Holiday prompts closings locally

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer

There will be very little laboring on Labor Day for area municipal and education employees.

In observance of Labor Day, most municipal and county offices will be closed Monday, officials said.

The City of Big Spring will close all offices, including the landfill, on Monday, and there will be no sanitation pickup, according to a news release from City Manager Todd Darden.

Emergency services (police, fire and ambulance) will continue normal operations and the On-Call Emergency Utilities Department can be contacted at 264-2392.

Likewise, all Howard County non-emergency offices will be closed Monday, officials said.

Normal city and county operations will resume Tuesday.

All Howard County public school districts will be closed Monday, as will Howard College. Classes resume Tuesday morning, officials said.

The Big Spring Herald business office will be closed Monday.

New programs to assist students and teachers

By ANDREIA MEDLIN
 Staff Writer

Incentives for both students and teachers was the theme during Thursday's brief Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees meeting.

Several items were discussed and approved. The first item on the agenda featured new programs both for students and BSISD employees.

"The Greater Big Spring Rotary is furnishing a bicycle," said Ken McIntosh, pastor of First Christian Church and

Big Spring ISD board member. "One for a boy and one for a girl who has perfect attendance each semester."

A drawing will be held and one boy's name and one girl's name will be drawn. Each student will then be awarded a bike.

McIntosh also presented an idea for a discount program intended to benefit area teachers.

State road panel to hear about proposed road cuts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Transportation Commission is to hear testimony about a proposal to shift the burden for maintaining urban highways to local governments. The five-member panel is to hear that testimony Thursday.

The Texas Department of Transportation wants cities and counties to take over the repair burden for nearly 1,900 miles of urban highways in 59 cities. It also wants to convert 83 miles of state highways in some oil-field areas from asphalt to gravel.

TxDOT Executive Director

Phil Wilson says the proposals would cut the department budget by $165 million. He says the commission won't make its final decision Thursday.

Democratic State Rep. Ruth

McClendon of San Antonio says many Democrats see as the Republican-controlled Legislature avoiding the need to raise state taxes by making heavily Democratic urban areas pay.

Discount cards have been approved for all school employees, including Forsan and Coahoma as well as Big Spring.

"The program is being sponsored by 30 local businesses," said McIntosh. "There will be 900 cards distributed and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is footing the bill for the cards. The cards will feature the logo of each school district.

"We support our teachers and want to help them stretch their dollars," said McIntosh. "The punch cards will give the holder a 10 percent discount at each business. New cards will be issued in the spring, giving the school district employees a double discount, per se."

Enrollment at Big Spring High School has seen an increase of more than 100 students, making the current total 4,056.

"We expect there will be more after Labor Day," said Interim Superintendent Chris Wigginton. "And probably more in the spring."

Trustees also approved the 2013-2014 budget, which includes a deficit of $816,000 and a tax rate of $1.4495.

A raise was given to auxiliary staff over the summer with the intention of increasing benefits for teachers, leading to a discussion about the expense of the Affordable Care Act and the impact it is having on the purse strings of the teaching staff.

"It's costing more because of the fear of moving forward and the aging population," explained Jarry Fulgram, superintendent's secretary. "Employees will be paying $60 a month more."

The meeting concluded with recommendations for employment. A teaching position for third grade at Marcy Elementary and one for a theater arts teacher at the junior high were approved.

Some lines can't be crossed

There have to be lines. We are not in the business of regime change. We cannot be the world's police. There are civil wars we won't stop, abusive leaders we won't depose, corrupt governments we will decline to see as such.

But there have to be some things that even the worst and most abusive leaders cannot do with impunity, and using chemical weapons against their own people has to be one of them.

It's obviously not about numbers, because there are other ways and other means, and dead is dead, and sadly, innocent civilians are frequent targets in the many wars in the world that we don't and can't stop.

