

Pope heads to liberal Spain to press conservative agenda; gay kiss-in awaits in Barcelona

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Benedict XVI begins a pilgrimage to Spain on Saturday to visit two of Christianity's most spectacular sites, fulfilling a long-held personal wish while pressing his bid to revive the faith in a once-staunchly Catholic country that is now among Europe's most liberal.

Benedict arrives first in Santiago de Compostela, Spain, a medieval and present-day pilgrimage site whose ornate cathedral is said to hold the remains of St. James the Apostle.

He wraps it up on the other side of the country in Barcelona, where he'll dedicate the famous albeit unfinished Sagrada Familia church — and face a gay "kiss-in" expected to draw thousands.

With such opposition palpable, it's no coincidence that Spain's Socialist Prime Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero will only see Benedict as he's leaving on Sunday night. Laws under Zapatero's watch allowing gay marriage, fast-track divorce and easier abortions have deeply angered the Vatican.

In Zapatero's place, Spain's royal family will take care of the protocol meeting and greeting functions during the two-day visit.

Bush book tour to include Lauer, Winfrey, Leno, Limbaugh and Hannity

NEW YORK (AP) — The world will soon be hearing a lot from former President George W. Bush.

After relative silence since leaving office in 2009, Bush will be on the air throughout next week and beyond in promotion of his memoir, "Decision Points," which comes out Tuesday. Along with previously announced TV appearances with Matt Lauer and with Oprah Winfrey, Bush will speak with Jay Leno on the "Tonight" show, have radio interviews on the programs of conservative commentators Rush Limbaugh and Sean Hannity and make several TV appearances on the Fox News Channel, the hosts including Hannity, Bill O'Reilly and Greta Van Susteran.

The schedule was announced Saturday by spokesman David Drake of Crown Publishers, an imprint of Random House, Inc.

Bush will also meet with Candy Crowley on CNN and appear on "CBS Sunday Morning" with Jim Axelrod. Besides his taped interview with Lauer airing on NBC on Monday night, Bush will speak live with Lauer on the "Today" show on Wednesday morning. Among his print interviews: a cover story for the magazine of AARP, which represents millions of people 50 and older.

The 64-year-old former president will not be out there alone. His parents, former President George H.W. Bush and former first lady Barbara Bush, also will appear on Winfrey's show. His wife, former first lady Laura Bush, will join him on "CBS This Morning." Jeb Bush, the former Florida governor, will be with his brother on CNN.

Tomas downgraded from hurricane to tropical storm after battering seaside towns in Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Hurricane Tomas was downgraded to a tropical storm early Saturday as it passed over the Turks and Caicos Islands, losing steam a day after battering seaside towns in Haiti.

Tropical storm warnings were in effect for Haiti, the northern coast of the Dominican Republic, the southeastern Bahamas, and the Turks and Caicos Islands, although the warnings for Haiti and the Dominican Republic were likely to be downgraded later Saturday morning, the National Hurricane Center in Miami reported. On Friday, panicked residents fled a coastal city in Haiti that had been slammed twice already this decade by killer floods. The hurricane spared most earthquake-refugee camps in the capital but battered a seaside town to the west that was nearly destroyed by January's earthquake. Coming ashore at Haiti's far southwestern edge, Tomas slammed the coastline with 85-mph (135-kilometer) winds and killed at least four people with storm surge and rains. It then flooded camps harboring earthquake refugees, turning some into squalid islands in Leogane, a town west of the capital that lost 90 percent of its buildings and thousands of people in the Jan. 12 quake. Two people were missing in the city.

Tomas turned streets of the capital, Port-au-Prince, into canals of flowing garbage. The storm largely spared the city's vast homeless encampments, however, allaying fears that an estimated 1.3 million displaced people would suffer from high winds and rain on hillsides and in parks and streets.

Officials: Suspect lived unnoticed after 'death'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) After the skeletal remains of a slain Las Vegas girl were found in the woods of central Louisiana, the investigation led authorities to a startling conclusion: The man suspected of kidnapping her supposed to have died 16 years earlier.

