Salvation Army fan drive aids poorer residents in beating summer heat wave

By THOMAS JENKINS
 Staff Writer

With temperatures already hitting 100 degrees in West Texas, the local Salvation Army is doing its part to help the area's low income families with its annual fan drive.

"The demand has been high and we haven't even officially entered the summer season," Ada Lafler, a social worker with the local charity, said. "We don't have any fans left in stock and we gave out our last one more than a week ago."

Lafler said recent rains and thunderstorms have provided some level of relief for area families forced to struggle through the scorching heat without air conditioning. However, as the mercury continues to climb, those cool periods will get more and more rare.

"For a lot of people, fighting the heat is simply a matter of turning down their thermostats a few degrees," Lafler said. "Living here in West Texas, those people who have air conditioning tend to take it for granted. Unfortunately, there are many low income families in the area that don't have that luxury."

The annual fan drive collects donated fans and money to purchase new fans, which are then distributed to area residents in need of help in beating the summer heat, according to Salvation Army officials.

"We're trying to target the elderly because they are the most susceptible to heat related illnesses," Lafler said. "We're also trying to target families with children 5-years-old"

Immigration bill faces tough road

By PHILIP ELLIOTT
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A lawmaker who helped negotiate a bipartisan bill to overhaul immigration predicted on Sunday that comprehensive legislation would overwhelmingly pass the Senate by July 4 while House Republicans cautioned that they would write their own version, one piece at a time.

Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., said he anticipates as many as 70 of the 100 senators will vote for the measure heading to the full Senate on June 10. Even if it passes there, the proposal faces tough prospects in the Republican-led House, where lawmakers are at work on their own piecemeal approach that could stall a pathway to citizenship for the estimated 11 million immigrants living in this country illegally.

"We are moving forward because we believe in a bipartisan way this is so vital for America, and we'll have a good bill," Schumer said, pledging to allow colleagues to amend the legislation.

Not so fast, House lawmakers cautioned.

"That Senate bill is not going to move in the House," said Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla.

For months, four Democratic senators met with four Republican colleagues behind closed doors and developed a proposal that would enact new border controls and enforcement mechanisms in the workplace, allow tens of thousands of workers into the country legally for high- and low-skilled jobs and create a 13-year path to citizenship for those already living here illegally. It passed through the Senate Judiciary Committee last month

News in brief

Fire at poultry plant in northeast China kills at least 119; workers trapped in buildings

BEIJING (AP) — Fire raged through a poultry plant in northeastern China early Monday, trapping workers inside a cluttered slaughterhouse and killing at least 119 people, reports and officials said.

Several dozen people also were hurt in the blaze in Jilin province's Mishazi township, which appeared to have been sparked by three early-morning explosions, the official Xinhua News Agency said. The provincial fire department, on its microblog, attributed the blasts to a leak of ammonia, a gas that is kept pressurized as part of the cooling system in meat processing plants.

State broadcaster CCTV quoted unidentified workers as saying the fire broke out during a change of shifts and may have originated in a locker room at a time when about 350 workers were at the plant, owned by Jilin Baoyuanfeng Poultry Co.

It wasn't clear how many workers had been accounted for and a provincial government media official, who refused to give his name, said he expected the death toll to rise further as more bodies were recovered from the charred building.

Severe storms over in east, south but more rain and winds coming; Oklahoma death toll up to 13

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The remnants of a violent storm that claimed 13 lives in Oklahoma sent punishing winds and torrential downpours to northern New England and a tornado to South Carolina. And there could be more coming, though meteorologists say the worst is over.

The National Weather Service said the work week could begin with storms bringing showers to the Northeast and mid-Atlantic and large hail and high winds to the Great Plains.

But it won't be like Sunday, when storms flattened trees and utility poles in parts of northern New England, delayed flights in New York City and caused a tornado to touch down in South Carolina.

The weather service issued a rare tornado warning as a line of thunderstorms raced through New Hampshire into western Maine. It said a tornado warning was issued as radar indicated a possible tornado moving from Kingfield, Maine, to Bingham, Maine. The tornado was not immediately confirmed.

WikiLeaks trial begins 3 years after Bradley Manning's arrest for massive leak of US secrets

FORT MEADE, Md. (AP) — Army Pfc. Bradley Manning goes on trial Monday more than three years after he was arrested in Iraq and charged in the biggest leak of classified information in U.S. history.

Manning has admitted to sending troves of material to the anti-secrecy website WikiLeaks and pleaded guilty to charges that would send him to prison for up to 20 years. The U.S. military and the Obama administration weren't satisfied, though, and pursued a charge of aiding the enemy, which carries a potential life sentence.

