Elections Saturday

EDC funds are likely the most controversial

By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer

Big Spring voters will get one last chance to weigh in on this year's municipal elections Saturday, as the fate of a proposed overhaul of the municipality's water and wastewater facilities using up to $13 million in economic development funds hangs in the balance.

With polls in the Big Spring municipal election set to open at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m., local election officials are hoping for a heavy turnout to make up for the lighter-thanexpected balloting received during early voting.

"We really had expected higher numbers during early voting, especially with the water project on the ballot. The issue has been a hot one in the community and that will usually drive voter turnout up," Saundra Bloom, election administrator for the county, said. "Generally speaking, May is not a good month for voter turnout. This is Mother's Day weekend, plus you have a lot of folks going out of town for their children's playoff games, so it's a very busy time. That's not exactly conducive for good election totals."

Big Spring City Council voted unanimously to have the water and wastewater project placed on the May ballot dreds of their colleagues across Texas in protesting the emphasis state officials place on high stakes testing.

Thursday, the Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees unanimously approved a resolution calling upon state legislators to re-evaluate the place tests such as the TAKS (Texas Assessment of Knowledge and Skills) and STAAR (State of Texas Academic Assessment and Readiness) have in determining student success and college readiness.

The BSISD board joins 443 other such bodies across Texas which have signed off on the resolution.

"We are calling on our legislators to re-examine the accountability system in public schools," BSISD Superintendent Steven Saldivar said.

"We're also showing we are willing to band together ... to show both unity and to work with our legislators to come up with solutions."

Trustee Ken McIntosh said tests such as TAKS or STAAR are "a perversion" of their original intent, which was to gauge student academic progress and readiness daughter or friend and get ready to have some tea.

Dressed to a Tea — a Symphony Guild fundraiser— is set for 11:30 a.m. Saturday at First Christian Church.

"This is an event for all ages and those attending will be able to enjoy an elegant, fun environment," Eulaine McIntosh, guild president, said. In addition to the tea, there will be a fashion show and Victorian trivia. Blissful, a local boutique, will be providing the attire and models for the fashion show. Ellen Austin, Dressed to a Tea chair and event organizer, will be providing history and trivia about tea parties. "It will be an opportunity to learn about a period of history and support the arts in the community as well," McIntosh said.

For those wanting to attend, there is still time to purchase tickets for $10 each. Tickets can be purchased from any guild member or reservations can be made by calling Austin at 263-0565. When calling, leave a message with name, number and how many tickets are needed. "This is a great way to support the arts and keep them alive in our community while having a good time and making memories," McIntosh said. Contact Staff Writer Aman-

West Texas man gets

75 years for killing wife FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — A West

Texas man has been sentenced to 75 years in prison for killing his wife by stabbing her more than two dozen times.

A judge in Fort Stockton sentenced 41-yearold Luis Bustamante Orona.

The Fort Stockton man was convicted of murder in last July's slaying of 25-year-old Mayra Orona.

The victim was a convenience store manager and investigators say she was attacked outside the business. Police say the couple had a history of domestic violence.

A jury in March convicted Orona, who opted to have a judge sentence him. Orona faced up to life in prison when he was formally sentenced Thursday.

4 charged over alleged Texas bets, illegal racing

WACO, Texas (AP) — State authorities have charged four Central Texas residents after finding evidence of illegal gambling at unlicensed horse races.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reported Friday that the suspects are charged with felony racing without a license.

Concerned residents in March tipped off authorities about large crowds on Saturdays for races on strips of land. Affidavits indicate undercover agents made bets on separate unlicensed horse races in Elm Mott and Axtell.

Records show 53-year-old Carol Fuchshuber

Allen and 54-year-old William Wareham, both of Elm Mott, were arrested Wednesday. State agents in late April arrested 42-yearold Marcos Don Ibanez and 60-year-old Nicholas Jaimes, both of Waco.

All four suspects have been freed on $5,000 bonds. Jail records did not list attorneys for

Thousands lose power in Houston, Austin storms

HOUSTON (AP) — Thousands of homes and businesses have lost electricity as thunderstorms swept through parts of Texas.

CenterPoint Energy reported about 7,300 customers in the Houston area without power Friday. The National Weather Service expected more rain by afternoon.

About 3,000 Austin Energy customers lost electricity overnight during storms, but utility officials say that number had dwindled to a few dozen by Friday morning.

Oncor reported nearly 1,900 customers without power Friday in the rainy Dallas-Fort Worth area, plus Central Texas and the Midland-Odessa area.

Authorities say an apparent tornado touched down in the Southeast Texas town of Weimar (WY'-mer) late Thursday. Eight people in a trailer in a school parking lot were slightly hurt. More than two dozen cars of a freight train derailed amid the strong

Texas man dies in boat accident at Waurika Lake

WAURIKA, Okla. (AP) — Officials say a Texas man is dead following a boating accident at Waurika Lake in Oklahoma.

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol says 54-year-old Gary Dale Moore Sr. of Henryetta, Texas, fell out of a 14-foot aluminum boat on Thursday and didn't resurface.

An incident report says a 73-year-passenger in the boat stood up, making the boat unstable and pitching both men overboard. A nearby fisherman witnessed the incident and rescued the passenger. Moore was found several hours later.

