Commissioners ready to approve tax rate, budget

■ 10:30 a.m. Monday, Howard County Courthouse.

VOLUME 108, NUMBER 278

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners are expected to give final approval to the budget for the coming fiscal year when they meet at 10:30 a.m. Monday on the third floor of the county courthouse. Commissioners will hold a public hearing on the new budget and tax rate during the meeting, then are expected to vote on approval of the budget. The tax rate will be formally adopted Sept. 23.

The proposed county budget will feature several new including expenditures, $500,000 to pay the county's share of costs for a new landfill and an increase of more than $240,000 to help pay for ambulance services.

FISD trustees will consider 2 homes for extra-duty staff

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

FORSAN — School trustees here will consider purchasing housing for school personnel when they hold their monthly meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the administration wing board room.

Forsan Independent School

District currently provides "extremely" low-rent homes for extra-duty personnel — coaches, band directors and other teachers who spend a lot of extra time on campus. Now, the school board will explore the possibility of adding two more homes to the list.

Superintendent Randy Johnson said trustees recently requested proposals for two three-bedroom premanufactured homes and will examine the replies during Monday's meeting. Johnson said providing the homes to the extra-duty staff has been an effective way to attract extra-duty personnel to the district. "The general idea is that we've used it as a recruiting tool," he said. "Here, we've been able to use the houses in part to recruit and retain some really good folks and that we not be limited to only local folks who rent — that we're able to go outside the area to attract people. Johnson said the district charges the personnel "extremely low rent" for the homes, although tenants must pay for their utilities. Only two proposals have been received by the district, so Johnson was hesitant to predict what action the board will take. "We'll open the proposals and consider them ... and then see if those satisfy the board or if we'll wait until we receive more proposals," he said. Also Monday, trustees will hear an update on planning for more than $23 million in construction projects, including a new elementary campus and extensive renovations at the secondary building.

Howard College President, Dr. Cheryl Sparks, center, presents a complimentary gift to Julie and Derrick Tennant following their inspirational and humorous Healthy Woman program Thursday evening. The brother and sister team travel the country sharing their message of hope and inspiration titled "The Love Chromosome."

Love was in the air at the Dorothy Garret Coliseum Thursday night.

"The Love Chromosome," sponsored by the Healthy Women Foundation Speaker Series, in partnership with Scenic Mountain Medical Center's Healthy Woman program, featured motivational speaker Derrick Tennant and his sister. Julie.

'The series has been very successful," said Howard College President Dr. Cheryl Sparks. "It has gained a following. I see a lot of familiar faces here tonight."

The series spotlights people who have overcome obstacles in their lives and have had some measure of success.

Derrick, stand up comedian and sometime magician, has himself overcome many obstacles. At a young age he was already a gifted athlete and was progressing in his dreams for a career in sports when one evening in 1985 he went to sleep but did not wake up for three days. He had undergone what doctors would later term "random bleeding from point 'x' for an unknown reason." Completely paralyzed and in a coma, Derrick underwent brain surgery from which he became paralyzed on the left side of his body. After years of therapy, he was able to relearn simple tasks such as walking, talking and simple daily tasks like tying his shoes. He never fully regained the use of his left arm and he walks with a limp. In 1993, he played basketball overseas competitively and with only one arm and one leg. "You should have seen me when I had two," he quipped.

Now, with the help of his sister Julie who has overcome her own obstacles, he travels the country giving inspirational speeches. He credits his recovery to what he refers to as, "One simple thing" — love. "Love is the answer to everything,' Derrick said. Derrick said that receiving love from his family, his friends, and God — combined with learning to better demonstrate love in the midst of difficulty — were essential to his survival. "Putting others needs in front of your own needs," Derrick explained. "Julie taught me how to do that." Derrick's stage presence exuded charm and wit. Much See HOPE, Page 3A

I decided it was time to do something about it. Fortunately, our second hand store downtown had just started accepting magazines. I took two stacks of them down. It was just the beginning of a purge of unused and unwanted items. Usually when people start a big cleaning job they start with an area that no visitor ever sees, like a closet.

I started with a desk drawer.

I emptied it into a plastic storage box. I discovered I had at least two dozen pens and that many pencils. Plus candy, gum, rulers, scissors, magnifying glasses, scratch pads, business cards, paper clips, rubber bands and other stuff. I started taking things out of the storage box and putting the essential things back in the drawer. I threw away more than half the items that were in the drawer originally. My wife was in the process of organizing some of our family photos. For some reason I went to an old file cabinet in a seldom used closet and pulled out an old briefcase. I thought I might find some old photos in it, since that's where I had put some of my parents' legal papers.

