1-year-old's condition said to be serious

Mother, boyfriend remain locked up in county jail

By THOMAS JENKINS
 Staff Writer

A local child remains listed in serious condition at University Medical Center in Lubbock after law enforcement officials allege she was beaten by a 21-year-old Big Spring man.

A 1-year-old female who was initially taken to the emergency room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center and then later life-flighted to the Lubbock facility Friday remains in serious condition according to Eric Finley, communications manager for University Medical Center.

"The child had severe swelling around her eyes and jaw, as well as bruising to her face and chest."

—Tony Everett, BSPD public information officer

Johnny Michael Edmondson II, 21, of 300 S. Tulane, was arrested Friday by the BSPD on a charge of injury to a child with intent to cause bodily injury. Also arrested was the baby's mother, Vanessa Ann Armendarez, 26, also of 300 S. Tulane, on a charge of abandoning/endangering a child – imminent danger of bodily injury.

Bond was set for Edmondson at $25,000, while Armendarez's bond was set at $10,000. According to officials with the Howard County Detention Center, neither have managed to bond out at this time and remain in the custody of the detention center.

According to Sgt. Tony Everett, public information officer with the BSPD, officers responded to an apartment in the 300 block of Tulane at approximately 4:36 p.m. Friday in reference to a report of an injured child.

"The child had severe swelling around her eyes and jaw, as well as bruising to her face and chest," Everett said. "The child also had red whelps on her legs. Officers called for an ambulance and the girl was transported to the emergency room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. She was later flown to Lubbock as a precaution due to the possibility of a closed head injury."

Everett said both Edmondson and Armendarez were

Relay making move to Memorial Stadium

Fight against cancer set for April 20-21

By AMANDA MORENO

Another year of Relay For Life is bringing the same hope as always, but at the same time, it's changing things up a bit.

Relay For Life 2012 will be changing venues and take place April 20-21, 2012 at Memorial Stadium instead of Blankenship Field from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.

"We are making things different and changing it up this year," said Manny Negron,

Negron

2012 event chair.

The big announcement came during Tuesday night's community kick-off event. For years, Relay has been held at Big Spring High School's Blankenship Field. However, the upcoming Relay and change of venue will offer more parking and lighted areas in the parking lot.

"With the additional parking we can put more focus on getting people there," Negron said.

Last year there were a little more than 130 survivors attending the event and this year Negron has set the goal at 150 survivors participating in Relay.

"We want to get more survivors involved in Relay. We don't only want to get them to Relay, but we want them to be part of a team and take part

Prosecution of polygamist ex-bishop may rest

ROBERT LEE (AP) — Prosecutors say they are close to completing their case presentation against a polygamist ex-bishop accused of marrying his leader, Warren Jeffs, and an underage girl.

Prosecutor Angel Goodwin said she expected to finish presenting the bulk of the case against Fredrick Merrill Jessop on Wednesday in Robert Lee.

Jessop is charged with a felony count of performing an illegal 2006 wedding ceremony between Jeffs and an underage girl. The ceremony occurred at the Yearning For Zion Ranch near Eldorado, owned by the Jeffs-led Fundamental Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Rae Leifeste of San Angelo told jurors Tuesday that “sealing” is not a marriage ceremony as defined by Texas law.

present in the apartment when officers arrived on the scene.

ment with two children,” Everett said. “No injuries were found on the second child. The investigation centered on Edmondson because he had been with the child overnight while the mother worked. When Prosecutors in Corpus Christi reached a plea agreement with 25-year-old Lorraine Rodriguez. She pleaded guilty in October to murder and was sentenced Tuesday over the death of 21-month-old Texas Ruiz.

Rodriguez last month testified against 22-year-old Juan Javier Garza. He was convicted Friday of capital murder. Prosecutors did not seek the death penalty so Garza received an automatic life prison term.

Investigators say Rodriguez on Jan. 1 called 911 to say that her son had a seizure, then the boy fell and hit his head. Rodriguez later confessed that she made up the story to protect her boyfriend.

Father, daughter get prison for fraud

HOUSTON (AP) — A father and daughter from Houston have been sentenced to prison and must each repay $8.6 million over government health care fraud.

A federal judge in Houston on Tuesday sentenced 56-year-old James Reese to 15 years in prison and 26-year-old Lia St. Junius to more than 11 years in prison.

the mother returned home from work Friday morning, no effort was made (by Armendarez and Edmondson) to get the baby medical help. Police had been notified by an individual not of the home.”

Everett said Edmondson was arrested at the scene and charged with injury to a child.

“The mother was arrested and charged with endangering a child due to not seeking medical attention and leaving in the event,” Negrón said.

Organizers are hoping for a field of 30 teams and have set a monetary goal of $192,000 in contributions and donations. Last year, Relay For Life brought in a little more than $173,000. Two of the top teams from last year which helped reach that goal were recognized Tuesday. Cancer Crushers were recognized as the Sapphire team — a team recognized for raising more than $15,000 — and TexStone Racers were recognized as the Emerald team for raising $25,000.

