The Big Spring Film Society is looking for a few good men ... and women.

The local film society is looking for volunteers to help with its final screening of the season Saturday, Sept. 24, when the organization plans to present "The Dar Crystal" at Big Spring State Park.

According to Film Society Chairman Brandon Johnson, the screening — part of the group's annual summer screening series which began this year with "Back to the Future" and "Ghostbusters" represents a major accomplishment for the organization.

"We've seen so much support from the community this year," Johnson said. "The screenings have been really well attended, and so many

Rick Perry to halt the execution because of a psychologist's testimony that black people were more likely to commit violence. Buck's guilt is not being questioned, but his lawyers contend the testimony unfairly influenced the jury and Buck should receive a new sentencing

Defense makes closing case in redistricting trial SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Attorneys for the state are giving their final defense of Texas' new redistricting plan before a federal court. The two-week trial was expected to finish Friday, after the state's closing arguments before a threejudge federal panel in San Antonio. The plaintiffs, including minority groups and Democrats, wrapped up their arguments Thursday.

Several minority and Democratic groups sued the state, saying the new map doesn't reflect a statewide surge in Hispanic growth over the past decade. They want more so-called "opportunity districts" for Hispanic voters to elect the candidate of

Few Texas districts rated highly in schools report

MESQUITE (AP) — Texas school districts have shown little progress in the two years since the state started measuring them for academic performance and district spending, with only about 4 percent of the districts earning the top rating, according to a report released Thursday.

The report from Comptroller Susan Combs nearly mirrored those from the report's debut last year. Of the 46 districts getting the top rating of five stars this year — three more than last year — half got the designation in both years, including the suburban Dallas school district of Mesquite.

Combs said she would like to see an increase in those getting the top rating but noted that the purpose of the study was to inspire districts.

volunteers to help with the screening," Johnson said. "Whether it's helping to set up the screen and equipment or just helping pick up afterwards, we really appreciate the folks who are willing to donate a bit of their time to make these screenings fun for the whole family."

The film, which was released in 1983 and is Rated-PG, takes place in a different time and planet, where, 1,000 years ago, the mysterious Dark Crystal was damaged by one of the Urskeks and an age of chaos began. The evil race of gro-

Undermining the democracy

t is the dirtiest form of politics, the kind usually practiced by unscrupulous political operatives who seek advantage, even at the risk of eroding and undermining our precious democracy. It goes against everything we stand for, and yet we've seen it practiced throughout our history. When some people feel they can't win an election fairly, they turn to voter suppression. If you can keep your opponents from voting, you'll win! It's very undemocratic and thus, very un-American, but ironically, you often see it coming from those who claim to be the ultimate American patriots

While it would be comforting to think that voter intimidation and suppression were vanished by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, a 2004 report issued by two civil rights organizations concluded that African-Americans and other minorities "have faced calculated and determined efforts at intimidation and suppression" in every national American election since 1965.

and defenders of our Constitu-

"The bloody days of violence and retribution following the Civil War and Reconstruction are gone," noted the report by the National Association of Advancement for Colored People, NAACP, and People for the American Way. "The poll taxes, literacy tests and physical violence of the Jim Crow era have disappeared. Today, more subtle, cynical and creative tactics have taken their place." Indeed, they have! If that was true in 2004, it's even truer in 2011. Back then, the report titled "The Long Shadow of Jim Crow: Voter Intimidation and Suppression in America Today" was mostly about scattered efforts to deny the right to vote to small groups of voters. But now there is a new report, in the Sept. 15 edition of Rolling Stone magazine, which documents numerous efforts to prevent millions of Americans from voting the 2012 presidential elections.

In "The GOP War on Voting" investigative journalist Ari Berman asserts: "Republican officials have launched an unprecedented, centrally coordinated campaign to suppress the elements of the Democratic vote that elected Barack Obama in 2008." He shows how "a new crop of GOP governors and state legislators has passed a series of seemingly disconnected measures that could prevent millions of students, minorities, immigrants, ex-convicts and the elderly from casting ballots" and concludes that "taken together, such measures could significantly dampen the Democratic turnout next vear — perhaps enough to shift the outcome in favor of the GOP." The 2004 report noted that plainclothes officers were used to intimidate elderly black voters in Florida, that there were efforts to place "vote challengers" in African-American and other minority voting precincts in Kentucky, and that Native Americans were prevented from voting in South Dakota because they didn't have photo IDs.

But now Berman reports that "the most important tactic in the Republican war on voting" is the number of states requiring a government-issued photo ID, with the intention of disenfranchising many minority voters. He notes that among the dozen states that have approved new obstacles to voting, six states will now require voters to produce government-issued IDs, including two that will also require proof of U.S. citizenship.

The 2004 report cited the distribution of fliers urging Louisiana African-Americans to vote on the wrong date and brochures in South Carolina claiming that law enforcement agents would be "working" the 1998 election, warning voters that "this election is not worth going to jail."

But those were normally smallscale, anonymous cheap shots taken by the most extremist factions of the Republican Party.

Things are different now that those factions seem to be in control of the GOP. We now are seeing much more serious, formal efforts to suppress minority voters. Now these cheap shots are on a grand scale!

In his excellent article, Berman explains that — aside from the ID requirements — a GOP coordinated and funded effort to disenfranchise potentially democratic voters is concentrated in three other kev areas:

- Creating barriers to voter registration by threatening to fine and prosecute volunteers in voter registration drives who fail to jump through a series of bureaucratic hoops. Berman reports that Florida and Texas already have made it harder for groups like the League of Women Voters to register new voters.

