Rains buy some time for CRMWD

Ivie sees biggest benefit from recent downpours

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Recent rainfall in and around the Crossroads area — along with increased water conservation efforts — has likely added another two to three months to the dangerously short lifespan of the local water district's lone surviving reservoir, according to officials.

According to John Grant, Colorado River Municipal Water District general manager, the recent rainfall has done little to improve low reservoir levels at Lake Thomas and Lake Spence, but Lake Ivie saw a considerable gain from Mother Nature's gift.

"The heavier rain we had about three weeks ago had the most effect on our reservoirs," Grant said. "We didn't see any real changes at Spence or Thomas, but at Ivie we saw the lake level raise approximately one foot, which is good."

Grant According to CRMWD records, the Ivie Reservoir is currently at 16.26 percent of capacity, making it the water district's principle source of raw water. Lake Spence remains at just 0.39 percent capacity and Lake J.B. Thomas is at 0.78 percent capacity.

"We haven't used Lake Thomas to supply Big Spring with water in quite some time. It's been since around 2008 since we've sent water from Thomas to Big Spring," Grant said. "However, water levels have finally gotten so low we've had to stop pumping water from Thomas to the city of Snyder, which is basically getting the same Ivie water the rest of the cities are getting now."

"We're working on getting a barge pump up and running at Lake Thomas, so we haven't given up on pumping water from there altogether. However, it's going to take a very considerable influx of rainfall before we can look at it or Spence as a viable source of reservoir water again." Grant said the recent rains, along with increased conservation efforts, should mean a longer period of time before Ivie theoretically runs dry. "Previously, we were looking at running out of reservoir water at Ivie sometime around December or January," Grant said. "However, we've been able to decrease our overall water deliveries to the cities we serve, which we believe extended the life of Ivie out until about April of 2013. "These rains, along with the months we've saved through conservation, should give us until June or July before Ivie is too low to pump water from, and that is if we don't get any more rain between now and then. So, we're definitely in much better shape now than we had expected to be in when we began looking at the situation." Also an encouraging note on the water district's calendar is the ongoing work on a pipeline to bring water from its Ward County well fields to the Crossroads area, a project Grant said is developing right on time. "We've been working on a very tight calendar all along, there's little doubt of that," Grant said. "When we were looking at running out of reservoir water in December we were also looking at having this pipeline completed in January 2013. However, things are going very well with the pipeline and barring some sort of unforeseen problem, I fully expect it will be up and running on time." The project — which is estimated at $140 million, along with ongoing efforts to build a water reclamation plant in Big Spring — could generate approximately 45 million gallons of water per day for the Crossroads area. "We actually have two pipelines currently under construction," Grant said. "The first is to connect a new well field CRMWD has purchased with the existing one in Ward County. The second pipeline will increase the amount of water we can deliver from the well fields. We're also in the process of drilling more wells in the Ward County fields." While the recent rainfall may have given CRMWD a bit of a cushion going into 2013 and added some greenery to the local scenery, the city of Big Spring remains in Stage 3 of its drought contingency plan, implemented by the city council to meet CRMWD's decreases in water deliveries. Currently, municipal water customers are on a two-hour-a-week schedule for outdoor watering, according to Assistant City Manager Todd Darden. The restrictions allow residential customers whose address ends in an odd number to water their lawns for a two-hour period Tuesdays between the hours of 6 p.m. and 10 p.m., while residential customers whose address ends in an even number are allowed to water for a two-hour period Thursdays between the hours of 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. "The recent rains have helped to green-up many of our lawns, but they haven't changed the need for water conservation at all," Darden said. "The situation is just as dire and in need of our attention now as it was before the rains. In truth, it's going to take a lot more than a few rain storms before we can put these drought issues behind us." Commercial establishments are currently allowed to water in accordance with the Drought Contingency Plan for a two-hour period Wednesdays between the hours of 6 a.m. and 10 a.m. Additional restrictions include: • Vehicles can only be washed at commercial — including mobile — car wash establishments. • Wading pools, fish ponds and fountains can be filled during the allotted watering schedule, only.

