Baby, it's cold outside — and don't expect it to get any better for New Year's Day.

According to the National Weather Service in Midland, the Crossroads area should see decreasing precipitation throughout the day with light, freezing raining and snow flurries. The temperature mostly likely will not rise above, or even reach, 25 degrees, so the chance of ice melting seems to be minimal.

Tonight, residents should brace for more icy precipitation. According the the weather service, an uptick in freezing precipitation means a strong possibility of more ice on the

What to do with your Christmas tree

BY LYNDEL MOODY

Staff Writer

Now that the last light is taken off and the last childhood ornament packed away, the question occurs of what to do with the mighty, barren green left in the middle of the living room.

On Tuesday, the city of Big Spring began accepting living Christmas trees at the landfill free of charge and will continue for one week only, through Tuesday, Jan. 6. No other trash will be accepted with the tree, a press release from the city states.

How about doing something else instead of discarding the

- Calling it "a child safety measure," Scenic Mountain Medical Center will no longer publicize the first baby of the New Year. "Like many hospitals around the country, we've based this decision on guidance provided by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which has cautioned against these kinds of announcements because of the potential risk of abduction or identity theft." said a SMMC spokesperson. "The birth of a baby is a joyous event and we know there is always interest in the first baby of the new year, but our first obligation is to the safety and privacy of our patients, which is why we have made this decision."

HHS Executive Commissioner Kyle Janek said the $1 million figure was included in early paperwork as an estimate on the cost of the contract bidding process.

"We have new policies and procedures in place that take a very strict spokeswoman stance on disclosure of potential conflicts of interest and increase oversight and transparency," Janek said, noting the commission which has a $33 billion annual budget — is "a big agency with a lot of high-dollar contracts."

The auditor's office launched its review in February after the commission reported potentially improper relationships between the company and two state employees, agency Edwards Gockel said. An AT&T spokeswoman said the company will cooperate with the ongoing review.

The telecommunications giant was contracted to provide services not only for HHS but also the agencies it oversees, such as the Department of State Health Services and the Department of Aging and Disability Services.

In response to the findings, the commission said it will re-bid the

The audit follows a recent controversy involving another state contract. Two highlevel state employees quit under pressure in December after newspapers reported state officials skirted procurement laws to steer a $20 million Medicaid antifraud contract to Austin cybersecurity company

The commission's former chief counsel, Jack Stick, who was instrumental in orchestrating the 21CT contract, resigned Dec. 12. That same day, the state canceled a pending $90 million contract extension with 21CT. One week later the commission's inspector general, Doug Wilson, whose office signed the deal, resigned.

Statistics tell us that only about 45 percent

Generally speaking, that's an honorable list and I certainly hope some of you succeeded in the fulfillment of your plans to make substantial improvement. However, this year I am making a proposal to everyone who reads this particular yearending chapter of "I column as I see 'em" that I believe can be life-changing. Even though the resolution I am proposing is simple, it represents the foundational change I would like to see happening in the human race in general. Why? Because I believe it to be the rudder on the ship of life which can, and will, largely determine the set of our sails as we head into the nevernavigated waters of yet another new year.

I'm proposing something for your consideration that has the potential to alter the path your life is on at this very moment. It has the power to transform your life from mere existence into an exciting experience. It's called attitude adjustment. Winston Churchill said, "Attitude is a little thing that makes a big difference." Thomas Jefferson said, "Nothing can stop the man with the right mental attitude from achieving his goal; nothing on earth can help the man with the wrong mental attitude." I've been in the "people business" a long time and I can tell you they were both right on target. Your attitude will definitely affect your altitude. I like what Coach Lou Holtz said, "Ability is what you're capable of doing. Motivation determines what vou do. Attitude determines how well you do it." I believe that to be true in every aspect of our human existence. Much of your success or failure to achieve goals, be successful in your vocation, realize your dreams, or even be happy will be directly affected by your attitudes. The noted English architect Sir

Christopher Wren was supervising the construction of a magnificent cathedral in London. A journalist thought it would be interesting to interview some of the workers, so he chose three, and asked them all the same question, "What are you doing?" The first replied, "I'm cutting stone for 10 shillings a day." The next answered, "I'm putting in ten hours a day on this job." The third said, "I'm helping Sir Christopher Wren construct one of London's greatest cathedrals." Which of the three do you think was enjoying life the most?

