Time nears to light up city park

By STEVE REAGAN

Preparations for the annual Festival of Lights are entering their final stages, organizers said. The 18th annual Christmas season attraction, which draws thousands of visitors to Comanche Trail Park, will run from Dec. 15-31, longtime director Pat Simmons said. But the attraction will get its unofficial start Thanksgiving evening, when the switches are thrown on several lighted poinsettias which will decorate the dam at Comanche Trail Lake. In addition to the poinsettias, a large U.S. flag will also adorn the dam. "We're always looking for ways to honor our military, and this seemed like a good way," Simmons said. The week after Thanksgiving, festival workers will begin setting up displays. The festival will feature more than 1 million lights and hundreds of displays, turning a large section of the park into a West Texas style Christmas wonderland. More than 20,000 visitors are expected during the event, which last year attracted people from 38 states and 17 foreign countries. Simmons' long-standing goal is to have 25,000 visitors. "Maybe we'll get there this year," she

Seliger files education bills to address accountability

Special to the Herald

AUSTIN — State Senator Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) has filed Senate Bills 176 and 177 — two bills he said address the importance of accountability and good governance in education. Recently, the commissioner of education updated the public school accountability system to reflect the indices laid out in House Bill 5: student achievement, student progress, closing the performance gaps and postsecondary readiness. "While this framework is a step in the right direction, it continues to focus primarily on standardized tests," Seliger said. "SB 176 requires the commissioner to consider certain factors not related to assessments, including student participation in the day-to-day supervision to Howard Stewart, who has assumed the title of project manager.

While Simmons remains the guiding light of the event, she has ceded

"Howard has been a great asset," Simmons said. "If it wasn't for everything he and his family does, we'd probably have to fold."

The festival has always been a treat for the eyes, but Simmons hopes to make it a joy for the ears this year, as well — she is organizing a group of carolers to entertain festival visitors. People interested in caroling at the festival should contact Simmons at 213-5444.

University Inter-scholastic League, the number of dual credit hours earned, successful completion of advanced placement and international baccalaureate courses, career and technical certifications awarded and college-ready performance on the Texas

Success Initiative Assessment.

"This bill is designed to implement a system that considers a broader range of criteria for accountability," he added. "Standardized tests are not the sole measure for student success or system performance."

SB 177 clarifies and codifies best practices of university governance. It applies principles from nationally recognized organizations such as the Association of Governing Boards and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to ensure that Texas public colleges and universities have clear lines of authority and well-defined roles of responsibility, the senator said.

This bill also improves training required for regents by mandating that the training take place during the regent's first year in office, specifically includes ethics training, and addresses laws protecting student privacy. Additionally, SB 177 establishes prohibitions against undue external influence on the board, provides guidance regarding conflict of interest, and directs regents, system administrators, and institutional personnel to collaborate and develop long-term strategic plans for each institution.

"This bill passed both houses last session and simply applies accepted principles of effective governance," Seliger said. "It was well received by trustees, administrators and legislators, and is consistent with principles laid out by nationally recognized experts in governance such as the Association of Governing Boards."

Big Truthy watching (some of) you

This week, President Obama launched a prominent social media campaign on behalf of “net neutrality” and urged the FCC to “keep the Internet free and open.”

The man has gall. This is the same speech-squelcher in chief whose administration snooped on reporters; vengefully audited tea party pro-life activists and conservative election watchdogs and slow-walked the probe into the IRS witch hunt against them; entertained a government scheme to monitor story selection in TV newsrooms; and forked over $1 million to a researcher building a Twitter-snooping database.

On Monday, House Committee on Science, Space and Technology Chairman Rep. Lamar Smith, R-Texas, requested that the National Science Foundation send him all information about how and why the taxpayer-subsidized “Truthy” data-mining project came into existence. Its lead researcher is Filippo Menczer — professor of informatics and computer science and the director of the Center for Complex Networks and Systems Research at the Indiana University School of Informatics and Computing — who is now on sabbatical at Yahoo! Labs.

Menczer and Indiana University vehemently deny that Truthy is a “political watchdog,” a “government probe of social media,” “an attempt to suppress free speech or limit political speech or develop standards for online political speech,” “a way to define “misinformation,” a partisan political effort, “a system targeting political messages and commentary connected to conservative groups,” “a mechanism to terminate any social media accounts,” or “a database tracking hate speech.”

But Menczer himself admits the project arose after he learned about a conservative Twitter bomb campaign against failed Senate Democratic candidate Martha Coakley in 2010. His information-gathering system bears liberal comedian Stephen Colbert’s neologism “truthy.” And the Washington Free Beacon’s Elizabeth Harrington reports that Menczer “proclaims his support for numerous progressive advocacy groups, including President Barack Obama’s Organizing for Action, Moveon.org, Greenpeace, the Sierra Club, Amnesty International and True Majority.”

In presentations to academic groups, Menczer has specifically highlighted his team’s research on conservative groups, individuals and hashtags.

I’ve seen it. At Harvard University’s “Truthiness Conference” in March 2012, for example, he showed his audience the results of monitoring and mapping the hashtag “#obamacare” and singled out the D.C.-based Heritage Foundation for using it. His government-funded database mined information on who was retweeting #obamacare-labeled tweets and pinpointed “patterns of propagation.”

Menczer and company also policed Twitter users who opined that Obama supported policies that promote Sharia law. Truthy targeted pro-Sarah Palin tweets and tweets using the hashtag “#tcot” — which stands for “Top Conservatives on Twitter” and which I’ve used since 2009. The government-funded researchers also went after opponents of Delaware Democratic Sen. Chris Coons, as well as a “Republican activist in Pennsylvania” whose Twitter account was then shut down after Truthy identified tweets that included web links to John Boehner’s official congress-

The goal, Menczer explained, is to “detect” Twitter users’ themes and memes “early before damage is done — that is what we’re trying to do.”

Truthy will “automatically detect language,” and its overseers will conduct “sentiment analysis” to control and prevent “damage.”

Nope, no political goals or ideological agenda there.

Nothing to see here. Run along.

