Funtastic Fourth called 'a big success' this year

By ANDREIA MEDLIN

Celebrating Independence Day has been a long-standing tradition in Big Spring with Pops In The Park being the climax. The symphony playing songs of patriotism, a slide show honoring veterans and the fireworks display as the grand finale bring rave reviews each year.

To get everyone in a patriotic mood, the Funtastic Fourth has its place in the celebration. This year was the best

COAHOMA — Residents of this Howard County community are going to have the last say when it comes to Independence Day celebrations.

July 4 may be over, but patriotism will still be much in evidence Saturday when Coahoma holds its annual Freedom Day festivities.

The main event will be the Freedom Parade, featuring floats, cars and tractors festooned in their red, white and blue best, will make its way down First Street beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday

The parade will start at the Coahoma High School football stadium and proceed south on First, east on the north service road, then north on Sixth Street before ending at the city park.

Judging for this year's event will be held at the stadium parking lot, so organizers urge people to have their entries in place at the stadium parking lot and ready for display by 9:20 a.m.

Coahoma-area veterans who will be honored as parade grand marshals this year are Robert and Johnny Helm, Larry Pherigo and Bobby Sullivan.

The celebration won't end with the parade, however, as food, games and music will be featured at the city park later

July 4th saluted with fireworks, parades, parties across the land

By COLLEEN LONG
 Associated Press

NEW YORK — Extravagant displays of Fourth of July fireworks lit up the skies around the nation, including 19 single bursts in Arizona to remember the firefighters killed in a wildfire, the Statue of Liberty reopened eight months after it was shuttered by Superstorm Sandy, and President Obama urged citizens to live up to the words of the Declaration of Independence.

Four barges carrying 40,000 shells on the Hudson River on Thursday night unleashed a barrage of brilliant reds, whites and blues — some in shapes and smiley faces — as spectators marveled at the classic New York over-the-top fireworks display, snapping videos and pictures on their cellphones.

"They're awesome," said a beaming 10-year-old Johnny Deluca, of Melbourne, Fla., while watching the 25-minute show titled "It Begins with a Spark" in Manhattan with his parents, Joe and Marie.

"He wanted to see the largest fireworks show in the world so we planned our vacation specifically to see the to date, according to organizers.

"It was a big success for the Downtown Revitalization Association," said DRA Vice President Ramon Holguin.

An estimated 20,000 people attended the festivities last Friday and Saturday.

"In my three years, this was our best event to date. All the vendors did well and everybody was happy," he added.

On the heels of the success of this year's Funtastic Fourth, next year's event is already being planned.

A follow up meeting will be held in coming weeks to discuss the pros and cons of how it went this year and to formulate a plan for the 2014 festival.

show in Manhattan," added Marie Deluca.

In Arizona, a fire chief read the names of the 19 firefighters killed last weekend battling a wildfire while 19 single fireworks burst overhead.

"Less than 100 hours ago, the city of Prescott, the state of Arizona and the nation lost 19 of the best, the bravest firefighters ever dispatched into the forest," fire department division chief Don Devendorf said.

The commemorative starbursts were followed by a raucous 20-minute display choreographed to patriotic pop songs, which drew cheering, grins and shouts of "America!"

In California, at least 14 people were injured by malfunctioning fireworks at a large community park in Simi Valley. Officials say more than a dozen people were taken to area hospitals with minor to moderate injuries. No other details were immediately available.

Earlier Thursday, hundreds lined up to be among the first to board boats destined for Lady Liberty, including New Yorker Heather Leykam and her family.

"This, to us, Liberty Island, is really about a rebirth," said Leykam, whose mother's home was destroyed during the storm. "It is a sense of renewal for the city and the country. We wouldn't have missed it for the world."

Nationwide, Boston hosted its first large gathering since the marathon bombing that killed three and injured hundreds, and Philadelphia, Washington and New Orleans hosted large holiday concerts. A Civil War reenactment commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg drew as many as 40,000 people to Pennsylvania. In Arizona, sober tributes were planned for 19 firefighters who died this week battling a blaze near Yarnell. Interior Secretary Sally Jewell, speaking at the reopening of the Statue of Liberty, choked up as she told the crowd she was wearing a purple ribbon in memory of the fallen firefighters.

"Nineteen firefighters lost their lives in the line of duty, and we as a nation stand together," she said through tears.

The island was decorated with star-spangled bunting, but portions remain blocked off with large construction equipment, and the main ferry dock was boarded up. Repairs to brick walkways and docks were ongoing. But much of the work has been completed since Sandy swamped the 12-acre island in New York Harbor, and visitors were impressed.

"It's stunning, it's beautiful," said Elizabeth Bertero, 46, of California's Sonoma County. "They did a great job rebuilding. You don't really notice that anything happened."

The statue itself was unharmed, but the land took a beating. Railings broke, docks and paving stones were torn up and buildings were flooded. The storm destroyed electrical systems, sewage pumps and boilers. Hundreds of National Park Service workers from as far away as California and Alaska spent weeks cleaning mud and debris.

"It is one of the most enduring icons of America, and we pulled it off — it's open today," National Park Service Director Jonathan Jarvis said. "Welcome."

The statue was open for a single day last year — Oct. 28, the day before Sandy struck. It had been closed the previous year for security upgrades. Neighboring Ellis Island remains closed and there has been no reopening date set.

Elsewhere in New York, throngs of revelers packed Brooklyn's Coney Island to see competitive eating champ Joey Chestnut scarf down 69 hot dogs to break a world record and win the title for a seventh year at the 98th annual Nathan's Famous Fourth of July International Hot Dog Eating Contest. Sonya Thomas defended her title with nearly 37 dogs.

In his weekly radio address from Washington, Obama urged Americans to work to secure liberty and opportunity for their own children and future generations. The first family was to host U.S. servicemen and women at the White House for a cookout.

Atlanta and Alaska planned holiday runs — thousands were racing up a 3,022-foot peak in Seward. In New Orleans, the Essence Festival celebrating black culture and music kicked off along the riverfront.

The celebratory mood turned somber in Oklahoma and Maine with fatal accidents during parades. In Edmond, Okla., a boy died after being run over by a float near the end of the town's LibertyFest parade. In Bangor, Maine, the driver of a tractor in the parade was killed after the vehicle was struck by an old fire truck.

In Boston, attendance for the city's celebration appeared to be down early, but increased as the start of the festivities approached. Crowds on the Charles River Esplanade seeming smaller than in recent years, while a robust law enforcement presence greeted revelers gathering for a performance by the Boston Pops and a fireworks display.