As federal and state investigators mount a nationwide manhunt Steven Thomas Sanders, they are still trying to piece together how a man who abandoned his family in 1987 and was declared dead in 1994 lived unnoticed for years. Even though authorities arrested him on multiple charges during that time, they never realized he had been declared dead.

Sanders' relatives in Louisiana haven't heard from him in years, said Toney Edwards, an investigator for the Catahoula Parish Sheriff's Department.

"He dropped out of his life, but maintained record criminal throughout that time," Edwards said.

A federal warrant was issued Thursday accusing Sanders of kidnapping 12-year-old Lexis Roberts, whose skeleton was found by hunters early last month. Her 31-year-old mother, Suellen Roberts, is missing. Officials say she is not a suspect in her daughters death — and they hope she has not met with foul play.

"We still consider her a missing person," Edwards said.

A few details about Sanders' movements are beginning to emerge. Investigators know he lived in several states, including Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Georgia and Nevada. Sanders worked as a laborer, a welder and a scrap metal collector, but left little record behind, Edwards said. He lived under his own name but avoided putting that name down in writing, investigators

"He didn't have utilities turned on in his name, didn't have credit cards, didn't sign up for stuff," Edwards said. "He was out of general society."

The last time Sanders' family saw him was in June 1987. His wife, Candice Sanders, divorced him the next year, claiming she was in poverty and was apparently hoping to collect benefits to support their three children.

She was granted a divorce in February 1988 "on the statutory grounds of habitual, cruel and inhuman treatment," according to a divorce decree obtained by The Associated Press. The divorce records said the couple married in Feb. 2, 1979, and lived together until June 28, 1987.

Sanders' parents, brother and ex-wife petitioned a Mississippi court in July 1994 to have him declared dead, according to court records obtained by The Mississippi officials would not release a copy of Sanders' death certificate, citing privacy issues.

There is no requirement to report a death to the Social Security Administration, Wesley Davis, a spokesman for the agency.

"We're concerned with benefits received illegally," Davis said. "A younger person would probably not be receiving benefits so if he kept paying to that account it would not attract attention.'

Despite the Mississippi death certificate, Sanders was able to move about easily, said FBI agent Robert King.

"There's no national death database," King said. "He could have established a new identity or maybe just stuck to the old one and still slipped through the cracks."

Sanders used Tom and Steve as first names over the years, and the nickname "Spider," investigators said.

He did collect a string of arrests during the period, Edwards said.

According to records obtained by the Associated Press, his arrests included possession of drug paraphernalia and a number of traffic and motor vehicle incidents, all in Tennessee. He was sentenced to two years in Georgia for simple battery. State and federal authorities said some of the charges involved minors, but they refused to elaborate.

Although suspects are supposed to be fingerprinted when arrested and the prints submitted to the FBI national database, the practice is not always followed, said Ronnie Jones, a professor of criminal justice at Southeastern Louisiana University, and consultant to law enforcement agencies.

In many places, he said, "you can just sign for a misdemeanor arrest and not be taken to jail. And if it's a relatively minor offense sometimes the practice is allowed to slide.'

In Nevada, Sanders met Suellen Roberts

tary ability."

and her daughter Lexis a few months ago, Robert's grandmother told investigators. The trio was in Williams and Flagstaff Ariz., and the Grand Canyon National Park over the Labor Day weekend, according to the Coconino County Sheriff's Office. Hunters found Lexis' remains in the deep woods of Catahoula Parish in early October. There was evidence she had been shot.

"From the beginning we thought it must have been a local person because it was such a remote area," Edwards said.

Investigators got a break when a Catahoula woman called to tell them of a missing Las Vegas woman and her daughter, Edwards said. "She said the man they were with was from Louisiana."

Before he was declared dead Sanders had spent a lot of time in Louisiana, Edwards said, including time in Catahoula Parish.

Officials said security cameras showed Sanders buying ammunition on Sept. 3 at a Wal-Mart in Las Vegas. The bullets he bought were consistent with the weapon used to kill Lexis, police Sanders, who had long white hair and a white beard, cut his hair short and dyed it black and shaved his beard before he left Las Vegas, Edwards said.

