Veterans honored

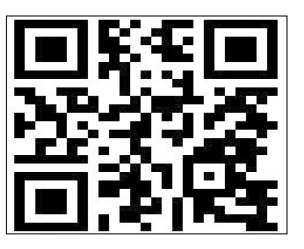

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer
 With prayer, song and food, Howard County gave thanks to its veterans Monday.
 This year's Veteran's Day Ceremony — co-hosted by Howard College and the local VA Medical Center at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum — provided a solemn and sincere forum for Howard County residents to say thanks to those who have served in the military.

 "From Bunker Hill to Baghdad, we are their beneficiaries," ceremony emcee John Fisher said of the debt owed to our veterans.

Texan, 80, charged with trying to kill her spouse

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An 80-year-old North Texas woman has been charged with trying to kill her husband during an argument but police say the gun jammed.

Mansfield jail records show Tempie Strickland of Fort Worth was being held Tuesday on an attempted murder charge. Bond was set at $100,000 for Strickland, who was arrested following Sunday's incident. Nobody was hurt.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports police say the woman was fed up with her 73-year-old husband staying out late.

Officer Sharron Neal says the wife allegedly retrieved a revolver from the couple's bedroom, put the gun to her husband's chest but the weapon wouldn't fire.

Neal says Sterling Strickland didn't want his wife charged.

Lawyers to again argue in Texas admissions case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorneys are preparing to again argue over a race-based University of Texas admissions plan as the case returns to court this week.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals will hear arguments Wednesday in Austin.

The U.S. Supreme Court sent the matter back to the 5th Circuit for another look. The high court's 7-1 decision on June 24 left unsettled many of the basic questions about the continued use of race as a factor in college admissions. Justice Anthony Kennedy, writing for the court, said the 5th Circuit Court needs to subject the UT admission plan to the highest level of judicial scrutiny.

The case was raised by Abigail Fisher, a white Texan who wasn't offered a spot at UT in 2008. Fisher has since received her undergraduate degree from Louisiana State University.

Fisher's attorneys have argued in court papers that UT's "Evasion and recalcitrance" show that it has lost "sight of the constitutional forest for the academic trees," the Austin American-Statesman reported.

UT attorneys say Fisher's case is "botched beyond repair" and an "empty vehicle for ideological struggle," the newspaper reported.

About three-fourths of UT's incoming freshmen are admitted based exclusively on high school class ranking, and Fisher did not rank high enough for automatic admission. The other quarter of incoming freshmen are screened based on grades, test scores, special talents, leadership qualities, family circumstances and a variety of other factors, including race and ethnicity, the American-Statesman reported.

Houston teacher allegedly wrote notes on students

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston elementary school teacher has been told by administrators to stop writing on students as criticism or reminders.

KPRC-TV reports the teacher allegedly used a marker to put the letter "B" on a student's forehead when he apparently didn't do his homework.

The teacher works at Thurgood Marshall Elementary School.

A statement Monday from the Houston Independent School District says administrators met with the teacher, whose name hasn't been released, and he confirmed the allegations. HISD says the situation is being handled as a personnel matter and the teacher has been told to cease the practice.

One parent, Victor Jimenez, says his 8-year-old son's face was written on and the educator should not be allowed to continue teaching.

Houston-area man sought over missing girlfriend

HOUSTON (AP) — Investigators are seeking a Houston-area man on a murder charge after his girlfriend turned up missing and traces of blood were found at her home.

The Harris County Sheriff's Office has identified the suspect as 28-year-old Colt Morgan. The body of 44-year-old Wende Marshall of Cypress has not been found.

A search warrant was carried out at the woman's residence. Investigators on Monday said they believe Marshall was stabbed during an argument.

VETERANS

Raul Zambrano, the event's featured speaker, tried to put that debt into perspective.

"We should all show the utmost respect to the men and women who offered themselves up to serve our country," Zambrano said. "All veterans have given something to the community — and some have given all. We should be in awe at the debt owed to these remarkable veterans.

"They represent the best of our country," he added. "They understand the price of freedom, because they can put names and faces to it — it's not just an abstract concept to them."