The irony of the current situation is that it is the military — and especially Joint Chiefs Chairman Gen. Martin Dempsey — that has been very reluctant, hesitant and downright against American military involvement in Syria. Indeed, Sen. John McCain went so far (too far) as to suggest that Dempsey and the president are at fault for signaling to Syrian President Bashar al-Assad that he could get away with this.

I don't think any such signal was given.

If others do, that is all the more reason why the line must be drawn.

Why are there certain weapons that must not be used? It is like the child's question at Passover. There are many detailed answers out there right now, but the shortest one is because a civilized world must mean something. Human life must have value.

And responsibility means something.

It is August in California, the last week before school starts. Who wants to think about this?

What has always astonished me about the newspapers from the 1930s is just how much information there is on the front pages about Hitler, tucked right in with the weather and sports.

Assad has the world's attention. He may or may not get away with this — and possibly for reasons having nothing to do with us and about which we can do nothing. We are not, after all, in the regime change business. Drawing lines in the sand is another matter.

Few things are as disturbing to watch as an anti-American demonstration in some city across the globe. And it is clear, you can see and hear, that they hate us — you and me, our families and our faiths, we who try so hard, so many of us, to be generous and tolerant and fair. And this, as my mother would ask, is what we get for it?

The United States will not be more popular with those who hate us if we stand up for what is right. They won't see it that way.

The world won't be safer. Iran is threatening that if we attack they'll attack Israel, and Israelis are trying on gas masks, and by the way, what about Egypt?

Obama almost certainly will be attacked at home from all directions, as he usually is these days, for doing too little and too much, too soon and too late, for trying to find some balance in debates, which increasingly lack any at all.

So what? I keep thinking about the young American men and women, somewhere in the world, who will be sending out the message loud and clear that there are some lines that cannot be crossed with impunity, some rules that even lawless regimes must follow, and that somebody, somewhere, actually does give a damn.

Godspeed to them.

OUR VIEW

Enroll now in Leadership

Employers: If you are not familiar with Leadership Big Spring then you need to educate yourself. Basically, it's a program whereby individuals — your employees — learn about the ins and outs of local government, educational resources, economic development, major industries (including farming and ranching) and the arts.

It makes them more Big Spring savvy and more confident in their day to day relationships with others. Translation: Your employee understands what attracts business, is more knowledgeable about the community itself and more prepared to meet the challenges facing your clientele.

It's a nine-month process, but you'll lose your employee only nine days — once a month — over the course of the program. Each month on the second Tuesday, your employee will be getting a full day of education, along with up to 24 other "classmates." The group will sit in on a city council session, commissioners court or school board meeting, tour places such as the Big Spring Refinery and sit down with a tax appraiser, a fireman, policeman, health-care specialist or an educator. They'll pause for lunch, of course, but not for long.

Tuition is $400 for Big Spring Chamber of Commerce members — sponsor of the program — or $600 for non members. That is a small price to pay to give your employee the polish he or she needs for success. And to make your business more successful, too.

The first day of the program begins Sept. 12 but applications must be in by 3 p.m. Thursday. Class size is 25. Applications are available at the Chamber, and can be faxed (432-264-9111) or e-mailed (debbyev@bigspringchamber.com) to those who are interested. For more information, contact the Chamber at 432-263-7641.

Give your business the boost it needs. Enroll an employee. Better yet, enroll yourself.

The Latino vote is very divided

They are marching in all the Hispanic parades, having their photos taken with every brown face they can find, waving Latin American flags, trying to speak Spanish, buying time and space on Spanish media and kissing Latino babies! But what are the New York City mayoral candidates actually saying to Latinos?

Very little! They acknowledge that Latinos will be close to a quarter of the voters in the Sept. 10 primary, and this voting bloc has the potential to "pick the next mayor."

But you hear little substance in their rhetoric. You don't see the attention to Latino issues that we have seen in past New York City elections. And you don't see candidates feeling any pressure to deal with those issues.