I didn't find any photos, but I found a little sandwich bag that had some old coins and bills in it. I took the bag to my wife and we started looking at its contents. We were surprised to find silver dollars, half dollars, some Indian head pennies, V nickels and some coins that dated back to 1866. The more we looked, the more curious we became. I have never collected coins, but I may start now. When I was growing up, every time we'd visit my grandparents, my grandfather would give me either a silver dollar or a 50-cent piece. Of course I don't know where those coins are today. My grandfather had a meat market and grocery store and handled lots of coins. So did my father, who was also in the grocery business.

When we got married, my dad gave us a bag of silver coins, the real stuff. Rather than put them up for safekeeping, we put them in a bowl in a living room bookcase and used out of it to buy incidentals. Not too smart. Some of the one-dollar bills in the bag have an interesting history, like the 1928 funnyback dollar, the first effort by the U.S. treasury to standardize design and size of dollar bills.

The treasury wanted to streamline currency for the Roaring Twenties. The 1928 series red seal one-dollar bill was not printed until 1933 and didn't get released for circulation until 1948. To make things even stranger, when the bills were finally released into circulation, Puerto Rico was chosen as the location of distribution.

Research indicated 1.8 million of the one-year design notes were printed and the first 4,000 were snatched up by collectors, many buying packs of 100 consecutive notes.

Some of those packs are occasionally still available fully

An uncirculated 1928 series funnyback red seal one-dollar bill can bring more than $1,000. It is a relic of he Jazz Age and is popular with collectors. Interesting stuff. I may have to do some more cleaning up around the place.

Recycling?

TO THE EDITOR:

In regards to our landfill problem I urge Mayor McLellan and our City Council to create curb side recycling. My friends in Houston have a weekly curb side recycle pickup and often only have remaining trash enough for pickup once every three weeks. Think of the space saved in our landfill with those figures!

Channel 7 News reported Friday (9-6-2013) that the current policy of raising the fee for the use of the landfill reduced the 140 tons to 125 tons daily. With a curb side recycle our landfill would have many years added to its life. Large area recycle bins would not be effective as some have little or no means to access them (we are considered a retirement community) or we have unfortunately those who would misuse the large bins and put all hough football is "gorilla big" in Texas, headlines splashed atop sports pages heralding the 2013 season had little to do with action on the field — particularly the collegiate and pro much" against the "have little," almost always results in lop-sided victories on the shameful side of overkill. My head always tilts when I read winning scores in the 60s and 70s. In such games, losers' scores are zero, or very near. These are the games that deserve "zero week" distinction. Would that collegiate, professional and high school football brain trusts tear a page from the six-man football rule book. With a higher value on sportsmanship and common sense than polls and rankings, these teams "go to the house" when leading by at least 45 points at the half—or later. (Oh, I guess the bands can go ahead with half-time shows, thus sending fans home with slightly sweeter tastes in their mouths.) At pro and collegiate games where tickets often fetch high into three digits, fans might question the cost-per-entertainment-minute if sent home at half-time. Hunters, however, are not deterred when pressed pound of game yielded in bird or deer hunts.

Recent pro headlines center on thousands of retirees claiming major NFL injuries.

Imagine an NFL scrooge brows twitching and eyes narrowing - raging, "If those guys think they can milk the NFL for millions, they'd better get their heads examined."

Well, the claimants did exactly that. And they're now in the market for milking machines. All this in light of the league's agreement to make things right, starting with a distribution of $765 million and more likely to Quarterbacks are again in sharp focus, but so far, most "news" involves items other than yards gained, passes thrown or other exploits associated with the QB position. Tim Tebow, Heisman Trophy winner who played four years at the University of Florida, endeared himself to much of America with on-the-field play and the kind of humility worthy of emulation.

At the pro level, though, he has experienced limited success. He has now been traded or cut by three teams. Head held high, Tebow has expressed thanks for the opportunities and moved on. He continues to wear well with most fans, and may eventually make his mark at some position other than quarterback.... Perhaps too much is expected of the current Heisman honoree, Johnny Manziel.

Oh, he's getting plenty of "pub," albeit too much of it for the wrong reasons.