Baby, 58 dogs rescued from filthy North Texas home

SPRINGTOWN, Texas (AP) — Authorities responding to a tip from a concerned citizen found 58 dogs living in filth without food and water — and a baby in a crib surrounded by the animals' waste. The situation was found at a house near says the 48-year-old woman who owns the house was arrested on an outstanding warrant but could be charged with animal cru-

Child Protective Services workers turned the child over to his mother with orders not to bring him back. County Animal Control Supervisor Karen Kessler says most of the dogs were in fair condition, but some were in poor shape. Two were euthanized.

The other animals were taken to the Weatherford/Parker County animal shelter.

during their Feb. 14 meeting, a move that drew both praise and criticism from various voices in the community. The ballot language, in part, reads "Shall the Big Spring Economic Development Corporation, a Type 4A Development Corporation, be authorized to use the sales and use tax imposed under Chapter 504 of the Development Corporation Act" for a 4B project, namely to "construct, acquire, improve, renovate and equip improvements and facilities for the supply and conservation of water, including the repair and rehabilitation of the city of Big Spring's water and wastewater treatment plants and repair and replacement of water distribution lines located in the city."

As part of the agreement between the council and the Big Spring Economic Development board of directors, if voters approve the project the EDC will provide $750,000 a year for the first two years, and then 40 percent of its sales tax revenue — with a floor of $500,000 and a ceiling of $750,000 for the following 18 years — with the city of Big Spring picking up the remainder of the tab.

Bloom said a lack of understanding by the voters may be to blame for the slow voter turnout so far.

"It's possible a lot of people simply don't understand the project or how this use of economic development funds will effect the community, so they are simply avoiding the issue," Bloom said. "It's really hard to say at this point. Regardless, we're hoping to see a good turnout Saturday."

Also on the Big Spring ballot is the race for the District 4 seat on the city council, the only contested race in this year's election.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

Is he for real? Latinos and other legal immigrants in Arizona already are complaining about being profiled! And that's in spite of the courts barring the law from taking effect. Imagine what happens if the Supreme Court gives it a green light, not only for Arizona but for several other states that have been waiting to emulate its draconian measures. Is there any doubt that it would lead to widespread discrimination against Latinos and other "immigrantlooking" Americans? Yet, if the tea leaf readers are correct, this Supreme Court could take us all into the state of intolerance that Arizona has become. The Statue of Liberty would become a symbol of the nation we used to be. "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free ..." would become a sad joke. Our proud tradition as nation that appreciates the contributions of immigrants would be thrashed.

If the federal government fails to prevail in its case against Arizona, for Latinos and other immigrant-looking Americans around the country, the civil rights clock would be turned back for several decades.

And given the forceful way in which the majority of the justices seemed to attack the U.S. government's position for more than an hour last week, Arizona officials are optimistic that their mean-spirited measures will prevail.

Even immigrant rights advocates seem to be bracing themselves for a terrible blow when the Supreme Court rules on SB 1070 in late June.

"Changing the course of history has never been easy, and the fight for immigrant justice is no different," said Sharry, who heads the America's Voice Education Fund. "But the truth is that the number of angry extremists in this country is relatively small, and their days of blocking humane and sensible immigration reform are num-

While this may be true — because demographics don't lie a Supreme Court decision to uphold SB 1070 could be devastating. U.S. Latinos of the 21st century could find themselves living in the racist 1950s.

Obviously trying to pick up some downed spirits among the pro-immigrant troops, Sharry noted in a statement that, "What ever radicals in Arizona or the Supreme Court decide, we will prevail."

"Let's keep up the fight," he added. "Let's continue to build the political power we need to win. And let's know in our hearts that victory is not a matter of if, but a matter of when."

It's true. The pendulum eventually will swing in the opposite direction. But if a conservative majority in the Supreme Court sets back our clock for years, if we see our civil rights regressing because of this ruling, this may be the final kick in the stomach that Latinos need to start a new civil rights movement in this country.

Even the few Latinos who don't sympathize with undocumented immigrants would soon see that they, too, would be profiled and harassed unnecessarily.

If the High Court rules for Arizona, a new important issue will rapidly emerge in the Hispanic community. Until now, most Latinos could care less about the composition of the Supreme Court or about selecting a president who can change it. But if a Supreme Court majority allows profiling, count on Latinos to start profiling them.

Black nails in the last minute Saturday night with helpful Bea hey made me feel so Bea does my nails. I found her because she works seven until 8 at night.

She sits at the front table, which in the world of Vietnamese nail salons means the money is in her drawer, and she's the one who makes sure everyone gets their fair share of busi-

Until last Saturday night, though, I didn't know she owned the place.

I came running in way after 7, my nails black from cleaning my suede shoes for a trip the next morning to New York without wearing gloves. Dumb as a doorknob.

When I walked in, near closing, black nails, Saturday night, Bea looked at me like I was God's gift. I tip well — but not that well.

She was almost done, and the place was almost empty except for the other workers, who had gathered around me, no doubt because the message had been spread in Vietnamese: Look who's here, what luck. You're a lawyer, Bea said. She knows I'm a lawyer. What kind of lawyer? I represent big companies in the biggest fights they have: when the farm is on fire.