Don't get me wrong. At least cosmetically, some of the candidates occasionally push the right Latino buttons by superficially mentioning immigration, education, housing, health care, "stop and frisk" police detentions, etc. But there is no depth, nothing substantial, no promises you can trust.

"Latinos are 29 percent of the population and more than 42 percent of the poor people in the city are Latinos, and no one is talking about that," says Angelo Falcon, one of many community activists who would like to see more substance from the nine candidates seeking to replace outgoing Mayor Michael Bloomberg.

Polls say the Latino vote is divided among the top three or four contenders for the Democratic primary, and that their power as a voting bloc is thus likely to be diluted. Some analysts conclude this is happening because Latinos "don't have a horse in this race." Since neither of the two Latino candidates in the race have a good chance of winning, they find it logical that Latinos would be divided between several of the leading non-Latino candidates.

But others say Latinos could be much stronger if they stood together as a voting bloc, instead of being divided — often by their own leaders.

"None of these (leading) candidates are Latinos. So who decides what the Hispanic issues are?" asked Lucia Gomez, another community activist. "I would put a lot of the responsibility on us. Where are all these organizations that are supposed to be advocating on behalf of Latinos?"

Gomez and Falcon are just two of many activists who believe their own Latino elected officials and organizations have failed their community.

"Remember the old days when somebody would always try to put together some sort of a Latino agenda?" Falcon asked rhetorically.

"Well, this time there hasn't even been an attempt. No one has even tried to do it."

And the reason, he said, is because many Latino politicians are more faithful to their alliances with other politicians than to their own community.

Instead of getting together to prepare a Latino agenda and pressure the mayoral candidates to deal with Latino issues before they endorse one of the candidates, they prematurely jump on some candidate's bandwagon, begin to divide their own community between the candidates and end up diluting the strength that Latinos could have as a voting bloc.

As a result, instead of the Latino community telling the candidates what our issues are, we depend on the candidates and their Hispanic hacks to tell us what issues should be important to Latinos. Of course, they usually pick whatever issues suit their own political agenda, instead of the ones Latinos really care about.

"There are Latinos who are major players in each camp," Gomez said. "But as a community, I think we have really missed the boat in coming forward and saying, 'this is our collective vision of our community.' We just haven't been able to do that."

Bottom line: The Latino vote is very divided because their leadership is also very divided — not based on the best interest of their community, but on their own political alliances and favors owed.

"We've gotten to the point that our Latino community has digressed in our power base," Gomez said, "because all of a sudden we have Latino elected officials and Latinos in certain positions of power, and we presume that we are being taken care of. But the reality is that the only thing that is being taken care of are those individuals themselves and the interests they represent, which many times will be tied to the candidates they are endorsing."

It's sad. But in New York City, where one might think that having more Latino elected officials would mean more attention to Latino issues, it is those officials who are dividing the community and diluting its political power.

"No one wants to talk about the failed role of Latino leaders," Falcon said. "But what you have is these players behind the scene who basically manipulate the process for their own personal gain, and the loser is the community."

Let the master carver do the whittling

Help! I'm being bombarded with advice.

Every time I turn on the TV or access the internet I'm inundated with things to do or not to do to make my life better. There are articles and commercials about what everybody should eat and others about what nobody should eat. There are diets to lower weight, cholesterol, inflammation, blood sugar and blood pressure. But there are also eye-catching recipes for pies, cakes, cobblers and cookies - all guaranteed to be lip-licking good.

Anytime I sit down to scroll or click for a few minutes, I get overwhelmed with the dos and don'ts of the financial world and the taboos and must-haves of the fashion industry. The constant lineup of new kitchen gadgets, exercise machines and cleaning products makes me feel outdated, inefficient and lethargic. There must be something wrong with me, if I'm still wearing the same old clothes and using the same old-fashioned mop. But how can I ever comply with the financial gurus if I spend all my money on gadgets, quick-fix exercise machines and trendy clothes.

