Herrin said following the event. "Really, because he understands the cattle part and also takes care of the company. It's a team effort." HCSWCD's annual banquet held at the Heritage Museum. The organization recognizes a farmer or rancher each year who understands and appreciates the importance of water and soil conservation, said Kevin Hamlin, a member of the board of directors, who led the evening's festivities. Herrin, a native of Roswell, N.M., is a graduate of Permian High School and Texas Tech University where he earned a degree in geology and a minor in biology. He has been employed in the oil industry for the past 29 years. He is married to Nancy Jo and has two boys, a daughter and a step-son. Herrin ranches in Howard County as well as in several other West Texas counties. "As a young boy, he visited his grandfather's farm in Erath County where they produced hay, peanuts, and this inspired him to become a rancher" Hamlin said. "He started ranching in Howard County in 1990 with cattle on two sections of land. He has proven to be an excellent conservation rancher. He realizes that ranching in a low rainfall area that it

Local rancher Scot Herrin was named the Outstanding Conservation Rancher by the Howard County Soil and Water Conservation District Monday night.

"I appreciate it. It was a team effort between a lot of people like Ray Baggett from ConocoPhillips. That's where we did a lot of the work.,"

Full Moon Eve

There's a word for the habit of referring to oneself excessively in the third person: illeism. It's tempting to distance yourself by being objective in this way or with other tactics. Things are getting hectic and tense on this full moon eve. But if you choose a more down-to-earth approach instead, you'll net unexpected rewards.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The thing that was difficult to obtain will be even harder to keep. That probably won't discourage you, nor should it. Some of the best things in life are difficult.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You don't have to make a huge gesture, but this is a good time to deepen your commitment to a partner in some way. Maybe it's just an agreement you make to get CANCER (June 22-July 22). You would do well to follow the principles of your grandparents. Something about the way they ordered their lives will work for you now, despite how times have changed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Complaining may feel good in the moment, but today you sense that it will do nothing to solve your problem. You'd rather deal with things by going directly to the trouble source and handling it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). People make mistakes. You make mistakes, too, and that's to be expected from time to time. Offer yourself some of that forgiveness you so generously afford others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Guidance from unseen forces will help you see the way. You're willing to do what isn't fun as long as you know it's the right thing to do. The right thing to do actually feels better than fun.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's not fair, but it's true. A not so great book with an attractive cover is more likely to be opened than a stellar book with a bland cover. Your CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). A carefully laid plan will be helpful, but you can't rely on it entirely. Unforeseen events will require you to adlib. Stay flexible, and you'll turn the difficulties of this day into successes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It seems your work requires one small risk after another today. Like a turtle, you seem to only be able to progress when you're sticking your neck out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You have many interests and

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 14). You have more patience than in years past, and because of your maturity,

you will be given important responsibilities. Events of the next 10 weeks will bring recognition of your individuality and talent, and you will take action to forward your career. Your personal life will thrive as you display loyalty, integrity and courage. Aries and Pisces people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 30, 22, 14, 4 and 7.

NEW YEAR, NEW PISCES: In 2014, those who want to make big changes will be cosmically empowered to do so. For Pisces, this makeover energy settles in the realm of education and higher learning. The trouble is that what Pisces really needs to know this year is not taught in schools or online courses. It's shared instead in small circles or one-on-one scenarios, and understanding will be further acquired through practical application. That's why mentorship, internship and learning on the job are the best ways to pick up skills this year.

Seeking the right teachers will make all of the difference in productivity and social and financial success. Pisces needs to understand that the good teachers are sometimes not the nicest, most accommodating people. If what they know is important enough, they don't have to be. The value of what they know has its own peculiar magnetic appeal. If Pisces wants to learn something badly enough, niceties won't matter as much. The only appropriate teachers for Pisces are those who have clearly done what Pisces wants to do and have the proof. Beware of getrich-quick scams! The things worth learning will take time.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Happy birthday to Jason Bateman, who executive produces and narrates the new television series "Growing Up Fisher," a half-hour family comedy for NBC. Bateman's sun, Venus and Pluto in Capricorn suggests that though he is enormously appealing and hilarious on screen, he's also a naturalborn producer with a talent for seeing the big picture behind the scenes.

