Hawk your wares at the county fair

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Staff Writer

There is still time to grab a booth space for the 2012 Howard County Fair.

The fair, set for Sept. 27-29, will once again take place at the Howard County Fairbarn. Gates will open from 5 p.m. until 10 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 27 and Friday, Sept. 28 and from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 29.

"At this time, we are trying to get the vendors lined up for this year's fair," John Paul Nichols, Howard County Fair publicity director, said.

Last year, there were more than 50 booths in the fair. Booth spaces are available

Courtney Frances Cloud Courtney Frances Cloud departed this world into the arms of her heavenly Father on Sunday, Aug. 26, 2012.

Courtney was born March 28, 1972, in San Antonio, Texas, and grew up in the San Antonio/ Boerne area. She was the youngest child and only daughter. At Boerne High School, Courtney followed in the footsteps of her older brothers, lettering in track, basketball and volleyball. She was active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Upon graduation from high school, Courtney was awarded a volleyball scholarship to Hastings College in Hastings, Neb. until sidelined by knee surgery. After returning to Texas, Courtney received her LVN and RN certificates in nursing from Howard College in Big Spring, Texas.

In 1994, at the age of 22, Courtney was diagnosed with a brain tumor and underwent the first of five craniotomies. She subsequently received two radiation therapies, and 14 chemotherapies that would stretch over the next 18 years.

After each surgery, until her fourth, Courtney returned to her work in the intensive care unit at Midland Memorial Hospital and the Heart Hospital in Austin. Injury to her right motor strip during her fourth surgery left Courtney paralyzed on her left side; however, Courtney resumed her nursing transferring to endoscopy where she observed patients during recovery, entering data into computer. When the challenges of daily living alone became too great, Courtney moved to College Station and resided with a brother and sister-in-law, and then with her parents until her passing.

As we left M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston after Courtney's last visit, the doctors and staff repeatedly stated that during the 11 years Courtney was under their care, they had never seen anyone with a more positive attitude and such a fighting spirit and will to live. This description was echoed by all who knew her.

During these 11 years Courtney was able to enjoy travels to Asia, including China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore and Thailand. She thrived on trips to Hawaii, and along with Diane, enjoyed a wonderful Italian holiday. The trip of her lifetime, however, was the Traveling Aggie trip almost three years ago to Israel. She loved summers in Montana and volunteered at Eagle Mount in Bozeman.

Courtney was preceded in death by grandparents Tom and Maryon Barber and Roy and Esther Cloud and great aunt Lillian Barber Hall. She is survived by parents Don and Fan Cloud of College Station and brothers and sisters-in-law Blake and Linda Cloud, Scott and Diane Cloud, Mark and Michelle Cloud and nieces and nephews Jennifer and Kenneth Cloud, Lillian and Cameron Cloud, and Bradley Cloud; step nephews Justin, Nathaniel and Collin Rhodes, and great nephew and niece Dylan and Emilv Cloud.

Courtney's caregivers, including Stacie, Cindy and 5:30 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Free Yessenia of Comfort Keepers, and the many nurses, aides and others from Hospice Brazos Valley, in Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Free basic particular Emily (home care) and Tonya, and Pam, computer sessions will be Tuesdays and Thursdays Emily, Leslie and Terry at the inpatient facility. In keeping with Courtney's wishes, she was cremated and the family will gather at some future date for a private memorial and to scatter her ashes in places she loved.

West Texas Food Bank presents the Best o' the West

BY LYXAN TOLEDANES

Take two Texas boys, add a dash of cowboy cooking and classical culinary training and mix in a little banter and friendly competition.

What do you get?

Cowboy Cook Tom Perini and Dallas-based Chef Stephan Pyles in a West Texas Chef style cook off at the West Texas Food Bank first annual Best o' the West Fest at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Commemorative Air Force Museum.

Best o' the West will replace more than a decade of Culinary Canvas fundraisers and will benefit the West Texas Food Bank and Junior League of Odessa Food 2 Kids program.

"We wanted to do an event that was more about our mission," WTFB Deputy Director Libby Campbell said. "If we could do the Chef cook off and make it fun and entertaining people would have a good time and they would remember it."

Raised in Abilene and now based at Buffalo Gap, and Pyles, a Big Spring native turned celebrity chef, will be the evening main event as they face off in a cooking demonstration and recipe swap.

fected after multiple times of working together.

"He loves to pick on me, so I have to retaliate. It all in good fun. We have a really good time together," Perini said.

It will be fun for the audience to feel this kind of rapport, and of course people will be tasting the food. It is expected to be a show the audience will get lost in with a hilarious routine.

"You feel like you are with two friends in their kitchen." said Perini. "I volunteered to be at Best o' the West, because there are always people that need help even in times of economic booms. Though I know in Midland and Odessa everything is rolling and going, there are always people that need help. This is a way we can give back; it is a win-win deal."

People can have fun while raising money for this project. and Pyles will also be joined with the Doodlin Hogwallops, a band from the Big Bend, which will be playing throughout the Man tries to escape police by swimming

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A Southeast Texas man is in custody after trying to elude police by swimming through a bayou.

The Galveston County Daily News reports that officers tried to stop Shane Thomas Kerr at a Galveston apartment complex Thursday night. The 26-year-old Kerr allegedly got out of his car and jumped into nearby Greens Bayou. Police say he tried climbing a nearby hill and then re-entered the bayou before running in another direction.

Police eventually were able to talk Kerr into surrendering.

He's charged with evading arrest and was being held Saturday on a warrant related to a separate marijuana possession charge.

Judge: Exonerated inmate must compensate ex-wife

DALLAS (AP) - A district judge has ruled that a Dallas area man wrongfully imprisoned for more than two dozen years must pay his exwife a share of any compensation the state gives him.

Ruben P. Torres, 79, died Thursday. Vigil services will be at 7 p.m. Sunday at Myers & Smith Chapel. Funeral Mass will be at 11:30 a.m. Monday at Holy Trinity Catholic Church with burial at Trinity Memorial Park.

Perini said audiences will be entertained by his and Pyles different cooking styles.

"We will either be doing something with foam or I will be building a fire,' Perini joked. "I am going to be working with beef, bacon, jalapenos, coffee and corn. Those are different items we talked about, but we prepare completely differently. It is really a comparison of how a chef thinks. rather than just a cooking demonstration."

Perini said he and Pyles will engage in a little banter that the two have per-evening.

Food from local restaurants will also be available for sampling. Best o the West will also feature a myriad of prizes in the live and silent auctions, which include a stay at the Perini Ranch, a dinner at Pyles restaurant in Dallas, a trip to Paris and classes at Le Cordon Bleu and trip packages.

While the WTFB Culinary Canvas fundraiser brought in more than $100,000 in donations last year, Campbell said that there is no goal set for Best o' the West.

Any money raised during Best o the West will go immediately toward the food bank and Food 2 Kids.

YOUR VIEWS

Coward, not a hero

TO THE EDITOR:

When I read the Aug. 27 Big Spring Herald front page story, tears filled my eyes because the Vietnam Memorial is a special place.

It honors all the servicemen and women of Howard County who proudly served our country. Many gave their lives and it hurts that someone felt they had the right to go out there and destroy and take things that belong to our servicemen and women.

I am ashamed of whoever did this and pray that someday you will know just how very ugly and disrespectful you were.

My brother and many of his friends were just kids -18 years old and older — when they went to Vietnam and they came back with scars, some you can see, some you can't, and those scars they earned because they were fighting to keep our country free.

They fought for you, too. And you showed your thanks to them by destroying and stealing things that belong to them. I feel sorry for you because what you did was an act of a coward, not a hero.

> LANA F. ANGUIANO BIG SPRING

Reward offered

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to address the scumbags who vandalized the Vietnam Memorial — that is, if they can read.

When you are caught — and you will be caught you will get a fair trial. The reason is, the veterans, they fought and died so that trash like you can get fair trials.

I would like the trial to end with you being sent to Vietnam for a few years. I bet you would come back with a different point of view of this country.

My wife and I are putting up a $500 reward for information leading to your arrest, conviction and confinement.

Folks, this is a slap in the face to the veteran and the whole community. We need to bring these scumbags to trial. If you can donate anything to the reward, please do so. If you know anything about this, please come forward. Donations can be made Driving a hard(ly) bargain hen one schedules multiple speaking engagements in a brief time span, travel plans must be executed with precision. Otherwise, one may weep, gnash teeth, become ill and question much-including, "Why me, Lord?"