Out of this bubbling caldron of conflicting counsel, I did recently manage to dip up a quote worthy of consideration. Charles Schwab, an American businessman noted for his financial accomplishments, once said, "A man who trims himself to suit everybody will soon whittle himself away."

While trimming our outsides may sound appealing to many of us, trimming the whole man or woman may be dangerous. Trimming without discretion cuts away the good fruit as well as the bad. When we try to eliminate the flaws in our lives using the world's cutting blade, we risk destroying something that God may have intended for our good. Perhaps the wiser choice would be to change counselors instead of cutting away our perceived defects.

In an address to His disciples, Jesus said, "No one can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth" (Matthew 6:24 NASB).

When God is our master, we don't need to whittle away at ourselves in order to fit the world's image of perfection. We just need to let the master carver do the whittling as He sees the need.

Cancer Moon Break

This week already has brought us a Grand Cross, a close encounter with Neptune, a fiery sign change for Mars and a quincunx. That's why today's gift is such a pleasure: the gift of feeling right at home. The moon moves into Cancer, the sign of domesticity, issuing an invitation to take a breather. Kick back and relax.

HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You can get approximately the same hamburger on three out of four corners of the main thoroughfare. In cases where the differences are minimal, you'll find it so hard to choose that you're likely not to choose anything at all.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Don't take anything too personally now. Instead, focus on what needs to change to get a desired result. This is likely to start with a resolution to think positively and take the action steps to support those thoughts.

GEMINI (May

21-June 21). You have an advantage in competitive environments because you don't do what the other competitors are doing. You remember or discover your own strengths and lead with those.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Unfortunately, many people are self-involved and myopic. That's why when you meet a like-minded curious and observant type, as you will today, it's important to make the effort to befriend that person.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The person who is making everyone laugh may be doing so intentionally for the financial benefit. As one Greek tragedian said, "It is a profitable thing, if one is wise, to seem foolish." — Aeschylus

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Important decisions are on the docket. You're not interested in the choice that seems like the best one to everyone around. You want the solution that actually is the best because it's the right fit for you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You could do it alone, but that would be stealing someone's chance to help you. Giving you their help will raise their self-esteem, skill level and commitment to your relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Consider that the person who is less than friendly toward you may be under an enormous amount of pressure. Lead the way with your love, compassion and patience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You may feel torn between your need to keep things moving and your desire to be nice. Consider issuing a gracious invitation for someone to join you on your way to another destination.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When you make people laugh, you create such a positive feeling for all involved that you want to repeat it over and over. Alas, the laws of comedy dictate that it's only really funny the first time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You have a very unobtrusive way of getting information. Your best lead will answer the question that starts out: Do you know anyone who might have some ideas about...?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Your cosmic gift of the day is poise. Your actions will be graceful; your gestures, well received. You could really take advantage of this by taking a social risk or going dancing.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Aug. 30). You'll enjoy a degree of fame this year. You may have to cope with people whose interests are opposed to your own, but this is part of what makes you stand out favorably in September. October shows you successfully representing your talent and the talent of others. December and May will be your biggest financial months. Aries and Libra people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 49, 29, 4 and 35.

WEEKEND LOVE FORECAST: ARIES: You'll have a fantastic time without necessarily knowing what you're doing. TAURUS: A relationship that is quick on the uptake may go downhill just as quickly. Pace yourself. GEMINI: Words will lose meaning if you say too many of them or express the same ones over and over. CANCER: Your wires of communication will get crossed with delightful results. It's like you can do no wrong with your love. LEO: You will somehow alleviate emotional problems without bringing them to the surface. You'll heal with your forgiving heart.

VIRGO: You'll make someone's dream come true in a very basic way. LIBRA: You'll show your love that you can pursue goals and still have fun at the same time. SCORPIO: You like attention, but you hate to be controlled. If the attention comes with strings attached, you'll sever them. SAGITTARIUS: Use imagery to explain how you feel about your love. You're capable of creating truly beautiful mental pictures. CAPRICORN: You'll build your love's self-esteem with your tenderness and encouragement. AQUARIUS: You deserve to be appreciated. PISCES: The one you don't see very much will drop out of mind -- and maybe that's a good thing.