One of the most important steps you can take toward achieving your greatest potential in life is to learn to monitor your attitude and its impact on your work performance, relationships and everyone around you. We all have a choice. We can choose an inner dialogue of self-encouragement and selfmotivation, or we can choose one of self-defeat and self-pity. It's a power we all have. Each of us encounters hard times, hurt feelings, heartache, and physical and emotional pain. The key is to realize it's not what happens to you that matters; it's how you choose to respond.

Your mind is a computer that can be programmed. You can choose whether the software installed is productive or unproductive. Your inner dialogue is the software that programs your attitude, which determines how you present yourself to the world around you. You have control over the programming. Whatever you put into it is reflected in what comes out.

Many of us have behavior patterns today that were programmed into our brains at a very tender age and the information that was recorded could have been completely inaccurate or cruel. The sad reality of life is that we will continue to hear negative information, but we don't have to program it into our brains. Someone once said that we can't keep the birds from flying over our heads, but we can keep them from building nests in our hair.

What are you expecting from life? Two prisoners looking out the same window in the jail cell will see either the sky or the ground. Both the hummingbird and the vulture fly over the desert. All vultures see is rotting meat because that's what they look for. They thrive on that diet. But hummingbirds ignore the smell of dead animals and find the colorful blossoms of desert plants. They fill themselves with freshness and life. Each bird finds what is it looking for, and so do we. It's very easy to focus on evervthing that's wrong in the world. our town, and even in ourselves. It's easier to complain about what we don't have than to be thankful for all we do have. The ultimate level of human need extends into the spiritual realm and just as we feed our bodies in response to our primary need to survive physically, we need to feed our spirit because we are spiritual beings. Many people, like me, find powerful and positive motivation in their faith, realizing the power to be positive in my attitudes isn't always something they can do alone. As you head into 2015, remember the words of Abraham Lincoln; "We can complain because rose bushes have thorns, or rejoice because thorn bushes have roses."

You may not agree with anything I've said, but I column as I see 'em.

What's up with 'The Interview?' he Interview" is a funny movie that does a stand-up job showcasing how a not particularly serious or informed person would deal with Kim Jong Un — and evil itself, with all its blandishments. James Franco plays talk show host Dave Skylark, who discovers that the North Korean dictator loves his show. Skylark's susceptibility to flattery renders him willfully blind.

DEBRA SAUNDERS

Because Kim plays up to him, Skylark wants to believe that the phony grocery his chauffeured car happens to drive by is real, that reports that Kim starves his people are the result of media bias and that Kim, like Skylark, is just misunderstood. Besides, they both like Katy Perry, so deep down they both must be good guys.

In real life, that appears to have been the thinking of NBA star Dennis Rodman, whose courtship by Kim seemed anything but humorous. "The Interview" heartily lampoons Skylark's Rodman-like foreign affairs illiteracy. When producer Aaron Rapoport (Seth Rogen) first suggests a one-onone with Kim, Skylark crows that the sit-down will be like "Frosty Nixon."

When Kim boasts that Stalin gave his father a beloved tank. Skylark corrects him: "In AmerI downloaded the movie because Pyongyang didn't want me to watch it.

ica, we pronounce it Stallone." I downloaded the movie because Pyongyang didn't want me to watch it.

When I first heard about "The Interview," I wondered why the Rogen-Franco-Evan Goldberg collaboration didn't make up a phony dictatorship with a Kimlike strongman, in the model of Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator."

That would have been not only more tasteful but also remotely respectful.

But then the whole idea behind this brand of "bro" comedy is that there is no such thing as being too tasteless or going too far. At heart, "The Interview" is a goofball stoner movie. There are boob jokes, fat jokes, Korean jokes, bathroom humor, sexual high jinks. No gag is too raunchy, and no body part is free from ridicule. Violence? You bet. And it is gratuitous.

When Kim gives Skylark a cute puppy as a tribute to the TV star's childhood pet Digby, the gesture is funny in part because you wonder just how far the writers — Dan Sterling, Rogen and Goldberg - will go for alaugh. Spoiler alert: The puppy

I laughed a lot.

