State, area dig out from ice storm

Weather closes schools, blamed for traffic deaths, power outages

Staff and wire reports

An icy storm that started in the West and is blamed in at least 10 fatal accidents was bringing a mix of snow, sleet and freezing rain to parts of Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas on Monday as it trudged eastward in the run-up to Thanksgiving.

Howard County was hard-hit by the storm system, also. Several traffic accidents and isolated power outages were reported and all area public schools cancelled classes today.

In addition, Howard College officials announced classes will begin at 10 a.m. today.

The storm dropped more than 10 inches of snow on parts of southwest Oklahoma overnight, and a winter weather advisory remained in place for much of the southeast of the state with freezing rain and sleet in the cards.

The National Weather Service meanwhile issued a winter weather warning for southwestern Arkansas. The region should prepare for the worst of the storm through Monday afternoon, forecasters said, warning of ice accumulations on slick roads. It downgraded the forecast for North Texas to a winter weather advisory.

A winter storm system that passed through Howard County this weekend blanketed practically everything in ice and was the cause of several traffic accidents, officials said. In addition, all area schools are closed today because of inclement conditions. Statewide, at least eight deaths have been blamed on the frigid weather.

SA seeks donations for Thanksgiving

By LYNDEL MOODY

Staff Writer

With Thanksgiving Day approaching, Salvation Army officials hope some in the community are willing to take on a little extra cooking or cleaning duties.

The Salvation Army will begin accepting food donations for its annual Thanksgiving community feast Tuesday, just one of many opportunities for people to volunteer this season.

"Last year, the Salvation Army here fed about 450 people which also included deliveries," said Lt. Missy Romack "We still lack most of the side dishes, pies, and we don't have any hams."

Cooked food can be taken to the Salvation Army building, 811 West Fifth St., Romack said, and added a plea for any volunteers.

Salvation Army volunteers prepare the agency's annual Thanksgiving dinner in this 2012 file photo. SA officials are asking for food donations for this year's meal.

"There are several ways to volunteer," she said. "Come help us on Thursday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the meal, but please come early in the morning to help get everything ready. Maybe someone would like to volunteer to do a craft with the children while they are waiting, or a church group would like to come play some music why people are eating. We also need help to prep and serve the food, those kinds of things."

Romack also sent out a call for donations of canned and non-perishable food since the Salvation Army has found its pantry shelves — like many agencies that assist in helping those in the community who are food insecure — are looking pretty bare this year.

"We do feed on Thanksgiving and on Christmas, but we are asking people to just bring anything because our pantry shelves are empty," she said "This year, we are asking for canned food and non-perishables so we can fill

Inmates learn tech sector from Silicon Valley pros

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — The budding entrepreneurs wear blue sweat pants labeled "prisoner" and huge, flapping blue shirts. Their doors are triple locked, and lunch is a stale peanut butter and jelly sandwich. Complicating matters, participants in this growing Silicon Valley startup incubator are barred from the Internet.

Nonetheless, the program, launched by successful tech entrepreneurs for inmates north of San Francisco in the decaying San Quentin State Prison, has expanded, and a new session began this month in the gritty, downtown Los Angeles Twin Towers Correctional Facility.

The reason they're growing is simple: Graduates, now trickling out of the penal system, are landing real jobs at real dot-coms.

The rigorous, six-month training teaches carefully selected inmates the ins and outs of designing and launching technology firms, using local experts as volunteer instructors.

"We believe that when incarcerated people are released into the world, they need the tools to function in today's high-tech, wired world," says co-founder Beverly Parenti, who with her husband, Chris Redlitz, has launched thriving companies, including AdAuction, the first online media exchange.

The pair were Silicon Valley pioneers in the 1990s, and they tap their many high-level connections to help with the prison program they started the program after Redlitz was invited into San Quentin in 2011 for a guest lecture and was overwhelmed by the inmates' desire to learn.

After discussions with prison administrators, Parenti and Redlitz decided to add a prison-based firm to their portfolio, naming it for the precarious journey from prison to home: The Last Mile.

Now, during twice-a-week evening lessons, students — many locked up before smartphones or Google — practice tweeting, brainstorm new companies and discuss business books assigned as homework. Banned from the Internet to prevent networking with other criminals, they take notes on keyboard-like word processors or with pencil on paper.

The program is still "bootstrapping," as its organizers say, with just 12 graduates in its first two years and now a few dozen in classes in San Quentin and Twin Towers.

But the five graduates released so far are working in the tech sector.

