Howard County election clerks Lori Duffer, left, and Jodi Duck help area residents prepare to cast their ballots during early voting at the county courthouse. According to election officials, voter turnout likely driven by the fierce presidential contest — has been very high. Early voting continues through Friday with polls open each day from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Averaging approximately 500 ballots a day so far during early voting, election officials say Howard County is on track to collect upwards of 10,000 voters in this year's general election.

According to Howard County Election Administrator Saundra Bloom, her office has averaged approximately 500 in-office voters a day since early voting opened Monday — a whopping 617 Mon- ballots by the time the polls close day, 580 on Tuesday and 491 recorded Wednesday — with no signs of slowing.

us busy this week," Bloom said with a laugh. "However, we expected a turnout somewhat like this. We knew going into early voting it was going to be a heavy turnout, especially with a presidential election in the mix."

Bloom said she expects to have collected approximately 10,000 Nov. 6.

"Things have been going smoothly," she said. "We haven't "The voters have definitely kept had any problems with the voting machines, although I imagine they are getting pretty tired, right along with the election workers. I'm very pleased with the way things are going. We hope the turnout will stay strong next week, as well."

the evidence in the case — specifically, the testimony of the victims — was insufficient that no rational trier of fact could find every element of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt.

Jaramillo "Appellant argues that the inconsistent testimony as to clothing, injuries and precise location of the child renders the evidence insufficient to support the conviction," the memorandum opinion issued by the court reads. "We disagree. #### "Handsome Guy Bandit" gets 35-year prison term

DALLAS (AP) — A judge has sentenced to 35 years in federal prison a man who admitted to being the "Handsome Guy Bandit" responsible for 11 North Texas bank holdups.

Steven Ray Milam pleaded guilty in Dallas last May to 11 federal counts of bank robbery. U.S. District Judge Sam Lindsay sentenced the 45-year-old Richardson, Texas, man on Monday.

The "Handsome Guy Bandit" got his name from tellers at the banks he robbed, who described the mask he wore. Milam was arrested Jan. 3 in Mississippi after a chase on Interstate 10 in which a sheriff shot out a tire on the vehicle Milam was driving.

Prosecutors had said Milam could have received from 32 years to life in prison.

Panels look at school discipline

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Senate Education and Criminal Justice committees are meeting jointly to discuss how schools treat troublesome

Members meeting in Austin will attempt a comprehensive review of school disciplinary practices. They'll also cover the disproportionate treatment of some groups of children and how often they're referred to law enforcement for prosecution.

The meeting comes a day after the monitoring group Texas Appleseed released results of a survey of 11 public school districts that serve a quarter of the state's public school students. The survey found officials spend $227 million a year on disciplinary programs and school security.

Expert: Schools need $8B in extra funding per year AUSTIN. Texas (AP) — Texas will need to spend at least an additional $8 billion per year to ensure its students meet the tough new academic standards imposed by state lawmakers, a top school finance expert testified Monday. Lynn Moak, a leading education analyst in Texas for nearly 5 decades, told state District Judge John Dietz that nearly half of Texas' ninth-graders about 150,000 — aren't on track to graduate because they failed at least one of the state's new, more rigorous standardized tests, known as STAAR, last school year. "Deputies were dispatched to 500

Moak said paying for programs to help students catch up and ensure others pass — thus meeting the state's existing college and career-readiness goals — would require restoring the two-year, $5.4 billion in cuts to public schools and grant programs passed by the Texas Legislature in 2011. But it would also mean state funding for public education should increase overall by about another $6 billion annually.

That's a staggering $8.7 billion per year in additional funding, though it wasn't clear if Moak was including restoring all cuts to grant programs in his estimates. In 2010-11, Moak said that total spending on school operations in Texas was $43 billion. When asked about the figure after the hearing, Moak told reporters, "I contend we can't do it without more money." "We are in a current crisis," he added. "The crisis gets worse in the future but it is significantly bad now." After last year's budget cuts, six lawsuits were filed on behalf of more than 600 school districts which educate about three-quarters of Texas' more than 5 million students. All contended that the way Texas funds its public schools is inefficient and unfair and violates the state Constitution.

Driver Road, which is the old VFW building," Parker said. "Upon arrival, deputies found Pena in the parking lot suffering from what appeared to be a gunshot wound. Pena was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center by emergency medical services, where he was later pronounced dead." Also injured in the altercation was Raul Mendez. 33, who was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center by private vehicle, according to Parker. Mendez was treated for his wounds at the emergency room and later released.

VOTE

Polls will be located in the elections office — located on the third floor of the county courthouse — and will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., this week. In addition to the regularly scheduled poll hours, Bloom said her office will be offering several days with extended hours in hopes of giving everyone in the community a chance to cast their ballot early.

"Early voting polls will be open until 8 p.m. today and Thursday"

Bloom said. "We're hoping these extended hours will give residents who work from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. a chance to vote early and avoid the lines and waiting on Election Day. There are a lot of folks out there who can't leave work to vote, or don't have enough time on their lunch breaks."

Voters will have only one local race to decide the fate of, as the Precinct 1 seat on the Howard County Commissioners is up for grabs with long-time Democratic incumbent Emma Brown taking on Republican challenger Oscar Garcia.

Brown defeated Howard County Jailer Larry Torres in the May primary, while Garcia defeated local resident Edwin Ware for the Republican nomination for the seat. The only other local issue on the ballot is aimed at Big Spring balloters, as the municipal government looks to give voters an opportunity to do away with the existing 4A economic development in favor of a new 4B economic development corporation. The council approved to send the issue to voters during its Aug. 14 meeting, doing so on a unanimous vote.