CRMWD

- Swimming pools, jacuzzis, hot tubs and other recreational water-using items can only be filled between 6 p.m. and 8 a.m.
- No outside watering is allowed except on the days and times designated, with the exception of potted plants and flower beds, which can be watered on any day between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. using a watering can of 5 gallons or less. Use of a water hose during these hours is strictly prohibited.
- Washing of houses, decks, sidewalks, driveways, parking lots, etc. is strictly prohibited.

food, and, as a new twist, pig races. Funtastic Fourth organizer Christy Brorman said the pig races will be previewed June 29 at Heart of the City Park. While the seriousness of the competition is up for debate, its goal is the same as everything else associated with the event — fun. "It will be just an entire day of family fun," Brorman promised. "We'll have a little bit of something for everybody ... There's no need for anyone to go anywhere else that weekend — we'll have it all here." Bands from across the area will perform throughout the day, covering the musical spectrum from country to rock to Tejano to Christian, culminating in a performance from country and western artist Rick O'Toole, Brorman said. In addition, vendors will serve a variety of foods and other goods, she said. Admission to Funtastic Fourth is free, but organizers are still accepting vendors and sponsors to help defray costs. To donate, contact Brorman at 446-2268.

News in brief

Report: Iran military denies claims that it demolished buildings at suspected nuclear site

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran's military is denying claims by the U.N.'s nuclear watchdog that it demolished buildings at a base in a suspected attempt to cover up nuclear testing, the state media reported Monday.

The report by YJC.ir news website quoted Defense Minister Gen. Ahmad Vahidi as saying allegations that Iran was trying to erase evidence at the Parchin military base are "irrelevant and unwise." Iranian officials have issued similar denials over the past few weeks but this is the first by the defense minister, under whose authority the base falls.

"The allegations are aimed at affecting nuclear talks in Moscow," Gen. Vahidi was quoted as saying, referring to an upcoming round of negotiations between Iran and six world powers in the Russian capital over the Islamic Republic's nuclear program.

The West suspects Iran is trying to develop weapons technology. Iran says its nuclear program is for peaceful purposes.

Lawyers in Sandusky case set to make opening statements, as other investigations grind on

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — A jury of seven women and five men will get their first glimpse of the case against former Penn State assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky — and his defense — when opening statements begin inside a central Pennsylvania courthouse.

Sandusky's lawyers and state prosecutors have been under a gag order for months, so their outline of the case to jurors Monday should reveal new details about an investigation that has taken several years.

Sandusky, 68, faces 52 criminal counts that he sexually abused 10 boys over 15 years, allegations he's consistently denied. Sandusky's lawyers were not able to get the judge to delay the trial, and on Friday Judge John Cleland rejected their request to have some or all of the counts dismissed.

Many of the alleged victims are expected to take the stand for the prosecution, and their credibility in jurors' eyes could prove to be the decisive factor in determining the verdict.

Suspect sought in shooting near Auburn U. that killed 3, including 2 ex-football players

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — The search continued Monday for a gunman suspected of killing three people and wounding three more in a shooting at a pool party near Auburn University. Two of the slain victims were former players for the school's powerhouse football program.

Authorities were searching for Desmonte Leonard, 22, of Montgomery, who is accused of opening fire Saturday night at an apartment complex after getting into a fight with some of the victims over a woman. He faces three counts of capital murder.

Auburn Police Chief Tommy Dawson said Leonard fled the scene in a white Chevrolet that he abandoned on the way back to Montgomery, about 55 miles away. They believed he was in the Montgomery area.

Of the three wounded victims, John Robertson remained in critical condition after being shot in the head. Xavier Moss was released from the hospital. The third wounded victim was Eric Mack, a current football player who is expected to recover.

Slain were Edward Christian, who had to quit the team because of a lingering back injury, and Ladarious Phillips, who had previously quit playing football. The other person killed was 20-year-old Demario Pitts.

Iraqi president says premier's opponents unable to muster votes needed to unseat him

BAGHDAD (AP) — Opponents of Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki have failed to muster enough support to bring him down in a vote of no confidence, Iraq's president said in a statement posted on his website Sunday.

Al-Maliki, a Shiite, faces a growing challenge from Sunni and Kurdish parties as well as other Shiites within his unity government who accuse him of monopolizing power.

