

Honoring our veterans

31st Memorial Day Ceremony set at Trinity Memorial Park

Herald Staff Report

Trinity Memorial Park and Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home will host the 31st annual Memorial Day Ceremony to be held Monday, May 26, at 2 p.m. on the grounds of Trinity Memorial Park, located 5 miles south on Highway 87 (San Angelo Highway).

In honor of Howard County veterans, there will be more than 100 full-size American flags flying in the Avenue of Flags, which are sponsored by the veteran's families. Veterans organizations of Howard County will participate in a wreath-laying ceremony at the main flagpole to honor veterans, both past and pres-

A special group continuing to help each year with this event is the Boy Scouts of the Buffalo Trail Council who will be placing miniature American flags on veterans' graves at Trinity Memorial Park. These miniature flags will be placed Saturday, May 24 and removed Tuesday, May 29.

For more information, contact Tammy D. Lockhart, manager, at 267-8243, or fax at 267-3864.

Air museum to be open

Hangar 25 Air Museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Memorial Day.

The museum will feature a new MIA/POW exhibit focusing on Big Spring and Webb AFB.

Concessions will be available and selected gift shop items will be on sale. All veterans and active military will receive a free cap. For more information, call 264-1999.

Texas news in brief

Officials to survey Texas Panhandle wildfire toll

FRITCH, Texas (AP) – Teams of emergency officials will comb a 4-square-mile area of the Texas Panhandle to assess the damage from a wildfire and search for potential victims.

Texas A&M Forest Service spokesman Troy Duchneaux says the crews will mount a door-to-door search today of the area around Lake Meredith about 30 miles northeast of Amarillo.

Duchneaux says the fire that started Sunday near Fritch was about 65 percent contained today. Fire crews have been focusing on hotspots and buildings still smoldering.

He says the fire has destroyed 156 structures, including at least 89 homes, and forced about 2,100 people to evacuate. No injuries were reported.

The National Weather Service says today's forecast for the area includes a chance for showers with highs in the 60s and winds gusting to 25 mph.

Inmate seeking delay cites botched execution

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) – A federal appeals court has rejected a Texas death row inmate's appeal that his execution could result in a bungled lethal injection similar to one two weeks ago in Oklahoma.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said late Monday that speculation about Texas' use of a lethal drug from a secret provider is not enough to prove Robert James Campbell's claim that the punishment could cause unconstitutional pain and suffering.

Oklahoma authorities say a broken vein caused the failure of Clayton Lockett's execution.

Campbell's execution is scheduled for Tuesday evening. His attorney says she's taking the matter to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Another appeal contending Campbell is mentally impaired and ineligible for execution remains before the 5th Circuit. Attorneys have a petition about the issue before the Supreme Court.

UNT researchers develop drone with Wi-Fi signal

DENTON, Texas (AP) – A small drone built at the University of North Texas could eventually be the key to improved communications at a major disaster.

Two UNT professors, Yan Wan and Shengli Fu, have developed a drone that disperses a Wi-Fi signal that could improve communications for first responders and victims at the center of a disaster.

The Denton Record-Chronicle reports the development is just one piece of a Smart Emergency Response System that the professors are working on with other academics and industry leaders across the country as part of a White House Presidential Innovation Fellow project.

Other projects completed within the system include human-operated robots that could act as first responders, trained search-and-rescue dogs and a control center base. When used together, the pieces create a communications infrastructure that will improve response to emergencies, said Wan, an assistant professor of electrical engineering.

Thousands lose electricity in Texas storms, rain

DALLAS (AP) — More than 30,000homes and businesses have lost electricity after storms soaked parts of Texas and a weather-related blaze left two firefighters hurt.

The National Weather Service says areas of East Texas are under a flash flood watch through Tuesday afternoon.

A flash flood watch for far South Texas runs through Tuesday night.

CPS Energy reported nearly 19,000 homes and businesses without power Tuesday mainly in the San Antonio area. Austin Energy had about 1,600 customers without electricity. Dallasbased Oncor reported about 5,600 outages. CenterPoint Energy had about 4,100 Houston-area outages.