The EDC sales tax was adopted by Big Spring voters May 5, 1990, and designated solely for use on Type A projects, which is restricted mainly to attracting employers and businesses to the Crossroads area and retaining jobs with existing employers.

However, a Type B corporation has much looser restrictions placed on its spending, allowing for several other project types, including quality of life improvements such as professional and amateur sports and athletic facilities, related street, water and sewer facilities and affordable housing.

According to Texas law, however, Type A corporations can still approve Type B projects; however, they are required to get the voters approval to do so. With a Type B corporation, no such vote is required. The move to change the corporation to a 4B comes on the heels of a Type B project to revamp the city's water treatment and wastewater facilities, approved in May.

For more information on early voting, contact Bloom at 264-2273.

demeanor. and Bowden v. State, the court held that the evidence was sufficient to sustain the defendant's conviction of aggravated robbery, despite inconsistencies between a witness' trial testimony and the description he gave police of the robber.

"It was within the jury's province to resolve any inconsistencies in the (victims') testimony. After reviewing all the evidence, we hold that it was sufficient to support the jury's verdict. Appellant's sole issue is overruled."

The affirmation came in the form of a memorandum opinion issued by Chief Justice Jim Wright from a panel including Wright, Justice Terry McCall and Justice John Hill.

According to police reports, numerous suspects — witnesses stated there were between five and seven suspects involved — stormed the home of a Big Spring family living in the 600 during the June 2010 robbery, kicking in the side and front doors of the house shortly before midnight.

The suspects were armed with handguns, according to police reports, while one suspect was armed with a shotgun. All were wearing bandanas or masks to conceal their identities, according to investigators.

"The suspects demanded money, and holding the family at gunpoint, ransacked the house," Big Spring Police Department Public Information Officer Tony Everett said, following Jaramillo's arrest in late June 2010. "The suspects threatened the adults, and pointed their weapons

District Judge Robert H. Moore III heard the case, which was prosecuted by District Attorney Hardy Wilkerson. Jaramillo was represented by local attorney Tim Yeats.

Jaramillo wasn't the only defendant to receive a stiff sentence for his part in the home invasion, as Clifford Leon Anglin, 26, was also found guilty of a charge Anglin also received a 60-year sentence. Anglin's conviction was affirmed by the same appellate court in August, also on a memorandum opinion. A third suspect in the case was also convicted in 118th District Court, as Phillip G. Martinez, 23, also of Big Spring, was found guilty by a jury Feb. 2, 2011, and sentenced to 14 years in a TDCJ facility.

Don't give up your right to vote

This whole 4A, 4B thing has me perplexed. I can not for the life of me understand why people in this town who have railed on in the past about their right to vote are now standing in line to give up that

At least two of our recent letter-to-the-editor write ers were vocally upset and angry when they did not get to vote on city council actions such as the smoking ordinance or water park. But today, those same folks are asking you to switch to a 4B EDC and give up your right to vote.

Amazing, isn't it?

Here's reality: If you have voted in favor of the Economic Development Corporation switching to a 4B corporation — in other words FOR Proposition 1 on the ballot you have voted yourself out of an opportunity to vote on any and all 4B projects in the future. That's because once the corporation is 4B, the board can do what it wants. There is no vote except by the seven board members. Yes, you'll be able to speak your mind in a public forum, but that's it. You've given up your right to vote on 4B projects.

However, if the corporation stays 4A, you'll be able to vote on any and all 4B projects that come up, such as the one recently approved by voters that directs 40 percent of the EDC's funds to water treatment for the next 20 years. Keep in mind, that was a 4A corporation taking on a 4B project with voter approval. How difficult was that?

Don't left anyone tell you that a 4B corporation can do more than a 4A corporation. It's not true. The the word apology difference is, that under a 4B corporation, the EDC board does not need your vote to begin a 4B project — any 4B project. Under a 4A corporation, vour vote — not just board approval — is necessary.

If you haven't voted yet, I encourage you not to give up the control you currently have. Don't put apology on its your faith in government — any government. Frankly, that's just silly. Make sure you still have more than a voice no one may listen to. Make sure you still have a vote.

Vote against Proposition 1.

'Access' to birth control doesn't count

ning ads explaining that he does not object to birth control. But no one questions his stance that women should have, as the ads say, "access" to contraception. They already do. They also have access to Coach handbags and flights to Acapulco. And that's where the Romney smokescreen, intended to close a gender gap favoring Democrats, needs clearing. FROMA Most women of HARROP childbearing age would consider birth control an essential part of their health care. But of the medical services employers must provide under the new health care law, Romney singles out birth control as one thing that should be optional. Sure, most women can afford birth control. Women who lead disciplined lives would move heaven and earth to manage their fertility. From a practical standpoint, these women can be counted on to take care of business. To them, this exclusion in coverage is merely insulting. But they are not the concern.

The concern is women scraping by. Some live paycheck to paycheck, or don't have one. Some are high school kids with no income stream. Some are strangers to the larger world of responsibility or lack the mental capacity to make sound decisions about unprotected sex.

These are the women who may not dig into their empty or messy pockets for the $120 to $1,000 a year needed to buy contraception. Also, to obtain the pill, one must first visit a doctor and get a prescription. Organized women do what they must. Disorganized women don't get around to it.

Consider the low-income 24-year-old wanting to have sex with her boyfriend and not wanting to get pregnant. She knows where she can find birth control pills, but rather than spend a week's pay to get there, she rationalizes: "This the 'safe' part of my monthly cycle. I probably won't get pregnant, and so I'll take the risk."