"We're hoping somebody will recognize him sooner or later," Edwards said. "He's going to have to eat, find a way to pay for things."

President Barack Obama, meanwhile, has pledged to push the Senate to repeal the policy in the lame duck session before a new Congress is sworn in.

The policy was lifted for eight days last month after Phillips ruled that it violates the civil rights of gay Americans and issued an injunction barring the Pentagon from applying it. The Obama administration appealed and asked the appeals court to reinstate the ban until it could hear arguments on the broader constitutional issues next year.

"It is unfortunate the Obama Justice Department has forced the Log Cabin Republicans to go to the Supreme Court," R. Clarke Cooper, the group's executive director, said. In their filing Friday, Log Cabin's lawyers disputed that the military would be harmed if the policy were suspended immediately. Phillips' order "does not order the military to redesign its barracks, to retool its pay scales or benefits, to reordain its chaplains, to rewrite already extensive anti-harassment 'dignity and respect'" rules, or anything else," they said. "The district

Alaska robber who crashed get-away bike sentenced

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — An Alaska man has been sentenced to prison for robbing a bank and fleeing the scene on a bicycle, which he then crashed into a police car.

Christopher Todd Mayer of Anchorage was sentenced Friday to 6 1/2 years in federal prison.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Kyle French says the 47-year-old man robbed a Wells Fargo branch bank in Anchorage on May 27 and took $1,731.

Mayer was arrested a short distance from the bank after speeding away on a bike.

Police say Mayer crashed his bike into a patrol car, slid across the hood and took off running. He was detained half a block away about five minutes after the robbery.

Cops: Fla. woman tried to sell grandson for $30k

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Florida woman and her boyfriend have been charged with trying to sell her infant grandson for $30,000.

Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents arrested 45-year-old Patty Bigbee and 42-year-old Lawrence Works on Friday in Daytona Beach after they met with an agent posing as a buyer. Both were charged with illegal sale or surrender of a child, and Bigbee was also charged with communication fraud.

FDLE agent Wayne Ivey said an investigation began last month after an informant told authorities the woman was trying to sell the baby. Authorities say the woman originally wanted $75,000 but was talked down to $30,000.

The child's mother is currently incarcerated on unrelated charges.

The infant has been turned over to child welfare

Authorities said they didn't know if Bigbee or Works had an attorney.

Harrah's settles with bystanders in casino brawl

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Harrah's Laughlin has settled with five bystanders for injuries suffered when a deadly brawl broke out in 2002 between rival biker gangs during a motorcycle rally at the southern Nevada casino-hotel.

The settlement comes two days after a civil court jury found the casino liable for damages.

Brent Bryson, the attorney for the bystanders, told the Las Vegas Review-Journal on Friday that the settlement includes monetary damages, but he didn't sav how much.

Bryson says Harrah's Laughlin officials knew trouble was brewing but did nothing to stop Hell's Angels and Mongols motorcycle gang members from clashing on the casino floor.

Three people were killed and more than a dozen were hurt during the shoot-out.

Murder charge in Wash. state barbell beating

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A man accused of beating his landlady with a barbell and running over her with a van has been charged with murder in Tacoma, Wash.

The News Tribune reports a not guilty plea was entered Thursday on behalf of 32-year-old Ivan Lee Pinto. He's jailed on $1 million bail.

The Pierce County medical examiner's office has identified the woman who was killed as 60-year-old Janice Gallaher of Tenino.

Deputies arrested Pinto on Wednesday near Roy after he reported the death. He told them the woman struck him first during an argument.

An autopsy found the victim had been hit multiple times with a blunt object, but the fatal skull fracture was caused by being run over by a vehi-

Annie's Mailbox •: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: My wife I have been and cheated on me, SO we went for counseling. roward tne end of our six weeks of counseling, I caught her in bed with the Other Man.

