Recycling project provides youth with hands-on education

Special to the Herald

ELBOW — Forsan Elementary School students at Elbow collected a busload of plastics in a week's time and learned a lot about recycling along the way. Three large bales of plastic, weighing approximately 3,000 pounds, were sent to Wal-Mart's recycling center. This year, the Gifted and Talented class decided to "Go Green." All projects were based on that premise. The class visited the Keep Big Spring Beautiful Club meeting and participated in the Trash Off event in April. Saige Stallings and Hope Howell created a Prezi, a web-based presentation application and storytelling tool that uses a single canvas instead of traditional slides, focusing on recycling plastics. They presented their Prezi to each class, teaching the students about recycling plastics. They culminated their lesson with a challenge to bring the most plastics to school, with an ice cream party planned for the first-place award. As a result, the classrooms overflowed with plastics, and even before the first day of the contest, one long storage hallway was filled with bags. School officials said there was not enough time for anyone to count the huge amount of plastics pouring into the school, therefore, an administrative decision was made to reward all the students with Pop-sicles. But that was just the beginning. After collecting a hallway full of plastics, school officials said there was no place in the community that would accept them. They even had a problem with finding a vehicle large enough to transport them. See RECYCLE, Page 3A

Yard sale items needed to help send kids to camp

By THOMAS JENKINS
 Staff Writer

Officials with the Salvation Army's Boys and Girls Club of Big Spring are asking area residents to search their garages and attics for donations to Saturday's community yard sale to raise much-needed funds to send local youngsters to camp.

According to Sonnet Hildebrand, director of the local Boys and Girls Club, donations to the annual yard sale have come in slowly.

"Donations are down considerably when you compare them to last year's yard sale," she said. "It's been pretty slow. However, we're really hoping for a last-minute push from the community to make this a success."

The sale is slated from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Salvation Army office, located at 811 W. Fifth St., and will help give children within the Boys and Girls Club program a chance to attend a five-day camp. "The camp is really an amazing time for the kids," said Hildebrand. "They get to take part in activities like horseback riding, fishing, paintball and swimming. They also get a chance to play a lot of different sports, such as football, basketball and baseball, as well as take part in a ropes course. "Morning activities include songs, praise and devotion. There are nighttime activities, as well, like movies and scavenger hunts, to help the kids with their social development." However, before the children can head for the camp — which is located in Midlothian, near Dallas — the mundane task of paying for the activities has to be accomplished, according to Stephanie Painter, program coordinator. "That's what this yard sale is all about," Painter said. "This fund-raiser will assist the children attending camp with the costs and fees involved. What

"There were plenty of places to recycle metals, but not one place would accept plastics," said Diana Newton, G/T teacher, "so we started contacting recycling centers in Midland and finally found one place that would take plastics with recycling codes 1 and 2." That's when the school received a welcomed solution to its problem. Jarrod "Tito" Drummond, co-manager of Wal-Mart, learned of the dilemma and, after obtaining a clearance from his supervisor, offered to accept the plastics at Wal-Mart and bundle it on his day off. It took the students about a half-hour to unload all the bags of plastic from the bus. Drummond took the time to bale one so the students could observe what the finished product would look like before shipment to Wal-Mart's recycling center. Drummond baled three bales of plastics. Officials said the haul amounted to tons of plastics that will be recycled instead of being thrown away in the landfill.

"I didn't want the children to be disappointed and have to send the collection to the landfill," said Drummond. "We are extremely grateful to Mr. Drummond for helping these students with their efforts to recycle," said Angela Woolley, assistant principal and GT coordinator. "We plan to honor him at our awards assembly for his service to our school and to the community. What we learned from this experience is that Big Spring has an enormous need for a plastics recycling center. This would solve problems our community faces to making our community more eco-friendly, preventing the landfill from prematurely being filled and to beautifying our community." Hope Howell thanked teachers for letting them use their computers to show the Prezi and for helping them schedule their presentations. Saige Stallings summarized her recycling experience by saying, "This is a big deal! This project changed how the students felt about recycling. Recycling can prevent our world from being filled up with trash."

we need from the community — beside plenty of bargain shoppers on the day of the sale — is donations of items to be sold. "Anything you feel can bring a good price at the sale would be appreciated. You'd really be surprised how many things people have cluttering up their garage that other people in the community could really use. However, most people just don't have the time to hold a garage sale these days, so those things just sit their and continue to gather dust." Painter said anyone with questions regarding what would or wouldn't be a good item for the yard sale can call her or Hildebrand at 264-0455.