Among those at Boston's festivities was Carlos Arredondo, the cowboy hat-wearing marathon attendee who became part of one of the indelible images of the bombings' aftermath: helping rush a badly wounded man from the scene in a wheelchair, his legs torn to pieces.

Arredondo said the July 4 celebration — an event authorities believe the bombing suspects initially planned to target — is an important milestone in the healing process, not just for him but also those who were stopping to tell him their own stories of that day.

"I think there's no better place to be," said Arredondo, wearing his cowboy hat and a "Boston Strong" shirt in the marathon's blue and yellow colors.

Kathy Concileo had staked out a nice spot for the evening's concert, near center stage. The Norwell, Mass., woman said she was surprised at the turnout.

"As much as they say we've healed and moved on, I think this shows that people are still afraid to come out in a crowd," she said.

Not everyone was welcoming the masses — Hermosa Beach, Calif., was ramping up police patrols after years of drunken and raucous behavior from revelers. Hartford, Conn., postponed fireworks because the Connecticut River was too high.

Nationwide, anti-surveillance protests cropped up in a number of cities on Independence Day with activists speaking out against recent disclosures that the National Security Agency has been secretly logging people's phone calls and Internet activity. In Philadelphia, more than 100 people marched downtown to voice their displeasure, chanting, "NSA, go away!"

But in Union Beach,

N.J., which was destroyed by Sandy, residents had something to celebrate. The working-class town won a party and fireworks contest from the television station Destination America and USA Weekend magazine.

"It's wonderful. Everyone's been so depressed," said Mary Chepulis as she watched a local band perform.

Every July 3, she and her friends and family would stand on a deck packed with people, food and coolers and watch the fireworks. Next week, she'll find out if the grant money she'll receive is enough to rebuild the home where she lived for 15 years.

Texas can afford to take better care of our kids

Texas: No. 1 in job creation and 42nd in the well-being of its children. How do you like them prickly pears?

This embarrassing verdict comes from the Annie E. Casey Foundation's annual Kids Count assessment. In fairness to Texas politicians whose public policies created the alarming conditions that led to the 42nd ranking, the foundation has an ulterior motive — the best interests of children.

To those politicians, that's code for liberal. Which says a lot about how we got here. As much as we want to pretend that public policy is just some onerous thing that we rugged individualists have to put up with while we make our livings freely and enterprisingly, it has consequences.

Such as: More than one in four Texas children live in poverty, 18 percent live in high-poverty areas, Texas is No. 2 in percentage of children without health insurance, 59 percent of children have no access to preschool and 21 percent didn't graduate from high school on schedule.

Public policymakers have focused on making Texas as business-friendly as possible by keeping taxes low and regulations lax. It seems to have worked, though the state's embarrassment of underground riches that started the current drilling boom deserves as much credit if not more.

Also, we should temper the rosy employment news by pointing out that Texas ranks third in percentage of low-wage jobs.

Texas public policy also has emphasized spending as little as possible on distractions such as public education and health care for the poor. A Kids Count official cited the Legislature's $5.4 billion cut from education in 2011 and its decision this year — a boom year for state revenue — to restore only $3.4 billion.

If it seems that children should be a priority for state government, they are — up to the moment they're born. The Legislature, at the direction of Gov. Rick Perry, has spent a goodly portion of the current special session trying to stop abortion.

Perry also refused to accept the expansion of Medicaid provided under the national health law known best by the nickname/pejorative Obamacare. That's billions of Texans' own and other states' federal tax dollars that could cover uninsured poor people in the state that leads the nation in uninsured poor people (all ages).

States have the option to decline to opt in — an unusual move because it makes no financial sense. Perry's stated justification, other than that Obamacare is an abomination, is that Medicaid is unsustainable.

True. It's unsustainable whether he takes the money or not. So why not take the money?

The answer isn't complicated. Obstructing the president gives Perry the kind of political attention he craves. Being as opposite as possible of President Obama — who has been elected president twice — is the shortest road to the presidency that Perry can see. His anti-Obamacare, anti-abortion and anti-public education policies give him the uncompromising conservative image he wants. Children are just collateral damage.

Perry doesn't do this alone. Texas voters keep electing him and other officeholders who set or maintain policies that are bad for children.

We can remain a low-tax state and still do right by our children. We're not insisting that government solve the problem. Just stop causing it.

DAILY PRAYER

Help us, dear Lord, to grow in your spirit each and every day.

Amen

Dianne Feinstein's personal stand

I feel I have an obligation to do everything I can to keep this country safe. So put that in your pipe and smoke it.”

That's how Sen. Dianne Feinstein explained her view, which is winning her buckets of liberal criticism, as a defender of the NSA program.

Edward Snowden's leaks? “An act of treason.”

She is 80 years old, and she is not pulling her punches.

Right on.

This is what politics should be about. She is not doing what most of her friends want her to do. She isn't even playing around with some kind of middle ground — some yes, I'm for security, and yes, I'm for privacy, and of course there doesn't have to be a tradeoff between the two.

Actually, there does.

I can't really say I agree with Feinstein. How could I? She chairs the Senate Intelligence Committee. She knows as much about this program — how it works, what we've learned, plots that have been thwarted — as anyone.

I don't. I know there are tradeoffs. I know the threats are real. But as for evaluating the effectiveness of this program, how can anyone who doesn't know the details do that? As for specific abuses of privacy, we don't know about that, either, with the exception of the most egregious, which is of course Snowden's abuse.

What I find so admirable about Feinstein's stand is just how nonpolitical it is.

It isn't based on a poll. A poll would never tell her to go so hard on this one. And why would she need a poll, anyway?

It has nothing to do with who has given her money in past campaigns. Liberals give her money.

I'm sure she's hearing from them. But so what?

It isn't intended to win friends. She'll still be reviled for her ardent support of gun control by many of those who agree with her on this. She's a longtime supporter of gay marriage. Feinstein is never going to be the darling of the right, and I don't think she cares two whits about that.

She is doing what she thinks is right. She is standing up because she thinks it's what's needed to protect our country.

Agree with her or disagree with her, I defy you not to smile a little on this July 4th weekend and remember that standing on principle for what a leader believes is right — throwing the usual rules of “politics” to the wind — is the essence of the miracle we call America.

That's why we want “great” men and women in public office and on the bench. Most of the time, in the run-of-the-mill vote or decision or dispute, you may not need “greatness” to pick a side. “Greatness” is not a very good predictor of how someone will do at fundraising or whether they can endure months or years of canned speeches and town halls without making a ridiculous mistake. “Greatness” is not necessarily the same thing as never having done anything in your life that you wouldn't want to go viral.

