Search continues for missing girl

Reward increased to $25,000

By THOMAS JENKINS

COLORADO CITY — The investigation into the disappearance of a 13-year-old Colorado City girl has gained national attention, thanks to coverage by TV personality and former violent crime prosecutor Nancy Grace, as investigators continue to try to determine if the girl has met with foul play.

Hailey Darlene Dunn, an eighth grade student at Colorado Middle School, was last seen walking from her home in northern Colorado City to a friend's house about 1 p.m. Monday, Dec. 27, according to Interim Colorado City Police Chief John Bivins.

In a recent TV interview with Grace, Hailey's parents — Billie Dunn and Clint Dunn — say the child often made the half-mile trek across a nearby field from her mother's home to her father's residence.

"She comes over every day, at all times," Clint Dunn told Grace. "She might come over for five minutes or she might come over and spend all day. She just shows up. She just walks across the field.

"She just disappeared. I didn't see her at all that day (Monday). I saw her the day before (on Sunday.) Later that night (Tuesday) my son, David, came over and asked me if I had seen her and if she had come over that day."

Clint Dunn said Hailey had spent Christmas night at his house, as well as part of the day Sunday.

According to reports by Grace, investigators are believed to have tracked the girl's scent using bloodhounds, leading law enforcement officials to the Western Suites Hotel, located several blocks from where she was last sighted.

Billie Dunn said investigators are reviewing the video tapes from the hotel and interviewing guests who stayed there the day of the girl's disappearance.

Man, Woman of Year nominations due

By BILL McCLELLAN
 News Editor

Do you know someone who has gone out of their way to make Big Spring and Howard County a better place to be? Well, now is the time to recognize them for their efforts.

Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is taking applications now for Man and Woman of the Year, awards which will be presented Feb. 3 during the annual Chamber banquet at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

There are only a couple of guidelines in the nominating process.

"Nominees do not have to be chamber members but nominators ValVerde do," said Debbye ValVerde, Chamber executive director. "Also, we ask that you don't nominate political figures."

Other than that, anyone is eligible. Organizers stress that nominees should be men and women who have volunteered their effort and time to various projects, if possible, and not just one endeavor.

Last year's winners were Drew Mouton and Jeanie Knocke.

"Criteria and application information are available at the Chamber. We will be glad to e-mail or fax that information over. Just give us a call," said ValVerde.

The deadline to nominate someone for Man or Woman of the Year is Jan. 18.

The Chamber is located at 215 W. Third and can be reached at 263-7641.

The theme for this year's banquet is People are the "Bling" of Big Spring. Tickets are $25 each and will be available at the Chamber beginning Dec. 14. The deadline to purchase tickets will be Jan. 28.

Also recognized during the banquet will be outgoing Chamber president David Justice, with the GEO Group and incoming president Terri Johansen with Johansen Nursery and Landscape.

Other banquet activities will include an auction and jazz music performed by Anna O'Brien, Big Spring High School choir director, accompanied on piano by Eddie Vandewalker, music director at Howard College.

Holiday will extend tax filing deadline until April 18, IRS says

By THOMAS JENKINS
 Staff Writer

The Internal Revenue Service opened the 2011 tax filing season Tuesday by announcing taxpayers have until April 18 to file their returns.

Taxpayers will have until the 18th because Emancipa-tion Day — a holiday observed in the District of Columbia — falls this year on Friday, April 15. By law, District of Columbia holidays impact tax deadlines in the same way that federal holidays do;

therefore, all taxpayers will have three extra days to file this year. Taxpayers requesting an extension will have until Oct. 17 to file their 2010 tax returns.

According to government officials, the IRS expects to receive more than 140 million individual tax returns this year, with most of those being filed by the April 18 deadline.

The IRS also cautioned taxpayers with foreign accounts to properly report income from these accounts and file the appropriate forms on time to avoid stiff penalties.

PROMISES, PROMISES: A few Republican pledges meet reality at dawn of House control WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans have already violated some of the vows they made in taking stewardship of the House.

Their pledge to cut $100 billion from the budget in one year won't be kept.

And for a coming vote seeking to repeal the health care overhaul, the first major initiative of the new Congress, lawmakers won't be allowed to propose changes to the legislation despite Republican promises to end such heavy-handed tactics from the days of Democratic control.

Is business as usual really back so fast? That's not clear one day after Democrat Nancy Pelosi yielded the gavel to the new Republican House leader, John Boehner. The GOP came to power in the House with an agenda that, if carried through, would in fact change how the government spends, taxes and does its legislative business.