Can I ask you just one question, she said, just a small ques-

My father was what we call a solo (a sole practitioner) in Lynn, Mass. He never made a dime. On the day he had the heart attack that killed him, 35 years ago, he was walking back from the courthouse where he successfully had helped grandparents keep their beloved grandchild from being taken to foster care. No retainer. No fee.

I don't do those cases, except when I do. I worked from the time I was 14, worked my way through college, bartended my way through law school. The big cases are paying my kids tuitions. The little cases are my way of honoring my father. I can help a person like Bea feel a little bit bigger. I write a letter. Make a call. Give them a voice, mine. Win or lose, it's about dignity. Right now, I have my hairdresser and my secretary.

A fancy white lady walked in with a little dog hidden in a carrier. No dogs allowed in the manicure shop.

OK, there are three Estrich dogs.

If I could, they'd be sitting next to me on this plane. So fine.

Except the woman didn't keep the dog in the carrier. She let the dog out, and the dog bit a pregnant manicurist. And the woman who was bit screamed, and Bea jumped up, and the customer started huffing out of the salon, claiming she had no ID and had to leave right then, and Bea took hold of the dog's leash and called the police.

The right thing to do? Of Except when the police came, they treated Bea like the criminal. The customer said Bea had pushed and shoved her. Hit her. The police told Bea that she was subject to arrest, that they could handcuff her and take her to the police station and lock her up. Bea said, "But I have witnesses." The police officer (yes, the white police officer) walked over to the next station, to a woman who speaks broken English, and started battering her with questions. She got flustered. She couldn't answer. As she told me later, the officer announced that if your witnesses can't speak English, they don't count.

At that point, some of the customers stood up. They offered their names and their testimony The police officers went back to focusing on the woman whose dog had bitten the pregnant woman. Eventually, the customer left, the pregnant woman went to the hospital, and Bea sat there shaking for the next six hours until I got there, when she finally broke down. In every city and town, there are police officers who respect the dignity of every citizen, who put their lives on the line every day to keep us safe. And then there are the ones who make hardworking Americans feel like powerless criminals, turn them from people striving for the American dream into people who are small and scared.

Shame. Shame.

Everybody hates lawyers until they need one. We don't just fight for the big guys. We stand between the Beas of the world and the people who, without us, would abuse their power with impunity. We do our best to make the rule of law mean something. We are the priests in the temple of our civic religion. In the rush to find jobs and pay debts, I try to remind my students of this. And myself.

What do I do if the police come after me, Bea asked, still shaking. I gave her my card. Tell them to call your lawyer.

CITY OF BIG SPRING SINGLE MEMBER DISTRICT FOUR AND 4B PROJECT ELECTION

Please remember to vote in the May 12, 2012 election. In addition to the contested race for Single Member District 4 between Bobby McDonald and Loretta Farquhar, there is a proposition on the ballot for citizens to vote For or Against the use of Type 4A Economic Development sales tax revenue to fund a Type 4B project of up to $13 Million of the approximate $23.8 Million in planned improvements to the City's water and wastewater infrastructure.

Major Impacts if Use of 4A Funds is Approved by a Majority of the Voters:

- The use of 4A sales tax revenue to fund a portion of the infrastructure improvements will reduce the need to use other sources of City revenue, such as increased property taxes or water utility fees.
- The use of up to 40% of the Big Spring EDC's annual sales tax revenue will reduce the amount of funds available for cash incentives on other economic development projects.

News in brief

Biden pushes Obama to declare gay marriage support, then apologizes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sorry, Mr.

After nearly single-handedly pushing gay marriage to the forefront of the presidential campaign and inadvertently pressuring President Barack Obama to declare his support for same-sex unions, there was only one thing left for Vice President Joe Biden to do: apologize. Biden's mea culpa came Wednesday in the Oval Office, shortly before the president sat for a hastily arranged interview in which he told the American people that he now supported gay marriage.

The vice president expressed remorse and regret for declaring his support for same-sex unions ahead of Obama, said a person familiar with the exchange, speaking on condition of anonymity to discuss the private conversation. Obama accepted the apology, saying he knew Biden had only been speaking from the heart.

Biden's apology followed days of frustration in the West Wing after the vice president went off script, something he had done plenty of times. Without White House approval, Biden declared on a Sunday talk show that he was "absolutely comfortable" with same-sex married couples having the same rights as heterosexual married couples.

Obama heads for hard-hit Nevada in wake of gay marriage buzz LOS ANGELES (AP) — President

Barack Obama is turning his attention back to the economy after a day spent raising millions of dollars for his campaign and riding a media wave on his newly declared support for same-sex marriage. Obama was to promote housing policies to help homeowners avoid foreclosure in a quick visit Friday to struggling Nevada, which ranks second in the nation in foreclosed homes and has the highest unemployment in Obama won in Nevada in his 2008 presidential election. But the economy presents new challenges as well as an opportunity for his Republican rival, Mitt Romney. Four years ago, Nevada was economically reeling from the recession and Obama and union allies seized on the anxiety to mobilize voters and Today, the Nevada is still in dire straits and the economy belongs to the president.