We need great men and women for important moments, when what counts is courage and conviction, when you need to risk the wrath of your friends in order to seek what you believe to be the larger good.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein has always been known for a streak of independence.

It's what makes a great senator.

It's what we celebrate with joy on the Fourth of July.

Happy holidays.

Immigration reform is DOA

As if immigration reform legislation had not already been considerably diluted when it went through the Senate last week, the House of Representatives is getting ready to dissect it so well that the whole process may turn into an autopsy.

Of course, killing any form of legislation that would consent any kind of “amnesty” to undocumented immigrants is precisely what GOP conservative extremists are seeking.

And that's why members of the GOP majority in the House already are dismissing the 68 to 32 Senate vote for the bill and threatening to come up with their own (obviously much more draconian) legislation.

Mind you, the Senate bill already would create a long and difficult pathway to citizenship that is more like an obstacle course for undocumented immigrants.

Most would have to wait at least 13 years before they could even apply for citizenship. The bill already includes border security measures that even its Senate Republican proponents classified as “almost overkill” — with some $30 billion to be spent on 700 miles of additional border fencing, aerial drones and 40,000 additional border agents.

But instead of one comprehensive reform bill, some conservative House members are seeking to pass a series of “enforcement-only” measures separately, before they even consider a path to legalization for the 11 million undocumented immigrants already living here.

That would mean that even before any law comes in to protect these people from deportation, additional laws could get them deported. Of course, since Democrats are not likely to go along with a bill that doesn't include that path to citizenship, immigration reform is DOA at the House of Representatives.

Amazingly, this is happening in the year when almost everyone had predicted that immigration reform would finally be realized. After immigration obviously figured in its election loss last November, this was the year when the RNC had pledged to fight for the Latino vote by passing comprehensive immigration reform, the year when they had allegedly received and accepted “a wake-up call” from Latinos, the year when extremist Republicans were supposedly going to restrain their hatred and become more tolerant of immigrants.

But it's not happening!

In fact, what we are likely to see and hear from the Republican-led House is a collection of draconian measures and racist wisecracks that will illustrate how far we still are from real immigration reform.

But can the GOP survive another scorning of Latino voters? Can the GOP leadership afford to be driven by extremists in their party? Is it politically expedient for many House Republicans to continue race-baiting and promoting xenophobia?

Unfortunately, the answer is yes!

While the Democrats keep warning us that such behavior is likely to keep Republicans from getting to the White House (Nancy Pelosi sounds like a broken record), the Republicans keep showing us that they don't care.

It's not winning the presidency that concerns them right now.

To many House Republicans, saving their own hides in their own conservative-gerrymandered districts is more important. In fact, many of them come from districts that are geographically carved to be so conservative that, instead of fearing challenges from the left or from pro-immigrant candidates, what they fear are challenges from the extreme right candidates and the billionaire ideologues who support them.

Why would they worry about the Latino vote in districts where that vote is insignificant? Besides, the next presidential election still is more than three years away and primary challenges for the mid-term elections are just around the corner.

Nevertheless, we hear Democrats threatening Republicans with this false ammunition about the presidency. Pelosi said Republicans should follow the Senate lead “if they ever want to win a presidential race.” New York Senator Chuck Schumer boldly predicted on a Sunday talk show that House Republicans would be pressured into accepting the Senate bill before the end of this year.

Unfortunately, the Democrats seem more eager to blame Republicans for blocking immigration reform than they are committed to fixing our broken immigration system. They seem content with winning the Latino vote by default, without doing anything to earn it, without leadership we could be proud of.

House Speaker John Boehner already has ruled out taking up the Senate bill and said the House would write its own legislation with a focus on border security. Several other GOP leaders claim there will be no pathway to citizenship. And while the Republicans keep pandering to xenophobes, the Democrats keep honoring Latino voters for the 2016 race for president.

Bottom line: Republicans still are having a hard time restraining their hatred of immigrants, and Democrats are still using immigrants only to score political points. It's very sad.

Finding contentment

Contentment — what a rare quality! It runs against the grain of our human nature. It hinders our desires and thwarts our ambitions.

It quenches our thirst for more. It even squelches our continual search for happiness. Regardless of our age or stage of life, we all seem to possess some innate demon of dissatisfaction.

We never seem to be happy with the way we look. We never accomplish all the things we intended to do. We never accumulate all the things we intended to acquire.

Driven by discontentment, we are restless seekers of the unattainable. Perhaps the words of a well-known comedian express the never-enough attitude that many of us embrace.

Woody Allen, who found success as a writer, actor, movie director, musician, and comedian, once said, "My one regret in life is that I am not someone else."

In a world where dissatisfaction reigns, to some extent, in all of us, we can identify with the actor's self-appraisal.

His words encapsulate the feelings of disappointment, inferiority, and rejection that the world dishes out to those who would taste discouragement.

Someone else will always be more successful. Someone else will always seem happier. Someone else will always win the prize.

Could it be that instead of always trying to be what we are not, we should take a serious look at reality in order to learn who we are?

The following advice comes from newspaper columnist Marilyn vos Savant: "Have enough sense to know ahead of time, when your skills will not extend to wallpapering."

Having tried my hand at hanging wallpaper a time or two, I know that it isn't as easy as it looks on HGTV. Like many of my do-it-yourself projects, my attempts at wallpapering yielded less-than-professional looking results.

Fortunately, I wasn't counting on my wallpapering skills for a sense of self-esteem or contentment with life.

In the Scripture, we are given a promise that can help us find contentment whether we can hang wallpaper or not.

The prophet Jeremiah wrote, "For I know the plans that I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans for welfare and not for calamity to give you a future and a hope" (Jeremiah 29:11).

When we accept the fact that God loves us enough to give us a future and a hope, we no longer have to strive for perfection or excessive achievement.

When we fit our desires to God's plans, contentment follows.

Generations

Some have likened history to a train. We board the train when we are born and depart when we die. But the train has been in motion long before we board and will continue its journey long after we leave. It seems to me that history is an expedition, like Lewis and Clark searching for the Northwest Passage.