With the honor going to the winner at age 19 — unprecedented in previous Heisman balloting — he's had chances to wander from the "straight and narrow" — at every hand and every hour.

The Shakespearean quote says much: "Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown." My hunch is that Manziel is marking days off the calendar until NFL draft time. I wish him and the Aggies well, but fear the worst. Distractions poison and Coach Kevin Sumlin, handling matters with good judgment and courage, has made it clear what he will NOT tolerate. I believe the coach is a "class act."

Interestingly (and most sentences beginning with this word aren't), the NCAA dragged its feet for weeks before handing down a one-half game suspension to "Johnny Football" for what was described as an "inadvertent" transgression. It took Sumlin only a few seconds to bench him for almost one quarter following what he viewed as an "advertent" one.

WhoIt's story time. A pitifully poor football team wound up with a 0-10 season. An opposing coach, trying to console the losing mentor, confessed that the backs "tipped their plays" throughout the season. "We always knew who was going to carry the ball," he claimed.

"How could you possibly know that?" the beaten-down coach questioned. "It's really simple — before each snap, one of your backs is as white as a sheet, and the other three are giggling."

U.S. Rep. Randy Neugebauer reads a question submitted by someone in the audience during his Town Hall "Listening" tour held at Howard College recently. The Congressman answered questions on a variety of topics, including Syria, gun control and education.

Federal court: Texas can use existing voting maps in 2014

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)
— A federal court said
Friday it will not delay Texas' primary elections and ordered the state to use political maps drawn by the Legislature — but only temporarily, while the judges sort out a complex and possibly precedentsetting lawsuit.

The three-judge panel in San Antonio gave both sides in the lawsuit over Texas' voting maps reason to claim victory. The court will not draw its own map for the 2014 elections, as civil rights groups wanted, but it also did not throw out the lawsuit completely, as Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott requested.

The court order, signed by all three judges, also allows the civil rights and minority groups to argue that all changes to Texas election law should be reviewed by federal authorities before they can be implemented. The Justice Department has sought to intervene in the case after a recent Supreme Court decision requiring Congress to make changes to the Voting Rights Act.

The fundamental issue of the lawsuit, filed in 2011, is whether the Legislature illegally drew political maps that intentionally diminish the voting power of minorities in Texas. Abbott's office has argued in court papers that Republicans who control the Legislature drew maps to boost the chances of their party — which is legal — and that if minorities who predominantly Democratic are hurt as a result, that does not constitute a civil rights violation.

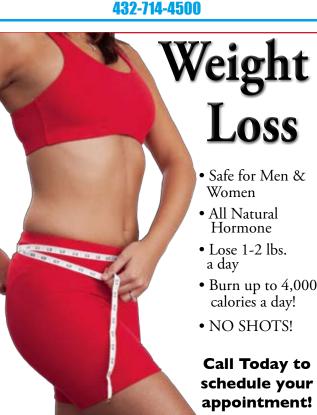

That argument could eventually put this case before the U.S. Supreme Court. The court threw out the maps the Legislature drew in 2011 and, in a separate case, a federal court in Washington ruled that the Legislature intentionally discriminated against minorities in drawing them. The San Antonio court drew temporary maps and delayed the 2012 primary elections by five months. Abbott advised the Legislature to formally adopt the court's maps in 2013, even though minority groups say they are still discriminatory.

The judges said Friday that those maps will be used for the 2014 election so that it can go on as scheduled, but the court reserved the right to change them once the lawsuit is finally decided, probably next year.

A wise man once said, "Life is like a box of chocolates. You never know what you're gonna get." Technically, it was his mother instilling a little wisdom on her son, and boxes of chocolate usually come with a diagram, but we all understood the sentiment.

This weekend's Life cover is a little bit like Mrs. Gump's metaphorical box of chocolates — a little bit of what went on this past week. But instead of candy, a somewhat of a hodgepodge of pictures that didn't make the cut for one reason or another will grace the page.

We at the Herald hope you enjoy this little montage and, who knows, maybe you or someone you know will make it into our little 'box of chocolates.'

Marj Carpenter just returned from the National Federation of Press Women Conference in Salt Lake City where she was a speaker at one of the banquets in the three-day meeting.

