Officials say more than 9,000 people have visited the 14th annual Comanche Trail Festival of Lights since it opened its holiday run Dec. 15. Long-time event director Pat Simmons said 9,560 people from 20 states have visited the attraction. The festival, which continues nightly through Dec. 31 at Comanche Trail Park, is free to the public, although donations will be accepted. Visitors are asked to enter the park at the Whipkey Drive entrance off Highway 87.

Grisly discovery

Possible portion of human skull found in northern Howard County

By THOMAS JENKINS
 Staff Writer
 Officials with the Howard County Sheriff's Office are investigating the discovery of what may be part of a human skull Monday morning in the northern part of the county. According to Sheriff Stan Parker, his office received a tip regarding the item around 11 a.m. Monday, but declined to go into detail as to the location of the find.

"All I can say right now is it was found at a location in northern Howard County," Parker said.

"It appears to be a piece of a human skull, but it will have to be sent to a specialist before we'll know for sure. Right now we're working with the Justice of the Peace office to decide where it needs to be sent."

Parker also declined to discuss the details of the call his office received regarding the discovery.

"It's an open investigation, at we're currently at a point where I can't release much in the way of details," Parker said. "If it is a human skull, we don't yet know the identity of the person it belonged to at this time. Also, there haven't been any arrests as a result of the discovery."

Parker urged local residents to be patient with the case, which could take a great deal of time to develop.

"The specialists that examine these sorts of remains take quite a while, so it could be some time before we hear back from them," Parker said. "Until then, we'll continue to investigate the matter with the information we have, but details will most likely come slowly."

Offices to close for holidays; emergency services available

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer
 Most municipal and county offices will be closed Thursday and Friday for the Christmas holiday, officials announced.

The city of Big Spring will close all offices, including the landfill and compost facility, according to a news release. There will be no sanitation pickups on these days.

In addition, city offices will be closed Friday, Dec. 31, in observance of the New Year's Day holiday.

Howard County will close its offices at 3 p.m. Wednesday and the offices will remain closed Thursday and Friday for Christmas. Unlike the city, however, county offices will remain open on New Year's Eve.

City and county emergency offices

— police, sheriff, EMS and fire — will maintain normal operations throughout the holidays.

Howard County public schools, plus Howard College, have dismissed classes for the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan school districts will resume classes Jan. 4. Spring semester classes at Howard College begin Jan. 18, officials said.

Texas likely to gain more House seats

By APRIL CASTRO
 Associated Press
 AUSTIN — A heavy influx of new residents, many of whom are Hispanics, has Texas poised to gain more congressional seats than any other state, and Tuesday's announcement of the exact number begins what figures to be a politically divisive process on how to divvy them up. The big question to be answered when the U.S. Census Bureau releases key population figures for reapportionment is whether the state will get three or four new seats in the U.S. House. Either way, the second-largest state is expected to have the nation's highest gains.

Although Texas Republicans have fortified their already strong hold on the state Legislature with landslide victories in the November election, they won't have unchecked authority to draw the state's congressional map to benefit the GOP.

Texas is one of the states whose redistricting plans require

Coahoma quarterback Tanner Ruiz was named District 2-2A's Offensive MVP after a season where he helped lead the Bulldogs to the playoffs.

Coahoma, Stanton, Forsan rake in honors

BY ADAM COLEMAN
Sports Editor

Coahoma quarterback Tanner Ruiz and Stanton linebacker Grayson Gray won District 2-2A Offensive and Defensive MVP honors with the all-district selections being announced this week.

The Coahoma Bulldogs, including Ruiz, had 12 players earn honors.

Dakota Griffith was named first team running back, Hunter Williams was named first team tight end and Josh Castilaw, off his all-state selection, was named first team center.

Justin Coker nabbed second team fullback and Sheigh Cravens was second team receiver. Jacob Echavarria made the second team as an offensive lineman.

On the defensive side of the ball, Jason Martinez and Skyler Coates made the first team as linebackers. Braden Iden made it at defensive end. Pete Acosta, also an all-state selection, made the first team as defensive back. Brent Wright made the second team as a defensive end and Sheigh Cravens and Dakota Griffith are on the second team as defensive backs. Griffith also grabbed second team kicker.

Stanton was well-represented on the list. Including Gray, the Buffs had 12 players earn honors, too

The dependable Tyler Fulton made the first team at quarterback, standout running back Blake Evans and receiver Thomas Ramos, tight end Ryan Brantley and Gray and Cody Holt also made the first team.

Running back Andres Chavez, receiver Adam Montez, offensive linemen Dillon Kennedy and Jorge Reyna, Evans as a linebacker, Kennedy as a defensive lineman, Reyna as a defensive end made the first team as defensive players.

Rene Padron, Andrew Chapa, Brantley as a defensive end and Ramos and Montez as defensive backs made the second team. Ramos also was first team kicker.

Wideout Kolten Self was the only first team selection for the Forsan Buffaloes. Ty Johnson made the second team as a running back.

Linebacker Patrick Robles and defensive lineman Copeland Riddell made the second team.

Idalou's Nick Gary, who led the Wildcats to a state championship this season, was named District MVP. Idalou's Matthew Sales and Bryce Schilling earned Newcomer of the Year and Utility Player of the Year, respectively. Idalou head coach Johnny Taylor was named Coach of the Year.

Coahoma and Stanton made the playoffs this season and while Forsan didn't, the Buffs got two wins in district play in 2A after getting none in Class A last season.

Romo status unclear for Cowboys-Cardinals

The Associated Press

IRVING (AP) — The return of Tony Romo remains on hold.

