State monitor assigned to BSISD

Herald Staff Report

Trustees with the Big Spring Independent School District were introduced to Fred Liner of the Texas Education Agency placed in the district as a monitor during their monthly meeting.

The district has been under the watchful eyes of TEA because of low test scores the past several years.

Liner visited with trustees at their monthly meeting held Thursday and stated his position was to observe and make recommendations to BSISD officials, according to a local news report.

In March, TEA announced that BSISD received accredited-warned status, which makes it one of 13 school districts and 17 charter schools across the state to receive the designation.

BSISD received the status based on its accountability ratings for 2011 and 2013. The school district has been found by TEA to be low performing academically for those years. School district's did not receive accountability ratings for 2012.

Receiving this status means "a district or charter exhibits deficiencies in academic and/or financial performance that, if not addressed, could lead to probation or revocation of its accreditation status," according to a press release from TEA.

ARRESTS

"Upon entry into the motel room, investigators located three grams of heroin packaged with the intent to be distributed as well as a small amount of marijuana and prescription pills," Everett said.

Bland and Gamboa were booked into the county law enforcement center, where they were awaiting arraignment Friday.

Everett said the arrests proved the effectiveness of the Crime Stoppers system, in which people may leave anonymous tips on suspected criminal activity.

"The Big Spring Police Department commends the citizens of Big Spring for their collaborative work toward a common goal," he said.

square-foot warehouses received extensive fire and smoke damage. No injuries were reported, Condray said.

It does not appear as if the fire was intentionally set, he added.

"It appears it was accidental," Condray said. "We haven't pinned down the exact source of ignition ... but the building was locked up securely."

He said chemicals stored in the warehouse are a suspected source of the fire, but added no cause has been officially determined.

The spirit of the spring

I am sure most people in Big Spring have been at the spring and looked at it, spent some time there, maybe had picnic or taken out-of-town visitors to see it. They have seen it and been there but have they ever taken the time to feel its power, feel its spirit? In my culture, all things — people, animals, rocks and trees, rivers and waters — have a spirit. A power all their own. To my people, power does not mean control, wealth or things like that. Power is what you have inside you, the essence of your being, your spirit, so to speak.

The idea for this column was suggested by my wife. Now all married men know what a suggestion from your wife really is. In Native American culture, the man is the leader of the family, the provider and the protector. But the woman owns the teepee.

At a powwow, the women always enter the circle behind the men in grand entry. Most of the dance, the men dance close to the drum with the women outside them in the circle. When walking together, the man walks ahead of the woman. I believe this is not only to show he is the leader but also he is the protector, so he leads. However, when a soft voice behind me says turn south, I know it is best to turn south.

A few years ago, my wife and I celebrated our 25th anniversary and renewed our vows to each other. The ceremony was Native American, a blend of Comanche, Lakota and Apache. We had a Comanche chief perform the ceremony, were wrapped in a Souix wedding quilt and a friend played the flute and sang a wedding song in Apache. We had the ceremony on a rock ledge at the big spring one evening. The wedding party and many in attendance were dressed in full Native American dress — buckskins, ribbon shirts, headdresses and feathers. It was wonderful; many people passing by stopped, sat down and watched and listened. It was powerful medicine; much was due to the location, the spirit and the power of the spring.

When we first contacted Chief Watching Wolf about the ceremony, he wished to see where it would be held. We took him to the spring and he was overwhelmed with the spirit there. He said there could be no better place. His wife said you can feel the power that is here.

The spring has a power all its own. It is hard to describe but I will do my best. When I am there, it calls me, talks to me and I listen, not with my ears but with my heart. I can go out in the evening, place my blanket on a ledge over the spring, light some sage and say my prayers to the four directions, the Earth Mother and the Creator and just sit and listen to what the spring has to tell me. I can feel the presence of the old ones — the many Native Americans who came before me, enjoying the spring's life-giving water and praying as I have done.

I can touch the rock and feel its power. I can feel the calmness of the water. I do not really know how to tell someone else how to do this, other than go to the spring. Late evening or early morning is best, when it is quiet. Sit quietly with your eyes open or closed and listen. Listen with your heart as well as your ears. Maybe you can hear and feel what I can, the spirit of the spring.

Big Spring is blessed to have such a wonderful place in our town. The spring has so much to offer and share with us — not only its history, its beauty, but its power and spirit as well. Don't just go and see it. Go and feel it. Become one with it. It may move your spirit with its power. Go and experience the spirit of the spring.

30 acre rock outline of Texas

Jim Runge of Eldorado is always doing unusual things. He practically holds the world record for the number of characters he has portrayed. Among them are Elvis, Sam Houston, Batman, Cupid and the Grim Reaper.

His costumes are in a special place on the T 9 C Ranch where he lives with his wife Claryce.

Jim has staged just about every type of event you can imagine, from goat races to llama kissing. He has the type of mind that is always pondering what he can do next.

A few years ago he got involved with senior athletic games and has won just about every event he enters. He has a room full of trophies, ribbons, medals, certificates and plaques.

What he is calling his signature project is a limestone rock outline of the state of Texas. It covers 30 acres.

“I took a road map of Texas, measured it by inches, then stepped it off on the ranch,” he says. “One inch on the map equals 20 steps on the property. I've been working on it five years so far. It's a very scientific project.”

His pastureland is surrounded by farms.

That was the lucky part. When the farmers cleared their land, they took the rocks and piled them all around the perimeter of our land, so all I had to do was go out there with a five-gallon bucket, put rocks in it, then haul them to the outline and pour them out in the right places.” The outline is one-third of a mile across and one-third of a mile from top to bottom. If you put the rocks in a single line, it would be a mile and a quarter long.

“Now that I've got it complete, I'm going to start widening the rocks. Got plenty of rocks. It's a foot wide now and I want to make it two or three feet wide, whatever it takes to make it visible from an airplane. Last week a plane flew over and took pictures of it. That made me realize what it needs, what you can or can't see. The air traffic is picking up over the outline.”

He says you can see it on Google Earth but the picture there was taken two and a half years ago. Some of the rocks are baseball size; others weigh 200 pounds or more. They were all laid by hand. It is a lifetime project.

“But it's good exercise. You have to move around, you have to walk and move rocks and you have to pull down trees and burn them. It's a multi-purpose project.”

Inside the outline he will show highways and landmarks. “Eventually I want to get rid of all the mesquite trees and all the prickly pear and clear it out. I've already got a big oil tank down where Texas City is to signify that area with all the refineries. I have some windmills around Lubbock and a teepee for the Alabama-Coushatta Indian Reservation.

“For Brady, I might cut a big heart for the center of Texas. I want to have something to denote every area of the state.”

Jim says the T 9 C is the only place you can come and travel the whole state of Texas is less than one hour.

Two dogs, Donna Quixote and Sancha Panza, handle ranch security.

“Be careful they don't lick you to death,” Jim says.

Prom perfection

TO THE EDITOR:

If you have room in the paper, I'd like to commend the people who made this year's prom happen. It was in the Big Spring High School cafeteria, so it took lots of thought, ingenuity and imagination to transform it into something wonderful.

Praises to the Big Spring prom committee and the many parents who spent countless hours preparing and gathering supplies for decorating the high school for prom. Special thanks to Kerry Rodriguez, Karen and Shane Ward, Kim Pollard, Shaunaci Armentrout and others I'm not even aware of for taking the responsibility of planning and creating the vision for the “Moment in Time” prom theme. It was a monumental project, transforming the cafeteria into a beautiful ballroom and ship deck, but the results were beyond my imagination of what could be done. You gals and guys rock!

Sincerely,

Get help

TO THE EDITOR:

There are 49,000 to 69,000 veterans returning from overseas this year. If you have a loved one who is coming home from a combat zone, please don't let him or her do what I did when I came back from the Korean War. I was working in Odessa and I thought, “What is wrong with all these crazy people? They don't make a lick of sense.” Sure! You bet! Who really didn't make any sense?