Sherry Hodnett announced the incorporation of a revamped program — the Chain Gang — which will be used to help raise more funds for Relay. During Tuesday night’s meeting, $77.16 was collected to get the program started.

Debbye ValVerde spoke as the 2012 Hero of Hope and shared her story of why she participates in Relay For Life and how she got involved in the cause.

“My story doesn’t start with the diagnosis of cancer, even though I am a thyroid cancer survivor,” ValVerde said. “It starts with a teepee.”

As she was driving by a Relay For Life event one year, she said she noticed a teepee and realized she wanted to be a part of the festivities.

“I saw that and I wanted to know how to be a part of that teepee,” ValVerde said.

Her story and involvement progressed from there. She encourages survivors to attend Relay and the community to be involved.

“The whole point of Relay is to give the perspective of a cancer patient,” Negrón said. “The evenings are usually the hardest after treatment and at night there is a cancer patient that isn’t sleeping and not knowing if they are going to see the light of day.”

“Cancer patients don’t have a choice and deal with cancer every day. As Relayers, we have a choice and we make that sacrifice to stay up all night. We do it because somewhere there is a cancer patient losing hope, there is a cancer patient sitting up at night and because someone need us to Relay for them.”

The amount of money brought in is not the issue, Negrón said. The main goal is to remember every penny will count.

“It doesn’t matter if you bring in $5 or $5,000. The point is we are bringing hope and coming together to do so,” Negrón said.

have scheduling conflicts this month, so the ceremony has been pushed back until January, said Iva Jo Hanslik, community relations director for the VAMC.

“We will do the renaming in January when the House and Senate are on their breaks,” Hanslik said.

U.S. Rep. Randy Neugebauer (R-Lubbock), who introduced the legislation to Congress, is expected to attend, as well as fellow Rep. Mike Conaway (R-Midland) and U.S. Sen. John Cornyn. Also expected to attend are members of O’Brien’s family and veterans who served with him.

O’Brien graduated from Big Spring High School and enlisted as a private in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve in 1949. In 1951, he was ordered to active duty, completed officer training, and in 1952 was sent to Korea, where he joined the 1st Marine Division.

He received the Medal of Honor — the highest decoration bestowed in the U.S. military — for “conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity” in the Battle of Triangle Hill on Oct. 27, 1952.

After leaving the military, he returned to West Texas, where he was an active volunteer at the Big Spring VAMC.

O’Brien died in Midland on March 11, 2005.

A statue of O’Brien, commissioned by his long-time friend Jerry Worthy, stands in front of the medical center.

“I am honored to have represented this great American,” Neugebauer said in a statement. “Renaming the Veterans Affairs medical center in Big Spring after Mr. O’Brien will keep his memory alive in Big Spring and the United States. It will also help us to remember the courageous acts he achieved in service of his country and his brothers in the Corps.”

Hanslik said a new date and time for the renaming ceremony will be announced in the near future.

“We’re excited that this has become a reality and we will be honored to recognize such a distinguished veteran who was raised in the Big Spring community,” Hanslik said.

OUR VIEWS

Christmas is less than two months away and what better way to start the shopping than by taking a stroll through Dee's Trade Show.

Once again, Dee's will be at the Howard County Fair Barn this Saturday and Sunday. Doors will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There will be more than 60 booths with unique Christmas ideas, including crosses, blankets, quilts, leather, clothing, lotions and more.

During the event, attendees will have a chance to win Trade Show Bucks which can be used during the show and allow the winner to shop for free.

Of course, all the shopping doesn't have to be in vain. Some of the proceeds will go toward supporting Blue Santa.

On top of the vendors, there will be Cock-A-Doodle-Poo-Bingo. Saturday times are 11:30 a.m., 2 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Sunday times are noon, 2 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Sunday will also include a silent auction, but those placing bids must be present in order to win the auction.

For the children, Mr. and Mrs. Santa will be making an appearance during the show, as well. Parents will be able to register for Letters to Santa.

Twenty-seven local businesses have contributed to Dee's Trade Show.

Vendors will be providing Crossroads residents an opportunity to find that special, one-of-a-kind Christmas or special occasion gift idea.

This is an opportunity to get out, take care of the shopping bug that may be beginning to bite a few people and start marking people off the Christmas list.

The vendors offer a little something geared for people of all ages. The gift ideas that will be filling the Howard County Fair Barn are truly endless. Some of the products might even serve as inspiration for those creative residents.

Either way, this weekend Dee's Trade Show will be providing a venue for community residents to get out, support a good cause and take advantage of an opportunity to experience Christmas in November.

PSF (Post-Series-Frustration)

You may have missed this, but there was a series of baseball games played recently known by people all over the United States as the "World Series."

Having been an avid sports fan all of my life, as well as a player and official, I was tuned in to every game, with Mark, my middle son, and his family alongside my wife and me nightly as we indulged in pizza, snacks, spaghetti, hot chocolate, and even a little Moo-llennium Crunch for good measure.

