Twinkle, twinkle: Stargazing Party set Saturday

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

If you're looking for something out of this world to do Saturday evening, both astronomy buffs and casual observers alike are invited to participate in the annual Stargazing Party atop Scenic Mountain beginning at sun-will provide some high-powered lenses which the public can look through to view the night skies as never before.

"The astronomy club will be bringing 18-inch lenses," said State Park Manager Ron Alton. "They usually set up about six or seven telescopes and you can see quite a bit. I've seen some multicolored nebulas that are just amazing."

The skies have to be fairly clear for the evening to be a it's something different. It success. In case of rain or heavy cloud cover, a back-up date has been set for July 13. Whether the stargazing takes place Saturday or next month, Alton hopes the community will show up and support the event, which in turn supports Scenic Mountain itself.

"After doing this for 35 years, I think people get outside less and less," he said. "This is a good event because gives you a chance to be outdoors. And if you've never seen the deep skies through one of these telescopes, you can't even compare it. There's stuff in the deep sky you'd never believe was there.

Events at the park are important and attendance is important. The park's visitation is monitored on a monthly basis and events such as the Stargazing Party and the Movie On the Mountain we do each year, bolsters the fact that this park is being used."

Admission is free and all ages are welcome. The WTAC will have their equipment set up for public use until 11

Sex offender fails to register, gets 46 months

Herald Staff Report

ABILENE, Texas — A Big Country resident with Crossroads area ties has been sentenced to 46 months in federal prison for failing to register as a sex offender.

Robert Jade Lopez-Parker, 40, most recently a resident of Abilene, Texas, was sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Jorge A. Solis.

A federal jury in Abilene convicted Lopez-Parker in January 2013 on a one-count indictment charging that he failed to register as a sex offender.

The U.S. Marshals Service received information that Lopez-Parker, a sex offender from Washington and Oregon, was living in Abilene. He was arrested on July 6, 2012, on a warrant out of Scurry County, Texas, and has been in custody since that time.

According to evidence presented at trial, Lopez-Parker lived in the Abilene area at least three months prior to his arrest, and he never registered in Texas as a sex offender, as required by the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. He was required to register as a sex offender because he had been convicted of a sex offense, child molestation in the third degree in Clark County, Wash., for which he was sentenced on Jan. 8, 2002. He last registered in Oregon on Jan.30, 2012.

The case was brought as part of Project Safe Childhood, a nationwide initiative, which was launched in May 2006 by the Department of Justice, to combat the growing epidemic of child sexual exploitation and abuse

The case was investigated by the U.S. Marshals Service, the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Abilene Police Department, the Taylor County Sheriff's Office, the Callahan County Sheriff's Office, and the Oregon State Police. Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven M. Sucsy and Deputy Criminal Chief Assistant U.S. Attorney Denise Williams prosecuted.

It removes legal risks of saying "Merry Christmas" in schools while also protecting traditional holiday symbols, such as a menorah or

To trust or not to trust hen I first started teaching criminal law (decades ago), I spent weeks on the Fourth Amendment and the "zone of privacy." The big case was Katz v. United States, decided in 1967. The FBI suspected that Charles Katz was using a payphone in a phone booth (those enclosed spaces we used to rely on before cellphones) to transmit gambling information to folks in other states (a federal offense). So they attached a listening device to the outside of the booth, which picked up his end of the conversation. He was convicted and, on appeal, claimed that the government should have gotten a warrant before eavesdropping on his conversations. The Supreme Court agreed. "The Fourth Amendment protects people, not places," Justice Potter Stewart famously wrote for the majority. In a concurring opinion, Justice John Marshall Harlan emphasized that even if the booth was see-through (as they were in those days), Katz had a "reasonable expectation of privacy" as to the content of his conversation. Imagine that. A "reasonable expectation of privacy." Dream My son was shocked by the news that the government is monitoring all of our online communications. He thought he had a reasonable expectation of privacy.

I never imagined that for a mo-

What did everyone think when we talked about "data mining"? You need data to mine.