Since Romo broke his left collarbone Oct. 25, the Dallas Cowboys have pointed toward having him back in the lineup this week. However, team owner Jerry Jones said Sunday he was not optimistic and Monday interim coach Jason Garrett was very noncommittal.

"We'll just see how he does tomorrow, see how he feels," Garrett said.

The Cowboys are usually off on Tuesdays, but will be practicing because they play Saturday night in Arizona. They only have two games left and can't make the playoffs, so it seems pointless to take even a minimal risk of Romo getting hurt.

Besides, Jon Kitna has done just fine as the starting quarterback. Their statistics are quite similar, with the notable exception of Dallas going 1-5 in Romo's starts and 4-4 with Kitna. There's no quarterback controversy, though, because Kitna is 38 and Romo remains the face of the franchise.

If anything, the Cowboys would be better off checking out third-stringer Stephen McGee just to see if the second-year QB is a keeper.

Dallas could have placed Romo on injured reserve a long time ago, ending his season and freeing up a roster spot for someone else. But Jones was holding out hope that Romo could return, especially since all he needed was rest, not surgery, to repair the bone on his non-throwing side.

The outlook dimmed after seeing Romo throw before the game Sunday.

"Frankly, he's still having sensitivity there," Jones said. "We're a little behind where I thought we would be on how healthy he is. ... He's not ready to play. That doesn't mean he might not get out there throw and practice, but he's not ready."

Another issue is defining readiness.

When a guy is slightly banged up, he usually has to make it through one practice to prove he can be effective in a game. Romo has missed eight games and hasn't practiced at all since the injury. The Cowboys are expected to practice in pads Tuesday, so that could be a stiff test for him.

Then again, he's the most experienced guy in this offense, which Garrett coordinated for 3½ years before getting promoted. So he should be able to pick things up quickly — if he's healthy enough.

"I think you want to see any player feel comfortable practicing before you put them in a game-type situation, regardless of their experience," Garrett said.

How long does it take to get comfortable?

Mavs' end Heat 12-game streak

The Associated Press

MIAMI (AP) — The streak-busters of the NBA hail from Dallas.

And for whatever reason, unless there's a championship at stake, the Miami Heat simply cannot beat the Mavericks.

Dirk Nowitzki scored 26 points, Jason Terry had all of his 19 in the final 11 minutes, and the Mavericks held LeBron James scoreless in the first half on the way to ending Miami's 12-game winning streak with a 98-96 victory on Monday night.

It was Dallas' 14th straight regular-season win over the Heat, and the Mavericks had been the most recent team to beat Miami this season, too. Dallas has snapped six opponent winning streaks of at least five games this season — including a pair of 12-gamers, against San Antonio on Nov. 26 and now Miami's.

"I don't make a huge deal out of the streak," Mavs coach Rick Carlisle said. "We are just trying to play solid basketball and win as many games as we can."

Terry has spoken often about how losing to Miami in the 2006 NBA finals still upsets him.

So while shooting at the East end of the court — the one over which the Heat championship banner softly sways — he put on a fourth-quarter show.

His biggest blow was a 3-pointer with 1:25 left, putting Dallas up 89-85 after Nowitzki airballed a 3-pointer but Miami couldn't get the rebound.

Miami got within 91-90 on a three-point play by James, but that was the last gasp.

"Jet finally showed up in the fourth," Nowitzki said. "That's what he does. He's our finisher. He's our closer. He got hot."

Miami was within one point four times in the final 6:27, but Dallas never relinquished the lead.

"Couple of crazy bounces ... and they capitalized," Heat forward Chris Bosh said. "That's how the night went for us."

Caron Butler scored 13 for Dallas, which won despite giving up a 17-0 run in the first half and a 13-0 run in the third quarter.

Dwyane Wade scored 22 points, while James and Bosh each scored 19 for Miami. By the time Wade hit a meaningless 3-pointer with 0.8 seconds remaining, James was already tugging at his jersey and heading off the floor.

"All year, we're going to continue to get better, to improve to get to the elite level," Wade said. "We're 30 games in. These elite teams, they've been playing together for a long time."

Mario Chalmers had 13 points and James Jones added 10 for Miami. Shawn Marion finished with 13 rebounds and Tyson Chandler grabbed 10 for Dallas.

Terry simply took over in the final 12 minutes, shooting 6 of 10 from the field. His teammates player to player," he said. When asked why the Cowboys haven't just given up on Romo this season, Garrett said, "It's just important to evaluate on a day-to-day basis." Even he laughed at his evasiveness. The question of how hard Dallas should be trying has been debated among fans lately. While they are rooting for a better draft pick, Jones wants to have a competitive enough team to sell seats and luxury suites at his $1.2 billion stadium and Garrett is trying to shed the interim label. The Cowboys beat Washington 33-30 on Sunday to improve to 4-2 since Garrett took over. "We try our best to win every week," Garrett said.

shot 3 of 10, Nowitzki going 0 of 5. Somehow, it was enough. "Bottom line is they made bigger plays down the stretch more consistently than we did," Heat coach Erik Spoelstra said. The first half had about as many story lines as it had minutes. Dallas came out flying, running out to a 14-2 lead and looking every bit like the team that has dominated Miami since the start of the 2004-05 season, and the Mavericks' zone defense was giving the Heat fits. "They can get you off-balance," James said. "Definitely." Miami trailed 23-10 when James and Bosh checked out of the game for the first time. When they returned, Miami led 27-23. It was 17 unanswered for the Heat, Wade leading the charge, personally accounting for the first 15 points — scoring nine of them, and setting up 3-pointers by Jones and Chalmers, the last of which put Miami ahead for the first time early in the second quarter.