"If someone is wondering if their item would work for this sale, the best thing they can do is call and ask," she said. "Also, if someone would like to make a monetary donation and sponsor a child to go to camp, that would be fantastic. We need as much help from the community on this project as we can get." Contact Staff Writer Thomas Jenkins at 263-7331 ext. 232 or by e-mail at citydesk@bigspringherald.com

OUR VIEWS

Graduation 2011 has finally arrived

It seems this school year has flown by and graduation is once again knocking at the door.

Another group of seniors will take their final walk across the stage starting Friday night and the last group of this year will walk next Saturday.

Area seniors are feeling the affects of senioritis and ready to make the leap into the next part of their lives.

For some it will be pursuing college and for others it will be straight into the job market. Either way, the comfort they enjoyed within the walls of their school will be gone and they will learn to survive on their own.

There will be celebrations for the next two weekends, marking the last hoorah for the 2011 graduates. They will take with them memories they have created and friendships that have helped make them into the young adults they have become.

It's important for the graduates to remember to enjoy these last few days of childhood, but to be safe in the journey.

As for the parents of the graduates, it's important to remember that just because they are growing up doesn't mean they won't need guidance. However, at the same time, they must learn to spread their own wings.

Take the time and congratulate the 2011 graduates and encourage them in their future journey. Let them know they have reached a milestone in their lives they will never forget.

It is a defining moment for the graduates and their parents.

Congratulations and best of luck to all this year's graduates.

Area graduations:

A SMALL PRAYER

Dear Lord, please heal those who are troubled.

Ensign disgraced himself and those serving on the Senate

Before John Ensign resigned as Nevada's junior senator on May 3, the Republican faced a Senate Ethics Committee investigation into a possibly illegal cover-up that followed an affair between Ensign and Cindy Hampton, a campaign aide who was married to the senator's administrative assistant. Last week, the committee released a report on the probe — and it is ugly.

The committee wasn't particularly interested in the nine-month affair. Its focus was on — you guessed it — the cover-up.

Ensign's parents made a $96,000 "gift" to the Hamptons after the couple stopped working for Ensign. Ensign steered husband Doug Hampton into a lobbying job — despite a federal law that bans staffers from lobbying the Senate within a year of leaving the Capitol.

Special Counsel Carol Elder Bruce found substantial evidence that the senator broke federal law, made false or misleading statements to the Federal Election Commission about the $96,000 severance and obstructed justice when he destroyed documents to cover his trail.

So go figure this: Why has the Justice Department indicted the husband on seven counts of violating the lobbying ban, but not the senator?

Ensign and his attorneys maintain that while Hampton may have lobbied illegally, Ensign did not break the law. Melanie Sloan, president of Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington, answered, "I don't know their real reason. They said they didn't have enough evidence. That seemed impossible to believe, given the indictment of Hampton."

DOJ spokeswoman Laura Sweeney said of the Bruce referral, "We take all referrals of potential crimes seriously.

We intend to examine thoroughly the information provided, and take any necessary and appropriate steps based on our review."

OK, but no one can accuse Attorney General Eric Holder of pursuing corruption charges too aggressively.

If Ensign had any esteem for the Senate, he would have resigned in June 2009 when Doug Hampton went public about the affair — not because of the infidelity but because Ensign abused elective office to buy Hampton's silence.

According to the report, Ensign pushed various interests to hire Hampton as a lobbyist in 2008 and then facilitated Hampton's efforts. Ensign called federal agencies and officials to promote the interests of Hampton's clients.

When Ensign's own staffers complained that Hampton was breaking the law by trying to contact them, Chief of Staff John Lopez became Hampton's "channel" in order to conceal Hampton's activities from wary aides, Lopez told Bruce under grant of immunity.

Ensign put his parents in an untenable position when they submitted affidavits to support the claim that the $96,000 was not a severance package.

I have to include this item from the report because it is so bizarre. When Ensign's spiritual adviser, Tim Coe, discovered Ensign and Cindy Hampton at a hotel in February 2008, he pleaded with the senator, "I know exactly where you are. I know exactly what you are doing. Put your pants on and go home."

When he announced his resignation, Ensign denied violating Senate Ethics rules. For once, I agree with Sen. Barbara Boxer, chair of the ethics Committee, and strongly disagree with that claim.

Huckabee and Trump have chosen to skip the bloodbath

Hum in the shark tank. That's what Republican candidates are this year.

Everyone is circling and waiting to take a bite out of their hides: the media, the bloggers, the tea party, the religious right, the oppo researchers, the think tanks. The list goes on. So perhaps it should not be a surprise when potential candidates opt out of the bloodlust.