Obama was stopping in Reno, looking to shore up his support and draw attention to housing proposals that he says Congress must pass to help homeowners struggling with their mort-

JPMorgan Chase acknowledges $2 billion trading loss, 'many errors' JPMorgan Chase, the largest bank in the United States, said Thursday that it lost $2 billion in the past six weeks in a trading portfolio designed to hedge against risks the company takes with its own money. The company's stock plunged almost 7 percent in after-hours trading after the loss was announced. Other bank stocks, including Citigroup and Bank of America, suffered heavy losses as well. "The portfolio has proved to be riskier, more volatile and less effective as an economic hedge than we thought," CEO Jamie Dimon told reporters. "There were many errors, sloppiness and bad judgment." The trading loss is an embarrassment for a bank that came through the 2008 financial crisis in much better health than its peers. It kept clear of risky investments that hurt many other banks. The loss came in a portfolio of the complex financial instruments known as derivatives, and in a division of JPMorgan designed to help control its exposure to risk in the financial markets and invest excess money in its corporate treasury.

Syrian opposition chief blames car bombings on al-Qaida in Iraq

TOKYO (AP) — The head of Syria's

main opposition group said Friday the twin suicide car bombings that killed 55 people in Damascus appeared to be the work of al-Qaida forces he said were linked to the regime of President Bashar Assad. Paris-based Burhan Ghalioun, chief of the opposition Syrian National Council, said the cease-fire brokered by U.N. envoy Kofi Annan was "in crisis" because it lacks teeth. Speaking at a news conference in Tokyo, Ghalioun said there would be "no peaceful solution" to the violence in Syria "unless a threat of force against those who don't implement the plan." In Damascus, workers were paving over two massive craters caused by the bombs that struck a Syrian military compound Thursday. The attack, which also wounded more than 370 people, was the deadliest against a regime target since the Syrian uprising began 14 months ago.

Security forces armed with Kalashnikov rifles were guarding the compound Friday.

West Bank village fears Israeli barrier will destroy ancient farming landscape

BATTIR, West Bank (AP) — One of the last Palestinian farming villages that still uses irrigation systems from Roman times says its ancient way of life is in danger as Israel prepares to lay down its West Bank separation harrier.

With construction possibly beginning in the coming weeks, the people of Battir hope a legal battle, backed by recent U.N. recognition of the village's agricultural practices, will help change Israel's mind.

Battir's 6,000 inhabitants live in limestone-faced houses built into a hillside southwest of Jerusalem. On the lands around the homes, stone retaining walls have transformed scrubby hills into orderly terraces of olive trees and vegetable gardens.

Terraces are a common Palestinian farming technique in the hilly West Bank terrain. But in Battir, they are unique for their extent — stretching uninterrupted over nearly 2,000 hectares (800 acres) — and for the centuries-old network of irrigation canals that direct springwater over the stepped hills.

Miss. kidnap-slaving suspect shoots, kills himself; 2 girls rescued

GUNTOWN, Miss. (AP) — Authorities who tracked down a fugitive accused of kidnapping two girls and killing their mother and older sister said they repeatedly ordered him to surrender, but he instead pulled out a pistol and shot himself in the head.

Adam Mayes, 35, was later pronounced dead and the two sisters, Alexandria Bain, 12, and Kyliyah Bain, 8, were rescued Thursday, ending a nearly two-week search that began when Jo Ann Bain and her three daughters disappeared from their Tennessee home April 27.

After getting a tip, law enforcement officers were sent to search a densely wooded area west of Mayes' home in Guntown, Miss., said Aaron T. Ford, special agent in charge of the FBI's Memphis, Tenn., office.

At 6:50 p.m. Thursday, an officer saw Alexandria Bain in an area about 100 yards behind a church, Ford said. Officers shouted commands for Mayes to show his hands, Ford said.

But Mayes pulled a semiautomatic pistol from his waistband and shot himself in the head, Ford said. Law enforcement officers moved in to rescue the two girls, who were lying on the ground nearby. Ford said they looked like they had been in the woods for two or three days and were suffering from exposure, dehydration and poison ivy.

merican journalist, Herb Caen, apparently was a wise man and a keen observer of human nature. Although he has been dead for over a decade now, he left the following gem in our storehouse of memorable quotes: "A man begins cutting his wisdom teeth the first time he bites off more than he can chew."

As much as I would like to agree with this crafty statement, my own life defies it. Being prone to bite off more than I can chew, I have reached retirement age with no wisdom teeth. My tendency to over schedule, over commit, and take on too many responsibilities hasn't changed much. I still find myself playing a dot-to-dot game from one deadline to the next. In spite of all this, I still like a challenge now and then.

Traditionally, the cutting of wisdom teeth, the third molars on each side of the upper and lower jaw, was associated with the acquisition of maturity and discretion. All three events were a passage into the adult Unfortunate, some people never get wisdom teeth, and some never attain maturity or discretion. The correlation between the lack of molars and the absence of wisdom still remains a mystery, and to my knowledge, no government study has even been done on the topic.

Other would-be philosophers have associated wisdom with decision making. According to this theory, wisdom comes from making good decisions, and the ability to make good decisions is often the outgrowth of making bad decisions. It is all a > matter of trial and error. The acquisition of wisdom is a haphazard process with no certain outcome.