James played 12 minutes in the first half, going to the bench with 6:01 left until intermission with three fouls. A late Miami spurt, fueled by Mike Miller's first appearance of the season, gave the Heat a 44-43 lead at halftime. "Just shows the depth we have on this team," James said. Miller checked in for the first time with 3:52 left in the half, the crowd greeting him with one of its loudest ovations of the season. Miller missed all four of his shots, all from beyond the 3-point arc, but grabbed three rebounds on what'll go down as a bizarre Heat possession. Most NBA possessions last less than 24 seconds, with one or two shots. The Heat had one trip last 52 seconds — with eight shots. Miller had a defensive rebound to start the possession, two more offensive rebounds to keep it alive, and after seven misses, Chalmers hit a 3 with 1:53 left for a 42-39 lead. James got his first points with a 3-pointer early in the third — starting a 13-0 run that ended with the league's two-time reigning MVP making another 3 to give Miami a 61-55 lead. James struck again at the buzzer to end the third, his jumper over Jason Kidd putting the Heat up by three, then scored the first points of the final period for a 70-65 lead.

Texans try to regroup after latest tough loss

The Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) — With their playoff hopes all but gone, the Houston Texans hoped to win their last three games, finish at .500 and salvage something positive out of a disappointing year. Instead, their seventh loss in eight games has guaranteed another losing season. "We've lost some tough football games, so it's very disappointing," coach Gary Kubiak said. "We've still got a lot to play for these last two weeks and we need to find a way to man up and play better." The Texans were 4-2 entering their bye week and have since dropped to 5-9 — eliminating them from the playoffs for the ninth straight year. Still, Kubiak insists that fact shouldn't change his team's intensity as it wraps up the season. "You play for your pride," he said. "You're a pro football player, you're a coach, you're paid to do a job. Obviously the stakes change for you but ... it should not change the way we go about our business or do our job." Whether those stakes include Kubiak's job status has been the subject of much speculation in Houston. Bill Cowher, who retired as Pittsburgh's coach after the 2006 season, reportedly could be interested in coaching the Texans if Kubiak is fired after the season. Kubiak, in his fifth season in Houston, bristled when asked if expressing interest in someone's job while they still have it broke an unwritten code. "Well, he's a (darn) good coach," Kubiak said of Cowher. "I can't do (anything) about what he says. I don't have a handbook that has a code. I don't know. I have no idea." Kubiak said he is far more concerned about how his team can win its last two games than who may be interested in his job. Players and coaches agree that the key to winning these last two games, starting with Denver, will be to start fast after being outscored 96-36 in the first quarter this season. The problem was perhaps the worst on Sunday when Tennessee jumped out to a 21-0 first quarter lead in a 31-17 victory. "I think it has been a combination of things," Kubiak said. "It's not one area. It hits all areas. When you go four-and-out and three-and-out and you give up three touchdowns in the first three touches of the ball, the team is not going to play well." Receiver Andre Johnson was at a loss when asked why Houston has had so much trouble in the first quarter this season, but he did have an idea of why they can't seem to win lately.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

declarer allowed East's jack to hold. When East continued with the queen, South correctly took his ace, preserving the nine as a potential throw-in card later on. From what had transpired thus far, declarer concluded that West started with five diamonds (since East did not return a diamond at trick three) and at least three hearts (from his lead of the deuce, indicating length). If he also had his share of the missing spades, East would have most of the outstanding clubs, making that finesse a strong favorite to lose. This possibility loomed even larger when South next cashed four spade tricks and discovered that West had started with three spades. But declarer found the answer. He cashed the ace of clubs and exited with a heart, forcing East to win with the king. East had no choice but to return a club, allowing South to score the jack and make his game. It is true that East could have wriggled out of the endplay by discarding his king of hearts on the fourth spade. But in that case, the same heart lead by declarer would endplay West. After taking the nine with the ten and cashing the eight, West would be forced to lead a diamond from the Q-10 into declarer's A-J, again handing South the game-going trick. Tomorrow: A spot card shows the way.

UConn women a win away from topping UCLA

NEW YORK (AP) — UCLA's 88-game winning streak had just been snapped by Notre Dame in 1974 when Bruins coach John Wooden was asked how long it would be before somebody beat the streak. "I have no idea how long it will be before somebody else wins that many. I know it takes at least three years," he replied. Try nearly 37 years. And the University of Connecticut women's team can do it Tuesday night. Coach Geno Auriemma and his players — just Huskies, never the Lady Huskies — have been so dominant that some in the sports world have even suggested their overwhelming success is no good for the game. Auriemma took the debate a step further Sunday after UConn's 88th straight win, questioning whether there is a gender bias against his team. "The reason everybody is having a heart attack the last four or five days is a bunch of women are threatening to break a men's record, and everybody is all up in arms about it," he said. There is no dispute, however, that the streak has raised the profile of women's basketball by daring to compare UConn's accomplishment to one of the most revered numbers in sports history.

Civil rights groups seek review of Texas schools

HOUSTON — Two civil rights organizations are seeking a federal review of public school education in Texas, accusing state school administrators of violating federal civil rights laws after curriculum changes approved earlier this year by the Texas Board of Education.

The request to the U.S. Department of Education made by the Texas NAACP and Texas League of United Latin American Citizens on Monday contended that the curriculum changes passed in May "were made with the intention to discriminate" and would have a "stigmatizing impact" on African-American and Latino students.

"The State of Texas is failing to provide many of its minority students with equal educational opportunities," documents sent to the federal department said.