The trial on that most serious charge and 20 other offenses begins Monday for the 25-year-old former intelligence analyst from Oklahoma. It's the most high-profile case for an administration that has come under criticism for its crackdown on leakers. The six prosecutions since President Barack Obama took office is more than in all other presidencies combined.

Service chiefs seek to temper military justice changes to address rising sexual assaults

WASHINGTON (AP) — American military commanders wield substantial power to discipline the troops they lead. But an epidemic of sexual assaults roiling the armed forces has Congress about to rein in that authority.

The only question is by how much?

Army Gen. Martin Dempsey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the four-star officers atop each service are scheduled to testify Tuesday at a high-stakes Senate hearing on congressional proposals to modify the military justice system with the aim of staunching the escalating number of sexual assaults that have outraged members of both parties on Capitol Hill.

Dempsey and other military leaders have said they are open to legislative solutions to a problem they acknowledge is serious. Still, they are deeply concerned that too drastic an overhaul by Congress will lead to unintended and alarming consequences.

Prosecutors at center of AP leak investigation have tackled series of high-profile cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Machen and James Cole have pursued their share of headline-makers, taking on between the two of them an All-Star baseball pitcher, government contractors, members of Congress, a federal judge and a mayoral campaign.

The two Justice Department officials are accustomed to overseeing big cases and riling defendants with their decisions. But it's their involvement in a White House crackdown on national security leaks — including the secret gathering of telephone records of Associated Press reporters and editors and the emails of a Fox News journalist — that has invited unusually broad and bipartisan condemnation.

Attorney General Eric Holder says he removed himself from the AP leak investigation, leaving Machen and Cole, the Holder deputy who made the decision to seek the phone records, as focal points for anger over the intrusion into newsgathering operations.

BILL

by a vote of 13 to 5; three Republicans joined the Democratic majority.

House lawmakers, though, have pledged to put together their own measure — likely taking components of the comprehensive Senate plan one at a time and adding their own priorities.

"We think it's better to do it with a step-by-step approach," said House Judiciary Committee Chairman Bob Goodlatte, R-Va.

"We'll continue down that path, but the final outcome in terms of the form of the legislation is not yet known," he added.

Democrats and Republicans alike recognized the political potency of the issue. The Senate, led by Democrats, is putting added pressure on the House, led by Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio.

"Congressman Boehner is in a box. There are about 60 or 70 of his people who are against any immigration reform. But at the same time, he knows that the Republican Party will be consigned to a minority party for a generation if they're anti-immigration," Schumer said.

In 2012, President Barack Obama won re-election with 71 percent of Hispanic voters and 73 percent of Asian voters backing him. A thwarted immigration overhaul could send those voting blocs more solidly to Democrats' side.

"We are hard at work on this problem. We have a broken immigration system in the country, it needs to be fixed, our legal immigration, our enforcement and figuring out the appropriate legal status for people who are not lawfully present in the United States all need to be addressed," Goodlatte said.

But it is unlikely to be a sweeping answer in the House, lawmakers said.

"I don't know if we'll have comprehensive reform or we will have it piece-by-piece. But that Senate bill may not even pass the Senate itself," Ros-Lehtinen said.

and younger and who are at home through the day during the summer months.

"Donations can be made in several different ways. Donors can bring in their used fans that are in good, serviceable condition, or they can make a monetary donation. The box fans that we normally purchase usually run anywhere between $20 and $30. It all depends on what kind of fan that person needs."

Donations can be made by purchasing fans and taking them to the Salvation Army office — located at 811 W. Fifth Street and open from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. with an hour break for lunch at noon — or earmarking monetary donations for the fan drive.

Those in need of fans can also apply for assistance at the Salvation Army Office on Mondays through Fridays, during the same hours. For more information, contact Lafler at 432-267-8239.

Profar's homer in 8th sends Rangers past KC

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Jurickson Profar sprinted around the bases with a big smile after putting the Rangers ahead for good.

Maybe the only person happier than the 20-year-old rookie was his veteran manager.

Profar hit a tiebreaking home run with two outs in the eighth inning Sunday, lifting the Texas Rangers over the Kansas City Royals 3-1 on Sunday.

The 20-year-old Profar connected off J.C. Gutierrez (0-1) for his second homer, a solo shot that put Texas ahead 2-1.

Manager Ron Washington was the first to greet Profar in the dugout. With a big grin of his own, Washington snagged the batting helmet off Profar's head before he was mobbed by teammates.