But those with long memories may have the feeling they've seen this movie before.

Friends say student who killed assistant principal, self was fun

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — An angry online posting from the 17-year-old boy who opened fire at a Nebraska high school, killing an assistant principal before later fatally shooting himself, offers some clues about why the son of a police detective turned violent a couple of months after transferring there.

As authorities work to sort out what may have led to Wednesday's shooting, those who knew Robert Butler Jr. are struggling to reconcile his final actions with their memories of the fun, outgoing student who liked to make jokes and sometimes got into trouble for talking in class.

The gunman, who had attended Omaha's Millard South High School for no more than two months, also wounded the principal before fleeing from the scene and fatally shooting himself in his car about a mile away.

Assistant Principal Vicki Kaspar, 58, died at Creighton University Medical Center Wednesday evening, hours after the shooting. Principal Curtis Case, 45, was in serious but stable condition.

Rl school that fired, rehired teachers faces new struggles

CENTRAL FALLS, R.I. (AP) — The teachers at Central Falls High School struck a deal to get their jobs back last year after the entire staff was fired in a radical, last-ditch attempt to raise student performance. But if the administrators thought the teachers would be grateful for a second chance they were wrong.

Many teachers aren't showing up for work, often calling out sick. Several abruptly quit within the first few weeks of the school year. Administrators have had to scramble to find qualified substitutes and have withheld hundreds of student grades because of the teacher absences.

Dunn Monday evening with a neighborhood friend — identified as Mary Beth Garcia — and a boy around the same age as the missing girl.

Grace asked Billie Dunn if she had spoken to Mary Beth and confirmed whether or not she had seen Hailey the evening she went missing.

"I didn't ask her (Mary Beth) about that. I'm letting the police handle Mary Beth," Dunn told Grace. "I did call her to ask her what Hailey said to her Monday, did she call Monday, did they text, did Hailey tell her she was going somewhere else Monday or with another friend, and she told me no. She hasn't told me that she did (see Hailey Monday)."

Dunn said her boyfriend — Shawn Adkins — agreed to submit to a polygraph test Wednesday morning. However, the results of the polygraph have not yet been released by investigators.

According to the Abilene newspaper, Adkins, who lives with Billie Dunn, Hailey and Billie's 16-year-old son, reportedly said Hailey told him she was going to stop by her father's house and was then planning to spend the night with a friend. Adkins said he didn't believe Hailey had run away.

"I feel like it's an abduction," he told the Abilene Reporter News, adding that a number of sex offenders live in the community. "I just hope someone out there has heard something or seen her. We just want her to come home. We want this nightmare to end."

Officials with Colorado City say they have no intentions of letting up on the investigation until Hailey Dunn is located.

"From the start, our department and our colleagues from the other law enforcement and judicial agencies that have joined our effort have treated Hailey's case as one of a missing person. We've made no assumptions as to what occurred, intentionally focusing on rapidly collecting facts and using these facts to guide our work," said Colorado City Manager Pete Kampfer. "We're applying all the personnel and other resources necessary and appropriate to our work in finding Hailey, with no plans of letting up. This is a night and day endeavor for us all."

Billie Dunn said law enforcement officials have not issued an Amber Alert for Hailey because they do not have evidence that she has been abducted.

An Amber Alert is an emergency broadcast response for missing children, hosted by the U.S. Department of Justice. The guidelines posted on the Amber Alert website state that law enforcement must "confirm an abduction prior to issuing an alert."

Since the missing person report was taken last week, Colorado City police also have made three separate requests for posting of an Amber Alert on Hailey's case, but have been turned down each time, according to Colorado City Police Chief John Bivens. "In each of the three requests, we've been told that there is not enough information currently available about Hailey's disappearance to issue an Amber Alert," said Bivens. "The minimum standard for creating an Amber Alert is knowledge of a suspect, a description of a vehicle involved in an abduction and/or a route and direction of travel.

"This community and, in particular, the family and friends of Hailey Dunn can be absolutely confident that we will continue to pursue the issuance of an Amber Alert with each additional piece of evidence we uncover until such a time as we meet the minimum standards established by the Amber Alert system in Texas."

Hailey Dunn is described as 5-foot-1 and 120 pounds with hazel eyes and hair that's said to be brown with blondish streaks.