BIG SPRING HERALD Tuesday, January 14, 2014

A red-tailed hawk gets a chance at survival

eading to a location we knew well, we drove south on 87. After about 12 miles, our turn to the left led toward town. When we arrived at the familiar stop sign, and another left turn, we weren't far from the water tower and Fourth Street. Standing at the intersection was a young man, who had called earlier,

Веве McCasland

and a large hawk.

He had left the bird only long enough to call us because he was afraid a passing truck might hit it. In our brief conversation, he had told of approaching the intersection and noticing the bird at the edge of the pavement.

It had not flown as he approached. After I told him we were on our way, he said, "We're in front of the house that's across the street from the water tower." Despite the cold wind of a January morning, he was determined to remain with our passenger-to-be.

Holding one wing slightly lower than the other, the red-tailed hawk, at first glance, might have a bruised or broken wing. With little resistance in our picking it up and extending the wing, we knew it was weak from being unable to hunt. Obviously, it had been down for a while, since the ends of its primaries and tail feathers were badly worn.

At least the identification of the raptor was easy. Its presence of brown upper parts, creamy under parts, streaked belly, and rustycolored tail was typical of the specie in our area. Occasionally, however, we, and other volunteers, would encounter "big, brown birds" whose dark color phases, or morphs, could puzzle the most informed.

When that occurred, "What is it?" from another volunteer often-triggered childhood memories. My grandparents often used the phrase, "What the 'dickens' is that?" rather than the words "deuce" or "devil." Although this hawk didn't cause such an exclamation, others over the years certainly had.

Leaving Forsan and driving the three miles back to 87, our eyes searched the fence lines for unusual sightings. We recalled a hot summer day along that same stretch of roadway. Suddenly from the north, a bobcat had scooted under the barbed wire and crossed the road. Its evening had started early, since it was only 5:30 in the afternoon.

As we drove back to Big Spring, hearing the red-tail move inside our cardboard box was encouraging. At least it had a little spunk left.

Soon, it was enjoying mice and donated venison inside a large carrier.

A call to Midge Erskine at Eos Wildlife Sanctuary in Midland confirmed our delivery the next day.

As her fingers coursed over the bones in the red-tail's wing, Midge's frown indicated she was concerned. After her veterinarian did some x-rays, she promised to call.

During the drive home, we saw two red-tails soaring in tandem. Although considered common, since they are here year round, the specie is as much a part of the West Texas landscape as tumbleweeds and mesquites.

With Midge's voice came encouragement. The vet felt that the bird would fly again. Its rehabilitation would, however, require a lengthy stav.

So many times we had heard, and would hear, that recovery required a lot of time. Weeks often turned into months of support and varying therapy. Finally, progress would bring a bird to placement within a flight cage for the final phase.

The young man had displayed a willingness to remain with the red-tailed hawk until help arrived. Midge would be supportive of its efforts until it returned to the sky.

Straightening out that shortest month question

The successor of Romulus was Numa who changed the calendar of Romulus into a proper lunar calendar, based on counting cycles of the Moon's phases. Numa added the months of January (named for the Roman god Janus) and February (Roman word Februum meaning purification) to the Roman calendar. He placed these months at the beginning of the year,

February. And so we continue to celebrate the "leap year" at the end of February. Ironically, even though Numa's pagan festival has not been celebrated for centuries, our modern calendar still preserves this cultural remnant in the short month of February. Caesar was born in the month of Quintilis. When Mark Antony was consul of Rome, he honored Caesar by renaming the fifth month of the Roman calendar, changing its name from "Quintilis" to "Julius." And Caesar is still remembered in his month of "July." Julius Caesar was succeeded by his nephew Octavian, whom we know better under the name of Caesar Augustus. And this was the same Roman Emperor of whom we read in Luke 2:1 decreed "that all the world should be taxed," thereby bringing Mary and Joseph to Bethlehem for the birth of Jesus. In honor of his own exploits, the Roman Senate decreed that the sixth month "Sextilis" be renamed "Augustus." And this month has been called "August" ever since. The Julian calendar was successful and certainly this act by Caesar has lived after him. The Julian calendar was a great step for ward for astronomical timekeeping. It served well for over 1,500 years before being adjusted by the Gregorian calendar, which remains to this day the basis of our modern calendar. Next week I will discuss the acceptance of the Gregorian calendar.

