'Pops' in danger of fizzling out?

By BILL McCLELLAN
 Managing Editor
 Here's the reality. If Pops in the Park doesn't come up with $20,000 soon, the show won't go on this year. "There may not be a Pops in the Park if we don't get some donations in the next two to three weeks," Kelly Seales, Pops chairman, said.

Seales

"We have around $25,000 and we still need a bare bones $20,000 to pay expenses," she explained. A quick rundown of costs includes $20,000 for the fireworks show, $15,000 for musicians and almost $8,000 for sound and staging. Other expenses include a preshow performance, portapottys and "all the things it takes to make the event happen," said Seales. Organizers attempted to allow a business to brand the event this year, but got no takers. In year's past, enough funds were donated that Pops organizers would have a significant portion of the funds going into the following year. But donations have been dwindling and organizers started out this year with just $2,500. "This is a shame because it's a great show, the largest in the area. Last year, approximately 18,000 people attended Pops in the Park. We have professional musicians accompanied by a professional fireworks show comparable to any you will find in larger cities. This year, we were able

Two former COs plead guilty to federal charges

Special to the Herald

ABILENE, Texas — Two former correctional officers at Big Spring Correctional Center in Big Spring, Texas, have pleaded guilty to federal charges stemming from an investigation after an inmate committed suicide two years ago. Wednesday, Frederick Hernandez, 45, of Big Spring, appeared before U.S. District Judge Sam R. Cummings and pleaded guilty to one count of making false statements and aiding and abetting. He faces a maximum statutory penalty of five years in federal prison and a $250,000 fine. Last Friday, Christopher Moore, 42, of Dallas, pleaded guilty to one count of misprision of a felony. He faces a maximum statutory penalty of three years in federal prison and a $250,000 fine. Judge Cummings ordered a presentence investigation report for each defendant with a sentencing date to be set after the completion of those reports. According to plea documents filed in the case, from Aug. 22-23, 2012, Hernandez and Moore were assigned to the Flight Line Unit in the Special Housing Unit. Hernandez was the officer in charge. Part of their duties included making mandatory 30-minute safety checks of each cell and conducting six mandatory formal inmate counts during a 24-hour period, at 12:01 a.m., 3 a.m., 5 a.m., 10 a.m., 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. Each correctional officer is further required to certify that the mandatory 30-minute safety check of each cell and the mandatory formal inmate counts were made. An inmate housed in the Flight Line Unit committed suicide during the 8 p.m.,

Local man arrested in robbery

Herald Staff Report

Big Spring police have made an arrest in the Big A Shaved Ice robbery. Heriberto Medina-Torres, 21, of Big Spring, was charged with aggravated robbery, a first degree felony, for his alleged role in the incident. Officers were called to Big A, located at 1811 Gregg, early Monday morning. Witnesses said a male subject wearing a dark gray hoodie and red pants, with a red bandana covering his face, entered the building armed with a handgun and demanded money. Employees complied with his demands and he fled the scene with an undisclosed amount of cash. "Following up on tips from citizens, a suspect was identified," BSPD Public Information Officer Sgt. Tony Everett

Eagles Lodge, Xiled combine to help Scottish Rite Hospital

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer

The local Eagles Lodge wants your help to aid sick children, and all you need is an appetite and a few bucks. The lodge, located at 703 W. Third, and the Xiled Motorcycle Club will hold the third annual benefit for the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children Saturday. Eagles president Paul Moran said the fundraiser will be held in two parts. First, the lodge will be the site of a benefit barbecue meal, with serving beginning at noon.

Plates are $10 per person. An auction featuring a wide variety of gifts will follow, Moran said. "This is something we've enjoyed doing every year we've had it," Moran said. "We're hoping the third year will definitely be the charm — I think this will be the biggest, most successful benefit we've had." That evening, the action will shift to the Xiled clubhouse at 600 N.E. Second. Xiled President Robert Gomez said bike games and music from The New Revolution and the Bobby Champion Band will be offered from 8 p.m. until closing. The benefit has raised more than $5,000 each of the past two years and Moran is hoping to bring in even more money Saturday. "We hope to double that this year," he said. "We hate to set a specific goal, but of course, we're shooting to bring in as much as we can." For more information, contact Moran at 928-345-8014 or Gomez at 432-466-6415, Contact Steve Reagan at 263-7331 or reporter@bigspringherald.com

I-20 cleared after fire accident

BY LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

They've got the all clear and motorists are moving down I-20 now with no problems.

Parts of Interstate 20 were shut down in Martin County most of Tuesday afternoon after a diesel truck caught fire during a two-vehicle collision.

According to Howard County Volunteer Fire Chief Tommy Sullivan, five volunteer firefighting units from Howard County responded to the call which came in around 1:15 p.m. Also responding were three firefighting units from Martin County and two more from northeast Midland County.

According to DPS, the crash occurred in Martin County on Interstate 20 near mile marker 163. The truck tractor semi-trailer (TTST) carrying diesel had broken down and was parked on the shoulder of I-20 with its reflective markers out to alert other motorists. The truck belongs to Chemoil. The DPS said a second truck tractor semi-trailer owned by Card Moore Trucking was traveling from behind and "for some unknown reason struck the legally parked TTST," causing it to catch fire. No injuries were reported but Texas Department of Transportation officials closed the west bound lanes and one east bound lane to traffic. Vehicles were rerouted to the service road, causing traffic to back up in that area for some time.

"The heat of the fire melted the top of the tank and exposed all the diesel," Sullivan said. "We had to make a bigger fire before we could put it out. We had to push product out of the tank so we can put foam on top of it to put it out."

Sullivan said firefighters used both foam and water to contain the fire, which was extinguished within the hour. Diesel did leak onto the bar ditch, Sullivan said, so fire fighters created dikes to catch water and foam and keep the leaked diesel from reigniting until environmental crews arrived. Those crews are expected to remove the soil contaminated by the diesel.

"We had the flames extinguished pretty quick but then we had to finish pulling off all the hot metal and cool it off, and we had to keep blanketing the diesel that was in the bar ditch. Diesel will flash at 110 degrees and with the heat it wouldn't have taken much."

Sullivan said the second TTST truck was carrying glass, which left the roadway blanketed with glass shards.

TxDOT reported the east bound lane was open about 4:30 with one west bound lane open to traffic approximately an hour later. According to the DPS, charges of failure to drive in a single lane will be filed.

"We just need the money to pay for it," she added.

If the $20,000 cannot be raised it would probably

Hernandez admitted that he completed, signed and submitted to the Department of Justice, as required by law, the "SHU Control Log" forms indicating that formal counts of inmates had been performed from 12:01 a.m. to 5:10 a.m. Hernandez further admitted he knew the logs were not correct and were false in that the formal counts of inmates were not conducted.

Moore admitted he knew correctional officers at the Big Spring Correctional Center submitted forms to the Department of Justice, as required by law, indicating that safety check rounds were conducted, when, in fact, he knew they had not been conducted. He further admitted that he concealed this fact and failed to advise an authority.