- Curtailing early voting, to prevent Democrats from securing minority voters even before Election Day, as President Barack Obama did in 2008. Berman reports that Florida, Georgia, Ohio, Tennessee and West Virginia already have cut short their early voting periods.

- Denying the right to vote to former prisoners, most of whom are blacks and Latinos, who tend to vote for Democrats. Or requiring former felons to apply for the right to vote once they are released from prison. Berman reports that Florida and Iowa already have barred all ex-felons from the polls, disenfranchising thousands of previously eligible voters.

Amazingly, all this rush to diminish one of the most basic principles of democracy — our right to vote — is based on what Berman rightfully calls "the phantom menace of voter fraud." While Republicans claim voter fraud is rampant — the motive for all their efforts to change election laws around the country — while they tell us that illegal immigrants, dead people and other ineligible voters are electing Democrats, Berman quotes a 2007 New York University Law School report that asserts, "It is more likely that an individual will be struck by lightning than that he will impersonate another voter at the polls."

According to "The GOP War on Voting," out of the 300 million votes cast between 2002 and 2007, "federal prosecutors convicted only 86 people for voter fraud – and many of the cases involved immigrants and former felons who were simply unaware of their ineligibility."

Bottom line: Charges of voter fraud are a cheap excuse for suppressing minority voters who are likely to vote for Democrats. Many Republicans have been so viciously anti-immigrant during the past decade that they obviously figure there's nothing they can do to win over Latino voters. and thus, some resort to undemocratic tactics.

In a country where voter apathy is obviously a much bigger problem than voter fraud, instead of trying to increase the number of American voters, some politicians actually try to decrease voter participation. It's disgraceful.

But that's what you get when unscrupulous and un-American political operatives are so anxious to win elections that they are willing to suppress minority voting and undermine our democracy.

've joined a new and growing minority. In fact, in New York City, we are practically a majority (about 47 percent), although nationally, we stand at 27 percent.

We're the people who live alone. Now, in my case, I'm not really alone. Every night when I come home, I am greeted by the most faithful friends any girl could have: Judy, Molly and Irving A. Estrich. My dogs. Whoever does these counts doesn't include them, proving only that they are probably not dog owners. And my children tell me they will be back — at least for visits. But they both have "homes" in their college dorms.

Which is, of course, as it should I am incredibly proud of both of my children. They don't especially like me to write about them, so I'll leave it at that, but fine people.

they are both fine students and I know how lucky I am. I have friends whose kids haven't made it that far, who end up in rehab instead of college, or who never manage to leave home at all.

It is the way of the world, the way it should be, that our children grow up. If we've done our jobs right, we spend their childhoods and teen years teaching them to do just that — to grow their wings and use them, to develop their independence and self-sufficiency, in short, to leave.

But it still stinks. It's still unbelievably difficult and painfully emotional. That's just it.

I know what I'm supposed to do. Be graceful. Keep busy — and not just working, which is what I tend to do. Remember old hob-Think back to all the times when I thought if only I had a little time and space for myself. Now I do. I'm definitely not supposed to make my kids feel bad for leaving me, and if either of them is reading, they should just stop. It's fine.

I knew it was coming.

When my children were younger, I remember thinking one day that if only I could just freeze it right there — stop time and stay the youngish mother with the youngish children who couldn't even imagine an empty nest. But there is an old Jewish lesson about that, a lesson that tells us that, really, we would never do that; no loving parent would ever want to deny their children the challenges and opportunities, the life, of growing up. Even if it means they leave. Even if it means we grow old.

No, I understand my part. I'm writing now to those of you who are younger, whose kids are still at home, who are still lucky enough to be in what I will always think of as the "wonder years" of my life. When you're there, everyone tells you how fast it will go, but you don't believe them. When you're stressed out and sleep deprived, when your kids tell you how everything you do is wrong, when you feel unappreciated and unloved — and every parent does sometimes — it certainly doesn't feel like it's going so fast.

But here's my report from the other end: It does go fast. Terribly fast. And the older you get the faster it goes.

So enjoy. I wasn't looking forward to joining my new club. But I am grateful for all those "wonder years" and for the wonders that being a mother has brought to my life. And I can't wait till they come home.

Paddling your own canoe ho would have thought that a line from a poem written one hundred sixty years ago would become a motto of self-reliance? Although there are differing opinions about the earliest use of the words "paddle you own canoe," it seems likely that the phrase was first printed in a poem written by Sarah Bolton in 1851.

WHEAT

The poem, addressed to a voyager upon life's sea, is entitled Paddle Your Own Canoe. The title, which is also the theme of the poem, is repeated multiple times starting with the challenge:

"To yourself be true, And whatever your lot may be, Paddle your own canoe."

The theme of self-reliance continues with the final admonition: "Leave to Heaven, in humble trust,

All you will to do:

But if you would succeed, you must Paddle your own canoe."

As early as 1870, an author named Horatio Alger Jr. wrote a novel called Paddle Your Own Canoe; or, the Fortunes of Walter Conrad. The story is about Walter Conrad, the son of a wealthy man, left penniless by his father's death and the unscrupulous schemes of his relatives. In the story, Walter becomes a successful businessman by paddling

The concept of paddling one's own canoe was further popularized in 1939 when Lord Baden-

Powell, a British military hero and the founder of the Scout Movement published yet another book by the name of Paddle Your Own Canoe.