It is important at such times to remember: No one has to be anywhere

There is wisdom in knowing when to run. If one is running to catch a train, not to worry, there'll be another one. If, however, one is running to get out of the way of a train, run like the devil.

Don NEWBURY

My friend, Jim Bob Solsbery, goes around committing speeches on a fulltime basis. He made a dozen or so in August to help educators kick off the new school year.

My eyes crossed upon learning that he had six engagements in four days, a schedule calling for him to criss-cross Texas both on the ground and in the air.

Handling most of the driving, book sales and other details was wife Jan. Jim Bob mostly told his stories, encouraged Jan to "keep on truckin" and calculated senior travel discounts. (He's on the front end of geezer status, keeping his driver's license handy to prove his age.) Solsbery is a hawk, finding discounts that tempt him like low-hanging fruit.

Anyways, Jan was dismissed at mid-week to return to their San Angelo home, so he reserved a rental car for her in Tyler. He would keep the family car for driving to Thursday and Friday engagements, then head home on Saturday.

It looked good on paper before the "good news/bad news" rental attempt. They were "carless," having misplaced the reservation, but did have a cargo van available. They offered it at the same rate and agreed to waive the $200 drop fee.

Great, thought he! Solsbery could reduce the rental charge by two days—if Jan didn't mind driving the van.

Jan would have none of it. The motivational parts of her hubby's speeches didn't resonate with her. She'd take the family car home, and Jim Bob could wrestle the van back to San Angelo whenever he chose.

Jim Bob gulped, remembering that earlier in the week she was wearing earpieces, choosing iPod music over his orations. She also confessed to ordering grandchildren's Christmas gifts online with her iPad (or iSomething) while he was speaking. Sometimes, she multitasked, both "ordering and iPod-ing" during his presentations.

Maybe he should have suggested initially that she take the family car. He said the van drove like, well, a van, and got all of 10 mpg. "I could see the fuel needle going downward," Solsbery said, admitting that gas cost more than the $200 saved on the drop charge waiver.

Long-time surgeon Seale Cutbirth put away his scalpel years ago.

Julie Box, however, continues to remove growths daily. At her hair salon, that is.

She's a bit gun-shy when Dr. Cutbirth's haircut comes due. And with good reason. A while back, she said she saw something fly through the air as she trimmed around his ear. "Julie, you cut my antenna," the doctor said. (She had snipped a tiny wire attached to his hearing aid.) He's dependent on hearing aids to hear part of what's going on in the world.

Cutting hair, Julie believes, can be like a box of chocolates.

Speaking of haircuts, the nation's unemployment woes were validated by JC Penney's recent August promotion that offered free haircuts. The 900 salons rang up more than a million free cuts at the half-way point of the give-away.

That brings to mind the story of a young man who was getting a haircut when the boss walked in. "I'm surprised that you are getting your hair cut on company time," the boss said, icily.

"It grew on company time," the employee said.

Political campaigns always produce "keeper" lines.

I loved the comment intended to besmirch Ann Romney.

"She's a known, practicing equestrian," one critic warned.

Movie critics and I rarely "geehaw."

A great current example is The Odd Life of Timothy Green, a "feel good" picture that most critics have given "C" grades.

It is beautifully photographed with marvelous music, and nary a bad word. So what if it is a little magical? Or even "cheesy," teens may say.

But, I loved War Horse, too.

Having belief in America n the midst of the campaign season, with the party conventions getting underway, much of the rhetoric has grown contentious. At this point, I think it is helpful to consider why we hold the beliefs we do, whatever party we happen to be a member of.

My views were formed by our history. The first settlers came here for religious freedom. Our founding fathers fought and died for liberty. Our own forefathers came here to make better lives for themselves and their families

- often starting with nothing - and gave their all to make it in the new country. It took courage and commitment and formed the American character, which propelled a young country to be the world's leader and a shining example for people around the I believe that a country that was formed and succeeded because of the innovations of its people should limit government interference.

I believe that hard work, dedication and ingenuity should be rewarded. To me, that is the essence of America.

I believe that businesses and people thrive when they have the freedom to operate without overly restrictive regulation, and that when those businesses thrive, it is good for everyone: it creates jobs, propels the economy forward and revitalizes communities.

I believe that in the most diverse country on Earth, it is counterproductive to have a top-down, one-size-fits-all approach to policy. The needs of Lufkin, Texas are different from the needs of Boston, Massachusetts, just like the priorities of Alabama are different from the priorities of Connecticut. I believe we should let communities and states decide what is best for them and their unique requirements. I believe we should let the states decide their revenue options and provide most services, rather than having high federal taxes collected, cycled through the bureaucracy and returned to the states after the Feds take a cut.

I believe that a burdensome tax regime and the highest corporate tax rate in the world strangles business growth, discourage es innovation and runs the risk of driving our best and brightest companies and people overseas. I believe that small businesses, the engines of our economy, are disproportionately affected by such a regime, and that is bad for the small-business owners, the employees and the communities in which they operate. I believe that the government should embrace, support and respect those who have sacrificed to build their businesses.

I believe that this country has a unique history, where each generation worked hard, contributed to the nation's growth and saw their sons and daughters go on to do even better. I believe that is the American Dream, and I believe it is in jeopardy unless we return to our founding principles.

I believe that we must reverse the course we are on, so that we can return to an America where most of us believe that our best days are still ahead.

Because I still believe that America is the greatest nation on Earth.

Obama, Romney courting battleground states ahead of Democratic convention

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — President Barack Obama is embarking on a four-day march through battleground states and the storm-battered Gulf Coast in the lead-up to his party's convention as he seeks to blunt any momentum picked up by Republican rival Mitt Romney.

As his party's faithful began streaming to Charlotte, N.C. for next week's convention, Obama was returning to Iowa on Saturday. For his part, Romney looked to capitalize on a newly energized Republican Party fresh from its convention in Tampa, Fla., with a rally in Cincinnati before joining running mate Paul Ryan later in the day in Jacksonville, Fla.

Both campaigns were crisscrossing the country as the race entered September, each day adding to the sense of urgency in a presidential contest that has remained tight since Romney sewed up the nomination in April. Both campaigns recognize that undecided elements of the electorate, including those in about eight key states, will begin to fully assess their options through the conventions and the upcoming debates in the weeks ahead.

"Hold us accountable. Listen to what we have to say," Romney said in a post-convention rally in Lakeland, Fla., on Friday. "I plan on winning in Florida. We love this country and we're taking it back."

Obama's run-up to the convention will take him through the battleground states of Iowa, Colorado, Ohio and Virginia, four states that he carried in 2008 but remain at the top of Romney's wish list. He was spending Saturday in suburban Des Moines and Sioux City, Iowa, before heading to Colorado for a Sunday event with

Isaac departs Gulf Coast; heat, humidity, exhaustion and frustration move in BELLE CHASSE, La. (AP) — As Isaac's drenching rains and cooling winds drifted north of the Gulf Coast, heat and humidity moved back in — along with frustration, exhaustion and uncertainty.

People stuck inside stuffy, powerless homes were comparatively lucky. Thousands of others were displaced by floodwaters and had no idea where they would end up next. Some boarded buses to faraway shelters.

"I'm with my family, and my wife's with her family," said 35-year-old construction worker Jarvis Mackey as the couple and their two children boarded a bus to Shreveport, 5½ hours away from their Port Sulphur home, which lay underwater.

"All we can do is pray — pray we come back home to something," Mackey said.

Ex-Marine who killed 2, self at NJ supermarket tweeted about killing coworkers in 2009

OLD BRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Unhappy with his life as a Marine stationed in California, Terence Tyler posed a question three years ago on Twitter: "is it normal to want to kill ALL of ur coworkers?"

Struggling with depression, he left the Marines and recently started working at a supermarket in New Jersey.

On Friday morning, Tyler shot two co-workers and himself, police said. The 23-year-old, clad in desert camouflage gear, opened fire at a Pathmark store in Old Bridge Township, authorities said.

Authorities are investigating his motive, but family members said Tyler was discharged from the Marines two years ago after suffering from de-

12 people

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Two suicide attackers, one driving a fuel tanker, blew themselves up near a U.S. base in eastern Afghanistan on Saturday, killing at least 12 people, officials said.

The attack around dawn in the town of Sayed Abad in Wardak province, about 70 kilometers (40 miles) from Kabul, served as a reminder that even after a decade of fighting, tens of thousands of U.S. and foreign troops are still engaged in a war that shows no signs of slowing down despite the start of a withdrawal of coalition forces.