In related cases, two other defendants, James McKinnon, 22, and Jamie Navarette Salgado, 24, each pleaded guilty in September 2013; McKinnon pleaded guilty to one count of misprision of a felony and Salgado pleaded guilty to one count of making false statements and aiding and abetting. In December 2013, McKinnon was sentenced to six months in federal prison and ordered to pay a $500.00 fine. He is presently serving his prison time. McKinnon and Salgado also worked as correctional officers assigned to the Flight Line Unit. Salgado admitted making false entries on logs and falsely indicating he had conducted safety rounds. McKinnon admitted that he knew entries on the logs were incorrect and that he failed to advise an authority.

The Department of Justice Office of the Inspector General conducted the investigation. Assistant U.S. Attorney Paulina Jacobo is prosecuting.

Obama's new illegal alien dumping grounds

A source tipped me off last week to a curious occurrence: It seems that two plane-loads of illegal aliens were recently shipped to Massachusetts. The first reportedly landed at Hanscom Air Force Base in Bedford. According to my tipster, approximately 160 illegal immigrants arrived on that flight and stayed nearly a week before being transferred to a Department of Homeland Security site and then released.

The second flight reportedly was diverted from Hanscom to Boston's Logan Airport this past weekend. I am told that both Massachusetts and New Hampshire officials were on hand. I reached out to Hanscom AFB for confirmation, but did not receive a call back by my deadline.

Question: How many other military bases are stealthily being used to redistribute, house, process and release illegal border crossers?

What we do know for sure is that the Obama administration already has converted several other military bases across the country into outposts for tens of thousands of illegal aliens from Central and South America.

San Antonio's Lackland Air Force Base opened its doors as an illegal immigrant camp last month. Port Hueneme Naval Base in Ventura County, Calif., will shelter nearly 600 illegal border-crossing children and teens. The Fort Sill Army post in Lawton, Okla., was ordered on Friday to take in 1,200 illegal aliens despite the objections of GOP Gov. Mary Fallin, who blasted the White House, saying, “The Obama administration continues to fail in its duty to protect our borders and continues to promote policies that encourage, rather than discourage, illegal immigration.”

A makeshift detention center in Nogales, Ariz., is being used as the central clearing station for the latest illegal alien surge. The deluge is a threat to national security, public safety and public health — not to mention a slap in the face to the law-abiding men and women in uniform on those bases and a kick in the teeth to law-abiding people around the world patiently waiting for approval of their visas.

Meanwhile, a law enforcement source in Texas tells me this week that countless illegal aliens are being released into the general public despite testing positive for tuberculosis.

“The feds are putting them on public transportation to God knows where,” he said.

Another source, working in the border patrol in south Texas, tells me: “Our station, along with every other station, is flooded with women and small children. One lady yesterday had a baby as young as 8 months. And they're coming over with pink eye and scabies. So getting them medically cleared becomes a priority. They'll be here for almost a week, so we provide them with formula and diapers. We have a catering service contracted to feed them because it's too many for us to feed on our own. And of course, they end up being released because every family housing facility is full. They're supposed to show up for immigration court at a later date, but they don't.”

Same old, same old. I've reported for years on the feds' catch-and-release games and deportation Kabuki. The “notice to appear” letters — known as “run letters” — are a notorious joke in open-borders circles.

The latest “crisis” is a wholly manufactured byproduct of White House administrative amnesties, which are supported by a toxic alliance of ethnic-vote-seeking Democrats and cheap-labor-hungry Big Business Republicans. The flood comes just as Obama's DHS announced a two-year extension for beneficiaries of the “Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals” (DACA) program. A whopping 560,000 illegal aliens have been granted amnesty under DACA and also have received employment authorization.

As I've said for two decades, illegal alien amnesties guarantee two things: more illegal immigration and more Democratic voters. Now we have a White House forcing U.S. military bases to provide interminable benefits and services to illegal aliens for political gain, while said White House evades responsibility for allowing military veterans to die waiting for the most basic of medical services.

And where's the GOP “leadership” in this country? Doing the bidding of the amnesty-loving U.S. Chamber of Commerce and demonizing Republican candidates at every level who are sick and tired of giving away the store and the country.

God save us from bipartisanship.

What lurks in a child's online world?

What is the most shocking takeaway from the story of the two 12-year-olds who repeatedly stabbed their friend — nearly to death — on the imagined orders of a fantasy character?

Is it the preteens' apparent disconnect from the truth of what they were doing? One of the assailants childishly described her actions to police in their comfy Milwaukee suburb as “stabby, stab, stab.”

Is it the girls' seeming belief in the reality of a cartoonish character known as Slenderman, a faceless being in a tie, jacket and hat? The girls reportedly found him on a harmless-fun-sounding website called Creepypasta Wiki.

Slenderman resembles the Invisible Man, played with evil lunacy by Claude Rains in a 1933 movie. “Slendy,” as his “followers” call him, exists in an online subculture in which fans elaborate on a legend. (His creator, Eric Knudsen, says he's “deeply saddened” that his character inspired this terrible crime.)

Or is the most alarming part of the story that parents in Waukesha had never even heard of Slenderman, much less that this fictional presence had become an obsession of their sixth-graders? The most jarring item in this list has to be this last one.

Heartless crimes fueled by delusion are not new. In the '70s, the infamous “Son of Sam” shot and killed six people in New York, he said, on the orders of a neighbor's dog.

From what we know so far in the Wisconsin case, the girls, charged as adults with attempted murder after stabbing their friend 19 times, haven't shown they understand the seriousness of their actions.

One told police in a fairy tale cadence: “The bad part of me wanted her to die. The good part of me wanted her to live.”

And as already noted, there isn't anything especially realistic about Slenderman.

He's not so terrifying as the vampire Dracula, who sent the “three sisters” to prey on his victims. And he's less plausible than Bigfoot, the hairy humanoid said to lurk in the woods surrounding every Scout campfire.

What makes this case very modern is that the parents seemed unable to act as intermediaries between their children and their children's darkest fantasies. And how could they when the imaginings were hidden in their kids' online lives?

The fairy tale goblins of yore were passed on through books the parents read — or at least put on their shelves. When the Creature From the Black Lagoon appeared on the television screen the family shared, the parents could say, “He's not real.”

In a paper-based past, evidence of an unhealthy fixation, written or drawn, would be found strewn around a child's bedroom. There would be comic books. Young people might reveal their preoccupation in semi-public phone calls, not messages quickly tapped out and silently sent by electronic means.

I offer no answers here. It's hard to expect parents — busy in their working lives and their own online adventures — to monitor the every interaction of children approaching adolescence. And how many could find these deep cyber-recesses if they wanted to?

Furthermore, how many would have seen danger in a fascination with such a silly character as Slenderman? (Some might have seen value in the creative activities he seemed to spawn.)

As I said, no easy answers here. These days, we are communicating in less physically public ways. Banning teens from participating in the online culture would seem impractical, unfair and a handicap to their development.

Perhaps this is just a repeat of those rare but awful crimes involving children in the past, with a 21st-century update. Perhaps. But these girls should be studied carefully.

Coahoma ISD to have 175 in-class academic days for 2014-2015 year

BY LYNDEL MOODY

Staff Writer

Coahoma students will have a total of 175 instructional classroom days for the 2014-2015 school year.