While I admit that I have never actually paddled a canoe or even rowed a boat. I've always been grateful that my parents instilled a work ethic into me by their example and expectation. Work and responsibility were the oars that keep my youthful boat afloat and the same paddles have kept my canoe upright throughout the storms of adult life.

Although the Bible emphasizes reliance on God above self-reliance, I believe the concept of paddling one's own canoe is scripturally sound. When the problem of idleness arose in the Thessalonian church, the apostle Paul wrote to the believers: "For even when we were with you, we used to give you this order: if anyone is not willing to work, then he is not to eat, either. For we hear that some among you are leading an undisciplined life, doing no work at all, but acting like busybodies"(2 Thessalonians 3:10 NASB).

In a day when entitlements are demanded and handouts often are expected but not appreciated, perhaps we all need to remember the value of learning to paddle our own canoe.

earn to go the extra mile went to Walmart the other day, something I do as a part of the middle class ritual. Sometimes I visit other stores with fewer choices and higher prices just to avoid crowds. But Walmart sells fishing licenses. I don't know why Texas Parks and Wildlife decided to set their annual renewal on Sept. 1. And I don't know when I will go fishing. But at least I will be ready. After all, waiting until later in the year doesn't save anything. The license costs the same now as it will cost next June. While at Walmart, I thought I would pick up a few items for my new diet. I am trying to lose weight again. Three peaches, two bags of frozen vegetables and a box of rice. I didn't think these staples would get me through a Cowboy game, but maybe, if I eat enough vegetables and rice, it will keep me out of trouble.

I was clearly under the express limit of 20 items so I went to the express check out and got in line. I stood behind a young Hispanic woman who was obviously pregnant and had a small child on her hip. She started emptying her cart onto the counter. In all, she had well over 40 items, including, cases of Coke and a large sack of potatoes. She piled up the counter not once, but twice. I smiled and was patient. The cashier was apologetic that she did not see the woman's cart before she unloaded it. Several customers behind me rolled their eyes, groaned and asked if the girl couldn't read. I waited, smiled, bought my items and did not complain. "Maybe she made a mistake and got in the wrong line," I thought. Anyway, we ought to give a break to a young woman with a child on her hip and a baby in her womb. She is trying to feed and take care of her family. I am just buying a fishing license and trying to stay on a diet. I was feeling rather good about myself for not complaining or rolling my eyes. After I got home I started thinking. Why didn't I offer to help the young woman? I could have lifted the potatoes and cases of Coke. I could have helped her with her basket. Was it enough to simply smile and not complain? I could imagine

News in brief

In fierce push, Libyan fighters stream into Bani Walid

BANI WALID, Libya (AP) — Libyan fighters are streaming into Bani Walid, one of the remaining bastions of ousted leader Moammar Gadhafi, in a new fierce push.

The revolutionary forces, in dozens of pickup trucks mounted with heavy weapons, are making their way from the north into the town center.

Explosions and gunfire can be heard and smoke was seen billowing in the distance as fierce clashes got under way between the fighters and Gadhafi loyalists in this town, 90 miles (140 kilometers) southeast of Tripoli.

One of the fighters, Hisham Nseir says the frontline is "very heated and chaotic" and that his troops are meeting with heavy resistance from Gahdafi's could turn a person to stone — was hailed as key to helping plan the Navy SEAL raid against Osama bin Laden and to guiding NATO and rebel forces in Libva, Carlson said. The NRO was founded during the Cold War on Sept. 6, 1961, to spy on the Soviet Union, China and other enemies in the U.S. battle against communism. Today it operates satellites to spot roadside bombs in Afghanistan, helping combat arguably the enemy's deadliest weapon in America's latest war. The NRO still spies on Russia and China.

Carlson, a former Air Force general, was blisteringly blunt about the NRO's recent mistakes; namely, how it ran up a multibillion-dollar bill trying to develop the failed "Future Imagery Architecture" satellite program. FIA, as it was known, was supposed to create a new generation of smaller, cheaper optical and radar satellites.

day as investors cautiously sought to capitalize on exchange before settling at 9.80 Swiss francs, an increase of 0.6 percent following their 10 percent slump the day before. Swiss newspaper Tages-Anzeiger reported Friday that UBS AG is to cut jobs at its investment banking unit that suffered the loss. Citing unnamed sources it said the cuts would be announced Nov. 17. The paper also reported that the entire trading UBS spokesman Andreas Kern declined to comment on the report.

Geithner joins eurozone meeting as dispute over Greek collateral issue adds to concerns

WROCLAW, Poland (AP) — Finland's finance minister said she doesn't expect the eurozone to resolve a dispute over her country's demand for collateral for loans to Greece at a meeting Friday – adding to concerns over the currency union's ability to stamp out its crippling debt crisis.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner joined the meeting in Wroclaw, Poland — the first time that a U.S. finance chief has attended such a gathering — in a sign of how the U.S. is getting increasingly concerned over the global impact of the eurozone debt crisis.

Geithner has been pushing his European counterparts to finally find a lasting solution to its debt troubles, which have dragged on for almost two vears.

Britain's Treasury chief George Osborne, who was to attend a broader meeting of finance ministers including EU countries that do not use the euro, urged eurozone leaders to make a strong statement. Britain trades extensively with the eurozone and its banks are exposed to troubles on the continent.