My beloved Texas Rangers lost the World Series in seven games although, generally speaking, they represented us extremely well and played some excellent baseball.

Having recently lived in St. Louis and the surrounding area for almost a decade, I was privileged to attend a number of games at Busch Stadium and I will say without reservation that it is a spectacular venue to watch baseball, or any event for that matter. "Cardinal Nation" is quite a place and the fans there are unquestionably amazing in their passionate love and support for the Redbirds.

The class of both organizations was on display for the world to see during this series and I am personally less devastated by a loss to the Cards than if had it been any number of other teams.

That being said, even still I have had to deal with PSF (Post-Series-Frustration) and I turn your attention to that issue for a few moments.

Now, I am not a frustrated person by nature, but a few things really irritated me during this series. It was somewhere around 10 p.m. during the infamous game 7 that Facebook readers around the world received my personal commentary on how to solve the inter-planetary financial crisis; simply figure a way to convert the frustration of all Ranger fans into some type of intergalactic money.

Poof! Everybody on all known planets, debt free!

I could certainly have been counted as one of that frustrated legion. I give Ron Washington pretty high marks for his handling of the 2011 season, bringing the oft-historically hapless Rangers to their second consecutive World Series, and even shepherding them to within one strike of the title on two occasions in Game 6. But my frustration thermometer began to rise as he made, what appeared to us educated Monday Morning Managers, a few really questionable decisions at best, and just plain stupid, at worst.

I like to give everyone the benefit of the doubt in every situation. That's just the sweetheart I am. But his choices in shuttling questionable pitchers in and out at odd times, sending a pitcher to bat with two outs and the bases loaded while experienced hitters rode the pine and several other unexplainable decisions made me wonder what Nolan Ryan's thermometer might have read at times. And that's not even addressing a St. Louis resident umpire's momentum-changing call that was obviously wrong, which begs to implement instant replay.

But we life-long professional

EDDY PRINCE

Uncivil politics reflects us

When Bill Daley took over as White House chief of staff in mid-January, the reviews were good. Articles said that he was experienced, serious and wise to the ways of Washington.

"I said to my wife when we got here — and we had great press when we got here — I said: 'Six months, that's about how long, then they'll kick the s--- out of us.' So I got nine months out of it. That's pretty good," Daley told me with a laugh.

We were sitting in his West Wing office, he in an armchair and me on a couch. My digital recorder sat between us on a low coffee table. "This is on the record?" Daley asked.

Yes, I said, but if you want to go off the record, just say so, and I won't use that part. In the hour or so that followed, Daley never went off the record. He spoke frankly about how difficult the first three years of the Obama administration had been and what President Barack Obama intended to do in the future.

The day that my column appeared, it was the subject of the first, second and fourth questions by members of the White House press corps at the daily briefing. (The third question was about the Occupy Wall Street movement.)

When I was invited on CNN's "John King, USA" to talk about my column that day, King's first question was whether Daley and I had been drinking. King was joking, and I laughed, but I also assured him (truthfully) that we had not been. But I took the question as a compliment.

There were other shows and stories and blogs and tweets. Which raises the same question after any White House interview that makes a splash: Who was using whom?

Had I really gotten Daley, a political veteran, to say anything he had not intended to say? Or had Daley used me, a press veteran, to convey White House talking points?

My answer is simple: Don't know, don't care. You can drive yourself crazy asking yourself that one. The column met my ultimate test, the test a column has to pass before I hit the send button: I liked it. I thought it was good; I thought it was fair; I thought it conveyed something.

Mike McCurry, Bill Clinton's very able press secretary, once told me: "The modern presidency is defined by the manipulation of the news flow 24 hours a day."

And I always keep that in mind. But the manipulation of that news flow has gotten more and more difficult over the years.

In my interview with Daley, I asked him: How much more difficult does the media make your job?

"What's the media today?" Daley replied.

"Everybody's got a camera, everybody's got a website. Everybody whose got a telephone can be a media person. And how people get their information and communicate is very different.

"It's very much more difficult, I believe, today, to govern in this very diffuse way in which people get and give information. There isn't anything we do here (in the White House) that gets to the American people that isn't filtered."

I had first heard the term "filtered" applied to the media by the late Lee Atwater, who was George H.W. Bush's campaign manager in 1988. Atwater may not have invented, but he perfected, what is today nearly universal for political operations: formulating a "message of the day," the talking points that all members of the operation push to the media.

Either you control that message, or the media pick their own message. And you don't want the media picking their own message.

"It's not like a campaign where you buy ads," Daley said to me sports watchers know how to deal with frustration. We've been doing it for years. You see, I'm mature enough (I never use the "old" word ... Redwood trees and the Rocky Mountains are old ... people just get more mature) that all I do is quote that timeless motivational cliché "wait until next year." Amazing how encouraged one can be about something still 11.9 months away.