Anyone with information concerning the girl's whereabouts or circumstances concerning her disappearance are asked to call authorities at 325-728-5294 or 325-728-3161. A reward of $25,000 is now being offered for information in the case.

TAXES

"The IRS has made important strides at stopping tax avoidance using offshore accounts," IRS Commissioner Doug Shulman said. "We continue to focus on offshore tax compliance and people with offshore accounts need to pay taxes on income from those accounts."

For most taxpayers, the 2011 tax filing season starts on schedule. However, tax law changes enacted by Congress and signed by President Obama in December mean some people need to wait until mid to late February to file their tax returns in order to give the IRS time to re-program its processing systems.

Some taxpayers — including those who itemize deductions on Form 1040 Schedule A — will need to wait to file. This includes taxpayers impacted by any of three tax provisions that expired at the end of 2009 and were renewed by the Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization, and Job Creation Act of 2010, enacted Dec. 17. According to IRS guidelines, those who need to wait to file include:

- Taxpayers claiming itemized deductions on Schedule A. Itemized deductions include mortgage interest, charitable deductions, medical and dental expenses as well as state and local taxes. In addition, itemized deductions include the state and local general sales tax deduction that was also extended and which primarily benefits people living in areas without state and local income taxes. Because of late Congressional action to enact tax law changes, anyone who itemizes and files a Schedule A will need to wait to file until mid- to late February.

- Taxpayers claiming the higher education tuition and fees deduction. This deduction for parents and students — covering up to $4,000 of tuition and fees paid to a post-secondary institution — is claimed on Form 8917. However, the IRS emphasized that there will be no delays for millions of parents and students who claim other education credits, including the American Opportunity Tax Credit extended last month and the Lifetime Learning Credit.

- Taxpayers claiming the educator expense deduction. This deduction is for kindergarten through grade 12 educators with out-of-pocket classroom expenses of up to $250.

In addition to extending those tax deductions for 2010, the Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization, and Job Creation Act also extended those deductions for 2011 and a number of other tax deductions and credits for 2011 and 2012, such as the American Opportunity Tax Credit and the modified Child Tax Credit, which help families pay for college and other child-related expenses.

According to government officials, the IRS will announce a specific date in the near future when it can start processing tax returns impacted by the recent tax law changes. In the interim, taxpayers affected by these tax law changes can start working on their tax returns, but they should not submit their returns until IRS systems are ready to process the new tax law changes. Additional information will be available at www.IRS.gov.

Except for those facing a delay, the IRS will begin accepting e-file and Free File returns on Jan. 14. Additional details about e-file and Free File will be announced later this month, according to information released by the IRS.

AN ENCOURAGING WORD

By Eddy Pitchford

The beginning of a new year prompts many people to wish, dream and plan. Some individuals have the resolve to carry out plans while others merely wish and dream of improvement.

Common resolutions include health improvement, weight loss, financial budgeting, exercise and self-control. Many of these overlap so that improvement in one area leads to improvement in other areas.

As you begin the new year, why not resolve to be a daily Bible reader? Pray daily for your family and friends. Seek out opportunities to help others. Stop rationalizing ungodly behavior. Commit yourself to "growing in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

OUR VIEW

Let's be sure we drive safely near schools

Now that the holiday season is over, we can begin to get back into some familiar routines. For many of us, that includes some type of arrangement for getting our children to school in the morning and back home again in the afternoon.

For those of us who work, those times can be a harried experience. We're balancing the children's schedule with ours, trying to get to work, then maybe take a quick afternoon break so we can rush to the school and pick up the children and deliver them to a relative's house, daycare or home.

We've all been outside school buildings when the final bells ring. They are a beehive of activity, with children scampering everywhere and cars lined up waiting. Obviously, the potential for an accident is increased. Fortunately, however, there have been few of those over the years.

That's because most of us observe the speed limits in school zones and are aware of the potential danger.

Here are some important points to remember:

- Slow down. Always obey the speed limit when traveling through neighborhoods and school zones.
- Be attentive. Watch for children gathering near bus stops and walking in the street, especially where there are no sidewalks.
- Remain alert. Hurried children may dart into the street without looking for traffic.
- And please, please, please ... put away those cell phones when negotiating the areas around schools.

None of us is so busy, nor is there any emergency so important that we can afford to put our young people at risk by driving in an unsafe manner.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

With You, Lord, we get everything we do done and done right.

Amen

Happy Three Kings Day!