BILL TINSLEY

Each generation helps chart the journey with its twists and turns, and each picks up where the other left off. Thomas Jefferson was 33 years old when he drafted the Declaration of Independence. When Jefferson and John Adams died on the 50th anniversary of July 4, their deaths marked the end of the generation we know as the founding fathers. I remember as a child when the last veteran of the Civil War died. Albert Woolson was a drummer boy in Company C of the First Minnesota. He died in 1956. At present we are witnessing the departure of what Tom Brokaw called the "greatest generation," those who lived through World War II. Five years before I was born my mother was on a picnic with my father when President Roosevelt interrupted their 1940s music to report the bombing of Pearl Harbor. She died two years ago. My uncle commanded a tank in the battle of Nuremberg in April 1945. He died in January of this year. One generation passes while another joins the journey. Some of us can recall where we were when John F. Kennedy was shot on the streets of Dallas, when Martin Luther King Jr. was killed and Robert Kennedy was gunned down in Los Angeles. Vietnam and Watergate evoke vivid memories. But the young only know these events as history. Those who are turning 13 this year were infants on 9/11/2001. They have grown up in a post 9/11 world, learning about the Twin Towers attack through stories, video and books. When God looks on humanity, he sees generations.

Following Noah's flood, God had us in mind when he said, "This is the sign of the covenant which I am making between Me and you and every living creature that is with you, for all successive generations." David sang, "Remember His covenant forever, the word which He commanded to a thousand generations." Moses' success depended on how well he encouraged Joshua, the leader of the next generation that would enter the Promised Land. Every generation is connected to the generations that went before. But, like an expedition, every generation must find its own way, and each generation must find its own faith. A few years ago I reflected on what I wanted to accomplish with my remaining years. One of those things was to encourage the younger generation to do greater things than I ever imagined. I am pleased to see that happening in many places. More people are coming to Christ every day than at any time in history. And I am finding many in their 20s and 30s who are passionate about going to the ends of the earth and living transformed lives for Christ. The world has never been a safe place. Expeditions are dangerous. We face huge obstacles and challenges, but the potential is limitless. As our generations overlap, we have opportunity to build upon the foundations of faith that others have laid and to create a heritage of faith for our children, our grandchildren and those who will follow. Bill Tinsley reflects on current events and life experience from a faith perspective. Visit www.tinsleycenter.com. ### Non-denominational Sabbath Fellowship

Now meeting at 809 Scurry, Saturday morning at 10 until 11. We planted some tomato seeds inside in April. If we had known how long it takes to reach planting size, we would have planted them in January! When a new baby is born, we are so happy. Ten little fingers, 10 little toes; two eyes, two ears and a cute little nose. Weighs 8 pounds and 6 ounces, and measures 19 inches long. However, if in 6 months, the baby still weighs 8 pounds and 6 ounces, and measures 19 inches long, we know something is drastically wrong! We expect growth. And so, with a baby Christian, we should see growth. That is why we are currently studying growth in faith and grace. Come join us and see from the scriptures how we can be what God wants us to be. Remember, what man says is unimportant; what God says is vital. For questions, call Bob Rainwater, moderator, at 432-264-9937.

As a part of the message, Brady Mikeska will share his own testimony. The service will also include special patriotic music, and congregation members will share in the Lord's Supper as well this Sunday. ### Bidding Quiz

You deal and open One Diamond with this hand:
 ♠A9♥10♦AQ852♣AQJ63

What would you bid next if partner responded with:

- One spade.
- One notrump.
- Two diamonds.
- Three diamonds.

1. Two clubs. It is true that you have 17 high-card points and excellent distribution, when you might have had 13 high-card points and less attractive distribution. It could therefore be argued that a two-club bid does not do justice to your hand, and that you should bid three clubs, forcing partner to continue bidding until a game is reached. This argument is not sound, however. The fact is that the real value of your hand depends primarily on whether partner has good support for either diamonds or clubs. You should therefore tread gingerly rather than commit your side to a game you might have no chance to make. Do not be concerned by the possibility that partner might pass two clubs. If he does, indicating a very weak hand with a preference for clubs, there's very little chance that you have missed a game.

2. Two clubs. Here partner is almost certain to have reasonable support for clubs, since he did not bid a major or support diamonds. But because his one-notrump response could be based on as little as six points, you have no right to insist on game. As before, if partner passes two clubs, it is unlikely you have missed a game.

3. Three clubs. You certainly are going to bid at least a game in diamonds, but it is also possible that you might make a slam if partner has the right hand. Three clubs (forcing) is the beginning of an effort to reach six diamonds, and you are hoping partner can cooperate by raising clubs if he has the king, or by cuebidding the ace of hearts if he has that card.

4. Four clubs. A small slam is practically certain, and all your efforts should now be devoted to reaching a grand slam. You start the ball rolling by bidding four clubs. If partner responds four hearts, showing the ace, you bid four spades, also showing the ace. If partner then bids five clubs, showing the king, you jump directly to seven diamonds, expecting partner to have at least the K-x-x-x of diamonds, the ace of hearts and the king of clubs, which should give you 13 tricks on most layouts. Of course, partner might keep signing off regardless of how many grand-slam tries you make, in which case you'll settle for a small slam in diamonds.

Tomorrow: It pays to plan the play.

Selected this year were Larry Pherigo, Bobby Sullivan, Robert Helm and Johnny Helm.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday through downtown Coahoma. Everyone is invited. Lineup begins at 9 a.m.

LARRY T. PHERIGO II

Larry T. Pherigo II was born in Snyder, Texas, on Dec. 11, 1945. He started school in Big Spring, but transferred at mid-term of first grade to Coahoma. He graduated from Coahoma High School in 1965.

He was drafted into the U.S. Army in July 1966. Larry was in the artillery division. He was stationed in Vietnam Dec. 1966 through 1967. Larry was stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., until he was discharged from the U.S. Army in June 1968.

He and wife Judy have resided in Coahoma since 1970. They have a daughter and son-in-law, Leah and Brian Gordon, who live in Big Spring and are the parents of the Pherigo's two granddaughters, Brylea and Brynlea.

ROBERT HELM

Robert Helm was born in December 1932. His family was living on a farm outside of Roscoe, Texas, when he received his draft notice. He left Roscoe and was sent to Fort Sill, Okla. He was inducted into the Army on Feb. 24, 1953, and sent to Fort Hood, Texas.

He operated a truck and delivered supplies to soldiers on maneuvers and in convoys. He was also trained to operate tanks, armored personnel carriers and other heavy equipment.

Robert also pulled his share of KP and guard duty. He was a member of the First Armored Division during the time of the Korean War.

He was honorably discharged on Feb. 25, 1955. Prior to his discharge, he married Mary Faye Gray on Nov. 26, 1954. After his discharge, the couple moved to a farm outside of Roscoe. They later lived at Lueders and Stamford.

He was able to attend Ranger Junior College because of the GI Bill. He received an associates degree.

He came to Coahoma in July 1961 and went to work in the oilfield. In 1965, he was employed by the city of Coahoma.