Young tops 100 RBI's in Rangers' 7-4 win

ARLINGTON (AP) -With Michael Young standing on deck for the Texas Rangers already with 98 RBIs, the Cleveland Indians opted to walk Josh Hamilton.

Giving that free pass to Hamilton and loading the bases in the fifth inning only briefly delayed a big blast by the AL West-leading Rangers.

Young delivered a three-run double to go over 100 RBIs for the second time in his career, and Adrian Beltre immediately followed with a two-run homer as Texas went on to a 7-4 victory Thursday night, completing a three-game sweep and extending its division lead to $3\frac{1}{2}$ games over the idle Los Angeles Angels.

"I don't take those things personally. I just try to focus on my job," Young said. "At that point we're really making sure we're trying to push one across. I was just trying to get something to the outfield. Worst-case scenario, sacrifice fly scores a run."

Texas (86-64) moved to 22 games over .500 for the first time since 1999, and will now play nine of its final 12 games on the road, starting Friday night at Seattle.

Cleveland's loss cut Detroit's magic number for clinching the AL Central to one. The Tigers lost 6-1 at Oakland later Thurs-

"All you can think is you failed to achieve your goal, which is to win the division," Indians manager Manny Acta said. "You play to win the division. So you get your head up, play for second place or above .500. You have to shift gears and have another goal."

Young's bases-clearing double off Fausto Carmona (6-15) gave him 101 RBIs. Beltre followed with his 25th home run for a 6-0 lead.

Hamilton hit his 22nd homer in the seventh.

Tie required to play for CTLGA

By ROBERT GRIFFIN

In a recent nine-hole team scramble, members of the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association continued their trend of taking it down to the wire. While there was a clear winner, with the team of Jerry Roach, Annie ward, Paul and Dee Jenkins shooting four under par, a three-way tie had to be sorted out to determine second place.

A scorecard playoff, going to the fourth handicap hole, was used and second place was eventually grabbed by Jimmy and Deanna Foresyth, along with Bill and Bobbie Coming in third was John and Gus Leonardi, Ray and Sue Russell, while fourth place belonged to George and Betty Jean Murphy, Connie Fowler and Linda Dewaters.

Howard Gabbard came the closest to the pin on the third hole and Connie Fowler shot closest on hole number six.

NBA still no closer to agreement

LAS VEGAS (AP) — David Stern was meeting with NBA owners in Dallas when he got word of how things went at a gathering of NBA players in Las Vegas.

Unity, the commissioner was told, was a big part of the players' message.

"We think that's a good thing," Stern said. "We would like to negotiate with a strong union that's capable of delivering a deal."

Eleven weeks into the lockout, both sides came away Thursday professing their solidarity.

The separate meetings updating their constituents on collective bargaining talks came two days after a session between the union's executive committee and the owners' labor relations committee brought no progress after the league refused players' desire to keep the current salary cap system.

The union emerged from that setback saying the riod.' Nov. 1 scheduled start of the regular season could be in jeopardy. Training camps have been expected to open Oct. 3.

Union president Derek Fisher raised the notion of "a fundamental divide between the owners internally" in a letter sent to his membership earlier this week. But after four hours of meetings in Dallas, Deputy Commissioner Adam Silver insisted "there is absolute agreement, and it's a complete fiction coming from somewhere that there isn't."

Stern hinted at some difference of opinion when he said there was "virtual unanimity on approach." He then explained that the differences are minor.

"Some people might say they want a hard cap with this wrinkle and someone says I want a hard cap with that wrinkle," Stern said. "But I would say there is unanimity in favoring a hard cap — pe-

Fisher and union executive director Billy Hunter met with about 40 players at a Las Vegas casino in what Fisher described as "a very colorful and engaging meeting." NFLPA executive director De-Maurice Smith also spoke to the players, who were mostly in town to play in an Impact Basketball academy league.

"There is not the fracture and the separation amongst our group that in some ways has been reported," said Fisher, the Los Angeles Lakers point guard. "We just want to continue to reiterate that point."

Fisher's letter to players, obtained Thursday by The Associated Press, was first obtained by SI.com. In it, he wrote that owners "could not agree with each other on specific points of the deal (Tuesday) and therefore it caused conflict within the league and its owners. So it is our hope that ... at the owners meeting in Dallas that they work out their differences, come up with a revenue sharing plan that will protect their teams and are then ready to come together and sign off on the agreement we as a smaller group deemed reasonable."

Stern said the owners spent as much time Thursday talking about revenue sharing as they did collective bargaining. He added that a planning committee meeting is scheduled for Friday in New York.

Stern said no negotiating sessions are planned with the union, but "we'll both be in New York starting tomorrow and it wouldn't surprise me if there was some conversa-

Tigers take down Mississippi St.

STARKVILLE (AP) — LSU's Jarrett Lee stepped back in the pocket, surveyed the field and let a pass fly. It was a beautifully thrown fade route to Rueben Randle, who beat two Mississippi State defenders to the corner of the end zone for a 19-yard touchdown.

Everyone already knew LSU had a great running game and defense. Now the Tigers might be developing a quarterback to match.

"Rueben made a great route — it was just a matter of putting it out there for him," Lee said. "I feel like I'm becoming a more mature player. Really developing."

The senior quarterback, filling in for suspended Jordan Jefferson, completed 21 of 27 passes for 213 yards and the touchdown and No. 3 LSU defeated No. 25 Mississippi State 19-6 on Thursday night.