The U.S.-led NATO coalition said that no American or coalition troops were killed in the blasts. It confirmed that a number of troops were wounded, but did not say how many, in accordance with coalition policy.

Shahidullah Shadid, a spokesman for the Wardak provincial governor, said one suicide bomber detonated a vest rigged with explosives outside a compound housing the district governor's office as well as local police and Afghan army headquarters. A second bomber driving a fuel tanker detonated his bomb on a road separating the compound from the base.

Shadid said the dead included eight civilians and four Afghan police.

Syrian troops shell Damascus neighborhoods after clashes with rebels

BEIRUT (AP) — Syrian activists say government troops are shelling neighborhoods in Damascus after overnight clashes with rebel fighters.

Authorities said Tyler left his job as an overnight clerk at the Pathmark about 3:30 a.m. He drove off and returned to the store shortly afterward with a handgun and an assault rifle, Middlesex County Prosecutor Bruce Kaplan said. About a dozen workers were in the closed store, putting new prices into a computer.

Agency says sitter also to blame for baby's death

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Maine's child welfare agency and a mother whose baby was allegedly killed by a 10-year-old girl agree — the girl's mother also is to blame.

The mother, who was baby sitting the infant when she died July 8 and whose daughter was charged this week with manslaughter, has not said if she plans to appeal the state agency's finding.

Three-month-old Brooklyn Foss-Greenaway ingested medication and was suffocated, her mother Nicole "Nicki" Greenaway of Clinton has said. The baby was staying overnight with the sitter in Fairfield, and Greenaway has said the sitter also should be held responsible.

The 10-year-old was charged in juvenile court and placed in the custody of the Department of Health and Human Services. The girl will not be tried in the state's adult court system, said Deputy Attorney General Bill Stokes. He said she is the youngest homicide suspect in his 35 years as a state prosecutor.

In a letter obtained Friday by The Associated Press, department caseworker Christopher Filteau wrote the sitter that she made mistakes by leaving the baby in her daughter's bedroom. The caseworker said the 10-year-old has behavior disorders and was not suitable for caring for the infant.

Trouble with the chair: Clint mocked for RNC bit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clint Eastwood earned plenty of bad reviews for his latest performance: a bizarre, rambling endorsement of Mitt Romney.

"Clint, my hero, is coming across as sad and pathetic," tweeted film critic Roger Ebert as Eastwood ad-libbed Thursday night to an audience of millions — and one empty chair — on stage at the Republican National Convention in Tampa, Fla.

"He didn't need to do this to himself. It's unworthy of him."

Eastwood carried on a kooky, long-winded conversation with an imaginary President Barack Obama, telling him that he failed to deliver on his promises, and it's time for Romney and his running mate, Paul Ryan, to take over.

"Mr. President, how do you handle promises that you have made when you were running for election, and how do you handle them? I mean, what do you say to people?" he said at one point to the empty chair.

Twitter was instantly ablaze with comments mocking the Oscar-winning director of "Unforgiven" and "Million Dollar Baby."

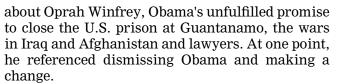

"Clint has now eclipsed the total word count of his last three films," tweeted film critic Richard Roeper during the speech, which was intended to last five minutes but went on for nearly 12.

Howard Kurtz, host of CNN's "Reliable Sources," said "Clint's empty chair act" was the "weirdest convention moment I have ever seen." Joe Scarborough, the conservative host of MSNBC's "Morning Joe," declared that "a great night for Mitt Romney just got sidetracked by Clint Eastwood."

Minutes after Eastwood began his speech, someone created an (at)InvisibleObama account on Twitter. It has already amassed 30,000 followers and counting.

"I heard that Clint Eastwood was channeling me at the RNC," tweeted comic actor Bob Newhart, known for his one-sided conversation bits. "My lawyers and I are drafting our lawsuit."

The 82-year-old actor and director also talked

"When somebody doesn't do the job, you gotta let 'em go," Eastwood said. The tough-guy actor of "Dirty Harry" fame then drew a finger across his throat.

The Obama campaign shot back afterward by tweeting a photo of the back of the president's chair, with Obama's head peeking over it, along with the line: "This seat's taken."

Romney's wife, Ann, said she appreciates Eastwood's support, even if the actor's monologue isn't earning rave reviews.

Ann Romney said she did not know what to expect when Eastwood came on as a warm up act for the evening's speakers.

"He's a unique guy and he did a unique thing last night," she told "CBS This Morning."

Eastwood, a fiscal conservative who takes leftleaning stands on social issues such as gay marriage and environmental protections, made waves with conservatives earlier this year when he starred in a Super Bowl spot for Chrysler, a company that benefited from government support. Eastwood, who endorsed Romney earlier this month at a campaign event in Sun Valley, Idaho, and once served as mayor of Carmel, Calif., defended his appearance in the commercial, noting it had nothing to do with his politics.

Inside the convention, the crowd cheered Eastwood's entrance and shouted his famed catchphrase, "Go ahead, make my day." But backstage, stern-faced Romney aides winced at times as Eastwood's remarks stretched on. After his speech, Romney's camp defended Eastwood.

"He's an American icon," Romney spokeswoman Gail Gitcho told CNN's Piers Morgan. "You can't look at him at through the same political lens that you would other politicians. He's Clint Eastwood."

There was seemingly more discussion Thursday night on Twitter about Eastwood's awkward performance than Romney's actual acceptance speech.

"Is this a segment for 'Mrs. Eastwood and Company'?" asked "Star Trek" actor Zachary Quinto on Twitter, referencing the "Keeping Up with the Kardashians"-like E! reality series starring Eastwood's wife, Dina.

Several celebrities and comedians lightheartedly hypothesized on the micro-blogging site how Democrats could top the over-the-top routine at their own convention in Charlotte, N.C., next week.

"To restore balance to the universe, Obama must have Tommy Chong onstage at the DNC talking to a steak," joked Patton Oswalt.

Original "Star Trek" actor George Takei said he was "drafting a DNC speech to (an) imaginary Romney in an empty factory."

"Saturday Night Live" cast member Seth Myers had an entirely different idea: "(Vice President Joe) Biden has to go shirtless for DNC to top it."

For Hollywood veteran Eastwood, his chance to rebound likely comes Sept. 21 in more familiar territory. That's when his next film, the baseball drama "Trouble With the Curve," opens.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court says Marilyn Monroe's estate is powerless to stop a California company from selling her images without its permission.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco ruled on Thursday that The Milton Greene Archives can continue to sell iconic images of the actress without paying her estate for publicity rights. The ruling hinged on Monroe's legal residency. She owned homes in California and New York when she died in Los Angeles in 1962.

Her estate at the time claimed Monroe was a New York resident to avoid paying California estate taxes. The court ruled that her estate can't now claim Monroe was a California resident to take advantage of a state law granting posthumous rights of publicity to the famous. rod shop.

The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department says in a news release that McGraw was driving the collector car when it broke down on Sunday and was taken to the RODZ shop in Burbank.

The car is worth at least $80,000 and was stolen that night.

The RODZ auto shop is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thief and the safe return of the vehicle.

Coroner: Sage Stallone died from heart condition

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sylvester Stallone's son Sage died at age 36 from natural causes due to a heart condition, coroner's officials said Thursday.

Sage Stallone's death on July 13 was attributed to a condition that causes blockage of the arteries, and no other factors were involved. It has been classified a natural death. The actor and film director's sudden death stunned his family and friends. Sylvester Stallone's publicist described him as "devastated and grief-stricken" and the actor skipped several promotional events for his film "The Expendables 2." Sage Moonblood Stallone was the oldest of Sylvester Stallone's children and co-starred with his father in two films. He also became involved in moviemaking, directing the 2006 short "Vic," which screened at the Palm Springs Film Festival. He made his acting debut in 1990's "Rocky V" and appeared with his father in 1996's "Daylight." Also in 1996, Sage Stallone and veteran film editor Bob Murawski co-founded Grindhouse Releasing, a company dedicated to preserving and promoting the B-movies and exploitation films of the 1970s and 80s He was found dead in his home by an employee and a relative. No foul play had been suspected, and toxicology results showed only a minimal amount of hydrocodone in his system.

French 'Elvis' leaves

Caribbean hospital for U.S.

FORT-DE-FRANCE, Martinique (AP) — French singer Johnny Hallyday is out of a Caribbean hospital and on his way to Los Angeles.