They are guaranteed paid internships if they can finish the rigorous training program, officials said.

Tommy Winfrey, 35, who is serving 25 years to life for second-degree murder and hopes to be paroled in 2018, adjusted his eyeglasses and raised a tattooed arm. "I think an important part of our brand is going to be to give our customer a voice," he said.

ry, saying the area would experience light freezing rain and sleet but not temperatures as cold as originally forecast.

Meteorologists said they expected the Arctic mass to head south and east and threaten plans for Tuesday and Wednesday as people hit the roads and airports for some of the busiest travel days of the year.

Nearly 300 flights American Airlines and American Eagle were canceled in and out of Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Monday due to the weather, spokeswoman Laura Masvidal said, mirroring disruptions at the air hub a day earlier.

Early Monday, the weather service said southwestern Oklahoma had experienced some snow late Sunday, with 10 inches reported in Granite and 13 inches of snow reported in Vinson.

Around dawn in Dallas, where a mix of rain and sleet hit around midday Sunday, temperatures edged above freezing but rain continued to make roads treacherous and slick.

The storm last week hit California, New Mexico, Nevada and Arizona.

Portions of New Mexico had several inches of snow — especially at higher elevations — and near white-out conditions were reported near Albuquerque. Flagstaff in Arizona had 11 inches of snow early Sunday, while metro Phoenix and other parts of central Arizona were drenched with several inches of rain, causing the cancellation of sporting events and parades.

The weather was blamed in at least 10 deaths in traffic accidents. The storm also caused hundreds of rollover accidents, including one that injured three members of singer Willie Nelson's band when their bus hit a pillar on Interstate 30 near Sulphur Springs, about 75 miles northeast of Dallas.

Early Monday, the Texas Department of Public Safety said two people died in separate wrecks Saturday night on snow-covered roads near Amarillo and Dumas.

Nonetheless, some were excited when they awoke to several inches of snow in southwestern Oklahoma on Sunday.

"It looks great. I love the snow," said Damaris Machabo, a receptionist at a Holiday Inn motel in Altus.

Hawk Buddies coming up

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

Another Howard College basketball season is underway and that means another year of Hawk Buddies — a basketball clinic under the direction of HC Head Women's Basketball Coach Earl Diddle and his players and staff.

Now in its eighth year, the successful kids hoops camp is sponsored by Wells Fargo.

Boys and girls in grades kindergarten through eighth are welcome to participate in Hawk Buddies. The $20 fee includes a one-day basketball skills camp on Dec. 7 at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, a Howard Hawk basketball and a pizza party once the clinic concludes at about 11:40 a.m. In addition to the activities the day of the clinic, all family members of Hawk Buddies are welcome to attend home games for the entire 2013-14 season free of charge and there will be a "Buddies Night," where clinic attendees will be recognized at half-time during the Feb. 13 home game against Frank Phillips College.

All proceeds from the Hawk Buddies program go to Howard College women's basketball. Diddle credits partner Wells Fargo for making the annual event possible.

mingle with the local youngsters.

"It's something our players really enjoy," Diddle added. "They have a lot of fun with it."

Diddle said the easiest way to register is to show up at the clinic between 8:30-9 a.m., but you can preregister by calling Diddle at 816-4127 or Assistant Coach Addie Lees at 264-5155 to ensure a spot, as registration is limited to 100.

Romo, Cowboys top Giants 24-21

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — This one wasn't a Giants-sized gift. Tony Romo and the embattled Dallas Cowboys took this pivotal game and all but buried New York's slim hopes of making the playoff.

Romo threw two touchdown passes and led a 14-play drive that set up Dan Bailey's 35-yard field goal on the final play as the Cowboys won 24-21 Sunday, ending the Giants' four-game winning streak and denying them a place in NFL history.

"I thought it was a great drive," coach Jason Garrett said after the Cowboys (6-5) moved into a first-place tie with idle Philadelphia in the NFC East with five games left. "That's really when you separate yourself as a quarterback, as an offensive team, as a team in general."

Romo was 6 of 9 passing for 67 yards, including two crucial third-down throws, on the winning drive that covered the final 4:45. It came right after New York (4-7) tied the game on a 4-yard touchdown pass from Eli Manning to Louis Murphy Jr., and a 2-point conversion run by Andre Brown, who rushed for 127 yards.

Wide receiver Dez Bryant, who kept the drive alive with a 19-yard catch on third-and-7 from the Dallas 23, said Romo had one message entering the final huddle.