I must have written dozens of columns since 9/11 about the "delicate balance" between privacy and security. Did people really think I was only talking about other people's privacy? Did you really believe the "delete" key had that much power? I'm not trying to minimize the significance of the PRISM leak. Quite the contrary. The fact that a 29-year-old contractor whose adherence to security rules proved to be so lax had as much access to as much data as he did (and we don't know just how much he really had, because answering that would apparently give away too much) is plenty troubling.

Where were the standards? Where were the procedural protections? Who was running this store?

Sen. Dianne Feinstein's reaction was telling. Feinstein is a San Francisco Democrat, as Ronald Reagan once famously called them — meaning she is about as liberal as you get. She is also the chair of the Senate Intelligence Committee. She knew all about PRISM and immediately defended it as a necessary tool in the war against terror. Critics on the left have been pretty merciless in attacking her. Is she right? Has PRISM saved lives? If it has, I'm for it.

If it hasn't, I'm outraged.

The problem is: How do I know?

If I were playing law professor here, I might go back to Katz and do the number that we lawyers do when we can't answer the hard substantive question. Go back to process and procedure. Say: Government, get a warrant Sure enough. But the truth is, all the government has to do to get a warrant to eavesdrop is ask for one. The chances of a judge saying no are about 1 in 4,000. Sure, forcing people to actually write up an application has value in itself, but if you can put the nouns and verbs together and form a coherent sentence, what judge is going to take it upon themselves to say no? Not many, and understandably so.

I like to write columns where I know the answer. I like to believe there are better answers than telling people to "trust" that we should, as Reagan himself said, not simply trust but "verify." But how do we verify? At what cost?

All I know is this: I'm tired of people telling me that politics doesn't matter, that it doesn't make any difference who has power in our country. It does. In a world in which courts and citizens alike are unable to verify and have little choice but to trust, it matters.

Latino community leader ... not!

▼ here are community leaders and there are party leaders, and usually there is a huge difference between those two particular species of human beings.

And yet in the American news media, discerning one from the other seems to be very difficult. Some analysts apparently can't tell them apart.

It's very simple: Party leaders tend to put the interests of their party over those of their own people, and community leaders have principles that won't allow them to sell out. Nevertheless, if you are a party politician who happens to be Hispanic, many in the media automatically assume that you must be a Latino community leader and that you speak for

Perez

Latinos. It's crazy! Just because of your ethnicity, some people assume that others in your ethnic group would automatically follow you — even when you normally stand against their best inter-

This is why is it still so hard for some media commentators to accept the fact that Republican Sen. Marco Rubio of Florida doesn't speak for Latinos, and that most Latinos don't see him as their leader. He may still enjoy the support of a majority of Cuban-Americans in Miami, where strong anti-Castro rhetoric is all you need to be popular. But among other Latinos, Rubio is seen as a sellout who constantly puts GOP Party interests above those of his own Hispanic community. For the past few weeks, ever since the so-called "Gang of Eight" U.S. senators, including Rubio, unveiled their comprehensive immigration reform bill, many in the media had been admiring the fact that these four Democrats and four Republicans had been unwilling to break ranks. They had vowed to stick forts to alter it, from both the left

Of course, you wouldn't expect one of the Latinos in this Gang of Senators to be the one who caves, right? If anyone were to break ranks with the rest of the group, surely it would be the one who represents the interest of conservative extremists, right?

Well, repulsively but not surprisingly, it was Rubio who broke with the group last week. And it was not to make the measure more lenient, but more draconian

What kind of Latino leader is

Instead of listing the concerns expressed by his own Latino community about the legislation, Rubio spoke for the conservative extremists who continue to pull his strings.

"Clearly what we have in there now is not good enough for too many people, and so we've got to make it better.

And that's what I'm asking for and that's what we're working on," Rubio reportedly said on a conservative radio talk show.

When Rubio talks about hearing concerns that more is needed to boost the bill's language, listen to where they are coming from. When he says he is committed to make those changes, ask yourself to whom he is committed.