While this sink-or-swim approach to gaining wisdom may work out for us sometimes, the Scripture offers a more reliable method of developing wisdom. King Solomon, asked God to grant him wisdom and God honored his request. The king wrote, "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge; Fools despise wisdom and instruction" (Proverbs 1:7 NASB).

In the New Testament, the apostle James expanded this thought about the acquisition of wisdom: "But if any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all men generously and without reproach, and it will be given to him" (James 1:5 NASB).

Perhaps wisdom teeth aren't the result of stuffing our mouths with more than we can chew. True wisdom, with or without teeth, comes from acknowledging the sovereignty and authority of God and depending on Him for instruction.

A tribute to our mothers great joy in my heart, thank you not By Kenneth Garcia

Sunday, we as Americans will be celebrating Mother's day.

In 1907 a lady by the name of Anna Jarvis held a memorial for her mother. Following this, Anna campaigned to make "Mother's Day" a recognized holiday in the United States of America. Finally, in 1914, Anna succeeded in her goal. Initially Mother's Day was a day mother's would be held up in honor yet as we look around we can see it has lost some of its original intent. It was even said by the year 1920 Anna Jarvis was disappointed at how commercialized Mother's Day had become. In the eves of Anna Jarvis Mother's Day went from being a day to honor our mother's to an opportunity to make some money.

I would like to at this time to honor all of our mothers who are overwhelmingly valuable to our society and even more importantly to our own personal lives. In Ephesians 6:2 it says, "Honor your Father and Mother, which is the first commandment with a promise."

I am a man who is happily married to the love of my life, Cassie Garcia, and is overwhelmingly blessed with a great daughter, Aranae Garcia.

Somewhat frequently people will approach me regarding my daughter and tell me just how lovely she is and typically I will respond by saving her mother does a fabulous job of fixing all the mistakes I make in her life.

When I think about mothers and the raising of children I cannot but sit at awe at how overwhelmingly valuable they are in that regard. For me I am very fortunate in that regard because my lovely wife and the mother of my daughter are privileged to stay home and raise my child. I know when I look at mothers and the raising of children there is so much that goes into that task. I know my mother-in-law put much work in my wife during the years of her youth and for that I am grateful. My wife is a lady who is very gifted at hospitality, is extremely kind and courteous, is overwhelmingly generous with her time and is gifted in taking care of my daughter and I know full well that it is due to the hard work her mother put into her growing up so I say with only to my mother-in-law, but to all mothers for your hard work. Also consider all the wonderful memories all of us have because of the mothers who are in each of our lives. Growing up I did not have what many would consider ideal circumstances and part of that was due to the choices my own mother would make yet even though that is the case I can still look back on my childhood and find great memories because of her.

Also when I was in school in Denver, Colo., there was a lady by the name of DeAnn Wilkie who accepted me as one of her own children and I can remember times when friends of the Wilkie's would come into town and she would introduce me as one of her sons. On top of that she would, along with her whole family invite me out to dinner and lunch after service regularly while I was in school. One reason that meant so much was because I was living on support and I was actually under supported so if she did not do that for me I would have went without in that regard. So when I think about all the moth-

ast week the Evangelical Christian Publishers Association met in Chicago and chose Billy Graham's new book Nearing Home as the "2012 Best Christian Book of the Year." Dr. Graham turned 93 in November of last year. In his book, he says, "Growing old has been the greatest surprise of my life. ... When granted many years of life, growing old in age is natural, but growing old in grace is a choice.

Growing older with grace is possible to all who set their hearts and minds on the Giver of grace, the Lord Jesus Christ."

No individual has had a greater impact in shaping our spiritual landscape in the last century than Billy Graham. He first rose to prominence in 1949, when he preached an evangelistic crusade in Los Angeles, Calif., that was extended for eight weeks. That event launched a career that spanned more than half a century with Crusades in more than 150 countries. More than three million professed Christ in Graham Crusades, but they are only a fraction of the number impacted by his messages via radio, television, books and movies. I first heard Billy Graham preach in 1971, at Texas Stadium in Irving, the Dallas Cowboys' famous open roofed structure. Before the first game was ever played in the stadium, Tom Landry gave his testimony quoting Augustine, "Our hearts are restless indeed, O God, until they find their rest in thee."

I have followed Dr. Graham since that time and have found him a constant reference point for Christian faith and witness. I am glad he has chosen to write once more from his unique perspective at 93.

While he would be the first to admit he has made mistakes, his life has been remarkable. Graham has served as a spiritual confidant for every president since Harry S. Truman and took bold stands as a leader for integration during the civil rights movement. Unlike many "televangelists," he had himself placed on a salary early in his career and avoided any hint of scandal.

He and his wife, Ruth, had an exemplary marriage for 63 years before her death in June 2007.

Dr. Graham's book is filled with hope and inspiration while taking an honest look at the challenges of old age. He writes, "I can't truthfully say I have liked growing older. At times I wish I could still do everything I once did — but I can't. I wish I didn't have to face the infirmities and uncertainties that seem to be part of this stage of life — but I do."