Two Fort Worth firefighters were seriously hurt Monday when they were in an attic and the floor collapsed. One man has a back injury while the other broke his arm in the house fire blamed on lightning.

Texas woman finds 12-foot python in bathroom

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - A 12-foot python has been returned to its owner after a slithery stop at a Central Texas home where a woman earlier bathed her pet guinea pigs.

The Eagle newspaper reported Tuesday that Veronica Rodriguez was shocked in early May when the big snake turned up in her bathroom.

Police believe the African python slipped into the house when Rodriguez left the back door open after bathing her three household guinea pigs and putting the critters in outdoor pens.

Rodriguez says she heard strange noises, returned to the bathroom and discovered the snake crawling into the tub. She called 911.

College Station police and animal control officers removed the snake, using a city trash can as a temporary receptacle for the reptile.

No guinea pigs were harmed.

German FM travels to Kiev to help launch talks between Ukrainian government and its foes

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Germany's foreign minister flew to Ukraine Tuesday to help start talks between the Ukrainian government and its foes following the declaration of independence by two eastern regions.

Speaking at the Kiev Boryspil airport Tuesday morning, Frank-Walter Steinmeier said Germany supports Ukraine's efforts to arrange for a dialogue between the central government and its opponents in the eastern Donetsk and Luhansk regions that form the nation's industrial heartland.

Steinmeier voiced hope for a quick release of hostages and freeing captured government buildings, and stressed the importance of the presidential vote on May 25.

Steinmeier's trip is intended to begin implementing a road map for settling the crisis laid out by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, a top trans-Atlantic security and rights group.

Pedophile teacher abused dozens of boys around world as chances to them to cookies and milk at bedtime.

That was the public persona of William Vahey, carefully crafted over four decades until a maid cleaning his home in Nicaragua stole a 16-gigabyte memory drive.

There, in photograph after photograph, was evidence that the model teacher had molested scores of adolescent boys, possibly more, in a career spanning 10 schools on four continents.

The discovery of a man the FBI regards as one of the most prolific pedophiles in memory has set off a crisis in the close-knit community of international schools, where horrified parents are being told their children may have been victims of a favorite teacher, and administrators are scurrying to close teacher-vetting loopholes revealed by Vahey's abuses.

U.S. flying manned surveillance aircraft over Nigeria in hunt for missing girls

ABUJA, Nigeria (AP) — A Nigerian government official said "all options are open" in the search for missing schoolgirls that's now being actively supported by U.S. surveillance and reconnaissance aircraft.

Boko Haram, the militant group that is holding school in northeast Nigeria last month has focused international attention on the extremist group amid outrage that most of the girls have not been rescued.

Scorn, icy stares are part of the job for lawyers who represent despised terrorism suspects

NEW YORK (AP) — People in the courthouse sometimes shun them. Friends, and even family, sometimes question their principles.

For the small band of lawyers who defend the most despised terror suspects — the ones accused of hatching al-Qaida plots to kill Americans around the world — this is the highly uncomfortable life they chose.

They are the true believers in the legal principle that everybody deserves representation in court, even if it means they get the same scorn and sometimes the same scrutiny as the people they represent.

Such hazards are becoming more common for the few dozen defense attorneys who specialize in terrorism cases as the Justice Department pushes the use of civilian courts — most often federal court in Manhattan — to bring

An errant newspaper, having rolled into the street due to high winds, has often caused me to deliver it to a safe place near the neighbor's front door. The same gesture has been extended to an empty dumpster being placed back near the garage. Gingerly stepping over and through the familiar waste of numerous white wing and Eurasian collared doves is routine. But the latter part of April brought a surprise.

Although we had not seen its members, another specie had made its presence known. That the birds had dined on berries was obvious from their droppings.

"They're here!" I yelled to Art as a loud muffler accompanied by a car rushed toward the intersection to the south. "Who's here?" he asked.

"Waxwings! Cedar waxwings."

Each small splat had the coloration of royal purple. Tiny seeds had withstood the digestive process, only to be cast on concrete rather than soil.