Now he says the bill he helped to write and vowed to support needs changes to further enforce its border security provisions. And he is predicting that his own bill won't pass the House and maybe not even the Senate unless it becomes more draconian.

Now he says the bill, which wasn't that great for undocumented immigrants to begin with, needs to have more hoops for these people to jump though, and possibly more years for them to wait before they can even apply to become American citizens.

Although the bill would make undocumented immigrants wait at least 10 years before they can apply for permanent residency and at least three more years for citizenship, although it allocates $6.5 billion for border measures aimed at achieving 100 percent surveillance of the entire border and blocking 90 percent of border crossers and would-be crossers in high-entrance areas, Rubio says that's not enough. It's certainly not enough to cure the xenophobia of his conservative backers.

Echoing the sentiments of his hard-right puppeteers, now Rubio says the "triggers" already in the bill to make the legalization of undocumented immigrants contingent on difficult border security goals need to be made "tougher, yet still realistic."

Yes, although the legalization for undocumented immigrants already is contingent on goals that may never be realized, and although these immigrants run the risk of remaining in limbo indefinitely — as "provisional" second-class citizens — Rubio wants more hoops.

Instead of 13 years to apply for citizenship, he is now saying some undocumented immigrants may have to wait 20 years.

Here's a Latino politician trying to delay Latino immigrants from voting. Does that make him a Latino leader?

Let's face it: If he wants to give some immigrants the "amnesty" dreaded by conservatives, he has to make them sweat for it. And he has to make sure that his anti-immigrant constituents are satisfied.

If he keeps turning against his own people, Rubio may yet become a great GOP leader.

But if he ever gets elected anywhere outside of Miami, it will not be with a majority of the Latino vote.

We know the pain his warped ideology would cause our community and we are not masoch-Yet nowadays, you see the pundits acting surprised whenever Rubio reneges on his own immigration proposals, as if they didn't know that he doesn't speak for Latinos and that tea party conservatives are his puppeteers.

Defeating Defeat

WHEAT

Resilience, that bounce-back quality of life that defeats defeat, must be a gift from God. A miracle is the only explanation for the uncanny ability some people have for riding out the ups and downs of life. Unscathed by tides of distress and devastation, they keep on smiling. When I think of resilience, I am reminded of something that happened to our younger daughter years ago.

My husband and I were visiting with friends after church one Sunday evening when we heard a crash. Charla, our toddler, had somehow managed to turn a heavy wooden pew over, pinning herself underneath

As the small group of adults rushed to lift up the pew, I scooped up my baby. At first it appeared that her nose was broken.

Her entire little nose was sunken into her face even with her cheeks. However, in a matter of seconds an amazing thing happened.

The soft cartilage of her nose started to spring back into shape. As we watched, a tiny nose started reshaping itself on a perfect little face. The next day, her face wasn't even bruised.

As any keen observer of life has probably noticed, come-back kids of all ages often get their noses flattened. The circumstances of life often hit us full force in the face.

Illness and loss leave our knees buckled. Financial setbacks cause stress and worry. Emotional blows cause pain that medication can't

Yet, the resilient always seem to snap back. Perhaps they even thrive in their adversity. Is resiliency a quality that some possess and others

I believe that the apostle Paul would not agree with this theory. Although he never used the word "resilience" the apostle seems to have identified a process for adjusting to misfortune or change.

In an effort to instruct and encourage the Christians in Rome, he wrote, "And not only this, but we also exult in our tribulations, knowing that tribulation brings about perseverance, and perseverance, proven character, and proven character, hope; and hope does not disappoint, because the love of God has been poured out within our hearts through the Holy Spirit who was given to us." (Romans 5:3-5 NASB).

Perhaps resilience is not a have or have-not quality. Maybe resilience is a faith-based chain linking tribulation to perseverance, perseverance to proven character, and proven character to hope. Could it be that God expects all of us to develop resilience instead of just admiring it in other people?