Menczer defends against leftwing bias by claiming that “almost all of the most popular hashtags, the most active accounts, and the most tweeted URLs, are from the right. We looked really hard for any ‘truthy’ memes from the left.”

Look harder, pal.

As conservative radio giant Rush Limbaugh and his staff discovered (no tax grant money necessary), the astroturfed social media boycott campaign against his show for the past several years has been spearheaded by only 10 Twitter users who account for almost 70 percent of all “StopRush” tweets to advertisers, amplified by illicit software.

Moreover, they found, “almost every communication from a StopRush activist originates from outside the state of the advertiser.”

These lib bots constitute “a small number of extremists sending tens of thousands of tweets and other messages” to bully and intimidate advertisers.

Yet, there hasn’t been a peep about the insidious #StopRush smear campaign from Menczer and his Obama administration-backed liberal snitch squad. It’s time for some truth in Truthy advertising.

Middle class facing disaster

When Hillary Clinton announced for president in 2007, she emphasized not her climb to wealth but her humble roots.

“I grew up in a middle-class family in the middle of America,” she said.

That her father was a prosperous fabric store owner did not necessarily mean her family was not middle class. Though the Census Bureau maintains a rather exacting definition for poverty — there are 48 “thresholds” to cross — there is no official definition for “middle class.”

When Clinton was growing up in a picturesque suburb northwest of Chicago, to be middle-class meant having your own home, a car or two in the carport, taking a family vacation every year, sending your kids to college, and having some retirement savings.

Most of all, being in the middle class meant security. The socioeconomic ladder led only upward. And you were secure in the belief that your children would have a better life than you.

If you believe such things today, however, you are an optimist. Or plastered.

Today the middle class is distraught, apprehensive and shrinking. And poorer. In 1989, the median household income in America was $51,681 measured in today’s dollars. In 2012, the median household income was $51,017.

That’s right; after 23 years of toil, the middle class managed to get poorer. And imperiled.

A 2010 study by the U.S. Department of Commerce put it in simple terms: “It is more difficult now than in the past for many people to achieve middle class status because prices for certain key goods — health care, college and housing — have gone up faster than income.”

But one thing the middle class does have going for it currently is sheer size. “The middle class is made up of 60 to 70 percent of Americans,” Robert Reich, a former secretary of labor under Bill Clinton, told me Monday. “The bottom 15 to 20 percent are poor. And all of the top 10 percent may not regard themselves as wealthy, but they are on the other side of the great divide.”

Where you live also determines whether you have crested the divide. “In San Francisco and Manhattan, you can feel quite poor on $100,000 a year,” Reich added.

Reich said we are now living amid an economic recovery, but “this is the first recovery in history in which median household income has dropped.”

So where is the wealth going? To those who are already wealthy. “Almost all of our economic gains have gone to the top 1 percent,” Reich said. “My fear is that Democrats won’t talk about this any more than they did in midterms, in which they wooed wealthy individuals, big corporations and Wall Street, which is the fundamental problem.”

Reich is currently a professor of public policy at the University of California, Berkeley, and he also chairs the governing board of Common Cause, a liberal advocacy group.

He believes that a presidential candidate who can “pull the poor and middle class together and make them both winners” can also win the White House.

He is not overly optimistic this will happen, however. Both Democrats and Republicans, he said, go “hat in hand” to wealthy corporations and individuals to raise money to either launch attack ads or defend themselves against attack ads.

And as the old adage goes, he who pays the piper calls the tune. It is hard to attack a system that favors the super-rich if the super-rich are funding your campaign.

“That is the dynamic we face,” Reich said, “and it will be interesting to see what hopefuls for 2016 will resist this temptation to hamstring themselves.”

Resisting temptation is not exactly what presidential hopefuls do best, though the anger and fear among middle-class voters are things they could successfully exploit.

As that 2010 Commerce Department study concluded, “even those families that can afford a middle class lifestyle must make regular sacrifices and may be one unexpected event away from disaster.”

Which is why — speaking three weeks ago in Rochester, Michigan — Hillary Clinton said: “Michigan is where the American middle class was born, and this is where it can thrive again!”

I asked Reich what kind of presidential candidate he is looking for in 2016.

“In general terms, we need candidates who clearly and truthfully assess what has happened to the middle class and the poor,” he said. “Unless more of the gains are shared, the economy will not work. It will become so top-heavy that it can’t sustain itself, because there will not be enough purchasing power in the middle class and among the poor. We need candidates to be bold and specific as to what needs to be done.”

And how about passion? I asked because so many candidates currently appear to lack it.

“Heartfelt passion is needed,” Reich said. “The public has an acute ability to smell fakery or lack of authenticity.”

Which would eliminate any number of potential candidates.

“Fifty years ago, 29 percent of voters felt the country was run by big interests,” Reich said. “Today 79 percent do. The game is rigged against the middle class and poor. But I am not so cynical that I feel it can’t be unrigged.”

So all we need is a presidential candidate who is bold, truthful, specific, passionate and sincere.

Any takers?

Alvin Meredith Sr. signs up to volunteer a day of his time during the school year at Marcy Elementary School as part of the Watch D.O.G.S. program.

Turn out at Marcy Ele. Watch D.O.G.S. launch successful

BY LYNDEL MOODY

Staff Writer

It didn't take long for Alvin Meredith Sr., one of the hundreds of fathers who attended Marcy Elementary School's Watch D.O.G.S. launch, to sign up for the program.

"I am signing up because this is a contribution to the local community to assist with children — for those who have fathers in the home and for those who don't have father's in the home — to give them an opportunity to have a male role model in their life. Not every child has that opportunity," Meredith Sr. said.

Watch D.O.G.S. (Dads of Great Students) is a program by the National Center for Fathering aimed at increasing involvement of fathers figures in the elementary school level and to help with the issue of school security, specifically addressing bullying.

On Nov. 6, the Marcy Elementary cafeteria was full of male parents or guardians munching on pizza and learning about the new program from school council Kristen Tubb. As part of the program, volunteers are asked to give one day during the school year to walk the halls, visit classrooms and provide an extra adult set of eyes on campus.