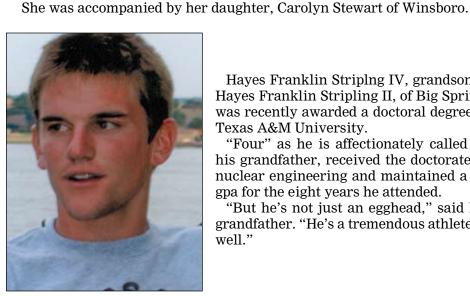

Other speakers included Heloise of "Hints from Heloise" and members of the Marie/ Donnie Osmond family. Marj was honored at the rehearsal of the Latter Day Saints Choir as the former moderator of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A.

She also was honored by the Texas branch of the national journalists on her 87th birthday. A memorial service honored members who had died during the year, including Helen Thomas of the national press corporation, a friend of Marj's.

The federation was celebrating its 75th year and a book came out on the first 40 years written by a reporter from Chicago.

One chapter honored Marj. She was credited with saving the organization in the early

Cotton harvest fast, furious on Gulf Coast

COLLEGE STATION — From the Gulf Coast to Dallas, cotton harvesting. or preparations for it, were going "fast and furious," according to a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service expert.

"There's going to be a lot of cotton coming out of these fields in a fairly compressed period compared to most years," said Dr. Gaylon Morgan, AgriLife Extension statewide cotton specialist, College Station.

In the Upper Gulf Coast, the cotton harvest actually started a couple of weeks ago, but was delayed by rain. However, now the harvesting has actively resumed, Morgan said.

Did you know that the electronic NASDAQ stock market shut down last Thursday for a few hours, suddenly, after a "connectivity issue" prevented the dissemination of quotes and trade prices? Unless you were tuned in to one of the financial networks during the day or happened to catch the brief mention on the evening news it could have easily been a day or two until you heard what happened.

Just be glad the outage occurred in August when trading desks in Europe are empty and those on our domestic shores are sparsely populated. Also be very happy the glitch did not occur during a high-volume market selloff. As it was, even those of us who try to divine the direction of the stock market on a daily basis could barely see any affect at all. The S&P 500 traded in a narrow range and volume dried up for a few hours but other than that it was difficult to tell anything was going on.

The situation would have almost certainly been much worse if the breakdown occurred during a day of meaningful market selloff or on a high-volume volatile day with a large degree of back and forth trading action. As we have seen in the past, when investors are not able to execute trades due to mechanical malfunction or a lack of two-way quotes, bad things usually happen.

But given the low volume trading we normally see in August, the conversation surrounding the NASDAQ glitch has quickly faded, at least in the media. Let's hope that behind the scenes, exchange officials are huddling and trying to figure out exactly what went wrong and how to minimize any future impact when another malfunction occurs. And you can bet that another one will occur at some point. Any system in place will never be 100 percent fool proof whether controlled by humans or computers.

We could make the argument that most retail investors should not be overly concerned. And we would probably be right. We want our clients focused on the longer term, building wealth over time and not getting bogged down in the day-today noise affecting the markets. But certainly, those investors who have more of a short term mentality and have stop loss orders placed and trading positions need to be more concerned.

High Frequency Trading (HFT) is especially a cause for concern during periods of market malfunction due to the shear volume that is being pushed through the market in a short period of time. And regulators are paying attention. HFT has been blamed for everything from increased volatility in the overall market to pricing disruptions in individual equity issues over the last couple of years. But, once again, most retail investors should not be overly alarmed. But they do need to be aware that execution systems can and do occasionally break down. And they will continue to do so in the future. Fortunately, the effects are usually short lived. Big emphasis on "usually."

Retail investors need to have confidence that the markets will function in an orderly manner the vast majority of the time. They need to know exchange officials have their back. No system works 100 percent of the time but the recent communication breakdown should be a wakeup call that work still needs to be done.

Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Why fewer working-age Americans are working WASHINGTON (AP) — The drop in the unemployment rate in August to a 4½-year low was hardly cause for celebration. The rate fell because more people stopped looking for work.

More than 300,000 people were no longer working or looking for a job. Their exodus shrank the so-called labor force participation rate — the percentage of adult Americans with a job or seeking one — to 63.2 percent. It's the lowest participation rate since August 1978.

Once people without a job stop looking for one, the government no longer counts them as unemployed. That's why the unemployment rate dropped to 7.3 percent in August from 7.4 percent in July even though 115,000 fewer people said they had jobs.

If those who left the labor force last month had still been looking for work, the August.

unemployment rate would have risen to 7.5 percent in "Pretty disappointing," said Beth Ann Bovino, U.S. chief economist at Standard & Poor's Ratings Services. "You saw more people leave the job market and fewer people get jobs. Not a good sign."

