Help an angel this Christmas season

More than 200 families apply for Salvation Army's gift program

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer

Almost 200 Howard County families are depending on you for a merry Christmas.

That's roughly the number of people who have applied for the Salvation Army's annual Angel Tree program, which solicits Christmas gifts for needy children and seniors in this area.

Ada Lafler of the local Salvation Army office said 133 families registered their children for the program, while about 50 seniors applied.

"Actually, that number is a little bit more than last year," Lafler said.

SA officials will spend the next few days verifying the applications. Those accepted into the program will have their names placed onto "angel tags."

The week before Thanksgiving, those tags will be placed on Christmas trees located at several businesses across town.

From there, the process for people wanting to donate gifts is simple, Lafler said.

"They just take the Angel card from the tree and purchase Christmas gifts for that child or senior," Lafler said. "It doesn't necessarily have to be what's listed on the angel card. Once they purchase the items, they will attach the card to the gifts and bring them to our office, or drop them off where they got the card from. It's very important that they tape or tie the card to the gift, however, so we can make sure it goes to the correct child."

Public support of the program has been vital to its success, she added.

"We really depend on the community to adopt these angels," she said. "People can either get one of the tags off the trees or they can call us and we'll set them up with as many angels as they want."

For more information on the Angel Tree program, call 267-8239 or stop by the Salvation Army office

What: City of Big Spring and Keep Big Spring Beautiful e-waste collection drive.

Where: City landfill, East FM 700.

When: 2 p.m.-4 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday.

Herald Staff Report

Don't know what to do with that ancient computer or that out-of-date printer? Put a green thumb on it, so to speak.

The city of Big Spring and Keep Big Spring Beautiful will team up for their annual e-waste collection Friday and Saturday at the city landfill on East FM 700.

The collection effort offers local residents and businesses an environmentally friendly way to get rid of their old electronic items.

Collection is set for 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. Friday, for businesses or residents needing to do away with 10 or more computers or other electronic items.

However, the collection will be open to everyone in the community Saturday from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Among the items which will be accepted at the landfill are computer equipment, phones, TVs, fax machines, scanners, DVDs, VCRs and other video playing devices.

No batteries will be accepted, officials said.

Persons will be required to sign a waiver releasing information on their computers at the collection site, if they have not already pulled the hard drive.

Information will be erased from the hard drive by the recycling company after donation, officials said.

Electronic items must be handled differently from other waste items because their components can cause damage to the environment.

For additional information, call Jan Hansen, KBSB president, at 432-263-2616, or Johnny Womack, City of Big Spring, at 432-264-2500.

Typhoon-struck Philippine city begins mass burial

By KRISTEN GELINEAU
 Associated Press

TACLOBAN, Philippines — Workers in this typhoon-shattered city buried scores of unidentified bodies in a hillside mass burial Thursday as desperately needed aid began to reach some of the half-million people displaced by the disaster.

Dozens more bodies were lined up in bags outside Tacloban City Hall waiting to be taken to burial sites. Six days after Typhoon Haiyan struck the central Philippines, many of the dead were still lying along roads as survivors searched for bodies buried under the rubble.

distributed rice and water as chainsaw-wielding teams cut debris from blocked roads. Thousands more swarmed the city's damaged airport, desperate to leave or to get treatment at a makeshift medical center.

The USS George Washington aircraft carrier arrived in the Philippine Sea near the Gulf of Leyte on Thursday, and will set up a position off the coast of Samar Island to assess the damage and provide medical and water supplies, the 7th Fleet said in a statement.

The carrier and its strike group brought 21 helicopters to the area, which can help reach the most inaccessible areas.

Authorities say 2,357 people have been confirmed dead in the disaster, but that figure is expected to rise, perhaps significantly, when information is collected from other areas of the disaster zone.

burial, scores of bodies in leaking black bags were lowered into graves without any prayers being said.

John Cajipe, 31, and three teenage boys who work at the local cemetery placed the first body in the grave's right hand corner.

Sweat rolled down their faces in the blistering sun as they carried the body.

The second body followed two minutes later, carefully placed alongside the first. And so on, until scores of bodies—all unidentified—filled the grave.

"I hope this is the last time I see something like this," said Mayor Alfred Romualdez. "When I look at this it just reminds me of what has happened from the day the storm hit until today."

Officials said efforts had been made to identify the bodies so families have a chance of finding out what happened to their loved ones in the days and weeks to come. It was not immediately clear whether this included DNA testing.

In addition to the USS George Washington, about a half dozen other U.S. ships—including a destroyer and two huge supply vessels—are already in the area, along with two P-3 aircraft that are being used to survey the damage from the sky so that planners can assess where aid is most needed, the 7th Fleet said.

"We are operating 24-7," said Capt. Cassandra Gesecki, spokeswoman for the Marines, who have set up an operations hub near Manila's international airport. "We are inundated with flights."

Valerie Amos, the U.N. humanitarian chief who toured Tacloban on Wednesday, said some 11.5 million people have been affected by the typhoon, which includes people who lost their loved ones, were injured, and suffered damage to their homes, business or livelihoods.