I refused to seek any kind of help. To do so would have been a sign of weakness. However, I finally reached the point that I didn't care and was ready to end it all. There was one last “step” I was going to take. If that didn't work, I was through and really would “end it all.”

I had moved to Houston, so I called the Veterans Administration here, and that one call turned my life completely around. I have such a good life now and our returning veterans can too. Call the VA Hospital there in Big Spring. Those good people are especially

All I can say is ‘It's about time’

Some aspect of time steals quietly into our psyche in all conscious moments, and our use or abuse of it is central to much poetry, lyrics, scripts, conversations — you name it.

Time, we've long claimed, is — or is not — on our side. It marches on, but sometimes seems to stand still. Though it deserves unending respect, its import is easily kicked to the side, like a soft drink can on life's highway.

Timing, some claim, is everything. A poet — and much more — challenged us to make best use of time. (It was but a smattering of wisdom embodied in Dr. Benjamin Elijah Mays, mentor to Dr. Martin Luther King. He was president of Morehouse College for 27 years and recipient of some five dozen doctoral degrees.)

It is a short poem of just 54 words.

But, they say much: “I have only just a minute, only 60 seconds in it. Forced upon me, can't refuse it. Didn't seek it, didn't choose it. But it's up to me to use it. I must suffer if I lose it. Give account if I abuse it. Just a tiny little minute, but eternity is in it.”

When one's hourglass of sand becomes bottom heavy, it is human nature to squeeze time. David Letterman's surprise bombshell on April 3 that he would leave his late-night show sometime in 2015 was a shocker. There's little middle ground for Letterman — viewers either love him or change channels at the mention of his name. Not to be argued, though, are the facts. He will have appeared nightly for 35 years — about 6,000 shows.

That he's vague about the date of his final show shouldn't surprise. He'll “milk it” for weeks on end, just as he did with his quintuple bypass heart surgery 15 years ago.

Athletes sometimes announce retirements before their final seasons, thus making farewell appearances at dozens of venues. Yankee relief pitcher Mariano Rivera did so last year, requesting the chance to address stadium employees — at all levels — at each stop.

To learn of this great humanitarian — and how he spends his time and resources — is to be inspired.

I do not criticize other choices for closure — even if they span months or years — or if participants “milk it” to the hilt. (CBS Sports' Jim Nantz, 54, has circled April 8, 2035, as his retirement date, perhaps on the occasion of his 50th Masters coverage).

Let's try to remember a long-ago definition of a soap opera: A production where it takes a woman three years to deliver a baby prematurely.

Some people I've known think tardiness should be fairly high up on the “sin list.” Others joke about it, saying they're committed to being punctual, no matter how long it takes.

It would be interesting to research timepieces, and how on-going technology makes possible rather unimaginable accuracy. We've known for decades to point our clocks toward Boulder, CO, where the National Institute of Standards and Technology has announced a spanking new atomic clock that won't gain or lose a second in roughly 300 million years. Called the NIST F-2, it is said to be three times more accurate than the old NIST F-1.

Wonder who came up with the need to fiddle with the original version, whose accuracy would have remained unchallenged for at least 100 million years? And, how do they know they won't miss a tick every century or so?

No matter how time is analyzed — or “milking” refined, or time pieces improved — we should make the best use of it, no matter which end of the hourglass fits us.

It is ours always to strive to do better, with one notable exception. We should forgive the cows at Carnation, the brand that introduced evaporated milk in 1899. For decades, the company's advertising always included reference to their “contented cows.”

Pet Milk proponents, on the other hand, claimed their cows were not contented, “but always striving to do better.”

It's probably best that none of us knows the distance to the finish line.

When we are at our foggiest, maybe a camel, stumbling along, will ask if we know what day it is.

If we guess wrong, maybe the dromedary will give us another chance.

News in brief

Old Midland courthouse to be razed for skyscraper

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Midland Mayor Jerry Morales says he wants demolition of the vacant old Midland County courthouse to be started after July 4.

The now city-owned courthouse was built in 1930.

Its site is to be the location for a skyscraper — or two — that would be the tallest structures in the West Texas city of about 120,000.

The Energy Tower at City Center project would be centerpiece of one of the fastest growing areas in the nation. Midland, in the oil-rich Permian Basin, is benefiting from the energy boom and the project would top a 24-story building that now is the city's tallest.

City spokeswoman Sara Higgins tells the Midland Reporter-Telegram no official date for the demolition has been set.

Woman gets life in prison in stiletto heel slaying

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston woman was sentenced to life in prison Friday for fatally stabbing her boyfriend with the 5½-inch stiletto heel of her shoe, striking him at least 25 times in the face and head.

Ana Trujillo was convicted of murder Tuesday by the same jury for killing 59-year-old Alf Stefan Andersson during an argument last June at his Houston condominium. Defense attorneys argued that Trujillo, 45, was defending herself from an attack by Andersson, who was a University of Houston professor and researcher.

Trujillo could be seen silently crying Friday when her sentence was handed down.

"I never meant to hurt him," Trujillo said before the judge made the jury's decision final. "It was never my intent. I loved him. I wanted to get away. I never wanted to kill him."

Andersson's niece, Ylva Olofsson, said the family was happy with the verdict.

"My uncle was a great man. He was kind. He didn't deserve what happened to him. We are happy that justice is served," she said.

Prosecutors said that jurors — who declined to speak with reporters afterward — told them that it was the physical evidence that proved to them this was not self-defense.

"She hit him 25 times in the head. That is a hard thing to overcome," said prosecutor John Jordan.

Davis, Van de Putte address teachers' convention

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Fresh off a much-publicized chat with President Barack Obama, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Wendy Davis is addressing an annual teachers' gathering.

The state senator from Fort Worth is appearing with Leticia Van de Putte, a San Antonio state senator and the Democratic lieutenant governor hopeful.

Both will speak at the Texas State Teachers Association convention in San Marcos on Saturday.

Davis met briefly with Obama on Thursday while the president was in Austin for a civil rights summit honoring the accomplishments of President Lyndon Johnson.

Education has been a key issue in the Texas governor's race, where Davis is considered an underdog against Republican Attorney General Greg Abbott.

Davis and Abbott have both called for expanding pre-kindergarten statewide, but differ on the best way to do so and the costs associated.

Coast Guard rescues men caught illegally fishing

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has rescued four Mexican citizens whose small boat began taking on water after they were caught illegally fishing near South Texas.

The Mexican nationals were spotted Friday morning illegally fishing 28 miles offshore and 4 miles north of the U.S.-Mexico border.

While being pursued by the Coast Guard Cutter Brant, the fishermen's boat began taking on water. The Coast Guard ship came alongside the boat and rescued the fishermen.

The fishermen's boat sank about 36 miles off South Padre Island.

Coast Guard officials found about 500 pounds of red snapper along with long-line fishing gear in the small boat.

The four Mexican citizens were taken into custody and later returned to their country.

Ex-top staffer to South Texas sheriff takes plea

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — The former chief of staff to former Hidalgo County Sheriff Lupe Trevino has pleaded guilty to a federal count of misprision of a felony for failing to report a crime.

A statement from the U.S. Attorney's office in McAllen says Maria Patricia Medina entered her plea Friday and could be sentenced to up to three years in federal prison July 3. The statement says the 40-year-old former top staffer also could be fined up to $250,000.

According to the statement, investigators found Trevino, in 2011 and 2012, received cash donations from a suspected drug trafficker. The statement says Medina, as chief of staff and campaign treasurer, admitted helping Trevino conceal the donations by falsifying election records.