But al-Maliki also has allies such as President Jalal Talabani, a Kurd, whose office must affirm that a petition for a no-confidence vote has enough signatures. Talabani's refusal to ratify the no-confidence campaign's letter is a setback for al-Maliki's opponents, although the constitution gives them other ways of trying for the vote.

Coalition rebels said in a statement they would keep trying to unseat al-Maliki and to "put an end to the monopoly (on power) and domination" by the prime minister.

Talabani has close ties to Iran, which has been using its leverage in Iraq to keep al-Maliki in place. Divisions among the prime minister's opponents may also be undercutting the no confidence push.

Once upon a time, a sweet story called 'Once' won an Oscar — and now, it's a Tony winner, too

NEW YORK (AP) — Once upon a time, a quirky film made on a shoestring turned into an unlikely Oscar-winner and, even more improbably, a Broadway show.

Now, "Once" has completed its Cinderella story, winning the coveted best-musical Tony award Sunday for its bittersweet love story that has captured the hearts of theatergoers, just as it did with movie audiences in 2006.

"Once" won eight awards in all, including for its lead actor, Steve Kazee, who brought movie-star looks and a soulful singing voice to the part of Guy, a street musician in Dublin who falls for a Czech immigrant flower-seller.

Kazee gave one of the most poignant speeches of a night that had many of them, paying tearful tribute to his mother, who passed away on Easter Sunday. He also thanked his cast mates, especially co-star Cristin Milioti, for helping him cope: "They carried me around and made me feel alive."

"Once" triumphed over the more obviously commercial "Newsies" for the top prize, and that was a theme of the night — many of the top-honored shows were neither big-budget nor star-driven, and a number had started off-Broadway in small theaters.

Wildfires spread quickly in N.M., Colo.; hundreds flee as flames destroy structures

LAPORTE, Colo. (AP) — An eerie orange dusk shrouded part of northern Colorado, while heavy smoke choked a small community in southern New Mexico — as both regions battled wildfires spreading rapidly through mountainous forest land that have forced hundreds of evacuations and destroyed dozens of structures.

The Colorado fire, burning in a mountainous area about 15 miles west of Fort Collins, grew to more than 31 square miles within about a day of being reported and has destroyed or damaged 18 structures.

The fire on Sunday sent up heavy smoke, obscuring the sun in the middle of the day. The smell of smoke drifted into the Denver area and smoke spread as far away as central Nebraska, western Kansas and Texas.

Strong winds, meanwhile, grounded aircraft fighting a 40-square-mile wildfire near the mountain community of Ruidoso in southern New Mexico. Crews were working to build a fire line around the blaze, which started Friday and has damaged or destroyed 36 structures.

It wasn't immediately clear how many of the structures lost were homes. "We're still trying to take a tally," Kerry Gladden, public information officer for Ruidoso, said late Sunday afternoon.

Police: Commerce Secretary Bryson investigated in 2 Calif. crashes

SAN GABRIEL, Calif. (AP) — Police are investigating two traffic collisions allegedly caused by U.S. Commerce Secretary John Bryson in the Los Angeles area that left him injured and unconscious, authorities said Monday.

One of the crashes was under investigation as a felony hit and run, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's department and the San Gabriel Police Department said.

Bryson, 68, was treated at a hospital for non life-threatening injuries following the crashes around 5 p.m. PDT Saturday, the agencies said in a joint statement.

"As far as we know he is still admitted," sheriff's deputy Tony Moore said early Monday. He declined to provide any other information, including the name of the hospital.

Commerce Department officials couldn't immediately be reached for comment.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	Dble	4♠
6♦		Dble

Opening lead — king of spades.

This spectacular deal occurred some years ago in a knockout team match in which this writer was a participant.

At both tables, South elected to open one club with his 7-6 powerhouse, and the bidding then followed the course shown. North's double was of the "negative" variety, promising at least four hearts and upward of six high-card points. Both Souths then leaped to six diamonds over East's pre-emptive raise to four spades.

South's unusual bidding would seem to warrant close consideration, but both Wests, apparently thinking South had temporarily taken leave of his senses, doubled without pause for thought. Both Wests then led the king of spades and a short time later entered minus 1,090 on their score-cards.