"We are going to use them anywhere and everywhere," Tubb said. "We are going to send them to the PE classes, have them in the class room reading to kids, maybe working on flash cards with some of the kids. We are definitely going to use them in our cafeteria during our lunch time to have that extra adult presence."

This is the first year to be implemented at Big Spring ISD elementary schools but has been used in several schools in Texas including Forsan ISD and across the county.

Volunteers must pass a background check before being eligible to volunteer. For more information about the program, call George Bancroft, BSISD community relations director, at 264-3600.

Varsity Steers visit BSI

It may have not been the type of football game you would recognize on a Friday night but both teams put in their best effort none the less.

Several Big Spring High School varsity Steer football players made a special appearance Friday, Nov. 7, at the Big Spring Intermediate School for Friday Fun Day.

BSI students earn a little extra play time on Friday morning as a reward for being a good student during the week. Last week, Steer players showed up to throw the football around for those interested.

And they found plenty of takers. In fact, 30 to 40 BSI boys took up the offer.

For BSI Principal Patsy Sanchez, the moment was bitter-sweet.

Several of the varsity football players were once her students when she taught six-grade, many who romped around that same playground throwing the football.

Big Spring Junior High School

Goliad Elementary School

The Seventh Grade SS classes created and signed a Veterans Day poster which was taken to the local VA Hospital. We are thankful for each veteran's service to our country.

The junior high students showed their spirit and had good laugh at their pep rally last week. The football players were blind folded and told to wait for a kiss from a cheerleader. Their mothers, who'd been in hiding, came out and kissed their sons on the cheeks. Imagine the thoughts that went through the boys' heads before they removed their blindfolds.

Go Steer moms!

Goliad students, faculty, and parents had great fun at their Fall Festival. Ms. Jennifer Shirey's music students gave the kind of professional performance they're becoming known for and the students enjoyed an evening of fun and games with their families and friends.

The bidding:
1♥ South 3♥ North
4NT Pass 5♦ East
6♥ Pass

Opening lead — ?

The Ethics Committee at Alcatraz was in solemn session. South was pressing charges against a fellow inmate when he accused of violating the propertics of the game.

The facts were very simple and agreed upon by both sides. South had quickly arrived at six hearts on the bidding shown. It was clear that he'd have to lose a diamond trick to the ace, and that the only question was whether he'd also lose a trump trick to the queen. Had declarer been left to his own devices, he would have had to guess how to play the trump suit to make the slam.

But the problem never arose at all. The moment the bidding was over, East, a player of considerable skill but with a reputation for sharp practice, took a card out of his hand and seemed about to make an opening lead. Before he could do so, however, he was told it was West's opening lead. So East put the card back in his hand, but not before South had seen that it was the three of hearts.

A murmur of admiration rose from the members of the committee when they heard this, but they were quickly silenced by the chairman. Clearly, South was now bound to misguess the trump situation later on, since it was inconceivable that East would lead a trump from a holding of Q-x-x.

But West then promptly ruined the effect of East's near lead-out-of-turn by electing to lead a trump himself! So South easily made the slam, and no harm was done.

When the committee later questioned East about his attempted lead, he vehemently denied any ill intent. He admitted that he knew it wasn't his lead, but he also knew — and this was confirmed by most members of the committee — that West practically always led a trump against a slam. So East had taken the three of hearts from his hand anticipating the inevitable trump lead.

Case dismissed.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

KATHY MITCHELL
MARCY SUGAR

Dear Annie: I am a married woman in my early 60s. My husband and I have been married for 35 years. We get along fine most of the time. He is a good man and a good provider. He can be opinionated at times, but he loves his family and friends.

The problem is his constant need for sex. During our early years, I went along with it, but he would want sex at the most inconvenient times, like when I was all made up, dressed and ready for work. He has a high sex drive, and I do not.

After years of trying to satisfy him, I am at the age where sex is neither important nor enjoyable. Sometimes, it is downright uncomfortable. I do it occasionally, for his benefit, but I really don't like to.

Annie's Mailbox

I do love my husband and show him in other ways. How can I tell him that I don't enjoy this part of marriage anymore without hurting his sense of manhood? -- Trying To Build a Better Life in the Midwest

Dear Trying: You are never going to convince your husband that sex is something he ought to do without. Part of that involves his sex drive, but we suspect another part is a need to control. Still, if you love him and want to remain married, we hope you will try to accommodate him on occasion, in which case, please talk to your doctor about how you can make sex more comfortable. You also can take your husband with you to the doctor so he can better understand what you are going through, and then reach an accommodation that is acceptable to both of you.

Withholding sex because you (and only you) are no longer interested can damage your marriage, making your husband unhappy and depressed or, worse, making him feel justified in looking for someone else to fill the void.

Dear Annie: Is it OK to plug your cellphone into an outlet at a restaurant, grocery, department store, bar, apartment building hallway, etc.? I work in a restaurant, and people are constantly unplugging lights and other electrical appliances in order to charge their phones. They don't bother to ask permission before moving tables or to ask what they are disconnecting. Should owners add a "charging fee" to those who want to use their electricity?

What is the proper way to handle these inconsiderate thieves? -- Mrs. Watts

Dear Mrs. Watts: Most establishments don't mind if you plug into any available outlet, although it is always polite to ask first. But disconnecting lights or other appliances is not acceptable unless expressly given permission to do so. As for a "charging fee," owners must decide whether asking patrons to cover any increase in the electric bill is worth losing customers and creating ill will.

Dear Annie: You have suggested it is important for a host to find out about any serious allergies that guests may have. I have allergies to shellfish and nuts. I can go into anaphylactic shock simply by eating something that was cooked in the same pan as these foods or cut with the same knife.

But I believe the problem is my responsibility. When invited to a meal, I explain the issue to my host. If it creates a serious problem (she was planning on lobster), I simply decline graciously and suggest we meet another time. If it is buffet or wine and cheese, I tell my host that I will need her to indicate what is safe for me to eat. I turn it into a joke, saying, "It could otherwise be a more exciting evening than either of us planned."