'Affluenza' teen's family won't pay full rehab fee

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The family of a Texas teenager sentenced to probation after killing four people in a drunken-driving wreck will pay for just a fraction of his court-ordered treatment, a court official testified Friday.

Ethan Couch's parents will be charged $1,170 a month for his treatment at the North Texas State Hospital in rural Vernon. The facility That amount would cover less than two days of treatment, which costs $715 a day, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

Couch's case drew national attention due in large part to his defense's argument that his wealthy parents had coddled him into a sense of irresponsibility — a condition that a defense expert called "affluenza."

Couch, 17, killed four people last year when his vehicle rammed into a crowd of people trying to help the driver of a disabled vehicle south of Fort Worth. Investigators said he was driving his family company's pickup truck while drunk and with traces of Valium in his system.

Couch admitted to causing the wreck and received 10 years' probation from State District Judge Jean Boyd rather than prison time, as prosecutors and Couch's victims wanted. Several of his victims have since sued the Couch family, with most of them reaching confidential settlements.

Debbie Spoons, placement supervisor for Tarrant County Juvenile Services, said the facility decided what Fred and Tonya Couch would pay based on a sliding scale.

A message from The Associated Press seeking comment from Spoons on the facility's payment policy was not immediately returned Friday.

The teen's family previously had offered to pay for Couch to go to a $450,000-a-year rehabilitation center near Newport Beach, Calif. Boyd rejected that request.

Fort Worth police nab suspects in 9 vehicle fires

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — North Texas police have arrested a woman, her teenage daughter and the daughter's boyfriend, and two other men as suspects in a string of vehicle fires investigators blamed on arson.

The 39-year-old woman, her 17-year-old daughter, the daughter's 19-year-old boyfriend and two other men, ages 18 and 19, on suspicion of arson.

Fort Worth arson investigator Brad Sims says the mother had her 8-year-old son with her when the fires were set.

Fort Worth police say nine vehicles were torched within an hour before dawn Saturday within a 2½-mile radius in southern Fort Worth between Texas Christian University and Interstate 35W. An arrest warrant affidavit says gasoline was used to burn the vehicles.

Faster airport-screening program expands to DFW

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Travelers can now apply at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport for clearance to keep their shoes, belts and light jackets on while passing through security screening.

Transportation Security Administration chief John Pistole said Friday that it was his agency's first airport office in Texas and the 14th nationally for people to apply for the "Pre-Check" program.

The program is part of TSA's strategy to focus security on passengers who might be a threat instead of simply screening baggage and passengers at checkpoints. Pistole called it a "risk-based, intelligence-driven approach."

U.S. citizens and permanent legal residents may apply to the program at a cost of $85 for five years. Pistole said applicants are fingerprinted, checked for any criminal record and compared against a terrorism watch list. If granted clearance, the traveler may pass with shoes and belts on through special screening lanes that flow much more quickly. However, he said the travelers still will be subject to more-thorough random checks.

Woman gets 50-year term for wreck that killed 5

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A South Texas woman has been sentenced to 50 years in prison for the drunken-driving deaths of five people last year.

The Brownsville Herald reports 33-year-old Margaret Gil of McAllen pleaded guilty Thursday to five counts of intoxication manslaughter. She entered her plea in a Brownsville court as part of a deal with prosecutors.

Gil was driving near Los Fresnos on June 30 when her vehicle veered into oncoming traffic and crashed head-on into a car driven by 32-year-old Edward Gomez of McAllen.

Gomez; his 3-year-old daughter, Kamilla Isabel Gomez; his 13-year-old niece, Julexy Alvares; and his 30-year-old wife, Erika Olaya Davila, were killed. Gil's passenger, 43-year-old Carmella Sanchez, also died.

US rig count up 13 to 1,831

HOUSTON (AP) — Oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. says the number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. rose by 13 this week to 1,831.

The Houston firm said in its weekly report Friday that 1,517 rigs were exploring for oil and 310 for gas. Four were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago there were 1,771 active rigs.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Louisiana gained nine rigs, Texas increased by seven, California gained three and New Mexico increased by one.

Ohio lost four and Alaska, Arkansas and Oklahoma fell one apiece.

Colorado, Kansas, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming were unchanged.

South Texas city sees goats as firefighting tool

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — A South Texas city is looking to continue using goats to eliminate fire hazards by having the animals chomp away at heavy, dense brush.

City officials in Victoria have rented the barnyard animals over the past two months and now are looking to renew their contract with the owners of the goats for work that could continue through the year.

Officials want to remove the flammable brush at Riverside Park to prevent any chance of a brush fire, but they also want to clear land to make the banks of the Guadalupe River more accessible.

The Victoria Advocate reports the city pays $1,200 a week for about 25 goats to chew their way through the brush.

News in brief

Armed protesters seize police station in eastern Ukrainian town

DONETSK, Ukraine (AP) — At least a dozen armed men have seized a police station in a small town in eastern Ukraine as tensions in the country's Russia-speaking regions intensify.

The Ukrainian Interior Ministry said men in camouflage stormed a police station in Slovyansk early Saturday. The town is about 90 kilometers (55 miles) south of the regional center, Donetsk, where pro-Russian protesters have occupied a government building for nearly a week.

Interior Minister Arsen Avakov pledged a "very tough response" to the seizure.

Video on a local website showed several armed men in balaclavas guarding the entrance to the police station.

Protesters who have held the administration building in Donetsk since Sunday initially called for a referendum on secession but later reduced the demand to a vote on autonomy within Ukraine.

With no new signals and black box batteries dying, Abbott says jet search will take long time

PERTH, Australia (AP) — With no new underwater signals detected, Australian Prime Minister Tony Abbott said Saturday that the massive search for the Malaysian jet would likely continue "for a long time" as electronic transmissions from the dying black boxes were fading fast.

Abbott appeared to couch his comments from a day earlier while on a visit to China, where he met President Xi Jinping. He said Friday he was "very confident" signals heard by an Australian ship towing a U.S. Navy device that detects flight recorder pings are coming from the Boeing 777.

He continued to express this belief on Saturday, but added that the job of finding the plane that disappeared March 8 en route from Kuala Lumpur to Beijing remains arduous.

"No one should underestimate the difficulties of the task still ahead of us," he said on the last day of his China trip. We have "very considerably narrowed down the search area, but trying to locate anything 4.5 kilometers beneath the surface of the ocean about 1,000 kilometers from land is a massive, massive task and it is likely to continue for a long time to come," Abbott said.

After analyzing satellite data, officials believe the plane with 239 people aboard flew off course for an unknown reason and went down in the southern Indian Ocean off the west coast of Australia.

College dreams of families, young couples' futures dashed in tour bus crash that killed 10

ORLAND, Calif. (AP) — Three months after sharing a picture-perfect Christmas engagement outside the Louvre Museum in Paris, Michael Myvett and Mattison Haywood were on another adventure, accompanying 44 teenagers on a visit to Myvett's college alma mater.

The Los Angeles couple volunteered to be chaperones on a charter bus carrying high school seniors on a 650-mile trip from Southern California to Humboldt State University. They died together when a FedEx tractor-trailer slammed into the bus, in a fiery crash that also killed five teens, another adult chaperone and the drivers of both vehicles, officials and relatives said.

That Myvett, who graduated from Humboldt State with a psychology degree in 2007 and worked with autistic children, was eager to make the trip with the fiancé to whom he had proposed on bended knee made sense to friends and co-workers.

Haywood was "the love of his life" and "to be a liaison and representative for high school students who wanted to attend Humboldt was in sync with his personality, wanting to facilitate peoples' achievement of their dreams," said Kyle Farris, a colleague at the Center for Autism and Related Disorders in Torrance.

The bus carried a lot of dreams. It was one of three the northern California college chartered to bring prospective students, many of them hoping to be the first in their families to attend college, to tour its campus before they got busy with prom and graduation.