Both Wests should have given more credence to South's bids. Since West was looking at the king of clubs — a critical card South knew he was missing when he bid the small slam — it would have been reasonable to conclude that South was not concerned about the lack of either major-suit ace. South thus had to be void in both major suits. This would be consistent with his one-club opening and subsequent six-diamond bid, marking him with 6-7 distribution.

But the story does not end there, for there was actually a way to defeat the slam! If West leads a low club at trick one, East ruffs, and West later scores the king of clubs for down one!

Finding the killing lead is not as far-fetched as it might seem. If West is more trusting of South's bidding and passes six diamonds, East might very well make a "Lightner" double, requesting an unusual lead. Given the bidding, the unusual lead would have to be a club, sinking the slam.

Tomorrow: Asleep at the switch.

Heavy rains flood Fla. homes; man drowns in Gulf

PENSACOLA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Flood warnings stretched along the Gulf Coast from Florida's Panhandle into Mississippi as locally heavy rain Monday threatened a repeat of weekend downpours and storms that damaged homes, blacked out a jail and spun off at least one tornado in Alabama.

A 23-year-old Mississippi man drowned off Florida's Pensacola Beach and more than a dozen other swimmers were ordered out of rough surf amid heavy rain that caused widespread flooding over the weekend, officials said. The Pensacola News Journal (<http://on.pnj.com/KvdzhV>) said the man's name has not been released.

The newspaper also reported the storms forced the evacuation of a 200-unit apartment complex in Pensacola. Many residents found severe flood damage when they returned Sunday afternoon. Officials say electric power could be restored at the complex Monday.

79th Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo set for June 21-23

People in West Texas know what it means to celebrate their heritage.

That's why it's such a big deal to take part in the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, set for 8 p.m. from June 21-23, at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl. Of course, it helps when the 79th annual celebration also is a great show.

"I think the only rodeo in Texas that's been running longer is in Pecos, and Pete Carr produces that one, too," Rodeo Chairman Ace Berry said, referring to Carr Pro Rodeo. "We know we'll have a really good rodeo with a lot of excitement."

From the mutton busting to the Santa Rosa Palomino Club's showcase to the incredible talent and show of Keith Isley, fans have come to expect great things for their entertainment dollar. That's just a small taste of what's on tap.

"We've been able to have some of the top cowboys come to Big Spring," said Derek Wash,

The Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo will return for the 79th straight year June 21-23 at the Rodeo Bowl. Also happening are concerts and other activities for the whole family.

Rangers throw three-hitter, down Giants

By ANTONIO GONZALEZ

AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — A near-perfect day for the Texas Rangers pitching staff ended the same way so many others have this season: in the training room.

Alexi Ogando pitched three perfect innings before leaving with a strained groin after a bunt single, combining with three relievers on a three-hitter to lead Texas past the San Francisco Giants 5-0 on Sunday.

The Rangers also shut out San Francisco for the first time this season in a 5-0 win Friday.

"I feel like everything we tried to do," Texas manager Ron Washington said, "worked for us."

Well, almost everything.

Robbie Ross (6-0) allowed only a double to pinch-hitter Aubrey Huff in the sixth while working four innings. Mike Williams upping two hits in a scoreless eighth and Joe Nathan tossed a 1-2-3 ninth.

The AL West-leading Rangers tagged Tim Lincecum (2-7) for all their runs and finished a 4-6 road trip. Even still, the Bay Area finale left its mark.

Ogando, who made his first start of the season filling in for injured Derek Holland, could be the latest Texas starter headed for the disabled list.

"Right now it feels pretty bad," said Ogando, scheduled to have an MRI exam Monday back in Texas. "I feel bad because of the situation we're in but that's something that happens in baseball."

Josh Hamilton and Ian Kinsler each drove in two runs to chase Lincecum after 5 2-3 innings in the fifth straight loss for San Francisco's shaggy-haired ace. He allowed nine hits, struck out five and walked four.

The two-time NL Cy Young Award winner has been erratic all season.

Sunday was no different.

Lincecum labored through a 30-pitch first inning — walking three straight with two outs — before striking out the side in the second on a rare warm, windless day at San Francisco's waterfront ballpark. In the third, Elvis Andrus tripled and scored on Adrian Beltre's two-out double to give Texas a 1-0 lead.