Lee's night was filled with conservative, but nearly perfect passes all over the field. Then in a crucial moment, his strike to Randle hushed a raucous Mississippi State crowd and gave the Tigers a

His only real mistake was an interception minutes later, but as it had all game, LSU's defense stuffed Mississippi State with little trouble. LSU (3-0, 1-0 Southeastern Conference) had 15 tackles for a loss and held the Bulldogs (1-2, 0-2) to 193 total yards and two field

"It was really fun to see," LSU

coach Les Miles said.

Despite Mississippi State's cowbells providing an ever-present backdrop, LSU won its 12th straight game in the series dating to 1999.

Lee's success is quickly making LSU fans forget about Jefferson, the expected starter who has been suspended all season after being arrested for his alleged role in a bar fight in August. Lee wasn't necessarily spectacular, but he didn't have to be, calmly managing the game and hitting open receivers when opportunities arose.

It's a stark contrast from his freshman season in 2008, when Lee threw 16 interceptions, including seven that were returned for touchdowns. Since those tough days he's spent most of the time on the bench. Now with a new opportunity, he's taking full advantage.

It helps that LSU's running game continues to be spectacular. Spencer Ware rushed for 107 yards on 22 carries.

LSU was its own worst enemy much of the game before its lategame breakout. In a particularly brutal stretch in the third quarter, the Tigers committed five penalties in less than nine minutes, losing 67 yards in the process. Lee's behind 16-6.

interception gave Mississippi State newfound life after falling But LSU's defense was good enough to make up for all those transgressions, constantly putting pressure on Mississippi State quarterback Chris Relf and disrupting the Bulldogs' vaunted running game, which had gained at least 300 yards rushing in each of the season's first two games. MSU's Vick Ballard managed just 38 yards on 10 carries, while Relf rushed for 10 yards on 16 carries. Relf was benched for Tyler Russell late in the game, but the sophomore didn't have any success either.

"We didn't get into a rhythm," Mississippi State coach Dan Mullen said. "... We got behind and had to throw the ball and play their game. Our playmakers have to make plays. We will be all right - our guys always bounce back."

The loss continued Mississippi State's frustration against SEC Western Division rivals. The Bulldogs are 2-10 against the West, with both of those wins coming against rival Ole Miss. It's been a tough six days for Mississippi State, which lost to Auburn 41-34 on Saturday.

As expected, the game was bruising from the outset. Relf was thrown to the turf on a sack by LSU's Kendrick Adams on the second play of the game, and the tone never changed for either team.

Though both teams are known for their run-first approach, the start missing paychecks in a few weeks. NBPA members have been educated for several years about the steps necessary to survive a long lockout, and Fisher said the union will continue to protect the rights of players who sign overseas this

"I've never seen this union as strong as we are collectively right now," said Boston Celtics center Jermaine O'Neal, among the few remaining players who participated in the 1998-99 labor dispute. "A lot of our young guys are wide-eyed when they see the numbers at first, but now they're educated. We don't need to make a temporary, emotional decision. We need to make a long-term decision for a bigger purpose."

Players discussed union decertification during their meeting, but Hunter emphasized the union believes such a drastic step isn't an imminent strategy despite behind-the-scenes calls for the move from several agents. notion that the NBPA is waiting for a ruling on a charge filed with the National Labor Relations Board for unfair bargaining practices, although Hunter said he plans to travel to Washington next week in hopes of getting an expedited ruling.

"Sometimes it's implied that we're waiting, posturing, sitting on the sideline and waiting for something to happen favorable for us with the NLRB,' Fisher said.

"That's just not the case. It's part of this process, but we're still taking action. We have to negotiate a deal, and that's the only way we'll get what's fair for these guys."

If NBA owners are searching for cracks in the players' unity, as Fisher and Hunter believe, the union attempted to provide a visual answer. Over 30 players stood together behind Fisher and Hunter at a brief news conference, wearing identical gray T-shirts with one large word in yellow: "STAND."

"All the agendas that might be pushed by different groups, they don't have a way in as long as we stand shoulder to shoulder," Fisher said.

Storm blows away Mercury 80-61

SEATTLE (AP) Tanisha Wright and the Seattle Storm got their offense rolling and finally figured out a way to slow down high-scoring Diana Taurasi.

Wright scored 21 points, and Camille Little had 17 points and 11 rebounds to lead the defending WNBA champion Storm over the Phoenix Mercury 80-61 on Thursday night in the opener of the Western Conference semifinals.

Lauren Jackson added 13 points, six rebounds and three blocks for Seattle, which led 69-42 after three quarters. Swin Cash added 10 points and 11 rebounds.

Taurasi, who averaged 21.6 for Phoenix to lead the WNBA in scoring for the fourth straight year, had just 11 points. She shot 3 of 11 from the field, including 1 of 5 on 3-pointers.

"Last game we played them here, we really let her get some shots off," Wright said of Taurasi's 36-point outburst last week in a loss to the Storm. "With a player like Diana, she's going to knock those down all night. Tonight, we tried to do a better job of just staying in her space, make her make tough shots."

Taurasi never could get untracked.

"Obviously, I didn't play as well as I wanted to," Taurasi said. "But I'm more worried about our team. You get 36 and you lose and it doesn't matter. You get 11 you lose, so it doesn't really matter how many points you score until we can find a way to beat this team. We'll see if we can find that answer."