Next thing you know, she's pregnant.

She'll either have an abortion or join the growing armies of unmarried women who have babies out of wedlock.

The first scenario, an abortion, is anathema to social conservatives. The second scenario, another potentially dysfunctional family headed by a single parent, worries thinking Americans of most political persuasions. Not providing this mainstream pharmaceutical — free! — to the women who need it most is crazy social policy.

We know the politics. We know that the Catholic Church, being theologically opposed to birth control, has pushed for this exclusion. We know that the health care reforms make an exception for churches, but not for the hospitals, schools and other entities they run. But that should be exception enough.

Romney wants to ban abortion except in cases of rape, incest and to save the life of the mother. I think early abortions should be easy to get but that abortion is a complex issue with strong views on all sides. Arguing over whether birth control should be basic of health care coverage is something else entirely and hard to fathom. The vast majority of American Catholics use birth control without apology.

The Gates Foundation runs a program providing contraceptives in impoverished countries. Melinda Gates, a practicing Catholic, staunchly defends it. By being able to control their fertility, she argues, women can begin a "virtuous economic Rich America has a poor country expanding within its borders. We, too, must help women in the poor America start a "virtuous economic cycle."

Yes, all women have "access" to birth control. But with effective contraception costing hundreds a year, otherwise responsible low-income women might take their chances and have sex without it. We can't afford not to ensure that those who want birth control, get it.

If not 'apologizing,' Mr. President, what would you call it?

K, President Obama, if you and your defenders insist on denying that you've repeatedly apologized for America, then let's quit mincing words and acknowledge you've done worse than apologize. That works for me.

Maybe it is technically inaccurate to attribute to you, because you would have to identify with America more before you could behalf. Besides, I suppose we should in this Clinton-inspired age of word meaninglessness — an age in which the simple word "is" no longer feels comfortable in its own skin — that you would deny you have apologized because you didn't use the precise word "apology" in any of your shameful outings.

You didn't say you were sorry, either, come to think of it. But what you did do is harshly criticize America, not just to Americans on our soil but to other nations and their leaders on their soil. From the time you became a liberal activist, you've exhibited a grudge against America as originally founded, and since becoming president, you've made clear on numerous occasions that you still harbor that sentiment.

Indeed, it seems rather obvious based on your statements and policies that your principal motivation for running for president was to "fundamentally transform America" — your words. Perhaps you could remake it into something you could be proud of and truly love. You showed genuine contempt for America's conduct before you ascended to the presidency and hastened to add that you had nothing to do with it and would change it. In other words, on our behalf — your fellow Americans you've presumptuously expressed contrition and promised repentance under any reasonable construction of language.

From your condemnation of our enhanced interrogation techniques, which you scornfully call "torture" and which gave us the essential intelligence that led to our elimination of Osama bin Laden, to your denunciation of America's attack on Iraq to your promise to close Gitmo, you have done more than distance yourself from your predecessors on policy. You've rendered a guilty verdict against America and painted it as the international outlaw and bully and vowed to turn things around by adopting an entirely new approach to the war on terror. And you've fulfilled that promise, which goes a long way toward explaining how the Fort Hood shooter was able to succeed in his mass murder and we lost four American lives in Benghazi, Libya.

Seeing as you reject the term "apology" to describe your overtures, perhaps you could help us better characterize them. May I suggest "slam, dis, knock, reproach, blame, criticize, condemn, ridicule or denounce"? Let's review:

You scoffed at the idea of American exceptionalism.

You want to increase our deference to international bodies that obviously don't have our best interests at heart, and many of whose members reject our values. You have strongly criticized America's record on civil and human rights to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights.

You said at the G-20 meeting in London that you believed your election would lead to a restoration of America's positive image in the world, thereby implying it had a richly deserved negative image. You said America needs to account for "inadequacies" in its "regulatory system," and you accepted blame and responsibility for the economic crisis having begun in the United States -"even if" you weren't "president at the time."

You told the Al-Arabiya television network that America "dictates" without knowing "all the factors involved." At the Summit of the Americas, you sat through Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega's 50-minute harangue against the United States without registering a word of protest and then thanked him for not blaming you "for things that happened when" you were "3 months old." You told the French that America failed to appreciate Europe's leading role in the world and that we've been "arrogant," "dis-missive" and "derisive." In Trinidad, you said we'd been "disengaged" and "dictatorial." In Prague, you said America has a moral responsibility to act on arms control because we are the only nation to have used a nuclear weapon. You tried to visit Japan to personally apologize for our bombings of Hiroshi ma and Nagasaki, and when the Japanese rejected your offer as "a non-starter," you sent Ambassador John Roos to do the job the following year.

You apologized to the Communist Chinese for Arizona's immigration law, a law that Mexican President Felipe Calderon condemned in the Rose Garden while you remained silent. In Mumbai, you told Indians that Americans think of India as but a land of call centers that cost Americans jobs.

You told the Congressional Hispanic Caucus that Mexicans were here "long before America was even an idea," apparently unaware that Mexico declared its independence in 1810.

But do you ever talk about America's benevolence and philanthropy in the world? Do you ever praise America for liberating other nations and preventing the enslavement of the Western world by communism?

Love and praise for America don't roll off your lips. Censure and disparagement do. If "apology" doesn't fit, please tell us what does.

Bird Poop: A raptor regains its strength

wakened by a sound far behind it, the large bird struggled to rise from the dirt and weeds along a fence line. As a cold breeze ruffled its feathers, the raptor eased back down to the comforting earth.