This brings me to my main point to ponder. How do we really handle life's frustrations? And make no mistake, dear reader, life is fraught with them. Most of them are not as insignificant or non-life-altering in the big picture as a World Series. But just think about what frustration does for you if it isn't handled correctly. Ulcers, high blood pressure, anger, and layers of more frustration are pretty much the expected end of such indulgence. So my word of counsel to all my dear readers is simple.

Forget it. That's right, just forget it. Truth is that very little of what frustrates us is worth a nickel anyway. Just try to remember that life is short no matter how long you live. And it is a sad waste of precious moments to spend them frustrated because MLB executives went behind closed doors and cancelled game six just to accommodate a potential record-breaking TV audience for a game 7 that allowed for Carpenter to pitch for St. Louis. Come on, follow my example and just forget it.

You may not agree with anything I've said, but I column as I see 'em!

about the downside of White House incumbency. "So everything you do is filtered. There's a thousand ways people get that information, but every piece of it is filtered maybe multiple times, and it makes it very hard to get into the consciousness of the American people."

So the media is a filter, not a neutral conveyor of news? I asked.

"The fragmentation of the media over the last 25 years is a big change," Daley said. "There are liberal radio stations, TV stations, magazines. You've got conservative TV, radio, etc. You don't need to go near what you don't want to believe in today."

This may be a return to earlier centuries, when nearly all the press in America was partisan. But that is not necessarily a good thing. Today, many believe there is too much partisanship.

"The politics reflects the society," Daley said. "A lot of people say: 'Oh, politics is so uncivil. Isn't that terrible? Why can't they get along? Gee, I've never seen anything like this.' Well, it should be better, but maybe it's more reflective of society."

Daley talked about the popularity of reality TV, where "everybody yells at each other, they throw things at each other, they're obnoxious to each other, they swear at each other."

"And watch the cable (news) shows," he said. "What gets (ratings)? The angry, the nasty, the insulting, the edge thing. So maybe politics is just more reflective of society than we want to admit."

He paused. "We want to think politics should be better," he said. "But maybe it is more reflective of us. And that may be what we don't like to see."

modern technology can offer; these reveal superb images of the rings of Saturn, the moons of Jupiter and the heart of our sun. Images from the Hubble Space Telescope deep space reveal Einstein rings, ancient galaxies; all that may reveal secrets to the origin of our own galaxy.

It is not too early to start making gifts for Christmas. In "Contemporary Crafts" (745.5 BOR K) by Katherine Sorrell, there is some skill involved — knitting, crochet, sewing — but some are as simple as using stamps to decorate a purchased scarf, simple mosaics and the like. You will be pleasantly surprised what you can accomplish when the steps are whittled down to a few basic few.

"Agriculture on the High Plains of Texas" (306.3 BOR S) was written by Samantha Yates Borgstedt and Dr. Darren Hudson and is focused on the Texas High Plains. The stories told within this book reflect a microcosm of the broader life of ranching, farming and agribusiness that are involved in feeding and clothing the world. Agriculture has been attacked as environmentally unfriendly, polluting and dominated by corporations. This book seeks to dispel that image. While in Stephenville, home of Tarleton State University, where many students attend seeking agricultural degrees and one smells the odor of dairies and farming (on a seemingly more intimate basis), I saw a bumper sticker; it read in large letters "NO FARMERS;" then in smaller letters, "no food."

I have sort of gotten hooked on the TLC show "Storage Wars." It follows several people who go to storage lockers and bid on the contents, hoping to make money on them. Sometimes they make large dollars and sometimes it's a bust. "202 Things You Can Buy and Sell for Big Profits" (658.85 STE J) is along the same lines. James Stephenson shows you the pros and cons of selecting what you would like to specialize in; where to find it; do you import or is it locally made; selling techniques and so on. I am not a haggler and so would not be good at it, but for someone who likes to wheel and deal, this would be great.

Along the same lines, from Entrepreneur Magazine comes "Great Big Book of Business Lists" (658.11 THU C) by Courtney Thurman. It has more than 10,000 listings of sources and business facts that you will have access to in order to be a successful business owner.

From Simple Solutions comes a lovely book on building "Patios and Decks" (747.79 CAH C). It is composed only of photos and suggestions on extending outside the indoor living spaces. And I must confess, I don't think some of them will work out here in West Texas. For one thing, many of them look out onto water — lakes, ponds, oceans. Others feature wooded areas which may work at your place in Ruidoso. But the pictures are pretty and one can dream about when it rains and all the lakes fill up and overflow and then you can design a deck that overlooks the water.

Now

crew chief and former Army Ranger and Delta, surviving the attack and rescuing as many of his men as possible. You need to read "Power Down" (F COE B) by Ben Coes to see how Dewey tracks the terrorists to the highest levels of the American government.

Another thriller from Robert K. Tannenbaum is "Outrage" (F TAN R). A cardinal rule is broken by an ambitious rookie assistant district attorney: never charge the accused unless the evidence leads to proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Now District Attorney Butch Karp must clean up the mess while a vicious killer stalks the city.