While the debt owed to veterans is great, Zambrano said, there are things the community can do to properly thank them for their service — volunteering to help veterans and their families, promoting military service among young people and helping service personnel in the transition from military to civilian life were some of the things he suggested.

"To all the veterans here today, we thank you for your service and sacrifice," Zambrano concluded.

Monday's ceremony also included music by Big Spring and Coahoma students, a presentation on the history of Veterans Day and a reading of "I Am the Flag," by Forsan students Kade Fannin and Ali Knight, a wreath placing by Gold Star Mother Melissa Volker and a vocal rendition of "Taps" by Warren Wallace.

After the ceremony, the college served a free lunch to veterans in attendance.

Gas prices continue to drop in Texas

Special to the Herald

Average retail gasoline prices in Texas have fallen 5.1 cents per gallon in the past week, averaging $2.92 a gallon, according to GasBuddy's daily survey of 13,114 gas outlets in Texas.

This compares with the national average that has fallen 5.4 cents per gallon in the last week to $3.20 a gallon, according to gasoline price website GasBuddy.com.

Including the change in gas prices in Texas during the past week, prices Sunday were 24.4 cents per gallon lower than the same day one year ago and are 15.0 cents per gallon lower than a month ago. The national average has decreased 17.4 cents per gallon during the last month and stands 26.7 cents per gallon lower than this day one year ago.

"Gas prices across many communities are now the lowest since they've been since the Libyan crisis in February of 2011. Nearly 15 percent of all stations in the U.S. are now selling gasoline under the psychologically important $3 a gallon level," said GasBuddy.com Senior Petroleum Analyst Patrick DeHaan.

"Last year on this date saw just 1 percent of stations selling under that level, so motorists aren't doing too shabby," he added.

States that saw the largest declines last week were Montana, Ohio, and Indiana, all where prices declined at least 15 cents per gallon. Several stations in Tulsa, Okla., which features the cheapest gas in the United States, are selling at a mere $2.45/gallon.

"Prices nationally could drop to as little as $3.05 a gallon by Christmas," DeHaan said.

Kid Scoop Together:

Proof It!

Are you an eagle-eyed reader? Circle the seven errors in the article below. Then, rewrite it correctly.

SLIMEY SCIENCE

Kid Scoop digs up the dirt on snails.

The Beautiful Snail

The Shell Snails hatch from eggs as teeny, tiny snails. As they grow, the shell grows, too.

Snails don't live just in gardens. They can also be found in ponds and even in the ocean. They are related to oysters, clams and even octopuses. They are part of the group of animals with soft bodies known as mollusks.

Tentacle Eyes and Nose

A snail's eyes are at the end of its long tentacles. The short tentacles are for smelling.

Breathing Hole

Snails breathe through a hole near their shell.

One Fine Foot

Snails slide along the flat part of their body, called the "foot." Snails make a trail of silvery slime. This helps them to slide up walls and even crawl upside down.

If the weather turns very cold or very dry, a snail pulls into its shell and waits for the cool, damp weather it loves. It fills up the opening of its shell with a mucus-like slime, that hardens into a snug door.

How many snails can you find on this page?

Help this snail find its way to the Snail Motel.