"What I get a kick out of is he's not afraid of baseball," Washington said. "Opportunities like today are what that young kid lives for. No one in the ballpark expected that. But he gave us a lift right there. He rose to the occasion."

Profar was recalled from the minors to replace injured second baseman Ian Kinsler on May 19.

The top prospect is hitting .324 and hit his second homer in 10 games this season.

"I was just trying to get on base," Profar said. "I guess I did a little better there."

David Murphy added an RBI single later in the inning to make it 3-1.

Tanner Scheppers (4-0) got two outs in the eighth and Joe Nathan pitched a perfect ninth for his 17th save in 18 chances.

Yu Darvish allowed three hits, walked two and struck out six as he left with a 1-0 lead after seven innings.

After the game, Darvish said he felt fatigued after throwing 99 pitches. Washington added Darvish told him he was out of gas and didn't want the Japanese ace to fight through another inning.

Neal Cotts replaced Darvish to start the eighth.

"Any time I throw more than seven innings, I always feel fatigued after that," Darvish said through an interpreter. "So LeBron James reacts during the second half of Game 6 on Saturday, as the Indiana Pacers defeated the Miami Heat to force a Game 7 to determine who will advance to the NBA Finals.

For the Finals: Heat to meet Pacers in Game 7

MIAMI (AP) — As the final horn in a Game 6 loss to the Indiana Pacers was sounding, LeBron James walked toward several of his Miami Heat teammates to shake some hands and share a couple of quick words.

His message was clear: Get ready for Game 7.

Here comes the ultimate game. To the winner, a trip to the NBA Finals. To the loser, an offseason loaded with regret. It's that simple now for the champion Heat and the confident Pacers, who meet in Game 7 of the Eastern Conference finals Monday night in Miami — a perk the Heat earned by finishing with the league's best record this season.

"Each and every year there are 30 teams that would love to be a part of this, to have one game to advance to the NBA Finals," James said. "And there's two teams that's in this position. And it's something that you can't substitute, this feeling. You can't substitute the atmosphere that we're going to be in on Monday night for both teams. We should all cherish this moment."

When it's over Monday, only one club will be cherishing the outcome.

For the Heat, it's a chance to move into the finals for the third straight year and keep hope alive of winning a second straight title. For the Pacers, it's a chance to cap what would surely go into the books as one of the biggest upsets in NBA playoff history, considering that they finished 16½ games behind the Heat in the regular season.

None of that matters much now. The Pacers have beaten Miami five of nine times this season. They need a sixth, or else it was all for naught.

"It is a closeout game and an elimination game," Pacers coach Frank Vogel said. "Our approach right now is not if we lose we're out — our approach is if we win, we get to the finals. And that's what we're going for. We're going to give our best shot and try to win the Eastern Conference championship."

Astros beat Angels for 3rd straight time

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Houston Astros appear to be enjoying their new address in the American League West, particularly when they play the Los Angeles Angels.

Carlos Pena and Carlos Corporan homered against C.J. Wilson and Jordan Lyles turned in his fourth impressive outing in a row for the Astros, who beat the Angels 5-4 Sunday for the third straight time and extended their winning streak to a season-high five games.

"It says that we can beat anybody in this league. If we can compete with the Angels, then we can compete with anybody," reliever Hector Ambriz said after getting the save. "We've attacked their whole lineup with fastballs, curve balls and off-speed pitches and haven't fallen behind in the count. You've got to respect what they can do, but we've got to respect our stuff, too."

The Astros, who entered this four-game wraparound series with an AL-worst 17-37 record, have won six of nine meetings with the Angels after coming over from the NL. Two of those wins have come at Wilson's expense, after the two-time All-Star had won his first five decisions against Houston with a 3.37 ERA.

"Sports are very hard to predict," Wilson said.

"There's a lot of people over the years who have tried to be experts at projecting things, and I don't think these people have much of a shot past a coin flip in really predicting what's going to go on — because there's so many factors.

"I don't think they're playing over their heads against us. They're a major league team," he added.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Grand Trine in Water Signs

Mercury steps up the trine of Saturn and Neptune forming a most auspicious grand trine. Mercury is in Cancer, Saturn is in Scorpio, and Neptune is in Pisces.