From a new author (in other words, I haven't heard of her) Beth McMullen has a character named Sally Sin who is an ex-member of the USAWMD (United States Agency of Mass Destruction). She is retired, married and is trying her best to be a stay at home mom. But sometimes it just does not work — like the time she broke into her own house to check on the babysitter without said sitter knowing about it. Or when Ian Blackford, who is supposed to be dead, starts causing trouble for USAWMD. Read "Original Sin" (F MCM B) for a fun spy book.

Boarding pets not limited to kennels

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You are spending Thanksgiving with Aunt Nellie in Kansas. Your dog will be staying in a hotel suite called Neiman Barcus with a flat-screen TV. There might be surf lessons, catered meals, a massage, pawdicure, spa bath and photo shoot.

Boarding your pet has changed a lot over the past decade.

Kennels still exist, but many locales also now offer pet-only resorts, hotels or in-home care. Whichever option you choose, there are some basic steps you should take so that arrangements go smoothly, including visiting or getting references for the facility, reserving well in advance of busy holiday times, and making sure your pet meets vaccination and other requirements.

If money is no object, there is no end to the extravagance you can order for your pet. The Barkley Pet Hotel & Day Spa — which really does have a Neiman Barcus suite — is a one-of-a-kind animal fun-house in Westlake Village, about 40 miles northwest of Los Angeles. You can rent a Serenity Suite for $44 a night or reserve a storefront suite on Rodeo Drive or Hollywood Boulevard (they start at $72.50 a night). Add-ons include day camp sessions, limousine pickup and delivery, surf lessons, charm school, a mud mask, obedience training, holiday fur-dyeing and filet mignon from the Four Seasons.

You also get webcams, 24-hour staffing, a veterinarian under the same roof and lots of attention for your pet, said Malia A. Rivera, director of marketing for the hotel.

Daniel Smith and wife Kimberly Mellon-Smith of Thousand Oaks wouldn't leave their West Highlander white terrier Charlie alone for more than three hours before the Barkley opened. Now he's a regular there.

"Our dog means everything to us. He's like a child to us, our little buddy. He's part of our family," Smith said.

For special needs animals

— a senior or ailing dog, a puppy that isn't fully vaccinated, a large collection of pets, a pet that doesn't like to leave home or a new rescue dog that isn't socialized yet — home care might be the best choice. A professional pet sitter can come as many times a day as needed, walk and feed the animals, give medicines, even stay overnight, said Gretchen Rexach, who owns Home Buddies Caregivers in Burbank, a franchise of the national Home Buddies in-home pet care service.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: My brother, "Lenny," lives in upstate New York, and I live in Texas, but we've always been close and call each other often. Lenny has been raising two grandsons, ages 9 and 10, since the parents died in an accident four years ago. They are both good boys.

The problem is Lenny's favoritism. One boy has everything: a smart phone, a TV, a sunny corner bedroom, cool clothes and great Christmas and birthday gifts. You can hear the love in Lenny's voice when he talks about that child. Not so with the other boy. That child lives in a large, unpainted and windowless storage room next to their laundry. While his brother received an iPod for his birthday, this child got a plastic AM/FM radio.

These boys love each other, but I can see where such disparity has to be affecting them. I have tried to discuss this with Lenny, but neither he nor his wife sees any problem at all because they say they give each child what that boy asks for, nothing more, nothing less. What can I do? I feel my hands are tied while my heart is ripping apart. -- Twin in Texas

Dear Twin: Someone should pay that family a visit and see what is really going on. It's sometimes hard to judge from a phone call. You could be projecting your own fears onto a situation where the children are perfectly happy. Please plan a visit to see your brother so you can better assess the situation. If there is indeed such extreme favoritism going on, it will be easier to discuss it with Lenny and his wife when you can lovingly point out what they seem oblivious to. And it also provides an opportunity to give the less-favored brother some extra TLC while you're at it.

Dear Annie: I have known "Paula" since high school. She has been married for five years and has a year-old son. She doesn't get along with her husband and calls me often, sometimes crying, to tell me all the terrible things he does and says.

Not every phone call is like this. Sometimes the subject never comes up. But the rest of the time, it is exhausting listening to her, and she never listens to me. I've tried to be helpful, lending an ear, and frankly, I'm tired of it. Should I screen her calls? Should I tell her during a "normal" conversation that I don't want to talk about her marriage anymore? My husband says to stop answering the phone.

Paula sees a therapist and attends Al-Anon meetings. Any suggestions? — Frustrated Friend

Dear Frustrated: Between her husband and her child, Paula is obviously having a difficult time coping. She needs to talk about it -- a lot. If you can allow her to vent, that would be supportive of you. You do not need to offer advice. But if that is too exhausting, it's OK to tell her gently that you do not have the energy to be her sounding board and you hope she is discussing these things with her therapist.

Dear Annie: Like "Frustrated Wife," I am married to a man who won't lift a finger around the house. But I can't let dirty dishes, clothes, tools and garbage pile up in the house in which my children are growing up. I also can't let the lawn turn into a jungle, the bills go unpaid and the car run out of gas.