Women's participation fell modestly through the mid-2000s — then dropped sharply from late 2009 through 2013. Women's participation rate was 57 percent last month, down from a peak of 60 percent in 2000. For men, the participation rate fell last month to just below 70 percent — its lowest point on records dating to in 1949 at 87 percent and has declined gradually in the de cades since. In a 2011 report, the Congres sional Budget Office noted that the recent drop in wom en's participation was par ticularly steep among those with dependent children and well-educated women mar ried to high-earning men.

Men's participation peaked

"In many cases, we have tropical storms or fall weather bringing more precipitation into the Upper Gulf Coast and Blacklands, but we haven't had that this year, which has been great for timely harvest and should also keep the fiber quality up," he said.

South Plains and Rolling Plains cotton - at least that which is irrigated - has made progress, thanks to warmer weather, said Morgan.

"Increased heat units the past couple of weeks have allowed the crop to catch up on maturity," he said. "The bad news, they haven't had much moisture."

In the Rolling Plains, the crop has been late but has looked pretty good most of the summer, but the dryland could use more moisture, he said.

Dear Margo: Of headlines and nosy people

Unfortunately, a family member was the perpetrator of a bizarre and unsettling crime.

Our familial tie is not immediate, as we do not share the same name. But because the i event received a great deal of notoriety, it was not long before even the most casual acquaintance made the connection and wanted to know whether so-and-so is really my family member.

I don't mind that. What is uncomfortable is when the person then waits for me to share my feelings.

Well, how I feel, be it embarrassment, anger, shock, shame, grief or confusion, is no one's business.

When I am confronted in Could you help me with a response that acknowledges the family link but politely distances me from the events that I know nothing about? Thanks. — E.R.

Dear E.: People sometimes say dumb things or ask inappropriate questions because they simply are not thinking or are rattled.

I have done it. In your situation, you might respond that X is a distant relative with whom you've had infrequent contact.

Mercury on the Move

Mercury shows up at three different house parties this month: one hosted by Virgo, one by Libra and finally one by Scorpio. It's the last day of the Virgo party, which is less like a raging social soiree and more like a retail event selling organizational tools for the adventures ahead. Seize the chance to get organized before the next social ARIES (March 21-April 19). Wishing you were someone other than who you are is a form of selfrejection that can only hold you back today. It's better to spend your time working with your strengths and playing to your talents.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). This is the kind of day in which older Taurus people lament the innocent, aimless, meandering youth that's behind them, while younger ones fantasize about the freedoms of adult life. GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Wanting to be your best is an admirable desire, and yet there is a point at which constant improvement may be a form of self-rejection. Take a break from improving, and like yourself "as is."

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There's a fine line between the heavy load that builds your muscles and the one that injures you. Let the good people around you help you out and keep you from taking on too

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're not in a mood to conform, but doing one thing that everyone else is doing will put you on a treadmill of social expectation. Remember that this is not a trap. You can step off and do your own thing at any moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Just because someone asks you for answers doesn't mean you have to provide them. In fact, you could be doing someone a disservice by answering their question and robbing them of one of life's mysteries.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The human mind loves a pattern. The first step in a new direction seems illogical to the onlookers and may be met with protest. But keep on the path, and everyone will start to deal with the new pattern.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Everyone has different social tolerances. Some people are likely to speak more candidly in groups, and this may be uncomfortable. But it's better than a closed-off environment where no one grows.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). As disgruntled as you may be in dealing with red tape and bureaucracy, it would be an even bigger ordeal to start your own country. So if you can manage to laugh it off, do so as often as possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You need more pleasure in your life. These days your tastes are unpredictable even to you, so be sure to try the different and unlikely options available to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Maybe you're just being picky, but when it comes to romantic relationships, you'd like to know the real person and not the person that person thinks you want to see.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The answers are not upstairs in the attic of your mind. So don't even bother climbing up there. The answers are easily observed in the world around you, though you'll have to slow down to bear witness.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Sept. 8). What you learn about people in the next six weeks will enhance your relationships ever after. Balancing work and play will be challenging now because all you want to do is play. October brings a more industrious mood. Big profits rain down in December. January features a new relationship. Pisces and Sagittarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 30, 1, 28, 43 and 48. FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: As Mercury leaves Virgo, he admits that he may have been a bit hard on us in this critical part of the sky. Trying hard and doing our best are part of the Virgo ethic. But the shift of Mercury into Libra poses another way of approaching things. When life tries to qualify you to fit a certain role, it is human nature to want to fill that role. But that is not the only option. What if you went for superhuman status instead by disqualifying yourself from the role-playing game altogether? Accept yourself for who you are, flaws and all. This helps you to accept other people, and with increased tolerance, life gets easier for everyone.