"We're about to do down there and score this touchdown and win," Bryant recalled Romo saying.

It was about the only mistake Romo made in the closing minutes. However, a field goal was just as good.

"Everyone understood how important the game was for both teams," said Romo, who finished 23 of 38 for 250 yards. "They won four in a row to put themselves back into position. They had a home game. I could tell by their words leading up to it that they were confident. That's what makes the game great. It was a big buildup, but we understood that the game was going to be played on Sunday."

Romo said his only thoughts on the final drive were scoring.

"You've got to go get a field goal or touchdown and win the game," he said. "You either feel comfortable in those situations or you don't. I've been in that situation the past three or four weeks. You just have to go out and do it."

Romo did it, and it left the Giants wondering about what they gave away in two losses to Dallas.

"This is tough," said defensive end Mathias Kiwanuka, whose rushing of the passer penalty set up one of Romo's TD passes to Jason Witten. "This is the NFL and all the teams are pretty evenly matched. Obviously we have our work cut out, but until we are mathematically eliminated, we're not going to pull off the gas at all."

Eleven of the 16 teams in the NFC have better records than the Giants, so their chances of making the postseason are dim.

Romo hit Witten on TDs of 20 and 2 yards, and Dallas got a defensive touchdown on a 50-yard fumble return by Jeff Heath.

The Giants, seeking to become the second NFL team to win five straight after losing the first six, rallied over the past month to get into position to challenge for a playoff spot. They knew this was a must-win game because they had lost to Dallas in the season opener after turning over the ball six times.

True to form, New York tried another comeback after falling behind 21-6 in the third quarter.

But Romo took it from the Giants on the final drive that started at the Dallas 20 on a cold and blustery day. He hit Bryant on the third play of the drive to keep it alive and added throws of 17 yards to Miles Austin and 13 to Cole Beasley, the latter on third-and-10 from the New York 28.

Jaguars send Texans to 9th straight loss

HOUSTON (AP) — When Jacksonville entered its bye week winless, the goal was to turn things around in the second half of the season.

So far, so good.

Maurice Jones-Drew ran for a season-high 84 yards and a touchdown and the Jaguars extended the Texans' losing streak to a franchise-record nine games with a 13-6 victory on Sunday.

The two-time AFC South champions haven't won since Sept. 15.

Josh Scobee kicked field goals of 30 and 53 yards to help the Jaguars win for the second time in three games.

"We're obviously not where we want to be, but we're starting to put together really solid work weeks, and we're seeing some of it now come out on Sunday," linebacker Paul Posluszny said. "That's great that we're headed in the right direction."

Jones-Drew's touchdown on Jacksonville's first drive put the Jaguars (2-9) on top, and they never trailed against an inept and ineffective Texans offense.

"We struggled to throw and catch and do some of the simple things," Houston coach Gary Kubiak said.

Case Keenum had the worst performance in his five starts, throwing for just 169 yards with an interception. Kubiak wouldn't commit to sticking with Keenum, saying he never makes decisions right after games.

Houston (2-9) was driving late when rookie Ryan Davis grabbed a one-handed interception off a deflection by Keshawn Martin to seal the win.

The Jaguars pushed their lead to 13-6 with Scobee's 53-yard field goal with about seven minutes remaining.

Houston got lucky on its next drive when Keenum threw a ball right into the hands of Jacksonville rookie Johnathan Cyprien, but he couldn't hold on to it. It didn't matter much though as the Texans ended up punting a few plays later anyway.

Keenum shouldered the blame for the loss.

"I'm very frustrated right now," Keenum said. "We had guys open, we had the right play calls and I didn't see them I didn't hit them."

Jacksonville entered the game averaging an NFL-worst 61.7 yards rushing a game, but finished with 118.

Jones-Drew found some room in an otherwise tough season and added 60 yards on six receptions.

Chad Henne was 23 of 32 for 239 yards and Cecil Shorts led the team with eight catches for 71 yards.

Kubiak coached from the booth for the second straight week on the advice of his doctors after returning to work last week after recovering from a mini-stroke.

Henne was sacked and fumbled on third down late in the third quarter. The Jaguars recovered and attempted a 49-yard field goal, but J.J. Watt swatted it down and the Texans returned it 25 yards. It was the second time this season that Watt has blocked a field goal.

Houston didn't take advantage of the opportunity, and Jacksonville got the ball.

Tannehill, Miami fall prey to Panthers in Carolina's seventh straight win

MIAMI GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Cam Newton angrily slapped his hands together and stared into the end-zone stands, watching Miami Dolphins fans celebrate the interception he had just thrown.