These are spiritually powerful water-sign influences. You might be surprised by how easy it is to make things happen when you are spiritually aligned with the results.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll be offered something of interest. You may feel skeptical about this or assume that it falls in the category of too-good-to-be-true. The benefits are real, but the cost is much more than is being presented.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Be careful not to get so comfortable in a loved one's affections that you take him or her for granted. Everyone needs to be shown appreciation now and then, and this is an excellent time for it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Distractions abound, and they are particularly delicious now, too. You will probably not be able to keep from acting on at least one of your many impulses, so which is the best one? Choose carefully.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). If only a certain someone knew how you really feel about him or her. It would come as a big surprise. But it's good that you don't share now, because your feelings are likely to quickly change. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). What you've done in your life has required emotional strength and stamina — not so much the big events, but the daily efforts, struggles and decisions. Don't forget to give yourself some credit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You have a gift for your competition: a run for their money. They'll be touched enough to offer you something in return: the motivation to succeed bigger than ever before.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The same person who opens up your world has a habit of limiting you in other ways. This is a tricky relationship. Each interaction seems to have its own set of rules. You may find yourself longing for simpler connections.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You see an event on the horizon that has you apprehensive. The best way to keep this from becoming a panicked situation is to plan carefully. Enlist help now rather than waiting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You are susceptible to enchantment by attractive strangers. Today there is no harm in surrendering to it even if it leads slightly beyond the boundaries of your usual interactions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When people show you that they like you, you don't let it go to your head. Instead, you use this good will as an opportunity to forward the common good. Not everyone is like you, though. Watch out for egomaniacs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your powers of imagination are so strong now that you could forget the basics, like paying bills and making sure you have clean clothes. Your projects will move forward, though, and that's what matters most to you now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The problem with your current project is that there's still a long stretch ahead and you happen to be a bit low on fuel. So don't push it. Pull over and fuel up so you can stay in it until you get to your destination.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 3). Independence is increasingly important to you, and you'll need plenty of freedom to follow your dream. Commit to a reasonable goal this month, and you'll have it by July. August features seduction and passion. September helps you see your best course of professional action. Also, family will rally to support your efforts. Cancer and Scorpio people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 2, 33, 18 and 8.

Monday's winner will open the NBA Finals on Thursday against San Antonio.

History suggests that the odds are long for the Pacers. Since the NBA went to its current play-off format in 1984, home teams are 16-2 in Game 7's played in the conference finals or NBA Finals.

Then again, the Pacers were colossal underdogs heading into this series, and if it wasn't for a last-second collapse at the end of Game 1, they probably would already be East champs.

"It's going to be tough in their arena," Pacers guard Lance Stephenson said. "We've just got to bring it. If we play aggressive like we do at home, we can get the 'W.'"

Indiana headed to Miami with enough luggage for an eight-day trip. If the Pacers win Game 7, they're headed to San Antonio, with no time to make a return swing through Indianapolis along the way.

"We believe we can win the series. We always have," Vogel said. "We haven't been perfect this series, but we're going to need to be near perfect to win a Game 7 there."

The Pacers had an off-the-court distraction to address Sunday. Center Roy Hibbert apologized and was fined $75,000 by the NBA after using a gay slur in his postgame comments on Saturday, along with a profanity to describe members of the media.

"They were disrespectful and offensive and not a reflection of my personal views," Hibbert was quoted as saying in the statement released by the team. "I used a slang term that is not appropriate in any setting, private or public, and the language I used definitely has no place in a public forum, especially over live television."

NBA Commissioner David Stern said the fine was necessary "to reinforce that such ofensive comments will not be tolerated."

Vogel said he spoke with Hibbert about the matter Sunday, saying "he obviously made a great mistake."

On the court, though, Hibbert has had nothing to apologize for, dominating play inside while the Heat are struggling in countless ways.

Dwyane Wade's sore right knee — which has been an issue for about three months now — is not getting better anytime soon, and he's stopped even wanting to discuss how it's affecting his game. Chris Bosh said he needed to get back in the gym Sunday and regain some lost rhythm. Wade is averaging 12 points on 32 percent shooting in his last three games, Bosh just 6.3 points on 24 percent shooting in that same span.

"Just got to come out and play to win," Wade said. "It's one game for both teams."

Said James, when asked about the other two parts of Miami's Big Three: "I mean, we can state the obvious. They're both struggling."

They're hardly the only Heat players who picked the wrong time of year to go into a slide. Ray Allen is shooting 13 for 46 in this series, Shane Battier is at 2 for 16, and they're a combined 9 for 39 from 3-point range against the Pacers.

Mike Miller gave the Heat a big second-half boost as they tried to rally from a big deficit in Game 6, and Heat coach Erik Spoelstra suggested that Miller could get some time in the series finale.