Captain Elisha Mack Chapter, NSDAR

Captain Elisha Mack Chapter, NSDAR met at 11:30 a.m. May 11 at the Big Spring Country Club with Regent Hollis McCright presiding. Hostess Katie Lara decorated the tables with blue streamers.

Regent McCright led the members in the DAR ritual and read the President General's message.

The program was Family Heirlooms Show and Tell. Hollis McCright displayed a handmade wooden match box holder dating around 1880 and a handmade wire broom holder.

Sue Ann Damron shared the story of her grandmother, age 9 in 1913, winning the school spelling bee contest and receiving a figurine which Damron displayed. The figurine was given to Chapter member Anne Witherspoon when she was 9 years-old. Alice Long presented a Carnival Glass dish found in a house her mother moved into in 1936. A Civil War handmade coverlet was shown by Katie Lara. It had belonged to her Confederate ancestors.

April 19, 2014 will mark the 40th birthday for the Capt. Elisha Mack Chapter, NSDAR.

Senators consider abortion restrictions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Republican and Democratic state senators engaged in an intense debate Thursday over proposed laws to further restrict when, where and how women can get abortions in Texas.

After Gov. Rick Perry called on the special legislative session to consider new abortion laws, Sen. Glen Hegar, R-Katy, laid out an omnibus bill that would ban abortions after 20 weeks, allowing abortions only in surgical facilities and placing greater restrictions on abortion-inducing medications.

Anti-abortion groups have tremendous influence over conservative Republicans and they have made these bills a priority across the nation. Abortion rights groups complain the new laws are nothing more than additional barriers to women obtaining an abortion and could shut down 90 percent of the abortion clinics in the state.

All of the bills came up in the regular legislative session but never made it to a final vote.

Sen. Royce West, Dimmediately questioned the legitimacy of the research that suggests a fetus can feel pain at 20 weeks, which was Hegar's justification for the ban. He cited a 2005 study in the Journal of the American Medical Association that disputes prior research showing that a fetus at 20 weeks is capable of feeling pain, and instead states that pain is not experienced until the third trimester. He challenged supporters to produce a more recent study.

Hegar simply insisted that a "significant amount of evidence" exists, but failed to offer specifics.

Senators Joan Huffman. R-Houston. Svlvia Garcia. D-Houston and Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo, joined West in challenging the section of Hegar's bill that only allowed for exceptions when the woman life is in danger.

Hegar said he was trying to "balance the needs and the interests to prevent fetuses and small children from suffering pain ... with trying to make sure there is not any kind of harm to women in this state."

In addition to Hegar's omnibus Senate Bill 5, the Senate Health and Human Services Committee considered each measure as separate Patrick and Sen. Bob Deuell.

Patrick told the committee that all of the bills were intended to protect women, not stop abortions. Opponents, though, questioned his intentions.

The requirement that abortion clinics qualify as ambulatory surgical centers would also mandate that doctors have admitting privileges at a hospital within 30 miles of the clinic. Critics complain that since many private or religious hospitals won't grant privileges to doctors who perform abortions, the law would effectively shut down clinics in wide swathes of the state.

Abortion rights advocates also testified that since less than 1 percent of women who undergo abortions suffer complications, establishing higher standards for abortion clinics and requiring stricter rules for pill-induced abortions are unnecessary and motivated by politics.

Dozens of individuals representing only themselves testified both in support and in opposition of the measures.

Man indicted in May slaying of Texas postal worker

HOUSTON (AP) — A man whose estranged wife works for the U.S. postal service has been indicted in the slaying of his neighborhood letter carrier in an alleged dispute over his mail.

James Wayne Ham of Coldspring was being held Friday without bond on charges of murder and using a firearm to commit a violent crime.

Federal prosecutors in Houston on Thursday announced Ham's indictment in the death of Marie Youngblood. Her body was discovered May 17 in her burned SUV in San Jacinto County after she An April complaint by Ham to the postmaster whose wife is accused of sending ricin-laced letters to President Barack Obama and New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg in an attempt to frame him says the experience has been "like a really bad dream."