I have found people very willing to share exactly what a dish contains and how it was prepared. I would hope my guests would afford me the same courtesy. We can't expect others to take responsibility for our health. -- Not Too Concerned Host

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Leo Lunar Fun

The entertaining Leo Moon mixes it up with Mercury in the wee hours of the morning, putting a theatrical spin on the dreamland show. Later a lunar trine with Uranus will provide a party-popper-like surprise. The Sun and Jupiter square off in the evening giving the illusion that what we want is very hard to get. Don't believe it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You have good connections, but you could always use more. Get out and mingle. You'll find that your skills and talents compliment those of an interesting someone.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). There's a number of things you'd like to learn. You suspect that if you followed these interests, your life would head in interesting directions, and you're absolutely right. What are you waiting for?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your dreams are sensible and within reach, so all you have to do is decide what you want most at the moment (pare it down to one thing) and then work for it. Voila!

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Be cautious about with whom you align today. Don't make plans with anyone you don't feel 100 percent good about because the bond will start building immediately and you'll later feel stuck.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Guard against impatience, your own and other people's. Everything is happening in the time it's supposed to. Take care not to let anyone dominate or rush you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You may feel you're being wrongly associated with the feelings of another. People who don't feel fulfilled sometimes blame those close to them for the problem, but, of course, we are each responsible for our own fulfillment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). In your imagination it's a castle on a distant hill -- the promise of things to come. In real life, you'd like something much smaller, no dungeons please, though you'd still like the future to be rather romantic and large scale.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's difficult to get together with someone who is just as busy as you, but it's important to try because this is the one you need to connect with most now. The resources you share will help more than just the two of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Regarding your pet project: It feels as though you are never completely finished and indeed you may never be, so resolve yourself to continual adjustments and upkeep.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll get a rush of productive energy, but it has an expiration date. Tackle the thing you can finish completely because you won't feel like picking the same thing up again tomorrow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Who has the energy for critical people? Avoid those who seem to have an awful lot of opinions about what others should and shouldn't be doing. Tonight features lovely, heartwarming eye contact.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Before you accommodate anyone's wishes, be sure you've tended to your own. Otherwise, you risk feeling sorry for yourself at the end of the day. Self-pity doesn't become you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 13). Your imagination will get a workout over the next six weeks, and then you'll have a new life vision. The friends you meet in December and July will be golden life-long types. Professional angst will be resolved in February. Colleagues help with personal goals, so don't be afraid to share on many levels. Travel in July. Cancer and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 14, 34, 20 and 16.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I'm a Scorpio, and maybe that makes me cynical, but I have a request for the general public. Stop telling me what to do! I'm tired of seeing posters and canvases and wall vinyl suggesting that I Live, Laugh, Love, Dream Big, Believe, Be Kind or anything else. I'm sick of all the memes with clever sayings and quotes. Does your t-shirt really need to tell me your philosophy of life? Please tell the bumper of your car to shut up, too, while you're at it. Just because I'm driving behind you doesn't give you the right to tell me how to vote or what to read in the bible or anything else. When did everyone get so self-righteous and bossy? Whatever happened to live and let live? From now on, I will only be friends with or follow people who maintain healthy social boundaries and respect my right not to hear your dumb dictates about how I should live my life. OK, that's all I got. Thanks for the horoscopes."

I suppose, as the writer of the horoscopes, I am as guilty of telling you what to do as any meme or wall vinyl -- it's only a suggestion, of course. Your Scorpion instincts, intuitions and inklings are the best indicators, and your strong will cannot be deterred by even the most convincing environmental text. Thanks for writing!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: This Scorpio Academy Award winner has acted with Muppets and Ninja Turtles, and headlined in comedies of her own making, though she's just as likely to make audiences cry, as she did in The Color Purple. Whoopi Goldberg (11/13/1955) is one of the few actors to have won an Emmy, Grammy, Oscar and Tony Award. Jupiter, Uranus and Pluto in Leo suggest she was always destined to entertain.

Jazz up your holidays with the latest in lights

By SARAH WOLFE

Associated Press

Clark Griswold would be proud.

Thanks to advances in lighting technology, suburban dads (and moms) across the country have a lot to choose from when it comes to creative ways to deck their halls for the holidays this year.

Forget about white incandescent lights and animatronic reindeer.

Think lasers. Think smartphones. And hundreds, if not millions, of color choices.

RGB LIGHTS

Single light bulbs that hold three LEDs — red, green and blue — are the secret behind a new category of holiday lights that offer up to 16 million color combinations.

Known as RGB lights, they can be dialed up or down in a variety of ways via a smartphone app. And because their color range is so varied, they can be kept up year-round and used for any number of holidays — Halloween, the Fourth of July, Easter, you name it.

Lumenplay offers the most colors by far at more than 16 million. The exotic lighting system doesn't come cheap ($79.99 for a starter pack) and is only available in 10-foot strands. But you can string as many as 500 lights together on one controller, which comes with the starter pack.

GE also offers RGB lighting technology with its new iTwinkle light sets and pre-lit Christmas trees, while Texas-based decorating firm Christmas Décor is offering the lights as an option for holiday customers this year.

'SMART' LIGHTS

All the talk of RGB technology leads right into the next holiday lighting trend this year — “smart” lights or lighting systems controlled by your smartphone.

Both the Lumenplay and iTwinkle systems are operated via apps available for Apple and Android phones. With just a swipe of your screen, you can dim or brighten outdoor lights, set them to music, or choose new colors and patterns.

With iTwinkle, you can even record a greeting to play, like “Happy Holidays” or “Merry Christmas,” spokeswoman Amanda Hayes says.

Most of these apps have a range of up to 150 feet, meaning you can control the action from across the yard or while plopped on your couch watching “It's A Wonderful Life” (or the Griswolds in “National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation”) for the 10th time.

“No longer do you have to venture outside to plug in your lights,” says Dave Geraci with Ohio-based Technical Consumer Products.

TCP recently unveiled a smart home lighting system known as Connected by TCP, which links to a home's Wi-Fi or mobile network and is controlled via smartphone, computer or a special remote.

PROJECTED LASER LIGHTS

Using small spotlights, this technology projects thousands of tiny pinpoints of red, green or red AND green lights onto your home or any other hard surface. California-based BlissLights offers them for $179 or $199 each, depending on whether the lights are in motion.