But there is one part of "The Interview" that left me cold — its use of a certain four-letter word. This word, used to describe a female body part, is equivalent to the N-word in its crudeness. But though there is controversy over African-Americans' use of the N-word, I know no woman who finds it a liberating exercise to use this term in reference to herself or other women.

In my experience, only creepy men who truly hate women use

I defend the movie's writers' right to use offensive language. I also have a right not to like it.

If Guardians of Peace hadn't hacked Sony and turned the movie into a must-see form of protest, I would expect not to have seen "The Interview" until it aired on TV — with that certain word bleeped out.

In Hollywood, the line is clear: Spare the puppy, and you can call women by whatever slur is handy.

An old plant, tainted land and worried homeowners

(AP) — Developer Richard Green had nearly everything in place to build upscale homes on the heavily polluted land next to an old electronic components plant in the mountains outside Asheville. All he needed was a permit.

So when the local board of adjustment asked whether the site had hazardous materials, Green said there was only a slight level of the cancer-causing industrial solvent trichloroethylene, or TCE, below the factory.

He then said he had a letter from state environmental regulators saying they were OK with the construction plans. They say they weren't.

Another developer Stanley Greenberg, told the board that federal environmental lators also had given a green light to build. They say they hadn't.

By the time of that August 1997 meeting, Greenberg and the partners had known about the contamination at the plant for a decade and were preparing to sell much of the land to Green for development of a project called Southside Village, according to an Associated Press review of documents that reveal how a subdivision came to be built next door to what is now a Superfund site.

Two years ago, the EPA named the 9 acres beneath and immediately around the former CTS Corp. factory among the nation's worst abandoned hazardous waste sites.

"Who's going to buy property ... next to a Superfund site?" said Judy Selz, who did purchase 3 acres in Southside Village in 2006 — six years before the Superfund designation — and is one of dozens of land and homeowners worried now about whether it's safe to live there. The nightmare scenario for Southside Village residents is already playing out for about a dozen residents of Skyland, a neighborhood of older homes on the other side of the old plant. This summer, the EPA urged three families to abandon their homes, citing unsafe levels of

The agency declared it safe enough for them to return in mid-November after contractors set up a vacuum-like device to catch chemical vapors rising from a spring.

Regulators with the Environmental Protection Agency and the North Carolina Department of Environment and Natural Resources recently told the AP they had no idea about the planned development when Green and Greenberg were seeking the county board's permission to build.

Both agencies said the extensive archival searches they conducted in response to the AP's public records requests turned up no documents supporting Green's and Greenberg's claims about having letters from regulators promising not to intervene on the property that would become Southside Vil-

The Buncombe County Board of Adjustment approved the project without asking to see any documentation verifying those claims, according to the minutes of that meeting and interviews.

Paperwork for Greenberg's 1987 purchase of the property included a report documenting elevated levels of TCE and other contaminants in the ground.

And a follow-up study in 1991 found TCE and other chemicals in a stream in an area that is now part of Southside Village, according to the AP's review.

Reached twice by phone earlier this year, Greenberg declined to comment, as did executives at CTS, based in Elkhart, Indiana.

In an email to the AP on Tuesday, Greenberg's attorney, Philip Anderson, didn't dispute the details contained in the meeting minutes. He said that the federal agency recommended "no further action status" after the 1991 environmental study.

The study itself, however, and related documents show only that the EPA granted the site "no further remedial action" status, which have meant merely that there were no immediate plans for additional cleanup – not that the site was no longer contaminated.

The CTS plant manufactured electronic parts for cars and hearing aids; workers had handled toxic chemicals, including TCE. Exposure to high levels of the cleaning solvent can cause liver and lung damage and even death, according to the Agency for Toxic Substances & Disease Registry.

Resident defies Ohio deadline on 'Zombie Nativity'

CINCINNATI (AP) — A "Zombie Nativity" scene in a southwest Ohio suburb remained undead Tuesday, days past the deadline to remove it. Sycamore Township officials said last week they had received complaints about debris at the home and concluded that the display violates rules on size and placement of yard structures. They sent resident Jasen Dixon two zoning violation notices and gave him until the day after Christmas to take it down. Facing a fine and legal action, Dixon instead kept the display up. A Facebook page devoted to the scene urges support for "freedom of expression."