Mike Huckabee, who had a chance for the Republican nomination, pulled out Saturday night. And Donald Trump, who had no chance, but who would have been good for a few laughs, pulled out Monday.

Huckabee said that he and his wife knew that if he ran this time they would be subject to "brutal, savage attacks."

But instead of the presidency, Huckabee declared, he has found "an inexplicable inner peace, a peace that exceeds human understanding."

For some reason, this reminded me of Bill Murray in "Caddyshack" saying he had caddied for the Dalai Lama, who stiffed him for a tip after 18 holes. "Oh, uh, there won't be any money, but when you die, on your deathbed, you will receive total consciousness," the Dalai Lama tells Murray, who decides, "So I got that goin' for me, which is nice."

I don't know why Huckabee's inner peace should be inexplicable, which is to say beyond explanation. It seems pretty easy to explain to me. He is only 55 and can still run in 2016, when the presidency will be an open seat. In the meantime, Huckabee has a chance to take over the Fox News Channel show being vacated by Glenn Beck, which means Huckabee can maintain a high profile and grow rich in the bargain.

For Donald Trump, the decision was even more straightforward. He wanted to run, his family wanted him to run, but his hair said no. Sorry. Couldn't resist. In reality, Trump decided being the developer of incredibly vulgar buildings was more appealing than leading the free world.

"I have spent the past several months unofficially campaigning and recognize that running for public office cannot be done half-heartedly," Trump said. "Ultimately, however, business is my greatest passion, and I am not ready to leave the private sector."

Some think running in the primaries carries a huge upside: Everybody gets to know you better. But running in the primaries also carries a huge downside: Everybody gets to know you better.

You think Rudy Giuliani is a happier man today because he ran in the primaries of 2008? He was the only Republican who entered the primaries and didn't get a single delegate at the nominating convention.

Heck, Duncan Hunter got one. Alan Keyes got two. And Fred Thompson got 11, even though he rarely left his hotel room.

But Huckabee is out, even though he came in second in the 2008 delegate count. And while I do not doubt him when he says his reasons are primarily spiritual, I do doubt the political analysts who say he would have done better this time than last.

The Republican Party of today is not the Republican Party of 2008. It has gotten a lot more strident, a lot more shrill and a lot more just plain vicious. I interviewed Huckabee in Iowa just before he came in an unexpected second in the Ames Straw Poll in the summer of 2007. This led to his victory in the Iowa caucuses in 2008, which unfortunately for him turned out to be the emotional and political high point of his campaign.

"I'm a conservative, but I'm not mad at anybody," he told me in a mantra that came to symbolize his campaign. Iowans liked that. Republicans in Iowa tend to be more conservative than Republicans in other states, but they are still Iowans. For the most part, they are not haters. And they liked Huckabee's low-key, down-home charm.

"I can't buy you, I don't have the money, I can't even rent you," Huckabee told the crowd at Ames. "The straw poll is not about electing a straw man, but giving the people of Iowa a chance to prove they are mature voters and savvy. They are buying the cereal, not just the box."

But Huckabee wasn't some naïf with hayseed in his hair and the dew still wet behind his ears. He was an experienced politician. And contrary to some recent rewriting of history, Huckabee did have a staff, he did have advisors, and they did a good job. Huckabee also knew, on occasion, how to shiv the other guy.

Just after Mitt Romney made a nationally televised speech asking people not to discriminate against him because of his religion, Huckabee asked in a New York Times magazine article, "Don't Mormons believe that Jesus and the devil are brothers?"

For the record, a spokesman for the Mormon Church said that Mormons do not believe this. And Huckabee did apologize. It seemed unlike him. But that is what campaigns do to you.

In 2008, the Republicans were just playing Whack-A-Mole with each other, however. In 2012, they will be using tactical nukes. The media will have no Democratic race to divide their attention, and every sharp elbow, every punch to the chin and hook to the ribs will be covered, echoed and magnified.

"The hardest thing about any political campaign is how to win without proving that you are unworthy of winning," Adlai E. Stevenson once said.

It's tough to do. Sometimes too tough.

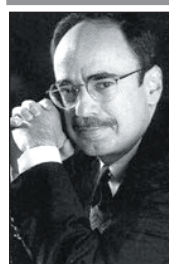

Which may be the real reason why Mike Huckabee is going to sit this one out.

Why not check this out? At the county library

Great news! The downstairs children's room and two meeting rooms have been painted in some great colors. Now it is time for the main floor to be painted. Because it can be such a messy job, the library will be closed today, Thursday and Friday. The phone will be answered, so if you need to renew materials, we can do that.