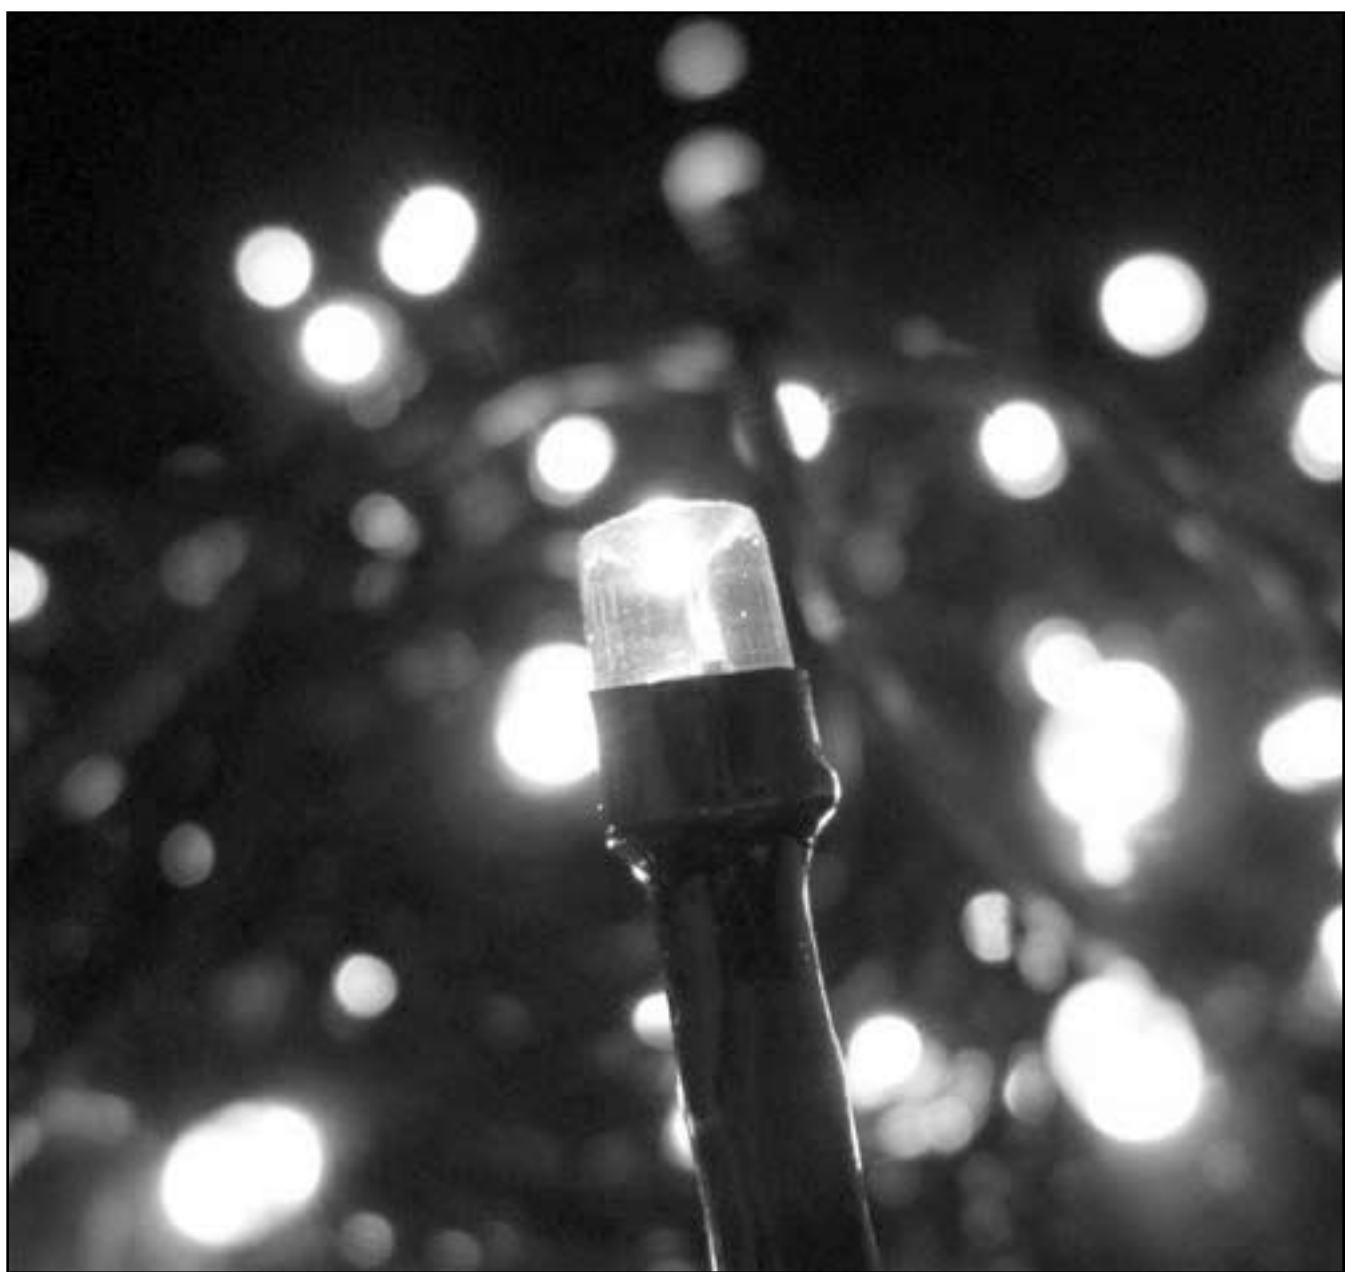

To a passerby, “at first glance, they look like traditional holiday rope lights, but actually they float freely across the house's exterior, plants and more to create a display that neighbors will think took hours to design and hang,” BlissLights spokeswoman Natalia Barclay says.

There are no cords or wires involved with the laser lights, says Nick Burks of Atlanta-based Pinnacle Lighting Group.