Students will head back to class on Aug. 25. Last day of class and high school graduation is set for May 28, 2015.

The first semester will include 80 in classroom days and the second semester will have 15 more for a total of 95 instructional days.

Scheduled holidays are: Sept. 1, Labor Day; Oct. 13 and Nov. 26, staff development days; Nov. 27-28, Thanksgiving; Dec. 22-Jan. 2, 2015, Christmas; Jan. 5, 2015, staff development day; March 16-20, 2015, spring break; and April 3, 2015, Good Friday.

Feb. 16 and May 25, 2015, are scheduled as bad weather days. That means students will have those days off unless inclement weather causes officials to cancel a scheduled instructional day of school.

Obama holds up technical school as model for US

By JIM KUHNHENN

Associated Press

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Saluting graduates as they leave the safety of high school behind, President Barack Obama held up a revitalized technical school in New England on Wednesday as a model for the United States as the nation works to prepare youngsters for a global workforce that's more competitive than ever.

At Worcester Technical High School, Obama praised students and teachers alike for giving more than just "lip service" to the idea of skills-based education. He said the graduates were finishing senior year knowing how to run a restaurant, fix a computer or manage a household — skills that he said would let them begin their careers right away.

"I want the entire nation to learn from Worcester Tech," the president said.

Sixteen years ago, the Worcester campus was so outdated it was nearly shut down. Obama touted the school's remarkable transformation into a school with a demographic and educational profile that makes it a model of achievement.

"If it can happen in Worcester, it can happen in any place," Obama said.

Obama has been putting a spotlight on his education policies this week, drawing attention to efforts to lower student debt. But he also has been eager to showcase programs that break from the traditional classroom format or that are designed to improve the nation's science and technology workforce.

The Worcester school stands as an example of a triumph against the odds.

Six out of 10 students at the high school are underprivileged and qualify for free or reduced meals; 2 out of 10 have special needs. Yet, two years ago it was one of five schools nationally to win an award for student growth in high poverty areas. Last year, it was one of the Education Department's 286 national blue ribbon schools. And this year, its principal was named the Principal of the Year by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Obama reflected on his own struggle to overcome similar obstacles as a youngster growing up in Hawaii, adding that his family at times "had to scrape to get by." But ultimately, Obama said, the support of his teachers, family and community enabled him to finance a good education through grants and student loans.

"All of this happened because people saw in me something that I didn't always see in myself," Obama said during a commencement ceremony whose festive spirit wasn't dampened by rain that sent family members reaching for their umbrellas.

The rebirth of the school in this city halfway between Boston and Springfield came after the Worcester community decided, with the help of state and federal grants, to build a new, $90 million school that opened in 2006. The school has built relationships with businesses and universities, including a partnership with the Tufts School of Veterinary Medicine, that provide students with real-life experiences through internships and cooperative education jobs — an idea that Obama himself has promoted.

Following his address at the school, Obama was to attend a fundraiser for the campaign committee working to elect Democrats to the Senate.

Obama told the graduates that despite the cynicism that's emerged in the aftermath of the recession and the winding down of two wars, students at this school and ones like them across the country are showing that the U.S. will not only compete with the rest of the world, but "we are going to win."

"We don't settle, we outwork," Obama said. "We out-innovate, we out-hustle the competition. And when we do, nobody can beat us."

Rotary supports school attendance

Once again this Spring semester, the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club encouraged perfect attendance at all four elementary schools by giving a set of bikes away at Goliad Elementary, Marcy Elementary, Moss Elementary, and Washington Elementary.

"School attendance is important," said said Ken McIntosh, Rotary representative. "It is a baseline factor for student success. Research has shown that there is a high correlation between attendance and academic success."

"In an effort to help the BSISD improve its standing through better test scores, Rotarians from the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club purchased eight bicycles last fall and eight bicycles this spring in order to encourage students to strive for perfect attendance at school," he continued. "We want students to realize that every day at school is important."

Woman charged with throwing trash on race

SEATTLE (AP) — A 28-year-old woman whose sleep was interrupted by a cancer charity run outside her Seattle apartment has been charged with assault and reckless endangerment for pelting supporters with trash, used cat litter and frozen chicken.

Amy Lee was jailed briefly and has not yet entered a plea.

Charging papers say she tossed a bag of trash out her fifth floor window onto supporters cheering the June 1 Susan G. Komen Foundation Race for the Cure.

The seattlepi.com reports (<http://bit.ly/1lnsFKB>) she followed that with a load of kitty litter full of feces, a large piece of frozen chicken that hit a 13-year-old girl and a juice bottle that nearly hit a disabled man.

Lee told an officer she works 13 hours a day and needs to sleep in on Sundays. Attempts to locate Lee or her lawyer were unsuccessful.

ciation Division 4 quarterfinals, players carried out the toilet to the surprise of many at Bailey Park in Battle Creek.

Andrew Long, a senior, explained the potty's presence. He said last season the team had a miniature toilet that players would flush whenever they made a bad play to "flush down the bad memories." This year, Long said a discarded toilet was found for the dugout.

"We brought it everywhere," Long said.

Coach Steve Bennecke, who brought in the tiny toilet last season, said team members hope they'll be able to harness its porcelain power to keep playing well. He said he was as surprised as anyone else when the team turned out earlier this season with the toilet.

"I didn't know if this was a joke or if someone was making fun of us," Bennecke said.

The Comets face Beal City on Friday in the semifinals at Michigan State University in East Lansing — and the potty is expected to join them.

Officers opt to be zapped
during stun gun training

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Members of the Flint Police Department including the chief got a big shock during stun gun training.

The Flint Journal reports (<http://bit.ly/110uOxo>) laughter filled the department's roll call room Tuesday as officers took turns getting jolted.

Officers begin carrying the weapons starting this week. Chief James Tolbert says the move will help protect officers and anyone resisting an officer because it will cut down on physical contact. He was first in line Tuesday during the training to get a shock.

Tolbert described the electric pulsing as being like a pounding, making it almost impossible to move. He says once the 5-second shock was over he could move. Tolbert says the department has policy set for stun gun use — and now he knows what it feels like to get zapped.

Couple melted used
ammo for scrap metal

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Prosecutors in Washington state say a couple collected used ammunition from Joint Base Lewis-McChord and melted it down at their home to sell as scrap metal.

The operation went undiscovered for a year until a bullet exploded in January and blew a hole in the floor just above where two children were sleeping.

The News Tribune reports 27-year-old Cody Hyman and 32-year-old Juliette Parker of Tacoma have been charged with possession of an explosive device, assault and reckless endangerment.

The couple, who now live in Texas, are set to be arraigned June 23 in Tacoma.

Police in Alabama say man tried to arrest mayor

WEAVER, Ala. (AP) — Police in eastern Alabama arrested a man they say impersonated an officer and tried to arrest the mayor.

The Anniston Star reports that police say 59-year-old Bobby Beck showed up at City Hall in Weaver on Tuesday with a badge and a pistol on his belt and said he wanted to talk to Mayor Wayne Willis. When told the mayor wasn't available, he held up a pair of handcuffs and said he'd be back later to arrest him.