HOLLIS

Staff will be here moving books, processing books and other library tasks. We will be open Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Summer is almost here and that means summers hour will be in effect. The library will close at 3 p.m. Friday, May 27 for the Memorial Day holiday weekend. We will reopen at 10 a.m. Tuesday, May 31. Our hours for the summer will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday and we will be closed Saturdays throughout June, July and August. More new biographies are in. You may choose from political, historical and stars from television, stage, music and movies. I won't try to describe them; it would take two or three columns to do so. From history comes "Mary Tudor: Princess, Bastard, Queen" (B TUD M) by Anna White-lock. This is a very in-depth, contemporary look at the first queen to inherit the throne in England.

From stars of the television and movie screen, we now have "Bossypants" (B FEY T) from Tina Fey; Ashley Judd's bio, "All That is Bitter and Sweet" (B JUD A); "With Love and Laughter, John Ritter" (B RIT J), by his wife Amy Yasbeck; and "I'm Over That" (B MAC S), from Shirley MacLaine.

From the music world comes "My Life As I See It" (B WARD), by Dionne Warwick. When I see or hear of Dionne, I remember the marvelous Burt Bacharach songs she sang. We also have "Fab: An Intimate Life of Paul McCartney" (B McC P), by Howard Sounes. I can't believe that Paul is 75.

While some of these may not be "new" mysteries, we have either replaced old ones or they are new to the collection. One of my favorite authors is J.A. Jance. Ali Reynolds is remodeling her home and didn't expect that to be put on hold. Her contractor is charged with murder and Ali is determined to get him out of jail and found innocent. "Cruel Intent" (M JAN J) by Jance combines internet dating and a serial murderer in a fast-paced mystery.

A couple of "old" authors, Agatha Christie and Rex Stout, still remain favorites in the genre. We have "The Amazing Miss Marple" and "Murder at the Manor" (M CHR A) by Christie and each book has three of her mysteries starring Miss Marple. Two complete novels by Rex Stout, "Ferde-Lance" and "The League of Frightened Men" (M STOR), are combined in one book to take home and read.

From Richard Paul Evans comes the second volume in the Walk Series, "Miles to Go" (F EVAR). Alan Christoffersen finds himself injured, alone and in the hospital. After a traumatic event, he had sold all that he had and is on a journey to recover. This is his story of renewal and of Angel, a woman who befriended him.

Lila is confronted by the suicide-by-cop death of her twin brother, Billy. Reeling from the loss of a sibling and subsequent result, Lisa must confront heartbreak experienced years ago what is true and what is not. Lisa Tucker, in her third novel, "The Promised World" (F TUC L) retains her unique gift for depicting the bewildering world of love, the quest to belong and the deep desire for a place to call home.

New York Times best selling author, Karen Robards is back with another thriller. "Pursuit" (F ROB K) will take rookie lawyer Jessica Ford on a roller coaster ride. Jessica is the only survivor from an accident that killed three passengers, including the President's wife. Reeling from injuries and cloudy memories of the accident, people surrounding her begin dying. Will she be next? Secret Service agent Mark Ryan smells a conspiracy and is determined to find the truth.

C.J. Box writes the Joe Pickett mystery series, but has branched out into thrillers. In "Three Weeks to Say Goodbye" (F PIC C), Jack and Melissa McGuane have spent years trying to have a baby. Their dream comes true with adoption of a little girl. The dream is shattered when a call from the adoption agency informs that the adoption is being contested as the father did not sign away his rights. Something is not right and the McGuanes are determined to fight for their daughter.

EFFECT OF DOMESTIC ABUSE ON CHILDREN

In homes where domestic violence occurs, children are at high risk of suffering physical abuse themselves. Regardless of whether children are physically abused or not, the emotional effects of witnessing domestic violence are very similar to the psychological trauma associated with being a victim of child abuse. Each year, an estimated minimum of 3.3 million children witness domestic violence.

There are several general reactions that children from violent homes are likely to show. The same emotional reaction can be acted out differently according to the child's age.