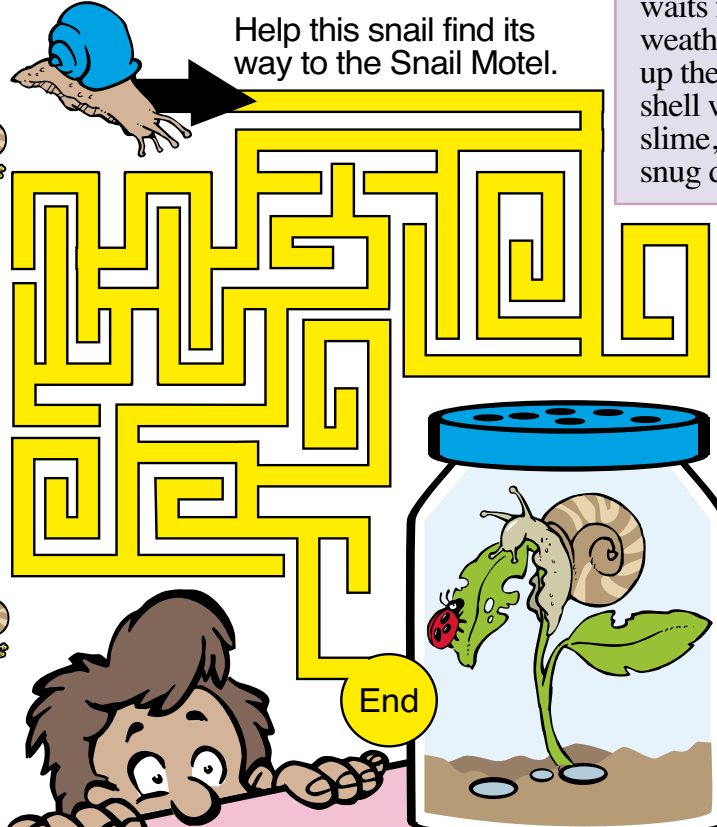

You can make a comfy motel and invite some snails for a visit. Look for snail visitors under rocks and leaves.

- Partially fill a large jar with moist soil.
- Add a piece of chalk, some leaves, grass, and chunks of bark.
- Give the snails lettuce and cabbage leaves to eat.
- Keep the jar covered with a piece of nylon stocking or window screen.
- Keep the Snail Motel in a shady place.
- Twice a week replace the old soil and food.

Bird Poop: A head-on with a hawk

When news of the death came, the man instinctively knew he would make the long, tiring drive to Oklahoma. Passed down from preceding generations, tribal traditions of the Cheyenne nation swelled within his inner being.

BEBE McCASLAND

To return to the reservation brought mixed emotions. Time away from his job with Big Dog Drilling would once again unite him with his ancient culture. Once the ceremony was over, he started what seemed like almost endless hours back to Texas.

Near Aspermont, suddenly a large hawk flew down and in front of his truck. Unable to avoid hitting it, he winced upon hearing the impact.

Not only had he been affected by the loss of a kinsman. Now he had struck one of the birds he revered the most.

After stopping, he sat for a moment in disbelief. As he left the truck, the silence of the countryside offered its solace.

He could hardly believe what he saw when he looked at the front of his truck. Wedged between the front grill and the radiator was a red-tailed hawk. Then he realized it was alive.

To free the trapped bird, he would have to remove the grill. Unfortunately, he had left his toolbox at home. After checking the glove compartment, under the seats, and the truck bed, he found he had nothing to use to help the raptor. His only recourse was to continue his drive back to Sand Springs.

When he called us, he had already removed the grill from his truck. Remarkably, the red-tail was still alive. "Looks like it has a broken wing and banged up leg," he added.

Amazingly, after he placed it on the ground in his front yard, the bird hobbled about as it used its injured leg for balance. Dragging its disabled wing, the raptor seemed to be investigating everything.

When we arrived, Scott Goodblanket introduced himself. After pointing to the bird that was now standing on his porch, he first showed us the grill. Then as he described exactly where the red-tailed was pinned against the radiator, we realized the dilemma he had faced.

After catching the raptor, we talked with him about the severity of the injuries. Although he realized the bird might also have internal damage, he was grateful to have the opportunity to help the red-tail as much as possible. We tried to assure him that was our goal as well.

On the drive to Highland Animal Hospital, we said little to each other. This was the down side of our many rehabilitation efforts.

A broken shoulder and crushed bones in the leg were confirmed. In addition, bruising and trauma to the entire body had been inflicted.

When I called Scott Goodblanket to inform him that euthanasia had been required due to the extent of the incident, he was realistic. He knew he had done all he could for the bird.

Recently, we received an email from a couple we met at the wildlife center and its fund raising events.

Danny Hancock has perfected his wild bird photography, while his wife, Maggie, cares for turtles.

Over the years we have shared many stories. Their electronic message not only touched us, but the Goodblankets everywhere that pitch in and try to help.

On an extended vacation, Danny and Maggie had talked one evening about the incredible work volunteers do for wildlife. Often it is a thankless job.

The message went on to say, "But if the wild-

Yorktown: The decisive battle of the Revolutionary War

I began to share with you last week about my trip to Virginia. In this column, let me tell you about Yorktown, which was the second destination on my journey into the Historic Triangle.