The 69-year-old performer whose glittery rock shows have led some to call him the "French Elvis," spent five days in a hospital on the island of Martinique. He was in the cardiac section of the hospital but sent a message to fans via Instagram that it was nothing but a case of "severe bronchitis."

Hallyday boarded a flight early Friday from the French island to Fort Lauderdale, Florida. He was then expected to travel to Los Angeles, where he has a home.

He walked slowly to the airplane, unaided except by an umbrella for the rain.

The singer was first hospitalized Sunday in Guadeloupe, then moved the next day to Martinique.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — The actor who played David Starsky in the 1970s police drama "Starsky & Hutch" is fighting a drug charge in Kentucky for what he says is medical marijuana from California.

The Daily News (http://bit.ly/NGCyPG) in Bowling Green reports an attorney entered a not guilty plea on Thursday on behalf of 69-year-old Paul Michael Glaser of Venice, Calif.

Bowling Green police charged Glaser with possession of marijuana and a pipe on May 10, hours after he read an excerpt of his young adult novel, "Chrystallia and the Source of Light," to students at a middle school.

According to a police citation, Glaser said he had medical marijuana prescribed to him in California.

He was arrested after an anonymous call to police that a man was smoking marijuana in a hotel.

Dominant performance snaps 12-game losing streak dating to 2010

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

FORT STOCKTON – The Big Spring Steers stunned a lot of people Friday with a 49-0 shellacking of the Fort Stockton Panthers. They big victory snapped a 12-game losing streak for BSHS and doubtless instilled confidence in Head Coach Phillip Ritchey and his squad.

Tobyn Tannehill, the sophomore sibling of the Dolphins' quarterback Ryan Tannehill, went 11-of-14 passing and racked up 239 yards as well as rushed for 36 yards in his first varsity start.

The first seven Steer possessions were all driven down the field for touchdowns — all with Tannehill at the helm.

"I surprised myself," Tannehill said after the performance. "I wasn't sure how I would do at the varsity level."

WR Devin Roberson was Tannehill's prime target, as he picked up 149 receiving yards and carried the ball twice for 25 yards on the ground, accounting for three TDs, as well as kicked all seven extra points for the Steers. RB Michael Oliva recorded 111 yards on 11 carries and found his way into the end zone twice.

The Steer defense stymied the Panthers throughout the evening, earning the shutout. The offensive line effectively cordoned Tannehill off, giving him time to make smart plays.

"The offensive line was great," Tannehill added. "They have been working hard everyday."

On the first Big Spring possession of the game, Oliva scored a touchdown on a 39-yard carry.

It would set the tone for the evening, as Tannehill made it look easy — a departure from last year's anemic offense, which totalled less than 1700 yards the entire 2011 season.

Following Oliva was Roberson, who ran in a 10-yard touchdown to give the Steers an early 14-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Ty'Ral Menefield brought home a 63yard pass from Tannehill in the second quarter to increase the Steers' lead to 21. Ryan Pollard scored on a one-yard pass and Oliva contributed with an 11yard run for a touchdown and Roberson breached the plane for his second time of the evening after a 33-yard reception, giving Big Spring a dominating, 42 point lead headed into halftime.

The Tannehill/Roberson tandem connected again early in the third quarter after a 22-yard pass increased the Steers lead to 49-0 before Ritchey began using backup tate Kennedy at the QB position and Jahari Vanover as a runningback.

The Steers wouldn't score again, but it prevented starters from being unnecessarily injured and while others on the roster picked up valuable experience.

Ritchey was pleased to see the past — most notably, last year's 0-10 season — get buried with his team's breakout performance.

Proud PSU fans show strength before debut

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) - As fans gather around Beaver Stadium in anticipation of Saturday's long-awaited season opener, the overall mood around Penn State football is that of pride, perseverance and support — for both the current and former coach. Hours before the official beginning of the Bill O'Brien era, tailgaters are tossing footballs through the parking lots, setting up their cooking stations and readying themselves for the new Nittany Lions' debut against Ohio at noon. Many are wearing "We Bill-ieve" shirts, endorsing Penn State's new leader, O'Brien, who is the former offensive coordinator for the New England Patriots, and who has the been a steadying force within the program for nine months. When the team arrived at the stadium, O'Brien was the first person to deboard off bus No. 1, followed by his game captains Derek Day, Jordan Hill, Gerald Hodges and Matt McGloin. Boisterous fans waited for hours by the tunnel entrance waiting for the team busses. They chanted "Joe Pa-ter-no!" before turning their cheers toward O'Brien. There were thunderous cheers for the players as they exited the bus. The fans showed they stood by the players that stuck with the program.

Ryan Dempster (4-1) pitched two-hit ball over six innings, Michael Young had two of Texas' four RBI hits with two outs, and Joe Nathan got the final two outs for his 26th consecutive save and 28th overall.

"The guys executed in the clutch," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "Beltre was very good, and Dempster had a good changeup and slider, enabling him to move his fastball around."

Tannehill is promising, but defense may lead Miami

MIAMI (AP) – The Miami Dolphins hired an offensive coordinator as their coach, then used their first-round pick to draft a quarterback who will give the ball much of the time to their best-known player, Reggie Bush.

And yet if they win this season, it will be with defense.

Dolphins defenders get overlooked and believe they're underrated.

"We don't have a lot of superstars," linebacker Karlos Dansby said, "but we all feel like we're superstars. That's our confidence level."

For the first time since the 1960s, the Dolphins have endured three consecutive losing seasons, but don't blame the defense. Miami ranked eighth in the NFL in offensive points allowed each of past two years, and went 6-10 in 2011 despite ranking in the top 10 in rushing defense, sacks and third-down stops.

The offense sputtered through most of the four-year Tony Sparano era. So the Dolphins hired Packers offensive coordinator Joe Philbin as coach, then courted Peyton Manning before drafting Texas A&M quarterback Ryan Tannehill, who won the starting job in training camp.

There were also changes on defense. Philbin hired as his defensive coordinator Kevin Coyle, who had been defensive backs coach for the Bengals. Coyle switched from a 3-4 scheme to a 4-3. And the Dolphins jettisoned two starters in the secondary, the weakest part of the defense in recent seasons.

This hasn't changed: Defense remains the strength of the team.

"We're going to have a bunch of guys that do their job at a high, high level each and every day," Coyle said. "I've got faith in this group."

Miami is especially stout up front, where the charge is led by end Cameron Wake, who has 28 sacks in three NFL seasons.

"Big players have to step up and make big plays," Wake said. "I consider myself one of those guys."

The Dolphins also expect to be strong inside, where the 4-3 alignment allows them to double up with Paul Soliai and Randy Starks. Each has made the Pro Bowl, and at a combined 650 pounds, they're the biggest reasons the defense should be good.

"In the scheme that we play, to have two dominant interior players is absolutely key," Coyle said.

"It forces the offense into situations where they can't single block them, and then we'll have our linebackers freer to the football, which is what we want. They're guys that can not only eat up blockers,

"It's been way too long coming," Ritchey said after the win. "I am just happy for the kids. It has been extremely hard to overcome last year. We wanted to start the turnaround with Fort Stockton — they beat us last year, so it was a big game for us and I am proud of the way we played tonight. We wanted to come out here and get started right.'

Ritchey also acknowledged Tannehill's commanding performance as part of the much-needed victory.

expectations," Ritchey added. "I think he only made one bad pass and he came to me and talked to me about it. Anytime you have a quarterback who admits his mistakes, that's a good thing. He showed a lot of maturity. There is no question he has a big future in football. The sky is the limit."

Ritchey also credited the defense, which as expected, was strong thanks to numerous returning players with varsity experience.

"They played the way we thought they would," Ritchey said. "We are going to have ups and downs, it's a tough district. We won't always score on seven-of-seven possessions. There will be games when they have to carry us."

Big Spring is now 1-0 on the season and it appears the albatross has been lifted off of Ritchey's shoulders.

The Steers will face Midland Christian next at Memorial Stadium on Friday at 7:30 p.m. Midland Christian could prove to be an even bigger test of Big Spring's mettle, as the Mustangs took home a state title last year.

Astros end August with 5-22 record after loss to Cincinatti

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston lefthander Fernando Abad was not about to chalk up Friday night's rough outing to inexperience.

"I know how to control those situations," a composed Abad said in Spanish after the Astros' 9-3 loss to the Cincinnati Reds. "Simply put, when you miss a pitch, if they miss, you're good, but if they get to it, you pay the price."