Robert also served as fire chief of the Coahoma Volunteer Fire Department for a few years and served as president of the Permian Basin Water Utilities Association in 1976.

Robert retired as water and wastewater superintendent in December 1994 after 29 years of service. He is the proud father of a son, Johnny and grandpa to a beautiful young granddaughter named Elizabeth.

JOHNNY HELM

SGT. BOBBY W. SULLIVAN

Sgt. Bobby W. Sullivan, armor reconnaissance specialist, was born in Odessa, Texas, to A.W. And Dora Sullivan on Jan. 12, 1950. He has a twin brother Billy Sullivan, another brother and three sisters. Wanda - Judy, Billy, Glenn and Patsy.

He recalls: "As a young child, we lived in Dimmit, Texas. Castro County farming didn't pay much so we moved to Midland, Texas. The oil field was on another boom. After that, we moved to Big Spring, Texas. Dad ran several gas stations in town. Later, we moved to Sand Springs and the Coahoma area and we have been there other than some short stays at Colorado City. We came back to Big Spring and ran Highland Texaco for my father-in-law. After talking it over with my wife, I wanted to go into the Army. My Dad was in the Army until being injured and got out at Fort Lewis, Wash. I had several civilian jobs, but always knew I would join the Army.

"Basic training was at Fort Polk, La. After basic, I was assigned to 2nd Armored Division as a mechanized infantry.

"We, at that time, had gun jeeps like the TV series Rat Patrol. Most of my military time was spent at Fort Hood with the exception of three short tours overseas. I made rank fast, became a sergeant. My jobs were Rear First Sergeant, training NCO for the 2 - 50th Infantry, training.

"I was also a squad leader and platoon sergeant. I had some interesting jobs in the Army. My favorite was as a bartender of the non-commissioned officers club at Camp Aligers in Grazinver, Germany.

"Just as my career began in the Army at Fort Hood, it ended there. I was sent back state side because my wife was ill.

News in brief

Egypt closes Gaza border crossing citing security after clashes with militants in Sinai

CAIRO (AP) — An Egyptian official says the country's border crossing with Gaza Strip in northern Sinai has been closed indefinitely, citing security concerns.

The decision comes hours after suspected Islamic militants attacked four sites in northern Sinai, targeting two military checkpoints, a police station and el-Arish airport, where military aircraft are stationed.

The military and security forces responded to the attacks. One soldier was killed and three were wounded.

Gen. Sami el-Metwali said Rafah passage was shut down on Friday. He didn't say when it would be reopened. Some 200 Palestinians were turned back to the Gaza Strip after the order.

Further job gains in June could position U.S. economy for stronger second half of 2013

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another solid month of hiring in June could signal the start of a stronger second half of the year for the U.S. economy.

Economists predict that the government will report Friday that employers added 165,000 jobs last month, roughly in line with May's increase. The unemployment rate is expected to stay at a still-high 7.6 percent.

The Labor Department will release the employment report at 8:30 a.m. EDT Friday.

The job market and the economy have proved surprisingly resilient this year. Hiring and consumer confidence have remained steady despite higher taxes and federal spending cuts.

Further job growth could lower the unemployment rate and help the economy rebound after a weak start this year. If growth accelerated and unemployment fell, the Federal Reserve might start to scale back its bond purchases before the year ends. The bond purchases have kept long-term interest rates low.

South American leaders demand apology over plane row involving Bolivia's Morales

COCHABAMBA, Bolivia (AP) — South America's leftist leaders rallied to support Bolivian President Evo Morales after his plane was rerouted amid suspicions that NSA leaker Edward Snowden was on board and demanded an apology from France, Italy, Portugal and Spain.

The presidents of Argentina, Ecuador, Suriname, Venezuela and Uruguay joined Morales in the Bolivian city of Cochabamba late Thursday to address the diplomatic row. Morales used the gathering to warn that he would close the U.S. Embassy in Bolivia if necessary.

Morales again blamed Washington for pressuring European countries to refuse to allow his plane to fly through their airspace on Tuesday, forcing it to land in Vienna, Austria, in what he called a violation of international law. He had been returning from a summit in Russia during which he had suggested he would be willing to consider a request from Snowden for asylum.

Latin American leaders were outraged by the incident, calling it a violation of national sovereignty and a slap in the face for a region that has suffered through humiliations by Europe and several U.S.-backed military coups.

"United we will defeat American imperialism. We met with the leaders of my party and they asked us for several measures and if necessary, we will close the embassy of the United States," Morales said in the city where he started his political career as a leader of coca leaf farmers. "We do not need the embassy of the United States."

Spain says it was 'told' NSA leaker Snowden was aboard Bolivian presidential plane

MADRID (AP) — Spain says it and other European countries were told that fugitive NSA leaker Edward Snowden was aboard the Bolivian presidential plane that was diverted to Austria this week, causing a diplomatic row.

Foreign Minister Jose Manuel Garcia-Margallo said Friday on Spanish National Television "they told us that the information was clear, that he was inside."

The minister did not say who supplied the information and declined to say whether he had been in contact with the United States. But he says European countries' reactions were based on this information.

Bolivia President Evo Morales claims Washington pressured European countries to deny the plane flyover permission Tuesday on suspicion that Snowden was using the flight as part of his bid to seek asylum.

Amid fireworks displays, parades and celebrations, July 4th marked by remembrances

NEW YORK (AP) — From solemn to spectacular, the nation marked its independence with the re-opening of the Statue of Liberty for the first time since Superstorm Sandy, extravagant fireworks that included a 19-burst salute to Arizona's fallen firefighters, and a musical tribute in Washington to those affected by the Boston Marathon bombing.

"I always love July Fourth and I'm very happy to be in this country, I know I'm blessed," said 15-year-old Yoana Lorenzo, who was among the millions who watched the New York City's over-the-top Fourth of July Fireworks show Thursday night. "To see all these people come together and celebrate, it's pretty great."

Four barges carrying 40,000 shells on the Hudson River unleashed a barrage of brilliant reds, whites and blues — some unleashed in shapes and smiley faces — as spectators marveled at the famed New York fireworks display.

Senior All-Stars make trek to Childress

Senior League All-Star Josh Gutierrez tags a runner out on the base path during the District 3 tourney championship game against Midland High. The 15-16-year-old team will be competing at the Sectional tourney beginning Saturday in Childress.

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

After going undefeated in the district tournament, Manager Artie Valdez's Senior League All-Stars (ages 15-16) are headed to the sectional round in Childress. It's almost four hours away and when they get there, they will play a best-of-three series against the home team — Childress.