"The situation is dismal... tens of thousands of people are living in the open... exposed to rain and wind," she told reporters in Manila on Thursday.

Aid has been slow to reach the 545,000 people displaced by the storm that tore across several islands in eastern Philippines last Friday. Most of the casualties occurred in Leyte province, its capital Tacloban, and Samar island.

Many bodies are still lying along the roads in the city and others are buried under debris.

She said the immediate priority for humanitarian agencies over the next few days is to transport and distribute high-energy biscuits and other food, tarpaulins, tents, clean drinking water and basic sanitation services.

"I think we are all extremely distressed that this is Day 6 and we have not managed to reach everyone," she said.

The first nighttime flights—of C-130 transport planes—arrived since the typhoon struck, suggesting air control systems are now in place for around-the-clock operations—a prerequisite for the massive relief operation needed.

Tacloban city administrator Tecson Lim said 70 percent of the city's 220,000 people are in need of emergency assistance and that only 70 of the city's 2,700 employees have been showing up for work.

He also stuck to an earlier estimate that 10,000 people had died in Tacloban even though President Benigno Aquino III has said the final death toll would top 2,500.

While there is no shortage of aid material—both domestic and international—much of it is stuck in Manila and the nearby airport of Cebu because of the extensive damage that Tacloban airport suffered.

Some of it, including food, water and medical supplies from the U.S., Malaysia and Singapore, has reached Tacloban and is sitting on pallets along the tarmac.

Amos said because of a lack of fuel in Tacloban, the few trucks on the ground are unable to move the aid material from the airport to the city. The weather also remains a challenge, with frequent downpours. The good news is that the debris on the road from the airport to the city has been pushed to one side, she said.

On Wednesday, the U.N.'s World Food Program distributed rice and other items to nearly 50,000 people in the Tacloban area. Nearly 10 tons of high energy biscuits were also delivered to the city on Wednesday, with another 25 tons on the way.

Philippine Energy Secretary Jericho Petilla said it may take six weeks before the first typhoon-hit towns get their electric power back. He said that in Tacloban, order needed to be restored "because if there's no peace and order, it's hard to reinstall the power posts."

He said army troops had fired shots Wednesday to drive away a group of armed men who approached a power transmission sub-station in Leyte province. The unidentified men fired back then fled. Nobody was hurt.

DAILY PRAYER

Lord, help us be tolerant of others, as often as we can, at least.

Amen

Happy birthday, Baby Angel, I love you

Autumn has always been a transitional season for me. As a child, I saw it as the time when the carefree days of summer changed to conform with the structure and requirements of school. The same held true through college and graduate school. During the years that I was working in corporate finance, fall was the time to finalize plans and budgets for the coming year. As a mother, I see fall, once again, as a time to transition back to school and look forward to the coming year.

JACKIE CUSHMAN

Falls have always been busy in our family: my and my daughter Maggie's birthdays, family celebrations for Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The past two falls have been unusual for us. Two years ago, my father, Newt Gingrich, ran for the Republican presidential nomination; last year my mother, Jackie Gingrich, suffered a series of strokes. My sister and I jokingly call the time "the years of our parents."

The fall of 2011 was a rollercoaster of highs and lows, balancing campaign work, children, family and public reaction. The normal was that fall was not normal.

Last fall, our doings were less public, but were just as important, if not more so: In August, my mother had suffered a series of strokes and was recovering during the weeks that followed in a nearby nursing home. Some days were better than others, as were some weeks. Her first venture out was for Thanksgiving dinner with our family and friends.

Pictures taken that day show her face bright and smiling, full of joy at being with those she loved. But her progress was not smooth. Before Christmas, she fell from her wheelchair as she was reaching for an item on the floor. Holiday photos show her still smiling, but with the right half her face purple and swollen. The year we had with her near our family was extra time to spend with her.

No matter how often I visited, or how long I stayed, she still wanted more time, more visits, more of me.

She was that kind of mother. Every time I left home and drove off to college, she would stand in her front yard and wave to me with tears in her eyes as I backed out of the driveway. When I would call her on the way home from running club in my 20s, we would talk for 45 minutes. She always made time to talk. While she was tough and had high expectations, she was encouraging and sure of my abilities.

"You're brighter than the average bear," she often said when I was growing up. When I earned a big promotion as a young professional, she sent me a large bouquet with a card that read, "Congratulations, from the mother of the bear."

Obama needs legacy; GOP votes

In fact, even if you don't like your president, you're going to keep him. He's not like health insurance.

He's here until Jan. 20, 2017, with no cancellation notices going out in the mail.

The president not only knows this but also has started talking about it. On Friday, at a fundraiser in Florida, he said: "I've run my last election. And along with the gray hair, what comes with being president is that you take the long view and you start thinking about 10 years from now or 20 years from now or 30 years from now."

Except not really. Barack Obama is an activist president who still has an agenda to pass in his second term, and he is thinking about 10 months, 20 months and 30 months from now.

And in his second term, he wants a big legacy issue, as health care was in his first term. He wants immigration reform and a path to citizenship for the 11 million undocumented workers in the United States.

At one time, this did not look so difficult. Politically, immigration reform helps both parties.