He was being held on felony charges of impersonating a peace officer, making a terrorist threat and carrying a pistol without a permit. It wasn't immediately clear if he has a lawyer.

Police Chief Wayne Bush says Beck told police he worked for the FBI and planned to arrest Willis for working part-time as mayor.

State officials remove moose from Boise

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — State wildlife officials say Tuesday afternoon they have tranquilized a moose on the east side of Boise and are moving it to a remote area.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game spokesman Mike Keckler says the 400-pound yearling has been living on the east side of the city but has recently started moving toward downtown.

Keckler says it was a dangerous situation because moose are large animals and that area of the city has a popular path on both sides of the river that draws walkers, runners and bikers.

He says officials had to remove a moose from the east side of Boise last year but it's not clear if it's the same moose.

State Conservation Officer Bill London said it was doubtful the moose would return to the city.

Biplane pilot uses fairway
as runway in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — He was using decades-old equipment on a famously tough course, but he hit the center of the fairway.

The pilot of a 1929 biplane with a sputtering engine and two passengers aboard made an emergency landing Tuesday on a fairway at Torrey Pines Golf Course in San Diego.

The plane sent stunned golfers scrambling, but it landed smoothly, and no one was injured in the plane or on the ground.

The Federal Aviation Administration says investigators examined the single-engine Travel Air 4000 on the course and it wasn't damaged.

The pilot's name was not released, and the owner, Daniels Aviation, couldn't be reached for comment.

Torrey Pines is among the nation's most elite public layouts. The seaside course is a PGA Tour stop and the site of Tiger Woods' 2008 US Open victory.

Radio-controlled copter
lost on stadium roof

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Charlie Brown has his kite-eating tree, but one unidentified man says the Dallas Cowboys' stadium in Arlington ate his radio-controlled helicopter.

The man, who posted a video from his small remote-controlled, four-rotor helicopter on YouTube, says he lost his radio link with his aircraft Tuesday and the copter landed on the stadium roof. In his video, he said stadium security officers wouldn't let him retrieve the aircraft.

Dallas Cowboys spokesman Brett Daniels says the copter has been found and retrieved and will be returned to its owner.

A Federal Aviation Administration statement says investigators will look into whether any FAA regulations regarding the use of model aircraft were violated.

Alaska woman wants daughter's name to be Awesome

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A Juneau, Alaska, woman wants to give her daughter an awesome middle name. Literally.

Lisa Flores is seeking court approval to legally change her daughter's middle name to Awesome.

The Juneau Empire reports (<http://is.gd/3NoIO1>) Awesome would replace the given middle name of Contea for 2 1/2-year-old Viviana Flores.

Mom allowed her 11-year-old son to initially pick out his sister's name. Dominic wanted her first name to be Danger, something Mom vetoed. He came back with Awesome for a middle name, but Lisa picked "Contea" at the last minute.

She now wants the name changed to honor her son's wishes and to thank Dominic for all he has done to help her.

He says the "cool" name will allow her to tell people all her life that she has an "Awesome" middle name.

Drivers gathering for Great
Nebraska Tractor Ride

WAYNE, Neb. (AP) — It's amazing, drivers say, what you can see as you buzz along at 15 mph on a tractor over hilly rural roads and narrow county blacktops.

More than 175 drivers will find out as they gather Friday in Wayne to begin the Great Nebraska Tractor Ride — an easygoing caravan of old mechanized workhorses through part of northeastern Nebraska.

Among the drivers will be Carol and Roger Fuoss, of rural Wayne. They belong to the Tri-State Old Iron Association, an antique tractor group based in Yankton, South Dakota, which sponsors a number of tractor rides. The two days of the Great Nebraska ride, on Friday and Saturday, begin and end at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

A similar ride began Monday in the Waterloo, Iowa, area.

The Fuosses will be riding on the double seat Roger installed on his 1967 International Farmall 756. The tractor ride may not be the most comfortable, but the Fuosses like the relatively leisurely pace.

"We take back roads and see things you don't see every day," Roger Fuoss told the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal.

Also, said Carol Fuoss, hitting the road on a tractor is a way to unwind.

"This is one time where he can sit back and relax, take things a little slower," she said. "It's nice to slow down."

As they ride and take breaks in the towns of Allen, Concord and Martinsburg, the Fuosses will visit old friends and make new ones, sharing their love of old tractors.

"It isn't a high-priced hobby. You're using stuff you already have," Roger Fuoss said.

Detour lets toads cross
road without croaking

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's rush hour in Philadelphia for thousands of baby toads as they hop across a busy residential street on a rainy summer night.

Why do toadlets cross the road? To get to the woods on the other side — where they will live, eat mosquitoes and grow up to be full-sized American toads (bufo americanus). After a couple of years, they'll make the reverse trek as adults — unless they get squashed by a car.

That's where the Toad Detour comes in.

The Schuylkill Center for Environmental Education sets up a roadblock each year in the Roxborough neighborhood, rerouting cars so the amphibians can cross the two-lane street without fear of, um, croaking.

The cycle starts in early spring when adult toads, which can fit in the palm of your hand, emerge from the woods to breed. They cross Port Royal Avenue, scale a 10-foot-high embankment and then travel down a densely vegetated hill to mate in the abandoned Upper Roxborough Reservoir. Their offspring make the journey in reverse about six weeks later.

So many baby toads were on the move Monday evening it looked like the road's muddy shoulder was alive. Volunteers scooped them up in plastic cups and deposited them on the habitat side of the street.

"I didn't expect at all that there were going to be so many of them in one area," said 17-year-old Kaitlyn Hunt.

California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A 10-year-old Northern California boy is celebrating a milestone most people don't reach until they are in their late teens.

Tanishq Abraham has become one of the youngest people to graduate from high school. The Sacramento boy received his diploma at a private ceremony in front of family and friends on Sunday, and even got a congratulatory letter from the White House, KXTV in Sacramento reported.

Tanishq was home-schooled and graduated with a 4.0 GPA. He told KXTV the work wasn't easy, but not that hard either.

"The way my brain works is that when you give me something, information about that topic comes into my mind," he said. "I don't know what it is, but that's how it is for me."

His mom, Taji, said she suspected her son was gifted, but didn't know until the results of an IQ test. Tanishq joined Mensa, a group for people whose IQ is in the top 2 percent of the population, at the age of 4.

So what's next for him?

Tanishq is taking college courses and says he wants to be a scientist, but also president. He has his sights set on medical school at the University of California, Davis, and finding a cure for cancer.

Olympia college cancels
horticulture program

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — South Puget Sound Community College has decided to discontinue its horticulture program.

College spokeswoman Kellie Purce Braseth says a study of graduates found many of the jobs the two-year program was designed to fill are now being taken by high school graduates.

One student, Shana Burk, told The Olympian (<http://bit.ly/1lntqmY>) the college told students one of the reasons for ending the program was that graduates aren't earning enough money with their degrees.

Toilet is fixture in prep
baseball team's dugout

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan prep baseball team is trying to flush away the bad plays by making a tradition of carting a toilet to its games.

The former bathroom fixture has become a game day fixture in Kalamazoo Christian's dugout, MLive.com reported.