The request, signed by Gary Bledsoe, president of the state NAACP, and Joey D. Cardenas Jr., state director of Texas LULAC, asked that implementation of the curriculum changes and new standardized tests be stopped for being racially or ethnically offensive or historically inaccurate.

Besides the curriculum complaint, they accused the state, the Texas Education Agency and the Texas Board of Education of "miseducation" of minority students, disparate discipline for minority students, using accountability standards to impose sanctions on schools with high numbers of minority students and rules leading to underrepresentation of minorities in gifted and talented school programs.

Texas Education Agency spokeswoman Suzanne Marchman said the complaint was being reviewed but had no immediate comment Monday. Gail Lowe, chair of the education board, said she was aware of the filing "but I don't know the specific nature of any allegations or problems they allege."

SEATS

"pre-clearance" by federal authorities under the Voting Rights Act, which aims to protect the interest of minority voters.

Because much of the population growth came among Hispanics, who tend to favor Democrats, experts expect one or two of the new seats will need to be Hispanic-leaning to clear the federal law.

Republicans can be expected to target the only two districts still represented by white Democrats for those new minority seats — Rep. Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Rep. Gene Green of Houston, said Nathaniel Persily, a political science professor and redistricting expert at Columbia Law School.

That means Republicans would only draw themselves one or two new GOP-leaning seats, he said.

But, that debate is far from settled.

Some Republicans in Congress are still pushing for three or four new GOP seats, said Rep. Aaron Pena, a Republican from the Rio Grande Valley. He said he believes Hispanics should have an opportunity to win a minimum of two seats.

One of those, he predicts, will come from Dallas, where the Hispanic population is bigger than that of the Valley.

"The Hispanic community in Dallas has exploded in population numbers and has no Hispanic-leaning districts, whereas the Valley has three with a smaller Hispanic population," he said.

The environment is ripe for racial tensions. "Anytime any one community grows, others may be diminished," Pena said. "And absent enlightened leadership, it could lead to some political tensions."

Federal lawsuits are essentially guaranteed as part of the process.

Even then, tradition in Texas means the final map won't come without months of turmoil and strife.

In 2003, Democrats twice left the state to bring legislative business to a standstill and delay a vote on redistricting proposals. Repeated special sessions and gridlock eventually gave way to a 2006 U.S. Supreme Court order that new lines be drawn in several districts to protect the rights of Hispanic voters in South Texas.

As for the actual number of congressional seats gained, one expert said he is predicting four, which would likely be double the number gained in any other state.

"That puts Texas ahead of its long-term rivalry with California, which may not gain any," said William Frey, a demographer at the Brookings Institution in Washington.

Frey said Texas' gains are largely because the state's economy fared better through the recession than other states, leading to more people relocating to Texas than moving out. Reapportionment is the process of redistributing the 435 U.S. House seats according to population growth every 10 years. It will be followed by redistricting, the legislative act of redrawing political districts to help elect more members of the party in power.

The seats go where the people are and Texas grew by almost 20 percent, to nearly 25 million people, from the 2000 Census to July of last year. Republicans hold 20 of the state's 32 congressional seats. In the 2010 elections, the party picked up another three seats.

"The Republicans did so well in this last election, I think they will concentrate on shoring up their victories instead of expanding to seek new opportunities," Persily said. "The challenges in Texas, with up to four additional congressional seats to play with, they need to figure out how to make their incumbents safe while also not violating ... the Voting Rights Act."

OUR VIEW

What better place to buy late gifts than right here?

The holiday season has reached the critical stage with only three shopping days left before Christmas. There's perhaps no better time of the year in Big Spring, the surrounding area or anywhere else for that matter.

With so little time remaining for people to pick up those last-minute gifts, the pace in local stores is getting a little frantic in some cases.

What we've found, though, is that there's no better place to shop for Christmas than right here in Big Spring, regardless of how little time there is left to shop.

Remember, Big Spring is literally dotted with interesting stores — from the downtown area to Scurry and Main streets, to the mall and all along Gregg Street and FM 700, there are a wide variety of gift purchasing opportunities.

From the latest item to hit the stores to antiques and hand-crafted items, you'll find just about everything you need right at home. As we have noted before, shoppers are limited only by their imagination.

While we would never begin to tell people they shouldn't shop out of town, we will ask that you check Big Spring first because the money you spend with a local merchant makes a difference in the lives of your friends and neighbors.

Come to think of it, if you've by chance already shopped out of town and still can't find what you're looking for and are forced to go to "Plan B," be sure that "Plan B" involves shopping here at home.

Dollars spent with local merchants wind up being spent with other Big Spring or Howard County merchants ... turning over three, four, five or more times. And that rollover effect simply can't be created when you buy out of town or on the Internet.

Bottom line: Do your best to shop at home and make it a Merry Christmas for us all.

A SMALL PRAYER

When we walk down the road with You, Lord, we avoid going in the wrong direction.

Amen

Larding path to economic recovery

When former GOP House Speaker Newt Gingrich proclaims a measure to be "good for the country," that usually means it's good for Gingrich. When President Obama tells the media that his $858 billion compromise tax package is the fruit of negotiations with GOP "hostage-takers," you have to wonder if he even wants it to pass.

Obama finally figured out that Democrats have only hurt themselves in pushing for an extension of the Bush tax cuts — except for the top 2 percent of earners.

You don't raise taxes on anyone during a shaky recovery.

Even so, I think Democrats like Rep. Chris Van Hollen of Maryland are right to object to the measure's $23 billion estate-tax "giveaway."

I'd be happy to discuss philosophical questions on death taxes after the budget is balanced. For now, the country can't afford it. The Concord Coalition sees "no stimulative effect" in this tax break. Congress would do well to return the estate tax rate to 2009 levels — 45 percent for estates over $3.5 million — instead of 35 percent after $5 mil as per "the deal."