On this night, he missed a few.

Abad's latest outing lasted just 4 1-3 innings after the Reds roughed him up for six runs on nine hits, including two home runs.

"We tried to get him stretched out, but you know it's about executing pitches," Astros interim manager Tony DeFrancesco said of Abad. "I think that's our biggest problem, our command of the fastball, our breaking ball command. We're making mistakes, and right now we're not good enough to make mistakes."

Zack Cozart gave Cincinnati an early lead with a two-run homer in the second, and Jay Bruce hit a three-run drive in the fifth for the Reds, who stretched their win streak to four.

The Astros got back-to-back home runs by Fernando Martinez and Matt Dominguez in the third inning to tie the game at 2, but the effort fell well short of helping the team avoid its sixth consecutive defeat.

Brandon Phillips went 3 for 5 with a double and an RBI, and right-hander Mike Leake struck out six over six strong innings for Cincinnati, which leads the majors in wins with 81 and at 34-14 boast the best record since the All-Star break.

"I missed on some breaking balls," said Abad, who picked up his second loss in as many outings.

Abad (0-2), who is making the transition after 81 major league appearances as a reliever, was making his first start since Aug. 25, when he went four innings in a 3-1 loss at the New York Mets.

Man falls to his death at Texans preseason game

HOUSTON (AP) — A 25-year-old fan died after tumbling about 60 feet from a fifth-floor escalator at Reliant Stadium during a preseason Houston Texans game, officials said Friday.

Jonathon Kelly of Houston fell to the ground floor during the Thursday night game against the Minnesota Vikings, and frantic witnesses called police to report where his body had landed, police spokesman John Cannon said.

The fall appeared to be an accident, according to police, who didn't immediately release the victim's name pending notification of his family. But the Harris County medical examiner's office released Kelly's name and hometown Friday evening.

Kelly was traveling down from the fifth floor when he fell to the ground, said Mark Miller, the general manager of SMG-Reliant Park. Two medical teams working at the stadium treated the man at the scene before he was transported to Memorial Her-

HOUSTON (AP) — A 25-year-old mann Hospital, where he died, he an died after tumbling about 60 feet said.

Staffers monitor fan safety at each escalator landing, Miller said.

"We make sure they're not overloaded and we try to operate them in the safest possible manner," Miller said.

The bank of escalators in the northeast corner of the stadium where the fall occurred was closed for inspections, and Reliant Park officials are reassessing safety procedures, he said.

But Texans President Jamey Rootes indicated that security and safety changes were unlikely because of the fatal fall.

"We have our procedures in place, the league has a whole comprehensive set of best practices relative to fan behavior and stadium security," Rootes said.

"We've always been rated at the very highest level ... I don't know that anything changes."

day before the NCAA announced the sanctions for the Jerry Sandusky scandal, many fans still hold Paterno in high regard and are unafraid to show it. One tailgater, in fact, has a 16-foot, homemade banner that reads "409 wins with honor," referring to Paterno's victory total. Other fans are wearing shirts that read "We Are ... Still Proud."

Where the statue used to stand, a fan placed a Paterno bobblehead between the trees. Others are stopping to snap pictures with cellphones and cameras.

Dressed in Penn State jerseys, Cindy and Mark Wascavage of Washington, N.J., paused to remember the man they say will always be the face of Penn State football.

"It makes you wanna cry," Cindy, 54, said as she saw the bobblehead.

The couple has held season tickets for the past nine years and has always admired the former coach, even through these difficult times.

"He was the whole football program," Cindy said, while Mark believes on this proud day, all of Penn State will stand united.

Chris Bartnik, of Chantilly, Va., created a life-size cutout of the former coach to honor him, and carried it with him through the lots. He stopped by the former statue holding place, but did not keep the cutout there out of fear it would be removed by university personnel. side the stadium were nearly unanimous in their stance that Paterno got a raw deal and the university should have dug in and fought back against the NCAA sanctions. They've united behind the program following strict NCAA sanctions including a fouryear bowl ban.

"We're maybe more determined than ever to be supportive," said Mike Bealla, of Harrisburg. "If you're a fan, you're a fan. The spirit will be there."

They threw their creative energy into homemade signs, T-shirts, and tailgate feasts. And Penn State stores sold T-shirts touting "Tradition" and "We Are."

Sue Wilson, a Penn State graduate, set up camp in the same tailgate lot she's celebrated for more than 20 years. Wearing a "House that Joe Built," T-shirt, Wilson said the NCAA or former FBI Director Louis Freeh's university-commissioned report did not diminish Paterno's accomplishments.

"He was a man of honor and superior high-moral integrity," he said. "I knew him and I was honored to know him. I miss him."

About 90 minutes before kickoff, a plane flew over Beaver Stadium with a banner reading "Oust Erickson/ trustees," referring to Penn State president Rodney Erickson.

But while much of the famed gameday atmosphere remained the same, there are still plenty of changes in the first home opener without Paterno since 1949. a brief, but inspirational, speech, a familiar refrain echoed through the Beaver Stadium crowd.

"We Are ... Penn State!"

"I can't tell you how much we need to hear you all tomorrow," O'Brien said at the time. "We need to hear you loud and proud to cheer these guys on."

The Nittany Lions were the stars of a 45-minute show that built up to the team's entrance about two-thirds of the way into the event. They were barely there for 10 minutes, watching the debut of the 2012 season video to get the crowd pumped for kickoff before listening to O'Brien's brief talk.

It was an emotional outlet for students and fans who have united behind the players following strict NCAA sanctions.

"This is a very, very special group of players, led by a very special senior class that has made a huge commitment," O'Brien said. "Our guys have worked extremely hard ... They're tired of hitting each other and they can't wait to get going. Thank you very much and we'll see you tomorrow."

The rest of the athletic department had the chance to show its support, as well, on Friday. New signs at Beaver Stadium include the slogan "One Team" — a motto for the entire department, not just the football team. Coaches from other Penn State teams also addressed the crowd.

"We're all one voice, and that one voice needs to be heard with great passion, great pride and great enthusiasm. Not just tonight, not just tomorrow, but from here on moving forward," said men's basketball coach Patrick Chambers in an impassioned speech.

"I don't think it's fair," he said, "to pretend Joe Paterno never existed."

At Paterno's gravesite, fresh flowers were added to the fading collection of notes and memorabilia by Rob Elchynski, 44, who stopped by with his wife and friends before the game.

"I think it's critical to the movingon that they talk about, that they start playing football again," Elchynski said, walking back to his car after saying a short prayer at the graveside.

Hours before kickoff, the Penn State football Twitter account posted a picture of the team uniforms hanging in the locker room — jerseys with names on the back. More than 90 percent of the roster stayed after the NCAA handed down its punishment July 23. A blue ribbon also will be placed on the back of helmets to show support for child abuse victims.

Some 15,000 fans gave a preview of what to expect on gameday at Penn State's pep rally Friday night at the stadium. As the team sat on bleachers atop the field, and O'Brien gave jeopardy with each loss, he shook up the lineup to try and manufacture some offense. He reinstated Shin-Soo Choo into the leadoff spot, dropping Jason Kipnis and Asdrubal Cabrera one spot each to second and third.

"You've got to die trying, man," Acta said.

The Indians did just that against Dempster, who was perfect before issuing a one-out walk to Jack Hannahan in the third. Santana broke up the no-hitter with an RBI single in the fourth, when shortstop Elvis Andrus made two errors.

"He's been around," Acta said of Dempster. "He knows how to pitch. He uses both side of the plate. He's a veteran guy. He did a good job."

Dempster wasn't worried about facing Cleveland's left-laden lineup. Donald, at No. 9, was the only righthander.

"Going left, right, left, right can be tougher," Dempster said. "When you have a lot of lefties, you can get into a groove with location. I can get more comfortable with my split." Jimenez made 31 pitches in the first, but allowed only one run, on Beltre's RBI single.

Two innings later, his pitch count at 78, Jimenez trailed 3-0 after Young and David Murphy had consecutive RBI singles in the third.

Ian Kinsler's two-out RBI single on Jimenez's season-high 117th pitch made it 4-1 in the sixth.

The right-hander gave up eight hits, four runs and three walks. Though he struck out seven, he also dropped to 1-7 with 7.79 ERA in 10 starts since the All-Star break.

Young singled home Beltre in the seventh against reliever Esmil Rogers.