I do what I must to take care of the children and myself, but I see no reason to make my husband's life any easier when he does nothing for mine. He refuses counseling. Maybe after a decade of his wife juggling full-time employment with exhaustion at home, "Frustrated's" husband will write you wondering why they don't have sex anymore. — Household Slave

Dear Slave: Your marriage sounds miserable. If you can afford it, hire some household help. And please consider counseling for yourself.

News in brief

Greece's Papandreou toughs out referendum pledge despite market turmoil, European dismay

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece's prime minister held firm early Wednesday to his shock decision to call for a referendum on a hard-fought European debt deal, despite anger from abroad, market turmoil across the world and dissent from within his own party.

George Papandreou's government still faced a battle for survival, with a vote of confidence scheduled for Friday and a grilling from frustrated European leaders expected later in the day ahead of the Group of 20 summit in the French Riviera.

After a grueling seven-hour Cabinet meeting that finished after 3 a.m. (0100GMT), government spokesman Ilias Mossialos said Papandreou's ministers expressed "total support for the initiatives taken by the prime minister." He said the referendum would be held "as soon as possible."

However, government officials said two ministers still had strong reservations with the idea of a referendum, which will be the first in Greece since the country voted to abolish the monarchy in 1974. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity to reveal details of the Cabinet meeting.

Papandreou told his ministers that putting the issue to the Greek people was the only way to safeguard the European deal.

Federal Reserve concludes 2-day meeting with economists expecting no change in policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve, after employing a dwindling set of policy options at its last two meetings, may hit the pause button in hopes that the faint signs of the economy's rebound will grow stronger.

By taking a wait-and-see approach, the Fed would be buying time to assess whether its actions in August and September are having the desired effect of lowering long-term interest rates enough to jump-start growth.

The Fed's decision will be announced around mid-day Wednesday following two days of closed-door discussions.

The central bank will also release an updated economic forecast and Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke will hold a news conference to discuss the Fed's new forecast.

It will be Bernanke's third news conference after a Fed meeting and will continue a practice he began last April in an effort to give the public a better understanding of the Fed's decision-making.

Candidate's firm denials invite closer scrutiny of past conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herman Cain drew a line in the sand, and now he has to hope it sets like concrete.

Cain, a surprise leader in recent Republican presidential polls, has responded to allegations of sexual harassment with a series of definitive statements that invite closer scrutiny of his past conduct.

During 40 years in the business world, Cain says, he's never sexually harassed anyone.

He ticks off a long list of employers — Burger King, Coca-Cola, Godfather's Pizza and more — and says he was "never, never" accused of impropriety. "There's nothing else there to dig up," he says.

It may well be that Cain has nothing to hide.

But any number of politicians past were derailed after issuing a public invitation to check out their conduct, none more famously than Democratic presidential hopeful Gary Hart in 1987.

The Colorado senator challenged reporters to "follow me around" after questions arose about whether he'd been stepping out on his wife.

Conflict continues over final resting place of unidentified remains of 9/11 victims

NEW YORK (AP) — An emotionally laden debate over the future resting place of thousands of unidentified remains of Sept. 11 victims is lingering as the attacks' 10th anniversary recedes, with several relatives saying they aren't satisfied with a recent city effort to spread the word about a plan to house the remains in the forthcoming 9/11 museum.

Under pressure from families who oppose the plan, the city outlined it in a letter sent last week to relatives of all the nearly 2,800 people killed at the World Trade Center. The letter came after 17 relatives sued the city to try to get addresses so they could poll the families themselves.

A judge rejected their request last week, but the city sent out the letters in hopes of resolving the matter.

"We know how profoundly significant and sensitive this matter is to victims' families," notes the letter from Dr. Charles Hirsch, the city's chief medical examiner, and Joe Daniels, the president of the National Sept. 11 Memorial & Museum, which counts some victims' relatives as board members.

Scout partner program

Give a child the opportunity to be part of something that could change their lives.

Most of us know the impact that positive leadership has on the children in our community.

What if I told you there was a way for you to give a child that chance and it only took up a very small part of your time (usually less than one hour) each week.

What if you are looking for a way to impact a child's life but do not have much money or time.

Being a partner in scouting is the perfect way for you to be involved. Scout partners can be married with or without kids, grandparents or single adults. As long as you are over 18 and have transportation, you can create the opportunity to change the life of a child in your community.

There are boys and girls in our community that need you right now, please give me a call and find out how you can be there for them. You may even be surprised at how much it may change your life too.

Lady Steers clinch Bi-District title

Set to face Kennedale Friday night in Albany

The Big Spring Lady Steers react as they clinch the Bi-District title Tuesday in Eastland. Big Spring will face Kennedale Friday night in Albany.