“For people who live in the northern part of the country, it's extremely helpful when you have to take them down and it's zero degrees outside,” he says. “Instead of taking a string of lights down in January, just unplug the fixture and put it in a box and you're done.”

BATTERY-POWERED LIGHTS

This technology has been around a while but was mostly limited to smaller, incandescent

This photo provided by Lights.com shows LED lights that are an energy efficient way to deck your halls for the holidays. LED technology has been around for years, but used to be too expensive for many homeowners to consider. Now, LEDs are overtaking incandescent lights as the holiday lighting of choice for homeowners looking to save on their electricity bills.

light strands that you'd put in a window box or small porch display.

Now they come in LED strands up to 30 feet long with batteries that are much more powerful and longer-lasting. Many feature auto-timers and buttons that control blinking and other patterns.

At online retailer Lights.com, you can connect up to six strands of battery-powered lights for a total of 600 LED lights on one battery pack, spokeswoman Aimee Majoros says.

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Zoo's newest giraffe finally has a name. It's Kopano.

The name means "united" in the Tswana language of the African nation of Botswana. It was chosen in an online poll on dallaszoo.com.

The zoo announced the winning name Monday.

Kopano's birth was announced last week. The giraffe is already hit 6 feet tall and weighs 120 pounds.

The zoo had first auctioned off naming rights. An anonymous bidder who won with a $50,000 donation then allowed the zoo to put the giraffe's name up for a public vote.

Steers are taking Leopards seriously

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

In case you haven't heard, the Big Spring High School Steers have achieved their No. 6 goal for the 2014 season. They made it to the Class 4A state football playoffs.

Make no mistake about it, the Steers are now focusing on Goal No. 5: winning the bi-district championship. And, despite facing a Gainesville team that finished the 2014 season with a lackluster record Big Spring head coach Phillip Ritchey isn't letting his team relax a bit.

If they do that, each and every week, goals No. 4, 3, 2 and 1 will make themselves available.

The first obstacle in the Steers' path is a playoff-savvy Gainesville Leopards squad that struggled to a 4-6 record this season. The Leopards, under the tutelage of head coach Keith Hall used a 31-3 win over Mineral Wells last week to claim the No. 3 seed in the District 4-4A race and, in the process, earn its third straight ticket to the postseason. Overall, the Leopards went 2-3 in district play.

Despite their record, Gainesville still has enough stars returning to play the spoiler role in a playoff.

Leading the GHS attack this season is senior quarterback Mason Copeland. With him under center, the Leopards won two of their final three games to work themselves into post-season contention.

A 5-foot-11, 185-pounder, Copeland can hurt opposing defenses with his legs and arm. During the regular season, he completed 13 of his 41 passing attempts for 157 yards.

Sophomore Hunter Turbeville also fits into the mix at quarterback for the Leps. He has completed 13 of his 35 tries for 178 yards and a TD.

Copeland keys a potent rushing attack by the Leps. He has rushed for 771 yards and seven touchdowns in Gainesville's regular season.

Zukari Long, a bruising 6-foot-2, 270-pound juggernaut, adds to the Leopards' arsenal. A junior, he finished the season with 636 yards and seven TDs.

Senior Demarius Farr also is a threat out of the backfield. A senior, he has rushed for 345 yards and three touchdowns on just 45 carries.

As a team, Gainesville has rushed the ball 399 times this season for 2,431 yards and 20 scores.

The one thing that has hampered the Leopards' offense this season has been turnovers. In 10 regular season

READY FOR THE RUN

A fan of the culinary arts, Yanez ready to help Steers add new chapter to playoff history

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

Matt Yanez sat on the sideline last season as the Big Spring High School Steers advanced three rounds deep in the playoffs. For the most part, he was an afterthought on the Steers' record-setting offense. A spare wheel used occasionally on a machine that re-wrote almost every record in the school's long history

Unlike many, Yanez didn't complain about being a back-up to a pair of all-state receivers in Devin Roberson and Tate Kennedy. In the back of his mind, he knew playing behind two of the state's best would only help him when his time finally arrived.

"I didn't see a lot of time last year," said Yanez. "But I did learn a lot from those guys in practice, and from just watching. I know a lot of people were wondering if we (fellow first-year starting receiver Dee Parker) and I would be able to play, but I knew we could."

"It wasn't like we didn't have a lot of time working with one of the best offensive teams in the state. We did it every day in practice. We just didn't get maybe one or two passes a week so no one really knew anything about us."

Opposing defenses certainly know about Yanez, a 5-foot-7, 170-pound senior, this fall. His is, after all, putting, together a stellar campaign en route to helping Big Spring advance to the Class 4A state football playoffs. The Steers will face off against Gainesville in the bi-district round beginning at 7 p.m. on Friday in Aledo.

Heading into the season, Yanez said he knew the primary concern on the offense would be centered around his ability to step up as a receiver. With starters back at almost every other position, including quarterback and running back, there weren't that many questions to be answered.

And, who wouldn't be concerned with replacing two all-state receivers.

As a sophomore, Yanez made his varsity debut - briefly. During the 2012 season, he managed to haul in one pass for an 8-yard game.

Last season, he was targeted a little more, catching 16 passes for 131 yards and his first varsity TD.

Heading into his senior season, the 17-year-old has caught just 17 passes for 139 yards.

Not a lot, he admits, to hang one's hat on.

"I don't blame anyone for wondering if we could do it," he said.

A third-generation member of the BSHS football program, Yanez didn't waste any time in proving he was capable of playing wide re-

'Dogs look to run past Broncos in first round

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

A year ago, the Coahoma High School Bulldogs were on the outside looking in when the playoffs got under way.

The Bulldogs will try and make sure they stay in the postseason picture tonight when they face off with Sonora in the first round of the Class 3A state playoffs. The two teams are scheduled to face off beginning at 7:30 p.m. at San Angelo Stadium in San Angelo.

Sonora heads into the bi-district showdown as the District 4-3A champion. Coahoma is the No. 4 seed from the tough District 3-3A race.

In Sonora, the Bulldogs are going to see a team just like themselves - a squad that wants to grind out wins with a tough running attack. The Broncos rank among the top rushing squads in West Texas this season, averaging more than 310 yards per game.