COUPLE OF THE WEEKEND: Cancer and Virgo are an excellent fit this weekend, as the moon goes home to Cancer and the sun shines in Virgo territory. These two will want to stick close and do projects together. What they build collectively will be more important to them than the affection they pass back and forth between each other. Together, they'll be a strong force in the world. Apart, they'll miss each other like crazy. © 2013 CREATORS.COM

Dear Annie: My grandchildren are 6 and 3. My brother has a step-grandson, also age 6, from his wife's daughter.

Two years ago, at my eldest grandchild's birthday party, my brother and his wife brought this step-grandson along. He was not invited because he is an unruly child. He has a mild form of autism. Then his grandmother became upset when my daughter didn't provide a goody bag for him. My daughter had made enough only for those kids who were invited. My brother's wife then said, "Make sure to have enough for next year."

The following year, my daughter a kind person, prepared an extra goody bag, even though the boy was not invited. He showed up anyway. This year, when my granddaughter had her birthday party, she did not invite any extended family members in order to avoid having this boy in attendance.

The younger child's birthday is coming up. Is there any way to stop my brother and his wife from bringing this 6-year-old with them? We know the boy has problems, and we've tried the "open arms" approach, but it always backfires. The boy acts out and ruins the party for the rest of the children. Any advice? — Not Unsympathetic

Dear Not: We understand that you don't want a disruptive child coming to these parties uninvited. But a 6-year-old boy on the autism spectrum can be a handful, and his grandmother undoubtedly doesn't want him excluded from family functions. The boy is 6. It will take some time before he can learn to socialize in a more acceptable manner. We know it's asking a lot for you to be accommodating, but please try. Perhaps your daughter would consider having a party for her child's friends, followed later by a cake-and-ice-cream celebration for family members. The family will tolerate the boy's behavior better, and the schedule of events will allow the boy to arrive after the other children have left.

Bufs top Bulldogs in opener

For 2nd straight year, Forsan edges Coahoma by 3 points in Midland

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

MIDLAND — For the second year, Howard County rivals Coahoma and Forsan met at Grande Communications Stadium to kick off the football season statewide at the ASCO Football Madness event.

The Bulldogs outgained the Buffaloes on the ground by more than 140 yards and played more effective defense than CHS Coach Trey Gardner expected, but it was Forsan — with a lot of help from special teams — which came away the victor after a 17-14 bout. It's also the second year the Buffs upended the scrappy Bulldogs by a mere three points.

"It was good," FHS Coach Jason Phillips said. "It went the way we thought it would. We knew they would run the ball and we would have to establish our running game. The defense played well. It was a good battle. The big defense was definitely special teams. We work on them a lot in practice and hopefully, some of that came through. We ended up with great field position. We had two or three touchbacks and we tackled one returner at about the 18. Of course, our punt coverage team scored. But offensively and defensively, it was close between the two teams. (Coahoma) probably did a better job than we did on offense and defense."

Scoreless after the opening quarter, Forsan's Trevor Williams kicked a 33-yard field goal 1:40 into the second stanza to take a 3-point lead.

"We're blessed, being a 1A school to have someone like Trevor Williams, he's definitely a weapon," Phillips explained. "It was a good day for special teams. The field goal was big for us. We didn't play great, but we fought hard and came back to win. Some younger kids really stepped up."

Lot of balls in air for Texas Tech-SMU opener

DALLAS (AP) — Like his coach, SMU quarterback Garrett Gilbert laughed when presented with the question of whether he'd take the over or under on the Mustangs and Texas Tech combining to throw at least 80 passes in their season opener.

"It's going to be a lot," said Gilbert, who better make sure he warms up his arm.