The scene has eerie figures including a demoniclooking creature sitting up in the manger where the baby Jesus would be in traditional Christmas nativities. There's a detached head with it in the manger, while another ghoulish figure holds a replica heart in its hand as a somber "Silent Night" plays in the background.

Township officials have said it's not an anti-zombie issue, but pro-zoning rules.

"We do live in a free country, don't we?" asked Judy Giese, who lives down the block from Dixon on Vorhees Lane (not related to "Friday the 13th" movie slasher Jason Voorhees).

7 bodies found from AirAsia crash in Indonesia, but bad weather, big waves hinder recovery

PANGKALAN BUN, Indonesia (AP) — Bad weather hindered efforts to recover victims of AirAsia Flight 8501 on Wednesday, and sent wreckage drifting far from the crash site, as grieving relatives prayed for strength to endure their losses.

"Help us, God, to move forward, even though we are surrounded by darkness," the Rev. Philip Mantofa, whose church lost about 40 members in the disaster, told families gathered in a waiting room at the Surabaya airport.

The massive hunt for 162 people who vanished Sunday aboard the Airbus A320 from Surabaya, Indonesia to Singapore, was severely limited due to heavy rain, wind and thick clouds. Seven bodies, including a flight attendant in her red AirAsia uniform, have been recovered, said Indonesia's Search and Rescue Agency chief Henry Bambang Soelistyo.

Sonar images also identified what appeared to be large parts of the plane, but strong currents were moving the debris.

Conditions prevented divers from entering the choppy Java Sea, and helicopters were largely grounded. But 18 ships continued to scour the narrowed search area, and four of the seven corpses were recovered Wednesday. Indonesia's Meteorology and Geophysics Agency predicted conditions would worsen, with more intense rains, through

Palestinians say they will try to join ICC following failed UN vote

RAMALLAH, West Bank (AP) — The Palestinian leadership is meeting Wednesday to plan its next steps after a resolution to end Israel's occupation was rejected by the U.N. Security Council, and could set a date for applying to join the International Criminal Court, Palestinian officials said.

The U.N. vote Tuesday against the Palestinian bid, which called for the Israeli occupation to end within three years, was a blow to an Arab campaign for international action to bring about an independent Palestinian state.

The Palestinians have long vowed to join the ICC in order to press charges against Israel for alleged war crimes. But membership could expose the Palestinians to similar allegations.

Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat said officials would hold a "very serious meeting" Wednesday and could set a date for applying for membership to the ICC and other international agencies.

"There will be no more waiting, no more hesitation, no more slowdown," Erekat said. "We are going to meet and make decisions."

Surviving witness corroborates cover-up of mass killing by Mexican army

ARCELIA, Mexico (AP) — When the witness refused to sign a false statement that 22 suspected drug gang members had died in a shootout with the Mexican army, state investigators began to kick her in the ribs, she said. They put a bag over her head, plunged her face into a toilet bowl and beat her so hard that, six months later, she still has trouble with her hearing and eyesight.

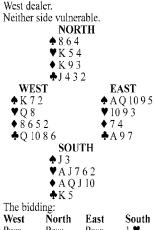

"As they were hitting me ... they told me they could make even the mute talk," said the woman, one of three witnesses known to have survived a June 30 mass killing by the Mexican army.

The bidding: West Pass Pass Pass Pass Opening lead — two of spades. To be a successful declarer, one must make assumptions during the Often these assumptions are based more on hope than expecta-

Ordinarily, you would lead a heart to the king and finesse the jack on the way back, but this would be the wrong play to make in this case. Here it is right to lead a heart to the king, but it is wrong to finesse the jack. Instead, you should go up with the acc. As the cards lie, this anti-percentage play succeeds beautifully when the ace catches the queen and East later shows up with the ace of clubs. But how, you might well ask, can you possibly be expected to know that playing for the queen to drop is better than taking the finesse? The answer is that you have no chance for the contract unless East has the ace of clubs, and, once you make this assumption, you cannot also play East for the queen of hearts. While it is conceivable that East would have passed in third seat holding five spades headed by the A-Q and the ace of clubs, it is inconceivable that East would have passed had he also held the queen of hearts. You therefore have no choice but to assume that West has the queen, and on that basis you reject the finesse and hope the queen is doubleton.