Striving for unity, US faces reluctant partner in Europe in financial penalties against Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — As it warns Russia to step back from Ukraine or suffer another financial hit, the U.S. is simultaneously trying to coax along a reluctant Europe, which is trying to balance its desire to punish Moscow against its fear of economic turmoil from the effects of a new, harsher round of Western trade sanctions.

Economists say the U.S. risks appearing weak without support from Europe, which is Russia's largest trading partner and therefore has huge sway over Russia's already shaky economy. But Europe is far from ready to issue sanctions on Moscow that would undercut its own financial stability while risking its main source of energy.

The fate of new sanctions — and how tough they might be — depends on Moscow's next moves, and whether Russia deepens or pulls back its meddling in Ukraine.

President Barack Obama already has signed orders that would allow the U.S. to sanction key Russian industries, and European Union foreign ministers will meet Monday to decide what new penalties should be issued if Moscow continues to ignore the West's warnings.

Assistant Secretary of State Victoria Nuland told a Senate panel this week that current U.S. and EU sanctions are "biting" and "pinching" the Russian economy, "and we're now considering further measures."

Iran says it has no plan to name new UN envoy after its pick blocked

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iran says it has no plans to name a new diplomat to the United Nations after the United States blocked the man Tehran chose.

Deputy Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi is quoted by the semiofficial Mehr news agency as saying Saturday that the Islamic Republic instead seeks to challenge the U.S. decision through legal channels.

The U.S. blocked Iran's pick because it alleges Hamid Aboutalebi took part in the 1979 takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, in which 52 Americans were held hostage for 444 days.

Aboutalebi says he was only a translator when militant students stormed the Embassy. Iran says he is one of the country's best diplomats, and that he previously received a U.S. visa. He has already served at Iranian diplomatic missions in Australia, Belgium and Italy.

Every comma is scrutinized as UN climate report balances science and politics

BERLIN (AP) — After racing against the clock in an all-night session, the U.N.'s expert panel on climate change was putting the final touches Saturday on a scientific guide to help governments, industries and regular people take action to stop global warming from reaching dangerous levels.

As always when the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change adopts one of its high-profile reports, the week-long talks in Berlin were slowed by wrangling between scientists and governments over which words, charts and tables to use in the roughly 30-page summary of a much bigger scientific report.

The painstaking process is meant to clarify the complex world of climate science to non-scientists but it also reflects the brinkmanship that characterizes international talks on climate action — so far unsuccessful in their goal to stop the rise of man-made carbon emissions blamed for global warming.

"Sometimes it's framed as if what the IPCC does is 'just the facts, ma'am,' and that of course is not accurate," said Steve Rayner, an Oxford scientist who has taken part in three of the IPCC's previous assessments, but not this one.

"It's not pure science and it's not just politics," but a blend of both, Rayner said.

Obama's health care law faces new round of criticism as top conservatives gather for summit

BOSTON (AP) — President Barack Obama's health care overhaul is coming under renewed attack as some of the nation's leading conservatives gather for a New Hampshire summit thick with presidential implications.

Several potential Republican White House contenders — among them Kentucky Sen. Rand Paul, Texas Sen. Ted Cruz, and former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee — headline a conference Saturday in Manchester, N.H., hosted by the conservative groups Citizens United and Americans for Prosperity.

Scheduled speakers also include real estate mogul Donald Trump, former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, Utah Sen. Mike Lee and New Hampshire Sen. Kelly Ayotte. The gathering highlights the role of Koch Industries, the giant conglomerate headed by the billionaire brothers Charles and David Koch.

The Koch-affiliated Americans for Prosperity has already spent millions of dollars on health care-related attack ads aimed at Democratic senators in New Hampshire, North Carolina, Alaska, Colorado, Iowa and elsewhere. That's made the Koch brothers a prime target for Democratic criticism.

The summit comes as prospective presidential candidates begin to step up appearances in key states ahead of the 2016 presidential contest, even though New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation-presidential primary isn't planned for another two years. The speakers are expected to bash the Democratic-backed health care overhaul, a central issue in the GOP's midterm election strategy despite reports of strong enrollment figures.

In La. district of 'kissing congressman,' voters disappointed yet willing to forgive

MONROE, La. (AP) — In a matter of days, Republican Vance McAllister has gone from being the unlikely congressman — a special election winner who trounced his party's establishment candidate — to the "kissing congressman," a faith-and-family politician caught on video embracing an aide married to one of his friends.

Amid some calls for his resignation, he has said he will respect the verdict of his constituents this fall. Residents interviewed here by The Associated Press expressed disappointment, but not surprise.

Noting the histories of President Bill Clinton and former Louisiana governor and current congressional candidate Edwin Edwards and sitting Sen. David Vitter, voters say they're accustomed to law-dirty politician scandals. Many are as eager to speculate how a local newspaper got video of McAllister kissing Melissa Peacock as they are to opine on the dalliance itself. And they're sure there's more than enough hypocrisy and political intrigue to go around.

McAllister's "main thing now is to get straight with his family," said Jackie Coleman, a retired law enforcement officer from Olla, south of Monroe. "Then," Coleman said, "this should be over."

There's been little subtlety in the response from Republican powers.

Waiting for water: Myanmar's villages get left behind in development boom

DALA, Myanmar (AP) — Every afternoon, the long lines start to form, hundreds of men, women and children waiting to dip their plastic buckets into the lotus-filled reservoir just outside Myanmar's biggest city, Yangon. It's their only source of clean drinking water, they say, and during the dry season, April and May, there is only so much to go around.

"It wasn't always this way," says 72-year-old Tin Shwe, one of the village elders, as he looks at the queue, some boys as young as 8 waiting their turn, yokes at their side. "It used to be only paddy fields. Only a few houses."

Buffaloes repeat as 6-1A district champs

By TOMMY WELLS
Sports Editor

The Forsan High School Buffaloes track and field team added to their piece of hardware to their trophy case on Thursday. And it looks reads the same as the one last year: District champs.

Forsan nailed down its second straight boys' district title by winning the District 6-A Track and Field Championships in Seagraves. In the process, they qualified 12 individuals for the Area 5-6 Track and Field Meet, which will be held Thursday in Sundown.

The Buffaloes were aided in their run at the district title by placing second in the 4x100-, 4x200- and 4x400-meter relay events. With their three second-place finishes, FHS rolled up 54 points, and all three qualified for the postseason.

The Buffs' 4x100-meter team consists of Oscar Barraza, Garrett Kligora, Jesse Cervantes and Kolby Self. The 4x200-meter squad is Barraza, Walker Park, Self and Cervantes. The FHS 4x400-meter team is made up of Jesse Cervantes, Tyler Evans, Self and Jeremy Cervantes.

Jeremy Cervantes added two gold medals to his district haul, as well. He sprinted to wins in the boys' 80-0- and 1,600-meter runs.

Kligora also earned a first-place finish. He won the high jump competition.

Dillon Daniel and Evans also qualified for the area meet as individuals. Daniel was second in the pole vault, while Evans legged out a second-place effort in the 3,200-meter run.

Kade Fannin punched two tickets to the area meet by finishing third in the discus and high jump. Ross Freemen and Ian Park also advance. Freeman was third in the pole vault, while Park placed third in the 300-meter hurdles.

Park narrowly missed a second berth in the area meet by finishing fourth in the 110-meter hurdles.

Colby Hair finished fourth in the 100-meter dash standings.

Franco, Steers rip Sweetwater

By TOMMY WELLS
Sports Editor

The Big Spring High School Steers scored three runs in the bottom of the second inning and then rode the right arm of pitcher Adam Franco to a thrilling 5-3 victory over the Sweetwater Mustangs in front of a large crowd at Steer Park on Friday evening.