She begged for forgiveness, and we are getting now counseling through our pastor. The man with whom she had the affair continues to call her on daily basis. Sometimes they talk for up to an hour. She told me he tried to commit suicide and she feels obligated to speak with him as a friend. I don't feel right about this and have told her so. She claims angrily that Ι am being controlling and possessive, and that I invade her privacy. Both counselors have advised her to end all ties with this man. Am I right to think she should no longer talk with him, or am I being jealous and possessive? -- Need Help

Dear Need Help: Your wife must stop all contact with this man immediately if she expects to save her marriage. By staying in touch with him, she is continuing to cheat on you emotionally. It's time to put your foot down. You are not being "jealous and possessive." She is being disingenuous and pulling the wool over your eyes. Don't let her get away with it.

Dear Annie: I live in married for five years a small town. A friend three of mine introduced me husband have informed children. Recently, she to his friend "Joe." We me that I have to vacate something in confidence.

Joe told a friend, who told his girlfriend, and she has a big mouth. Ι broke up with Joe

because he betrayed my trust. But I know the will rumor spread quickly. It will hurt my family, and I take full responsibility, but what should I do? -- Wish I Lived Somewhere Else

Dear Wish: Tell your family what happened so they are prepared, and also apologize to them for telling Joe something so confidential. You will weather this storm, and then it will pass. Hopefully, you will have learned a painful lesson about trust.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Needing Advice," whose married boss is having an affair with a co-worker. As a recently wronged "boss's wife," I think should tell the wife what's going on.

After my chemotherapy treatment, my husband began an affair with an employee. She came on him, to expressing concern for his role as a caregiver. This woman is married with three children. No one told me about the affair -not even her husband, who was desperate to t.net, stop it.

Now she and my talked a lot my house, and I have for about a nowhere to go. She month, and intends to stay married I told him for the sake of her children, but doesn't want me living in the house with my husband. She also doesn't want to give him time to see whether we can work things out. Instead, she says she will expose the affair and disgrace him. And she threatens to commit suicide if he even so much as looks at me.

> I wish someone had told me about their affair. I beg anyone who knows of such a situation to let the wronged spouse know immediately. They will appreciate it. Wronged

Dear Wronged: An employee owes loyalty to her boss. If he is misbehaving, she can discuss it with him or even quit, but telling his wife is above her grade. Your pay husband is involved with a woman who sounds unbalanced, but he is permitting it to continue. A man who truly wants a chance to reconcile will find a way. Your husband sounds like a prize jerk. We hope you have good legal counsel.

Dear Readers: Don't forget to set your clocks third back one hour and replace the batteries in your smoke alarms.

Breathe easy

It's never too late to break the smoking habit

The average adult takes 15 to 20 breaths a minute – more than 20,000 breaths per day, according to the American Lung Association. Healthy lungs are important to deliver clean air to our bodies' organs and tissues, which convert oxygen into fuel Kuprlanowicz to support vital body functions. When a smoker lights up, it affects not only the health of the lungs, but also all the body structures that depend

on the lungs for oxygen. Smoking is the leading cause of preventable disease and death, claiming the lives of more than 443,000 adults in America each year – along with an estimated 50,000 deaths from secondhand smoke exposure. And it's no surprise, considering that cigarette smoke contains more than 4,800 chemicals – at least 250 of which are known to be harmful and more than 50 that are proven to cause cancer.

In addition to lung cancer, smoking can lead to a variety of respiratory complications and chronic diseases that can affect your quality of life and shorten it, as well. A smoker's lifespan is about 14 years shorter than a non-smoker's. The list of smokingrelated diseases is considerable: asthma, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, coronary heart disease, stroke, pneumonia, peripheral artery disease and a wide variety of cancers - not only oral and throat, but also cancers of the bladder, stomach, cervix, kidneys and pancreas. Smokers also suffer from other conditions, including slowhealing wounds, infertility, and peptic ulcer disease. More than 8 million people in the U.S. have at least one serious illness caused by smoking.