On Tuesday, as the team celebrated a 6-4 win over Britton Deerfield in the Michigan High School Athletic Asso-

News in brief

Poll: Political polarization broader than ever before, extends far beyond the voting booth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political polarization in America has broken out of the voting booth.

A new survey from the Pew Research Center finds Americans are divided by ideology and partisanship not only when they cast ballots, but also in choosing where to live, where to get their news and with whom to associate.

And peaceful coexistence is increasingly difficult.

According to the poll, the share of Americans who hold across-the-board conservative or liberal views has doubled in the last decade, from 10 percent in 2004 to 21 percent today. Only 39 percent of Americans have an even mix of liberal and conservative positions, down from 49 percent 10 years ago.

The numbers of ideological purists are larger among the politically engaged than the general public, suggesting the ideological stalemates that have become more common in Washington and statehouses around the country are likely to continue. A third of those who say they regularly vote in primaries have all-or-nothing ideological views, as do 41 percent who say they have donated money to a campaign.

After 2 votes, Congress hopes to send veterans' health care bill to White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two overwhelming votes in two days, members of Congress say they are confident they can agree on a bill to improve veterans' health care and send it to the president's desk by the end of the month.

The Senate easily approved a bill Wednesday to help shorten wait times for thousands of military veterans seeking medical care, a day after the House unanimously adopted a similar measure.

The Senate bill would authorize about $35 billion over three years to pay for outside care for veterans, as well as hire hundreds of doctors and nurses and lease 26 new health facilities in 17 states and Puerto Rico. The House would spend about $620 million over the same period.

Just three lawmakers — all Republican senators — voted against the veterans measures, compared with 519 lawmakers who voted in favor.

Opponents said the Senate bill was a "blank check" to spend billions of dollars with little or no way to rein it in.

For White House, Cantor's defeat eliminates an irritant but brings little joy

WASHINGTON (AP) — For years, the White House saw House Majority Leader Eric Cantor as a chief driver of Republicans' staunch opposition to nearly all of President Barack Obama's agenda. Now, Cantor's stunning primary loss seems likely to make politics even more difficult for Obama.

Rather than opening a pathway for the president, Cantor's defeat could push Republicans more to the right and harden the House GOP's hostility toward the White House, virtually dooming Obama's efforts to pass a legacy-building immigration bill or other major legislation.

Robert Gibbs, a longtime Obama adviser, said any glee at the White House over Cantor's defeat was "quickly replaced by the reality that this is the end of anything productive getting done legislatively in Congress either this year or maybe for the next several years."

Cantor, the No. 2 Republican in the House, was soundly defeated by his tea party-backed opponent, a little-known economics professor named David Brat, in Virginia's GOP primary Tuesday. Despite being massively outspent by Cantor, Brat rode a wave of public anger over calls for more lenient immigration laws, reducing the prospects that already reluctant House Republicans might take up a bill this year.

The day after his defeat, Cantor announced he would serve out his term but resign his leadership post this summer, sparking a flurry of maneuvering among GOP lawmakers eager to take his spot.

Al-Qaida-inspired group vows to march on to Baghdad after seizing 2 key cities in Iraq

BAGHDAD (AP) — The al-Qaida-inspired group that led the charge in capturing two key Sunni-dominated cities in Iraq this week vowed Thursday to march on to Baghdad, raising fears about the Shiite-led government's ability to slow the assault following the insurgents' lightning gains.

Fighters from the militant group known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant on Wednesday took Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit, as soldiers and security forces abandoned their posts and yielded ground once controlled by U.S. forces.

That seizure followed the capture of much of Mosul, Iraq's second-largest city, the previous day. The group and its allies among local tribesmen also hold the city of Fallujah and other pockets of the Sunni-dominated Anbar province to the west of Baghdad.

A spokesman for the Islamic State said the group has old scores to settle with Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki's government in Baghdad. The Iraqi leader, a Shiite, is trying to hold onto power after indecisive elections in April.

Officials look at work commute in accident that injured Tracy Morgan; driver pleads not guilty

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Accident investigators are looking into what role a truck driver's commute played in the fatal New Jersey Turnpike crash that also injured comedian Tracy Morgan.

Wal-Mart driver Kevin Roper, who pleaded not guilty to death by auto and assault by auto charges on Wednesday, lived in Georgia, but his job was based in Delaware, said National Transportation Safety Board spokeswoman Kelly Nantel.

A criminal complaint alleges that the 35-year-old Roper, of Jonesboro, Georgia, hadn't slept for more than 24 hours before the accident when he allegedly swerved to avoid slowed traffic on the turnpike and plowed into Morgan's limo early Saturday.

Wal-Mart has not explained what Roper's driving route was. The company has said it believes he was in compliance with federal safety regulations.

Roper's bail was kept at $50,000. Roper and his attorney, David Glassman, refused to answer reporters' questions after the hearing about whether Roper was the author of tweets from a Twitter account bearing his name and featuring his picture and calling reports of his not having slept for 24 hours before the accident "complete BS!"

OSCE chief visits Ukraine refugees in Russia, calls for fighting to stop

MOSCOW (AP) — The secretary-general of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe is visiting a camp in Russia for refugees from the conflict in Ukraine's east and calling for the fighting to stop.

According to the Interfax news agency, Lamberto Zannier said Thursday that the conflict in the east "is craziness which must be stopped."

Zannier's appearance before the refugees at a holiday complex in Dmitriyevka, about 40 kilometers (25 miles) from the Ukrainian border, underlined the prominent role being played by the OSCE in the Ukraine crisis. Russia, which Kiev and the West allege has fomented the separatist unrest in the east, has spoken strongly in support of an OSCE-proposed "road map" for ending the conflict.

Russia says some 30,000 people have fled the fighting.

Subway strike in Sao Paulo averted on eve of World Cup as Rio airport workers walk off job

SAO PAULO (AP) — A subway strike in Sao Paulo that threatened to disrupt the opening of the World Cup was averted Wednesday night even as airport workers in Rio de Janeiro declared a 24-hour work stoppage in the main destination for soccer fans traveling to Brazil.

Some 1,500 subway workers in Sao Paulo voted against going back on strike in a pay dispute. They had suspended the walkout Monday amid a popular backlash and government pressure to end the transportation chaos in Brazil's biggest city.

"We thought that right now it's better to wait," union president Altino Prazeres said, but added that he wouldn't rule out resuming the strike sometime during the monthlong soccer tournament. "We get the feeling that maybe we aren't as prepared for a full confrontation with police on the day the World Cup starts."

The union said its members would hold a march Thursday morning demanding that 42 workers fired during the five-day work stoppage are rehired.

World Cup organizers are counting on Sao Paulo's subway system to carry tens of thousands of fans Thursday to Itaquero stadium, where Brazil will play Croatia in the tournament's first game far from the hotel areas where most tourists are staying.

Texas' Perry refers to alcoholism to explain view of homosexuality

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Texas Gov. Rick Perry, during a visit that focused primarily on economic issues, drew on a reference to alcoholism to explain his view of homosexuality.

Perry's comments to the Commonwealth Club of California came after Texas' Republican Convention on Saturday sanctioned platform language allowing Texans to seek voluntary counseling to "cure" being gay.