It is now clear, however, that there is a group of Republicans in the House, the so-called kamikaze caucus, who will vote against anything that Obama wants, even if it would help Republicans, too.

The Senate has passed a comprehensive immigration bill, but the House wants to chop it up into separate bills and deal with it piecemeal.

Why piecemeal? Let's say House Republicans pass a law making E-Verify mandatory instead of voluntary. E-Verify is an Internet-based system used by some employers to determine whether a job applicant is in the United States legally. (It is far from flawless, producing both false positives and false negatives, but it's the best thing we've got.)

Democrats say whoa, if you make E-Verify mandatory without giving legal status to the 11 million already here, the system will be used just to deport people. If undocumented workers come out of the shadows, they will be "self-deporting."

Republicans are also very big on securing our 2,000-mile border with Mexico, some wanting to make an absolutely secure border a necessity before anybody already in the United States gets legalized. (Nobody much cares about our 5,500-mile border with Canada.)

The current plan is to spend an incredible $46.3 billion for security along our southern border, about $30 billion of which is to double our number of border agents, to 41,000.

A force of 41,000 to secure a 2,000-mile strip is a big security force. (We currently are using 48,000 U.S. troops to secure all of Afghanistan, which is 252,000 square miles.)

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., who helped write the Senate bill providing for all that security, said recently it was mostly political hokey.

"I'll give you a little straight talk: We don't need 20,000 additional Border Patrol agents," McCain told the AFL-CIO. "I voted for it so friends of mine would have comfort that we are securing the border. But the real securing of the border is with technology as opposed to individuals, although we do certainly need individuals."

Even the conservative Wall Street Journal editorial page is not happy with the planned border security "surge." Its editorial stated: "Here's the real story: For some Republicans, border security has become a ruse to kill reform. The border could be defended by the 10th Mountain Division and Claymore antipersonnel mines and it wouldn't be secure enough. As we noted last month ... the U.S.-Mexico border is more secure today than it has been in decades. According to Border Patrol statistics, illegal entries are at a 40-year low."

But some Republicans are insisting on the piecemeal approach and the security ruse, even though there is a very good reason for Republicans to pass immigration reform.

That reason is math.

Mother nicknamed me, the younger of her two girls, her "Baby Angel." She gave Maggie that same nickname when she was born 14 years ago, though she often reminded Maggie that I was her original baby angel.

Mother went to heaven in August, so once again, this fall is different from those before: No national press, no national campaign, no recovery from strokes, and no nursing home. Just my memories of her time with me for the past 47 years.

I miss her so much, every day. Not only her smiles and her cheery spirit, but I also miss her giving me a hard time. Asking me where I had been, why didn't I come by more often, could I stay a little longer, when would I be back.

What I miss the most is her simple presence, which reminded me of her love, her strength, her constant encouragement and her belief in me.

Mom, even though you are no longer physically with me, I know you are with me in spirit, and I as celebrate my first birthday without you, I can imagine your voice, "Happy Birthday Baby Angel, I love you, you know."

Yes, I know.

Take the four U.S. mega-states — California, Texas, New York and Florida. California and New York are safely Democratic in presidential elections. Florida went Democratic in the past two presidential elections. Texas has been safely Republican.

But what if currently red Texas starts turning Democratic blue because of the increase in the Hispanic vote? Not overnight. But eventually, inexorably.

If the Democrats could be assured of victory in all four mega-states, it would give them 56 percent of the 270 electoral votes they need to elect a president, an enormous advantage.

"When Texas is 'purple,' there will be no more Republican presidents," an immigration expert told me Monday.

The expert also said that if comprehensive immigration reform is dead in this Congress — and it looks as if it could very well be — it could be passed in an election year or even by a lame-duck Congress. Obama has said he will sign any bill that includes a path to citizenship for the 11 million.

This could be his legacy and, ironically, the only hope the Republicans have to be more than a whites-only party, rowing against a demographic tide.

"If the Republicans decided to pass it," Obama said Friday of immigration reform, "it would be to their political advantage to do it."

The Republicans in the House could continue to hold out and hope for a Republican White House in 2016.

But every election they delay immigration reform puts the White House farther from their grasp.

The Big Spring High School Steers visit Washington Elementary for the presentation of a good luck banner as before they took on Monahans for the district champs title. The banner was presented by the student council: Aaron Hilario, Rogelio Cervantes, Gage Davidson, Logan Armentrout, Maddie Miller, Jadon Tubb, & Ransom Colette to the HS Steers, No. 22 Tyler Wigington, Head Coach Phillip Ritchey No. 9 Tate Kennedy, No. 3 Brandon Larson, No. 25 Bret Borman, and No. 10 Devin Roberson.

Big Spring ISD will dismiss all classes at 3:00 p.m. on Friday in order for parents and students to attend the Big Spring/Fabens game set for 7:30 p.m. in Pecos, Texas

Big Spring ISD Pride Corner

Schools focus on vision statement, veterans this week.

This week, Big Spring ISD's Pride Corner is focusing on the district's vision statement and how schools are implementing the key points: instill respect and pride in all; empower community of learners; unite staff and students; and ensure educational excellence from both staff and students.

on our BUG Brag wall. Lloyd Mashburn at Higginbotham-Bartlett has generously donated all of the chains and clips for students to collect their brag tags.