Dempster, who was only 5-5 despite a sparkling 2.25 ERA in 16 starts for the Cubs, is enjoying great run support in Texas. The Rangers lead the majors with 675 runs, and have scored 31 in Dempster's 37 1-3 innings since he was acquired on July 31 from the Chicago Cubs. He had not faced Cleveland since 2006, when he worked in relief for the Cubs.

Santana doubled and scored on Casey Kotchman's 12th homer, off Koji Uehara in the ninth.

but they can make plays as well. That's what we're counting on them to do. We have to be really strong inside for us to be successful on defense."

The Dolphins ranked third in the NFL in run defense last year, giving up just 3.7 yards per carry. A repeat performance would put the defense in a position to force mistakes, Philbin said.

"That gives you a starting point," he said. "If you can make a team get into a situation where they have to throw the ball, and they can't knock you around for 4 or 5 yards on first down on a consistent basis, I think that gives your defensive play-calling an advantage."

While the front seven returns mostly intact, the shaky secondary has undergone a shakeup. Safety Yeremiah Bell, a five-year starter, was released in March at age 34, and cornerback Vontae Davis was traded after losing his No. 1 job in training camp to newcomer Richard Marshall, who has 17 career interceptions.

Fourth-year pro Chris Clemons replaces Bell, and Coyle is hoping the changes will produce better ball-hawking. Over the past three years the Dolphins have 59 takeaways, fewest in the NFL.

Safeties Clemons and Reshad Jones have three career interceptions between them. Linebackers Dansby, Kevin Burnett and Koa Misi have not a single fumble recovery in a combined 76 games with Miami. Even Wake, a Pro Bowl selection in 2010, has not a single career recovery or interception.

"It's a point of emphasis in every meeting we have and everything that we do," Coyle said. "It's kind of the type of thing that snowballs once you start to get a few early in the season. There's a tendency to expect it, and that's what hopefully will happen with us as we go through the season."

The offense could use the help. With a rookie quarterback, blocking issues and perhaps the NFL's worst receiving corps, points will likely be hard to come by. Dominating defense would take a lot of pressure off Tannehill.

"Next to the running game, we're his best friend," Burnett said.

Kicker Dan Carpenter and punter Brandon Fields are among the NFL's best, which means the Dolphins may find themselves counting on field position to win field goal contests — as was often the case under Sparano.

"Expectations for this team outside our locker room are pretty low," guard Richie Incognito said. "People don't expect us to do much, which is fine."

science fun and engaging. Here are a few ideas that you can use to help your kids love learning about science.

Fun Experiments

Hands-on experiences help kids of all ages grasp concepts and retain information. There are online resources available to give you the tools you need to make hands-on learning a reality.

For example, MyBotanicPlanet.com is a free website with lesson plans and interactive games for students in grades K-5 to explore basic botany and water conservation. Based on the classroom experience offered through the Memphis Botanic Garden, and created by TruGreen, MyBotanicPlanet.com features lesson plans by professional curriculum developers to meet National Education Standards. Students can personalize their own avatar and explore the educational site's interactive games and activities.

Fun Field Trips

Get some fresh air and a fresh look at nature by going outside. And don't restrict your field trips to sunny days only. You and your kids will be amazed at how different things appear when it's been raining or snowing. Where should you go to start digging into natural science?

Your backyard

- Collect leaf samples to identify, then use them to make a collage.
- Use a magnifying glass to do some ground-level research. Examine insects, plant stems, tree bark, spider webs and interesting rocks. Have your child give an explorer's report on what he or she finds.

Your neighborhood

- Make a game out of identifying the different trees and bushes in the park. Take pictures and leaf samples to help you figure them out.
- Go on a scavenger hunt to a stream or pond. Make a list of items to find: animal tracks, water insects, birds fishing or taking a drink, frogs and toads, even snakes.

Your community

- Visit the zoo. Before you go, have your child check out some library books about one or two of their favorite animals. They can learn some facts about those animals, then be in charge of teaching you about them when you see them at the zoo.
- Natural history and science museums can be a fun way to learn about the world around you. Take advantage of tours, special exhibits and activities geared for children.

What you need

- A sheet of waxed paper
- A sheet of white paper
- Spray bottle filled with blue-tinted water
- Shallow pan or tray
- Colored markers or felt-tip pens

Roughly crumple the waxed paper. Unfold, and with some pushing and pulling, create a "landscape" with mountains and valleys. Set the waxed paper in the tray.

Let your student spray the tinted water over the landscape to simulate rain. Ask questions like:

- Where do raindrops land first?
- Why do they go where they go?
- Do you see waterways merge as the rain increases?

With rapid spraying, students can create a flood. Show them how "rivers" carry the blue water off the land and into the tray beneath the "ocean."

Repeat the activity with a sheet of white paper. Have them draw different colored spots of "pollution" on the hillsides with the colored markers. The rain will blend the colors together, showing how pollution affects the entire watershed.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Backes

September 6, 2010

Dad We Miss You! Love, Your Children Melísa, Bíll, Lorí & Rachel

Henry Vernon Backes and Pamela Kay Lefler were united in marriage by the honarable Judge Benny Green, in an evening wedding June 1, 2012, in the lush private garden at their home in Big Spring, Texas.

LIFE

Pamela wore a custom made, white, floor length Karelina Sposa fitted, mermaid gown of satin, embellished with pearl beading, embroidery with a lace halter neckline and chapel length train. The bride's hair was adorned with an eternity tiara encrusted with sparkling teardrop crystals. The bridal attendants were Pamela's mother, Shirley Cross of Big Spring, Texas and Pamela's aunt, Sue Cothren of Denver City, Texas. Each of her attendants wore elegant cream colored knee length gowns and carried bouquets of gardenias complementing the bride's large bouquet of gardenias accented by trailing freesia bloosoms.

Henry wore a cream colored, evening tuxedo with accents of white, highligted with a gardenia boutonniere. The groomsmen, Shane Mayhall, Dakota Backes and Ethan Backes, all of Big Spring, wore tuxedos echoing the elegance of the groom's tuxedo and gardenia boutonniere. Jordan Backes, the family's black, standard poodle served as the couple's ring bearer.

After the ceremony guests enjoyed the decadence of Cindy Hoard's custom prepared three-tiered vanilla fondant, wedding cake covered in hand prepared sugar gardenia and freesia bloosoms and a raspberry filling accompanied with a bubbling orange sherbet punch.

After a three-week family vacation in Santa Fe, N.M. and Denver, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Backes, Dakota and Ethan are continuing business as usual with Full Moon Roofing, a local Big Spring operation.

All floral arrangements for the wedding were provided by Inspiration Flowers and Gifts of Big Spring, Texas.

Birth

Kristine Janae Trevino

Kristine Janae Trevino, daughter of Anthony Trevino and Breanda Juarez of Big Spring, was born Aug. 24, 2012, at 1:19 a.m.

She weighed 11 pounds 1 ounce and measured 21 inches in length.

Her maternal grandparents are Andres and Marina Juarez. Paternal grandparents are Christina Trevino and Bobby Paredez.

Kristine was welcomed home by her sibling Christopher Trevino.

50th Anniversary

Then

Sonny and Betty Crocker will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday, Sept. 8. The event will be held at Canterbury South in Big Spring. The golden celebration will be hosted by the Crocker's daughter Diane Newton, son-in-law Larry Newton and granddaughter Alyssa Deanda.

H. V. (Sonny) Crocker and Betty Sue Hale were married Sept. 8, 1962, in Lenorah, Texas, at the home of the bride. They made their home in Big Spring. Sonny worked for the City of Big Spring and the Big Spring Herald until his retirement just six years ago. Betty worked for more than 30 years at the Mother's Day Out and Children's Day Out programs, sharing her love with the many children at the facilities. They are longtime members of The First United Methodist Church.

Sonny and Betty reside at Canterbury Retirement Home and enjoy many hobbies. They enjoy the fellowship of Canterbury friends, playing cards, bingo, dominos and 1,000-piece puzzle solving. Sonny has won first place in a Wii bowling tournament.

50 years together is a remarkable accomplishment that seems to be rarer as time goes on. Faith, love and patience are the recipe for lasting fidelity.

Tips from Hospice

Near the end of life several emo- these conversations, the patients are tions begin to flood the human body. One of the biggest emotions patients deal with is confusion and disorientation.