His mistake helped put the Carolina Panthers in a deep hole Sunday, but Newton knew how to get out.

He led a late comeback for the second time in a week, converting a fourth-and-10 situation at his 20 with a completion to keep alive the Panthers' final possession, and their touchdown with 43 seconds left beat Miami 20-16.

The Panthers (8-3) overcame a 16-3 first-half deficit for their seventh win in a row, their longest streak since 2003.

"It may not be pretty," Newton said, "but at the end of the game we get that three-letter word, and that's gorgeous."

Newton hit Greg Olsen with a 1-yard pass for the winning score to cap a 12-play drive. Carolina also rallied past the New England Patriots with a late drive last Monday.

The Dolphins (5-6) fell to 2-2 since tackle Jonathan Martin left the team and the team's bullying scandal began to mushroom.

"We've got to make plays at the end when it counts," receiver Mike Wallace said. "We've got to have a killer instinct. I don't think we have it that well right now. We've got to do a better job of putting teams away."

The Panthers trailed 16-13 when their winning drive began at their own 20 with 4:13 left. With only one timeout remaining, they went for it on fourth down, and Newton threaded a pass between two defenders to Steve Smith for a 19-yard gain.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Mercury and Saturn Conjunction

Thinking too much is a problem. Don't let the Mercury and Saturn conjunction lead you in an overly serious direction. Invite the energetic Sagittarius sun to come to the rescue. She can be something of a provocateur, prodding playfully and inappropriately just to make things interesting, and she'll give you the best out: laugh it off.

HOLIDAY
MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Your thinking now is very different from the way you thought 10 years ago, and it's reasonable to assume you'll keep changing. Growth is the natural way. It's not always graceful, but it's usually necessary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Trouble has been known to begin with the person doing exactly as he or she wishes. Rules, roles and responsibilities, though tedious, often nurture the best parts of us.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Study is not always noble. Ask the parents of perpetual college students - sometimes study is downright frivolous. The application of knowledge is more important than the acquisition of knowledge.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You have a right to do what you please, and it pleases you to do it right. The way you live will make a point to the rest of the world. But you're not trying to say anything. You're just being you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're adaptable, and that's what will keep the peace in your group. Someone has to adjust, and you don't mind that it's you this time. Your ego isn't oversized, and your identity doesn't hinge on one way of doing things.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Mercy is heralded as a virtue, and yet it can embolden the worst behaviors. Drawing a hard line is sometimes necessary. You'll be making a decision about what to forgive and what not to forgive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The fight of good against evil usually isn't set in the world of superheroes and villains. Today's events prove the point when good triumphs in a hundred humble tasks approached with great love.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Motivated by curiosity, you'll drive full speed ahead into a juicy mystery. Certainty is a dead-end road. As long as you don't know for sure, new possibilities will keep opening a path before you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You know the secret to winning with people. It's not what you say; it's that you really care. Those who go forward heart-first will make strong connections where others fail to connect at all.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Popular things aren't always quality things, but usually there's a very good reason why one thing rises to the top of everyone's list at once. You're likely to fall in line with the group consensus today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll get what you put up with. Having to stand up for yourself over and over can get tiring, but as long as you're consistent, you will win in the end.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You can still get your way on the big things, but some of the details will be moved around. You'll compromise on many points but not on your values. Those remain unchanged for now.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 25). The next seven weeks bring a strong sense of fate, and you will know that you are doing what you were meant to do. You'll cut the ties that were dragging you down and form more helpful alliances in January. You'll invest in your career, and it starts to pay off in June. Family growth gives you more connections. Leo and Cancer people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 14, 50, 44 and 20.

PUPPY PROFILE: If you know when your pet was born, check out his or her sun sign and the personality that goes with it.

CANCER: Your Cancer pooch is a homebody just like Cancer people tend to be, and this dog loves being inside with family. Territorial instincts run strong for canine Cancers, and they take a ritualistic approach to controlling their own area and property. They are little decorators who have their own ideas about where things should go. Sometimes your shoes or dirty clothes wind up in their beds. They may have a favorite toy that they keep in a particular place or bones carefully hidden away. Cancer dogs don't forget what's theirs and where it is.

Cancer dogs make excellent medical assistants because they are so attuned to the subtle changes of their human's chemistry and mood. These sensitive pups can be trained to recognize symptoms of a particular medical condition and respond in a way that helps the afflicted.