Nathan Richardson of New Boston, a small town near the Arkansas border, told the Texarkana Gazette that he's now questioning "everything" about his pregnant wife, even the paternity of her unborn Shannon Richardson was arrested last Friday and charged with mailing a threatening communication to the president. Authorities allege the actress was trying to make it appear the letters were sent by her husband.

Nathan Richardson, a 33-year-old Army veteran who works as a mechanic at the Red River Army Depot, filed for divorce last Thursday. He told the Gazette he contemplated divorce last year but, until a few weeks ago, thought the couple had patched Richardson said he met his wife through a cousin of hers while he was working overseas. The couple exchanged emails for several months before meeting, he said. They married in October 2011.

"It seemed like a really good connection," Richardson said. "Now I'm just thinking it's all an act, of course. Over time, slowly she turned out to be someone she wasn't.'

According to Richardson, his wife claimed to have health problems, but he could never determine what they were.

Shannon Richardson has played bit roles on television and in movies under the name Shannon Guess. She has five children ranging in age from 4 to 19 from other relationships, according to Nathan Richardson's attorney, John Delk.

The government alleges that the 35-year-old woman sent the ricin-laced letters last month to the White House, Bloomberg and the mayor's Washington gun-control group.

leased from a hospital after a pickup truck crashed into their North Texas house as the boys slept.

Fort Worth police are searching for the male driver and the black Ford truck that smashed into the residence early Friday then drove away.

Investigators say a passenger fled on foot.

The vehicle hit part of the house that formerly was a garage and where the boys were sleeping. The children's mother, Monica Medina, says her sons suffered minor scrapes and bruises.

Credit union officer sentenced to 3 years AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A loan officer at a credit union in the Texas Panhandle has been sentenced to three years in prison for faking documents and stealing about $442,000. A federal judge in Amarillo on Thursday afternoon sentenced 26-year-old Erin Dawn Trevathan and ordered her to repay the money. The Amarillo woman in April pleaded guilty to fraud related to federal credit union entries. Investigators say Trevathan was the sole loan officer at the Pampa Teachers Federal Credit Union from mid-2008 until December 2010.

An audit revealed problems. Trevathan then told investigators she made false entries and stole cash for her personal use.

Officer no-billed in man's death

HOUSTON (AP) — A grand jury has declined to indict a Houston police officer over a disturbance in which he fatally shot a double amputee who had a history of mental illness.

Investigators have said Brian Claunch last September threatened Officer Matthew Marin's partner with what turned out to be a pen.

The Houston Chronicle reports Marin was nobilled Monday. Police Chief Charles McClelland declined comment Thursday as the internal affairs investigation continues.

Court records show a 2002 mental health examination showed Claunch had a number of psychiatric hospitalizations. He became a ward of Harris County.

A caretaker at a group home where Claunch lived called police when he became agitated. Marin said Claunch, who used a wheelchair, backed his partner into a corner and threatened him with a shiny object.

Orioles take Major League city title

Special to the Herald

The Orioles are your Major League city champs after defeating the Indians 13-3 Thursday at the Roy Anderson Sports Complex.

Chris Ibanez led the outing off with a single, then Joshua Wood reached base on an error. With runners on the corners, a strikeout and a doubleplay ended the top half of the inning, as the Indians couldn't manufacture a run.

Leading off for the Orioles, Deonte Perez picked up a base hit and was driven home on a triple by Jack Everett to put the first run of the game on the board.

Edward Aguilar stepped in and belted his first of two home runs on the evening, extending the O's lead to

The Orioles tacked on four more runs in the bottom of the second to take a commanding, 7-0 lead, but the Indians weren't about to just lie down and give the game away.

Another single recorded by Ibanez, a fielding error and a dropped third strike keyed a three-run inning for the Indians in the third, but it wasn't enough to waylay the Orioles, who added six more runs after base hits by Perez and Kobe Gutierrez and another long fly by Aguilar.

Gutierrez took the mound for the Indians and retired the side in order to end the game, as well as another inter-city season of Big Spring Little League — the largest per capita in the nation, according to BSLL President Robert Smith.