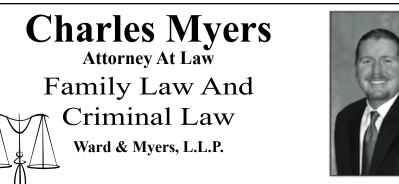

Patients can sometimes confuse their surroundings, time periods and even the identity of those around them. There have been reports of patients seeing things that others may not and have even engaged in conversations with those who have passed on.

Travel may come into conversations with patients. They may talk about a journey, which isn't meant figuratively, but symbolically. Through letting the loved ones and caretakers know the end is coming.

In cases like this it is best to report the symptoms to the hospice nurse in order for them to assess and provide information on ways to provide support and care. Providing reassurance is also helpful and if need by limit the number of visitors to keep the confusion of individuals down.

Ring removal in case of an emergency will be that much easier for emergency room personnel and ambulance crews in the Big Spring area. The Karat Patch, a locally owned family jewelry store, is donating a ring removal tool kit to aid in the safe removal of contemporary metal rings.

"We are interested in serving the community and with the prices of popularity and Phingold and silver skyrocketing right now, contemporary metals are becoming a high sold item," Jay Phinney, Karat Patch owner, said. "These metals are virtually scratch proof, which means they can't be cut by conventional tools."

Contemporary metals include tungsten, duratungsten, cobalt chrome and pure ceramic. These metals are growing in ney said he wanted to make sure that, in case of an emergency, the local hospital and ambulances were equipped to remove rings quickly and safely if need be. The emergency room at Scenic Mountain Medical Center will receive one of these kits as well as all six of the city ambulances.

"This is just one of the ways we show our appreciation for the blessings we have received while operating our business in Big Spring," Phinney said. "We are excited to be part of this great growing community."

Phinney also said the Karat Patch also has a ring removal tool on site during business hours, in case of an emergency.

Bhupen Agrawal is branch manager and a managing director — investments for the Wells Fargo Advisors Midland office.

Bill Franks, AAMS, is a senior registered client associate and the senior associate to the branch manager.

Let me start off by saying that I do not believe the United States will roll over the "fiscal cliff" come Dec. 31, when the Bush-era tax cuts expire and automatic government spending reductions are scheduled to kick in. Politicians, at least right now, do not have the courage it takes to make the tough decisions and we are not at a crisis point - yet.

But that does not mean for certain that the stock market will act as though the problem will be kicked down the road. Right now, the markets are focused on the European Central Bank (ECB) and the high probability that at some point in the future, it will step into the market and buy the sovereign debt of Spain and Italy. Based on the better than 10 percent rally since the beginning of June, investors apparently feel quite certain that the ECB will step in soon.

The anticipation of ECB bond-buying has helped push the market forward over the last few months. but that is a topic for another day. We want to focus on the U.S. fiscal cliff today. And quite a cliff it is. The non-partisan Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimates that rolling over the fiscal cliff would mean a reduction in economic output (GDP) of 3 percent to 4 percent. When you are living in a 2 percent growth world, it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that the American economy would likely slip into recession, at least based on the CBO's calculations.

In the end, elected officials will likely delay making the hard choices. The decision on tax increases and spending cuts will probably be kicked down the road for six or 12 months. The immediate problem will be temporarily solved. In the meantime, however, between now and the end of the year, we would expect several bouts of uncertainty over what Congress will do to inject increased volatility into the stock market.

Now for my guess as to how this all plays out. And it is truly a guess. In my opinion, Congress

See ENERGY, Page 5B

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP) — Chairman Ben Bernanke made clear Friday that the Federal Reserve will do more to boost the economy because of high U.S. unemployment and an economic recovery that remains "far from satisfactory."

He also argued that the Fed's moves so far to keep interest rates at record lows and encourage borrowing and spending have helped bolster the economy.

Bernanke stopped short of committing the Fed to any specific move, such as another round of bond purchases to lower long-term rates. But in a speech at an annual Fed conference in Jackson Hole, Wyo., Bernanke said that even with rates at super-lows, the Fed can do more.

After Bernanke's comments were released at 10 a.m. Eastern time, stocks initially gave up most of their earlier gains. But as investors digested the speech, stocks bounced back. By late morning, the Dow Jones industrial average was up more than 100 points. Broader stock indexes also surged.

Bernanke: With unemployment high, Fed can do more Bernanke noted that further action carries risks but says the Fed can manage them. The Fed "should not rule out" new policies to improve the job market, he said.

The most dramatic step the Fed could take would be another round of bond buying. This is known as quantitative easing, or QE. In two rounds of QE, the Fed bought more than $2 trillion of Treasury bonds and mortgage-backed securities. Many investors have been hoping for a third round - QE3- to be unveiled as soon as the Fed's next policy meeting in September.

In light of Bernanke's comments Friday, some analysts said that might be a stronger possibility now.

"Bernanke has taken a further step along the path to more policy stimulus, most likely a third round of asset purchases (QE3) to be announced at the mid-September FOMC meeting," said Paul Dales, senior U.S. economist at Capital Economics.

At the same time, the Fed chairman avoided hinting of any one policy move or any timetable.

"This is really all he could say," says Steven Ricchiuto, chief economist at Mizuho Securities. "He is not at liberty to promise anything without the (policy) committee's approval, and there seems to be various opinions on the committee about the best way forward."

Debbie Wegman, left, and Debbye ValVerde prepare the treats as Girls Night Out Triple Treat gets started Thursday. The Healthy Woman event was held at three locations, Jake Witzel Gifts and Interiors, Merle Norman and Uptown Salon and Day Spa.

USDA reminds producers of Sept. 4 sales closing date for noninsurable crops

Howard County USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) Executive Director Karla Hoelscher, is reminding producers they have through Tuesday, Sept. 4, to purchase coverage through the Noninsurable Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP). The sales closing date is actually Sept. 1, but producers have until Tuesday because Sept. 1 falls on a Sunday and Monday is a holiday.

NAP provides financial assistance to producers of noninsurable crops when low yields, loss of inventory or prevented planting occur due to normal disasters.

"Purchasing a crop insurance policy is an easy way for producers to mitigate risk," said Hoeslcher. "The past few years have shown that natural disasters can severely impact an otherwise successful operation," she said.

The following crops have a NAP application closing date of Sept. 4: All small grains (wheat, oats, barley, rye and triticale), beets, broccoli, brussel sprouts, cabbage, canola, cauliflower, garlic, sod grass, greens, herbs, kohirabi, leeks, lettuce, onions, radishes, strawberries, turnips and value loss crops.

In order to meet eligibility requirements for NAP, crops must be noninsurable, commerciallyproduced agricultural commodity crops for which the catastrophic risk protection level of crop insurance is not available. If the Risk Management Agency offers coverage for a crop in the county, then NAP coverage is not available for that crop.

In the event of a natural disaster, NAP covers the amount of loss greater than 50 percent of the expected production based on the approved yield and reported acreage.

Eligible producers can apply for coverage using form CCC-471. Producers must file the application and service fee by the Sept. 4 deadline. The service fee is the lesser of $250 per crop or $750 per producer per administrative county, not to exceed a total of $1,875 for a producer with farming interests in multiple counties.

For more information on sales closing dates and NAP, contact the Howard County FSA office at 432-267-2557.

Changes to Form 1099-G and 1099-MISC for FSA producers and vendors

Howard County USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) Executive Director Karla Hoelscher, announced that calendar year 2012 brings several changes to the way FSA reports a producer's farm program payments to the producer and to IRS.

In past years, IRS Form 1099-G would be issued to show all program payments received from the Farm Service Agency, regardless of the amount.

"Starting with calendar year 2012, producers whose total reportable payments from FSA are less than $600 will not receive IRS Form 1099-G (Report of Payments to Producers)," said Hoelscher. Additionally, producers who receive payments from more than one county will only receive one Form 1099-G if the total of all payments from all counties is $600 or more, Hoelscher said. "Producers who receive less than $600 in combined payments should consult a tax advisor to determine if these payments must be reported on their tax return," she said. If the payments were subject to voluntary withholdings or subject to backup (involuntary) withholdings a Form 1099-G will be issued regardless of the total amount of the payments, Hoelscher said.

is unlikely to come to any agreement prior to the November elections. Investors already expect this outcome, but are still paying more attention to European developments right now. But, come late September or early October, this lack of resolution will likely start to worry investors. Then, after the election, the lame-duck legislature will further discuss the fiscal cliff but will also be unable to reach an agreement, resulting in more volatility going into late December. In the end, my guess is that the new Congress that is sworn into office in January will eventually extend the tax cuts and delay the spending reductions retroactively to Jan. 1, 2013.