- Feeling responsible for the abuse
A child might think, "if I had been a good girl/boy daddy wouldn't have hit mommy."
- Constant Anxiety
Even when things are calm, one never knows when the next fight will start.
- Guilt for not stopping the abuse
Children can experience guilt over the good feelings they have about the abuser.
- Grief
Children who are separated from the abuser are in the process of grieving over the loss. Children may also grieve over losing the lifestyle and positive image of the abuser they had before the violence began.
- Ambivalence
Not knowing how one feels or having two opposite emotions at the same time is very difficult for children. A child who says, "I don't know how I feel about it," may not be hedging but rather is confused about feelings.
- Fear of abandonment
Children removed from one parent as a result of violent acts may have strong fears that the other parent could also leave them or die. Thus, a child may refuse to leave the mother, even for short time periods.
- Need for excessive adult attention
This need can be especially troublesome for mothers who are trying to deal with their own pain and decisions.
- Fear of physical harm to themselves
A significant percentage of witnessing children are also abused. They may worry that the abuser will find them and abduct or harm them or that the abuser will be angry and retaliate when they return home.
- Embarrassment
Especially for older children, sensitivity to the stigma of spouse abuse may result in shame.
- Worry about the future
The uncertainty within their daily lives may make children feel that life will continue to be unpredictable.

Study: Homosexuality, celibacy not to blame for clergy abuse; social upheaval of '60s cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers commissioned by the nation's Roman Catholic bishops to analyze the pattern of clergy sex abuse so dioceses could better identify offenders have concluded that homosexuality, celibacy and an all-male priesthood did not cause the scandal.

The study by the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York instead said that the problem was largely the result of poor seminary training and insufficient emotional support for men ordained in the 1940s and 1950s, who were not able to withstand the social upheaval they confronted as pastors in the 1960s. Crime and other deviant behavior increased overall in the United States during this period, when the rate of abuse by priests was climbing.

"The rise in abuse cases in the 1960s and 1970s was influenced by social factors in society generally," the report's authors said. "Factors that were invariant during the time period addressed, such as celibacy, were not responsible for the increase or decline in abuse cases over this time."

Victims' groups dismissed the report as an attempt to focus blame for the scandal on priests, instead of on bishops who allowed offenders to stay in ministry without warning parents or police. "They want us to fixate on abusive priests, not callous bishops," the Survivors Network of those Abused by Priests said in a statement.

The report, set to be released Wednesday, is the third study commissioned by the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops in 2002, when the abuse crisis erupted in the Archdiocese of Boston and caused what church leaders have called the deepest crisis in American Catholicism. A person close to the bishops provided an early copy to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity since the person was not authorized to release the information.

APNewsBreak: Documents left by FBI suggest probe of anti-war activists rooted in Colombia trip

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Documents federal agents left behind during a September raid of an anti-war activist's home shed some light on the evolution of an investigation into apparent connections between local activists and radical groups in Colombia and the Middle East.

One document says the case was initially based on activities of two local activists — including their travels to terrorist-controlled areas of Colombia — then expanded to include 16 more people in six states accused of providing material support to terrorists in Colombia or Palestine.

Twenty-three people in Minneapolis, Chicago and Grand Rapids, Mich., have been subpoenaed to appear before a grand jury in Illinois. Authorities haven't revealed the targets of the investigation or its exact nature, other than to say it involves activities concerning the material support of terrorism.

No one has been charged, and activists say none of them have testified before the grand jury.

The documents were found at the Minneapolis home of longtime-time war activist Mick Kelly on April 30 and given to The Associated Press this week. Kelly's home was among those raided by the FBI in September.

French politician on suicide watch in NYC jail; maid's lawyer says attack destroyed her life

NEW YORK (AP) — The maid came from one of the world's poorest countries and worked long hours trying to support the teen daughter she raised alone. The penthouse suite at the Sofitel Hotel was just another room; she had no idea the man she says tried to rape her was a famous French politician.

The man, Dominique Strauss-Kahn, remained jailed under a suicide watch Wednesday as a lawyer for the woman sought to rebut whispered allegations that her charges were a conspiracy and a setup.

Calls intensified for the 62-year-old Strauss-Kahn to step down as head of the powerful International Monetary Fund, with U.S. Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner saying Strauss-Kahn "is obviously not in a position to run" the agency.

Strauss-Kahn was one of France's most high-profile politicians and a potential candidate for president in next year's elections. His arrest on charges including attempted rape shocked France and cast intense attention on his accuser, a 32-year-old chambermaid from the West African nation of Guinea.

On Tuesday her lawyer, Jeffrey Shapiro, said he had no doubts his client was telling the truth about her encounter with Strauss-Kahn on Saturday.

Protesters accuse NATO of killing civilians in night raid; 11 killed in clash with security KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Some 1,500 protesters poured into the streets of a northern Afghan city Wednesday, shouting "Death to America!" and calling for justice as they clashed with security forces following an overnight NATO raid they claim killed four civilians.