Foremost on the Broncos arsenal is quarterback Andres Acevedo. The speedy back has rolled up more than 1,500 yards this season, including 1,018 rushing on just 92 carries.

Steers faced eight playoff teams in 2014

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

When the Big Spring Steers rolled out their 2014 football schedules almost every gasped. To be sure, Big Spring faced a Murderer's Row cast.

Those feelings were proved true over the course of the nine-week season. Of Big Spring's nine foes, eight qualified for the state playoff race, including four that were state ranked.

Kerrville Tivy, the Steers' opening day foe, finished the year at 7-3 and will face San Antonio Sam Houston on Friday in the Class 5A playoffs. Monahans and Hereford also qualified for postseason play, finishing the year at 6-3 and 3-7, respectively. Big Spring's other non-district opponents, Andrews and Graham, went 9-1 and 8-2, respectively. The Mustangs will play Borger on Friday at Lowery Field in Lubbock.

Wylie (8-2), Brownwood (5-5), Stephenville (6-3) all qualified with the Steers.

Overall the Steers' 2014 opponents posted a cumulative record win percentage of .613 (54-34).

The only BSHS opponent not to make the playoffs was Snyder.

Continued from Page 1B receiver in the Steers' spread offense. In his first career start, he racked up seven catches. He also played a key role in "The Hail Mary" that lifted the Steers to a 58-56 last-second win. On the play, Yanez deflected the ball to Hunter Hill, whom scooped up the ball in the end zone for a touchdown.

A possession-style receiver, Yanez didn't slow down from there, catching five passes in the Steers' 33-32 win over Monahans and three more in the 41-14 rout of Hereford in their home opener.

His best performance was yet to come. A week after helping beat Hereford, he hauled in six passes against No. 6-ranked Graham and helped power Big Spring to an upset at Newton Field in Graham.

Yanez enjoyed his best day as a Steer on Homecoming day against rival Andrews. Despite seeing his team suffered a disappointing 43-42 loss, he pulled in career-highs with nine receptions for 131 yards.

A week later, in the Steers' District 3-4A opener, the son of Denise Carrillo and Martin Yanez had three catches for 72 yards.

Through Big Spring's nine games, Yanez leads the Steers in catches (35) and receiving yards (523) and is tied for second with Parker for TD receptions.

Friday's matchup with Gainesville will also mark a significant step for Yanez, who plays guard for the BSHS basketball team and in the outfield for the Steers' baseball program. Should the Steers win and advance, Yanez could move to within one step a sweet personal goal - ouppung his older brother

A former BSHS standout, Martin Yanez helped lead the Steers to the third round of the Class 3A playoffs three years ago.

"He's always pushing me," laughed Yanez. "He's been to one regional quarterfinal game, so it would be nice to beat him at that."

Forget any rivalry with his older brother, however. Matt said Martin has been one of his biggest supports over the last two years, offering tips and advice on routes, techniques and other facets of the game when asked.

"He's helped me out a lot," said Yanez. "He was pretty good at what he did."

What might shock most Steers fans about the team's top wide receiver and holder on the place-kicking unit, is where you can find the three-sport standout when he's not playing wide receiver, or guard for BSHS' playoff-qualifying basketball team, or outfielder for the Steers' playoff-qualifying baseball squad.

In the kitchen. "Not too many people know I love to cook," he said. "I cook everything you can think of. I enjoy going into the kitchen and making something."

He enjoys it so much, he admits, he even took a few home economics classes while in high school - a decision that made him a minority in many of the classes.

"There weren't too many athletes in those classes," he said. "I didn't care, though. I mean, I was one of the only boys in a class with a lot of girls, plus I got to do something I like. It was OK by me."

Yanez said his passion for the kitchen began at a early age. As a youngster, his mother would often go to work, leaving her youngest son free to rummage through the kitchen for things to eat and experiment with.

A three-sport standout at BSHS, Yanez leads the team in receptions and receiving yards this fall.

"I learned to cook and bake about everything," he said. "I think it is fun. I can see why people do it (cooking) for a living."

The skill will likely make Yanez a hit after high school. "I'll eat like a king at college," he said. "I won't have to live off Ramen Noodles."

Football likely won't be a passion for Yanez in college. He said he plans to play baseball in college, possibly at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