Cancer dogs love new groups of people interacting in their world. They are proud and like to show off at home. When you have friends over, these dogs may get more animated and will gladly perform for the company.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: The much awaited "Anchorman 2: The Legend Continues" boasts an all-star cast, including Christina Applegate as the driven and beautiful Veronica Corningstone. Applegate, who was born under an abundance of fire-sign energy with five natal luminaries in target-oriented Sagittarius, knows all about being a driven career woman and relates seamlessly to this character.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: My wife and I have been separated for four years. We have joint custody of our beautiful 8-year-old daughter. "Lizzie" spends half the week with me and the other half with her mother. It works out well, and Lizzie fully understands that she now has to live in two separate, loving homes. Here's the problem: When going to gatherings and parties, my mother's friends and other family members feel the need to say, "It's so nice that you guys share her right now, because when she gets older, you know she's going to want to live with her mom full time." Or, "What are you going to do when she's a teenager and only wants to stay with her mom?" They then begin to tell me stories about their divorced son or a friend's son to whom this has happened.

My daughter means the world to me. Just because things didn't work out between her mother and me doesn't mean I won't be able to provide as loving a home as her mother. How do I politely tell these people that I don't care for their comments? Or do I just bite my lip and stay silent? — Doing My Best in California

Dear California: You sigh audibly and say with a tired smile, "Yes, I've heard that. Thank you." And then walk away. These people mean well, but they have no way of predicting what your situation will be five years from now. Here's ours: Lizzie will cherish both of her parents because they cherish her enough to be respectful of each other and keep both of her homes stable and loving. Whatever she chooses to do as a teenager will likely be temporary.

Dear Annie: I hope you can help me with an unusual request. I am a very heavysset female, and there are some parts of my body that I can't reach to wash. Because of that, I have an odor that I hope no one else can smell, but I'm not sure. Is there any place where I could get these private parts shaved? I am sure that would help a lot.— Ms. Bit

Dear Ms. Bit: You would have to ask at a salon whether they would shave you. You might have better luck with a bikini wax. For permanent hair removal, you can check into laser therapy or electrolysis, although both require multiple treatments and are not inexpensive. In the meantime, look into installing a handheld shower sprayer and check online for easily available hygiene products geared toward those hard-to-reach places. But also, please talk to your doctor about your weight and see whether you have a treatable medical condition, and ask for a referral to a dietician.

Dear Annie: I was appalled that you published the letter from "California" and didn't comment on it. She suggested that lesbians target older women to take possession of their assets.

Certainly there are lesbians who are grifters, but the writer made it sound as if this is the rule rather than the exception, and you failed to disabuse her of her misconception. You did a serious disservice to your readers by not pointing out that there are bad eggs in every basket, but one bad egg doesn't mean the entire batch is tainted. — A Good Egg

Dear Good Egg: You are right. We should have clarified that the point of "California's" letter was not to disparage lesbians, but to warn seniors that they can be the victims of con artists, whether gay, straight, male, female, young, old or anything else. Con artists often target older adults. Please, folks, be careful, never bring strangers into your home, and never give out financial information or your social security number over the phone. The bidding:
1♦ 2♣ 4♣ 5♣
Pass Pass Dble

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.
You might think that hands played in the annual world championship would be models of perfection. But the fact is that every once in a while, a deal comes along where the bridge played is the antithesis of how it should be played, and the outcome is distressingly imperfect.

Consider this deal from the 1974 world championship match between Italy and North America. When the Italians were North-South at the first table, they wound up in five clubs doubled after the auction shown.

West's four-spade bid on five high-card points was audacious indeed, but it is hard to argue with it since the bid led to an 800-point penalty against the Italians.

The perpetrator of this daring deed was Eric Murray of Canada, who believed in bidding hands to the hilt — and then some. His four-spade bid was a far cry from the values most players would have for that bid, but it proved very effective when North, quite reasonably, went on to five clubs.

Then, adding insult to injury, when the five-club bid rolled around to Murray, he doubled! He led his diamond, and East, Sami Kehela, cashed the A-K-Q and continued with a diamond, ruffed by West with the jack. Declarer later took a trump finesse, losing to the king, and so went down three, -800.

Murray was well-aware that he lacked the usual values for his four-spade bid, but he took a calculated risk hoping to provoke the enemy into a costly misstep. His play worked to perfection, as evidenced by the outcome.

Tomorrow we'll recount the remarkable events at the second table, where a North American pair held the North-South cards.

Tomorrow: Famous Hand — Part Two.