At least 11 people were killed as the protesters fought with police and tried to assault a NATO outpost in the city of Taloqan, the capital of Takhar province.

The NATO raid they were protesting took place hours before on the outskirts of the city.

Opening lead — eight of diamonds.

In April 1989, a match billed as the "Marathon Bridge Battle of the Sexes" took place in New York and Paris. The nonstop, two-week-long, round-the-clock match between an all-male team and an all-female team, playing the same hands simultaneously at the two sites, ended in a narrow victory for the men.

The event, the brainchild of former New York Times bridge columnist Alan Truscott, established many records, including the longest continuous match (2,352 deals) and the most players participating in a match

(more than 1,000). It also raised more than $15,000 for charity.

This deal, played by R. Jay Becker (no relation to this writer) in New York, contributed to a strong comeback by the men after they had fallen behind. Becker reached four hearts as shown. East won the opening diamond lead and shifted to a trump. Declarer won and smoothly led the spade three, which rode to East's ten. The defense was now helpless.

In practice, East returned a diamond to dummy's king. Becker then drew the last trump and led another spade to East's king, endplaying her. Whether she returned a diamond or a club, declarer had the remainder.

If instead East had cashed the king of spades before returning a diamond, declarer would simply ruff a spade, cross to the eight of hearts and ruff another spade to establish a discard for his losing club.

The only chance for the defense is for West to put up the spade ace at trick three and shift to a club, playing for East to have both black kings. This is not unreasonable, since if South has the club king, he already has at least 10 tricks, while at the same time he is hardly likely to lead a low spade from his hand if he holds the king.

The same contract was beaten when the deal was played in Paris, so the men gained 10 IMPs.

Family of Amarillo man sues police over his death

AMARILLO (AP) — The family of a Texas man fatally shot by police while allegedly driving toward officers during a downtown brawl has filed a $10 million federal lawsuit.

The civil rights lawsuit is on behalf of survivors of 24-year-old Claudio Trujillo of Amarillo.

A Potter County grand jury last week found no wrongdoing by Amarillo police during the incident early Jan. 30. Police have said that Trujillo refused to stop. He died several days after being shot multiple times.

The Amarillo Globe-News reported Wednesday that the lawsuit accuses police of gross negligence, excessive force and failure to properly train officers.

Trujillo family attorney Jesse Quakenbush the city was asked to settle the case but refused.

Texas asks court to uphold polygamist conviction

AUSTIN (AP) — Prosecutors plan to ask an appellate court Wednesday to uphold the sexual assault conviction of a polygamist sect member in the first appeal stemming from the 2008 raid of a West Texas ranch — a massive sweep that set off one of the largest child custody cases in U.S. history.

Michael Emack, 60, pleaded no contest last year to sexually assaulting a 16-year-old girl and was sentenced to seven years in prison. The Fundamental Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints claims Emack entered the plea because he doubted he could get a fair trial in the small West Texas county where jurors have reliably convicted sect members since the raid on the Yearning for Zion ranch.

Both sides are scheduled to give oral arguments Wednesday before the 3rd District Court of Appeals, where Emack's attorneys are expected to rip into the search warrant obtained by Texas authorities. The FLDS church has long claimed the raid was invalid because it was triggered by phone calls that turned out to be a hoax.

The calls to a domestic abuse hotline claimed to be from a 16-year-old mother being abused on the ranch in Eldorado. Authorities later learned the girl didn't exist.

"The six-day siege of the YFZ Ranch community in April of 2008 was a law enforcement debacle of unprecedented scope and magnitude," wrote Gerald Goldstein.

Dallas rethinking plans for Riverfront Boulevard

DALLAS (AP) — A proposal to transform Riverfront Boulevard in Dallas into a gateway to planned lakes and parks along the Trinity River is facing development trouble.

City staffers on Tuesday presented five options to the Dallas City Council's Trinity Project committee, including putting the $54 million project on hold unless new development can be attracted.

The Dallas Morning News reported that the other options are continue with plans for an eight-lane thoroughfare with a cycle track, create six travel lanes with two on-street bike lanes, focus on improving the streetscape with minimal pavement changes or a combination of those options.

Dallas has $40 million in bond money available for road reconstruction.

Chairman Dave Neumann suggested no decision be made until council members get more information.

Chamber tourney tees off Friday

By AMANDA MORENO
Staff Writer

This weekend, teams will face off at the Crossroads of West Texas Golf Classic.

The Chamber of Commerce will be hosting its annual golf tournament May 20, 21 and 22 at the Big Spring Country Club Golf Course.