Another, closer sound startled the bird of prey. With its wings suddenly pressed firmly against its body, the hawk lashed outward with its talons at the empty air.

McCasland

Little strength could be called forth as it continued to struggle while being carried to a truck. After being laid on the front floor mat, it closed its eyes. The weariness of its journey had finally overcome

With the rush of daylight from the opposite side of the truck came a cold surge of an October morning's wind. Papers on the dash blew about the cab as the driver hoisted himself into the seat and under the steering wheel.

Exhausted and depleted of energy, the large brown bird could only wait for the next indignity to happen.

Most of the driver's days were uneventful. Traveling the endless roads of West Texas for the Department of Transportation, the man covered some of the most barren reaches of the state. Aside from endless fences, occasional windmills, and desert scrubs, the land had become a monotonous routine, until today.

Glancing down at his newly acquired passenger, he called the dispatcher. "Get me the game warden. I've got a passenger."

The startled employee asked, "A what?" Laughing, the driver said, "Trick or treat!"

Since the next day was Halloween, he had enjoyed changing the pace of their usual conversations.

A few minutes later, he received a callback. Because of a training session, the game warden was out of the area for the rest of the week.

"You did leave word that I had a hawk?" The dispatcher reassured him that she had left a notice that he had found a hawk.

With no other alternative, he proceeded to finish his route. Finally, after having checked every hour to make sure the bird was still alive, he headed for home.

When his wife saw him carrying a hawk, she was shocked but not surprised. Whenever he had brought any critters home, together they had nursed them back to health. Seeing animals return to the wild had always proved rewarding.

Instead of serving the steak she had planned to grill for dinner, his wife cut the raw beef into what she considered "bite sized bits." After wrapping the hawk in a large towel, she held it while her husband pried open its mouth and stuffed it back in

After tasting the juicy morsels, the bird readily accepted the remaining part of their meal from a pair of salad tongs. "Do we have anything else to give it?" asked the man.

From the refrigerator she took a package of raw chicken. "Will this do?"

Halfway through the tender breasts, the hawk slowed in gorging itself. "Guess it's full," thought his wife. Obvious to both of them was the bulge in its crop.

Readily eating on its own the next day, the hawk seemed contented in an old chicken coop in the back yard. Since it had made no attempt at flying, it could at least regain its strength. Soon, it was using a lower roost.

After a week and a half, the game warden finally called. In addition to his training conference, a family matter had delayed him.

"Do you know if it can fly?" he asked. The man said neither he nor his wife had seen it make any effort to fly. However, it was now using a higher perch he had installed.

Saying he had just the place for the bird, the officer arrived an hour later. Walking out with the couple to the chicken coop, he readily appreciated the stately bearing of a mature red-tailed hawk. Its brown upper parts, creamy under parts, streaked belly, and rusty tail were typical of its specie.

The game warden said he, and a public school science teacher, were using a fenced area at the city's water treatment plant as a place for recovering raptors. Unable to find enough game to sustain migrations, hawks could rest and feed before continuing. Some owls could also benefit from the R&R that was offered.

A six-foot, chain-link-fence with barbed wire on top surrounded the property. Not having to be challenged by either starvation or an attack from another predator, a hawk or owl could exercise in the enclosed area and leave when ready by simply flying over the fence. He and the teacher supplied natural food and could utilize this stopgap facility that was in a protected area not accessible to the public.

Broken wings, electrical mishaps, or gunshot wounds were more serious injuries. They required delivery of the birds to the closest rehabilitator, who was over a hundred miles to the east. When the gate of his large carrier was opened, the game warden watched as the red-tailed hawk half-walked, half-hopped out onto a grassy expanse. After looking around, the raptor flapped its wings. Slowly, it allowed every feather to settle back in place. Then it used its broad wings to coast across the fenced area. In the ensuing days, the game warden and teacher watched as it gained in strength and elevation. Its recovery was impressive.

Shortly before the arrival of an arctic front, the hawk took an opportunity to continue its southerly journey. Accepting the lift provided by winds that preceded this early November weather event, the bird of prey easily cleared the top of the fence as the officer drove up to check on its progress once again.

Having seen it rise and escape the clouds of swirling, stinging dust forecast for that evening, the warden watched as its rose gracefully to soaring heights and out of sight.

giving up. I guess everyone goes through times like this and it is always good to know we are not alone in our struggles. I found an account that was written about such a situation that I'd like to share with you. The author is unknown but the message is clear:

"Several times in the past few years I have found myself in a situation where everything just seemed to be bad and getting worse and worse. I had people who were close to me telling me not to worry, that everything happens for a reason and that sooner or later I would find out what it was.

"Of course, as depressed as I could be, I doubted it. When it's you, the whole world can tell you it will get better, but you don't believe it until you see it with your own eyes. So time went by and I kept on feeling the same way. Then one day, right out of the blue, I knew the reason why I had to go through all

I know I'll have more bad times in my life, but next time someone say's 'Don't forget that everything happens for a reason,' I'll know it is true."

We must keep in mind that we all go through bad times in life but the important thing is to know that sooner or later we will understand the reason and we will find ourselves better off than we were before.

A good thought to remember is: It's not what happens to us but it's what we do about what happens that matters!

scene tape was wrapped around a small statue of Jesus near the wrecked car. Some hugged each other and cried, while others shared memories of Kirk.

"He really was concerned about our souls," Montoya Mc-Neil, a church member for eight years, said as she wiped away tears. "You looked forward to being here. ... I'm not asking God why, because I know where he (Kirk) is, but we won't get those big bear hugs and those great sermons anymore."