Franco hurled a complete game, scattering nine hits over seven innings of work.

Big Spring head coach Bobby Smith said he was confident his team could collect its fifth straight win once the BSHS bats broke through.

"We jumped out to a nice lead in the second," he said. "I know they came back and made it tight at the end, but I was confident Adam would make the pitches he needed in the end."

The win was extra special for Big Spring. The victory, combined with a 5-4 loss by Snyder to Monahans, left the Steers in sole possession of second place in the District 4-3A standings. Big Spring heads into Tuesday's home finale holding a one game lead over Snyder in the race for the district's No. 2 playoff seed.

After being held scoreless in their first at-bat, the Steers managed to break open the game in the second. Backed by quality at-bats from Haegan Rodriguez and Josh Gutierrez, Big Spring pushed across three runs in the bottom of the second.

The Steers stretched their lead to 4-0 in the third by being aggressive on the base paths.

Hunter Hill opened the third by reaching base via a throwing error to first. He easily advanced to second on the throw, and then raced to third moments later when Rodriguez beat out an infield hit.

Big Spring, now 14-9 overall and 5-2 in district play, didn't waste any time in adding to the Mustangs deficit. Shortly after reaching base, Rodriguez broke for second and drew a throw from the Sweetwater catcher. The throw sailed into center field, allowing Hill to race home from third.

The Mustangs rallied back to within one, at 4-3 over the next two innings. They scored one in the fifth and two more in the sixth.

The Steers regained the momentum in the bottom of the sixth. Gutierrez raced home on an error to rebuild the BSHS lead to 5-3.

ONE WOMAN'S MISSION TO HELP THOSE IN NEED

If you haven't seen the lady who gives out clothes from the trunk of her car lately there is a good reason.

She has been busy taking care of her son who is recovering from pneumonia. But she'll be back on her rounds soon enough.

Lupe Loya has devoted her life to her faith and to giving to those in need.

Every Tuesday and Thursday morning, Loya helps distribute food to the needy at her church. But her work doesn't end there.

From the trunk of her car, Loya provides shoes and clothes to people who can't afford to buy their own, often with money from her own pocket.

She began giving away clothes and shoes when she saw that many of the people who came to her church for food were in tattered shoes and clothing.

"I saw a lady who was sitting in the church waiting, and I looked at her shoes that were in bad shape," explained Loya. "I asked her if she needed some shoes, so I took her to my car where I had several pairs and gave her a pair. She hugged me, and I felt like the Lord had dropped something on my chest, and I knew that was what I had to do, and I love it so much."

As a young girl Loya went to church with her mother, however, she was of a different mindset at that time.

"I thought I would never do that because my mother had too many kids. But now I love doing it and I don't want anything back, but, you know, the more I give, the more I get back."

Helping with distribution at St. Vincent de Paul and at the Immaculate Heart of Mary and giving away clothing items aren't the only goodwill activities Loya participates in.

Through her church, she also visits the sick and homebound providing food and help with utility bills.

"I make burritos or soups for the sick and I take them clothes if they need them," she said.

While helping the needy is something she enjoys doing herself, being a witness to her faith and sharing that happiness is a crucial element of her philanthropy.

"I love spreading the word of God," Loya said. "I take little books that I pay for myself and give them out to the people I visit."

During her rounds, Loya also makes trips to Canterbury, a senior retirement community, where she likes to give jewelry to the elderly ladies there.

According to Loya, the best part of what she does is the response she gets from the recipients of her kindness. "Nothing surprises me more," Loya explained. "How happy people are when I give them something. There was a lady who came in with torn clothes, and I took her three pretty blouses of my own, and she gave me a hug and said she loved me, and I said I loved her too and that I would pray for her. I pray for everyone I help."

Being Ready to Receive

We pursue our educations, work at our careers, raise our families, worry about retirement and prepare for the inevitable: death and taxes.

In the meantime, the lives of believers and non-believers show little marked difference other than church attendance. Beyond confessions of faith, hymns and sermons, the Second Coming of Christ appears to be irrelevant to daily life.

But what if He comes today?

What if He comes tomorrow?

What if He came yesterday?

No, I am not suggesting you missed the "rapture." But, He did, in fact, come yesterday and He will, in fact, come today.

Jesus comes to us everyday if we are looking for Him.

He comes in small, imperceptible and unexpected ways.

He comes in the interruptions that beg for our attention and threaten to derail our pre-planned agendas.

This is exactly what Jesus taught His disciples before His ascension into Heaven.

Jesus said when He returns, "the King will say to those on his right, 'Come, you who are blessed by my Father; take your inheritance, the kingdom prepared for you since the creation of the world.'

For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you invited me in, I needed clothes and you clothed me, I was sick and you looked after me, I was in prison and you came to visit me.' "Then the righteous will answer him, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you something to drink?'

When did we see you a stranger and invite you in, or needing clothes and clothe you?'

When did we see you sick or in prison and go to visit you?'

The King will reply, 'Truly I tell you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for me.'

... 'Truly I tell you, whatever you did not do for one of the least of these, you did not do for me.' (Matthew 25:31-46)

He came to me in the person of a young Hispanic employee at Wal-Mart who needed words of encouragement.

He came in the form of a Chinese woman named Chiu who was fishing on a pier with her mentally handicapped daughter.

Once He came in the form of a teenage unwed mother who had given birth to a son who died a few days later.

How many times have I missed Him and failed to recognize Him? I don't know.

He comes every day in many ways and forms that we are likely to miss if we are too focused on our own agendas.

We might even miss Him by being too focused on our opinions about eschatology.

If we live our lives alert and ready to receive Him each and every day in the small encounters with the "least of these" we will become salt and light, as Jesus described it. In the process, we will be ready to receive Him in that day, when He appears like lightning from east to west. We might even hear Him say, "Well done, my good and faithful servant."

Keep Big Spring Beautiful

Keep Big Spring Beautiful met for their regular meeting on Monday, April 7, in the Howard College Cactus Room with 24 members present.

KBSB received the HEB Green Bag Grant and members participated in giving 500 bags to HEB customers.

Giving the bags is to encourage customers to use these in place of plastic which will hopefully keep the plastic off the streets and out of our trees.

The Don't Mess With Texas Trash Off event held on April 5 was deemed a success.

There were 150 plus participants, including Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Many businesses picked up around their area. Alon USA employees were able to collect more than 1,300 pounds of litter in the area of roadway that they maintain.

Don't Mess With Texas Trash Off will continue through the month of April.

If any group is interested in picking up an area you can contact Pat Simmons at 432-263-4607.

Litter Index was completed this past month. KBSB members went throughout the six districts in Big Spring rating how well Big Spring does in keeping litter off our streets.

Rating of 1 is good with 4 being very poor. Big Spring was rated 2.06.

Where we need to be concerned is personal property, vacant lots, old tires and junk cars.

KBSB will be holding a tire recycling April 12 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Residents can bring tires to the city landfill during that time at no charge.

Howard College Art students will be painting trash cans as a project studying impressionist artists.

These cans will then be placed in Comanche Trail Park. This is being done to promote park users to please place trash where it belongs.....in the CAN.

The Education Committee is working on a project with 5th grade students from all elementary schools.

Starting May 1, students will have two weeks to collect plastic bags from out on the streets or before they go into the trash.

KBSB will be educating the students on the importance of recycling.

The winners will be rewarded with an ice cream party.

Next meeting date will be May 5.

Big Spring Art Association

The Big Spring Art Association will have its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, April 15 at 7 p.m. in the community room of the Howard County Library.

The program this month will be presented by Lane Bond, president of the association and photographer.

The meetings are open to the general public and all persons interested in any phase of the arts is cordially welcome to attend.

Travel loves made-up words

NEW YORK (AP)

Hotels advertise "bleisure" packages. The Thai Tourism Authority is promoting "honeysteering." And a Mississippi TV anchor told advocates of gay equality to "go on gaycation."