"This is a great way for the Chamber to raise funds," Scott Mackenzie, chairman of the Chamber golf tournament, said. "The more funds that can be raised, the more the chamber can do for its members."

The tournament will be a two-man scramble with an entry fee of $200 per team. Included in the fee are beverages, access to the Atmos Hospitality Tent, the Friday afternoon shootout and lunch Saturday and Sunday. Teams will be competing to take home 90 percent of the winnings. According to Mackenzie, winners may receive pro shop merchandise at 100 percent of winnings or may take cash at 70 percent winnings.

"The money raised goes toward helping the chamber and all its causes," Debbie ValVerde, executive director, said. "We try to think of ways to get non-dues revenue to help get us through the year."

The entries must be accompanied by cash, check or credit card and the deadline for refunds has passed, according to ValVerde. Registrations will be taken until Saturday morning but is limited to the first 100 paid teams.

"This is a fun event that we want everyone to come out and take part in," ValVerde said.

The tournament has received numerous compliments in the past and has showed success in the past years, according to ValVerde. The event is made possible, not only through the participants, but the sponsors as well.

"We are always accepting sponsors," ValVerde said.

The Chamber extends their gratitude to all of their sponsors: Atmos Energy, Big Spring Herald, GEO Group, Inc., NRG Energy-Elbow Creek, Papa John's, Partee Drilling, Walmart, Water Water-Culligan, Alon USA, American State Bank, BK Self Storage, Cowboys Steak House, KBST/KBTS the Fuse, Oncor, Back in Motion Chiropractic, Holiday Inn Express, KBYG-AM-FM/KXCX FM Classic Rock, Phillips Fabrication, State National Bank.

"There are still plenty of spots available for those wanting to take part in the tournament," Mackenzie said.

To be a sponsor or to find out more information contact the Chamber at 263-7641. To register for the tournament call the Big Spring Country Club at 267-5354.

Unstoppable Dirk powers Mavs to win

DALLAS (AP) — Facing a long, boring wait for his next playoff game, Dirk Nowitzki did what he normally does. He went to the gym.

There were daytime sessions with his Dallas Mavericks teammates, of course, but also return trips at night. Knowing a chance for a return trip to the NBA finals was coming up, Nowitzki wanted to make sure his wide array of shots were as fine-tuned as ever.

When the Western Conference finals opened Tuesday night, Nowitzki acted as if the Oklahoma City Thunder and the 20,911 fans in the arena were merely there to watch another of his late-night workouts.

Inside, outside and from the foul line, Nowitzki put up a total of 39 shots and missed just three. He scored 48 points, leading the Mavericks to a 121-112 victory and answering any question about whether the long layoff might've left his club rusty.

"I really looked for my shot early and was able to get a good rhythm," said Nowitzki, who also had six rebounds, four assists and four blocks. "For a shooter, obviously when the first couple go in, that's even better for the confidence, and I just attacked from there. So, yeah, it was a good game."

It didn't matter whether Nowitzki was being covered by someone big or small, one guy or two. He simply made 10 of his first 11 field goals, and 12 of 15 overall. He was perfect on 24 free throws, setting an NBA postseason record for most foul shots made without a miss.

His 48 points were the most by anyone this postseason. It was two shy of his most ever in a playoff game, which came in the finale of the 2006 Western Conference finals. The Thunder better figure out a way to slow him soon, or else Dallas will be headed to the title round again.

"We feel like every year, every new season in the playoffs is a new opportunity for us," said Nowitzki, still stinging from blowing a 2-0 lead in the 2006 finals. "We're just trying to go for it."

Rangers blow 3-run lead, fall to Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Matt Harrison felt bad about the pitch to Brent Morel. He felt even worse about the two walks earlier in the inning.

Harrison got too much of the plate on a fastball to Morel with two out in the fifth, and the White Sox third baseman hit the ball over the wall in left-center for a tying three-run homer in the Texas Rangers' 4-3 loss to Chicago on Tuesday night.

"Even though I made the mistake to Morel, if I make that mistake without the walks, 3-1 ballgame," Harrison said. "That was the whole key to the game. Two walks, two bad walks and made a mistake over the plate and it tied the game up. We had the momentum there and I let them back in the game."

Carlos Quentin began the White Sox eighth with a walk. He was erased on a fielder's choice but Alex Rios walked to put runners on first and second.

Harrison then struck out Gordon Beckham before Morel connected for his first homer of the season.

"We had Morel in the hole 1-2 and got a fastball up and didn't miss it," Rangers manager Ron Washington said. "From that point on, it looked like the momentum changed and we couldn't get anything going."