To many U.S. Latinos, they are much more than figurines in the Nativity mangers under our Christmas trees. They are Melchor, Gaspar and Balthazar, those three magical figures who rode camels and left toys under our beds every Jan. 6 when we were kids.

They are the same three wise men who brought gifts to the Baby Jesus in Bethlehem, according to the Bible, on the 12th day of Christmas. And they still come around to visit many Hispanic homes — yes, even after we immigrate to the United States — when we remember to invite them!

After all, most foreign-born U.S. Latinos grew up receiving gifts not from Santa Claus on Christmas Day, but from Los Tres Reyes Magos on Jan. 6 — the day Catholics celebrate the Feast of the Epiphany. It's a wonderful tradition that came to the New World — including current U.S. territory — with the Spanish conquistadors.

The first Christmas and Three Kings Day in North America were celebrated in 1539-40 by Hernando De Soto, 12 Catholic priests and some 600 conquistadors, who had camped for the winter in an abandoned Native American village in northern Florida that later would be called Tallahassee.

Those of us who still cherish that tradition and want to pass it on to our children have been fighting an uphill battle in this country for many years. We host some Three Kings Day festivities and try to keep the tradition alive in some homes. But Santa's popularity has been overpowering. U.S. Latinos often are (unfairly) accused of being reluctant to assimilate in U.S. society, yet this is one example of how fast assimilation actually is occurring. The speed with which some of us pick up Santa and drop the three wise men is, frankly, shameful. This is our own holiday for Hispanic children, and those who value our heritage should refuse to let it fade into oblivion.

Of course, Santa also should be welcome in our homes, but not at the expense of our own precious holiday. Instead of allowing Santa to give away all the presents, surely we can ask him to set some aside for the three wise men.

For the Latin American child that is still alive in many adult U.S. Latinos, this should be the time to dig out the roots of our culture and pass our traditions to younger generations. Just as we teach our children that there is a Santa Claus capable of flying on a sleigh, surely we can explain — as our parents did with us — that worldwide overnight toy delivery also can be accomplished by three kings riding on camels.

By maintaining the Three Kings Day tradition — through religious observances, musical concerts, toy drives and even a children's parade featuring three wise men riding camels through the streets of Manhattan — some Latino parents have been able to instill ethnic pride in their children at a very young age. Having their own Latino holiday gets children started in observing the traditions of their ancestors.

But let's face it; Three Kings Day is not an American holiday. Government offices will not close; banks will be open; schools will be in session; and not many stores will be having special sales. In spite of the rapidly growing purchasing power of the U.S. Latino population, unfortunately toy retailers in this country have yet to realize that Three Kings Day is a gold mine waiting to be discovered. Some don't even realize why so many U.S. Latinos are out shopping for toys for several days after Christmas has passed!

Ironically, while Santa often is over-commercialized and the true meaning of Christmas often gets diluted, the three wise men could use a little more commercialization to ensure the survival of one of our most precious Christian traditions.

Even in Latin America — where, thanks to the influence of the U.S. media, Santa's popularity has increased dramatically in the past few decades — many people are complaining that old St. Nicholas is replacing the three figures and the Christmas story that has a biblical foundation.

On the Internet, some leftist extremists, unable to contain their anti-American sentiments, have turned on Santa Claus, calling him an "impostor" who represents "cultural colonialism." They say the media are trying to impose "a foreign cultural figure" to replace the Hispanic three wise men tradition, and they have built many websites and Facebook pages to express their bitterness and anger.

But there are many others — an overwhelming majority, of course — who reject such cheap politics and refuse to choose between magical figures who come bearing gifts. They are using social networking sites to write moving testimonials, recalling some of the best times of their lives — brought to them by both Santa and the three wise men.

Closing the book on reading in 2010

As we struggle through such scintillating titles as "Big and Little," which includes gripping chapters like "a kitten is little, a cat is big," I hope fervently that my nearly 7-year-old son inherits my love of reading. After an encouraging start when he uttered his first word, "book," we've hit a few roadblocks as the actual act of reading seems well below playing, watching TV and chasing the cat on his list.

Still, we soldier on each night before bed with him reading something to me before I read something to him, all in the hope that someday I will happen upon my son knowingly picking up a book without pictures for pleasure. I'm not foolish enough to believe that having parents who love books automatically results in a child feeling the same way, but since my son copies all of my negative behaviors, I'm hoping one of my few positive features rubs off on him as well.