Claudie Loftin, an associate minister, called Kirk a hands-on pastor who "didn't run around wearing a suit. "He would wear jeans or a sweatsuit because he said he never knew how he would be needed to help, and that's what a pastor does. He was a man of integrity." Forest Hill Police Chief Dan

Dennis said the suspect drove his car into a church wall before noon Monday, apparently on purpose. The suspect got out of the car and began to attack the pastor in the parking lot before chasing him into the church, while the secretary hid and called 911, Dennis said. Police arrived to find the suspect assaulting Kirk with an electric guitar from inside the church, Dennis said. An officer used a Taser on the suspect, handcuffed him and put him in the back of a patrol car.

By then, Kirk had died, Dennis said. A maintenance worker who tried to help Kirk was injured and taken to an area hospital.

His condition was unknown. Dennis said the suspect was found unresponsive shortly after being detained and was pronounced dead at a local hospital. Kirk fought back during the attack, Dennis said, but it's unclear if that played any role in the suspect's death. An autopsy was being performed on the suspect to determine the cause of death.

Dennis said he didn't know if the suspect knew Kirk, attended the church or why he might have attacked the pastor.

Former Forest Hill Mayor James Gosey said Kirk started the church in 1995 in a strip mall before building the red-brick Kirk was also an unofficial volunteer chaplain who occasionally counseled members of a local high school football team, Fort Worth school district spokesman Clint Bond said.

Loftin, the associate minister, said that church members were grieving but would recover from the loss "with the help of God."

After Sandy: Water, fire and darkness

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City awakened Tuesday flooded subway system, shuttered financial markets and hundreds of thousands of people without power a day after a wall of seawater and high winds slammed into the city, destroying buildings and flooding tunnels. Scenes of the damage were everywhere. At least 50 flooded homes in Queens caught fire and were destroyed. A hospital removed patients on stretchers and 20 babies from neonatal intensive care, some on respirators operating on battery power. Where usually bustling crowds and traffic jams streamed through sidewalks, streets and subways, they largely empty. And high above midtown, the broken boom of a crane continued to dangle precariously over a neighborhood.

"We knew that this was going to be a very dangerous storm, and the storm has met our expectations," Mayor Michael Bloomberg said. "This is a once-ina-long-time storm."

The storm was once Hurricane Sandy but combined with two win-seawall in Battery Park City, flooding rail yards, subway tracks, tunnels and roads. Rescue workers floated bright orange rafts 200 firefighters tried to contain an enormous blaze that consumed 50 homes in the Breezy neighborhood. They had to use a boat to make rescues, firefighters told WABC-TV. They climbed an awning to reach about 25 trapped people and take them down to a boat.

Officials weren't immediately able to pin down the cause of the blaze.

The rains and howling winds left a crane hanging off a luxury high-rise in midtown Manhattan, causing the evacuation of hundreds from a posh hotel and other builderator failed, New York University's Tisch Hospital began evacuating more than 200 patients to other facilities, including 20 babies from neonatal intensive care, some of them on respirators operating on battery power. Without power, the

A-K of hearts, declarer also played a third heart and ruffed it with the jack. But here East discarded a diamond instead of overruffing the jack with the king. As a result of this play, declarer could not avoid going down one. Regardless of how he continued, he had to lose three trump tricks as well as a club. East's refusal to overruff the jack with the king at trick four was based on his realization that it was almost impossible for him to gain a trick by overruffing, while he might gain a trick by discarding instead. So East bided his time and was ultimately rewarded for his thoughtful play.

Cowboys don't want season to slip away

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys now must try to keep their season from slipping out of reach. They were so close — by the length of Dez Bryant's fingertips — to being within a half-game of the NFC East lead and having a vital tiebreaker with a season sweep of the division-leading New York

But the receiver's touchdown catch in the closing seconds was overturned on a replay review.

Dallas (3-4) hits the halfway mark of its schedule Sunday night at Atlanta (7-0), the NFL's only undefeated team. The Cowboys then go to Philadelphia for the first of two meetings in four weeks against their division foe.

"There is a tremendous amount of urgency," coach Jason Garrett said Monday. "Every game is critical. This is a big game."

The Cowboys overcame an early 23-0 deficit and led going into the fourth quarter Sunday in what would have been the biggest comeback victory in team history.

But New York won 29-24 after regaining the lead with two field goals, the go-ahead points coming after Felix Jones fumbled. The Giants held on after replay showed Bryant's fingers hit out of bounds before he landed on a leaping 37yard grab with 10 seconds left. Tight end Jason Witten's franchise-record 18 catches and Tony Romo's career-high 437 yards passing on a record 62 attempts (with 36 completions) weren't enough to help the Cowboys overcome six turnovers, including four interceptions.

New York (6-2) now has a firm grasp on the NFC East lead because no other team in the division has a winning record. Philadelphia (3-4) and Washington (3-5) both lost

"It's to that point in the season where you don't have time," Witten said. "Nobody cares about battling. They don't, they want to see you win. ... The clock's ticking. You have to be able to find a way to get on top here a little bit."

Romo has already thrown NFL-high 13 interceptions in 283 attempts, after having only 10 picks in 522 throws last season. The Cowboys have 19 total giveaways and a minus-11 turnover margin.

Big 12 picture clearing up at midway point

The Big 12 season is halfway done, with every team having played at least four league games, and this Saturday shapes up as a big one for teams across the conference.