Yorktown is mostly remembered as the site where Lord Cornwallis surrendered to General George Washington, bringing an end to the last major battle of the American Revolution. In 1781, the British army divided their forces — half, under the command of General Clinton, were in New York, while the other half, under Lord Cornwallis, moved to Yorktown. Since Yorktown and New York were major harbors, the British felt they could defend both with troops in place and the British navy controlling the seas.

It was at this time that the French decided they could join the fray on the American side and cripple their old enemy, the English, at the same time. The French sent General Rochambeau and his troops to assist in the ground forces and Admiral De Grasse to lead a French navy against the British.

General Washington was unsure of his next step for the combined troops of American and French armies until he received word that Admiral De Grasse was moving to the Yorktown harbor. Washington and Rochambeau began a secret march from the New York area to Yorktown believing they would be successful if they could delay General Clinton from moving his troops from New York.

The trick was successful and, by the time General Clinton realized the American/French troops were gone, he didn't have time to send reinforcements to Cornwallis. However, he sent the British navy to engage the opposing troops, but the French navy drove the English navy back to New York and the American/French army engaged Cornwallis' troops.

Cornwallis tried to vacate Yorktown by sending troops across the York River but a violent storm developed and the troops could not cross the river. An interesting side note: The York River is a salt water river; it was not until about 10 years ago that it was discovered that the river was formed by a meteorite slamming into the shoreline and driving water into the countryside with such ferocity that the river, extremely deep and consisting totally of salt water, was formed.

Cornwallis surrendered his British troops on Oct. 19, 1781, which signaled the beginning of an independent America.

The actual end of the war came two years later. The Yorktown area is open to visitors and staffed with local people who dress in the costumes of the 1700s and tell the stories of the day. The sites for visitation are the battlefield, the encampment, the cooking quarters, a setting for the typical duties of military and nonmilitary personnel and the surrender field.

Yorktown was the decisive victory that ended the six-year struggle for American independence and set the stage for the creation of a new republic based on the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence.

Opening lead — four of spades.

Bridge is not played in a vacuum. Many decisions by declarer are based on bids and plays made by the opponents, and not just solely on the 26 cards he sees in his own hand and dummy.

Consider this case where West led a spade against three notrump. East-West were known to be playing fourth-best leads. Declarer won East's queen with the king and could count eight sure tricks: three hearts, three clubs, a diamond and the spade already won.

There were three ways to try to develop at least one extra trick immediately: Play for a 3-3 heart break; play for a 3-3 club break; or try a diamond finesse.

There were two ways to proceed. South could test both hearts and clubs, and if neither suit broke he could fall back on the diamond finesse. (This approach would have failed in the actual deal, with West scoring three spades, a heart and a diamond for down one.)

The other possibility was to enter dummy and take a diamond finesse without first testing hearts or clubs. (This method wins in the actual deal, since West scores only three spades and a diamond.)

Declarer chose the second approach and made the contract. South based his decision on the fact that West had led the four of spades, presumably his fourth-best card in the suit. This meant West had three spades higher than the four, but it also meant he could have none lower, since the deuce and three were in dummy. Therefore, the diamond finesse could be taken in safety.

It can be argued that West might have had more than four spades and decided to lead the four as a false-card. Choosing a line of play would then boil down to knowing if and how often your opponents deviate from their agreements. As we said, bridge is not played in a vacuum.

Fernandez, Myers top MLB rookies

By MIKE FITZPATRICK

AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Jose Fernandez arrived early. Wil Myers made it big after a blockbuster trade.

Neither one needed much time to create a splash, and together they brought both Rookie of the Year awards back to Florida.

Fernandez stood out in a very deep National League class this season, and the precocious Miami Marlins pitcher received 26 of 30 first-place votes from a Baseball Writers' Association of America panel in results announced Monday.

Myers won the American League prize after the Tampa Bay slugger put up impressive offensive numbers in barely half a season. The right fielder was chosen first on 23 of 30 ballots, beating out Detroit shortstop Jose Iglesias and Rays teammate Chris Archer.

"Honestly, when I was called up that didn't even cross my mind. As the season went on I could see I would have a chance," Myers said on a conference call from his North Carolina home. "To be able to win is just a huge honor and I'm very excited about it."