Big Spring claims decisive playoff win

By ROBERT GRIFFIN
Sports Editor

EASTLAND — In the swiftest of fashions, the Big Spring Lady Steers grabbed the Bi-District championship from the Vernon Lady Lions Tuesday night in Eastland. The girls needed only three games to claim the title and advance to a meeting with Kennedale in the Area round of the playoffs.

Cerbi Ritchey was a dominating force on the net again, as the Lady Steers won the games decisively 25-16, 25-15 and 25-16. This Daughter of Thunder led Big Spring with 11 kills and four aces. Many times during the game, Vernon players could be seen dodging for cover from one of her powerful spikes. Three of them never reached safety, as the ball — not too unlike a Nolan Ryan fastball — found them and delivered a painful reminder of the game.

Every time she served, Big Spring scored a minimum of five points. Ritchey also added 15 assists, 11 digs and three blocks to the stat sheet for the Lady Steers.

Ritchey was joined to form an unstoppable force on the net by Morgan Seaton. Seaton led the team with a game-high 19 assists, while also accumulating nine digs, five blocks and three kills.

Behind the setters, leading the team with an unthinkable 10 blocks, was Diamond Mayes. With Mayes was Taylor Seaton with eight blocks and an ace. The two also combined for 15 kills and 12 digs.

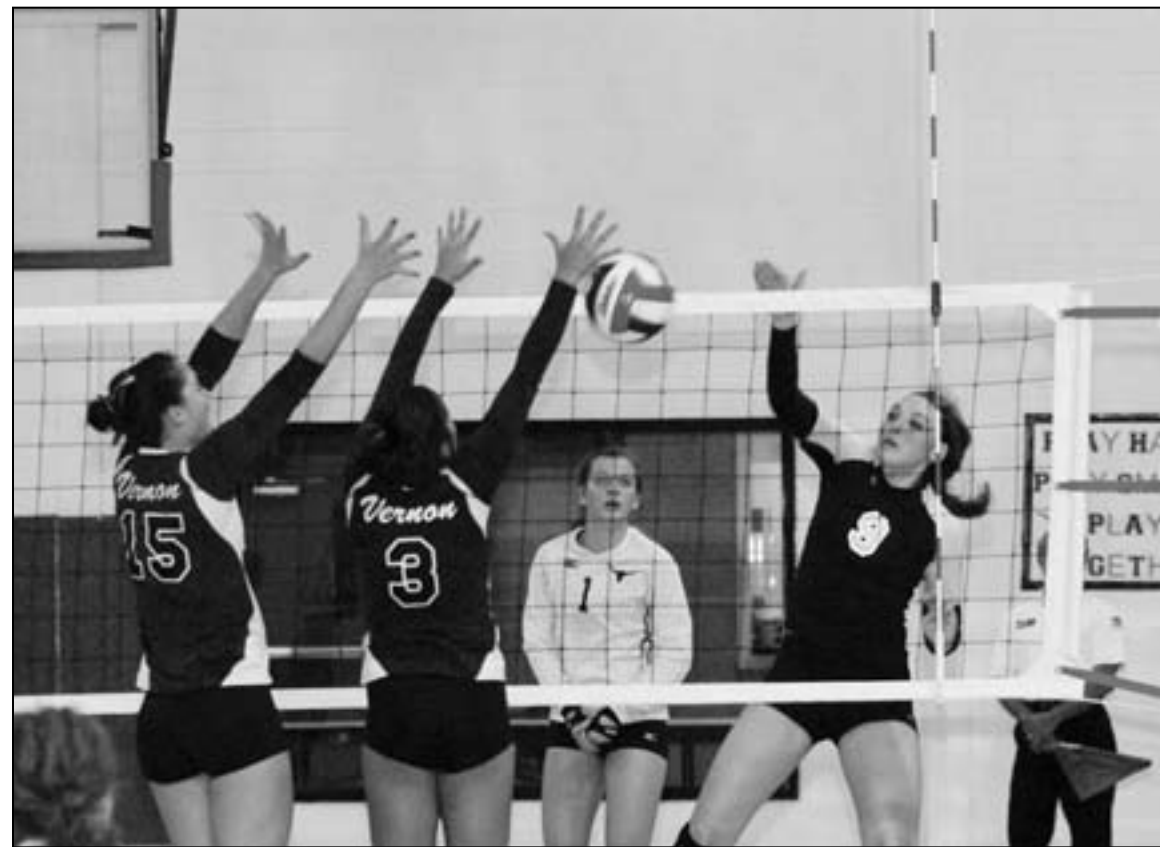

Rounding out the offensive production for Big Spring was Haley Dimidjian with eight kills, eight digs, three blocks and an ace.

Big Spring flew through the first two games, reaching the 10 and 11 point leads. In Game 3, after Ritchey served the Lady Steers up a 6-0 lead, Vernon found their second wind and tried to make a game out of it. The Lady Lions rallied back after a timeout and got to within two points of Big Spring on two occasions, 9-7 and 11-9.