There have been plenty of surprises so far, none bigger than Kansas State being picked to finish sixth in the preseason poll and instead standing third in the country and second in the BCS.

Here's a glimpse at what's ahead, starting with the meaningful games this weekend:

CANKANSASSTATE CLOSE IT OUT?

Bill Snyder's Wildcats (8-0, 5-0 Big 12) can eliminate nearly all the drama in the conference title race by winning at home against Oklahoma State (5-2, 3-1).

With a victory Saturday night, K-State would then have to lose two of its remaining three games against TCU, Baylor and Texas to fall short of the conference Every game is huge at championship.

this point for any team in the national title chase but while this one may not get the same billing as the last two — against West Virginia and Texas Tech — the defending champion Cowboys pose the most direct threat to Kansas State claiming the conference crown. OSU doesn't need help from anyone else, but would have to win four straight games against ranked teams.

"I think they know that we have the opportunity to control our own destiny but they also feel like we're certainly not in any position to look beyond the next game," coach Mike Gundy said Monday.

"We're getting ready to play the second-ranked team in the country and we'll have our hands full just traveling up to Manhattan." None of the teams left on the Wildcats' schedule are currently in the Top 25. "They've got a great chance to run the table. They're definitely one of the better teams in the country," Texas Tech coach Tommy Tuberville said, having lost 55-24 at K-State on Saturday. "They're more like an SEC team than a Big 12 team, ho they play defense, how they play offense, so I think they've got a great chance."

WILL WEST VIR-GINIA REBOUND?

Not long ago, the Mountaineers (5-2) were preseason favorites and quarterback Geno Smith was the Heisman Trophy front-runner. Now, they're practically afterthoughts.

Dana Holgorsen and Co. had an off week to pick up the pieces and will host fellow Big 12 newcomer TCU on Saturday.

"There was a pretty good sense of urgency last week. The attention to detail tends to pick up when you get beat, if the makeup of your team is what you want it to be,' Holgorsen said.

Holgorsen said he thinks players can forget their fundamentals during the grind of the season and the off week was a good chance to refocus.

"There's a whole bunch of good 5-2 football teams out there. Just because we've dropped the last two doesn't mean that we're a bad football team," he said.

WHO'S PLAYING QUARTERBACK?

While there has been steady play at the top from the likes of Klein, Texas Tech's Seth Doege and Oklahoma's Landry Jones, there's been more shuffling than usual at the quarterback position in the Big 12.

Injuries forced Oklahoma State to replace Wes Lunt with J.W. Walsh and then bring Lunt back last week. TCU went with Trevone Boykin after Casey Pachall was arrested and suspended indefinitely.

the field. And then there were the changes related to effectiveness: Kansas switched from Notre Dame transfer Dayne the NFL. Crist to Michael Cum-

AFC-leading Texans back to work after bye

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Texans secured the AFC's best record before using their bye for a long break to rest and recharge. Now they chase their goal of reaching the Super

The first task comes when they host Buffalo on Sunday.

The biggest concern for the Texans (6-1) coming out of the bye week is depth at running back with Ben Tate hampered a hamstring injury. Coach Gary Kubiak hoped the break would give Tate time to get healthy.

Instead Tate missed practice Monday, and Kubiak said he's still "a few days away" from getting back on The Texans look to

Tate to help ease the load of Arian Foster, whose 168 rushes lead

"We need him," Kubiak said of Tate. "He's very important to getting Arian rest, and our success as a football team."

Kubiak doesn't feel comfortable having just two healthy running backs on the active roster and said the Texans may consider signing practice squad player Davin Meggett to the roster if Tate doesn't improve.

Tate said he's feeling better and believes he's improving, but he isn't sure how long he'll be out.

Foster feels fresh after the break and thinks too much is made of his workload. He hopes to have Tate back this week, but is also comfortable with Forsett.

"He's an important part of what we do. I can't wait until he gets back healthy, but until then, Justin Forsett is a very capable back," Foster said. "We've seen what he can do already. That's just the nature of the business. Somebody goes down, the next guy has to step up."

encouragement to you, and you'll find no better excuse to buy books, enroll in a class or attend a lecture.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The fullness of your guiding luminary, the moon, will draw out your generosity. You'll feel inspired to spend money and effort to help the environment and repay Mother Nature in some small way for the gifts she's given you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The antics of others may cause the moral compass inside you to spin madly, searching for a set point.

When, if ever, should you try to impose your moral standards on others? That will be the question of the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The full moon turns your sense of logic on its ear. You'll figure out the answers to the more complex questions thrown your way, while simple questions remain a mystery.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The energy is flowing, and you'll take on many activities over the course of the day. Before you make a single move, though, know your purpose. Everything changes when you know why you're doing what you're doing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll be given something that not only meets your expectations, but meets them with the wild, burning eyes of an excited friend who can't wait to reveal a bit of magic to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You know who your competition is: You've wanted to prove that you could outdo your previous success or right a past mistake, and now the full moon encourages you to pull out all the stops.

hether you're trying to control your weight or embrace a healthier lifestyle, the food choices you make have to be enjoyable. And deliciously healthy recipes are the key. "Recipes that use elements from New Nordic Cuisine are a great way to enjoy healthy eating," said registered dietician and author Kate Geagan, MS, RD. "This cuisine is naturally rich in some of the healthiest, purest foods in the world. And, it can be easily adapted to U.S. tastes and lifestyles." A plate filled with seafood, especially Norwegian Salmon, is a hallmark of New Nordic Cuisine. "I love how this cuisine is inspired by the sea," Geagan said. "The ocean provides some of nature's most perfect proteins that deliver whole body benefits.'