We could see some volatile trading days the last few months of the year, based on the uncertainty surrounding the fiscal cliff. We continue to view pullbacks as opportunities to add to equity positions and believe the economy will be in a modest growth/modest inflation environment at least through 2013.

Consider this deal from a teamof-four match. Only a partscore was involved, but even so, the hand is highly instructive At the first table, West led the diamond king, East signaling with the nine to indicate a doubleton. West continued with the ace and another diamond, which East ruffed. East could now have saved a trick by cashing the ace of hearts, but instead he returned a trump.

Declarer then collected the rest of the tricks. He cashed the A-K of trumps and K-J of clubs, then crossed to dummy with a trump and discarded both his hearts on the A-Q of clubs to finish with 10 tricks and a score of 170 points.

At the second table, the defense functioned far more efficiently. Here East played the deuce of diamonds on the king to discourage West from continuing the suit, so West shifted to the jack of hearts at trick two East cashed the A-Q of hearts and reverted to diamonds by returning the nine. West won with the jack, cashed the ace and continued with the seven. When dummy ruffed with the nine, East overruffed with the queen.

Then — as if declarer had not already suffered enough - East heartlessly returned a heart, promoting West's jack of spades into another trump trick.

So the declarer at this table went down two - 200 points - which was four tricks and 370 points worse than his counterpart had done at the first table. It was not that South had done anything wrong - he didn't. It was simply that his opponents did everything right.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Mercury, the communication planet, is in opposition to Neptune, the planet of dreams, causing tension between outer and inner our worlds. Mental pictures are either the compass that helps us stay on track, or the hurting is you. TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You are never too young, too old or too broke to make a difference in someone's life. Start with you. Whatever your state, you'll be inspired to improve it. All it takes is one move.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Some people in your family have perfected the fine art of asking if you need help when the work is 99 percent finished. You'll forgive this and other rudeness because truly no harm is meant.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). If you are looking for validation from outside sources, you probably will find it, though it will be about as lasting as it is satisfying. The spiritual work you do will have more permanence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). When people pay attention to you, count it as positive even if they don't give you quite the reaction you were looking for. It is better to be misinterpreted than ignored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You don't always think of yourself as a creative person, which is strange considering that the way you put your life together is so obviously an artistic effort. Own your status as a destiny designer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Morality is easily sorted out among people with similar beliefs, but if you introduce the topic in a religiously and socially diverse group, you should brace yourself for a fight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The cause that captures your curiosity and heart will soon capture your identity, as well. Your efforts in this regard will bring you so much fulfillment that this cause will change who you are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll meet a situation you weren't expecting and find that nothing about it yields to your influence. The only thing you can change about this is your attitude but that just may change everything!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You only get one chance to get this day right, but when you're aware of the precious nature of the moment (not to mention the ambiguity of "right"), one chance is enough.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Since you're so secure, you don't have to tell everyone what you're worth. It's enough for you to quietly acknowledge to yourself that you're worth a lot.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Before you got hooked on a song, it would have been hard to explain how a person could ever get hooked on a song. Love is like that, too, and you're feeling it in a way that's pointless to explain to anyone who hasn't been there.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

(Sept. 2). There's no end to what you can do when you believe you can. This month brings the chance to compete. October is a team effort; don't forget original intentions or. more importantly, the behind reasons them. You'll sign a contract in November. January brings financial help. Friendly relationships develop into love in March. Pisces and Leo people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 14, 39, 1 and 28.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The early week processes two alignments weighing in on our interactions: the opposition of Mercury and Neptune and a square of Venus and Saturn. Imagination is a powerful party to our relationships. Unfortunately, what we imagine is happening is often different from what's actually occurring. Our mental images are strongly influenced by what we want to happen, what we fear will happen and what we believe about the world. We are constantly making assumptions about what the other person must be thinking and how the other person is likely to react — assumptions that can only be as accurate as the beliefs on which they are based. Getting together happily will require stripping away untrue beliefs. But how do you know which ones are untrue?

The answer is to put your beliefs to the test through inquiry. Let's say you hold the belief that you get tongue-tied around people you perceive as extremely attractive. Ask yourself, "Was there ever a time when Ι felt comfortable and fluent around a very attractive someone?" If you can answer "yes," then the belief proves false, and you can let it go. The Virgo sun challenges you to release 10 such limiting beliefs by the end of the week.

Annie's Mailbox ®

I'm guessing that his feelings are hurt, but I'm a little annoyed. What should I do? — Awkward in Idaho

Dear Idaho: You do not owe Don an invitation or an apology, nor are you responsible for whatever assumptions he has made about being entitled to stay at your beach house.

Two invitations make you a generous host, not his lifetime roommate. Continue to be friendly with Don, but say nothing more about the summer place unless you are ready to invite him again. This is not your fault.

Dear Annie: My husband, a pastor, was asked to perform the wedding of our son's friend and his bride. This involved two trips out of town. For the wedding, we had to drive more than 250 miles round-trip, board our dog for two days and pay for our own motel room, even though the bride said they would take care of it. The weekend cost us $230.

This is my gripe: My husband was not given a dime for his services. When I mentioned to him that in the future he might make it a condition of doing a wedding that his travel expenses be covered, he shrugged and said, "They probably couldn't afford it." But they were able to afford everything else, plus a honeymoon!

This is not the first time he's been stiffed, although bridal etiquette says it is customary to pay the clergyman $150 to $500 for his services. One couple offered to take us to dinner, but never did. Another couple gave him frozen fish.

bridal Please tell couples to be considerate of the clergyperson who has sacrificed to officiate at your wedding. You would not hesitate to pay the limo driver or the stylist who does your hair. Be sure to budget a decent amount for the cleric's services, especially if you know travel expenses are involved. Thank you for letting me get this off my chest. – Pastor's Wife in the Northwest

Dear Wife: The person and who performs the service should be paid after the ceremony, preferably in an envelope along with a note of appreciation. Travel expenses also should be covered. Bridal couples can inquire about the fee at the church or synagogue office. But if your husband routinely goes unpaid, he could be a bit more assertive at the time he is asked to officiate by saying, "Please call the church office about the fee."

Dear Annie: I can identify with "Married to an Octopus." I have been married for 30 years and grabbed for most of them. Explaining that this was more of an assault and an embarrassment rather than a form of affection fell on deaf ears.

Here's what finally worked for me. I started grabbing him and saying, "Does this feel nice?" I wasn't rough, but the mere threat to my husband's manhood finally drove home the point that his octopus hands were unpleasant.

I also would like to suggest to "Married" that her lack of interest in sex may be less about her health and more about a negative association she has developed with her husband's touch. — Hands Off in touch with friends. I suppose you could call me a dinosaur, because I use the telephone and letters to stay in touch.

Here is the problem: My husband and I have finally realized that when we entertain (which is often), some guests are taking photos in our home and posting them on Facebook. The other day, a friend walked in and just started to take pictures in our living room (I am in the process of painting and remodeling). I asked her to please not post anything on her Facebook page, and she became very cross that I had made that request.

When we have parties, I'm busy hosting and never noticed all the photos that were being taken and subsequently posted on Facebook. My husband and I, while friendly, are also private. While I realize that what these people are doing is a form of flattery, we also feel our privacy is being violated by guests who do not ask permission to post pho-

Dear Margo: I have been married to my husband, mostly happily, for 16 years. We hit a rough patch about a year and a half ago, and it was then that I strayed. It didn't last long, and the issues my husband and I were having got settled. He has no idea I was unfaithful. It is gnawing at me, and I feel as though I should make a clean breast of things. The guilt is not doing me any good. I have discussed this with no one, feeling that is the only foolproof way not to have it repeated and find its way back to my husband. To tell or not to tell, that is my question. -Mrs. XDear Mrs.: Confession may be good for the soul, but it is very bad for a marriage. Just as you say the guilt is not doing you any good, your admission of infidelity would not do your spouse any good. While you might be relieved to get it off your chest, it could very well do in your husband and possibly the marriage. Because things are back on track I would recommend remaining silent, forgiving yourself and sparing him the pain. With such confessions go manufactured visual images that can be very destructive and hard to shake. I suggest you consider yourself lucky that your single mistake did not become another "issue." Probably the best way of staying on track with your marriage is to let the past stay in the past, chalk it up to a hard-won lesson, and make it up to him by being as loving of a wife as you can be. — Margo, forwardly