Phoenix will host Game 2 of the best-ofthree series on Saturday.

Penny Taylor scored 13, and DeWanna Bonner added 10 — all in the first half — to lead the Mercury.

"We couldn't get her open shots," Mercury coach Corey Gaines said about Taurasi. "She's coming off of picks, and we couldn't get our run game going. They switched, we swung the ball around and the people who were open couldn't hit the shots."

Little and Cash scored six points apiece as Seattle outscored Phoenix 29-11 in the third quarter. The Storm used a 14-0 run over the final three minutes to take a 69-42 lead at the end of the period.

"I don't know if we did anything in particular," Storm coach Brian Agler said of the thirdquarter outburst. "It was what we were doing much of the game. We got some transition buckets. We got to the free-throw line. I just thought we ran really efficient offense. A lot of it came from out stops defensively."

Taurasi was 0 of 5 from the field as the Mercury shot 4 of 22 (18.2 percent) in the third quarter. Seattle shot 9 of 17 (52.9 percent).

Wright and Little both had 11 points, and Jackson added nine to help the Storm to a 40-31 halftime lead.

Wright netted seven points during a 17-7 run to close the first half after Phoenix led 24-23 early in the second quarter.

Bonner scored 10, including two 3-pointers, to help the Mercury tie it at 19 after one quar-

Seattle was 9 of 9 on free throws in the first half. Phoenix was 1 of 2.

The game turned physical as Taurasi received a technical foul in the third quarter after kicking her leg at Wright after a foul by Wright. Little was given a technical in the second quarter after getting tangled with Taurasi away from the Little responded to her technical moments later with a three-point play on a strong move to the basket.

"That kind of thing does fire me up a little bit," Little said. "And I like to bring energy to the team whatever I can do. I'm glad I could finish that play. I think it gave us a boost and we ran with it."

The Storm won the season series 3-1, including an 85-70 victory last week to earn the No. 2 seed in the Western Conference.

starting Mercury center Nakia Sanford missed the game because of a sore knee. She averages 4.2 points and rebounds per game.

Seattle has won 11 of 12 games against the Mercury, including a sweep in the West finals last year. The Storm improved to 16-2 at home.

designated hitter, pushed him within two RBIs of his career high set five years ago. Young is only three hits shy of his seventh 200-hit sea-

"What a year," manager Ron Washington said. "It doesn't matter where I put him in that lineup, he delivers."

Endy Chavez opened the Texas fifth with an infield single before his second stolen base of the game. Ian Kinsler then walked before Elvis Andrus' sacrifice bunt brought up Hamilton, the reigning AL MVP who hit a grand slam Wednesday night after also going deep in the series opener.

"Like any team that has depth, pick your poison," Washington said. "I think any manager would have did what he did, not pitch to Josh. But he had to deal with Michael, had to deal with Beltre."

Alexi Ogando (13-8) allowed only two singles while throwing six scoreless innings. The All-Star right-hander struck out four and walked two while winning for the first time in a month. He had been 0-3 in five starts since his last win Aug. 15 at the Angels.

Ogando was nearly flawless, except a 39-pitch second inning when he got out of bases-loaded jam with consecutive strikeouts after both of his walks. He faced the minimum three batters the other five innings he pitched, getting Ezequiel Carrera to ground into an inning-ending double play after Jason Kipnis singled in the sixth.

Washington said Ogando's "competitive juices" kicked in after he probably came within one batter of making an early exit.

"Sometimes during the game you have times like that during an inning. I was going too much to my left side on my fastball," Ogando said through an interpreter. "That's why I couldn't control those pitches. You can't do anything else. You have to think about what you were doing wrong. When they came and talked to me, that's what happened. I was able to fix it and worked my way to do it."

Ogando had already thrown 52 pitches after he struck out Lonnie Chisenhall and Lou Marson to get out of the second. He needed only 40 more pitches to get through the next four innings, and had his longest outing in his last five starts.

Carmona, an AL All-Star last season, is 0-3 with a 6.97 ERA over his last six starts. Against the Rangers, the righthander struck out three, walked five, and gave up seven hits and five earned runs over six innings. He also threw a wild pitch.

Texas got its first run

after Chavez had a leadoff single in the third to snap his 0-for-13 slide. He then got to third on a stolen base and a throwing error by catcher Marson before scoring on a single by Andrus. Shelley Duncan had a bloop RBI single with two outs in the seventh off Darren Oliver for the Indians' first run.

NOTES: The Rangers went 9-1 against Cleveland this season, outscoring the Indians 68-32. Texas has won 21 of 25 in the series over the past three seasons. ... Andrus has hit in all 23 of his games against Cleveland. ... Texas had only nine hits, ending its club record streak consecutive 12-hit games at seven. ... LSU quarterbacks had a surprising amount of success, especially in the first half. Lee completed 13 of 15 passes for 128 yards in the first half and Relf countered with 9 of 11 completions for 78 yards.

But success that bogged down once either offense entered the red zone, with both teams having to settle for field goals that did little to alter momentum.

LSU scored first after a 16-play, 77-yard drive ended in Drew Alleman's 21-yard field goal. Mississippi State answered with their own bruising 14-play, 57-yard drive, capped by Derek DePasquale's 26-vard field goal. LSU took a 6-3 lead into halftime after Alleman drilled a 42-yard field goal with 1:18 left in the second quarter.