The action isn't completely over.

Local Little League All-Stars will begin play June 21, with three tournaments slated to be held in Big Spring.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — LeBron James wanted the responsibility on his powerful shoul-Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh proved Thursday it doesn't have to be that way.

James can win the Miami Heat plenty of games, but even he can't win a title alone.

"We're not going to win this series if myself, Chris and LeBron don't show up to play on a consistent basis," Wade said.

"So tonight was kind of one of the best performances that we all had in the playoffs together at the same time, just being aggressive from start to finish, and hopefully that's what we can see for the next three games."

Riding big performances from their Big Three, the Heat tied the NBA Finals with a 109-93 victory over the San Antonio Spurs in Game 4.

"It was on our shoulders," James said. "We had to figure out how to win the game for us and play at the highest level. When all three of us are clicking we're very tough to beat."

James had 33 points and 11 rebounds after failing to break 20 points in any of the first three games of the series, and Wade scored 32 points, 11 more than his previous high this postsea-

Bosh matched his playoff high with 20 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, he and Wade supplying the baskets that finally put the Spurs away for good midway through the fourth quarter.

Three players, 85 points. Just the way the Heat envisioned it when they signed James and Bosh to play with Wade in "The death of the Big Three was overrated," Heat owner Micky Arison said as he walked toward the winning locker room.

Sure was. His three prized players are just fine, and so are the Heat's championship

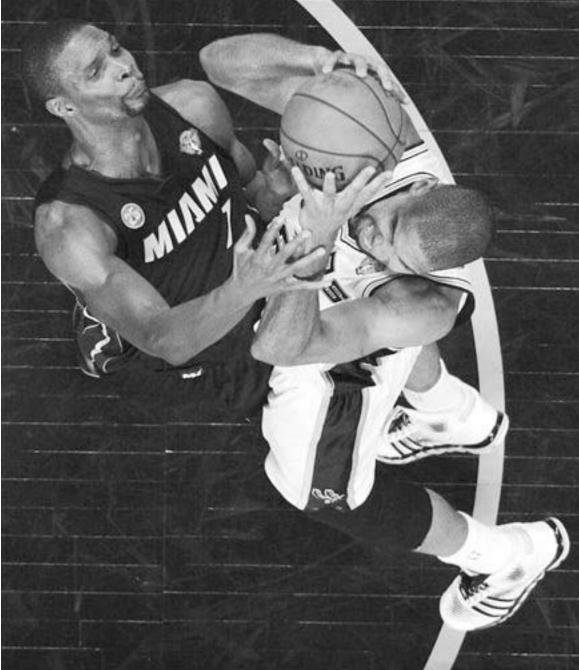

'When Bosh, Wade and James score the way they did tonight and shoot it the way they did tonight, a team is going to have a difficult time if you help them like we did," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said.

"When those guys are playing like that, you better be playing a perfect game."

The Spurs weren't, committing 19 turnovers that led to 23 bounced back from a loss Miami's Chris Bosh and San Antonio's Tim Duncan battle for the ball during Game 4 of the NBA Finals Thursday. The Heat knotted the series at two games apiece with a 109-93 win over the Spurs.

IRVING, Texas (AP) — De- Ware still recovering from Marcus Ware and Anthony Spencer have much simpler job descriptions in the new Dallas defense: Go get the quarterback.

The pass-rushing ends for the Cowboys' return to the 4-3 won't carry out their new marching orders together until training camp starts next month in California, with shoulder surgery and Spencer a week removed from hyperextending his left knee in an offseason practice.

Most everyone else hardly missed a snap in four weeks of offseason work that wrapped up Thursday with the final day of a three-day minicamp. They probably have more to learn anyway under new defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin with the Cowboys changing schemes after nearly a decade with three linemen and four linebackers.

"Every coverage is new. Every blitz is new," said the 73-year-old Kiffin, architect of the defense that won a Super Bowl with Tampa Bay in

Rangers waste another quality outing by Darvish

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) same game.