Venus will enter Scorpio on Tuesday, Sept. 10, and will spend four weeks in this deep and soulful sign. It won't be an easy time for love, but it will be a memorable one. Increased sensitivity to feelings - our own and those of others -- could cause us to react in surprising ways. When strong emotions are aroused, drama ensues. The trick is to stay positive and focus on what's going right.

But it's also true that your opponents, who are entitled to know as much about your methods as you do.

can occasionally put this knowledge to deadly use against you. Consider today's case where declarer profited greatly from information acquired during both the bidding and play. East, playing 13 to 15point opening notrumps, bid one notrump, after which North-South quickly got to four hearts.

West led a spade, and East's ten queen of trumps, taken by East with the ace. East then played the king of clubs, queen of spades and ace of clubs in that order. South ruffed, cashed the jack of trumps, ruffed a spade in dummy and was then faced with the critical problem of which way to take the two-way diamond

You might think that declarer would assume that East, who had opened one notrump, must have the diamond queen and would finesse accordingly. But South did not fall into this trap. East had already shown up with the Q-J-10 of spades, ace of hearts and A-K of clubs — a total of 14 points. Declarer was thus able to deduce that East could not have the queen of diamonds for his 13 to 15-point notrump opening.

South therefore took the diamond finesse through West, and as a result made four hearts. East had unintentionally let the cat out of the bag by innocently opening with one

Steers overwhelmed by Mustangs

Two-time defending state champs avenge 2012 loss to Big Spring

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

MIDLAND — The first couple of possessions of Friday's 38-3 loss against Midland Christian had all the makings of a dogfight. s

Both offenses marched down the field in their opening drives, but only three points were put on the board when Big Spring's Devin Roberson put a 41-yard field goal through the uprights to draw first

The Mustangs' drive was foiled at the four-yard line when Chris Lindem sacked MC quarterback Mason McClendon on its final down.

Unfortunately for the Steers, the Mustangs proved why they are two-time defending state champions at the TAPPS 4A level for the remainder of the McClendon answered in the second quarter, throwing a 16-yard touchdown followed by an extra point to give the Mustangs a 7-3 lead.

"They were as good as advertised," Ritchey said of his opponent. "We were hoping to learn from it and we did. That's what it will take to have a strong team in district. We didn't want to get too high on ourselves if we won or too low on ourselves if we

Big Spring had a chance to go up on MC during its second possession when QB Tobyn Tannehill picked up 22 yards on a keeper and freshmen power back Preston Alexander chewed up the turf with a series of hard-fought rushes. With fourth down and six yards to go, Tannehill missed receiver Tate Kennedy, ending the promising drive at the Mustang 35. Capitalizing, MC added another TD, increasing its lead to 14-3.

The next Steer drive was led by Tannehill and Alexander and culminated in a 45-yard field goal

Forsan QB Zane Sanders hands the ball off to Kolby Self during Friday's 28-0 win over the Plains Cowboys.

Forsan blanks Plains

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

FORSAN—Agooddefensiveshowing in the opener against Coahoma gave way to a great defensive showing Friday against Plains as the Buffaloes defeated the Rangers 28-0 to improve to 2-0 on the season.

The return of Ausden Medrano and Covan Davidson helped bolster the victory on both sides of the ball and halftime adjustments allowed Forsan's offense to take control and keep it for the duration of the game.

"We were a bit shaky offensively the first half," said FHS Head Coach Jason Phillips. "But the defense was great. They were great all night. We struggled with penalties on the offensive side. We'd move the ball, then get a holding call, or we'd move the ball and jump off sides — I think we had 10 penalties for 100 yards. We made some halftime adjustments that the kids really responded to. Offensively, we came back out and had a much better second half."

Forsan's Kolby Self

impressive showing, contributing three-of-four touchdowns for the Buffs, two by way of rushing and one after a reception. Self amassed 213 total yards. Quarterback Zane Sanders was 7-13 with 140 yards and Clayton Galloway — who caught a TD pass from Sanders — had two receptions for 28 vards to lead the Buffs.