When Julius Caesar became dictator of Rome, he instituted the Julian Calendar, which was a true solar calendar based on the annual cycle of the Sun throughout the year. In order to bring Numa's lunar calendar into agreement with the Sun's annual cycle, 10 extra days were distributed among the months. However, no extra days were added to February so as to not affect the purification rituals performed during this month. So February remained a month of 28 days.

However, Caesar's new calendar required an extra day every four years. Caesar decreed that this day fall within

When there are two playable trump suits, it is certainly normal to select the one with the greater combined length. To outnumber the opponents in trumps by the largest possible margin is surely a reasonable aim, but there are occasions when it is better not to choose the longest suit as trump. Today's deal from a national pair championship provides an example. A slam was reached at more than half the tables, but whether it was made depended on whether the contract was six hearts or six diamonds.

Today's deal from a national pair

Those pairs who got to six hearts had no chance. They had to lose a spade and a club and go down one. The temptation to play in six hearts (worth 1,430 points) rather than six diamonds (worth 1,370 points) proved irresistible to these pairs, and they paid a heavy penalty for their greed. But those who opted for six diamonds — on the sequence shown or one similar to it — were wellrewarded.

Making six diamonds was no problem. With 11 tricks to start, all declarer had to do was to ruff a club in dummy to produce a 12th trick.

This extra trick was not available to the pairs who played the hand in hearts. The trump suit with nine cards in the combined hands thus did not prove as propitious as the trump suit with only eight cards.