The San Francisco Chronicle reports that in response to a question about it, Perry said he did not know whether the therapy worked.

Perry, a former and potential future GOP presidential candidate, was then asked whether he believed homosexuality was a disorder.

The paper says that the governor responded that "whether or not you feel compelled to follow a particular lifestyle or not, you have the ability to decide not to do that."

Lawyers say General Motors wants to use bankruptcy as shield from wrongful death lawsuit

DETROIT (AP) — Lawyers for a Georgia family that is trying to reopen a wrongful death lawsuit against General Motors say the company is trying to move the case to federal court so it can use bankruptcy as a shield from the claim.

The lawyers, Lance Cooper and Jere Beasley, said Wednesday in a statement that GM's court filings run counter to a promise made by GM CEO Mary Barra to fairly compensate families of people killed or those injured in crashes caused by defective ignition switches.

GM spokesman Greg Martin called the company's filings procedural.

A federal bankruptcy judge in New York ruled in 2009 that the new GM is shielded from claims stemming from cars made before the company emerged from bankruptcy protection. Instead, the claims go against the old GM, which has limited assets. The judge now is being asked to decide if he will allow claims against the new company.

Cooper and Beasley say moving the case to federal court would allow the company to use the bankruptcy to send claims to the old GM.

Bush Sr. to celebrate 90th birthday with parachute jump

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — Former President George H.W. Bush can no longer use his legs, but he isn't letting that stop him from keeping a vow he made five years ago: to jump from an aircraft on his 90th birthday, which is Thursday.

"It's a wonderful day in Maine — in fact, nice enough for a parachute jump," the nation's 41st president announced on Twitter.

Bush intends to jump from a helicopter with a retired member of the Golden Knights, the Army's parachute team, near his summer home on the Maine coast, spokesman Jim McGrath said.

The announcement was kept secret until the last minute, partly to give Bush himself the option of bagging it. The forecast Thursday called for clouds and scattered showers across southern Maine.

McGrath said Bush likes both a surprise and an adrenaline rush.

"It's vintage George Bush," he said. "It's that passion for life. It's wanting to set a goal, wanting to achieve it. I'm sure part of it is sending a message to others that even in your retirement years you can still find challenges."

The first time Bush jumped from an airplane was when his plane was shot down in World War II over the Pacific. Later, he decided to jump from a plane of his own accord and marked his 75th, 80th and 85th birthdays by skydiving.

He said on his 85th birthday that he'd like to do it again on his 90th. Thursday's jump would be his eighth.

Other birthday festivities included a private dinner with more than 200 relatives and friends, including some from his White House days: press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, White House counsel Boyden Gray and political director Ron Kaufman, McGrath said. His children, including former President George W. Bush and former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, will be there, McGrath said.

Kennebunkport is a special place for the president. As a boy, he visited the family home at Walker's Point every summer, except during World War II. The retreat was later dubbed his "summer White House."

During his presidential years, Bush was known for jogging, tennis and fast-paced golf but now uses a wheelchair or scooter because of a form of parkinsonism that has robbed him of use of his legs.

"He's lost his mobility, but he hasn't lost his heart. He's still the genuine person that we've come to cherish," said Ken Raynor, a friend and pro at the Cape Arundel Golf Club.

While his activities are now limited, Bush still fulfills his need for speed on his boat, Fidelity. "He's always loved going fast. He loves the speed. He loves the adrenaline," McGrath said.

Jon Meacham, a Pulitzer Prize-winning author and history who is writing a book about Bush, said the former president is used to being in motion, so it isn't easy for him to slow down.

The president feels lucky nonetheless, Meacham said.

"He had a remarkable great run of good health and good family and good friends," he said. "So I know his chief view of life at 90 is one of immense gratitude."

Spurs' Duncan says he's enjoying the journey

MIAMI (AP) — Tim Duncan offered a rare acknowledgment: He's thinking about the end of his career.

No, the San Antonio star didn't announce retirement plans during an off day at the NBA Finals on Wednesday. But a player who has almost always declined the chance to discuss his own legacy after 17 seasons in the NBA — all with the Spurs — Duncan provided a glimpse of what's going through his mind as his career is clearly much closer to the end than the beginning.

"I think in the last couple years I've really kind of taken a step back and stopped and enjoyed what the journey means," Duncan said on the eve of Game 4 of these NBA Finals against the Miami Heat, a series that the Spurs lead 2-1. "I think, as it comes to a close on my career — and I know it is — I appreciate it more."

The 38-year-old Duncan has been superb so far in this series, averaging 17.7 points on nearly 65 percent shooting from the floor.

If the Spurs win the championship, it would be Duncan's fifth crown.

Only 13 players in NBA history have ever been part of more championship series than that.

And if Spurs coach Gregg Popovich knows Duncan's exit plans — this year, next year, or otherwise — he's not tipping his hand.

"It will probably be the third quarter of some game on the road some year, and he'll feel like he's not as significant and he'll walk into the locker room," Popovich said earlier in this series.

Before the start of this rematch finals against Miami, Duncan — who has an option for next season at just over $10 million, an absolute bargain by NBA standards for someone at his level of production — said he's not thinking about retirement and doesn't even "care about any of that stuff."

Hawks put 14 on WJCAC honor roll

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

The Howard College men's and women's basketball teams proved themselves as great athletes this past season. The two teams combined to win almost 40 games. Earlier this week, they proved they were equally impressive in the classroom, too.

The Hawks and Lady Hawks combined to put 14 players on the Western Junior College Athletic Conference's 2014 Commissioners Honor Roll. To be eligible for the Commissioner's Honor Roll, athletes had to maintain a 3.0 grade point average or higher.

The Lady Hawks had seven players selected to the women's roster, including Sarah Stinnett. The Fort Sumner, N.M. standout, who signed with Eastern New Mexico, was the lone sophomore on the HC women's roster.

Also making the Commissioner's Honor Roll were freshmen Briana Casas, Weronica Green, Jericka Smith, Erisha Talley, Bailey Wipf and Gabby Gonzales.

Wipf will be playing next season at Tarleton State University. Green will be playing at Tennessee Tech.

The Hawks, who came within one win of advancing to the NJCAA championship tournament, placed seven on the men's honor roll.

Making the Commissioner's roster for HC were Niels Bundschoten, a freshman from Bussum, Netherlands; Keith Broome of Biloxi, MS.; Travis Charles of Brooklyn; Robert Gray of Forest City, N.C.; David "Pepe" Joseph of Queens, NY; Jose Libanio of Brazil and Lis Shoshi of Peje, Kosovo.

Joseph will be playing at the Division I level next fall as he signed with Bowling Green University recently.

Area golfers raised more than $14,000 for local scholarships this past weekend by competing in the 2014 Chicano Golf Association Scholarship Tournament. In all, more than 80 teams competed in the event, which was played at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Glaspie-Latham claim top spot in Presidential Flight at CGA tourney

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

Kevin Glaspie and Teddy Latham saved their best for the final round on Saturday afternoon at the Comanche Trail Golf Course. That effort was good enough to help them hold off a strong push from Daniel Sken and Jerry Dudley and Flea Martinez and Jordan Martinez to claim the Presidential Flight honors at the 2014 Chicano Golf Association Scholarship Tournament.