Everything really unraveled for the Giants in the fourth.

Astros power past White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) —

Lucas Harrell made the big pitches when he needed to and let his teammates do the rest.

The result was a satisfying win over his former club.

Justin Maxwell, Jose Altuve, J.D. Martinez and Brett Wallace all homered, leading the Houston Astros over the Chicago White Sox 11-9 on Sunday for their first road series of the season.

Maxwell's two-run shot in the fifth inning put the Astros ahead 4-3. He also singled, walked and scored two runs. His homer was estimated at 461 feet, curling just inside the left-field foul pole into the second deck.

Altuve hit a two-run shot in the eighth for an 11-4 lead. He drove in three runs and stole home on the back end of a double steal in the sixth.

Martinez homered on first pitch of the second, and Wallace added a solo shot in a five-run sixth for Houston that broke the game open.

The Astros put up 20 runs in the three-game series — 19 of them came in the two wins.

"It was huge to be able to put up that many home runs and get our first road (series) win," Astros manager Brad Mills said. "It was nice to see the guys come out swinging like that."

Adam Dunn hit his 20th homer of the season and Paul Konerko added his 12th for the White Sox. Konerko also singled, raising his average to .365.

Harrell (6-4) tied a career high by going 7 1-3 innings, winning his first start against the team that let him go. He gave up five runs and six hits and struck out five.

The White Sox drafted Harrell in the fourth round in 2004, but waived him last July. Harrell has won four of his past five starts.

"I played with half those guys for two, three-plus years," Harrell said. "You know their tendencies, you know what they work on when

Miami returns, OKC makes debut at finals

By JEFF LATZKE

AP Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY — When the Oklahoma City Thunder signed five-time champion Derek Fisher late in the season, they added a veteran guard with oodles more NBA finals experience than the rest of the roster he was joining.

Whether Fisher can prepare his Thunder teammates for what they're about to face is another matter.

While the Miami Heat are returning to the finals for the second straight season, it'll be an eye-opening, first-time experience for most of Oklahoma City's youthful players. Only Fisher, starting center Kendrick Perkins and backup Nazr Mohammed have ever made it this far — all winning titles with other teams.

But for all the leadership Fisher has provided since joining the Thunder in late March, he doesn't plan any lectures for the team's younger set that includes three-time scoring champion Kevin Durant and All-Star point guard Russell Westbrook.

"With my experience, I've found it better to on some level allow guys to experience things for themselves in its natural state," Fisher said. "You can't always tell someone what they should feel or what they should be thinking as they get ready to go into what may be the biggest moment of their life or their career."

"I think it's important to allow people to be

Nadal tops Djokovic for 7th French Open title

By EDDIE PELLIS

AP National Writer

PARIS — Rain or shine, clay or mud, Sunday or Monday, Rafael Nadal rules Roland Garros.

The man they call "Rafa" won his record seventh French Open title Monday, returning a day after getting rained out to put the finishing touches on a 6-4, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5 victory over Novak Djokovic. He denied Djokovic in his own run at history — the quest for the "Novak Slam."

The match ended on Djokovic's double-fault, a fittingly awkward conclusion to a final that had plenty of stops and starts, including a brief delay during the fourth set Monday while — what else? — a rain shower passed over the stadium.

They waited it out and Nadal wound up as he has for seven of the past eight years: down on the ground, celebrating a title at a place that feels like home. He broke the record he shared with Bjorn Borg, improved to 52-1 at the French Open and beat the man who had defeated him in the last three Grand Slam finals.

"This tournament is, for me, the most special tournament of the world," Nadal said.

After serving his fourth double-fault of the match, the top-seeded Djokovic dropped his head and slumped his shoulders, an emotional two-day adventure complete, and not with the result he wanted.

He was trying to become the first man in 43 years to win four straight major titles. He came up short and joined Roger Federer, who twice came up one match short of four in a row — his pursuit also halted by Nadal at Roland Garros in 2006 and 2007.

Nadal won his 11th overall Grand Slam title, tying him with Borg and Rod Laver on the all-time list.