The two announcements marked the beginning of awards week in baseball. NL and AL Manager of the Year will be revealed Tuesday, with the Cy Young winners on Wednesday and MVPs on Thursday.

Myers became the third Tampa Bay player in six years to be selected Rookie of the Year, joining Jeremy Hellickson (2011) and Evan Longoria (2008). Seated next to each other, Myers and Archer smiled and shook hands when the winner was revealed on MLB Network.

Fernandez easily topped runner-up Yasiel Puig of the Los Angeles Dodgers as Cuban players ran 1-2 in the NL race. The only previous Rookie of the Year winners from Cuba came in the AL: Jose Canseco in 1986 and Tony Oliva in 1964.

"It means a lot just to be compared to those guys," Fernandez said. "I'm not sure I was even born when those guys were playing. But for sure I heard the names before. ... All the kids in Cuba play baseball."

Puig received the other four first-place votes and amassed 95 points to 142 for Fernandez, who made the All-Star team at age 20. He went 12-6 with a 2.19 ERA and 187 strikeouts for a last-place club that finished 62-100.

Fernandez was shut down in September after 172 2-3 innings to protect his precious arm. Still, his debut season was so superb that he's one of three finalists for the NL Cy Young Award — though Dodgers ace Clayton Kershaw is a heavy favorite.

Fernandez already has one big prize, however, and he hugged his mother and grandmother when he won.

He came to the United States by boat as a Cuban refugee in 2008, apparently rescuing his mom along the way. Drafted 14th overall in 2011 out of high school in Tampa, Fla., he has never pitched above Class A before this season. Fernandez was ticketed for Double-A Jacksonville at the end of spring training when injuries left two holes in Miami's rotation.

Fernandez became an unexpected addition to the rostered addition to the team, making him the youngest pitcher on a major league team on opening day.

Dolphins' owner 'appalled' by team's bullying scandal

By FRED GOODALL

AP Sports Writers

TAMPA, Fla. — Miami Dolphins owner Stephen Ross has broken his silence on the bullying scandal that has engulfed his team, saying he's appalled by Jonathan Martin's allegations of daily harassment by teammates.

Ross said he plans to meet with Martin on Wednesday at an undisclosed location and that he has been in touch with the tackle through text messages.

"I look forward to that meeting. I think that can help us move forward," Ross said. "I'd like to hear from him what had happened, why he felt that way and what we did and what we could have done to prevent something like this from happening. I want to hear the circumstances, the facts."

The owner vowed before Monday night's game between the Dolphins and Tampa Bay Buccaneers to get to the bottom of the allegations and create a locker room culture that "suits the 21st century."

"It couldn't have been a worse nightmare," said Ross, who was joined at the press conference by team president and chief executive officer Tom Garfinkel.

The NFL is investigating Martin's allegations against teammates, including Richie Incognito. Martin, 24, is with his family in California to undergo counseling for emotional issues. Incognito, 30, has been suspended indefinitely.

A special investigator for the league will determine whether Incognito harassed Martin, and whether the Dolphins mishandled the matter.

"We simply don't know what happened or didn't happen yet," Garfinkel said. "We want to know the truth."

Ross strongly endorsed second-year Dolphins coach Joe Philbin, saying he had the "utmost confidence" in the man he hired in 2012. The owner, however, did not express support for beleaguered general manager Jeff Ireland.

"Joe Philbin is probably one of the most organized people I've ever met," Ross said. "When I interviewed him that stood out, but what also stood out was his character. I don't think there is a better person, a more respected person, a more caring person in the National Football League than Joe Philbin."

Ross said to he has formed an independent advisory group that includes Tony Dungy, Don Shula, Dan Marino, Jason Taylor and Curtis Martin to review organizational conduct policies and to make recommendations on areas for improvement.