Though I was a lazy student, who never saw any reason to do what the teacher asked, as I most certainly already knew all the answers, I always read. While other kids actually listened to what the teacher said, I spent most of my classroom time from elementary school through high school reading as unobtrusively as I could. Sometimes I read ahead in the text book, sometimes I read novels and in one history class in high school, I methodically worked my way through the teacher's personal library.

As a child, I got up early to read the newspaper over breakfast (which occasionally featured Pac-Man Cereal) before moving to whatever novel I was reading while waiting for my friend Matt to make his way up my parents' hill.

I read at night when I should have been doing homework and in front of the television while I should have been watching "The A-Team."

Rarely without a book in hand, I decided last year that I would keep track of every book I read in 2010. To accomplish this I obtained a bookcase which I set up outside my office door, where I would deposit every book I finished. This plan went well until October, when my mother bought me a Kindle for my birthday.

Though I still love the physical concept of books, the Kindle not only allowed me to read faster as not having to turn pages dramatically speeds things up, it also eliminated one of my greatest fears — not having "the next book." Throughout life I had always worried about being caught without something to read and this led to my often buying books I wasn't all that excited about, just to have something.

The Kindle ended this fear as I'm no longer dependent on getting to a bookstore to have a book. Because of this convenience, whereas I thought I would mix electronic books and real ones, I have almost exclusively read e-books. That foiled my plan for having an impressive bookshelf, but it did lead to me reading even more books this year.

In adding my actual books to my electronic books, I read 123 books and 12 novellas. These included novels, non-fiction and three biographies of various members of Guns and Roses, a band I'm not a fan of.

I read literature. I read crap. I read a few things that were a struggle to get through, but mostly I just read.

Reading can entertain you. It can enrich you and it can make life wonderfully more exciting. I'm hoping that my efforts to share this with my child succeed and though I don't imagine he'll ever own many actual books, I'm hoping he fills up his electronic library and that it someday compares to my actual library.

Kubiak hires Phillips to run Texans' D

Former Dallas Cowboys head coach Wade Phillips (left) will install a 3-4 defense in Houston.

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Wade Phillips is finally coming home.

Phillips was hired as Houston's new defensive coordinator on Wednesday, assigned to revamp a unit that dropped to the bottom of the league this season.

The former Dallas Cowboys coach has strong ties to the city and head coach Gary Kubiak. He grew up in the area and played linebacker at the University of Houston in the 1960s. He began his NFL coaching career in the late 1970s with the Houston Oilers, who were coached by his father, Bum. Kubiak was a ball boy for the Oilers back then, and the two have remained friends across 30 years.

Phillips joined Kubiak's staff two days after the Texans fired defensive coordinator Frank Bush, secondary coach David Gibbs, linebackers coach Johnny Holland and assistant linebackers coach Robert Saleh.

The Texans (6-10) lost eight of their last 10 games, mostly due to a defense that ranked as one of the NFL's worst. Houston finished 30th in yards allowed (386.6 per game) and last against the pass (267.5 yards per game).

"I don't think they could've picked a better guy," Bum Phillips said in a phone interview on Wednesday night.

"And I don't think Wade could've picked a better job to come to. He's going to get to work with a guy who he knows and respects. That, to me, makes all the difference in the world. It's a great deal for Wade and a great deal for Houston."

Phillips becomes the third defensive coordinator in Kubiak's tenure, which began in 2006 and was on tenuous ground until owner Bob McNair said this week that he was sticking with his head coach.

Bush and his predecessor, Richard Smith, had no previous experience at the position, and McNair and Kubiak both said they needed some

Big Spring native Tannehill looks to put finishing touches on Aggies' season

BY ADAM COLEMAN

Sports Editor

It's not uncommon to see college football apparel throughout West Texas, or anywhere in Texas for that matter. Stickers, jerseys and shirts are just a few things fans use to display their pride.

But in Big Spring, the No. 17 in maroon is just a little more popular these days. Texas A&M quarterback and Big Spring native Ryan Tannehill is just a little more popular these days.

"Any you can have support from people back home, it definitely means a lot and I definitely appreciate that people are willing to support me," Tannehill said. "It's exciting and I just hope they keep supporting my team throughout this whole thing."

The junior has had a whirlwind of a season and looks to put the finishing touches on it with a win over No. 11 LSU (AP Top 25) in the 75th AT&T Cotton Bowl Classic at 7 p.m. Friday in Dallas Cowboys Stadium in Arlington.

What's made the season a special one is Tannehill's rise to quarterback for the Aggies and the way he's led No. 18 A&M to the cusp of a 10-win season.