"It was a very difficult match against the best player in the world," Nadal said. "I lost three Grand Slam finals — Wimbledon, the U.S. Open last year, and the Australian Open this year. I'm very happy, very emotional."

A match with so much of tennis history riding on it proved awkward and frustrating for

FINALS

who they are and experience it the way they naturally would."

The finals are sure to disrupt some parts of the Thunder's routine.

Their practices will be uprooted from their brand new training facility on the north side of town and instead held downtown at Chesapeake Energy Arena, where the Heat will also work out.

They'll be surrounded by hundreds of additional media members, and it's not uncommon for old friends and family to come out of the woodwork at what might not be the most opportune time.

"Those are things that you can control and basically block out. If they haven't called you in the past couple months, then don't take their call now," Fisher warned. "It's better to ask for forgiveness than permission. Just politely don't answer or don't respond to the text. And then in a couple weeks, once you're done, you can reply back that you were busy. That's how you keep that part under control."

Not so easy for some to handle, Fisher said, are the heightened emotions that come with playing for a championship.

It could be anxiety, tension or excitement. Some players might not be able to sleep.

"The bottom line is on the basketball court everybody feels comfortable," said coach Scott Brooks, a reserve on Houston's 1994 NBA championship team.

"Everybody will have nerves, nervous butterflies, before the game. ... You're always nervous before the games until the tipoff.

As a coach, I'm the same way. As a player, I was the same way. But that's part of it."

Brooks even considers the nerves to be good, a sign that players care.

"Once the tipoff is in the air, our players aren't going to get nervous," he said. "Once that ball is in the air and they're ready to play, they're going to fly around the court, they're going to be aggressive and they're going to play good basketball."

Westbrook said Sunday the fact that he's in the finals probably won't settle in until he's playing in Game 1 on Tuesday night at home.

"I'm kind of just going with the flow right now," Westbrook said.

Seeking redemption for last year's finals loss to Dallas, Miami's roster should be aware of what's to come. The lion's share of the team is back from last season, and Dwyane Wade and Udonis Haslem were both on the 2006 squad that won it all.

LeBron James will be making his third finals appearance, including one with Cleveland.

"It's been a long 12 months. But obviously when you lose in the finals, it hurts," Wade said.

"And you have to come into the season, you have to forget it. But you can't forget in a sense. So you play and you try to get back to this moment again, so you can in a sense redeem yourself or in a sense put yourself in that position again to succeed."

Perkins — who won the title with Boston in 2008 — said he sensed growth in the Thunder's 20-somethings over the course of the season. He believes "guys knew what it takes to get where we needed to go."

There's only one step left to take.

"You can't hide the fact that we have a young team, but that's never been an excuse for us and we don't look at it as one," Brooks said.

"Young is good. I wish I was younger."

they're in the cages. You go to those things and hopefully they're not hitting it."

Brett Myers got the last two outs for his 15th save.

Humber had five straight strikeouts at one point spanning the third and fourth innings. He's 1-4 with a 7.50 ERA since throwing a perfect game on April 21 at Seattle.

Orlando Hudson brought Chicago within two with a three-run shot in the ninth, his first homer as a member of the White Sox. That drive chased Houston reliever Fernando Rodriguez before Myers finished the game.

Chicago broke a 2-all tie in the fourth when Alex Rios led off with a single, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Alexei Ramirez's sacrifice fly.

Houston regained the lead on Maxwell's two-run shot in the fifth. The high, arching shot disappeared into a tunnel on the second deck. Ventura argued for an umpire review of the play, but the call wasn't reversed.

"I was hoping it was fair. I didn't even think about it until after Ventura came out," Maxwell said. "When I first hit it, I thought it was fair for sure."

Maxwell added a nice running grab at the wall in center on a long drive by Alejandro De Aza in the bottom of the fifth. He has six home runs in 93 at-bats this season. Houston claimed Maxwell off waivers on April 8 after the New York Yankees designated him for assignment.

one of the volunteers who helps produce the event, now in its 79th year. "We've also got Aaron Watson coming in performing and a local band, Lenorah, opening for him. We had Aaron here two years ago, and that was one of the things people really liked, so we brought him back."