Glaspie and Latham carded a score of 63 over the final 18 holes — the second-best round of the entire tournament on Saturday — and rolled to a 4-stroke win over teams of Sken-Dudley and Martinez-Martinez. The only duo to record a better score in the final round was Rawleigh McCullough and Pat Loya, who shot a 61 and cruised to a 1-stroke win in the Championship Flight.

Sken and Dudley finished second in the Presidential standings. They shot a 66 over the final 18 holes and finished with a two-day total of 131.

Flea Martinez and Jordan Martinez finished third. They had rounds of 64 and 67 and finished at 131.

Tony Hull and Brian Heidleberg won three-way battle for first place in the First Flight. Hull and Heidleberg posted identical rounds of 68 and finished at 136.

The top three teams in the division finished with total scores of 136.

Cruz Del Toro and Ben Garcia Sr. finished third.

TTA golf tourney set for June 28-29

The Howard County Texas Tech Alumni Scholarship Golf Tournament will be held on June 28-29 at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The tournament will be played under a 4-man scramble format, with a shotgun start at 1 p.m. on both days. Sunday's play will be flighted by Saturday scores.

There is a $100 per person entry fee.

All proceeds go to the Howard County Texas Tech scholarship fund.

To register call (432) 264-2366 or contact Scott Mackenzie via e-mail at: scott.mackenzie@prosperitybankusa.com.

UIL may move state basketball tournament

(AP) — High school athletic officials in Texas are close to moving the state basketball tournaments after 93 years in Austin.

The University Interscholastic League also is adding competitive cheerleading.

The UIL Legislative Council cleared the way Wednesday for officials to work on a deal to move the boys' and girls' basketball championships to the Alamodome in San Antonio next year.

UIL officials have been concerned in recent years about the growth of the South By Southwest festival, making it difficult to hold the tournament events on consecutive weekends in early March.

There are now 48 teams — four in each of six divisions for boys and girls.

The event has been held on the home court of the Texas Longhorns.

The council also voted to create competitive cheerleading as a pilot program in 2015-16. Any continuation of the pilot program will require another vote.

A UIL committee approved a pilot program that would give district champions in Class 6A, the state's highest classification, a home game in the first round of the playoffs. The plan would be in effect for 2015.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR FLUID INJECTION WELL PERMIT

ConocoPhillips Company, 3300 North A Street, Building 6, Midland, Texas 79705 is applying to the Railroad Commission of Texas for a permit to inject fluid into a formation which is productive of oil and gas. The applicant proposes to inject fluid into the Grayburg, San Andres and Glorieta formations of the Chalk, G. O. -A- 12W. The proposed injection well is located 6.9 miles East of Forsan, Texas in the Howard Glascock (Consolidated) Field in Howard County, Texas. Fluid will be injected into the subsurface depth interval from 1,830 to 3,050 feet.

LEGAL AUTHORITY: Chapter 27 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Title 3 of the Texas Natural Resources Code, as amended, and the Statewide Rules of the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas.

Requests for a public hearing from persons who can show they are adversely affected or requests for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing, within fifteen days of publication, to the Environmental Services Section, Oil and Gas Division, Railroad Commission of Texas, P. O. Box 12967, Austin, Texas 78711 (Telephone 512-463-6792). #8337 June 12, 2014

Luckiest Full Moon of the Year

It's all ramping up to the full moon in Sagittarius, a lucky luminary, attracting enthusiasm, openness, abundance and the courage to seize the moment. Life is a concert, and the cosmic music will unite a crowd of strangers. When in doubt, dance and share. A magic alchemy is at work. The good exchanged will magically multiply.

MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You realize that just because you've built up a rapport with someone doesn't mean it's always going to be there. The good feelings have to be built again and again. The continual effort you make to connect will bring you luck.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). When you believe in someone's good intentions, you don't mind that they don't always land in exactly the right way. You'll sense the kind place that people are coming from.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The way you see yourself is more important than the way anyone else sees you, so use kind, encouraging eyes during your self-examination. This will favorably impact your decision-making process today.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Can the right shoes make a difference in your personal life? Well, certainly your comfort is important. You'll actually behave better and be more loving when you feel comfortable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Everyone on your team is striving for the same thing. Some of them have a funny way of showing it. But because you believe in the better angels of each person, a favorable outcome is assured.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Planning and organization lead to success. Move items from your "someday" list to your "today" list. Daily steps will make seemingly impossible realities come to life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Gossip is harmful to the ones being gossiped about and the gossiper alike. Don't tell the unnecessary stories, but don't ignore the ones with real implications, either. Make the distinction between "gossip" and "news."

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). If you don't make the goal in one shot or two shots, go for three. Go for 14. Don't give up at 20! You can do this if you keep trying! Relax and take the next shot. Repeat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Your definition of "fun" is changing. Anything at all could be a drag if you'd rather be doing something else. That's why your efforts to be present will pay off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Consider that the person standing by the gate may not be a gatekeeper. Head on through and see what happens. If you look like you know where you're going, most people will step aside to let you through.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Seek comfortable companions -- the sort unlikely to bring unnecessary drama into your world. Surround yourself with easygoing types who know how to have a good time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Sure, you like that people get what you're doing, but what really matters is that you get it. You know exactly what you want to accomplish and will be so focused that it will make you indifferent to praise.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 12). Your charisma levels go off the charts, especially over the next six weeks. Loved ones want to be closer to you and may even move to make that happen. You'll buy, sell and trade in July until you're in the position to get what you've had your eye on for over a year. September and December are luckiest in love. Gemini and Sagittarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 28, 14, 37 and 19.

YOUR FULL MOON MANTRA: ARIES: Better to seize an imperfect moment than to wait for the perfect moment that never comes. TAURUS: I collect life's moments, for they are more valuable than things. GEMINI: With persistence, I can create the habits I need to make my life better. CANCER: I can raise my personal energy level at will and try again until I make it. LEO: To make something new happen, I have to do something I haven't done before. VIRGO: The future is what I create, and I am a powerful creator. LIBRA: I live life courageously. SCORPIO: I give my attention over to the things that are worthy of it, especially the things that will contribute to my happiness. SAGITTARIUS: I only chase if I'm having fun with that game; otherwise, I sit back and let it come to me. CAPRICORN: I'm even more loveable because of my quirks, and I attract people who cherish these things about me. AQUARIUS: Positive thoughts lead to a positive reality. PISCES: Obstacles make me better; I am happiest when I am growing.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Almost 70 years after her untimely, tragic passing, the diary of Anne Frank's secret world still touches, educates and inspires millions. Her courage and hope in the face of unfathomable evil represent humanity at its finest. Frank's natal sun, Mercury and Jupiter were all in bright Gemini. "How wonderful it is that nobody need wait a single moment before starting to improve the world." -- Anne Frank

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I've known "Ted" all my life. About 10 years ago, I loaned him $1,000. He never repaid it, and I could really use that money now. Ted lives in a different city, and when I phone him, he refuses to discuss it. In the past, I had given Ted money outright, but this was absolutely a loan. I made sure he knew that, but I didn't ask for a promissory note or any interest. If I hire a lawyer to sue him for the loan, I'd lose half the money paying the lawyer. Ted's mother once warned me not to loan money to friends. What can I do? -- Should Have Listened

Dear Should: You could try to retrieve the money by suing Ted in small-claims court. You generally don't need an attorney to do this, but you are likely to lose the friendship permanently. You might want to warn Ted in advance that this is your intent if he isn't willing to discuss the loan and reach an agreement.