What started out as another season at receiver for the junior turned out to be the season he finally accomplished a long-time goal — being the starting quarterback at A&M.

"Never saw any action coming this year at quarterback," Tannehill said. "Came into the season with Jerrod (Johnson) being the established starter. I really just expected to play the whole year at receiver like I did last year and just try to be the best receiver I could while I was out there. Got the opportunity to move in at quarterback and just tried to seize it."

Tannehill, in his mind, has always been a quarterback and that's the way it was during his time here at Big Spring High School in a wing-T offense.

Playing receiver at A&M wasn't a bad thing, though. While being a quarterback was something he wanted to do, Tannehill said he wanted to excel at receiver because that's what the team needed him to do.

After splitting time with Johnson at quarterback in A&M's win over Kansas on Oct. 23, 2010, it wasn't until the Texas Tech game when he had the opportunity to prove what he could do as a signal caller. And he delivered that day, throwing for a school-record 449 yards.

In five starts, Tannehill has completed 115-of-179 passes for 1,254 yards and eight touchdowns. It's been enough to garner an All-Big 12 Conference honorable mention nod.

Being a wideout only aided the transition to quarterback. Tannehill credits a lot of his success this season to his ability to relate to his receivers on a level most quarterbacks can't. He's been in their shoes, knows what it's like trying to recognize coverages and run routes. That makes it easier for Tannehill to run the offense.

He's led the Aggies to some of the biggest wins they've had in a while, too — against Tech, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Texas. Tannehill said the 33-19 win over OU and the 9-6 win over Nebraska were the biggest. Those are wins that make programs relevant.

Relevance is really what it's all about for Tannehill. This season has not only been enjoyable because he's had a chance to play at quarterback, but the junior said he is proud to bring attention and buzz back around a program he believes should regularly be in the national spotlight.

"It's tough when your team loses relevance," he said. "I think

Beetle Bailey goes from funny pages to the runway

By MATT MOORE

Associated Press PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Don't tell Sgt. Snorkel, but perennially put-upon private Beetle Bailey's Army green fatigues are influencing a new collection of limited-edition designer duds.

Arguably the longest-serving private never to have been promoted, Beetle Bailey will get the red carpet treatment next week when a line of clothing and accessories bearing his imprint is unveiled at apparel trade show PROJECT New York.

Working in conjunction with King Features Syndicate, designers Darren Romanelli and Hitoshi Tsujimoto have banded together to develop an Americana-inspired and military-infused collection of jackets, sweaters, T-shirts, hats, shoes, pants and bags.

"It's an Americana type of clothing line. It's real authentic clothes that people wore — jackets, blue jeans and stuff like that," Beetle Bailey creator Mort Walker told The Associated Press Tuesday. "All sweaters, all the stuff that the ordinary guys wear, not the fancy guys."

Those kinds of garments are not uncommon sights on fashion runways, with heritage-inspired and utilitarian looks increasingly en vogue.

But it won't be all fashion for Beetle and Walker, whose tale of a college student turned Army private has been running in newspapers since 1950. Besides the debut of Romanelli and Tsujimoto's designs, a retrospective of Walker's career drawing and writing about Beetle Bailey and the denizens of Camp Swampy will also be on display.

Romanelli, of the streetwear brand DRx, said the idea of infusing Beetle Bailey into fashion blended both professional curiosity and personal reminiscence.

"I dig deep in the archives of myself of my brain. ... It's always about resurrecting these chapters of past experiences," Romanelli told

AP. "I grew up on Beetle. As a kid I remember looking at it in the newspaper."

Given the breadth and reach of Americana-inspired looks, Romanelli said it made sense to incorporate Beetle Bailey into his new collection.

"We started talking about the significant Americana trend that is really massive and global right now," he said. "Americana bleeds over into the military so we looked at Beetle as the perfect whimsical approach to celebrate Americana and the military."

Some of the items include authentic G1 leather jackets, with Beetle Bailey stitched on the right breast side and, on the back, an image of Gen. Halfrack's secretary, Sheila Buxley, sitting atop a bomb beneath the legend "Blonde Bombshell."

Another is a button-down shirt in olive green with a picture of Sgt. Snorkel and Beetle Bailey in the midst of a brawl, the words "Rumble In The Jungle" surrounding it.

Beetle Bailey made his debut as a college student on Sept. 4, 1950, and was originally called Spider. In 1951 he was recruited by the Army just as the Korean Conflict was picking up. He's been on post ever since.