He asks the important question, "Is old age only a cruel burden that grows heavier and heavier as the years go by, with nothing to look forward to but death? Or can it be something more?" The remainder of his book contains his reflections on these important questions and reveals how life can be full and meaningful at every age.

Chamber to host golf tourney

By AMANDA MORENO

Staff Writer

In case you haven't hit the green enough this year or were just waiting for the right moment, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is providing a chance to do so.

The Crossroads of West Texas Golf Classic is set for May 18-20 at the Big Spring Country Club Golf Course. Entries are limited to the first 100 paid teams and will be in the form of a two-man scramble format.

"Ninety percent of the registration money goes back to the players for the prizes. The chamber doesn't make any money off of that," Executive Director Debbye ValVerde said.

Team entry fees are $200 per team and must be paid in advance. No refunds will be given after Friday. The entry fee includes food, beverages, Friday afternoon shootout and more.

Sponsorships are not only a big part of the fundraiser, but also the area where the chamber makes money. There are three sponsorship opportunities, according to ValVerde. Eagle sponsors receive one paid team in the tournament, full inclusion in all advertising, including sign area in patio, company banner display and hole sign for $600; birdie sponsors receive one paid player for your team, full inclusion in all advertising including sign area in patio and hole sign for $400; and par sponsors receive full inclusion in all advertising and hole sign for $250.

"All money raised during the golf tournament is placed into our general fund which is used for our projects throughout the year," ValVerde said.

The winners of the tournament will have the option of taking their winnings at 100 percent in pro shop merchandise or cash prize at 70 percent. All applicable announced tournament rules are final except by committee approval.

"This is one more thing people can do in Big Spring," ValVerde said.

For those wanting to sponsor, call the chamber at 263-7641. To register as a team, call the pro shop at 267-5354.

Rangers earn split with Baltimore DAVID GINSBURG Tuesday and had five

AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — After Colby Lewis had a performance he categorized quite accurately as "weird," Josh Hamilton hit a drive that is becoming quite typical.

The result for the Texas Rangers was a split of their doubleheader against the Baltimore Orioles on Thursday.

In the opener, Lewis gave up a career-high five home runs — including one to each of the first three batters he faced — in a 6-5 defeat. Then Hamilton hit his major league-leading 15th homer, a long tworun shot that propelled Texas to a 7-3 victory.

off a four-homer game his major league-lead-home runs in his previous six at-bats. After going 1 for 4 with a single and two strikeouts in the first game, he resumed his assault on Baltimore pitching with a first-inning drive off former Rangers righthander Tommy Hunter (2-2).

The ball traveled an estimated 442 feet and was the 60th in the 21year history of Camden Yards to land on Eutaw Street, far beyond the right-field scoreboard.

Asked if Hamilton hit a good pitch, Hunter replied, "He hit a baseball. The dude's on fire. What do you want me to say?"

Hamilton went 1 for 4 in the nightcap, drop-Hamilton entered the ping his batting average doubleheader coming to .395 but increasing ing RBI total to 38. In the four-game series he went 8 for 18 with six homers and 12 RBIs.

"I was pretty happy I had a good series," the slugger said.

"Any time Josh goes up to the plate, you can anticipate something good is going to happen," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "He got us on the board right away in the first inning. They began to pitch him tough after that. He's a big cog in our lineup and I'm very happy he swung the bat the way he did because we needed everything he gave us." After Hamilton put Texas in front, the Orioles took advantage of

Astros walking their way to success

KRISTIE RIEKEN

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Last season, the Houston Astros had the fewest walks in the majors on their way to baseball's worst record.

Maybe the Astros have turned a corner: Entering Thursday, they were seventh in the National League in walks and sixth in on-base percentage, a change that suggests one of baseball's youngest teams is maturing and why they believe they are much, much better than last season.

Manager Brad Mills decided to focus on improving this area at the start of spring training.

"I think you hoped it would work. You never knew if it would," he said. "(It's about) how these guys are fitting in and what they do and realizing what they can do."

Patience at the plate isn't something players gain overnight and it's a constant battle for Mills to keep players from backsliding.

Left fielder J.D. Martinez walked just 13 times in 208 at-bats last season. This year, he already has a team-leading 19 walks in just 100 plate appearances. That has helped increase his on-base percentage from .319 last year lower batting average.

to .353 now, despite a significantly The 24-year-old insists he wasn't actively trying to walk more. The walks are simply a product of a better approach at the plate. "It wasn't something that I really worked on, I just really try to pick my pitches and if it's not there, it's not there and I'm not going to swing at it," he said.

Center fielder Jordan Schafer, who is in his first full season in Houston after a July trade from Atlanta, immediately reaped the benefits of embracing Mills' philosophy. He tied a franchise record by reaching safely in his first 25 straight games to start the season. He's second to Martinez in walks with 14 and is already halfway to his walk total from last season when he played 82 games, which has significantly increased his on-base percent-

Schafer is still adjusting to the change despite the positive results.

"I just try to go deeper in counts and take pitches," he said. "It's helped me walk more, but it's also got me in a lot more two-strike counts where I've been behind a lot. Sometimes I don't feel comfortable taking so many pitches, but sometimes I need to, especially if the pitcher gets out in front of me."