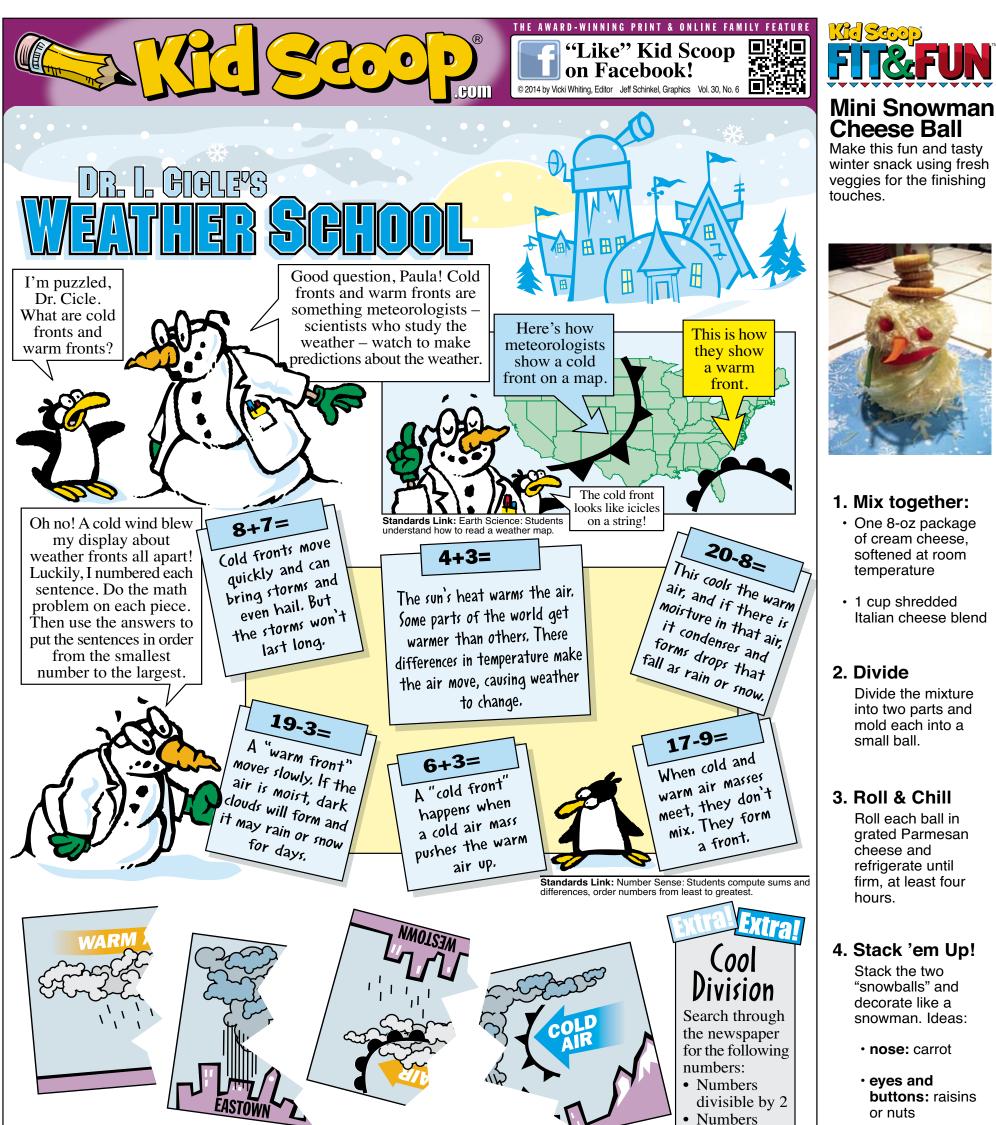

There is nothing extraordinary about this, for it is axiomatic that hands with a 4-4 trump fit are generally more productive than those where there is a choice of an alternative 6-3, 5-3 or 5-4 trump fit. One frequently gains a trick by playing in the 4-4 fit.

We really hope the fans, both old and new, can make time to come out on Saturday and join us and help welcome them back to campus."

First-half barrage lifts Hawks past FPC HC women fall to 1-3 in WJCAC standings

Herald Staff Report

BORGER — The Howard College men's and women's basketball teams learned the the importance of a good first impression against Frank Phillips College Monday night. In the men's game, the Hawks roared out to a 33-point lead in the first half, then coasted to a 69-49 victorv. The Howard women, meanwhile couldn't overcome a cold-shooting first 20 minutes, dropping a 56-45 decision Thursday evening.. The HC men improved to 15-3 overall and 3-1 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play with the win, while the women fell to 10-9 and 1-3 with the loss.

"It was a wonderful performance by our guys," Raines said. "For us to go on such a long bus ride and basically just get off the bus and play as well as we did ... you've got to be plenty pleased with the results. Our guys prepared exceptionally well Friday and Saturday and came out Monday in a great state of mind. The second half wasn't as sharp, but it's hard to play with a 30-point lead. We got great contributions from all our players." The victory allowed the Hawks to stay one game back of conference leader South Plains in the WJCAC standings, but Howard can't afford any kind of breather - next up is Odessa College, also 3-1 in the conference race and featuring the nation's leading junior college scorer, Josh Grav. "He's averaging 39.6 points a game, and they have a lot of really good players around him, as well," Raines said.

since the 2009 junior college national championship baseball team has been on the campus of Howard College but they are returning for a reunion this coming weekend the champs will be reuniting for an exhibition game vs. the 2014 Hawks on Saturday, with festivities kicking off at 1 p.m.

"This will be a memorable day to catch up with the championship team and see where life has taken them," said College President Dr. CherylT.Sparks."We're looking forward to having them back on campus and reliving some fun memories while we make some new ones."

The day will begin at 1 p.m. with free hot dogs is scheduled for 3 p.m.

The event is free to the public and everyone is encouraged to come on out and enjoy a day of hot dogs and baseball with the Hawks, both old and new.

"Although I do keep in touch with a lot of the guys, it will be fun to see them back on our home field and do some catching up," said HC Baseball Coach Britt Smith. "I'm also looking forward to having our current team get a chance to meet these guys and hear about their experiences."

The 2009 team had a storied year, finishing it off with the 63-1 record-breaking season followed by numerous regional and national hchawk.com

The players will be available for photos and autographs.

Maybe Head Coach Scott Raines should schedule some more long bus rides for his team.

A five-hour road trek to Borger definitely had no ill effects on his team, as they came out firing — literally in the first half of their game against the Plainsmen.

The Hawks host Odessa Thursday. Game time is 7:45 p.m. in Garrett Coliseum.