Dear Annie: You get lots of letters from husbands or wives who are unhappy and asking, "What went wrong?" Maybe the trouble is that while they were planning a wedding they forgot to plan a marriage. I performed my first marriage ceremony 60 years ago and have done several hundred since. Some were in large churches with fancy flowers, string quartets and an exquisite reception. Some were in my living room with only the bride and groom in their Sunday clothes. There is quite a difference between a wedding and a marriage. A wedding is the civil and/or religious ceremony that ends in the signing of a certificate making the whole thing legal. A marriage is a covenant between two people who promise to love, honor and cherish each other. My advice to any couple planning the kind of wedding they will have is to first ask what kind of marriage they will have. -- Retired Methodist Minister in Texas

Dear Minister: It's true that some couples are so focused on the trappings of a wedding that they don't give enough thought to what comes after. And what comes after is meant to last a very long time.

Dear Annie: Your advice to "Upset Mom in USA" made me angry. She said her son was accused of stealing a ring from his cousin when he briefly stayed at his aunt's house. This son is a financially secure 32-year-old businessman, not a teenage boy bicycling around Europe. The missing ring is between him and his cousin. In addition to the possibility that the niece simply misplaced the ring, it could also be a setup. The aunt called her nephew, not his mother. Mom has no place in this contretemps, yet you advised her to speak to her son when he returns, and even suggested she offer to split the cost of the ring. Why should Mom offer anything if her son is innocent? If she in any way admits that her son is at fault, it will poison the relationship between her and her son. And if he did steal the ring, he should pay the full cost. Either way, it is not Mom's place to fix it, and you should have said so. -- Annoyed at You

Dear Annoyed: Our concern, actually, was not the son or the ring. It was the relationship between the sisters. You are absolutely right that the son is responsible for working this out, and we should have said so. But we also know how difficult it is for a parent to stand by and watch a family situation deteriorate over such accusations. Even though the issue is between the cousins, we suspect Mom fears losing the affection of her sister, and that is where our advice was directed. (Although the idea that this might be a setup did not occur to us. Heavens.)

Browns not worried about Manziel playing baseball

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Browns don't expect quarterback Johnny Manziel to drop the football and pick up a bat anytime soon. Manziel was drafted last week by the San Diego Padres, a selection that shocked Cleveland coach Mike Pettine, who said he didn't even know his well-known rookie had a background in baseball.

even get a chance to talk to him about it." Pettine received a text informing him Manziel had been picked in the 28th round — the 837th player taken — by the Padres, but didn't give it much thought. Manziel did play baseball at Tivy High School in Kerrville, Texas, and he considered playing at Texas A&M before focusing on football.

he thought the Padres' move is a publicity stunt. "I don't know," he said. "When I heard it, somebody texted me about it, and I didn't think it was that big of a deal because the kid's die-hard football. It was a bit of a surprise." Pettine is keeping Manziel, who was selected with the No. 22 overall pick in last month's NFL draft, off limits to the media this week during minicamp, but he offered a reaction on behalf of the 21-year-old to being drafted.

Rangers beat Kings 2-1, stay alive in finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Henrik Lundqvist and some soft ice in front of his net kept the New York Rangers in the Stanley Cup finals. Lundqvist made 40 saves in the Rangers' 2-1 victory in Game 4 that kept the Los Angeles Kings from a sweep on Wednesday night. Twice Los Angeles put the puck on the goal line without getting it all the way across.

cause I felt the puck, felt like I got a good piece of it on that deflection. I was yelling at the ref to blow the whistle." Benoit Pouliot and Martin St. Louis each scored for the Rangers. Los Angeles leads the series 3-1 and will get its second shot to claim the Cup for the second time in three years Friday night at home.

White Sox sign Olympic speedskater to minor deal CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox have signed Olympic speedskater Eddy Alvarez to a minor league deal as an infielder. The White Sox announced the move before Wednesday night's baseball game against Detroit.

Sterling, NBA headed for trial over sale of team

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A trial will be held next month to determine whether Donald Sterling, who opposes his estranged wife's planned sale of the Los Angeles Clippers, was properly removed as an administrator for the family trust that owns the team.

A probate court judge in Los Angeles Wednesday denied Shelly Sterling's urgent request to confirm her authority as sole administrator of The Sterling Family Trust so that she can unilaterally proceed with a $2 billion sale of the team to former Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer. Instead, the judge agreed to an expedited hearing because of looming sales deadlines.

The development is the latest in a legal tug-of-war following the NBA's decision to ban Donald Sterling for life after racist remarks to a girlfriend were recorded and publicized. Donald Sterling is fighting the decision and suing the league for $1 billion. The league has contended the comments were bad for business and damaged both the Clippers and the NBA.

The four-day trial was granted exceptionally quickly and will begin July 7. The deadline for the sale is July 15, which also is the date the NBA's owners hope to vote on whether they will approve the sale. Court filings Wednesday indicated the NBA has set a hard deadline of Sept. 15. If the sale isn't completed then, the league will undertake proceedings to seize and sell the team on its own.

Donald Sterling's lawyer, Bobby Samini, left the courthouse without comment after a clerk announced the trial schedule. Neither Sterling was present.

"I just want to resolve this as quickly as possible," NBA Commissioner Adam Silver told The Associated Press on Wednesday in Miami at an NBA Cares event.

The crux of the case will center on the question of whether the 80-year-old Donald Sterling is mentally competent to be a co-trustee of The Sterling Family Trust, which gives him the authority to determine the team's future. According to the trust's terms, he can be ruled "mentally incapacitated" after being evaluated by two doctors, said Pierce O'Donnell, Shelly Sterling's attorney.

Shelly Sterling activated that clause in negotiating what would be a record-breaking deal with Ballmer as sole trustee. But Donald Sterling challenged the removal in a letter sent Monday to his wife's attorney said "any attempt to remove me as a Trustee of the Sterling Trust is invalid and illegal. Furthermore, any assertion that I am 'incapacitated'... is false and without merit."

According to court documents, two doctors examined Donald Sterling in May and concluded that he suffers from "mild cognitive impairment consistent with early Alzheimer's Disease" or some other forms of brain disease after examining brain scans and having him undergo other tests.

Sterling voluntarily went to the doctors at the request of his wife, according to a person with knowledge of the proceedings who spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the details publicly.

A third doctor reviewed the two doctors' findings as well as Sterling's brain scans and concurred with their conclusions that he "lacks the capacity to function as trustee."

Donald Sterling's attorney, Maxwell Blecher, contested the doctors' findings in remarks Tuesday to The Associated Press.

"Anybody at his age level on a brain scan would probably show some impairment. But that doesn't mean you forget where your car keys are and you're incompetent," Blecher said.