Schafer prefers to be a more aggressive hitter, but knows that as the leadoff hitter and Houston's best base stealer, his getting on base is more important than being overly aggressive.

"Anytime I can get on base it's going to help us because the guys behind me are going to get better pitches to hit," said Schafer, who leads the Astros with 11 stolen bases. "There's a number of ways I can score once I get on base. It helps us all around."

Houston's increased walks are one part of a plan by Mills to help his team focus on the "little things" that can help a team win. The Astros head to Pittsburgh on Friday with a 14-17 record after wrapping up a ninegame homestand 6-3. "Going into spring training and playing good baseball and then starting the season and competing and being in every game just kind of proved not only to everybody else, but to ourselves, that we belong and we can play with anybody. Gambling to help fund Vikings' new venue

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Now that the Minnesota Vikings will get their new stadium, the worrying can begin over a gambling expansion designed to pay the state's share of the $975 million project.

By passing the final stadium bill Thursday, lawmakers committed the state to raising $348 million by allowing electronic pull-tabs and bingo in bars and restaurants. The financing plan drew skepticism on the bill's way through the Legislature, prompting the sponsors to include backup measures in case the pull-tab dollars don't materialize, including a lottery game and luxury suite taxes.

Gov. Mark Dayton has pledged to sign the stadium bill into law after serving as its chief cheerleader. Backers pushed it through the Legislature after years of failed attempts, despite opposition from no-new-spending Republicans, liberal Democrats and even the top House Republican, Speaker Kurt Zellers. Lawmakers were on the receiving end of an intense outpouring of support from Vikings fans, while the state's business leaders and labor unions also put their clout behind the project. Minneapolis Mayor R.T. Rybak brought $150 million from his city to the table, subject to a City Council vote later this month.

But money questions were on the sidelines Thursday as Vikings fans celebrated the bill's passage. In the Senate gallery, fans broke out in a rendition of the "Skol Vikings!" fight song, earning a reprimand from the Senate secretary.

"Let's build it!" shouted Vikings vice president Lester Bagley, the team executive who spent much of the past decade lobbying for the nearly $1 billion stadium. The new stadium will be built on the downtown Minneapolis site of the 30-year-old Metrodome, an inflatable bubble-topped building the Vikings argued did not generate enough revenue for the team to compete.

On Thursday, the Vikings and the University of Minnesota announced they have reached preliminary agreement on the Vikings' use of TCF Bank Stadium during construction of a new Vikings stadium.

Under the agreement, the Vikings will pay the university a fixed fee of $250,000 per game. The combined rent and expected concessions and sponsorship revenue that the Vikings would share with the university would amount to $300,000 per game, or $3 million per regular NFL season.

Dallas, Washington appeal salary cap reductions

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins have had their appeals heard on the NFL's reductions to their salary caps.

Arbitrator Stephen Burbank met with

Cash the queen of diamonds, discarding the ten of clubs. East cannot afford to discard a club on this trick because you could then ruff the five of clubs to establish the queen and make the contract. So assume East

West, in turn, also cannot make a satisfactory discard. If he elects to let go of a spade, you cash the ace of spades and score your 13th trick with the seven of spades. If he discards the nine of clubs instead, you lead the queen of clubs from dummy, catching East's king and West's jack on the same trick and establishing dummy's five as your final trick.

Of course, if East doesn't cover the queen of clubs with the king, you simply discard a spade to make the grand slam.

go up 3-2 in the second inning. But Texas regained the lead in the fifth when Nelson Cruz doubled, Mike Napoli tripled and Elvis Andrus delivered a two-out RBI single.

The Rangers pulled away with a three-run seventh, scoring twice on grounders after Hamilton received an intentional walk.

Derek Holland (3-2) allowed three runs, none earned, to earn his first win in four starts since April 18.

Recalled from Triple-A Norfolk before the game, Hunter gave up four runs and five hits in six innings. He struck out seven. Wednesday night, setting up the twinbill. Texas has gone 13 straight doubleheaders since May 2007 without being swept.

The teams were rained out

In the first game, Ryan Flaherty, J.J. Hardy and Nick Markakis opened the bottom of the first inning with homers to give Baltimore a lead it did not relinquish. The previous team to homer in its first three at-bats was the Milwaukee Brewers on Sept. 9, 2007. Hardy also was the middle man in that spree.

Milwaukee was the third major league team to accomplish the feat, all from the NL.

After the three consecutive home runs, Lewis retired his next 18 batters before Adam Jones homered leading off the seventh to make it 4-1. Lewis walked Matt Wieters, and Wilson Betemit hit a drive to right for a 6-1 lead.

The five home runs were the only hits Lewis (3-2) allowed over seven innings, and he also set a career high with 12 strikeouts. That made him the first pitcher since 1918 to give up five home runs and have at least 10 strikeouts in the same game.

"I can't justify that game," Lewis said. "It seemed like one of those days where you have really good stuff and then you miss your spot or something and it's just not a hit, it's a homer. You can't really look at it any other way. It was just kind of a weird game."

Orioles starter Wei-Yin Chen (3-0) gave up two runs and six hits in 7 2-3 innings, striking out five and walking one. The 26-year-old Taiwan native has allowed two runs or fewer in five of six starts and has a 2.68 ERA in his rookie season.