Walker said when he met with Romanelli, his decision to lend his creation's image was immediate.

"He was so enthusiastic and so bubbling over with ideas... we couldn't resist," he said. "It's fun."

Romanelli worked with The Real McCoy's Tsujimoto, known for curating military apparel and gear, to ensure that the designs had levels of authenticity throughout them.

"Hitoshi is the best of the best in resurrecting classic styles," Romanelli said. "He'll spend weeks on weeks finding the best material to match his original production. He'll do whatever it takes so that the piece is authentic."

PROJECT began in 2003 and is held every two years in New York and Las Vegas. The event brings together designers, clothiers and retailers. Its president, Andrew Pollard, said the new collaboration is something that strikes fans of fashion and comic strips.

"This Beetle Bailey collaboration is just the type of project we like to get behind and feel strongly that the design concepts that Darren and Hitoshi have created will not only resonate with fans of the long-running strip but will excite retailers," he said in a statement.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

The sun and Mars in Capricorn impose structure on the day. It's as though an experienced teacher has designated a particularly effective lesson plan and all we have to do is follow along, do the exercises and absorb what we are supposed to learn. The moon in Aquarius adds just the sociable whimsy needed to keep things moving along.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). People are not born with great self-discipline. You must train your mind to obey your highest wishes. You do this by disallowing any action, big or small, that is not in line with those wishes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you falter, it doesn't mean you can't do it. It only means you have not yet learned everything you need to know, or are not yet as strong as you need to be. Get right back on track.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your No. 1 priority often gets knocked down the ranks by your other responsibilities. Let it stay strong today. Build your entire day around the one thing that will move along your dearest goal.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Cut back your schedule, and simplify your life. If there are too many things going on at once, you'll lose your focus and let what you were determined to do get buried in distractions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). An argument will be happily resolved — that is, if you have it in the first place. It will be healthy for both sides to say what they think and feel, so invite the discussion instead of fearing it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You have as much freedom as you want to take. However, when you are left to your own devices, you implement even more structure than you would if you were under another person's supervision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You work for the sense of accomplishment you will get when the job is done. However, you wouldn't mind someone giving you a pat on the back at the end, too. A Capricorn or Taurus will oblige.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Though you would prefer that your scene be imbued with a sense of certainty and continuity, the opposite is true today. Anything can happen. Trust yourself, and you'll be quick, adaptable and ready to seize opportunity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). When a person's choices are few, it is easier to make them without regret or concern. It takes a very strong and purposeful individual to choose among a vast array of choices, as you will today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your schedule will reflect the activities of a person you admire and wish to be like. As you model the one you look up to, you will find how you are similar to this person and also how you are different.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You do not require validation from others because you so strongly believe in what you are doing. You don't realize how rare this level of conviction really is, and it is quite attractive on you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There is a younger person who is jealous of you or who is trying to prove something and going about it the wrong way. You will be of great assistance to this person, especially through your patient example.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 6). You'll be glad for past difficulties, as something wonderfully unique is born of the struggle. If you hadn't been limited, you wouldn't have found this level of greatness. You can share what you know and earn wealth and respect. In April, an unreliable entity is replaced by a true and loyal supporter. Cancer and Aries people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 11, 20, 23 and 16.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I have an extremely difficult time making decisions. I will try on 20 things before I decide what to wear, and I'll ruminate endlessly about making social plans. The phone conversation I have with a friend typically takes less time than deciding whether or not to call in the first place. What's wrong with me? I can tell I make people feel impatient, and often they make decisions for me because they can't stand watching the indecision. I am a Gemini."

It's true that your quick Gemini mind often brings to bear all relevant factors and options, giving you more options than you know what to do with. However, you must overcome this habit of indecision. Not deciding has more repercussions than just tiring out the innocent onlooker with your process. Making small things so important keeps you from living fully. Giving so much of your time and attention to trifling matters keeps your world small and contained. You cannot play a big game if you let small choices hang you up. Train yourself to choose quickly and to live with your choice. Every time you find yourself vacillating between choices, tell yourself that you're bigger than this and pick one.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: News anchor, editor and correspondent Katie Couric holds the distinction of being the first solo female anchor of a weekday evening news program from the three traditional broadcast networks in the United States. With her sun and Mercury in Capricorn, Couric is driven by ambition. A Capricorn does not stop climbing the mountain until she gets to the top.