"We're going to Childress, we're playing Childress and it's Childress umpires," Valdez, who has managed Little League teams for 10 years said. "Other than that, I have no idea what they look like or what we will be facing."

Despite the seemingly lopsided dynamic of the two-team showdown, Valdez is confident his squad will come away the victors.

"Looking at this group of kids, yeah, I expected to make it this far," he said when asked if he had anticipated a trip to sectionals. "These kids have a lot of talent, but they also have a lot of heart. I tell them to just go out there and have fun and don't quit. Just play baseball."

And Valdez has had fun coaching them.

"It's been awesome," he added. "Coming from Pony League last year where we were undefeated the whole season and now getting the opportunity to coach these guys, it's been a lot of fun. Our team is mostly Forsan kids and we have three Big Spring kids and they are working well together and having fun. That's what it's all about."

The doubleheader in Childress is slated to begin Saturday at 5 p.m., with Game Three (if necessary) set for Sunday at 2 p.m.

The winner will move on to the state tournament in San Angelo beginning July 17.

37,000 police will secure Sochi Games

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's interior minister said Friday that 37,000 police officers have been deployed to protect the 2014 Winter Games in the Black Sea resort of Sochi, repeating official assurances to make the Olympics safe despite the threat of an Islamist insurgency in the region.

Vladimir Kolokoltsev said on state Rossiya 24 television that a multi-layer security system in Sochi is fully compatible with demands of the International Olympic Committee. He added that it has proven its efficiency in test events there.

While Russia has pledged to make the games "the safest Olympics in history," security experts warn the Islamist insurgency that has spread across Russia's North Caucasus after two separatist wars in Chechnya poses daunting threats to President Vladimir Putin's pet project.

Earlier this week, a top Chechen rebel warlord called on militants to disrupt the Sochi Games, which he described as "satanic dances on the bones of our ancestors." The statement by Doku Umarov marked a reversal of his last year's order to his fighters to avoid hitting civilian targets because Russians in Moscow were taking to the streets en masse to protest against Putin.

Dagestan, which lies about 500 kilometers (300 miles) east of Sochi, has become the center of the epicenter of violence with Islamist rebels targeting police and other officials in near-daily shootings and bombings.

Beltre powers Rangers past Mariners

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Two big swings from Adrian Beltre helped the Texas Rangers snap out of their offensive funk.

The All-Star slugger went deep twice and the Rangers used a four-run seventh inning to beat the Seattle Mariners 5-4 on Thursday night.

Texas hadn't scored more than four runs in the last six games and was outscored 13-4 in losing the first two of the series against the Mariners.

Beltre hit a solo shot in the second and another in the seventh for his 24th career multihomer game. He finished with three hits and two RBIs.

"I think the last couple of days we haven't been able to get the big hit," he said. "Obviously, that's what you're looking for when you hit in the middle of the lineup. Today was a better day, even though it was late."

With Texas trailing 3-1, Beltre led off the seventh with a drive to center against Hisashi Iwakuma (7-4). A.J. Pierzynski then singled and Lance Berkman singled before Mitch Moreland bounced a tying single up the middle against Charlie Furbush.

Elvis Andrus came up with a go-ahead sacrifice fly and Ian Kinsler capped the big inning with an RBI single.

Texas manager Ron Washington said before the game that he hoped his team would improve with runners in scoring position. He eventually got his wish.

"That's exciting when you can run the bases," Washington said.

Josh Lindblom (1-2) recorded the final two outs of the seventh to pick up his first win since Aug. 31.

Raul Ibanez homered for the Mariners, belting a tiebreaking two-run shot in the seventh. It was his 12th homer in his last 28 games, lifting the total for the 41-year-old slugger to 21 for the year.

Iwakuma, who came in leading the AL in ERA, allowed four runs and five hits in six innings. The Japanese right-hander is 0-3 with a 5.54 ERA in his last four starts.

Ibanez went 4 for 5 with three RBIs and Kyle Seager added three hits for the Mariners, who were trying for their first series sweep at Texas since 2002.

The Mariners had 14 hits, but went 1 for 12 with runners in scoring position and left 13 on base.

"We've got to do better with guys on base," said Ibanez, who had his first four-hit game since June 8, 2010. "This is a place where you feel no lead is safe. When you're playing against them, you know they are going to score runs."

Ibanez hit an RBI single off Tanner Scheppers in the eighth to get Seattle within one, but Joe Nathan pitched a scoreless ninth for his 28th save in 29 chances.

Beltre led off the second with his first home run since June 9.

"(Beltre) shows up every day and he not only comes to beat the opponent," Washington said. "He battles every single day and he makes everyone around him better."

The Mariners tied it with an unearned run in the sixth.

Seager and Justin Smoak singled leading off the inning, and Seager scored on a throwing error by second baseman Kinsler, snapping Martin Perez's scoreless stretch at 16 2-3 innings.

Perez allowed an unearned run in 5 1-3 innings. The 22-year-old rookie gave up eight hits, struck out four and walked two in his fourth start of the season.

Ramirez reports to Rangers' AAA affiliate in Round Rock

ROUND ROCK, Texas (AP) — Manny Ramirez reported to the Texas Rangers' Triple-A affiliate on Thursday and said he could play as early as Sunday.

The Rangers agreed to terms on a minor league contract on Wednesday with the 41-year-old slugger, who hasn't played in the big leagues since 2011 with Tampa Bay.

Ramirez worked out with the Round Rock Express and told reporters he hopes to play Sunday or Monday.

"The expectation is to come here and play the game," Ramirez said. "Then hopefully I can move on and do what I always do."

Ramirez has twice been suspended for testing positive for banned drugs.

The 12-time All-Star was suspended 50 games in 2009 while with the Dodgers after testing positive for a banned drug.

He retired in April 2010 of serving a 100-game ban for a second positive test, but later agreed to a reduced 50-game suspension and played in the minors for Oakland in 2012.

"You have to go through the fire first," Ramirez said. "When you come out, that's when the blessing comes."

A lifetime .312 hitter, Ramirez is 14th on the career home runs list with 555. He hit 17 homers in the final 53 games of 2008 after Boston traded him to Los Angeles, but he has just 28 since then because of injuries and the suspensions.

He was 1 for 17 without a homer for the Rays when the second drug suspension hit two years ago.