The tab for extending unemployment insurance benefits for 13 months is $56 billion. In this deal, neither the left nor right pays for its peanuts.

Obama boasts that he won a one-year 2 percent Social Security payroll tax reduction in lieu of his lesser "Make Work Pay" 2009 tax credit.

Remember all those liberal complaints about how wrong it was for George W. Bush to cut taxes while America is at war — make that two wars?

Well, forget all that.

Obamaland clearly isn't worried about further destabilizing Social Security.

Ahead of predictions, this year, Social Security began to pay out more — a projected $41 billion — than it takes in. This scheme only makes the situation worse.

Every politician's favorite economist, Mark Zandi of Moody's, called the payroll-tax holiday one of the compromise's "big surprises." The biggest surprise of all would be if Washington doesn't make this temporary tax cut permanent. As Tax Foundation analyst Nick Kasprak observed, "It's a lot easier to cut taxes than it is to raise them."

Then there are billions in corporate welfare, including tax breaks for NASCAR, rum-makers and film producers. Farm-belt senators wanted to extend a 45-cents-per-gallon ethanol subsidy that goes to Big Oil. They got it.

With 81 senators voting for the package Wednesday, clearly the measure would have passed without the pork. But this Senate doesn't know how to pass a bill without larding it with goodies for special interests.

Having trashed this bill, I nonetheless understand why Democrats and Republicans would vote for this poor excuse of a compromise. They are afraid not to.

Zandi predicts it will add 1 percentage point to the nation's 2011 GDP and create jobs "ensuring that the still-fragile economic recovery evolves into a self-sustaining economic expansion."

No one wants to damage the recovery.

Then again, if America's small businesses had known sooner that their taxes wouldn't be going up in January, the recovery likely would be on surer footing already.

Thought health care was fixed?

So you thought health care was fixed? Well, maybe not "fixed," but you assumed that the new law had put us on the path to solving one of America's most pressing problems — spiraling health care costs amid surging numbers of uninsured citizens.

No, no, no, no. The recent decision by Judge Henry E. Hudson, of a U.S. district court in Virginia, pumps new life into Republican efforts to kill health care reform by draining the program of a means to pay for it. Hudson argued that forcing anyone to buy something — in this case, a private insurance policy — is unconstitutional. (Two other district court judges rejected that interpretation.)

Why is the individual mandate essential? Current law requires hospital emergency rooms to treat all comers. Without the mandate, uninsured people could wait to buy coverage until they're in the ambulance. In 2008, doctors and hospitals delivered $43 billion in "free" care. (Of course, it was not free. Taxpayers and anyone with private coverage picked up those bills.)

Years ago, Massachusetts forbade insurers to discriminate against sick people, but it didn't also insist that everyone obtain coverage. What happened? Premiums jumped. Since it added the mandate in 2006, premiums have fallen 40 percent.

If the mandate goes, so go the parts of the law that stop insurers from rejecting those with pre-existing conditions or canceling policies once the policyholder becomes seriously ill. In an efficient insurance pool, as we've seen in Massachusetts, healthy people must subsidize the sick.

This concept is not foreign to Republicans and has been part of their own past health care proposals. But the new law's inclusion of an individual mandate has suddenly become a big, big problem for them.

Actually, Republicans do not object to expanding government health care as much as they mind paying for it.

They did not set aside a single penny for their 2003 Medicare drug benefit, tacking it all onto the national debt. (A giveaway to insurers and drug companies, the Medicare drug benefit is costing about the same as the Democrats' reform of the entire system.) Former U.S. Comptroller General David Walker called it "the most fiscally irresponsible piece of legislation since the 1960s."

And let's drop the fairy tale that the Grand Old Party's deficit cowboys have been replaced by fiscally conservative new blood. In their book, "Young Guns — a New Generation of Conservative Leaders," Reps. Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, Eric Cantor of Virginia and Kevin McCarthy of California talk piously of fellow Republicans having "lost their way" and pretend they are different.

But when it came time in 2003 to vote on the "most fiscally irresponsible piece of legislation," what did the "young guns" actually do? They voted for it. Ryan said "yea." Cantor said "yea." (McCarthy was not yet elected to Congress.)

This latest legal attack on the health care law doesn't make much sense. The federal government argues that the mandate to buy coverage is indeed constitutional because the fine for not having it would be levied as an income tax.

Meanwhile, it's hard not to laugh at the cries over the "injustice" of forcing people to buy coverage.

Working Americans are already forced to buy health coverage — but for others. They can't choose not to pay the Medicare payroll tax.

They can't even make a deal with the government, promising, "I will forgo all future Medicare benefits if I can be freed from the Medicare payroll tax."

If the new health care reforms die, America will find no relief from the economic deadweight of spending twice per capita on health care as other rich countries. It would mean another push down the slope of national decline.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

It was a long night, and the total lunar eclipse could be blamed for some less than heartening thoughts or dreams. But the full Gemini moon has also given us a sense of community, and there's something else to celebrate now, too: The sun enters Capricorn and promises to stick around a little longer each day — at least until next time!

HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you feel that you keep repeating the same behavior over and over again, today provides just the pattern interruption you need. It's like a great cosmic throat clear — "ahem" — that somehow startles you onto a new path.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It's not about finding the right person for you; it's about being the right person for you. Give yourself a treat to show your love. Nothing fancy is necessary, just a gesture that says you're paying attention to your own needs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The shift in consciousness that you need is not difficult to make. Rather, it's so easy that you might even call it fun. Do what you want to do. There, it's that simple!