The field goal parade continued in the second half, with DePasquale's 42-yarder tying the game at 6 in the third quarter. Alleman answered with a 41-yard field goal to give the Tigers a 9-6 lead with 1:46 remaining.

Finally, LSU was able to break through with Lee's touchdown throw to Randle, which quieted the cowbells.

"We went into half saying 'We took some 3s, but they need to be 7s," Miles said. "But the way our defense was playing, that almost wasn't necessary."

By the end of the game, the small contingent of LSU fans in the corner of the stadium was chanting "This is our State," a not-so-subtle jab at Mississippi State's marketing campaign that is constantly shown on Davis Wade Stadium's massive jumbotron.

Most memorable college games

(AP) Michigan's miraculous comeback against Notre Dame will go down as one of the most memorable games in college football history.

But it seems that we've been saying that a lot over the past few seasons. Rarely does a week go by when there isn't at least one great game.

With that in mind, here are the 12 most memorable regular-season games from the last five seasons:

Number 1: Appalachian State 34, Michigan 32 (Sept. 1, 2007)

The Wolverines came into the season ranked fifth in the country. with a team that included Mike Hart, Jake Long and Chad Henne. Appalachian State was (and still is) one of the top FCS programs, but nobody thought the Mountaineers had a chance at the Big House on the first Saturday of the season.

Not only was it a great upset, it was a wild game. Michigan took the lead with 4:36 remaining.

Armanti Edwards and App State came back to go ahead on a field goal with 26 seconds left. Then Corey Lynch sealed it for the Mountaineers by blocking Michigan's last-play field goal attempt.

Number 2: Auburn 28, Alabama 27 (Nov. 26,

Auburn was undefeated, Cam Newton's recruitment was being investigated by the NCAA and Alabama was the defending national champion.

The Iron Bowl is always huge, but this one was bursting at the seams even before it

The Tide jumped out to a 24-0 lead in the first half, but Newton led Auburn to the greatest comeback in school his-

If that wasn't enough to make this game go down in history, Auburn's famous oak trees Toomer's Corner were poisoned not long after this game.

Number 3: Michigan 35, Notre Dame 31 (Sept. 10, 2011)

The first night game at the Big House provided a mesmerizing setting to a wildly sloppy game between two of the most storied programs in his-

Denard Robinson and Michigan erased a 24-7 fourth-quarter deficit, and the teams combined for three scores in the last 1:12, capped by a Robinson's TD pass to Roy Roundtree with 2 seconds left.

Number 4: Nevada 34, Boise State 31 (Nov. 26, 2010)

Kellen Moore unbeaten Boise State jumped out to a 24-7 halftime lead against their WAC rivals and seemed on their way to another BCS bid. But Colin Kaepernick and the Wolf Pack's pistol offense tied the game at 31-all with 13 seconds

Moore hit Titus Young with a 54-yard bomb to set up a 26-yard field goal to win the game. But Kyle Brotzman missed it. He missed another short one in OT, and Nevada made its kick to knock the Broncos out of the BCS mix.

Number 5: Texas Tech 39, Texas 33 (Nov.

Maybe the greatest game in the history of Texas Tech football.

Raiders jumped out to a 19-0 lead in the first half against top-ranked Longhorns and led 29-13 in the third.

But Colt McCoy led Texas back, and the 'Horns took a 33-32 lead with 1:29 to play.

In range for a potential winning field goal, Graham Harrell fired to Michael Crabtree near the sideline.

The All-America receiver brushed a tackler, stayed in bounds and score the winning touchdown with a second left.

It was Texas' only loss of the season and kept the Longhorns out of the Big 12 and BCS title

Number 6: Stanford 24, USC 23 (Oct. 6, 2007)

As big an upset as Appalachian State over Michigan was, this one was even more unlike-

The mighty Trojans had won 35 straight home games and Stanford was a 41-point underdog, starting backup quarterback Tavita Pritchard.

Pritchard converted a fourth-and-20 before tossing a 10-yard touchdown pass to Mark Bradford on fourth-and-goal with 49 seconds left.

And with that, Jim Harbaugh's turnaround of the Cardinal had be-

Number 7: Pitt 13, West Virginia 9 (Dec. 1,

All Rich Rodriguez's Mountaineers needed to do was beat their floundering rivals to play for the national champion-

The Panthers came into the 100th Backyard Brawl 4-7, having been pounded by Pat White and Steve Slaton each of the past two seasons.

But suddenly on a cold night in Morgantown, West Virginia's offense disappeared.

Pitt pulled the last, and considering what was at stake, maybe the most stunning upset of a season filled with them and Rodriguez soon after left for Michigan.

Number 8: Arkansas 50, LSU 48 (Nov. 23,

The Tigers needed a victory to keep their chances to play in the BCS title game alive or so it seemed.

With a banged up defense, LSU couldn't stop Darren McFadden and the Razorbacks. The Heisman candidate ran for 206 yards and three touchdowns, but LSU forced overtime with a touchdown with 22 seconds left.

All six overtime possessions resulted in touchdowns, but LSU's 2-point conversion attempt failed on the last one and the Tigers lost for the second time that season.

Of course in this weird season, LSU went on to become the only team to lose twice and win a national championship.

Number 9: Michigan State 34, Notre Dame 31, OT (Sept. 18, Little Giants.

That was the name of the play called by the Spartans down by three in overtime. Instead of trying a 46-yard field goal to tie it on fourthand-14, holder Aaron Bates took the snap, stood up and waited for Charlie Gantt to come open downfield.