Taliban attack on Afghan mountain hamlet tests army after US forces leave

DANGAM, Afghanistan (AP) — The smoke from mortar and rocket attacks rises from the mountains of Dangam in the remote eastern border region of Afghanistan as Talban insurgents battle government forces in a bid to establish a permanent presence now that the American soldiers who led the fight here for more than a decade have left.

Heavy fighting has been raging for almost three weeks, with wave after wave of Taliban militants assaulting this picturesque but poverty-stricken district of Kunar province just four kilometers (2.5 miles) from the border with Pakistan, officials and residents said.

The U.S.-led international effort to rid Afghanistan of the Taliban officially shifts from a combat to a training band support mission Wednesday, with Afghan forces assuming full responsibility for security nationwide on New Year's Day. A residual force of 10,800 Americans and almost 3,000 NATO soldiers will remain, under the banner of a new mission called Resolute Support.

Over the last 18 months, U.S. and NATO forces have been closing their bases across the country, taking their battlefield prowess, air support and medical evacuation assets with them.

The war is meanwhile creeping into urban and residential areas, putting ordinary people at greater risk. Civilian casualties look set to hit 10,000 in 2014, the highest yearly total of dead and wounded since the U.N. began keeping records in 2008. More than 75 percent of the deaths and injuries are caused by Taliban attacks, according to the U.N.

4 amigos: Vacation in home state of Hawaii reunites Obama with 3 childhood friends

HONOLULU (AP) — Since returning to his childhood home this month on vacation, President Barack Obama has spent a good part of most days cloistered with three people whose company puts him at ease. They're not his wife and daughters, who came with him, but a trio of pals whose friendship dates back to Obama's high school days in Ha-

The three men — Mike Ramos, Bobby Titcomb and Greg Orme — are among the few people still in Obama's life who knew him long before he was famous. Although their paths have long since diverged, they've made it a point to gather for frequent reunions, in one of Obama's most visible links to the days when his life was much simpler and his problems more mundane. On this visit alone, Obama has spent more than 22 hours with the group on the lush golf courses that dot the island of Oahu. When it rained, Obama and his pals went bowling, instead. And on Tuesday, in what's become a yearly tradition, the men and their families gathered for a luau hosted by Titcomb. With rain drizzling over Oahu, Obama's motorcade whisked Obama across the island to Titcomb's beachside home in Waialua, about an hour outside of Honolulu on the North Increasingly, the reunions have become the focal point of Obama's family vacations in his second term, as his teenage daughters spend less and less time at their father's side. Once content to join their parents for outings to the aquarium or to get shave ice, Sasha and Malia are now more independent. Since arriving more than a week ago, Obama has been out in public with one of his daughters only once, briefly, during a hike.

In Kentucky, rat-a-tat auctioneer chants at tobacco warehouses becoming a dying art

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Tripp Foy's sing-song chant rang out like a sentimental oldie for die-hard farmers clinging to the old way of selling tobacco, as a small procession of buyers shadowed him down long rows of reddish-brown leaf piled in bales.

Farmers who have spent their lives tending the aromatic crop in their fields find comfort in Foy's rat-a-tat style, part of an auction system that's been all but snuffed out by another way of selling tobacco after years of declining smoking rates.

"It's kind of in our blood," said tobacco farmer Walter Browning. "But I'm about bled out."

This tobacco-belt tradition, once as much a part of Kentucky's fabric as bourbon or horse racing, is fading away — and it's taking the maestros like Foy with it.

"The chant of an auctioneer can sound as good as a song," said Foy, 63, who has spent four decades auctioning tobacco in Kentucky — the nation's top burley producer. "You can walk down a row and you can almost dance to the tune of the sale."

Weather forces MISD officals to cancel Sandhills title game

By TOMMY WELLS

AP Sports Writer

Mother Nature finally found a way to do something no other team at the Sandhills Invitational Basketball Tournament couldn't. She cooled off the Big Spring High School Steers.

Literally.