For example, a serving of Norwegian Salmon is an excellent source of high quality protein and omega 3 fats. It also contains key nutrients, including selenium (thyroid and cell health), iodine (thyroid and hormonal health), vitamin D (bone and immune health) and vitamin B12 (red blood cell and neurological health).

Norwegian Salmon is available fresh year-round, so it's easy to incorporate into your everyday meal planning. For more deliciously healthy recipes, visit www.salmonfromnorway.com

Smoked Norwegian Salmon and Pearl Barley Salad

Serves: 4

- 3/4 pound smoked Norwegian Salmon
- 1/2 cup pearl barley, soaked in cold water overnight
- 4 1/2 cups water, divided
- 1/2 cup olive oil 2 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 3 tablespoons fresh orange juice Salt and pepper, to taste
- 1 cup broccoli florets carrot, cut into small cubes
- or strips 1/2 onion, chopped
- 1 red bell pepper, cut into small
- cubes or strips cucumber, cut into large cubes
- tablespoons chives, chopped
- 1 tablespoon parsley, chopped

Dice salmon into 1/2 x 1/2-inch cubes (or if already sliced, cut in strips) and set aside in refrigerator. Drain water from barley. Simmer on low heat in 1 cup water with sprinkle of salt for approximately 30 minutes or until soft.

Drain barley and transfer to bowl. Immediately add oil, vinegar, orange juice, salt and pepper, mix well and set aside

Bring remaining 3 1/2 cups water to boil and add plenty of salt. When water boils vigorously, add broccoli and carrots and let cook for 30 seconds. Remove vegetables immediately with slotted spoon, plunge into ice water, and then take out of water

When barley is cold, gently mix all ingredients together and serve with wholegrain bread or sprinkling of bread croutons on top. Vegetables and herbs can be varied according to your own preferences

New Nordic Cuisine

Nordic cultures have long enjoyed a reputation as some of the healthiest people in the world. New Nordic Cuisine is filled with healthy, hearty foods anyone can enjoy. Delicious elements of this cuisine include:

- Seafood, such as Norwegian Salmon
- Whole grains such as rye bread, barley
- Cabbage and other cruciferous vegetables
- Berries, apples and

■ Root vegetables

Norwegian Salmon in Aluminum Foil

Serves: 4

- 4 sheets aluminum foil (12 x 18 inches, slightly larger than vellow legal pad)
- tablespoons canola oil medium carrots, cut into
- thin strips
- small leek, cut into thin slices
- onion, cut into thin slices head iceberg lettuce, cut into
- 8 wedges 1 1/2 pounds Norwegian Salmon fillet, boneless, skin removed. cut into 8 portions
  - 1 tablespoon water for each
  - package tablespoons crème fraîche or sour cream

Salt and pepper, to taste Preheat oven to 350°F.

Place aluminum foil on table with shortest side facing you. All food will be placed in middle of bottom half of foil. Top half of foil will eventually be folded over food. Brush center of bottom half with oil.

Mix all vegetables and spread 1/4 of them over oil. Arrange 2 portions of salmon with vegetables. Add water. Season with salt and pepper. Repeat with remaining three sheets

To seal pouches, fold top section of foil over. Fold and squeeze edges together to form well-sealed pouch. Place packages on large baking sheet and place in preheated oven. When packages enlarge, they're ready to serve — usually after about 6 to 8 minutes.

To serve, carefully place each package on plate and open at table with pair of scissors or knife. Spoon crème fraîche or sour cream onto fish and sprinkle with lemon juice. Fresh herbs can be added before or after cooking. Eat straight from package

Norwegian Salmon

The cold, clear waters of Norway create the ideal environment for ocean-farming flavorful Norwegian Salmon. Tasteful, healthful and versatile, salmon from Norway offers a deliciously easy way to incorporate more fish into the American diet. Norwegians take great care to ocean-farm salmon in a sustainable manner that's good for the fish, good for the earth, and good for future generations. To learn more, visit www.salmonfromnorway.com.

fillet, boneless, skin removed

4 1/2 cups water tablespoon salt 1 lemon

Stewed Vegetables 1 1/4 cups water

- potatoes, cut into cubes
- carrots, cut into cubes medium celeriac root, cut into cubes onions, cut into cubes
- medium size leek, cut into cubes tablespoons fresh parsley or chives, chopped
- Salt and pepper, to taste cup milk Cornstarch, to thicken

sauce Cucumber Salad

- 1 pound cucumber
- tablespoon sugar
- 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar

2 tablespoons olive oil Cut salmon into 4 even pieces and rinse well under cold water.

In large pot, bring water to boil, add salt and then salmon. Immediately remove from heat and let stand to poach for 4 to 6 minutes, depending on thickness of fillet. Be careful not to overcook - the flavors and texture of salmon is at its best when served opaque throughout. Remove from pot with slotted spoon and let water drain off on towel before arranging salmon on plate.

For vegetables, sprinkle water with salt and bring to boil in a large pot. When water is boiling, add potatoes, carrots, celeriac root and onions. Lower heat and simmer until soft. Add leeks and fresh herbs and simmer for 2 more minutes. Drain vegetables carefully in colander and make sure you keep cooking water. In same pot, bring milk and cooking water to boil; season with salt and Dilute cornstarch in small amount of cold water and add to boiling liquid until you have thick sauce. Add vegetables to milk mixture to reheat before For cucumber salad, peel cucumber, split lengthwise and remove seeds with small spoon. Cut at an angle in thick slices and mix with sugar, vinegar and oil.