Yu Darvish keeps giving the Texas Rangers solid starts. With no help from the offense, the ace's efforts have been wasted.

Darvish has now made five starts over the last month without a victory after the Rangers lost 3-1 to the Toronto Blue Jays on Thursday night in the opener of a four-game series.

"I'm not amazed," Darvish said through his interpreter. "This is baseball. Anything can happen."

Darvish allowed only three hits and walked two, but threw 110 pitches to get through seven innings.

"His command wasn't where it usually is. But the guy's a pitcher," manager Ron Washington said. "He was able to make pitches in situations when he had to. ... He did his job. You don't always go out there and are able to dominate. Today, he certainly did what he had to do to make certain that we were in that ball game. And he did do that very well."

Since his last victory May 16 against Detroit, Darvish lost 1-0 to Oakland and has now gone four games in a row without getting a decision. The right-hander has a 2.08 ERA with 41 strikeouts in those 34 2-3 innings over those five games, but the Rangers have scored only seven runs for him in that same span — and four of those runs came in the

"Some games you get a lot of run support. Others you don't," he said. "I'm not really surprised by it."

Nelson Cruz homered for the Rangers (38-28), who have lost three in a row at home. They have dropped eight of 12 overall, falling out of first place in the AL West and two games behind Oakland.

The Athletics (41-27), who play four games in Texas next week, have won 21 of their last 26 games. They capped a three-game series sweep of the New York Yankees with a 3-2 win in 18 innings earlier Thursday.

Neal Cotts (2-1) replaced Darvish to start the eighth, when Emilio Bonifacio reached on a throwing error by Gold Glove third baseman Adrian Beltre. Munenori Kawasaki had a sac bunt before Tanner Scheppers, the second reliever, walked Jose Bautista before the double to left-center by Encarnacion broke the 1-all tie.

Rangers center fielder Leonys Martin made a diving attempt to catch the gamedeciding hit. He was fully extended when the ball went under his glove.

Martin sprained his left wrist after his gloved hand rolled awkwardly when he hit the ground. The Rangers said X-rays were negative, and said he was day to day with a mild sprain.

Leo/Virgo Moon Reverses the Order

The moon moving from Leo into Virgo makes this a two-toned day. Usually, Friday is about working first and then dropping it all (hopefully early) to go have some fun. Not this time. The fun comes first, and then you may realize that your peace this weekend hinges on getting something done before the end of the day. The afternoon will be highly productive.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You don't want to owe anyone, and yet, if you were to swallow your pride and accept some help, you would quickly find yourself in a much better position. You could help others from that place, too. Take the LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Difficult tasks are just a series of easy steps — a really long series, to be sure. But since you're only tackling one step at a time, there is little difference between choosing a difficult task and an easy one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll encounter two types of people now: the talkers and the doers. They need each other. The talkers will be the marketers and the publicity for all that the doers need to advertise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). If you don't guess right or make a smart move right off the bat, don't worry. This is just part of how you gain the experience you need. If you're always correct the first time, you won't make a good teacher later

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Just because love is true doesn't mean it is also easy. You're up for the adventure, though. Loyalties will be tested. You'll learn even more about the person you love and about yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Turn up the tunes and be carefree. One of your sign mates said this well: "I wish you music to help with the burdens of life, and to help you release your happiness to others." – Ludwig van Beethoven

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It will be tempting to veer off course and set your sights on an entirely different goal. But you will gain so much confidence from doing what you set out to do, if only to prove the point that you're a person who follows through.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). People think you're brave for speaking your mind, but what they don't understand is that you're just not the type to bottle things up. To you, that would be far more painful than just telling the truth.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). What is it you most want people to feel around you? Your clear intentions have power. You'll cultivate and spread that emotion. Don't worry about how. The result you want will shape your decisions unconsciously.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 14). You already feel that life is good, but you're about to believe it's absolutely phenomenal. The next seven weeks bring an answer for every question, a date when you want one and opportunities galore. Give yourself a deserved break in August. September shows you rising up through the ranks of an organization. Pisces and Aquarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 10, 23, 22 and 41.