"Too early for mulberries?" I wondered, as I looked for signs of spent yaupon berries. Most of the fruit from our native red junipers had already been harvested. To

As we enjoyed a late lunch, we soon were entertained by three waxwings drinking from our water basins. No longer able to resist the lure of a bath, one of the birds dipped its beak repeatedly in order to throw moisture in every direction.

A movement above brought two more into view. Patiently, they waited their turn. This visual treat was special, since cedar waxwings are nomadic in their search for food and sometimes wander erratically.

For its finale, the last of April also brought 50-mileper-hour gusts of blowing dirt. Having seen the waxwings relax during a calm moment, we hoped they were safe.

One had not been so fortunate a few years ago.

Blown into a picture window, the bird had fallen to the ground. Having heard the impact, a woman rushed outside and found it lying near her favorite rose bush.

Only time and a quiet place for it to recover would hopefully offer a positive result. Placed in a deep box with a screen top, it was at least given a chance.

It gave us once again an opportunity to appreciate its silky appearance. Every feather seemed to have been applied by an artist's delicate brush strokes. Colors blended with grace.

An hour later, the bird was standing but unfazed by our brief presence. Clad in soft brown that ultimately segued into gray on its wings, back, and tail, the cedar waxwing was stately with its crested head, and black mask edged with white.

Bright yellow tips on its tail contrasted sharply with its softer yellow belly and sides.

While it stood so passively, we could appreciate the red, oblong ends on some of its wing feathers. They were a symbol of maturity, and were reminiscent of sealing wax used centuries ago to insure the security of documents or mail. The cedar waxwing had derived its name from its appetite for native berries, and this tiny enhancement to the tips of its feathers.

Addled was the only word I could muster for the bird's condition. Several hours later, my opinion changed.

The masked marvel was perched on a roost we had provided. It stiffened and elongated its colorful body when it realized it no longer was alone.

Since it was recovering, we waited to see if it would eat. Some harvested mulberries from a friend's tree the previous year were offered.

After readily swallowing several pieces of fruit, the waxwing returned to its perch. Once it had rubbed its beak from side to side on the rough wood, it began to preen.

When set free, the cedar waxwing rose with rapid wing beats. Soon it would join the flocks swooping into neighborhoods and the state park in search of berries. They would also avail themselves of insects and the petals of flowering ornamental trees.

As the first weekend in May offered a respite from a windy, dusty April, we appreciated the knowledge gained from our neighbor's driveway and trees. Unannounced, a favorite specie had come for a spring feast and overnight accommodations. Only through its droppings had we learned of its presence.

A quick course on 'Waltzing Matilda' his morning I woke up silently singing "Waltzing Matilda." Now this song has been around since 1894 so I'm sure you have sung it or at least heard it.

The lyrics of the song were written by Andrew Barton (Banjo) Patterson and were set to the tune "The Craigielee March." Over the years, several versions of the lyrics have emerged but in 1972 the original manuscript was found together with the tune. As I was silently reviewing the lyrics in

my mind I stopped and asked myself, "What in the world am I singing? I have no idea what these lyrics mean." So I decided I'd better find out.

The story behind the song is quite remarkable. In 1894, there was a sheep shearers strike in Australia that had become quite violent. During the course of the strike, the woolshed at the Dagworth Homestead was set on fire, killing more than a hundred sheep.

The owner of Dagworth Homestead and three policemen gave chase to one of the arsonists named Hoffmeister. Rather than be captured, Hoffmeister killed himself at the Combo Waterhole. A few months later, Banjo Patterson was visiting the Dagworth Homestead. During his stay, the owner took Banjo around the station and stopped at the Combo Waterhole where they found the skin of a sheep that had been killed. Obviously someone had made a meal of it.

As Banjo was thinking about the strange story, the daughter of the owner of the Dagworth Homestead was playing "The Craigielee March" on the zither. Banjo began developing lyrics to that melody and "Waltzing Matilda" was born.