Serve salmon with stewed vegetables and cucumber salad on the side.

Serving Suggestion: A few drops of lemon juice on the salmon is a must.

Annie's Mailbox ®

Dear Annie: I was with my ex-husband for 18 years before I divorced him. We have three children, and he hasn't been the best father or husband. Lately, however, he has been nice and comes around to visit the I appreciate the fact that he is doing this, but he is now saying things to me that make me uncomfortable. He slept on my couch a couple of nights because he stayed late with the kids when I was out. But now he is coming every day and staying over every night. We often end up sleeping together.

I told him to stop coming around with the expectation that we are getting back together, because we are not. But he refuses to listen, and now he has asked me to marry him again. He won't take "no" for an answer. What should I do? — Think I've Been Too Nice

Dear Think: For starters, stop sleeping with him. By allowing him to spend the night in your bed, you are leading him on, encouraging him to believe there is hope. If you are serious about keeping him as an exhusband, you must put an end to the couch sleepovers. When you return home, insist that he leave the premises. If you don't have the backbone for that, drop the kids at his place instead of letting him come to yours. Or hire a babysitter. You are creating this problem. You can stop it.

Dear Annie: How do you handle someone who constantly interrupts? She always knows more about the story and makes me feel inadequate. She's loud, abrasive and obnoxious.

this person ingratiated herself into

Only one of the other women likes her, but it's enough to keep her around. I'd love to put her in her place, but don't want to cause a rift with my friends. — Annoyed

Dear Annoyed: Does she do this with everyone, or only you? If it's just you, it could be that you take a long time to get to the point, or you monopolize conversations more than you realize. However, if she does it to everyone, you can say, "I'm sure you have something to add, but I'd appreciate it if you would let me finish first." Many people who interrupt do not realize they are doing it and need to be reminded, nicely, when they overstep.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 30, the 304th day of 2012. There are 62 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight History:

On Oct. 30, 1912, Vice President James S. Sherman, running for a second term of office with President William Howard Taft, died six days before Election Day. (Sherman was replaced with Nicholas Murray Butler, but Taft, the Republican candidate, ended up losing in an Electoral College landslide to Democrat Woodrow Wilson.)

On this date:

In 1735, the second president of the United States, John Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1893, the U.S. Senate gave final congressional approval to repealing the Sherman Silver Purchase Act of 1890.

In 1921, the silent film classic "The Sheik," starring Rudolph Valentino, premiered in Los Angeles

In 1938, the radio play "The War of the Worlds," starring Orson Welles, aired on CBS. In 1944, the Martha Graham ballet "Appalachian Spring," with music by Aaron Copland, premiered at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., with Graham in a leading role. In 1945, the U.S. government announced the end of shoe rationing, effective at midnight. In 1953, Gen. George C. Marshall was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. Dr. Albert Schweitzer received the Peace Prize for 1952. In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb, the "Tsar Bomba," with a force estimated at about 50 megatons. The Soviet Party Congress unanias well."

'We'll just have to wait and see. It seems like he's moving around a little bit better," Garrett said. "That's an injury you have to be patient with. We don't want to rush him back, then take any backward steps."

It could be a big boost if Murray can play, considering Jones had 13 carries for 19 yards against the Giants. Phillip Tanner gained nothing on two carries on consecutive plays after Dallas had first-and-goal from the New York 1 early in the third quarter.

When the Cowboys were driving in the final minutes with all three timeouts left, they didn't even try to run after secondand-1 from the 19. Instead, Romo threw consecutive incompletions before an intercep-

"They were pretty committed to stopping the run," Garrett said when asked about the play-calling. "Certainly whenever the play doesn't work, it's easy for us as coaches to look back afterward and say we should have done something different."

attack, and Iowa State started with Steele Jantz, then turned to Jared Barnett and then back to Jantz in time for him to set career-highs with 381 yards passing and five TDs in a win over Baylor.

"He was not doing some things effective enough, and that's why we made a change at one point this season, but 4-1 as a starter is pretty dang good," coach Paul Rhoads said. "I think it's overshadowed by the fact that he had his best game as an Iowa State Cyclone this Saturday night."

Texas coach Mack Brown announced Monday that he was sticking with David Ash, even after Case McCoy replaced him for the gamewinning drive against Kan-end up where among the league's six bowl partners, with the potential for two to make the BCS.

"We're trying to get one more ballgame so that we can get the extra practices and get to a bowl game," TCU's Gary Patterson said. "And if you can get to six, then you're going to try to get to seven. If you get to seven, then you try to get to eight."

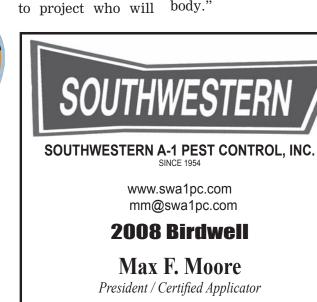

WILLWHO*FINISH* LAST?

Kansas dropped its 16th straight conference game Saturday, falling just short when Texas scored with 12 seconds left for a 21-17 win. But the Jayhawks (1-7, 0-5) can climb out of the cellar this week at winless Baylor (3-4, 0-4), which has reverted to its pre-Robert Griffin III ways.

"There's definitely things you can look at and say you're getting better here, you're getting better here, you're getting better here. But still at the end of the day, it's still about winning," Weis said. "Regardless of whether you played tough, played close,

"Are there silver linings? Yes, there are. But it still comes down to you've lost 100 in a row in the Big 12, at home and on the road, and you need to beat somebody."