"We need to look at ourselves. We have to examine everything internally," Ross said. "This is so appalling to me. I know I'm capable of overreacting. I want to get everybody's feedback because we all know the football

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Last Day of Neptune's Retrograde

On the introspective last day of Neptune's retrograde, consider the many ways in which you are buying into someone else's idea of how things should be. When you think about everything that influences your decisions, you may wonder whether you made the choices or whether they were made for you by the hive-mind. New awareness will change future decisions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). It's said that history is the story of the winning person's side. Seek the alternate history today, because you'll learn more from the mistakes of the losing side. The first lesson likely has something to do with maintaining a good defense.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The opposite of coexistence is co-nonnexistence. People who work together will thrive together, while the fighters will perpetuate a cycle of destruction that can only end badly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll create a timeline for your specific plans. Sometimes you'll hit goals more quickly, and other times it will take you longer. But without the timeline, the goal wouldn't be reached at all.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). If you overvalue what you do and contribute, the world will likely step in to knock down the price. If you undervalue your contribution, it's possible but far less likely that the world will step in to compensate you appropriately.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You may find yourself in an artistic conundrum. The people who urge you to "be creative" are being extremely uncreative in their suggestions. That's because what they really want you to do is "be marketable."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Time and effort are being invested on your behalf, and the more input you give the better. Until they know what you want, they'll do what they imagine you would want and will probably go far off base.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The situation in your relationship gets more intense. How will this problem be solved? The obvious solutions were tried and didn't work. Don't worry. The solution is still easy; it's just not obvious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). It's not that they are not listening to you. It's just that the people around you need to hear things several times before the meaning starts to sink in and they know what to do next.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Realize that some people have a different relationship with the truth than you do. Some people are married to the truth, and others consider the truth a casual friend. Don't trust everything you hear today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Some people will try to make you believe you owe them something, when you actually owe them nothing. Your attention is your own to give, and no one automatically earns it just by being obnoxious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). If you approach the day with your sense of whimsy in the driver's seat, you'll find the most creative ways to loaf around. There is truly value in this, though few will see it.

Israel and the United States

Is Israel an asset or a burden to our country?

The United States is without question Israel's most important ally. Also, without question, Israel is the staunchest and most reliable friend of the United States. But there are some who believe and vigorously advocate that Israel is a burden to the United States and that, were it not for Israel, peace would prevail in the Middle East.

What are the facts?

The "Israel lobby." There are indeed those who claim that Israel is a liability, a burden to our country. Professors from prestigious universities write essays in which they aver that the United States is in thrall to the "Israel lobby." This lobby is said to pull the strings of American policy. Its supposed main promoters are AIPAC (American Israel Public Affairs Committee) and the so-called "neo-cons," some of whom are indeed Jewish. They are said to exert an almost magical spell over policy makers, including the leaders of Congress and the President. Some even say that the Iraq war was promoted by this omnipotent "Israel lobby," that President Bush was flummoxed into declaring war on Saddam Hussein, not in order to defend the United States or to promote its interests, but in order to further the interests of Israel.

Israel is indeed a major recipient of U.S. aid. Israel receives yearly $3.0 billion, all of it in military aid - nothing in economic aid. 75% of this military aid must be spent with U.S. military contractors, making Israel a very large customer of those companies.

America's staunchest ally. A good case can be made that aid to Israel, all of it military, should be part of the United States defense budget, rather than of the aid budget because Israel is, next only perhaps to Britain, by far the most important ally of the United States. Virtually without exception, Israel's government and its people agree with and support the foreign policy objectives of the United States. In the United Nations, Israel's votes coincide with those of the United States over 90% of the time. The Arabs and other Moslem countries, virtually all of them recipients of American largess, almost reflexively vote against the United States in most instances.

Israel is indeed America's unsinkable aircraft carrier in the Middle East and the indispensable defender of America's interests in that area of the world. The people of the United States, individually and through their Congressional representatives, overwhelmingly support Israel in its seemingly unending fight against Arab aggression and Muslim terror. But that support is not only based on the great strategic value that Israel represents to the United States. It is and always has been based on shared values of liberty, democracy, and human rights. America and Israel are aligned by their shared love of peace and democracy. Israel and the United States stand together in their fight against Islamo-fascist terrorism. These shared values, these common ideals, will bind Israel and the United States forever.

Israel is the major strategic asset of the United States in an area of the world that is the cradle of Islamo-fascism, which is dominated by tyrants and permeated by religious obscurantism and shows almost total disregard for human rights. During the decades-long Cold War, Israel was America's indispensable rampart against the inroads of the Soviet Union. It is now the bulwark against the aggressive intentions of Iran. During Desert Storm, Israel provided invaluable intelligence, an umbrella of air cover for military cargo, and had personnel planted in the Iraqi deserts to pick up downed American pilots.