Students have multiple opportunities to earn brag tags: student of the month, A and A/B Honor roll, home-work ninja, caught being good by my principal, most improved, music recognition, PE recognition, math facts, 100 days, etc. Chains will be displayed in each classroom with students' names. Classes and/or students will earn the right to wear their brag tag necklaces on specified days.

Big Spring Junior High School

Big Spring Junior High is demonstrating this through the Honor Wall. Students that meet the following requirements each 6 weeks earn a Steer banner with their name on it. The banners are displayed in the hallways. Those requirements are: no tardies, no office referrals, no unexcused absences, and passing all classes.

This program rewards students that consistently make good decisions and follow the rules.

Opening lead — five of diamonds.

The instinctive play is not necessarily the correct play, as East discovered to his sorrow on this deal. West led the five of diamonds against four hearts. Declarer played low from dummy, hoping West had the queen, but East won with the queen and cashed the ace.

When West followed suit with the deuce of diamonds, East knew his partner had led from a five-card suit, but without giving the matter further thought, he returned the jack of spades. This seemed a very natural thing to do, but it eventually cost East the contract.

South went up with the ace of spades, led a club to the ace and ruffed the nine and ruffed still another club, establishing dummy's jack as a trick. Declarer next led a trump to the queen and discarded a spade on the jack of clubs to make the contract.

Granting that East's spade return at trick three looked very attractive, it was nevertheless the wrong play. Had he returned a trump instead, South would have gone down one.

The advantage of the trump return is that it uses up one of dummy's entries prematurely. South can still establish a club trick if he wants to, but he will be unable to cash it and must eventually go down.

East should reason that any spade losers South might have cannot fly away if he returns a trump, since his club holding assures that declarer will not be able to establish and utilize an extra winner in the club suit. However, a spade return might allow declarer to establish dummy's fifth club, with dummy's third trump providing the critical entry to collect it.

Tomorrow: Double-dummy problem.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Venus Squares Uranus

Contrary to what we learn in the movies, romantic love isn't for everyone. There are those who place a higher value elsewhere: spiritual development, artistic mastery, the attainment of wealth and other life purposes. Venus in Capricorn squared off with Uranus in Aries challenges us to honor those with a different life emphasis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Maybe it's because you've been so effective at this in the past, but today it's as though everyone is coming to you with the same imperative: "Make me feel important!" Rest assured, you'll get something out of it, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your wonderfully functioning brain has developed a number of ways to help you manage. Some of those ways no longer suit you, but you are not your brain's habits! Separate the two and stop feeling guilty, and change will be easier.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Those who think charm is about saying astute, adorable or funny things have it all wrong. You know the secret:

Charm is the art of making other people feel pumped up, usually because you listened to them.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There's something on the table to be won by the person who can make the best case for it. Examine this prize carefully, though. It may not be worthwhile. Perhaps the real winner of the argument will be the one who walks away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You will be unflappable and accepting of others. This takes confidence and is only possible because you feel that if you really need to defend yourself, it will be easy for you to do.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). If you want your time and attention to be your own today, try to listen for where conversations are headed and get out while the getting's good. Otherwise, you'll be on the receiving end of a long, boring story about nothing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). In days of old, life was hard until it got harder. Children worked, everyone struggled to eat, and life was a daily battle. Comparatively, life now is pretty good for a lot of people. That's why you don't feel inclined to put up with whining in any form.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Those who have nothing to say but say it anyway will make whimsical connections that over the course of time may prove more meaningful than you might have expected. So listen to everyone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Take time off from that ambitious project you've been working on to accomplish a simple, small task. The minor win you experience will give you fresh energy for when you return to your mountainous endeavor tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Some believe that giving children too many things robs them of their creativity. Today it may feel as though you have too many resources to be creative. What would you do if you had less? How would you make due?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Usually, it's important to make your deal before you start doing the work. But in today's case, you would be wise to do a small chunk of the work before you make a deal so you better understand all that's involved in this job.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It's better to contribute meaningful, useful work to the world and not be famous than to be famous and make headlines for doing ordinary things that other people do every day.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 14). Think of yourself as having plenty of time and freedom. You can afford to experiment, and it makes your life richer and more interesting to do so. New friends next month fit in beautifully with the old. Affections develop fast and run deep. There are windfalls in January and July. September brings a move. Libra and Sagittarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 20, 1, 22, 37 and 41.

WILLPOWER FOR SENSITIVE PEOPLE: In response to yesterday's sensitive Pisces wishing for willpower: Think of your willpower as a powerful potion in a bottle. Awakening from a restful night, your bottle is filled to the top. As your day progresses, everything that requires mental and emotional energy requires a few drops of your potion. Navigating traffic, answering to the boss, arguing with a loved one, reading instructions, saying the right thing to a client, shopping, tending to a friend's needs, solving a technical glitch — all of these things use drops of your willpower potion. Stress tips the willpower bottle upside down. So does getting upset. So does dieting.