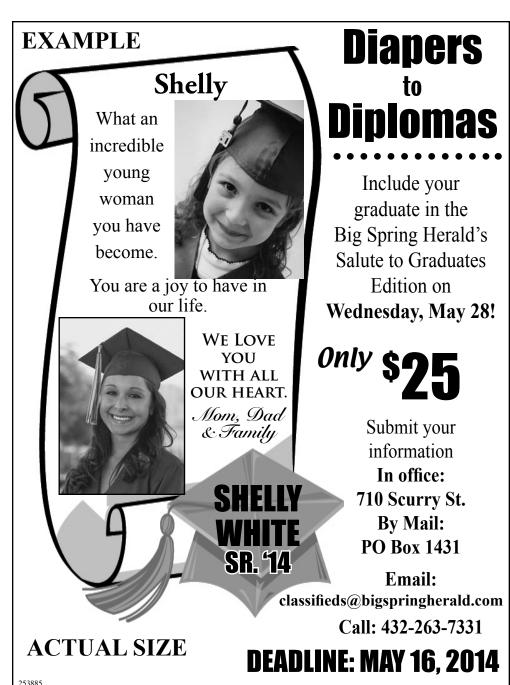

The story tells of a swagman in the outback. A swagman is a man who drifts (or waltzes) from one job to another carrying a blanket roll known as a Matilda which was used by soldiers who rolled them into a swag tossed over their shoulders while marching. The swagman was camped under a coolibah tree (a type of eucalyptus tree) along a billabong (a river bend) waiting for his water to boil in a billy (a can for boiling water) when he spotted a jumbuck or a lamb. He stole the lamb and put it in his tucker bag, (a bag for carrying food). Soon the stockman or owner came with three troopers or policemen. They ask him what's in the knapsack. Attempting to escape, the swagman jumped into the waterhole and drowned.

The lyrics were written with the intent of telling a simple story of a swagman who had fallen on hard times and the only comfort that he had was when he was drifting, or waltzing, with his Matilda. However, for the Australians, it represented a conflict with the British government. England had given Australia selfgovernment by the 1890s and many of the Australians believed they should become independent. The sheep shearers strike had caused internal strife and the sheep shearers were rebelling against the prevalent British class system. It was the wealthy land owners against the peasants.

Public opinion rallied on the side of the sheep shearers and the wealthy lost their social significance. In 1897 and 1898, a federal convention drew up a constitution for Australia and in 1900 Britain gave Australia independence. It is believed by some Australians that because "Waltzing Matilda" was so popular, it kept the cause for social justice in front of the public's mind and many wanted the song to become the national anthem.

It has never been officially recognized as the national anthem in Australia but unofficially it is often used in similar circumstances. I hope you enjoyed this waltz along the billabong.

Darrell Ryan, in the Big Spring Independent School District director of school safety.

Local businessmen visit with Daktronics representatives during an exhibition of a new high-tech scoreboard at Memorial Stadium on Monday morning. Locals are hoping to raise the funds for the new scoreboard, which could be in place by August.

Locals look to bring high-tech scoreboard to Memorial Stadium

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

The transformation of Memorial Stadium from ugly duckling to Hollywood goddess is almost complete. Well, it will be if several local residents have their way.

Several local businessesmen, including local Steers mega-booster Mike Abusaab, held a meeting with Big Spring High School and Daktronics officials to begin preliminary talks on updating Memorial Stadium's antique scoreboard. Local boosters want to upgrade the Memorial Stadium facility to current operational levels as those found at several other area schools, including Abilene Wylie, Midland, Odessa and San Angelo – and thereby making the overall experience for fans better, as well as make the local community more attractive for other special events. "I think it would be great," said Big Spring High School Athletic Director and football coach Phillip Ritchey said. "With the changes that have been made here, the only thing we really lack is something like this. I think it would help us attract more playoff games here."

As part of the plan, Daktronics, a scoreboard manufacturing/marketing company based in Brookings, South Dakota, would install an approximately 15x24-foot board in the stadium. The new scoreboard will make it possible for BSISD officials to broadcast live action, replay and other items on the scoreboard. The new board would also enable the school district to display other school-related items on the screen during events, as well as allow local businesses to advertise their services and wares.

Chaps ends Hawks' season

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

The Midland College Chaparrals dealt the Howard College Hawks the toughest blow imaginable on Monday afternoon at Dan Law Field on the campus of Texas Tech University. The end blow.