Gen. George Keagan, former head of U.S. Air Force Intelligence, stated publicly that "Israel is worth five CIAs," with regard to intelligence passed to our country. He also stated that the yearly $3.0 billion that Israel received in military assistance was worth $50 to $60 billion in intelligence, R&D savings, and Soviet weapons systems captured and transferred to the Pentagon. In contrast to our commitments in Korea, Japan, Germany, and other parts, not a single American servicemember needs to be stationed in Israel. Considering that the cost of one servicemember per year - including backup and infrastructure - is estimated to be about $200,000, and assuming a minimum contingent of 25,000 troops, the cost savings to the United States on that score alone is on the order of $5 billion a year.

Israel effectively secures NATO's southeastern flank. Its superb harbor, its outstanding military installations, the air and sea lift capabilities, and the trained manpower to maintain sophisticated equipment are readily at hand in Israel. It is the only country that makes itself available to the United States in any contingency. Yes, Israel is not a burden, but a tremendous asset to the United States.

locker room is a different workplace than most of us are accustomed to. I don't want to make any excuses."

Neither Ross nor Garfinkel addressed an ESPN report that Martin is likely done for the season and feels he cannot return to the Dolphins.

Martin's agent Kenneth Zuckerman did not respond to a request for comment from The Associated Press.

Ross said he will take an "open mind" going into his meeting with Martin.

"I want to hear the facts," the owner said, adding that he'd also like to meet with Incognito.

"He deserves to be heard," Ross said of the suspended guard.

two weeks ago. His attorney has alleged that Martin was harassed daily, and Incognito acknowledged leaving a voicemail for Martin in April in which he used a racist term, threatened to kill his teammate and threatened to slap Martin's mother.

Ross's reaction as the scandal mushroomed?

"I was appalled," the owner said. "I think anybody would be appalled. When you first read that text that was reported, to me I didn't realize people would talk or text or speak that way to people."

Incognito is white and Martin is biracial. Teammates both black and white have said Incognito is not a racist, and they've been more supportive of the veteran guard than they have of Martin.

The 6-3, 319-pound Incognito has long been labeled one of the NFL's

Tech pulls away from Northern Arizona

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Robert Turner connected on his first five 3-point attempts and scored 21 points to lead Texas Tech to an 88-68 win over Northern Arizona on Monday night.

"We've really been working hard on making shots lately," Turner said. "The last few games we haven't shot it well, really. After practice we were putting in extra effort to change that and tonight the hard work paid off."

Dusty Hannahs added 14 points, with four 3-pointers of his own, and Jordan Tolbert added 14 points and seven rebounds. Jaye Crockett added 12 points.

"Me and Dusty were joking about that the other day," Turner said. "Once you hit the first one, you know the second one is going up."

Max Jacobsen led Northern Arizona with 15 points and seven rebounds and Quinton Upshur added 14 points for the Lumberjacks.

The Red Raiders shot 55 percent from the 3-point line — a major improvement from the 17.6 percent they shot against Houston Baptist on Friday night — compared to just 29 percent by NAU.

"That's something that we were concerned about after shooting only 17 percent the other day," Texas Tech coach Tubby Smith said. "I was happy to see Dusty make a three and of course Rob Turner was on fire."

"I think if you can shoot it above 40 percent for 3s you've had a pretty good night. Tonight we shot 54 and I'll take that every time."

The Red Raiders struck first and took an early

10-5 lead when Turner hit his first 3-pointer 2 1/2 minutes into the game and kept the lead for more than 10 minutes, until Aaseem Dixon hit the first two of three free throw attempts to tie it 18-18.

NAU pulled down the board on his miss and got it back in Dixon's hands for a Lumberjack 3-pointer. Moments later, NAU took its largest lead of the night 20-24 with 8:41 to go in the first half.

Tolbert picked up a technical foul with 6:20 to go in the first half by muscling himself up above the rim following a two-handed slam that regained the lead for the Red Raiders 27-26.

Smith then pulled him out of the game for a while.

"I told him we're not going to allow that, that's a selfish act," Smith said.

"I told him I don't tolerate that and don't do it again."