Highly sensitive people find that their reserves of self-control disappear more quickly than those of less sensitive people. That's because the experience of processing intense feelings and engaging in deep thought processes uses many drops. Also, sensitive people spend more energy holding emotions at bay than do other people, knowing that if they showed the full range of their feelings, it would be socially off-putting. After expending all of their willpower on acting appropriately, they are more likely to indulge in the behaviors that bring them comfort, pleasure or numbness. More on this on Saturday.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: From "Seinfeld" to "Rules of Engagement," Patrick Warburton's comedic voice is as deep as it is unique. That's why his voiceover work in "Family Guy," "The Penguins of Madagascar" and more is highly identifiable. Scorpios like Warburton love the freedom that comes with voicing animated characters, and they consider not being visible on-screen a privacy perk in an otherwise public job.

Texans' Kubiak to return Sunday

HOUSTON(AP)—Texans coach Gary Kubiak is back after recovering from a mini-stroke, and he can't wait to coach his team on Sunday against Oakland.
 "It just feels great to be back," he said. "You have a true appreciation for the opportunity that you have and the opportunity to be around the players ... and the chance to do my job again."
 Kubiak, who returned to work on Monday, spoke to reporters Wednesday for the first time since collapsing on the field at halftime in Houston's loss to Indianapolis on Nov. 3.
 He said doctors have limited his work this week, but that he will lead the team when the Texans try to break a franchise-record seven-game losing streak when they play the Raiders.

 The workaholic coach said he has learned through this ordeal he must take the advice of others — and slow down some.
 "I've obviously got a lot of people telling me what I need to do," he said. "Some great people over at Methodist (Hospital) that I've been dealing with for the last week and a half, plus my wife is pretty rough to deal with right now."
 Defensive end J.J. Watt said he thinks Kubiak's return will give the team a lift.

Scherzer and Kershaw win Cy Young awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Max Scherzer did most everything on the mound this season — led the majors in wins, started the All-Star game, helped put his team in the playoffs.
 Now, the newly minted AL Cy Young Award winner said he will "wait and see" whether he's returning to the Detroit Tigers next year.
 Scherzer went 21-3 and was an easy pick Wednesday as the American League's top pitcher, drawing 28 of 30 first-place votes from members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.
 Clayton Kershaw of the Los Angeles Dodgers won the NL Cy Young Award for the second time in three seasons, coming within one vote of a unanimous selection.
 Scherzer — like Kershaw — can become a free agent after the 2014 season, and the Tigers are trying to figure out if they can afford him along with all their other stars such as Miguel Cabrera, Prince Fielder and Justin Verlander. That's prompted talk they might trade Scherzer before opening day.

 "I love it here in Detroit," Scherzer said on a conference call. "Who wouldn't want to be a part of this?"
 "The business side will take care of itself," he said. "It really depends on what Detroit wants to do."
 Scherzer and agent Scott Boras said they're open to talking to the Tigers about an extension.
 Scherzer lost only three times this season and was the lone 20-game winner in baseball. He ranked second in the majors with 240 strikeouts and was fifth in the AL with a 2.90 ERA.
 The 29-year-old righty smiled and raised both arms Wednesday when the Cy Young results were announced.
 "It's unbelievable. It just vindicates everything I've done," Scherzer said, acknowledging all the run support he received from Detroit's lineup probably helped his candidacy.

 "I've been working so hard all these years to get better and better," he added.
 Yu Darvish of the Texas Rangers was second, marking the highest finish by a Japanese-born pitcher in Cy Young voting.
 "It was an honor to be a finalist for the American League Cy Young Award," Darvish said in a statement. "Both Max Scherzer and Hisashi Iwakuma had tremendous seasons. Max is a very deserving winner."

Steers face Fabens

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

“Play each game as if it’s the Super Bowl.”

That’s the plan Big Spring Head Coach Phillip Ritchey has as the Steers (7-3, 3-2) prepare for their first playoff appearance since BSHS took back-to-back trips to the postseason in 2008 and 2009.

The opponent Ritchey and Co. face will be Fabens (4-6, 3-2). The Wildcats, according to Ritchey, are a versatile team capable of scoring points using the ground game or by taking to the air.

“Fabens run an I-formation,” Ritchey explained. “They’re good at running it at you and they like to throw bootleg passes and the deep ball now and then. Whoever can get to the ball faster, that will be the game. But we match up well against them. We’ve seen teams similar to them and I like our chances. The key will not letting them keep the ball from us.”

After losing the final regular season outing 31-0 against Monahans, Ritchey said his team has gotten over the defeat and ready to test its mettle in the postseason without getting too far ahead of itself.

It’s a one-game season, he said. “We’re trying to treat (the bi-district game) as normal a week as possible,” he continued. “Our kids know we have to work hard to win this game.

It’s just one week at a time and we’re not taking this team lightly.”

When the Steers reached the playoffs in ‘08-’09, they made it to the regional quarterfinal round each time. Should BSHS dispatch Fabens, it could face Andrews in the area round for the second time this season. Big Spring defeated the Mustangs 61-48 in a predistrict shootout. Should the Steers make it to the regional quarterfinal round this year, defending state champion Stephenville will likely be waiting for them.