CANCER (June 22-July 22). If you want to get results, you have to be the squeaky wheel. Normally, you are too cool to take this approach, and yet there are times, like now, when being cool is seriously overrated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). There will be a lull in the action, and it comes at the perfect moment. Now you can sit back and figure out just how to make the most of the recent turn of events. Strategize.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Because of your charm, grace and charisma, you'll be in a position to keep the social brew bubbling. If you only follow one rule this evening, make it this one: Never be boring.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You'll be in a position to learn about others. You'll ask questions and focus intently on the answers. Instead of relaying everything about your own situation that comes to mind, you simply listen.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). While someone you know is dreaming about tomorrow, you'll be busy making today worth remembering. You'll have many spontaneous and creative notions about how to accomplish this.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You might try and miss today, which is to be expected for someone who is still learning. You're going to get it eventually if you keep trying. On the other hand, if you don't try, you're guaranteed to miss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You sync up with nature in some way, perhaps by connecting with an animal or getting out into the open air. There is a deep feeling of contentment within you because you are in harmony with the natural world.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You may feel compelled to tell your side of a story, especially because the other sides of the story seem to be riddled with half-truths. If it's imperative that you say your piece, leave quickly afterward.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Your sign can change moods as quickly as a chameleon changes colors. But today you'll be in a state of mind that you want to hang on to for as long as possible. External circumstances cannot change this.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Dec. 21). The year starts off on a streak of financial luck. You courageously attempt things at which you are not an expert and wind up broadening your horizons. New people come into your life in January. You land in peculiar circumstances in February and find a way to shine. May brings fun dates. July brings travel. Cancer and Aries people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 4, 20, 22 and 19.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Born in London on the cusp of Capricorn and Sagittarius, Kiefer

Sutherland is actually a Sagittarius, though he does have love planet Venus in Capricorn, so that energy is prominent in his chart. It's a mix of high-energy excitement and cool containment. With lucky Jupiter in Leo, the sign of the entertainment industry, this second-generation movie star was meant for the bright lights.

Annie's Mailbox

Bringing the War Home

Dear Annie: My husband, "Bill," and I have been married for almost two years. Bill was in the U.S. Army and served in Iraq. When he got back, we were married, but, Annie, he has totally changed.

This past year, all we seem to do is fight. Bill gets upset about everything I do and say. I can't even mention any of his behavior without it leading to a fight. A year ago, he got drunk and accused me of sleeping with one of his friends. He yelled at me so loudly that the neighbors called the police.

I have tried suggesting we talk to a counselor, because nothing is helping us get along better, but he refuses. If he drinks, he treats me like dirt. When we are at a party, he'll totally ignore me and spend all his time flirting with other women. I am tired of being treated this way, and I know the drinking is a huge part of it.

I am eight months pregnant and an emotional mess. I've told him that fighting is not healthy for the baby. I believe he has Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, but he says he doesn't need any help. I don't know how much longer I can last in this marriage. I feel like I've lost the man I fell in love with. Please tell me what to do. — Don't Know Where To Get Help

Dear Don't Know: It's a shame Bill is unwilling to get help when he clearly needs it. He may be suffering from PTSD, or he may have developed an alcohol problem, or both. Whether or not he is willing to get help, however, you absolutely must. You can get information on PTSD through the Veterans Administration at

Dear Annie: Why do intelligent, educated people fail to practice the most basic rules of e-mail etiquette? Do they not realize how intrusive many practices have become?

One of the most flagrant abuses is to forward a message without removing the names and e-mail addresses of others. Another travesty is the chain e-mail that promises good luck if you forward it or, worse, predicts bad luck if you don't. Does anyone actually believe them? And what about those that insist you demonstrate your affection for the sender by returning the message?

Please provide your readers with a refresher course in courtesy when sending personal e-mails. Thank you. — Shreveport, La.

Dear Shreveport: Whether dealing with e-mail, phone calls or visits, it is common courtesy not to be overly intrusive. That means asking whether someone wants to be on your mailing list for jokes, political rants, religious editorials and chain letters, and respecting the answer. It means deleting the e-mail addresses of others, along with any extraneous material, when forwarding something. When sending a personal e-mail, be friendly. Don't type in all caps unless you are furious. And please do not send pornography.

Dear Annie: I beg you to reconsider your answer to "Smokeless in Seattle," who didn't want to spend Christmas Eve with Grandma because she smokes.

Please educate your readers about the dangers of third-hand smoke. This refers to contamination that settles into the environment and remains on clothing, upholstery, pets, etc. long after the smoke has cleared. Infants and children are thought to be in the most danger since they touch surfaces and then put their fingers in their mouths. I doubt you would advise exposing an infant to 250 chemicals just to keep Grandma happy. — Oncology Certified Registered Nurse

Dear Nurse: We cannot live in sterilized bubbles. Parents are capable of watching their children carefully for an evening at Grandma's once a year, although we concur that other family gatherings should be held elsewhere.

COMPLETE STORY

Parent's Corner: We can all learn from Rudolph's creator

I read a delightful story that I thought you would enjoy, especially since it's the Christmas season.

A man named Bob May, depressed and brokenhearted, stared out his drafty apartment window into the chilling December night. His 4-year-old daughter Barbara sat on his lap quietly sobbing.

Bob's wife, Evelyn, was dying of cancer. Little Barbara couldn't understand why her mommy could never come home. She looked up into her dad's eyes and asked, "Why isn't Mommy just like everybody else's Mommy?" Bob's jaw tightened and his eyes welled with tears. Her question brought waves of grief, but also of anger.