"Kolby Self had an awesome night," Phillips remarked. "Getting Ausden and Covan back on defense was huge for us. We want to keep everyone healthy and juet keep getting better and better. We struggled with injuries right before district last year. Right now, we're healthier than we've been since the first week. It's good for us to be at 2-0. That's where we were last Forsan will travel to Stanton on Friday to take on the other Crossroads area Buffaloes while striving to remain perfect. Stanton is 1-1 after defeating Morton 52-7 Friday.

Coahoma falls to Coleman

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

COAHOMA — The Bulldogs' homecoming was spoiled by Coleman, who upended Coahoma 37-12. Paul Cortez — one of two sophomore running backs who were effective in Week One against rival Forsan — the first points of the evening on the board with a six-yard touchdown run.

Coahoma was unable to generate any offense again until the fourth quarter when junior quarterback Braxton Iden returned an interception for 64

Coleman, who Coahoma Head Coach Trey Gardner cites an extremely competitive squad, was on the ropes for much of the first quarter.

"Part of the issue," explained, "Is they are a very athletic team. They got loose a couple of times and we couldn't do much to stop them. We outgained them and we had more first downs. We were in charge in the first quarter. What hurt us is we didn't take advantage of some opportunities. We were inside their 20 twice and we didn't score any points."

By the fourth stanza, Coahoma was gassed, as Coleman tacked on three more touchdowns to put the game out of the Bulldogs' reach.

"Coleman had a very fast-paced offense," Gardner said. "They wore our defense down. We had to use some substitutions in some places. What hurt us offensively of time to get back on inning. The Angels' first the middle. You just try track.

"We still had a chance to tie that ballgame or go ahead," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "We didn't stop. We just kept coming. But that five-run inning broke our backs."

Matt Garza (3-3) gave up nine hits and five runs over seven innings in his third straight winless start, largely staying in control outside the Angels' big fourth seven batters reached base in the fourth, with Trout and Calhoun driving in runs before Trumbo's shot.

"It's really frustrating," Garza said. "You try to keep those innings small and get the ground balls to get out of it. I got the ground ball a little too late. They put together a couple of hits, then I left a slider over the middle, and Trumbo did what he does to sliders over to keep going and keep pitching."

Wilson (15-6) allowed seven hits and four runs, persevering through a few jams while improving to 7-0 in his last 11 starts. He wasn't always sharp — walking three and giving up homers to two hitters not known for power — but was still good enough to get a win over Texas for the first time.

was went wide right, missing the goal post by a few feet. The Steers went into the locker room at the half down by 11, but certainly not out of conten-

"Tobyn was certainly under a lot of pressure," Ritchey explained. "But we missed some scoring opportunities on plays we didn't make. We left three touchdowns out there. That's the difference. We need to be more consistent on offense. We missed some passes in the first half that could have changed the tempo of the game. But those are passes Tobyn can make and he will make. He's a good quarterback. We just have to work on making those plays."

With the game still within Big Spring's grasp, the Mustangs made the Steers pay for another mistake. A MC defender broke through the Steers' line during a Roberson punt, forcing him to scramble. The ball came loose and the Mustangs added a 22-yard defensive score to make it

Two touchdowns and a field goal later. Midland was in firm control of the only team which defeated it on its way to a second straight state title in 2012. The Steers never gave up, but were ineffective offensively and scored no more points. Alexander was removed from the game after rolling his ankle in the third quarter. Hunter Hill who scored two TDs against Fort Stockton in the opener — took over in the backfield and accumulated some rushing yards as Alexander tended to his injury. Tannehill and his receivers were a bit out of sync Friday, but Tannehill still recorded 128 passing yards, connecting for 11-of-27 and rushed for 70. Alexander had eight carries for 25 yards and Hill picked up 20 yards on four rushes.

On the defensive side of the line of scrimmage, Ritchey saw some good work once again from his veteran ros-

"They held them to 14 in the first half," Ritchey said. The defense was great the first half, we just didn't capitalize on offense. Obviously during the second half, they were tired. We left them on the field too long and that will happen. Midland Christian made the plays and that made the difference. I have to give them credit. We have some work to do, they exposed our weaknesses and we hope that makes us a better team in the long run."

The Steers are hoping to bounce back during Friday's homecoming affair against San Angelo Lake View at Memorial Stadium.