Big Spring took their only time out of the night at this point and though it is unconfirmed what Coach Osborne actually said to the girls, it surely amounted to: "That's enough". Big Spring pushed back immediately after the break, advancing their lead to 16-10, before eventually claiming the trophy with a 25-15 final score.

The Lady Steers were led defensively by Carson Reibe with 20 digs. Logan Yarbar and Clara Benavides combined for 10 kills, while Benavides added three kills and two blocks.

The Lady Steers will face Kennedale this Friday at Albany High School in Albany. The game will start at 5:30 p.m.

BIG AIR FOR BIG SPRING — Logan Yarbar (1) gets high in the air to send the ball back over the net, as Cerbi Ritchey (7) and Taylor Seaton (12) watch. The Lady Steers defeated Vernon in three decisive games Tuesday night, with scores of 25-16, 25-15 and 25-16.

No beast in NFC East this year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The NFL's most successful division is a jumbled mess.

Nearly halfway through the season, only one team in the NFC East has a winning record. The New York Giants are 5-2 while Philadelphia, Dallas and Washington each are 3-4.

No other division has produced more Super Bowl winners (11) or conference champions (19), but there's no beast in the East this season.

"I think there's more parity throughout the league," Eagles coach Andy Reid said. "And that's what the league is striving for with the (salary) cap and so on. So I think we're there. I thought we were there the last couple of years and you start talking about the percentage of games that are determined by seven points or less and it's getting over that 50 percent mark.

"There's some parity going on."

Parity could be considered a synonym for mediocrity. Regardless, first place is certainly up for grabs in the East. The team that was supposed to be there all along just might end up on top.

The Eagles have rebounded nicely from a dreadful 1-4 start and are finally playing like, dare we say, a Dream Team. They've won two in a row, including a convincing 34-7 rout of the Cowboys in front of a national audience on Sunday night.

"The Eagles are back. The Eagles are back and we're ready to play Eagle Football," cornerback Asante Samuel boasted. "We did that on primetime, so everybody could see. Hopefully we can use this as a motivation factor and keep going."

Turnovers and sloppy mistakes cost the Eagles in each of their losses. They also lost two games they were leading before Michael Vick was injured and couldn't finish.

Reid took a lot of criticism and plenty of fans and media called for his firing. To a man, every player stood by their coach. They've seemingly turned things around and are a confident bunch these days.

"The games we've lost, we've done it to ourselves," said defensive end Jason Babin, one of six former Pro Bowl players the Eagles added in the offseason. "And when we do the right things, beautiful things happen."

With Vick and LeSean McCoy leading the way, the offense is ranked No. 1 in the league. The pass-happy Eagles even have the top rushing attack.

The defense has improved under offensive-line-coach-turned-defensive-coordinator Juan Castillo. Nnamdi Asomugha is finally fitting in after a so-so first month.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

say what's inside defines you, but that doesn't quite fit now, either. You're much bigger than your thoughts and feelings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Organizing yourself well is a talent. You're pretty amazing at this now. You'll leave the house knowing that you are prepared for every important occurrence and some of the unimportant ones, as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You will do something nice just because it feels good to do it. You probably won't give a thought as to what this will do for your karma, so the major karmic boost that results will be an unexpected bonus.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). When you face a challenge, you're not just facing it for you. You're facing it for everyone who has ever and will ever be challenged in a similar way. Hopefully, this knowledge will give you the courage to continue.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It's wide open for you right now. It's as though destiny hasn't put anything on the agenda for you, so do your thing. The only thing that is inevitable is what you decide upon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There's someone you feel you can rely on in times of trouble, but it's important to you that you reach out to this person in the good times, as well. The relationship is built one phone call at a time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Just when you thought you couldn't possibly be more in love with someone than you already are, a new surge of feeling swells up in you. Your capacity to love is endless.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You still may be reacting to the painful aspects of your past. Your relationship with someone special will help you work through these issues in a lighthearted and positive way today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There are buried memories and past heartbreaks you'd rather not recall. And yet, if you have the courage to dredge up such a recollection, you'll have a different take on it, which is a sign that you really have healed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The scene that unfolds is almost too funny to believe. It feels like you're the only one who gets the joke, though. You wish someone would wink at you so you would know that you're not alone in seeing the humor. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Though you like to know you've made a good impression, it's far more important that you be true to yourself. Otherwise, you'll be acting out a part to gain favor, which after a while will be exhausting.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). A joint venture will work out well for you, but only because you take initiative and your partner follows suit. Ultimately, it's your willingness to take action that will save the day.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 2). You're willing to move with the times, and so the future favors you. Your powers of concentration will be augmented. Furthermore, your attention is like magic in January. A new relationship blossoms in your nurturing sunshine. Financial improvement happens in February. June brings a move. Invest in September. Pisces and Virgo people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 1, 35, 41 and 17.

West dealt the hand and was dealt the ace and declared drew the contract. The declarer's contract was to take down the hand in 3NT.

When East covered with a king, declarer covered with a queen. This was a mistake. Declarer should have covered with a jack. This would have set up the king and queen.