After Chen left in the eighth, Adrian Beltre hit an RBI single to make it 6-2. Pinch-hitter David Murphy added a three-run homer in the ninth off Jim Johnson, who got three outs for his ninth save.

With Chen leading the way, the Orioles snapped a seven-game losing streak against the Rangers. Texas won the first two games of the series 14-3 and 10-3 and outscored Baltimore 70-18 during its seven-game run.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF CHANGES IN

ELECTION PRECINCTS Pursuant to §42.035, Texas Election Code, the city council for the City of Big Spring herein provides notice of changes in the council political boundaries as adopted, and as precleared by the States Department Justice on 3rd day of April, 2012.

Interested individuals may review the adopted changes at city hall during regular business hours.

The changes in district election precincts were necessitated by redistricting of the city council precincts in compliance with the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. §1973, also known as the Voting Rights Act, following the release of 2010 census data. Changes in the city council election precincts were designed to achieve numerical balance between the council precincts, and to insure the voting rights of all citizens in the City of Big Spring.

Ă VISŎ PUBLICO DE CAMBIOS EN DISTRITOS ELECTORALES

Con arreglo a §42.035, Texas codigo de eleiones, el Ayuntamiento de la ciudad de Big Spring aqui proporciona aviso de cambios en los limites politicos Consejo aprobado y como precleared por el departamento de Justicia de Estados Unidos el dia 3 de abril

Personas interesadas podran revisar los cambios adoptados en el avuntamiento durante el horario regular.

Los cambios en los precintos electorales de distrito fueron requeridos por la delimitacion de los recintos del Ayuntamiento de conformidad con la Constitucion de Estados Unidos v 42 U.S.C. §1973. tambien conocida como la lev de derechos electorales, tras la publicación de datos del censo de 2010. Cambios en el recinto de eleccion del Consejo de la ciudad fueron disenados para lograr el equilibrio numerico entre el recinto del Consejo y para asegurar los derechos de voto de todos los ciudadanos en la ciudad de los Alpes Venus and Saturn have reminders that you don't have doing to be something at every moment. Sometimes life is about just being you, doing nothing particular.

> GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll love the way an arrangement develops now. New treats will be added to sweeten the deal. This is partly because of your stellar sense of timing and partly because the other party recognizes value of your end of it.

> CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll connect with a courageous and strong part of your personality. You won't accept less than you think you deserve without a fight. Others join in after you pave the way. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22).

> You may find yourself dissatisfied with the languid pacing of a lackluster routine. No one is to blame per se, though you'll take on the responsibility formulating a specific plan to inject excitement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You'll give someone a kindness that you wish someone had given you. Your generosity of spirit is hardly unusual, though someone who is not used to the luxury of your friendship experience it as such.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Looking into the past can be dicey because you never know memories are going to come up, and the feelings attached to them can be equally surprising. There will be something good that comes of excavation, though.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Your connection to an older person will make life richer. Reach out and questions, particularly having to do with traditions, manners and wavs that are unfamiliar to you.

(Nov. SAGITTARIUS 22-Dec. 21). There will be drama and excitement. You usually prefer not to be involved with that sort deny that it adds a certain energy boost to a time period that might marked otherwise be a bit dull.

and supportive. However, that all changed several days ago when I told him I realized I was an atheist. Kurt completely shut down and ignored me for the rest of the evening and the following day. When he finally did talk to me, he told me he felt like a failure as a husband, that betrayed him, that he's no longer proud to be married to me, and that my atheism is a "dirty secret" he has to keep.

He proceeded to list all of the things that are wrong with our marriage and implied the fault was all mine.

When tried interject my opinions, he told me to shut up because he didn't care what I had to say on the matter. Then he went to bed. We have not spoken of it since.

Needless to say, I am heartbroken. Since this incident, o you have any advice about how to proceed? I don't know whether our marriage can survive this. — The Apostate

Dear Ap: I hate to be the bearer of bad news, but I believe the marriage is a goner. Your husband is clearly very religious. He is embarrassed that you have arrived at this decision and is unwilling hang on to the through marriage counseling.

I think your life will be happier when you two part, as this new barrier between you is such a basic issue.

I salute you for taking two years to arrive at a decision, and I do not believe you have "a problem." Good luck. have Margo, thoughtfully

He and his wife opted not to have a baby shower, partly due to the fact that she's a doctor at a busy urban hospital and now is on mandatory bed rest. My co-workers and I want to honor this occasion, and we all decided to contribute money to buy a gift and throw him a small office shower.

My task is to create the greeting card, as I do this as a part-time gig, but I am at a loss. Because the shower will only be for him at our office I was going to have the card say something along the lines of "For the soon-to-be daddy." But not including her doesn't feel (Personally, I intend to send them a gift addressed to both, as I know them both socially.) Any advice? — One of the Girls

Dear One: Since the boss is held in high regard, I think it's fine to have him be the single honoree at the shower. He knows his wife was involved, so don't give it a thought that there's no mention of the mom-to-be on the card. The interest of everyone in the office sounds quite sweet. I know the shower will be great success. Margo, festively