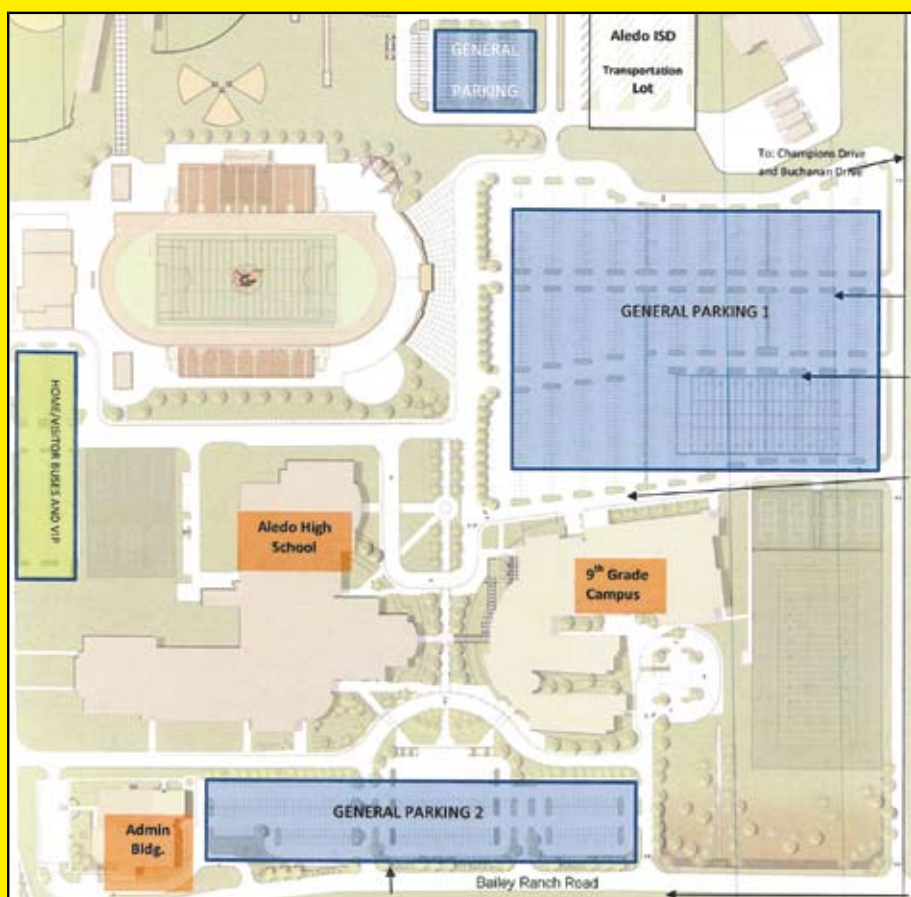

Baseball, however, will have to wait ... for now a few more weeks.

How to get to Bearcat Stadium

Fans planning to attend the Big Spring-Gainesville bi-district playoff game will enjoy the ease in getting to the Aledo Independent School District football Stadium. The modern facility is easily accessible right off Interstate 20. For those making the drive from Big Spring, go east on I-20 past Weatherford and Hudson Oaks. Aledo is located between Weatherford and Fort Worth.

Once in Aledo, exit on Bailey Ranch road south of the high school. For those coming off FM 1187, turn west onto Bailey Ranch Road, and then north onto Champion Drive. From there turn west on Buchanan Drive and proceed to the General Parking area in front of the stadium. Big Spring will be the home team for the contest.

Sands hopes to get defensive in showdown with Balmorhea

By TOMMY WELLS
Sports Editor

Sands High School head coach Steve Keith is well aware of his team's ability to score points in bunches. And he is thrilled about it.

What would make him even happier is for his team to come up big on two of three key defensive stands in the cold tonight when they face off with Balmorhea in the bi-district round of the six-man football playoffs.

If they can do that, Sands could be extending its season.

Sands and Balmorhea are scheduled to kick off the state's playoff action at 6:30 p.m. in Rankin.

"I think it is going to come down to who is mentally tough and can deal with the weather," said Keith. "If we can do that and limit our mistakes, we'll have a chance."

Balmorhea, which is coached by former Garden City mentor Vance Jones, comes into the game at 7-3. The Bears are the District 5-A champions.

Balmorhea is led into the contest by running back Isaiah Mendoza, who has rushed for 2,500 yards this season.

The Mustangs, who finished the year at 4-5 and as the District 6-A runner-up, have plenty of offensive firepower of their own. Sands has scored more than 50 points per game this fall. Leading the SHS attack is spreadback Dayton Eddleman and wide receiver Dyllan Tindo. Eddleman has rushed for more than 1,500 yards this season.

The winner of the Sands-Balmorhea matchup will play either Blackwell or Rising Star in the second round.

Acevedo is just the head of a 4-pronged rushing monster. The Broncos will also rely on Brett Castillo, Bryan Garcia and Elijah Cross to pound out yards.

Castillo is the team's second-leading rusher with 661 yards on 85 carries. Garcia has 515 yards and six TDs on 70 totes, while Cross has rushed 40 times for 493 yards and five touchdowns.

Acevedo and Hunter Hughes key the SHS passing game. Both have thrown for approximately 400 yards this season and combined for eight TDs.

The Broncos, who posted a 7-3 record during the regular season while averaging 35 points per contest, went unbeaten in district play. The finished off a 5-0 run in 4-3A play last week with a 41-8 romp over Reagan County.

Coahoma is no stranger to running up impressive rushing totals, either. The Bulldogs have averaged just under 250 yards per game on the ground with a three-pronged attack led by running backs Kyler Franks, Joseph Melendez and quarterback Braxton Iden. The trio have helped the Bulldogs roll up 2,461 yards this fall.

Iden leads the team's ground attack, having rushed for 709 yards on 127 attempts. Franks has rolled up 686 yards and five TDs on 112 carries. Melendez, who has rushed 103 times, has 648 yards and is tied with Iden for the team lead in TDs with nine.

Coahoma will look to control the SHS attack with a stifling defense. The Bulldogs have held opposing offenses to less than 16 points per game this season.

Memorial Stadium to host two playoff games

The playoff football atmosphere will be extra special for Howard County residents this week. In addition to having five Crossroads-area teams in the postseason, the area's football fans will also get a chance to see several other teams in action as two bi-district matchups will be held at Memorial Stadium

On Thursday, The Roscoe Plowboys will face off against Wink in a Class 2A showdown. The game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

On Friday, San Angelo Lakeview will face off against Canyon at 7 p.m.

STEERS

been turnovers. In 10 regular season games, Turbeville and Copeland have thrown eight interceptions.

Devin Mims, a 5-foot-11, 185-pound senior, is the team's top receiving threat.

Gainesville opened the season with a hot start. The Leopards claimed a 14-7 victory over Kaufman in their opener and, after a tough 14-7 loss to Kennedale in Week 2, grabbed a 16-14 victory over Alvarado to finish off a 2-1 start.

The Lep's luck didn't hold out. Gainesville dropped its last two non-district matchups to Ardmore (Okla.), 28-7, and Princeton, 27-14.

From there the team opened District 4-4A action with losses to Graham (34-0) and Wichita Falls Hirschi (20-10).

They snapped the 4-week losing streak in Week 8 with a 42-20 victory over Burkburnett.

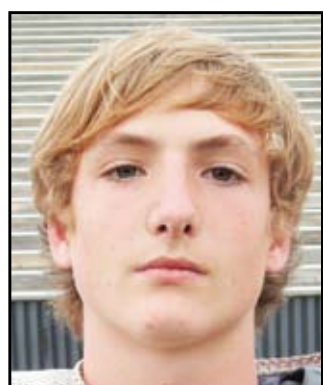

The win over Burkburnett, combined with their romp over Mineral Wells, put Gainesville into third in the district standings.

Big Spring rolls into the showdown sporting a 7-2 record, including a thrilling 46-41 win over Brownwood on Friday at home.