"It will be interesting to see if he can help this team win," Rangers outfielder David Murphy said. "From what I've seen in the past, it's hard to believe that he can't help us."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Gemini Moon of Discussion

The Gemini moon suggests that you have something to discuss, and she has advice about your approach. Establishing common ground upfront will help your message land softly. State your observations instead of your evaluation of a situation. Make mention of your feelings. The Cancer sun promises to exude an empathetic vibration.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). When are you going to get the chance to do what you love again? You know, that thing that sends exuberance buzzing through your body as more of a sensation than an emotion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You have the gift of seeing the complete picture of who people are. You appreciate beautiful people, but if someone proves unkind or thoughtless, beauty drains quickly from view.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The group needs you now. You'll protect the defenseless, balance the energy of intense people, tend to the lonely and serve the helpless. You'll also detect ulterior motives and be on guard against abuses of power.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're talented, but you don't want others to think of you only in this way. You identify more strongly with your common heritage of being a friend, a family member and a human than with your specialness of being a gifted person.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Being around someone who loves you can be a treat. You can feel the energy of that love, and you bask in it. Of course, sometimes it's too much. Like most treats, it's better enjoyed in small doses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Offer your opponent nothing to resist, and they cannot react against you. But what if the opponent is inside you, a persistent voice feeding you lies and misinformation? Ignoring it could make it go away.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). If you insist on only one way of proceeding, you will eventually come to a wall and be stopped. So don't be obstinate. Be open to new solutions, and you'll avoid the impasse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Ask any babysitter, and they'll tell you that what seems like an emergency to a child is but a passing annoyance to a more seasoned individual. In the course of this day, you will play both roles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You want to feel firmly in control, but of course that won't work in the context of a relationship. Sharing with another person means letting go of some of that control. Unless you trust the other person, it's very uncomfortable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). There is satisfaction to be mined from small gains. But you have to be willing to accept the gift. A winning attitude will include tracking and celebrating the minor advancements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're moving quickly through the landscape today. When one vista loses its mystique, you are on to the next view. Will it be more beautiful than the last? Maybe not, but it doesn't matter. It will be new.

Dear Margo: Oatmeal cookies for brains

Dear Margo: My problem is probably not the biggest one in your inbox, but I am hoping you can help. My husband and I are in our mid-20s and expecting our fifth child in a few months. Both our age and the size of our family elicit constant comments.

Complete strangers, thinking they are funny, ask if we realize how it happens so we can avoid it in the future. Or they'll ask whether we think we might be "done." I have been scolded for not using birth control in the grocery store checkout line, told I am selfish and irresponsible, and even once asked by someone at a restaurant how we could afford to feed so many children!

Last time I took all the kids to get new shoes, the checkout girl suggested one of us get

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Is it cynical to think that no one cares what you can do because they only care what you can do for them? Maybe. But it's also practical to understand this piece of human nature. You'll turn it to your advantage.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 5). You'll build relationships slowly, step by step, which is perfect, so don't become impatient. A friendship that solidifies this month leads to August adventure. Someone likes the way your mind works and pays you well for it in September. Step in and save the day for family in October. December and February bring money luck. Pisces and Aries people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 1, 22, 38 and 18.
© 2013 CREATORS.COM

"fixed"! Most people don't stop after their initial comments, either. They want to know about my husband's profession, our house, our car, our ages (since apparently we both look like babies ourselves), you name it.

We are young and successful and have made a conscious decision to have a large family because that is what we want. Why do people think this is any of their business? What can I say to these people to make them go away? — My Family Is Just the Way I Like It!

Dear My: It is remarkable that some people (and strangers, no less) think whatever they wish to know is their business. I am a firm believer in putting people in their places when they've overstepped the bounds of propriety. I also believe that every question does not warrant an answer.

Your situation reminds me of when, years ago, while food shopping in California, I was wearing a joke T-shirt that said, "Nuke the gay whales." I was stunned when people actually came up to me and started to pick fights about my being pro-nuclear, homophobic or against marine mammals!

All I could think of to say to these morons was, "It's a JOKE." This answer will not work for you, but the point is: Do not worry about being pleasant.

However you want to close them down is just fine. Even, "I really think the whole subject is none of your business." — Margo, huffily

Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life

Dear Margo: My best friend and I have known each other for 13 years. Seven years ago, I moved across the country, while still keeping in touch with her, and our relationship was great. Just this past year, my husband and I moved back to our home state and again live in the same town as my best friend.

Since I've been back, I have made several efforts to maintain our relationship, while she, on the other hand, has made excuses for not getting together.

She hardly calls me, and her emails are usually short. I was confused by her behavior, because I always thought we had stayed good friends and thought we would just pick up where we were before I moved.

I did email her once about our relationship and asked whether I did something wrong. Her reply was pretty nonchalant, saying she's been busy with work, etc. I know that if she truly cared about our relationship, she would make the effort to maintain it. But the problem is, I care for this person and feel I deserve an explanation. What do you think? — Confused and Hurt in the Midwest

Dear Con: Your situation falls into the same category as a couple who is dating, and one person loses interest and, for whatever reason, never comes up with an explanation.

This woman clearly is not going to give you what you want — an answer — so just chalk it up to the fact that maybe your "best friend" is fickle. Or maybe she made another "best friend." Or "out of sight, out of mind." Don't make yourself nuts with what happened. It happened. Onward. — Margo, acceptingly

This Date In History

Today is Friday, July 5, the 186th day of 2013. There are 179 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 5, 1943, the Battle of Kursk began during World War II as German forces attacked a Soviet salient (or bulge) around the Russian city of Kursk; in the weeks that followed, the Soviets were able to repeatedly repel the Germans, who eventually withdrew in defeat.

On this date:

In 1687, Isaac Newton first published his Principia Mathematica, a three-volume work setting out his mathematical principles of natural philosophy.

In 1811, Venezuela became the first South American country to declare independence from Spain.

In 1865, William Booth founded the Salvation Army in London.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the National Labor Relations Act.

In 1946, the bikini, created by Louis Reard (ray-AHRD), was modeled by Micheline Bernardini during a poolside fashion show in Paris.

In 1947, Larry Doby made his debut with the Cleveland Indians, becoming the first black player in the American League.

In 1948, Britain's National Health Service Act went into effect, providing government-financed medical and dental care.

In 1954, Elvis Presley's first commercial recording session took place at Sun Records in Memphis, Tenn.; the song he recorded was "That's All Right (Mama)."

NHL's Seguin, Eriksson highlight 7-player deal

DALLAS (AP) — Tyler Seguin is headed to the Dallas Stars in a trade less than a week after Boston's general manager criticized the former No. 2 overall pick as needing to be a "better pro."

Seguin was sent to the Stars on Thursday in a seven-player deal also highlighted by steady forward Loui Eriksson joining the Eastern Conference-champion Bruins.