Big Spring is no stranger to tough opponents, however. In addition to a tough predistrict schedule, the path to the playoffs through District 4-3A is wrought with competition.

Wylie, Monahans, Sweetwater and Snyder are tradition-rich programs which can present problems even during off years — something Ritchey is counting on to make up for a lack of players with playoff game experience.

“I definitely think it pays off,” Ritchey said. “We feel like we’ve been through the gauntlet. We should be well-prepared. We’ve seen every kind of offense and defense because of our district. Obviously, we’d like to go to more than one playoff game. Our kids have worked hard for this. However far it goes, it’s just a good feeling to get back into the playoffs and

Forsan ready for Windthorst

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

FORSAN — Maybe the third straight postseason appearance is a charm. The Buffaloes (4-6) pulled off a thrilling win over district rival Winters in order to find out if they have what it takes to roll past bi-district — the round Forsan was eliminated in the previous two years.

This season, the Buffs drew Windthorst (5-5) in the opening round of the playoffs. It should be a good match for fans who like mismatches in playing style. Phillips described the Trojans as “huge”, but believes his squad should have a clear speed advantage.

“They’re big on the offensive and defensive line,” Phillips said. “They’ve definitely got the size advantage, but I think we’ve got the quickness advantage up front. We will have to find a way to line up with them. On offense, we will have to open up running lanes for Kolby (Self) and Jesse (Cervantes) and those guys. We have got to find a way to make sure (Windthorst) doesn’t control the line of scrimmage.”

Windthorst may be a big 1A team, but the Buffs are no stranger to being outmatched in the size department. Three of Forsan’s six losses can be attributed to playing 2A schools, as well as some oversized 1A programs.

Forsan also has momentum. In addition to its dramatic win over Winters to nab a postseason berth, it barely lost to state-ranked, then-undefeated Anson by only a point, proving that when the Buffs are healthy, they can hang with anybody in their class. And healthy they are — none of Phillips’s starters are dealing with any major injuries despite being banged up badly during a midseason stretch which doubtless contributed to a four-game skid.

“We’re playing our best football right now,” he said. “Our effort the past two weeks has been great.”

Health has played a part in the resurgence of the Buffaloes, but another key element of their recent success has been its unwavering senior leadership. With a cast of valuable upperclassmen led by Self — who has been

Self named Built Ford Tough Player of the Week

Forsan senior Kolby Self

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

FORSAN — Forsan's Kolby Self has garnered a major athletic honor for his contributions on — and off — the field this season.

Self, a senior running back, has been one of Head Coach Jason Phillips' biggest motivators, always willing to offer a friendly word for a job well done or equally friendly encouragement when things aren't going so well.

"He's just a great leader," Phillips said. "He's a great young man to have on your football team. He works hard in practice, he works hard in the weight room — he's just got a great attitude about football."

And that attitude has been infectious, spreading positivity to his teammates.

"He rubs off on the other guys," Phillips continued. "He's one of those guys where if the blocking is going well, he's the first to congratulate them and thank them. When the blocking isn't there, he's the first one to encourage them. They want to block for him, they want him to be successful. I think a lot of that is just his attitude, he's a great, great kid."

The jury's in on Self's value as a leader, but he's also a pretty good athlete. He regularly accounts for a majority of Forsan's offense. In the final game of the season against Winters — a do-or-die affair — Self turned up the heat, rushing for more than 300 yards and scoring four touchdowns to propel the Buffs into the postseason.

"Three hundred yard games don't come around very often," Phillips said. "To have it happen on the night we needed it most and in a game that put us in the playoffs, that was special."

There is one thing Phillips doesn't like about Self, however.

His age.

"I hate that he's a senior," he said. "We're definitely going to miss him."

Self will be honored at a pep rally at Forsan High School today and a formal ceremony honoring him will be held at Big Spring Ford. Details regarding date and time will be forthcoming.

Crossroads gridiron roundup

STANTON — Stanton (6-4) finished the season strong, defeating Reagan County last week 28-8 to earn its way into the postseason.

But if the Buffaloes want to make it past the first round, they must find a way to derail 10-0 Cisco — a chore no other team has been up to this year.

Stanton will take the field at Sweetwater on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

GARDEN CITY — The Bearkats are riding high after turning in a 9-1 season. Their only loss came to Ira and Garden City is ready to strom back into the postseason.

If records are any indicator, the Bearkats should advance past the first round. They drew Sterling City (6-4) — a team GCHS pounded 52-0 earlier in the season.

The Eagles will enjoy homefield advantage when the teams meet today at 7:30 p.m.

LENORAH — Grady (6-4) busted back into the playoffs with wins over Klondike and O'Donnell.

It probably won't be an easy bi-district outing for the Wildcats as they will face Whiteface (9-1) in Ropesville on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

SEC teams scrambling to salvage, upgrade bowl hopes

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The Florida Gators haven't sat out the postseason in nearly a quarter century. The Vanderbilt Commodores, who had been to four bowl games in 120 years before James Franklin's arrival, have a good shot at making it three in a row.

Plenty of other Southeastern Conference teams are also jockeying for postseason eligibility or trying to spruce up their bowl resumes for more prestigious, better-paying games in the season's final weeks.