When they play at 7:05 tonight, the Mustangs will debut an offense that is a meshing of coach June Jones' "Run and Shoot" with the "Air Raid" philosophy of new passing game coordinator Hal Mumme.

Kliff Kingsbury, the former Texas Tech quarterback, makes his head coaching debut at his alma mater. He threw for 12,429 yards and 95 touchdowns in 43 games with the Red Raiders, and his big-yardage ode isn't much different as a coach. He was Texas A&M's offensive coordinator last season with Heisman Trophy-winning freshman quarterback Johnny Manziel.

"I think he'll come out throwing and we'll come out throwing," Jones said of Kingsbury. "So it will be a lot (of passes). It will be a long game."

Gilbert played in a BCS national championship game for Texas before transferring to SMU for his final two seasons.

With presumptive first-time starter sophomore Michael Brewer dealing with a back issue, Kingsbury will send one of two true freshmen out with the first-team offense, a first for the Red Raiders in a season opener. They are one of only eight schools nationally without a quarterback on the roster that has some starting experience, so it will be either Davis Webb or walk-on Baker Mayfield at the helm.

"You don't want them to think too much. It's still playing the game," Kingsbury said. "It's still football. It's going to move around a little faster, but we try to get all these guys a bunch of reps, and I think they'll be ready to go."

Here are five things to watch when Texas Tech and SMU play:

COORDINATING CHANGES: Matt Wallerstedt is the fifth defensive coordinator in five seasons at Texas Tech. He was the linebackers coach at Texas A&M before leaving with Kingsbury for Lubbock. Wallerstedt had been the defensive coordinator at Wyoming, North Alabama and Air Force. The Mustangs assistant head coach and passing game coordinator. Mumme and Jones have led some of the most prolific passing offenses in college football — and now they're together. Mumme's offense is known for stretching the field horizontally and Jones has generally gotten down the field vertically.

RED RAIDER DOMINANCE: Texas Tech has won 14 consecutive games when the former SWC rivals have played, a streak that dates to 1989 when they were still in the same league. The Red Raiders lead the overall series 32-16. The Red Raiders have won the last five times they have played SMU in a season opener, by an average margin of four touchdowns. All of those are since 2003.

FRIDAY NIGHT LIGHTS: The last time Texas Tech played a regular season game on a Friday was Sept. 27, 2002, when Kingsbury was the Red Raiders quarterback. He completed 41 of 59 passes for 407 yards and six touchdowns in a 49-0 second consecutive Friday game since that was the day of the week of their Meineke Car Care Bowl victory to end last season. SMU last played Friday games in 2010, when the Mustangs lost to TCU and East Carolina.

NEW LEAGUE: SMU kicks off its first season as a member of the American Athletic Conference, made up of the football-playing schools that were left when the basketball-only schools in the Big East left and kept that name. Being in the new league and with a non-conference schedule that also includes road games at seventh-ranked Texas A&M and 20th-ranked TCU, the only opponent the Mustangs play that isn't from an automatic-qualifying BCS conference is Montana State in their next game.

Houston narrowly loses to Seattle, 3-2

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros pulled within one in the fifth inning, and that was as close as it would get.

Their lineup just stalled.

Brett Wallace homered, but the Astros failed to get a hit against three Seattle relievers and lost 3-2 to the Mariners on Thursday night.

"Their bullpen did a good job," Houston manager Bo Porter said. "We had some opportunities, and we didn't do a good job of situational hitting."

Nick Franklin put Seattle on top with a one-out solo homer off Jordan Lyles (6-7) in the first inning. Franklin Gutierrez added a two-run shot in the fourth, helping the Mariners stop a six-game slide.

Seattle starter Erasmo Ramirez (5-1) tied a season high with seven strikeouts in 5 2-3 innings. He allowed two runs and five hits.

Yoervis Medina struck out three in 1 1-3 perfect innings before Danny Farquhar threw a scoreless ninth for his 10th save.