Carr Pro Rodeo is back too with some of the best animal athletes in the sport. Last year, the Dallas-based livestock producer had 14 animals perform at the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo, the sport's championship event. In addition, the Carr crew handles all the little tasks behind the scenes so each performance seems flawless.

"I think the best thing about Pete is his production," Berry said. "He does have a really good bucking stock string, really nice broncs and bulls.

"I think his production is the main thing. He just puts on a really good rodeo."

The fans are the beneficiaries. Between the musings of announcer Mike Mathis and the championship-caliber action inside the Rodeo Bowl, there is plenty going on for those who pack the arena. The Santa Rosa Palomino Club is a 30-member drill team that showcases the yellow horses. The group was inducted into the Texas Rodeo Cowboy Hall of Fame earlier this year.

NADAL

both players.

Djokovic was throwing rackets around early in the final, then Nadal was complaining bitterly as the rain picked up late Sunday, the tennis balls got heavy and officials refused to stop the match.

Djokovic rolled through the third set as the rain turned the heavy red clay into more of a muddy paste. He had all the momentum when play was halted, up a break early in the fourth.

When they came back Monday under cloudy skies, the surface and the tennis balls had dried out and Nadal looked more like he usually does — sliding into his stops, spinning his shots, moving Djokovic around the court, always getting one more ball back.

Play was nearly stopped with Nadal ahead 5-4 in the fourth, but a rain shower passed and they went back out. Both men held serve and Djokovic needed to hold once more trailing 6-5 to force a tiebreaker.

Djokovic, who had a quarterfinal win over Jo-Wilfried Tsonga, had no more magic. He double-faulted and fell to 0-4 against Nadal at the French Open.

RANGERS

Three straight singles by the Rangers loaded the bases, the last coming on a bunt by Ogando that trickled between Lincecum and third baseman Pablo Sandoval.

Ogando limped off the field after the play, leaving with a right groin strain after throwing 39 pitches.

Kinsler hit a two-run double to left to put the Rangers ahead 3-0. Lincecum got Beltre to pop out to right with the bases loaded, but he never settled into a rhythm.

Hamilton hit another two-run double in the sixth to extend Texas' lead to 5-0 and send Lincecum into another four days of misery. The lanky right-hander is winless in eight straight starts.

Lincecum, who pitched the Game 5 World Series clincher for the Giants at Texas in 2010 and also helped beat the Rangers earlier in that Series, has a 6.00 ERA this season.

"I was just looking to come in and compete against a very good team, try to right what I've been doing wrong the last 10 starts," Lincecum said. "I didn't do that. Executing my pitches is the biggest problem. I had a good second inning and I wanted to carry that over but nothing was smooth."

This time, the stars on the mound belonged to the Rangers.

Not until Huff's pinch-hit double off Ross with one out in the sixth did the Giants even get a hit. Gregor Blanco followed with a grounder to the pitcher, Huff was tagged out in a rundown heading for third and Beltre's throw nabbed Blanco leaning too far off first for a double play.

Angel Pagan and Nate Schierholtz singled off Adams in the eighth. Then Kinsler snagged a grounder by Brandon Crawford at second and flipped it back-handed to Andrus out of his glove to start another dramatic double play.

The biggest relief for Texas, though, came on the mound.

Washington was hoping for about 60 pitches from Ogando, who took the turn in the rotation for Holland after the left-hander landed on the disabled list Thursday with a fatigued throwing shoulder.

He also had a stomach virus that caused him to lose about 15 pounds.

Ogando, who has made 27 relief appearances this season, was in line to make at least one more start. He will head back to the bullpen when Holland and Roy Oswalt — who is scheduled to throw about 80 pitches for Double-A Frisco on Tuesday — are healthy enough to rejoin the rotation.

The bullpen bonanza came two days after six Seattle relievers combined to no-hit the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I wanted Ogando to keep going to possibly get that, which was sweet," Ross said. "Then I get in there and after the first inning I'm like, 'Oh, dang, we have a no-hitter going.' After that, I kind of forgot. That's part of it."

HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). In your opinion, excessive flirting just looks ridiculous. You know exactly how thick to lay on the flattery and attention. You'll like what comes from using your talent for flirting appropriately.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your ability or inability to accomplish something is defined solely by your will. If you want something enough, you will do what it takes to get there regardless of the obstacles you encounter.