Making a bowl means more money, practice time and exposure to recruits. Of course, the SEC can fill its coffers even more if a team is playing for the league's eighth consecutive national title.

The bowl scramble goes well beyond the BCS championship game hopes of No. 1 Alabama and perhaps No. 7 Auburn. No. 9 Missouri, No. 10 Texas A&M and No. 11 South Carolina all have hopes of making a BCS game and/or playing for the SEC title.

Eight teams are already eligible for the SEC's 10 guaranteed bowl slots, and only Arkansas and

Dolphins case puts GM, coaching jobs in jeopardy

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — Last month, Richie Incognito said severe repercussions would be warranted if the Miami Dolphins kept allowing sacks at such an alarming rate.

"Everybody should be fired," he said.

Nobody in Miami is talking about sacks anymore. Firings remain a distinct possibility for very different reasons.

The Dolphins harassment scandal is threatening the season and job security, leaving the future of coach Joe Philbin, his assistants and general manager Jeff Ireland in doubt.

Tackle Jonathan Martin alleges he was harassed daily by teammates, including Incognito, who has been suspended. While Martin is scheduled to meet with an NFL special investigator late this week, Dolphins owner Stephen Ross has formed two committees to study the team's locker room culture.

"Changes need to be made," Ross said at a news conference Monday. "We need to examine everything internally."

Someone in the organization will likely be designated the primary culprit for the scandal, and Ireland's the early front-runner. Ross said he had "total, utmost confidence" in Philbin but barely mentioned Ireland, who didn't attend the news conference.

Philbin, who is 11-14 since joining the Dolphins last year, said he appreciated Ross' vote of confidence.

"The only way you succeed if there is support within the whole entire organization," the coach said. "It starts at the top."

Ireland, who rarely speaks publicly, didn't respond to a request for comment.

The findings of the NFL investigator could sway Ross' opinion, as could the final seven games and dwindling fan support. The Dolphins (4-5) have slumped after a 3-0 start, and on Monday they became the first team to lose to Tampa Bay. Another half-empty stadium is likely Sunday when they play host to San Diego.

To the dismay of many Miami fans, Ireland is in his sixth year with the Dolphins even though they haven't had a winning season since 2008, and Ross' patience with his beleaguered general manager might finally be exhausted. Among the many questionable personnel decisions in recent years, pairing Martin and Incognito on the left side of the line appears to have been the most disastrous.

"It is not just about Richie Incognito, it's just not about

Kubiak to coach vs. Oakland

HOUSTON (AP) — Texans coach Gary Kubiak is back after recovering from a mini-stroke, and he can't wait to coach his team on Sunday against Oakland. "It just feels great to be back," he said. "You have a true appreciation for the opportunity that you have and the opportunity to be around the players ... and the chance to do my job again."

Kubiak, who returned to work on Monday, spoke to reporters on Wednesday for the first time since collapsing on the field at half-time in Houston's loss to Indianapolis on Nov. 3.

He said doctors have limited his work this week, but that he will lead the team when the Texans try to break a franchise-record seven-game losing streak when they play the Raiders.

"I'm on kind of a different schedule — kind of hard to adjust to, but I'm adjusting to it," he said. "I'm listening to them."

The workaholic coach said he has learned through this ordeal he must take the advice of others — and slow down some.

"I've obviously got a lot of people telling me what I need to do," he said. "Some great people over at Methodist (hospital) that I've been dealing with for the last week and a half, plus my wife is pretty rough to deal with right now."

The 52-year-old Kubiak suffered a transient ischemic attack, or TIA, which occurs when blood flow to the brain is briefly interrupted, typically by a blood clot or narrowed blood vessels. TIAs are often called mini-strokes and can cause stroke-like symptoms including sudden dizziness or unconsciousness. Experts say they are often a warning sign for a future stroke, particularly within three months of a TIA.

When asked to recall what happened when he collapsed, Kubiak said the details were fuzzy.

"I really don't remember a whole lot," he said. "I remember right before the half not feeling very good, had a headache. That's about the last thing I remember."

Defensive coordinator Wade Phillips coached the Texans in Sunday's loss at Arizona with Kubiak out. He said not being with the team was painful.

"I wasn't able to watch the whole thing," Kubiak said. "I watched parts of it. Very tough. I hurt with them. It was just hard to watch. It's hard to sit there and watch a football game when you've been there the whole time for the last 30 years."

Jonathan Martin, it is about the organization as a whole, from the top down," former NFL receiver Keyshawn Johnson said on ESPN, where he is now an analyst. "In a locker room setting, everybody has to coexist. Or you at least have to know what personalities go together. Obviously, the Dolphins didn't do their homework."

Former Dolphins coach Jimmy Johnson echoed that opinion on Fox and questioned Ireland's decision to take Martin in the second round of the 2012 draft.

"The Dolphins used a high pick on Jonathan Martin and had high expectations," Johnson said. "Well, other teams shied away from Martin. Maybe the Dolphins should have investigated why they shied away."

The scandal has rekindled fan ire toward Ireland, a Bill Parcells protege. Critics are quick to recall Ireland's role in the clunky courtship of coach Jim Harbaugh in 2011, and Ireland asking Dez

Bryant in a 2010 pre-draft interview if the receiver's mother was ever a prostitute.