Jason Castro had an RBI double in the fourth and Wallace connected in the fifth, but that was it for Houston, which has dropped three in a row.

Lyles allowed four hits, struck out four and walked two in six innings.

"The stuff wasn't there throughout the game," Lyles said. "They put some really good swings on some pitches. My ball wasn't getting that downward action like I am used to, and a good offensive team will make you pay."

Raul Ibanez reached on a leadoff single in the fourth and Gutierrez went deep with one out, hitting a drive to left to push Seattle's lead to 3-0. The oft-injured outfielder has seven homers in just 73 at-bats this season.

Ramirez sailed through the first three innings, including striking out the side in the third. L.J. Hoes got Houston's first hit with a single to start the fourth before Castro's one-out double sent him home.

Wallace opened Houston's fifth with a drive to right-center that cut Seattle's lead to 3-2. Ramirez shaken up a bit with two outs in that inning when he took a comebacker to his foot on a single by Robbie Grossman. He was checked out by trainers and threw a few warmup pitches before retiring Hoes to end the inning.

Jose Altuve doubled with no outs in the sixth inning and Ramirez left after he issued a walk to Chris Carter. Charlie Furbush then retired Wallace to end the inning.

"We had a few opportunities to get some runs there," Wallace said. "In those situations, you have to do everything you can to try to get the guys in. They made some good pitches when they had to. A couple opportunities that we left out there and those are the ones that you can't give away."

Lyles retired eight of the last nine batters he faced after the homer by Gutierrez, with the only baserunner coming when Justin Smoak reached on an error by right fielder Hoes with two outs in the sixth.

Medina threw a perfect eighth inning, including striking out the last two batters. He ended the inning when he caught Castro looking with an 85 mph curveball. Castro threw his bat in disgust after the call.

Lyles last started on Friday, but got the last out of Houston's win over the Chicago White Sox on Monday for his first career save.

Kevin Chapman followed Lyles with 2 1-3 scoreless innings. He hasn't allowed an earned run in his first 12 major league appearances.

This Date In History

Today is Friday, Aug. 30, the 242nd day of 2013. There are 123 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On August 30, 1983, Guion S. Bluford Jr. became the first black American astronaut to travel in space as he blasted off aboard the Challenger.

On this date:

In 1861, Union Gen. John C. Fremont instituted martial law in Missouri and declared slaves there to be free. (However, Fremont's emancipation order was countermanded by President Abraham Lincoln.)

In 1862, Confederate forces won victories against the Union at the Second Battle of Bull Run in Manassas, Va., and the Battle of Richmond in Kentucky.

In 1905, Ty Cobb made his major-league debut as a player for the Detroit Tigers, hitting a double in his first at-bat in a game against the New York Highlanders. (The Tigers won, 5-3.)

In 1941, during World War II, German forces approaching Leningrad cut off the remaining rail line out of the city.

In 1945, Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Japan to set up Allied occupation headquarters.

In 1963, the "Hot Line" communications link between Washington and Moscow went into operation.

In 1967, the Senate confirmed the appointment of Thurgood Marshall as the first black justice on the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1986, Soviet authorities arrested Nicholas Daniloff, a correspondent for U.S. News and World Report, as a spy a week after American officials arrested Gennadiy Zakharov, a Soviet employee of the United Nations, on espionage charges in New York. (Both men were later released.)

In 1987, a redesigned space shuttle booster, created in the wake of the Challenger disaster, roared into life in its first full-scale test-firing near Brigham City, Utah.

In 1991, Azerbaijan (ah-zur-by-JAHN) declared its independence, joining the stampede of republics seeking to secede from the Soviet Union.

In 1993, "The Late Show with David Letterman" premiered on CBS-TV.

In 1997, Americans received word of the car crash in Paris that claimed the lives of Princess Diana, Dodi Fayed and their driver, Henri Paul. (Because of the time difference, it was Aug. 31 where the crash occurred.)