It had been the story of Bob's life; life always had to be different for Bob.

Small when he was a kid, Bob was often bullied by other boys. He was too little at the time to compete in sports and he was often called names he'd rather not remember.

From childhood, Bob was different and never seemed to fit in.

He did complete college, married his loving wife and was grateful to get his job as a copywriter at Montgomery Ward during the Great Depression. Then he was blessed with his little girl. But it was all short-lived.

Evelyn's bout with cancer stripped them of all their savings and now Bob and his daughter were forced to live in a two-room apartment in the Chicago slums.

Evelyn died just days before Christmas in 1938.

Bob struggled to give hope to his child, for whom he couldn't even afford to buy a Christmas gift; but if he couldn't buy a gift, he was determined to make one, so he made a storybook!

Bob had created a character in his own mind and told the animal's story to little Barbara to give her comfort and hope.

Again and again Bob told the story, embellishing it more with each telling.

Who was the character?

What was the story all about?

The story Bob May created was his own autobiography in fable form.

The character he created was a misfit outcast like he was. A little reindeer named Rudolph, with a big shiny nose.

Bob finished the book just in time to give it to his little girl on Christmas Day. But the story doesn't end there.

The general manager of Montgomery Ward caught wind of the little storybook and offered Bob May a nominal fee to purchase the rights to print the book. Wards went on to print Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer and distribute it to children visiting Santa Claus in their stores.

By 1946 Wards had printed and distributed more than six million copies of Rudolph.

That same year, a major publisher wanted to purchase the rights from Wards to print an updated version of the book.

In an unprecedented gesture of kindness, the CEO of Wards returned all rights back to Bob May. The book became a best seller. Many toy

National news in brief

SKorean fighter jets scream through skies to prepare for possible surprise NKorean attack

YEONPYEONG ISLAND, South Korea (AP) — A South Korean destroyer prowled the sea and fighter jets screamed across the skies Tuesday in preparation for possible North Korean attacks a day after staging provocative artillery drills on an island the North shelled last month.

North Korea has said it would not retaliate for the exercises off Yeonpyeong Island — reversing its earlier threats. A senior South Korean government official, however, said that the lack of response so far does not mean Pyongyang is backing down, noting that North Korea thrives on "surprise" attacks. The official spoke on condition of anonymity due to the sensitivity of the matter.

Pyongyang considers the waters around the island — a tiny enclave of fishing communities and military bases within sight of North Korean shores — its territory, and similar drills last month triggered an artillery barrage that killed four South Koreans, in the first attack targeting civilian areas since the 1950-53 Korean War.

New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson, who made an unofficial visit to North Korea this week, praised Pyongyang's "statesmanlike" restraint.

Richardson, a former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations who has served as an unofficial envoy to North Korea in the past, said in Beijing on Tuesday that during the trip North Korean officials agreed to let U.N. atomic inspectors visit its main nuclear complex to make sure the facility is not producing enriched uranium for a nuclear bomb. That, Richardson said, could provide an opening for a resumption of negotiations aimed at dismantling the country's nuclear program.

2010 census expected to show slowing U.S. population growth, gain in House seats for GOP states

WASHINGTON (AP) — If government estimates hold true, the closely watched 2010 census will show America's once-torrid population growth dropping to its lowest level in seven decades. In Congress, the steady migration to the South and West should be a boon for Republicans, with GOP-leaning states led by Texas picking up House seats.

The Census Bureau expects to release Tuesday the first results from the once-a-decade government count, figures that will be used to reapportion the 435 House seats among the 50 states. The numbers trigger a high-stakes process wherein the dominant party in each state redraws the election map, shaping the political landscape for the next 10 years.

Census estimates provided this month based on birth and death records place the 2010 count somewhere between 305.7 million and 312.7 million, up from 281.4 million in 2000. That range means U.S. growth over the previous decade would be at a slower pace than the 13.2 percent increase from 1990 to 2000.

Demographers believe the official 2010 count will be 308.7 million or lower, putting U.S. growth at around 9 percent, the lowest since the 1940 census. That is the decade in which the Great Depression slashed the population growth rate by more than half, to 7.3 percent.

The U.S. is still growing quickly relative to other developed nations. The population in France and England each increased roughly 5 percent over the past decade, while in Japan the number is largely unchanged and in Germany the population is declining. China grew at about 6 percent; Canada's growth rate is roughly 10 percent.

Toyota to pay a record $32.4M in additional fines for handling of safety recalls

TOKYO (AP) — Toyota Motor Corp. has agreed to pay the U.S. government a record $32.4 million in additional fines to settle an investigation into its handling of two recalls at the heart of its safety crisis.

The civil penalties will settle investigations into how Toyota dealt with recalls over accelerator pedals that could get trapped in floor mats and steering relay rods that could break and lead to drivers losing control.

The latest settlement, on top of a $16.4 million fine Toyota paid earlier in a related investigation, brings the total penalties levied on the company to $48.8 million. It caps a difficult year for the world's

No. 1 automaker, which recalled more than 11 million vehicles globally since the fall of 2009 as it scrambled to protect its reputation for safety and reliability.

Toyota's board of directors agreed to pay the fines on Tuesday at the company's board meeting in Japan, according to an official familiar with the case, and the company said it agreed to the penalties without admitting to any violations of U.S. laws. However, that does not free Toyota from potential civil and criminal penalties in private lawsuits and other federal investigations.

Support builds in Senate for approval of U.S.-Russia nuclear treaty as more GOP senators join WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama is moving closer to gaining Senate approval of a major arms control treaty with Russia as he builds support among reluctant Republican senators.