Midland College's Justin Clarkson hit a run-scoring triple with two outs in the top of the ninth inning and helped carry the Chaparrals to a 6-5 victory over the Hawks in the consolation finals of the Region V Baseball Tournament. Clarkson's triple, with allowed Josh Nevarez to score from third, lifted Midland College to its first win of the season over Howard and put the Chaps in the tournament finals for the second straight season.

For the Hawks, who had beaten Midland College in four straight games in March, the loss ended a stellar season in which the team went 41-18.

The Chaparrals, 37-23 overall, took advantage of a rough start by the Hawks. Midland College scored two runs in the top of the first after stringing together three consecutive hits off HC starter Zach Flanagan.

After Flanagan had retired the Chaps' lead-off batter on a slow tapper back to the mound, Clarkson and Caleb Koedyker recorded singles. Both raced home moments later when Midland catcher Chris Shaw hit a double off the wall in left.

Flanagan took control of the game from there. The right-hander held the Chaparral bats in check over the next three innings, allowing just one hit.

The Hawks, who struggled early against MC starter Clay O'Dell, managed to find their swing in the home half of the fourth. Howard collected four hits in the inning and rallied to tie the game at 2-2.

Julian Service led off the HC inning

Beltre and Odor lead Rangers to 4-0 victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Rougned and didn't try to do much with Odor has had a rough start to his Major League career. Things quickly turned around for him on Monday night.

The rookie second baseman collected his first home run and drove in his first two runs as Colby Lewis threw 52-3 shutout innings, and Adrian Beltre also homered to lead the Texas Rangers to a 4-0 win over the Houston Astros.

Odor, who entered Monday just 2 for 12, had two hits, including a run-scoring single in the fourth and a homer in the sixth - a solo shot into the upper deck in right field — to make it 4-0.

"He swung the bat well, especially that base hit he got up the middle," Texas manager Ron Washington said. "He (Brad Peacock) threw him a fastball away and he stayed on the pitch it but hit it where it was. And then he went up there and took a chance that he was going to throw him a first-pitch fastball and got the head out."

Washington said one thing about Odor was that he walked up to plate confident and not scared.

Odor said through a translator that he felt good.

"I'm not scared because it's the same as down in the minor leagues," Odor said. "I take it in that perspective."

Lewis (3-2) struck out a season-high eight and allowed seven hits to improve to 4-0 in his career at Minute Maid Park. The right-hander bounced back from a poor outing against Colorado on Wednesday where he allowed seven runs in less than four innings.

Trailblazers look to extend series question for his Portland teammates: "Why not us?"

No other team has come back from a 3-0 deficit to win a playoff series. But the Trail Blazers took the first step Monday night by beating the San Antonio Spurs 103-92 to stave off elimi-

Nicolas Batum had a simple nation and narrow the Western Conference semifinal series to 3-1.

Blaze Yeater throws a pitch in the Forsan Buffaloes' win over Tahoka last week in the second-round of the Class A state baseball playoffs. Forsan will face Winters in the quarterfinal round on Friday. The two teams will face off in a best-of-three series at Moffett Field in Snyder. Friday's game will begin at 8 p.m. Game 2 of the series will start on Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

with a single to left. He raced home moments later, scoring from first base when Hawks' clean-up batter Brandon Wagner drilled a 3-2 pitch to left for a double.

After a single by Matthew Holcombe had pushed Wagner to third, he raced home with the tying run on a grounder to short by Eddie Paparella.

Paparella was among the Hawks' offensive stars of the game. Despite striking out and hitting into a double play ear, he finished the game with a teamhigh three runs batted in.

Midland College regained the lead in the top of the fifth. The Chaps, using a pair of bunt singles, scored two runs in the frame and chased Flanagan from the mound.

Kenny Roder relieved Flanagan in the frame.

Midland added another run in the sixth and stretched its lead to 5-2.

The Hawks, down to their final nine outs, refused to go down quietly.

Ryan Romo, who had entered the game in the first to replace an injured Ismael Edwards, started the HC seventh with a one-out walk. From there, Midland reliever Sebastian Palacios walked Dane Steinhagen and hit Service to load the bases. Following a walk to Holcombe to cut the MC lead to 5-3, Paparella greeted the Chaps' third pitcher of the inning by driving a 2-2 pitch up the middle for a game-tying single.