There also have been a multitude of questionable personnel moves, which last offseason ranged from letting Reggie Bush go to keeping Incognito.

Philbin had input in some of those decisions, and he was responsible for overseeing the locker room environment now under scrutiny.

"People are asking me how Joe Philbin could not know what was going on in that locker room," former NFL coach Tony Dungy said in his analyst role on NBC. "Well, as a head coach, you don't know everything. My job was to set the atmosphere up, and I counted on my leaders. So, if I said no hazing in the locker room, then it was up to Derrick Brooks, Jeff Saturday, Reggie Wayne and those types of guys to control it."

Dungy is on a committee assigned by Ross to review the Dolphins' code of conduct. The committee also includes Pro Football Hall of Fame coach Don Shula, and former NFL players Dan Marino, Jason Taylor and Curtis Martin.

Kentucky don't have a shot at making the postseason.

The injury-plagued Gators (4-6) are trying not to let the heat get to them but they have to beat either South Carolina or No. 2 Florida State to become eligible, assuming they'll triumph over Georgia Southern in between.

"We're taking everything one game at a time, one snap at a time," Florida center Jon Harrison said. "If we focus on things too far in the future, we lose sight of the task at hand. We're trying to work on Florida and eliminating the self-inflicted wounds that Florida has been suffering from."

Vanderbilt's 34-17 victory over the Gators changed the bowl situation significantly for both teams. The Commodores are 5-4 and need only one more win against a favorable ending schedule: Kentucky (2-7), Tennessee (4-6) and Wake Forest (4-6).

Franklin, who led Vandy to its first bowl game since 1982 in his debut season, isn't interested in looking beyond going 1-0 each Saturday.

"From an outside perspective, talking to the media or things like that, we do bring up some of the historical things because we're still trying to change people's perception about Vanderbilt football and what we've been and where we're going," he said. "We'll talk about it a little bit."

"Internally and with our program, we've been pretty consistent with our 1-0 message."

The bowl scramble is a nice issue for the SEC, which didn't fill the 10th bowl spot in Shreveport, La., last season.

Vanderbilt has the inside track among the four teams trying to get to six wins and bowl eligibility. Tennessee, Florida and Mississippi State (4-5) all still need two more wins.

The Volunteers must beat Vanderbilt and Kentucky after an open date after failing to make a bowl the past two seasons.

Ending that drought, says safety Brian Randolph is "definitely our No. 1 focus."

"It's all we've been thinking about," Randolph said.

Guard Zach Fulton said Tennessee players met to stress the importance and benefits of getting to the postseason.

"You have a lot of fun, you get to bond with your teammates on and off the field and you go to different sites and places you've never been before, and just the bonding and having extra practices is great," Fulton said.

The money's not bad, either, for the programs.

For teams like Mississippi and No. 25 Georgia, upgrading their bowl destination can mean a much higher payday. Among the non-BCS games, the payout can range from $1.925 million for the BBVA Compass Bowl in Birmingham to $8.5 million for Orlando's Capital One Bowl, which gets first dibs on teams who aren't in the BCS.

The SEC champion will go to either the Sugar Bowl or the BCS title game in Pasadena, Calif.

Schools get anywhere from $1.175 million to $1.875 million for bowls outside the championship game plus a travel allowance. The rest of the pie is divvied 15 ways, with one slice for each member and one for the SEC.

The league is hoping it has the problem of trying to find a bowl site elsewhere if it has more than nine eligible teams beyond the BCS.

selected as the "Built Ford Tough" Texas High School Player of the Week at the Class A level — scorched the Blizzards last week with more than 300 yards and four touchdowns, but more than even his athletic ability, Phillips values Self's presence and positive attitude which infects the whole locker room.

"Our seniors have been a big part of our success this year and last year," Phillips said.

"It's the third year for some of these guys who started as sophomores. They've kept us in there during difficult times and they've set a great example for the younger guys. Kolby, first and foremost, is a great leader for us. He had a special week last week. 300-yard games don't come around very often."

Phillips encourages Forsan fans or anyone in the community to make the short trip to Colorado City on Friday to watch the Buffs play.

"A lot of our fans live in Big Spring," he added. "It's a short drive. We would love to have a good crowd there."

Kickoff in Colorado City is slated for 7:30 p.m.

we're proud of the kids."

When asked what the biggest strength the Steers carry with them into the postseason, Ritchey didn't hesitate to cite the coachability of his seniors and their willingness to set the bar of expectations high.

"It's definitely our senior leadership," he said. "A lot of our guys are playing one way or another, offense or defense, and they've bought into what we're trying to do. They trust each other and trust the coaches."

The final component of success

Ritchey has emphasized often is community support.

Though the bi-district round against Fabens is being played in Pecos, Ritchey hopes the Steer faithful will make the 135-mile trek and show its support. Big Spring High School will be let out at 3 p.m. Friday and police will escort the BSHS caravan out of town. Anyone wishing to participate in the motorcade out of town is instructed to meet by the buses at the high school at 1:30 p.m. Game time in Pecos is set for 7 p.m.