Endy Chavez had two hits and reached four times for Texas, which has dropped eight of its last 11 road games.

Texas' Michael Young singled in the eighth to extend his road hitting streak to a career-best 17 games.

"Tonight we just didn't get the big knock," Young said. "It's all right, we've been doing it the last week or so. We'll be all right."

Beckham sparked the winning rally with a leadoff walk in the eighth. Beckham made it all the way to third on pinch-hitter Dallas McPherson's one-out single and scored when Cody Eppley (1-1) bounced his first pitch to Alexei Ramirez.

"I just couldn't get my slider where I wanted it tonight," Eppley said. "It was staying out there all night."

McPherson was promoted when Mark Teahen went on the disabled list earlier in the day. The bouncer up the middle was his first hit since Sept. 10, 2008, for Florida at Philadelphia.

"It was nice to get that one out of the way," a grinning McPherson said.

#7004 May 18 & 25, 2011

The day after the full moon feels something like the day after a big party. You'll be processing the events of yesterday and last night as you clean up the various messes that were made in the name of fun. You might also be moved to pick up the phone and thank the people in your life who have shared in your "celebration."

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll communicate well. You may not be able to avoid confrontation, but with your honest and direct approach, at least you can make it brief and relatively painless.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Juggle, march, draw or dance. These kinds of activities build right brain to left brain communication. There's nothing you can't do once you get both hemispheres working together.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll slip into a positive state this morning and stay there all day long. While in this happy mood, every problem has a solution, and you are a bubbling font of creativity.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The task at hand will be unusually challenging. It doesn't all have to be accomplished in one day, though. Perhaps this is best approached with short blasts of intense focus followed by long breaks

Tomorrow's Horoscope

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You might be feeling overwhelmed by the results you've been getting from yourself lately. You know that you are capable of greater things. Practice is key. Be diligent.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). This will be a highly productive day. You'll complete an entire unit of work. You'll start out strong and finish even stronger. Get a cheerleader to motivate you through the middle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You'll do your best with many people around. You need to bounce your ideas off of a variety of different characters. The response you get will lead to new and improved ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The one who sees you as a tower of strength will open up and show a vulnerable side. You'll be a comfort, and you'll also provide practical help in ways that will surprise you both.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll have luck with joint ventures. You trust the other person, but you both need to understand exactly what you're agreeing upon. Put the details on paper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You're not trying to be anyone else, and yet you'll notice that you've picked up a few habits from those you admire. Soon these behaviors will be so automatic that they'll feel like a natural part of you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-

Feb. 18). Your imagination is vivid. The lines between what is real and unreal are blurred. Also, you'll give a great deal of thought to planes of existence beyond physical reality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're trying to do a job well, though it's not as easy as you once thought it would be. Stop trying to be good at it. Try to be bad at it instead. The freedom will liberate you from mental blocks.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 18). You'll enjoy improved health and vitality as you moderate your vices and add zesty habits to your routine. Your home will be a place of peace, tranquility and, after the renovations that happen in June, beauty. New meetings in July are life-changers. There's a reason to travel in August. You'll close a deal in September. Cancer and Aquarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 38, 28, 31 and 2.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: I'm a Virgo with Virgo rising. I feel I have been consistently under-confident in my life. I do not seem to have a fair way of evaluating my own efforts. The reason I know this is because I have undercut myself at many junctures. Once, I didn't enter a photography contest because I felt that my photos wouldn't do well. Later, when I took a stroll through the winning entries, I realized that my photos were on par with most of what I was seeing. I should have entered and taken my chances. I naturally assumed I wouldn't do well, but I had no evidence. I do this in every area of life. I don't want to limit myself like this anymore. How do I break the habit?

The phrase associated with Virgo is "I analyze." The ability to measure and compare is a useful skill without which the modern world wouldn't exist. As a photographer and in other areas of life, you use this ability to shape and control your results. You might say that collecting data and managing details are your superpowers — the tools you use to attain perfection, or to get as near to it as you possibly can. To be continued tomorrow...

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Former head writer of "Saturday Night Live," Tina Fey is now becoming a favorite guest host of the show. The busy producer, writer, actress, author and mom is forever on the go. Her natal sun, Mercury and Saturn in Taurus indicates deep wells of emotional and physical strength, stamina and stability. It comes as no surprise that the majority of Fey's planets are in intellectual air signs.

The Spider

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was the editor of a small Missouri paper.

One day, he received a letter from a subscriber stating that he had found a spider in his paper and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied, "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever after."