The stunning fake worked to perfection, and Gantt's 29-yard touchdown catch.

After the game, Spartans coach Mark Dantonio was hospitalized because of a heart attack.

Number 10: LSU 16, Tennessee 14 (Oct. 2,

Sheer madness can be very entertaining.

It looked as if the game would end on a mishandled snap by LSU with Tennessee winning.

Not so fast. As LSU wasted time by substituting players, Tennessee ran players on the field, too. Too many players. Tennessee was flagged for too many men on the field, and, given another chance, LSU scored the game-winning TD on Stevan Ridley's 1-yard

For LSU coach Les Miles and Tennessee coach Derek Dooley, this was not one for the clinic tape.

Number 11: Cincinnati 45, Pittsburgh 44 (Dec. 5, 2009)

Nothing like a snow storm to make a game memorable.

With the Big East championship on the line and snow falling hard, the Panthers jumped out 31-10 over the unbeaten Bearcats. But Mardy Gilyard revards for touchdown late in the first half to give Cincinnati a spark.

The teams traded the lead three times in the final 5:46, with Tony Pike's touchdown pass to Armon Binns providing the winning margin with 33 seconds left.

It also turned out to be the last game Brian Kelly coached the Bearcats. Number 12: Tie.

South Carolina 45, Georgia 42, (Sept. 10, 2011) Defensive tackle Melvin Ingram scores two touchdowns, one on fake punt, for the Gamecocks. Miami 38, Florida

State 34 (Sept. 7, 2009)

Jarmon Fortson can't up potential game-winning touchdown pass on last play of game.

LSU 28, Florida 24 (Oct. 6, 2007)

Tigers go 5 for 5 on fourth down to beat Tim Tebow's Gators.

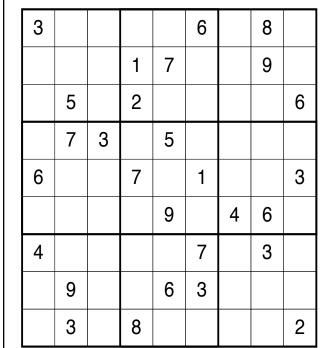

Michigan 67, Illinois 65 (Nov. 6, 2010)

The highest scoring game in Michigan history and the highlight of the Rich Rodriguez era.

The list could go on and on, but you get the point.

Dear Margo: Midlife crisis or not!

Dear Margo: I've been married to a good and honorable man for 22 years. We have two children, 21 and 11. We married young and had our first child a year

We waited until we were more stable to have our second. We had a solid marriage, but there was always a lack of affection from him due to dysfunctional upbringing.

learned live to without the outward affection because of tender his and thoughtful actions through the years. He was always doing nice

Howard

and considerate things for me, making sure I knew I her. — Heartsick was loved.

That has changed. For the past couple of years, he's become increasingly distant, spending more and more time away from home.

Then, out of the blue, he tells me he isn't in love with me anymore and doesn't feel like he has a partner because I don't like to do outdoor things with him.

We started marriage counseling, but a couple of weeks after the first session, he admitted he was in love with a friend of ours. This friend does enjoy the outdoors and shares more of his interests than I do, but she doesn't return his feelings and just wants to be friends.

I have moved out and don't know if we should continue the counseling or if this marriage is over.

He says he doesn't know what the future holds and is feeling very lost right now. Should I give him more time and put my life on hold, or cut ties and get out of the marriage knowing that I can't accept being his second choice?

I am still in love with him, and the pain is almost unbearable. By the way, he still talks to her every day and wants to remain friends with

Dear Heart: It is hard to know if this is a midlife crisis and whether he will, at some point, see the light, see you in a different light or decide that the light has gone out, period.

Do know that some of the best marriages are between people who do not share all the same interests, so don't be too fast to hop on a Harley or strap on a pair of skis. And the reverse can be true, as well: Some a lot of togetherness.

My own feeling is that a marriage (a good one) really depends on mutual affection, comfort, chemistry — not outdoor activities.

His announcing, by the way, that he no longer loves you and is in love with what's-her-name, but it's not reciprocal, probably would encourage me to call it a day. Furthermore, his torture wanting to himself by "remaining friends" with her is another reason I'd split. Try more counseling if he's willing, but my hunch is that emotionally outta there. I am sorry. — Margo, realistically

When Understanding Can Be the Key to Survival.

Dear Margo: Like someone else who wrote to you, I, too, am middleaged and have a sister who flies off the handle at imagined slights.

Just last year I found a website and finally understood the wellspring of the abuse. She is a narcissist, and some reports say this is caused by the male role model being absent during a crucial development period in a young girl's life.

This website has helped relationships are built on me, and I learned that my sister thinks she is perfect and will never change, so I limit my contact with her to group settings only, where I can avoid her or move on when she decides to throw a tantrum so the day will be about her.

Limiting contact is the only thing that works. For anyone else who has my problem, I offer the website: http://bit.ly/qFr9f7.

Figured It Out at Least

Dear Fig: I pass this on to whomever might find it useful, with your compliments. A way of unbalanced handling friends or relatives can be lifesaver. Understanding is a great tool for managing someone else's disturbances. have never believed in being victimized by either relatives or friends. Margo, sympathetically

Dear Margo is written by Margo Howard, Ann Landers' daughter. All letters must be sent via emaildearmargo@creators.com.

Due to a high volume of email, not all letters will be answered.