Whatever you're doing on vacation, chances are there's a made-up word to describe it. Combine honeymoon and volunteering, you get honeysteering. Combine business and leisure, you get bleisure. Add glamour to a camping trip with wine, steak and scented candles, and you're glamping.

Lexicographers call these blended words portmanteaus. The travel industry doesn't have a monopoly on them — think "brunch."

But they do "come in handy in a business sector where there's often a need to come up with clever marketing spin," said Ben Zimmer, executive producer of Vocabulary.com and language columnist for The Wall Street Journal. "It's niche marketing. You're trying to appeal to different sectors of the public: 'Well, we have a special kind of tourism for you and it has a special name.'"

Other examples: vol-untourism, ecotourism and mancations — the latter, describing a guys' getaway, popularized by Vince Vaughn in the 2006 movie "The Break-Up." And while the word honeymoon is centuries-old, one of the first cited references to baby-moons, a couple's trip before the first baby, was in a 2004 promotion for luxury resorts.

Sometimes heavy marketing can make these blends seem like "stunt words," said Katherine Connor Martin, head of U.S. Dictionaries for Oxford University Press, which publishes the Oxford English Dictionary. "They're so cute and self-conscious."

Their overuse can even lead to a backlash, as with staycations, a term that often elicits an "UGH!" response — mainly because most of us would rather go away than stay home if we could afford it. The word staycations was used before the recession, but it was only when people cut back on vacations during the economic slowdown that destinations started using the term to market themselves to locals.

"It was trying to take a bleak economic picture and make it into something happy," Zimmer said. "It had a euphemistic sound."

The suffix "-cation" is also well-suited to blends, especially if you come up with a term that rhymes with vacations. And so, in addition to staycations and gaycations, there are nakations at nudist colonies, hurrications if you leave town ahead of a storm, and playcations, just for fun.

But how do portmanteaus go from being terms nobody can figure out at first glance, like honeysteering or bleisure, to words everybody loves to hate, like staycation?

"People coin many more words than we end up adopting," Martin said. "It's hard to predict which will catch on and which won't. It's about seeing people actually using the word in an un-self-conscious way, expecting people to know what they mean."

A made-up word crosses over into acceptability — and maybe consideration for a dictionary entry — "when it's used for a period of time and in a variety of contexts in independent use, and not just the same magazine trying to make it happen again and again," Martin said.

Kory Stamper, associate editor for the Merriam-Webster dictionary company, says lexicographers track words in various ways to look for first use, but it's often "really difficult to determine who, exactly, coined a word." She says Merriam-Webster traces staycation to a quote that appeared in an Alabama newspaper in 2005, while Zimmer traces it to an online review from 1999.

Bleisure first appeared in a Carlson Hotels press release in 2007, Stamper said, while ecotourism dates to 1982. Hurrication appeared in 2005 after Katrina, and glamping showed up in the United Kingdom in 2005. And while the Thai Tourism Authority issued the "honeysteering" promotion in March of this year, Stamper traces the word's first use to 2006.

As more proof that portmanteaus are often used in marketing beyond travel, Zimmer cites "framily" from quirky Sprint commercials offering discounts on calls to friends and family. The father in the ad even "says framily is not a word," Zimmer notes. "He says you can't just put two words together and make a new word. It's funny because it's very self-conscious."

Drought hangs on

By ROBERT BURNS
AgriLife Agent

COLLEGE STATION – During the first week of April, parts of the North, East, Central and Rolling Plains regions received from 0.5 inch to 2 inches of rain, according to the National Weather Service and reports from Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service personnel.

The rest of the state remained largely dry, receiving from a trace to 0.5 inch, which did little to stop the further encroachment of severe to extreme drought in some areas.

According to the April 1 U.S. Drought Monitor summary, nearly 67 percent of the state remained in one stage of drought or another.

Though AgriLife Extension county agent reports from all of the Texas High Plains were dismal, those from the Panhandle continued to be the most dire, where the entire region was either under extreme or exceptional drought conditions.

Dale Dunlap, AgriLife Extension agent in Wheeler County, reported that dryland wheat farmers were already bringing in crop insurance adjusters. In some areas, irrigated wheat was suffering from moisture stress as well.

J.R. Sprague, AgriLife Extension agent in Lipscomb County, reported wildfires burned approximately 10,000 acres the past three weeks.

Throughout the Panhandle, high winds and extremely dry soils meant farmers had to fight wind-blown soil erosion.

In the South Plains, high winds were also drying out soils, but

Energy Watch

Bhupen Agrawal is branch manager and a managing director — investments for the Wells Fargo Advisors Midland office.

Bill Franks, AAMS, is a senior registered client associate and the senior associate to the branch manager.

Momentum stocks were all the rage throughout most of 2013 and into the first couple of months of this year. But then a funny thing happened; they lost momentum. Media coverage over the last few weeks has been heavy as many of these high fliers have quickly lost altitude and sputtered into a slightly less dramatic sphere of valuation. Still, most of these stocks are not cheap.

As has been the case many times in the stock market's history, traditional valuation criteria have largely been thrown out the window as numerous technology and biotech companies' stock prices traded to lofty levels, often times in the absence of any underlying earnings. Initial public offerings (IPO's) have also been part of the momentum story. In fact, according to a recent report, of the approximately 50 IPOs that have been launched this year, two-thirds of the companies did not generate any current earnings. It appears as though some investors have been partying like it was 1999.

But companies perceived to be in the super-growth category often defy gravity. Valuation is what the market will bear based on what an investor is willing to pay. When the potential is deemed great but magnitude is uncertain, prices can trade to astronomical heights. Sure, some of these companies will live up to their potential, but most probably will not. These are not the types of “investments” we want our clients focusing on.

Most investors, if they want to own these types of stocks, should limit exposure to only a small percentage of their total equity portfolio — maybe 5 percent if they are truly risk takers. It is a bad idea, at least in this strategist's opinion, to load up one's portfolio with a bunch of potential home run stocks. We want our clients building wealth over the long term with quality stocks that are the leaders in their industries and possess good underlying fundamentals.

We tend to like stocks that allow us an opportunity to knock out singles and doubles with an occasional triple. We want consistency and predictability for the majority of our equity exposure. The bottom line is most of these momentum stocks are trading stocks. You need to be light on your feet. You need to love riding the roller coaster. But they tend to be too volatile, except in extremely small doses, for most investors.

Home run stocks, just like home run hitters in baseball, tend to strike out frequently. We do not want our clients to strike out frequently. Portfolios plagued by frequent strikeouts obviously create a major headwind for any investor trying to reach his or her longer-term financial goals. Luckily, the sheer number of these big-hype momentum stocks is less than in some past cycles (i.e., the late 1990s). The overall market is moving ahead based on reasonable fundamentals. There are many quality stocks selling at attractive valuations. Don't rely on the long ball.

Overturf: Certification notes training, experience

Special to the Herald

Constance Overturf with Robinson Drilling of Texas in Big Spring, Texas, has been recognized as a Certified Safety & Health Official (CSHO) by the Texas A&M Engineering Extension Service (TEEX), a component agency of the Texas A&M University System.

In July of 1994, the TEEX OSHA Training Institute Southwest Education Center was designated by the OSHA Training Institute as an Education Center for Region VI.

The center equips individuals with the knowledge and skills to maintain voluntary compliance with OSHA regulations and provide a safe workplace for their employees.

The attainment of the CSHO designation is a culmination of many years of experience within the safety profession and a minimum of 237 hours of classroom training through TEEX.

The designation is designed for personnel in the public or private sector who perform safety and health work on a daily basis or have safety oversight responsibilities of other workers, including inspections and audits.