Steinhagen and Service both scored on the play.

Romo enjoyed one of the Hawks better outings of the tournament, He went-3-for-3 with a walk.

Midland scored three runs in the ninth inning and defeated McLennan Community College, 5-4, in the ensuing game and forced a decisive second game, which is scheduled for Tuesday.

McLennan had rallied from an 8-0 deficit to deal Howard College a 9-8 loss in the winner's finals on Sunday afternoon.

The winner of today's game will advance to the NJCAA College World Series in Grand Junction, Colo.

an uneven split in household chores.

Get some counseling, preferably with your husband, but without him, if necessary. Find out what you can change, what you cannot and what you are willing to live with.

Dear Annie: I have been married for eight years and knew my husband for four years before that. The addressed to my husband only, as if I don't exist. My husband's children always buy him gifts for his birthday and holidays, but I get a gift from one or two of them, and the rest ignore me. I sign everything, "Dad and Mary" or "Grandpa Bob and Grandma Mary," but the thank-you always goes to "Dad" or "Grandpa.' His grown children are nice to me, but I am not included in anything. Even on the wedding invitation from his son, it was addressed to "Bob Jones and Family."

Blackwood and learning her partner had two aces. West led a diamond, and Sylvia won East's queen with the ace

Sylvia recognized at once that the contract could be made only if the spades were divided favorably, and, having made this assessment, she ran her clubs. After she had cashed five of them, this was the position:

Sylvia cashed the nine of clubs and - consistent with her belief that the spades had to come home for the grand slam to be made - discarded the ace of hearts from dummy! East discarded the jack of hearts, but when Sylvia next led the eight of clubs, he found it impossible to discard successfully. Whatever he did, she was sure to score the rest of the tricks

Oddly enough, had Sylvia failed to discard the ace of hearts, she could not have made the grand slam!

Dear Feel: We think the kids like you well enough, but they aren't entirely comfortable with your position. And where their mother no doubt insists that they treat her husband with respect, your husband doesn't seem to be demanding the same. He needs to tell his kids that notes and invitations to the two of you need to be addressed that way, and that vour special occasions should be recognized with at least a card. Meanwhile, we hope you can handle some of this with humor instead of bitterness. It will help.

Dear Annie: I was taken back by "Betsey's" response to "Concerned Mother." To this day, I send my mother a text telling her I am home when returning from a trip. This is something I have done since I was a latchkey kid, all the way through college and now as a 33-year-old working mom. It gives both of us peace of mind. My 42-year-old husband does the same thing. We do not feel suffocated. It's just what we do when we know others love us. -- Latchkey Mom

Dear Young: This is not a phase that will pass. This is what your husband is going to be like as long as he can get away with it. The fact that he prefers to sleep alone indicates that there is more going on than dream of treating their stepdad like this. Am I being too sensitive? I am at the point where I don't want to participate in any more birthday parties, holidays or anything else that involves getting together with his kids.

I have tried so hard to get them to like me. I met their Dad after his marriage was over, and his wife had cheated on him. They treat their stepdad great. So why do I get this treatment? I don't think it's ever going to get any better. Am I right to say forget about them? -- Feel Left Out

Scorpio Moon Eve

Our physical and emotional bodies receive and react to information very quickly on this eve of the intuitive

Scorpio moon. Objective analysis of the facts will take much longer. We would be wise to give our initial responses more credence than the rational opinions formed subsequently.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Saying the smart thing will take a bit of planning. Think about what you want to express, and practice different approaches. In the end, you'll get it right because you took the time to work it out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The type of person who worries a lot will provide valuable wisdom and sound advice, but you'll have to listen past a lot of anxious vibes to get there.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Surely you've felt forces of protection and good will around you. It's as though you have your own personal archangel assigned only to you -- and maybe you do.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Lately, it seems like the minute you think you know who you are or aren't, you don't. It's because you're so engaged with the world, always growing and changing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll be the beneficiary of a small but surprising twist of fate. This is the first of many signs that your luck is flowing in a very positive way. The more you notice this the truer it becomes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Sometimes when your dreams come true it happens in a way that you don't recognize at first. What seems negative in the moment will actually turn out to be, in the end, a stroke of good luck.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). There's an art to goal setting. You want to stretch into exciting territory, but not so far HOLIDAY into it that your aims are unreasonable. You'll meet someone who gives you a great gauge for what's possible.

> SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You thought you were doing all you could to make a relationship work, but new developments help you see a new and much better way. Past efforts will seem minimal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You're warm and engaging, and you will break down barriers to make a connection with others. People think you're naturally socially aware, but the truth is that you make an effort to be S0.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your heart will be open to the feelings that jump out of the television, your neighbor, the music on your radio and more. Since you'll be much more sensitive than usual, limit your exposure to potentially negative environments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). If you find yourself pretending to be someone other than who you've been before, you're just responding to a subtle but very real change in your environment. More will come to light tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Follow the instructions as best you can. They may not be as clear as you wish they were, nor will they fit your situation perfectly, but they will save you a whole lot of time and money.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 13). You'll love this new age you're coming into, because it offers more freedom. You'll make memories with a dear one over the next 10 weeks, leading up to a new direction and adventure throughout the fall. A very practical investment will pay off in August. You'll build a kind of monument in October. Pisces and Sagittarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 2, 13, 5, 14 and 26.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS:

Yesterday's question was from a Leo gripped in the anxiety and grief of financial trouble. Leo wrote, "I wish I weren't so high strung. ... I cry every few hours and then feel guilty because so many people have it so much worse than I do. Do you have any advice for a Leo who can't calm down?'

To carry on yesterday's response, it does no good to wish you could take the high road while you are processing a pain that is real to you. Leos are passionate and expressive, and you may as well embrace it because stifling it is futile. Not wanting a feeling, or thinking you have no right to feel it, won't make the feeling go away. Instead, channel your fear and grief so you can move into a more effective frame of mind:

1. Affirm that you have a right to your feelings.

2. Agree not to let shame and guilt play into your process for now. In other words, stop shaming yourself and agree that whatever feeling or fear you're having is OK.

3. Go somewhere safe and release. You could talk to a counselor or a friend, or you could drive somewhere remote in your car, roll up the windows and let yourself rage and cry for as long as it takes to feel better. More tomorrow.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Leading vampire of his generation, Robert Pattinson has a busy release schedule ahead, including David Cronenberg's complex look at Hollywood and celebrity culture in the drama "Maps to the Stars." Pattinson was born when the sun and Mercury were in Taurus, a sensual and earthy part of the sky. His soulful Cancer moon brings a soulful touch to the overall picture for this actor and musician.

BOARD

Continued from Page 6 board, which – if local donors support the proposal could be unveiled as soon as August at the Big Spring Community Pep Rally.

Local support is vital for the project, he said.

"The school district can't buy this," he said. "We're going to need some people to help us get this for the students, and help make this a place to be proud of."

According to Daktronics officials, funding the scoreboard is a simple process. The company can, if the district wishes, seek long-term sponsors to cover the cost of the scoreboard. Once the cost of the board is paid, any future revenue generated through the board would remain with the community.

In addition to manufacturing the high-tech video scoreboard, Dak-

The Individual Skill Camp for girls in grades 2-5 will run from 10:30 a.m. to noon. The Individual Skill Camp for boys in grades 4-12 will be from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. each day.

The cost for each camp is $50 per player.

All camps are fundraisers for the tronics representative Jim Hess also said the board would heighten the experience for players, fans and parents, and give the school district a premier venue. It would also give the district a bit of security in that the scoreboard would be guaranteed for 100,000 operating hours, or 10 years.

Daktronics officials note maintenance of the board was very user-friendly. Should one of the hundreds of display panels on the board become inoperable, it would not affect the operation of the rest of the scoreboard. Additionally, each display panel can be replaced by a local worker in approximately 10 minutes utilizing common tools.

"It could be operated by a school's Media class, making it a perfect way for them to get hands-on experience with cameras and video equipment, and it can