The good news: it's never too late to quit. Smokers can gain health benefits by giving up the habit - whether you're an occasional smoker or have a lifelong, pack-aday habit (see related sidebar). In addition to lowering your risk of cancer, emphysema, COPD, stroke and heart attack, quitting also decreases your likelihood of cataracts and premature skin wrinkling. Other benefits include more energy, better sleep, improved sense of smell and taste, and healthier skin.

Kicking the habit isn't easy – but there are many resources to help. Smokers who don't want to quit cold turkey have many options: counseling, over-the-counter or prescription medications and nicotine replacement products, such as nicotine gum, inhalers, nasal sprays or a patch. If you're trying to quit or you're a former smoker, it's important to know the symptoms of respiratory problems, and get checked out by your doctor. A persistent cough, shortness of breath or wheezing may warrant a lung function test to screen for exposure to contaminants or possible lung diseases. These tests will measure your lung capacity, strength and efficiency. A common test is called a spirometry test, which records the amount and rate of air that you breathe in and out over a period of time.

Consider kicking the habit this month during the Great American Smokeout on November 18th. To learn more benefits of quitting smoking, visit www.smmccares.com and click on "Health Resources" and "Interactive Tools," to test your knowledge with our Cost of Smoking Calculator, Emphysema Quiz or Cancer Warning Signs Quiz. If you're concerned about your respiratory health, talk with your doctor about simple screening tests to get an accurate picture of your lungs.

These days, one in six Americans has a hearing loss equal to that of placing a finger in one or both ears, according to a recent Johns Hopkins University study. That's double previous estimates, with the problem growing faster among adults. of whom listen to their iPods and MP3 players with small earbuds worn within the ear and the volume cranked up way too loud.

It's a combination of the baby boomer generation and the iPod generation. For some it's too late, because loud noises have permanently destroyed sensory cells vital to hearing. Moreover, by age 55 hearing generally decreases. 30 percent of people age 70 and older have some degree of hearing loss although not necessarily enough to require hearing aids. The best way to know if you have a hearing loss is to have your hearing checked by an audiologist or hearing instrument dispenser at least one time per year. You may find that you just have earwax accumulated in your ear, or you may find that you could benefit from the use of hearing aids. A hearing loss is far more noticeable than a hearing aid. To learn more about these types of products, call Livingston Hearing Aid Centers. In Big Spring, 211 Johnson Street; 1-888-667-0711.

Did You Know? The right lung is slightly larger than the left lung. The surface area of your lungs is about the same size as a tennis court. A sneeze travels faster than a cough: 60 versus 100 miles per hour. A person at rest breaths about 15 times per minute, or 17,000 times a day and more than 6 billion breaths per year.

Keep Big Spring Beautiful

JoAnn Staulcup, KBSB president, presided at the Nov. 1 meeting of Keep Big Spring Beautiful held in the Cactus Room of the Howard College Student Union Building. She called on Kathryn Wiseman for the invocation. After minutes and financial were approve, the group was reminded to the Nov. 13 E-waste Day. Citizens are to take E-waste to the city landfill. KBSB can now recycle television sets in this manner and is partnering with Odessa and Midland in disposal of these items. Pat Simmons and Staulcup have put together guidelines for a number of local awards KBSB will be giving in the future. These include the Presidential Award, the Founders' Award and the Business/ Church Partner Award. Katie Shaw of the Howard College Recycle Group announced a plan to put bins on the campus to encourage recycling. KBSB will assist the group financially for two months to get the effort up and going and will include the use of Perez Recycling Co. Gloria McDonald suggested KBSB look into reusable bags with the organization's logo as a means of advertising.

A nominating committee, consisting of Chad Averette, Janice Bishop and Simmons, was appointed to select possible officers for 2011.

Janell Davis reported on the Midland training session. Five members attended and KBSB had the largest group attending. Jan Foresyth noted, following Davis saying she'd learned from the Midland Keep Texas Beautiful executive officer that garden tours are a possible fund-raiser, that such tours were previously held in Big Spring.

KBSB's next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 6 at Howard College.

'Lunch and Learn' set Nov. 16 at SWCID

Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and Howard College SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf invite businesses and their employees to a "Lunch and Learn" luncheon.