“Constance Overturf is to be congratulated on this achievement and to his dedication to providing a safe and healthy work environment for his company and fellow employees,” a TEEX official said.

DROUGHT

drought monitor ratings were less severe in parts of the region than in the Panhandle. Long-range forecasts spelled worsening conditions for that area too, according to Mark Brown, AgriLife Extension agent for Lubbock County. The entire region needs above-normal summer rains to pull it out of the drought, but the 90-day forecast is for below-normal rainfall, he said.

Nearly all the Rolling Plains region was also under extreme to severe drought, according to the monitor. Ryan Martin, AgriLife Extension agent for Motley County, said warmer temperatures have brought out summer grasses, but with zero soil moisture the prospects for growth are poor.

 The most recent drought development has been its expansion in Central Texas. Since the April 1 report, the area did receive some rain, with about 0.5 the most common, while some areas got about 1.5

inch. The exceptions in the Central region were those counties to the east, which have shared some of the better rains the rest of the state have received.

Assume you're declarer at four spades and West leads the ace and another diamond, which you ruff. You lead the ten of spades, which wins, and then the jack, taken by West with the ace. West shifts to a heart, won by East with the ace, and East returns the king of diamonds. It doesn't matter whether you ruff high or low — in either case West sooner or later scores his nine of trumps, and down you go. That's the story if you played the hand this way, but naturally there's more to it than that. The question is whether you can figure out how to make the contract — and it can be made — now that you know how the East-West cards are divided.

 As with most problems of this type, the solution is easy once you've seen it. If you'd like to work it out for yourself, stop reading right here; if not, here's the way it's done:
 Obviously, you have to try to do something to keep West from getting a second trump trick. To that end, after ruffing the diamond jack at trick two, you should lead a club and trump it in dummy!
 Now play the third round of diamonds and, when East produces the king, discard a heart (instead of ruffing). This hands East-West their second trick, but the only other one they can get is the ace of trumps. East is out of diamonds, and there is nothing else he can return to injure you.
 The effect of this "loser on loser" play is that it removes a potential threatening card (the king of diamonds) from East's hand at the same time as you dispose of a heart — which was a loser in any case.
 It is not important that you wind up losing two diamond tricks instead of a heart and a diamond. What is important is that you lose only one trump trick instead of two.

"What's the use of a fine house if you haven't got a tolerable planet to put it on?" — Henry David Thoreau

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Some people's best decisions are born of stillness. Your best decisions today will happen in motion. There's a deep intelligence within you that is unlocked in movement.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Couples who know and love each other for a long period of time had better have a few disagreements; otherwise, at least one of them is not being completely authentic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). If there's one thing you will cherish above all else today it's the particular brand of humor you share with your loved ones. This unique bond is validating and healing.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Your creativity will spark to the feel of a new environment. You'll be particularly tuned in to color and light. Inspiration will carry you to your next idea.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll be voting in some way, most likely with your social approval or with your money. There will be those who would like you to believe that your opinion doesn't make an enormous difference, but you know better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There is no passion to be found in materialism or money, though you feel strongly driven to achieve a financial goal. It's your beliefs about what things mean that make them motivational to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It is most civilized to stay aware of animal nature. Like most animals, humans are territorial. You accept this and expect the natural inclination to fight for personal space.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Your social decisions will be as brilliant as they are varied. You understand well that there is a time to wait for others and a time to go to them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Appearances can and will deceive on this tricky day. Be careful not to look for reasons for why things are so without first verifying whether they are really so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Though you haven't had adequate time or resources to realize your dreams, you still feel that they are alive and well. Seize today's opportunity to act on this feeling.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're comfortable with the way good friends want to spend time with you. If they stay longer or leave sooner than you had planned, your willingness to go with the flow makes for a positive experience regardless.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You don't need to cultivate open spaces to enjoy them. You'll have a special appreciation for wilderness in whatever form you may encounter it today.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 13). As you focus on mutually fulfilling exchanges and possibilities that make you happy, success is yours over and over. Loved ones accept your help and act on your advice. In May, you'll trade up for something you've wanted for a long time. June brings challenge and reward. September brings a new order. Pisces and Scorpio people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 5, 39, 18 and 47.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Tomorrow, Pluto will begin a retrograde journey through Capricorn that will last for five months. During this time, you may notice how the authority figures in your family have shaped who you are, especially a father figure. Adults often continue parenting themselves in the way they learned as children, although there is always the option of customizing your inner parenting style to support the person you want to become. It may be challenging to consistently see your situation in a way that helps you to stay positive, but there is a great benefit to doing so. Choosing helpful thoughts is a habit anyone can cultivate. For those who harbor resentment about the way powerful people have misused their power, this will be a time to work through it and let it go so it can no longer impact the way you live or are on the inside.

Tuesday brings the total lunar eclipse and full moon in Libra. The theme is that ultimately people teach you how they want to be treated, though they don't always realize they are doing this. This eclipse will bring more awareness to interactions, especially with loved ones and people we work with often.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Revered Founding Father, principle author of the Declaration of Independence and the third American president, Thomas Jefferson was born under a Sagittarius moon, which is the moon of exploration. One of Jefferson's many achievements was supporting Lewis and Clark's Corps of Discovery to the Pacific Ocean. His Mercury in dreamy Pisces indicates the ability to communicate a vision.

Judge: Flashing headlights is free speech

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — Hauling a truckload of logs to a Southern Oregon mill last fall, Chris Hill noticed a sheriff's deputy behind him and flashed his lights to warn a UPS driver coming the other way.

The deputy pulled over Hill on U.S. Highway 140 in White City and handed him a $260 ticket for improperly using his headlights, saying another deputy had seen the flashing lights from behind the UPS truck and alerted him to stop the log truck because of the signaling.

Outraged, Hill decided to fight the ticket, and on Wednesday, a Jackson County Justice Court judge dismissed the citation, finding that motorists flashing their headlights amounts to speech protected by the Oregon Constitution.

Judge Joseph Carter determined the law covering the use of high beams was valid, but was unconstitutional as it was applied by the deputy.

"The citation was clearly given to punish the Defendant for that expression," the judge wrote. "The government certainly can and should enforce the traffic laws for the safety of all drivers on the road. However, the government cannot enforce the traffic laws, or any other laws, to punish drivers for their expressive conduct."

The Jackson County Sheriff's Office did not return a telephone call for comment.

Hill, 38, of Klamath Falls, has been driving truck for 10 years, and was not interested in seeing his insurance rates go up for getting a ticket. He initially told the deputy that the UPS driver was his neighbor, and he was just saying hello.

"My point to the cop was his partner didn't know why I was flashing my lights," Hill said. "He couldn't tell for sure what I was doing."

By the time his case went to court last month, Hill had researched the law and found nothing that expressly prohibited the use of headlights to signal other drivers. He also recalled a TV news story about a federal judge in the Midwest barring police from handing out tickets to drivers who flashed their lights to warn others of a speed trap ahead.

"I thought, 'Well, I'll throw that in there, too,'" he said.

Acting as his own attorney in a hearing conducted by telephone, Hill said he acknowledged the UPS driver wasn't his neighbor, and he raised the free speech argument.

"What I did wasn't illegal, whether it's freedom of speech or not," he told The Associated Press.

Dave Fidanque, director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Oregon, noted the Oregon Court of Appeals overturned a traffic law prohibiting horn honking for non-traffic purposes on similar grounds in the 1990s after a number of people got tickets for honking in support of U.S. troops during the first Gulf War.

"If the motive of the sheriff's deputies was in fact not to make the roads safer, but to raise more revenue from traffic enforcement, that would be even more reason why it should be unconstitutional," Fidanque said. "If this is part of a pattern, then it probably would be worth us looking into it in more detail."