Dallas got forward Rich Peverley and defenseman Ryan Button, while the Bruins acquired forwards Matt Fraser and Reilly Smith, and defenseman Joe Morrow.

It was the first major move for new Stars general manager Jim Nill, who addressed the team's need at center with Seguin, the No. 2 pick in 2010, and Peverley. The trade will allow Dallas' leading scorer, Jamie Benn, to move to his more natural spot at wing.

"Tyler is a dynamic player that will be a part of our core group for a long time to come," Nill said.

Seguin won the Stanley Cup with the Bruins as a rookie and was their leading scorer and an All-Star a year later. He dropped to a tie for third on the team in scoring during this past season's run to the Stanley Cup finals. Boston lost to Chicago in six games.

At the draft last weekend, Bruins general manager Peter Chiarelli essentially said that Seguin wasn't focused enough on hockey, although he made it sound like the 21-year-old would be back by saying he was expecting "big things from him."

Instead, the Bruins have added Dallas' second-leading scorer in Eriksson, a 2011 All-Star who turns 28 this month. He and Ray Whitney were second to Benn with 29 points.

Seguin leads all players from the 2010 draft class in games played (203) and is third in goals (56), assists (65) and points (121). Peverley is viewed as a No. 2 center who is strong in the faceoff circle, while Button will join a veteran blue line that recently added 39-year-old Sergei Gonchar on a two-year, $10 million contract.

Rays outlast Houston for 7-5 win in 11

HOUSTON (AP) — Tampa Bay manager Joe Maddon has talked often about how Yunel Escobar deserves All-Star consideration for his stellar play at shortstop this season.

The defensive stand-out showed on Thursday that he also can be a force on offense.

Escobar tied a season high by driving in three runs, including a tie-breaking double in the 11th inning that sent the Rays to a 7-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

Escobar and Desmond Jennings each doubled twice and singled, helping Tampa Bay win for the fifth time in six games.

"I'm just going out there trying to play the game and have fun," he said. "This is the first time in my career that I really feel like I'm having fun and I can be myself. I'm enjoying playing the game."

Brett Wallace homered twice for the Astros.

Jose Lobaton walked to start the 11th and moved to second on a passed ball by Jason Castro. Escobar then doubled into the right-field corner off Josh Fields (0-1).

Escobar advanced on Desmond Jennings' fly ball to right and came home on a wild pitch by Wesley Wright.

Jamey Wright (2-1) pitched a scoreless 10th for the win and Fernando Rodney finished for his 18th save.

Wallace hit a three-run shot in the eighth inning, tying it at 5 with his second homer of the game. The Rays had just grabbed the lead with three runs in the top half, including a two-run double by Escobar.

"(It) was an emotional roller coaster," Astros manager Bo Porter said. "To give up the three and fall behind and then come back the next inning and have (Wallace) hit the big three-run homer, you really just want to build off that momentum and end it right there if you can."

Evan Longoria had a run-scoring groundout in the first for Tampa Bay, and Escobar came on home on Jordan Lyles' wild pitch in the seventh, tying it at 2.

Wallace hit a solo homer in the fourth, and Jake Elmore had a sacrifice fly in the fifth for the Astros.

Elmore sparked Houston's rally in the eighth with a leadoff walk. Jose Altuve then singled before Wallace drove a 1-2 pitch from Joel Peralta over the wall in right for his third homer since he rejoined the Astros from Triple-A last week.

Escobar had the big blow in the top half of the inning, a long two-run double that landed on Tal's Hill in straight-away center field. Brandon Barnes appeared to have a shot to bring it in, but tripped and fell running up the hill.

"How about Escobar? How far was that ball hit to center field?" Maddon said. "You don't see that play anywhere else in baseball, but their center fielder did a nice job. He went after that ball really, really well. I thought he had a chance and the hill got him."

Action Zone sports facility opening in Abilene

Abilene Reporter-News

Action Zone, a new sports training/rehab facility in Abilene on Cottonwood Street, isn't open yet.

But an observer Tuesday wouldn't know that, with the facility sporting around 300 people of all ages at the Colt McCoy camp there.

Ideally, said Martin Caddell, Action Zone's director, it's a vision of a busy future to come.

The new, roughly 20,000-square-foot construction, set to open in late July, according to its website, features a variety of sports training, rehabilitation and fitness programs, many of the latter crafted with families in mind, Caddell said.

The facility features 50 yards by 22 yards of indoor turf, a 50-meter indoor sprint track with indoor pole-vaulting capabilities, full-court volleyball, half-court basketball, and more than 3,500 square feet for heavy weight training.

Outside, there's also a 110-meter, three-lane sprint outdoor sprint track and a 120-yard regulation football field, Caddell said.

An indoor exercise area features machines of all types, including special exercise bikes designed to lean left and right while one is pedaling, allowing for a greater variety of muscle groups to be worked.

Caddell said, two of Action Zone's most prominent areas, would include "skill development for young kids, third to eighth grade," and sports-specific strength and conditioning for high school students.

But "unlike most places that do those type of things, we're also going to offer programs for moms and dads at exactly the same time that those programs are going on," he said. "... Things like spin classes, yoga classes, other aerobic activity-type classes."

The business also wants to provide a safe environment for children of all ages to experience activities such as seven-on-seven football, he said.

Among the offerings are low-impact cardio workouts, weight training, a martial arts-based class, a dance class, yoga and Pilates, a special class for active, mature adults, and the "Action Ryde" class, featuring the aforementioned special bikes.

"Your kids can be doing an activity while you're doing something else," Bustos said. "It's going to allow more opportunities for families to get conditioned together and to have a healthy lifestyle as a family."

Action Zone is a separate entity created by Abilene Bone & Joint physicians Shannon Cooke, David Stark, Jeremy Britten, Derek Padon and Paul Watts.

ers who are accused of staging the Boston Marathon bombings, spent six months last year in Dagestan.

Russian investigators have been trying to determine whether he had contact with local Islamic militants.

Kolokoltsev didn't refer to Umarov's statement or talk about the Islamist insurgency in his televised comments, but he vowed that the Sochi Games will be better protected than the Boston Marathon.

"As for the sad experience with the Boston event, I think our efforts and readiness can't be compared to that," he said. "We are getting ready at the maximum level."

The Interior Ministry's branch in southern Russia said that one of its officers was killed and another three were wounded Thursday in southern Chechnya when they stepped on landmines left by the militants whom they were trying to pursue in southern Chechnya. It said that additional forces were sent to the area to continue the search.

On Thursday, Nikolai Patrushev, the head of Russia's presidential Security Council, said that special services of several other nations will closely cooperate with Russian security agencies to protect the Sochi Games.