Owner: Time to let Vince Young go

The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Titans owner Bud Adams says it's time to let Vince Young go and for the franchise to find its next quarterback.

The Titans released a statement Wednesday night in which Adams said Young won't be on the team's roster next season, but he's still evaluating the coaching staff.

"We have two critical decisions to make, the direction of the coaching staff and the future at the quarterback position. They are separate issues to me and will be dealt with separately," Adams said.

Adams is the owner who wanted Young drafted No. 3 overall out of Texas in 2006 and said on draft day that "VY is my guy." But with his general manager and senior executive vice president traveling to Houston to meet with Adams on Monday, the 88-year-old owner decided Young no longer is the quarterback for his franchise.

Young is 30-17 in his five NFL seasons, but only 13-14 against teams finishing a season at .500 or better. He's also battled questions over his work ethic, leadership and injuries. He suffered a season-ending thumb injury on his right hand Nov. 21, tossed his shoulder pads into the stands and told off coach Jeff Fisher in front of the locker room before storming out.

The 27-year-old quarterback told The Tennessean that he was a little bitter but thanked Adams and Fisher for giving him a chance. Young also said he had nothing against Fisher, though he never felt like the coach trusted him or that he was his guy.

"Everything was my fault. But that's over now," he said.

the last couple of years, we kind of lost our relevance, kind of lost our place on the national stage. It was one of our team goals, just to bring back the relevance at A&M and put us back in the spotlight where we feel like we should be."

The buzz has definitely surrounded his hometown on Saturdays this fall, too.

Tannehill said he regularly receives text messages of encouragement from his parents and his parent relay messages to him from friends and supporters here in Big Spring.

But now there is a chance to make that buzz a mainstay around A&M. Tannehill said a win over LSU would do that.

What makes LSU so dangerous is its athleticism. Tannehill said it's hard to fail when there are play-makers across the field and LSU has those types of players every year.

Friday night's game in Arlington is an opportunity for the Aggies to turn heads if they haven't already garnered enough attention this season.

"This is the Cotton Bowl, this is a Top 10 team in LSU, who has national relevance as well," Tannehill said. "I think this is a huge game for us, too. It's one of those you need to win for your program."

Stanford's Harbaugh to meet with 49ers

The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stanford coach Jim Harbaugh was meeting Wednesday with the San Francisco 49ers about their head coach vacancy, a person with knowledge of the situation said.

The person spoke on condition of anonymity to The Associated Press because the interview wasn't made public. Harbaugh returned Tuesday night to the Bay Area from a 40-12 Orange Bowl victory over Virginia Tech in Miami that gave the Cardinal a program-best 12-1 record. He now must weigh his options, which appear to be many.

The 49ers formally picked Trent Baalke as their new general manager Tuesday night.

one with a more proven track record.

Kubiak told KRIV-TV in Houston that he was "very excited" to work with Phillips. The 63-year-old Phillips, a defensive coordinator for the bulk of his 35-year career, ran the defense in Denver from 1989-92, overlapping Kubiak's playing career as John Elway's backup for the Broncos.

"We had a list of candidates that we lined up, but we wanted to start with the guy that we thought was most qualified and fit our situation. So we started with Wade, and that's where it ended."

Phillips was fired by the Cowboys after a 1-7 start destroyed high hopes for the team this season.

Opening lead — nine of spades.

Far too many players embark on a crossruff without bothering to count the number of tricks that will result, even if all goes well during the play.

This deal from a duplicate game provides a case in point. At most tables, North-South wound up in six spades. However, only one declarer managed to take 12 tricks on a hand where only one trick should be lost with proper play.

It isn't hard to figure out why so many declarers failed to make the slam. They chose to crossruff, trumping hearts or clubs in dummy and ruffing diamonds in their hand.

However, there aren't enough trumps and top tricks in the combined hands for this approach to succeed. Even if declarer were able to score all eight of his trumps separately (not possible, of course, after a trump lead), these tricks plus the three side aces do not add up to 12.

The simple mathematics of the situation was duly noted by the one declarer who made the slam. After determining that he was sure to fall short of his goal by adopting a crossruff, he decided instead to establish dummy's diamonds

He won the spade lead with dummy's ten, cashed the ace of diamonds and trumped a diamond, felling West's king. He then overtook the jack of spades with the queen, cashed the spade ace and conceded the jack of diamonds to East's queen.

Dummy's remaining diamonds were now good, and the six of spades provided the entry to them. With the two singletons in dummy covered by South's aces, the slam was home.