One roster tweak the Heat will make on Monday: Chris Andersen's one-game suspension for pushing Indiana's Tyler Hansbrough is now complete, and the Heat backup big man — who is 15 for 15 from the field in the series — will be available for Game 7.

So even on the cusp of elimination Sunday, Spoelstra was decidedly upbeat.

He lauded the Pacers and insisted that this series going the distance is a testament to the level of competition. He said the Heat didn't mind being pushed to the limit, and that his team would look at being in a Game 7 as "a treasure."

"You feel alive when you're tested, when there's adversity, when you have to reveal your character," Spoelstra said.

"I probably will not be able to relax until the game starts," James said. "You know, it's an opportunity for us. And like I said, that's what we had the best record in the league for. If we didn't take care of business on the road at some point in the playoffs, we could always fall back on this."

RANGERS

it was nothing special today."

Alex Gordon doubled in the Kansas City eighth and scored on a grounder to make it 1-1.

The Rangers only had three singles coming into the eighth.

Gutierrez retired the first two batters of the inning before Profar came up to the plate. He lined a 1-2 pitch into the seats in right.

Elvis Andrus was on deck and joked about Profar's speed rounding the bases.

"That was really quick," Andrus said. "He's going to hit plenty of homers in his career so he needs to work on that. He's fun to watch."

Rangers center fielder Craig Gentry threw out Billy Butler at home trying to score early as first-place Texas won for the third time in four games.

The Rangers were without All-Star third baseman Adrian Beltre, who didn't play because of a strained left hamstring. Washington said Beltre may be back in the lineup for Tuesday night's game against the Boston Red Sox.

Andrus wasn't in the original starting lineup as he's been hampered by a sore back in the past week. The shortstop, however, said he felt good when he woke up and convinced Washington he was ready to play.

Kansas City starter Ervin Santana allowed an unearned run and three singles in seven innings. The right-hander had lost his past four starts coming in.

The Royals haven't scored more than four runs in a game since May 21 and have lost 10 of 12. Kansas City, which brought on Hall of Famer George Brett as interim hitting coach Thursday, scored only seven runs in dropping two of three to Texas.

"We were right there," Butler said. "We were one pitch away, one hit away at every point in that game. It's very frustrating."

Santana didn't allow a hit until Nelson Cruz singled with one out in the fourth.

Gordon, who snapped an 0-for-14 rut earlier in the game, led off the eighth with a broken-bat double against Cotts. Alcides Escobar had a sacrifice bunt that moved Gordon to third.

Eric Hosmer hit a chopper to Jeff Baker, who played third base in place of Beltre. Baker's throw home was wild and Gordon scored easily to tie the game.

With the bases loaded and no outs in the second, Jeff Francoeur hit a liner to center and Gentry made a running catch. Gentry made a perfect throw to home plate and catcher Geovany Soto just got the tag on a sliding Butler.

NOTES: Rangers RHP Alexi Ogando will come off the disabled list and is scheduled to start Wednesday at Boston. Ogando (4-2) has been sidelined since May 16 with right biceps tendinitis and Rangers executive Nolan Ryan exchanged lineup cards before the game with umpire Dale Scott, who was behind home plate for the pair's final game on Oct. 3, 1993. Brett went 1 for 4 that day, Ryan was injured and didn't play.

Opening lead — king of hearts.
B. Jay Becker, the former editor of this column, was playing with one of his favorite partners, Jeff Rubens, when this hand arose. It was deal No. 2 of a 100-board match to determine the team that would represent the United States in the 1973 world championship.

Rubens was South and got to three notrump as shown. Ordinarily, he plays his cards deliberately, even though he is one of the fastest thinkers in the game. But on this occasion he played the hand very quickly.

West led the heart king, ducked by South, and continued with the jack, won by Rubens with the ace. Declarer promptly played the jack of diamonds and finessed. East took the queen and returned a club.

Rubens thereupon showed his hand and claimed the rest of the tricks, making five on a double squeeze! The only explanation he offered was that he assumed East had four or more spades, which in turn meant that the double squeeze was sure to succeed. The opponents conceded the claim, and the rest of the hand was not even played out!

They realized that Rubens would win the club and cash the A-K-Q of spades and A-K-10 of diamonds to produce this position:

North
♣ 9

West
♥ Q
♣ J 4

South
♠ 8
♣ A 6

The lead of the diamond four now would first squeeze East out of a club, South discarding a spade, and then squeeze West out of a club to put an end to the proceedings. Rubens' claim at trick four was simply a timesaver!

Tomorrow: Tender, loving care.