2003. "It's all good, but the players have to get it down. But they're really working hard at it. Can't ask more than that.'

Ware and Spencer will spend less time thinking and more time attacking in Kiffin's system. Under Rob Ryan, who was fired after two seasons, they were linebackers just as likely to be chasing receivers and tight ends as they were quarterbacks.

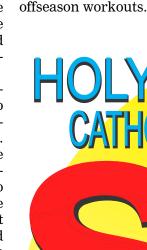

Now, Ware and Spencer will generally leave the reading to middle linebacker Sean Lee.

"Half the weight of learning stuff is gone," said Ware, who is fourth among active players with 111 career sacks and is the first to lead Dallas in each of his first seven seasons. "It's more technique stuff than anything."

Lee and Bruce Carter were inside linebackers in Ryan's scheme. They will still play alongside each other, but will see a lot less of Ware and Spencer unless the linebackers are blitzing.

"I think it's gone really well," said Lee, who missed most of last season with a toe injury. "I think they have done a good job of progressively giving us stuff to work on and take to the field. So, if you look at our defensive line and our whole defense, we have played faster and faster each week. And that's the key for us."

Dallas coach Jason Garrett said there was some installation of the defense each of the nine days of offseason workouts, then each of those days was repeated during minicamp this week. The process will start over on the first day of training camp July 21 in Oxnard, Calif.

SERIES

after defeats since Jan. 10, outscoring opponents by an average of nearly 20 points in the previous 11 victories.

Tim Duncan scored 20 points for the Spurs, who have one more game here on Sunday. They fell to 10-3 at home all-time in the finals, failing to back up their 113-77 victory in Game 3 that was the third-most lopsided score in the history of the championship series.

James insisted he would be better after shooting 7 of 21 from the field with no free throws in that game, saying he was the star and it was his job to lead his team. He was 15 of 25 on Thursday.

Wade shot 14 of 25, adding six steals, six rebounds and four assists in a performance that James compared to when Wade was MVP of the 2006 finals.

Tony Parker had 15 points and nine assists for the Spurs, who made a finals-record 163-pointers on Tuesday but got up only 16 attempts in this one.

Gary Neal scored 13 points and Danny Green had 10, solid nights but nothing like when they combined for 13 3-pointers two nights earlier.

"They play very aggressive defense," Parker said. "They gamble and they take a lot of chances, and tonight it worked."

The Heat guaranteed they will get at least one more game on their home floor. Game 6 will be Tuesday night, where they could have a chance to celebrate a second straight championship.

The Heat switched their lineup, inserting Mike Miller, who made 10 of his 11 shots, going 9 of 10 on 3-pointers, in the first three games of the series. He was scoreless on Thursday. The Heat changed uniforms, too, switching from their road reds to their blacks.

The only change they really needed was in the performances of their Big Three. James called it a "must-win" and it probably was: No team has overcome a 3-1 deficit in the finals. And the way their three stars played, they couldn't lose.

The Heat blocked shots, made stops, and flopped, occasionally playing with renewed aggression after what coach Erik Spoelstra called a "miserable" day of watching and analyzing their passive performance from Tuesday.

They still haven't lost two in a row since Jan. 8 and 10.

Parker played through a strained right hamstring, shooting 7 of 16, but the Spurs couldn't match the Heat's speed.

After the teams traded blowouts in the previous two games, momentum swung wildly in a first half that ended tied

San Antonio raced to a quick 10-point lead, fell behind by 10 with 7 minutes left in the half, then finished with an 11-2 spurt sparked by reserve Boris Diaw. Bosh drove for a dunk that came just after the buzzer, Spurs owner Peter Holt waving it off from his seat along the sideline.

He and Wade combined to make 10 of 11 shots and score 21 points in the first quarter, helping the Heat erase their early 10-point deficit to go ahead 29-26.

Popovich even lit into Duncan during a second-quarter timeout with Miami on its way to a 41-31 advantage, but the Spurs evened it by the time the teams headed to the locker room.