GEMINI (May 21-June

Tomorrow's Horoscope

21). Your sign mate Walt Whitman said, "Keep your face always toward the sunshine — and the shadows will fall behind you." Given your optimistic mood, that will be an easy thing to do now.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Socially conscious, you're worried about making things all about you or pulling too much focus from the rest of the group. But don't worry. You're supposed to be the central character in today's story.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The day features lingering feelings and a tendency to go over (and over) the recent past in your mind. It will benefit you to stop rereading this chapter of your life so you can start writing a new one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). If it seems too good to be true, that's probably because you just haven't worked out in your head what's in it for the other person. Realizing all the other person has to gain will impact your decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Perhaps no one will throw a parade for you if you take time to do simple things the right way. But there's a certain sacred elegance in adhering to your own quiet method.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Your day is best summed up by the French expression c'est la vie. In other words, that is just the way life is. Acceptance is key to staying emotionally even, which is the most powerful way to be.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Contrary to the saying, you absolutely can judge a book by its cover. You won't know the story, but you'll certainly know the sensibility of the publisher and author. Trust your first impression.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your solid earth-sign nature keeps you cautiously guarded against the wave of change, a wave that is going to crash regardless of how you feel. The prospect is either exciting or scary. Or both. Definitely both.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The future is knitted together out of the yarn of the present. So by being and interacting fully in the present, you are forming the future. A playful, joyful present equals a future of the same feeling.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The compassion you give to yourself is the most precious kind. You'll have the sense that all is forgiven. Truly you can let bygones be bygones and begin anew at any moment.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 10). An important gain is made in the next 10 weeks. This is what you've been working toward, and it's finally happening for you! Family bonds are strengthened with the help of friends and outside counsel. You'll travel in a tight group through September. There's a financial win in October. Aquarius and Taurus people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 19, 24, 15 and 28.

"CLASSIC" ANN LANDERS®: Bicycle helmets do save lives

Editor's Note: Hundreds of Ann Landers' loyal readers have requested that newspapers continue to publish her columns. These letters originally appeared in 1999.

Dear Readers: Please bear with me as I revisit a subject that has produced an extraordinary amount of mail. I am amazed that so many readers are passionate about the importance of wearing bicycle helmets. What follows could save the life of someone very dear to you.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am an emergency-room pediatrician and the father of four. I cannot emphasize strongly enough the importance of wearing a bicycle helmet. I frequently treat children in the emergency room who have escaped a major head injury because they were wearing a helmet. And, sadly, too often, I see children who have suffered serious, irreversible and tragic head injuries — simply because they did NOT wear a helmet.

Parents need to insist on helmets and make sure their children wear them every time they hop on a bicycle. My family and I certainly do. — Bo Kennedy, emergency physician, St. Louis Children's Hospital

Dear Dr. Kennedy: I appreciate your input. And now, here's another letter on the subject.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will make room for one more response to the letter about the father who didn't want his children to wear bicycle helmets because they would "look like sissies."

I just attended the funeral of my son's best friend. He was 9 years old. This boy was riding his bike without a helmet and went through an intersection without stopping.

He ran into the side of a car, was thrown backward, hit his head on a concrete and steel drainage hole and died instantly. The boy's parents and family are devastated. My son is devastated. His classmates and friends are devastated. The person who was driving the car is devastated.

Children who wear helmets are not sissies. They are smart. But more important, they are alive. My son wears his helmet when he is on his bike and will start wearing one when he begins inline skating.

By teaching his children to disregard the law about helmets, that father is also teaching them to break any law they think is stupid.

That man had better wake up and smell the coffee, or he will be attending a funeral — and it will be a funeral he will never forget. Believe me, today was the most emotionally draining day of my entire life. — Still Grieving in Louisville, Ky.

Dear Louisville: I'm sure your letter will move millions of readers, as it moved me. It's a chilling reminder that the simple act of putting on a helmet can make the difference between life and death.

*Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write to receive Ann Landers' booklet "How To Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-sized envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, c/o Creators Syndicate, 737 3rd Street, Hermosa Beach, CA 90254.