Computer support call leads to burglary arrest

DOVER, N.H. (AP) — Mike Witonis got an email from Apple thanking him for calling customer service about his laptop computer. Problem is, someone had stolen it from him a year earlier.

Police eventually arrested 24-year-old Casey Wentworth of Portsmouth on Monday and charged him with burglary. He's accused of taking the laptop from Witonis' home in Dover in February 2013.

When the break-in happened, police said they couldn't identify any suspects. Detectives contacted Apple and the laptop's serial number was flagged.

When Witonis got the email, he contacted police, who said the person who called customer service used the serial number of the stolen computer.

Witonis tells WMUR-TV (bit.ly/1k2NLgi) the discovery was sort of shocking.

Wentworth is scheduled to be arraigned on May 2. It wasn't immediately known if he had a lawyer.

Rosa Parks archives remain in warehouse

NEW YORK (AP) — At a time when interest in civil rights memorabilia is rekindled, a lifetime's worth of Rosa Parks' belongings, among them her Presidential Medal of Freedom, sits in a New York warehouse, unseen and unsold.

Parks' archives could be worth millions, especially now that 50th anniversaries of the civil rights era are being celebrated and the hunt is on for artifacts to fill a new Smithsonian museum of African-American history.

But a years-long legal fight between Parks' heirs and her friends, a dispute similar to the court battle among Martin Luther King Jr.'s heirs, led to the memorabilia being taken away from her home city of Detroit and offered up to the highest bidder.

So far, no high bidder has emerged.

Parks is one of the most beloved women in American history. She became an enduring symbol of the civil rights movement when she refused to cede her seat on a Montgomery, Ala., bus to a white man. That triggered a yearlong bus boycott that helped to dismantle officially sanctioned segregation, and lift King to national prominence.

Because of the fight over Parks' will, historians, students of the movement and the general public have had no access to items such as her photographs with presidents, her Congressional Gold Medal, a pillbox hat that she may have worn on the Montgomery bus, a signed postcard from King, decades of documents from civil rights meetings, and her ruminations about life in the South as a black woman.

Parks wanted people to see her mementos and learn from her life, said Elaine Steele, a longtime friend who heads the Rosa and Raymond Parks Institute for Self-Development, a foundation Parks co-founded in Detroit in 1987.

"In my opinion, it was quite clear what she wanted," Steele said.

Steele's lawyer, Steven Cohen, said Parks' heirs and the institute certainly could come to agreement on sending the artifacts to an appropriate institution "if we could close out the estate and get away from" the probate court. He said he hopes to resolve the matter in six months to a year.

"It will happen," Cohen said. "But right now we're hamstrung, because the probate court continues to want to monitor and control our activities. And it shouldn't."

Parks, who died in 2005 at age 92, stipulated in her will that the institute bearing her name receive a trove of personal correspondence, papers relating to her work for the Montgomery branch of the NAACP, tributes from presidents and world leaders, school books, family Bibles, clothing and furniture. Her nieces and nephews challenged her will, and her archives were seized by a court; a judge ordered it sold in one lump sale.

King's belongings also are locked in a legal dispute.

King's sons, Martin Luther King III and Dexter Scott King, want to sell or lease their father's Nobel Peace Prize medallion and one of his Bibles; King's daughter, the Rev. Bernice King, opposes such a move. Because of the squabbling, a judge ordered the Bible and prize medal to be held in a safe deposit box controlled by the court until the disagreement can be resolved.

Since 2006, Guernsey's Auctioneers have kept Parks' valuables in a New York warehouse, waiting for someone to offer the $8 million to $10 million asking price. By comparison, the city of Atlanta paid $32 million to King's children for his papers, and the Henry Ford Museum paid $492,000 just for the bus aboard which Parks took her 1955 stand for civil rights.

Rex Ellis, associate director of Curatorial Affairs at the Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture, thinks Parks' archives should be in a museum or research facility. Ellis would not say whether Smithsonian officials are interested in buying it, just that they would "love for these items to be a part of the museum," due to open next year, which is also the 60th anniversary of the Montgomery bus boycott.

"She was just an extraordinary figure that any student of American history, not African-American history, any student of American history should know and be aware of," Ellis said.

Steele, wearing a lapel button that read, "I (heart) Rosa Parks," said the fact that Parks' belongings are stuck in court-ordered limbo is "very heartbreaking," because it has taken away a powerful learning tool.

"If you see something of Dr. King's or President Lincoln, Malcolm X, it's quite special. 'Wow. These were their personal things,'" Steele said. "That means quite a bit."

The 'greatest story ever told' is fodder for Hollywood films

The Bible has been fodder for movies since the genesis of Tinseltown, beginning in 1922 with "Samson and Delilah," an Austrian silent short that premiered on Christmas Day. The following year, Cecil B. DeMille unveiled the first blockbuster Biblical epic, "The Ten Commandments," and Hollywood was off and running.

In the decades to follow, there have been dozens of faith-based movies, including DeMille's own 1956 remake of "The Ten Commandments," this one starring Charlton Heston as Moses. Three years later, Heston stepped into the role of a Jewish prince framed for a crime and sold into slavery in "Ben Hur." The film was based on a best-selling 19th century novel by Lew Wallace titled "Ben Hur: A Tale of Christ," considered to be the most influential Christian book of the 19th century.

The 21st Century has seen a rekindled interest in such films, beginning with Mel Gibson's "The Passion of the Christ," which premiered on Ash Wednesday 2004. The film was a box office success, earning an astonishing $370,782,930, making it the highest-grossing R-rated movie of all time and the highest-grossing foreign language film released in the United States.

But it wasn't until

Roma Downey and Mark Burnett's epic TV miniseries, "The Bible," that Hollywood really took note of what The Bible — the world's best selling and most widely distributed book — could do for Hollywood's coffers.

The five-week, 10-hour television miniseries, which premiered March 3, 2013, has been viewed more than 100 million times. The project's popularity gave birth to a film version, titled "Son of God," which was quickly followed by "Noah," starring Russell Crowe, "God's Not Dead," a new independent Christian film about faith and the limits one young man will go to in order to defend his belief in God, and TriStar Pictures' "Heaven is for Real," the true story of a four-year-old son of a small town Nebraska pastor who experienced heaven during emergency surgery.

Before the year is out, one more Biblical-based film awaits moviegoers:

"Exodus." The Twentieth Century Fox film, which casts Christian Bale as Moses, is scheduled for a Christmas release.

The Rev. Stockton Williams of St. Peter's Episcopal Church said he's not concerned about whether or not such films make the wallets of Hollywood moguls thicker; he's just happy to see Christian-based movies making it to the big screen.

"The primary motivation is monetary. It's good business," Williams said, noting that "Noah" zoomed immediately to first place in receipts, replacing "Divergent," an action-adventure futuristic film set in a world where people are divided into distinct factions based on human virtues.

"That said, I also think parts of Hollywood realize that the market for Bible-based films is under-served, so there currently is an effort to serve that market, which is a good thing."

Williams has seen both "Noah" and "Son of God," and he plans to see the other films.

"I've been interested that even the more moderate Muslim countries like United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Bahrain have banned 'Noah,' because it is considered wrong to portray a prophet, which they consider Noah to be. The movie also sends the moviemakers' message that God is opposed to cities and industry, is opposed to eating meat, and it also puts a contemporary concern about global warming back into an era that's several thousand years ago."

But, Williams said, he believes such movies "overall expresses reverence toward God, and puts prayer and obedience to God's will in a good light. It shows the beauty of God's creation and the way God works through obedient followers to achieve his will. It demonstrates God's sadness, grief and anger over human evil."

The Rev. Mike Cave of Hunt United Methodist Church agreed.

"It seems to me that certain times see the advent of more such movies. Why? I think in difficult and uncertain times — such as we may now be in — can cause people to search for something beyond themselves, be it God or some other ultimate reality."