Today's Birthdays: Actor Bill Daily is 86. Actress Elizabeth Ashley is 74. Actor Ben Jones is 72. Cartoonist R. Crumb is 70. Olympic gold medal skier Jean-Claude Killy is 70. Actress Peggy Lipton is 66. Comedian Lewis Black is 65. Actor Timothy Bottoms is 62. Actor David Paymer is 59.

Ian Park and Brennan Darden stepped up on defense and made some big plays.”

Coahoma answered back, marching down the field to score a touchdown on a three-yard run by newcomer Paul Cortez, who proved to be an effective tandem in the backfield with fellow sophomore Kylor Franks, who rushed for 127, while Cortez added 72.

“Our kids played hard,” Gardner said of his team. “Even at the end. They took the ball down the field and they wanted to win. Defensively, we played much better than the weeks before. They improved offensively. There’s still a lot to work on, but I told the kids I can’t

With seconds remaining in the half, Forsan quarterback Zane Sanders hit Williams for a 27-yard pass and six more points, with Williams kicking the point after, making it a 10-7 affair with 22 seconds left on the clock.

“Zane did a great job,” Phillips said. “He made some good passes, but he also stayed in the pocket and waited for receivers to come open.”

Franks and Cortez worked in conjunction with junior QB Braxton Iden to sustain a third quarter drive which culminated in a one-yard rushing TD by Cortez to put the Bulldogs back on top. For the second time in the game, Joe Melendez kicked a valid point after, giving Coahoma a 14-10 lead.

The pivotal score came on a botched punt by Coahoma which landed in FHS sophomore Kaleb Stanley’s arms at about the four-yard line. Stanley promptly took it to the end zone to make it a 17-14 game.

One thing Gardner can always hang his hat on is effort. Despite the plethora of rookie mistakes the young Bulldogs made, they never lied down.

On the next drive, Coahoma took the ball to the Buffaloes’ nine-yard line when it appeared Franks stepped out of bounds after a pass, but the clock kept running. CHS senior Caige Miller — who is dealing with an ongoing injury — went down in the end zone, which could have ended the game right there, as the injury occurred within 10 seconds of time expiring. Iden spiked the ball in an effort to stop the clock, but time had expired, much to the chagrin of Coahoma fans.

Gardner, after the heat of the moment settled, realized he had forgotten about a new rule implemented this season — if there is less than three seconds on the clock, the play in action is the last. Iden’s spike officially counted as the end of the play — as well as the game.

“It was my fault,” Gardner explained. “They have instituted a rule this year that you can’t spike a ball with three seconds on the clock. I thought we were out of bounds, but they didn’t see it that way. But when Caige went down in the end zone, that could have ended it there.”

Coahoma made its share of mistakes throughout the afternoon, but Gardner was pleased overall.

“We have some things to work on,” Gardner said. “I know we’re young, but we’re a running football team, we have to give the QB more time to get the ball off. But the offensive line has improved. We looked tremendously better than we did two weeks ago at Jim Ned. Defensively, we tackled so much better. The kids were much more physical. We ran the ball hard. Those two sophomores — Franks and Cortez — they’re going to be OK. Garrett parish did pretty good on defense considering he’s playing with partially torn ACL. Joe Melendez was good, we knew we’d have to rely on him and Braxton is going to be a solid player. We had an opportunity to win. Hopefully, we’ll learn from this.”

Phillips hopes his squad can take the momentum of the big win into the season, while Gardner hopes his team can continue to improve week-to-week as they have thus far.

“Anytime you win the first game, it gives you momentum going into the season,” Phillips added. “It’s always nice to be 1-0 and beating Coahoma makes it that much better. Both teams played very well. It was a fun game and fortunately, we were able to come out on top.”

Two Coahoma players — Miller and newcomer Christian Van Wey — went down with injuries. Gardner said he is unsure if either player will miss time.

The Bulldogs welcome Coleman next Friday at 7:30 p.m., while Forsan plays host to Plains.