5 things to know about A-Rod's lawuit against MLB

By RONALD BLUM

AP Sports Writer NEW YORK — Yankees third baseman Alex Rodriguez sued Major League Baseball and the Major League Baseball Players Association in an effort to overturn the season-long drug suspension imposed last weekend by arbitrator Fredric Horowitz. Here are five things to know about the complaint filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan:

WHAT IS RODRIGUEZ CLAIMING? His lawsuit accused the Major League of "bad faith," said its representation during the hearing was "perfunctory at best" and accused it of failing to attack a civil suit filed by MLB in Florida state court as part of its Biogenesis investigation. His lawyers criticized Michael Weiner, the union head who died from a brain tumor in November, for saying last summer he recommended Rodriguez settle for a lesser penalty if MLB were to offer an acceptable length. The suit claimed Major League Baseball engaged in "ethically challenged behavior" and was the source of media leaks

Baseball Players Association in violation of baseball's confidentiality rules. It said Horowitz acted "with evident partiality" and "refused to entertain evidence that was pertinent and material." And it faulted Horowitz for denying Rodriguez's request to have a different arbitrator hear the case, for not ordering baseball Commissioner Bud Selig to testify and for allowing Biogenesis of America founder Anthony Bosch to claim Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions during cross-examination.

TION? Former major league All-Star Tony Clark, who took over from Weiner as the union head, issued a statement saying "it is unfortunate that Alex Rodriguez has chosen to sue the players' association. His claim is completely without merit, and we will aggressively defend ourselves and our members from these baseless charges. The players' association has vigorously defended Mr. Rodriguez's rights throughout the Biogenesis investigation, and indeed throughout his career. Mr. Rodriguez's allegation that the association has WHAT WAS THE REAC- failed to fairly represent him is outrageous, and his gratuitous attacks on our former executive director, Michael Weiner, are inexcusable. When all is said and done, I am confident the players' association will prevail."

WHAT DID THE ARBI-TRATOR FIND? Horowitz, in a decision made public as part of the lawsuit, concluded Rodriguez used testosterone, human growth hormone and insulin-like growth factor-1 in 2010, 2011 and 2012 in violation of baseball's Joint Drug Agreement. He wrote MLB

Women's game

As good as the first half was to Howard's men's team, it was almost that bad to the women's squad.

Howard trailed by 9 points at the half, and never could overtake the Lady Plainsmen, coached by former HC assistant Eric Rodenwald.

"We got off to a slow start ...We came back in the second half and pulled to within 3 points on two occasions, but we just couldn't get over the hump," Howard Coach Earl Diddle said. "Frank Phillips played with a lot of confidence, especially after they beat Midland last week. Down the wire, they made some great shots, while we really struggled trying to score."

It doesn't get any easier for Diddle's squad Thursday, as they host conference leader Odessa. The coach said it was crucial for his team to get a win if it intends to be competitive in the WJCAC race.

"Absolutely," he said. "We have to develop some sort of presence on the interior rebounding if we want to win. It's a must."

Tip-off Thursday is scheduled for 5:45 p.m. in Garrett Coliseum.

Still, Horowitz cut the suspension from 211 games to 162 plus the 2014 postseason.

WHAT'S NEXT? MLB and the union will file answers, and Rodriguez's lawyers may ask for a preliminary injunction to block enforcement of the suspension, which starts with the Yankees' season opener on March 31. Rodriguez's lawyers may attempt to depose Selig and others, but MLB could ask U.S. District Judge Edgardo Ramos to quash any subpoenas.

It's not clear whether the legal process will take weeks or months. Supreme Court decisions have set narrow grounds for judges to vacate arbitration decisions, instances such as corruption or not following the rules agreed to by the parties.

WHAT IS THE JUDGE'S BACK-GROUND? Born in Ponce, Puerto Rico, in 1960, Ramos is a graduate of Yale and Harvard Law School. He was an assistant U.S. attorney in Brooklyn from 1992-02, between stints as an associate at Simpson Thatcher & Bartlett, and a partner at Day Pitney, where he was a member of the white-collar and investigations internal practice group.

At the U.S. Attorney's Office, he became deputy chief of the narcotics section. In 2009, he was the court-appointed defense lawyer for Oussama Kassir, a Lebaneseborn Swede convicted of 12 charges of plotting to help al-Qaida recruit and then sentenced to life in prison.

No. 1 UConn women end Baylor home streak, 66-55

WACO, Texas (AP)— Connecticut has two of the five longest home winning streaks in Division I women's basketball, including the NCAA record of 99. The Huskies have put an end to the other three.

Their latest streak-busting win came in their closest game this season, a 66-55 victory Monday night at No. 7 Baylor, which had won a national-best 69 in a row at home.

"Coming down here is