The administration has stepped up its lobbying of pivotal Republicans to win approval of the New START treaty, which has become Obama's main priority for the remaining legislative session.

With lawmakers moving toward a final vote expected this week, the White House and senior Democrats were expressing confidence Monday that they had the votes for the accord.

Senior Democrats were pushing for a decisive vote Tuesday to cut off debate and set the stage for the final vote. Republicans and Democrats were discussing amendments to the accompanying resolution, not the treaty, that would deal with Republican problems with missile defense.

California faces 5th day of relentless rain, snow in mountains, high winds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The latest in a series of powerful storm systems is bearing down on California, pelting mountain areas with heavy rain, snow and high winds, prompting evacuations and leaving thousands without power.

Virtually the entire state has been affected by the storms that began Friday, dumping moisture from far Northern California south to San Diego. More than 12 inches of rain have fallen in parts of the Santa Monica Mountains in the south and 13 feet of snow has accumulated at Mammoth Mountain ski resort.

Downtown Los Angeles had received 5 1/4 inches of rain since Friday morning, more than a third of the average annual precipitation.

In the Wrightwood area, about 15 people were evacuated Monday night after the Sheep Creek Wash overflowed and threatened homes.

Bird Poop:

A very Merry Christmas for federal agent

Crisp autumn winds blew past Halloween and into November. To compensate for the chill in the air was to enjoy Sunday morning coffee and the Dallas Morning News. Leisurely thumbing through a favorite insert, I absorbed the latest book reviews and news from the Museum of Art. Even the advertisements were eye-catching and entertaining, except one.

BEBE McCASLAND

Noticing the color displayed for the reader's attention, I read several times what the hawk was selling. Troubled by its brash presentation caused me to make a mental note.

During lunch, Art and I continued to peruse our favorite newspaper. Having finished the sports section, he reached for the insert while I was reading the editorials. Our quiet, leisurely weekend moment was interrupted by his adamant directive, "You have to do something about this!" Seeing the look on his face, I knew he had finally come to the worrisome ad. My hunch on how he would react had been accurate. Leaving him to read further, I went down the hall to use the phone.

Getting the name of the U.S. Fish & Wildlife agent in the metropolitan area, I thanked Midge Erskine of the Eos Sanctuary for the information. Feeling we were correct in our analysis of the advertisement, she wished us luck.

Early Monday morning, I placed a call. If I was correct in what I thought the peddlers were selling, then there was a flagrant disregard for the Migratory Bird Treaty Act. The agent agreed after hearing me read the ad.

Based in Fort Worth, he was surprised that I had found the ad in the Dallas paper. Unless someone had brought it to his attention, he never would have known a possible violation might be "right next door."

After giving him a description of the insert, page number, and date, I added that I could be mistaken. Having previously read a copy of the act, however, I knew "it is unlawful for anyone to kill, capture, collect, possess, buy, sell, trade, ship, import, or export, any migratory birds, or part, or nest or egg thereof unless they first obtain an appropriate federal permit, issued pursuant to the Migratory Bird Treaty Act regulations, authorizing such activity. In most cases, a state permit is also required."

Surely, no business of group of individuals could gather from the ground enough to supply the general public. The ad blatantly stated for sale were cardinal, blue jay, oriole, painted bunting, and no telling from what else, feathers for arts-and-craft endeavors.

As we closed our conversation, the agent said he appreciated the call. Having worked with game wardens and another federal agent, we accepted the fact that we might never know the outcome of his investigation.

During early December, we stayed busy with migrating hawks. Our gusty winds and dry weather had either slammed the birds into structures or denied them the small mammals they needed for survival. Injured or weak, the raptors needed our help.

Water dependent birds, such as loons, grebes and coots had a later than usual journey to the south. Invariably, they landed on pavement and could not become air-borne again. With them, a trip to a nearby lake sufficed to send them on their way.

Late in decorating our home for the holidays, we did succeed in making candy for friends and a fruitcake laced with rum and candied delights. Soon each room in the house had a reminder of Christmas.

Wrapping last minute gifts, I was surprised when the phone rang. "Not another bird call," I thought. Upon my answering, a male voice said, "Just wanted to thank you for the bust."

Then identifying himself as the federal agent, he added that the ad had led to a much larger operation than anyone had ever suspected. Not sharing any details as to the outcome, he emphasized that a lot of birds would be spared. "It was a really big bust."

In my mind I could hear the cardinals' morning chorus, whoo-ett, whoo-ett, whoo-ett; tuer, tuer, tuer, followed by prêt-ty, prêt-ty, prêt-ty. Momentarily, I could imagine the blue jays' raucous protests when looking for acorns.

Summer orioles and their noisy presence would not be silenced. The colorful male painted buntings and their greenish ladies would return to summer nesting grounds.

Knowing not to ask about particulars, I could only thank him by wishing him a Merry Christmas. His reply was, "It really is!"

Continued from Page and marketing deals followed and Bob May, now remarried with a growing family, became wealthy from the story he created to comfort his grieving daughter.

But the story doesn't end there either. Bob's brother-in-law, Johnny Marks, made a song adaptation to Rudolph. Though the song was turned down by such popular vocalists as Bing Crosby and Dinah Shore, it was recorded by the singing cowboy, Gene Autry.

"Rudolpher the Red-Nosed Reindeer" was released in 1949 and became a phenomenal success, selling more records than any other Christmas song, with the exception of "White Christmas."

The gift of love that Bob May created for his daughter so long ago kept on returning to bless him again and again.

And Bob May learned the lesson, just like his dear friend Rudolph, that being different isn't so bad.

In fact, being different can be a blessing.