Due to the arrival of a severe winter storm, officials within the Monahans Independent School District decided on Tuesday to cancel the tournament's championship game due to declining road conditions that would have required both Big Spring and Levelland to travel on icy

"We know that you've always got to contend with weather," Monahans head coach Terrill Amburn said in announcing the tournament's title game would not be played. "We've done this before. You know that this is always a possibility. We were real fortunate that this happened on the last day instead of the first two."

The weather was the only thing that slowed the Steers' game. Winners of their last five straight, Big Spring breezed through their pool play schedule on Monday and Tuesday with a perfect 4-0 record. The mark earned the Steers a berth in the championship game against Levelland, the Pool B champion.

Big Spring kicked off Tuesday's action with a dominatingperformance from seniors Ty Sealy and Tyler Bryan in a 64-51 come-from-behind win over Presidio.

Presidio held an early lead thanks to a slow shooting effort by Big Spring in the early moments.

Sealy and Bryan made up for that later. Sealy finished the game with a double-double, netting 18 points and 12 rebounds.

Lady Steers fall to Floydada

The Big Spring High School Lady Steers' outing in Lubbock came to an end on Tuesday afternoon with a loss to Floydada in the consolation round of the Fuddruckers Caprock Classic.

With the loss, the BSHS girls finished the tournament with a 1-2 record.

Big Spring notches its lone win of the tournament Tuesday by downing Kingdom Prep by a 52-16 clip.

Bryan closed out the contest ad the Steers' top scorer with 20 points. Kei'Shawn Broussard also reached double figures offensively, chalking up 10 points.

Big Spring closed out pool play with a 54-27 win over the Monahans iunior varsity on Tuesday afternoon.

The Steers' weren't the only local team being affected by the weather in Monahans. The Forsan Buffaloes saw their ninth-place matchup, which was slated for Wednesday morning, with the Monahans JV get cancelled.

Forsan had finished fourth in the Pool B standings, going 0-4. The Buffaloes dropped games to Levelland (79-33) and Midland Classical (47-39) on Monday and then suffered losses to Monahans (64-39) and El Paso Riverside (56-54) in Tuesday.

According to Amburn, not every game on Saturday was cancelled. According to tournament officials, Presidio, El Paso Riverside and Alpine were all staying in hotels and planned to play Saturday.

to a $70,000 fine. Hearing officer Ted Cottrell heard Suh's expedited appeal Tuesday and ruled that Suh can play Sunday at Dallas but must suspension was reduced pay the fine. Suh originally was suspended for stepping on Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers' left leg twice last Sunday in a loss to Green Bay for the NFC North title. He stepped on Rodgers once with each foot, which violated unnecessary roughness rules, according to the league. But Cottrell, jointly appointed by the NFL and the players' union, rescinded the suspension. The Lions said they would not comment until Wednesday, when Suh will be available at their training complex.

One Cowboys defensive player, end Jeremy Mincey, seemed surprised by Cottrell's decision.

"I didn't understand that," Mincey said. "You've got to play the game the right way. I'm not knocking him. I like his intensity. I love how hard he plays. But there comes a point where you've got to think before you react."

mediate.

Mediation is an informal process where a neutral and impartial mediator facilitates two or more disputing parties in coming to a mutually agreed-upon resolution. The beauty of mediation is that the two parties are the decision makers and the trained and certified mediator helps them dig below the surface to identify their true interests: "why" they have taken their opposing positions on an issue. More often than not, the two parties find that their interests are not that far apart and, with the help of the mediator, arrive at a resolution.

There are several routes to mediation, and the laws and procedures are different in each state, but there are attorneys who are mediators or who work with private mediators who can be of assistance. Additionally, the local courthouse staff may be able to assist the parties in procuring mediation for small-claims cases or higher (the dollar amount varies by state).

I highly recommend mediation because it is less expensive and less time consuming, and the individuals make the decision rather than a judge who will rule by statute. Of course, if they cannot resolve the issue through mediation, they still have litigation as the last resort. -- W.

Dear W.: Thank you for suggesting professional mediation as a way of working through these disagreements without resorting to a lawsuit. People are too quick to sue when simply talking it out and reaching a compromise often creates a solution

without additional ill

Dear Annie: I had a similar experience to that of "Proud Grandma," whose childless daughter criticizes the way her siblings raise their kids.

After hearing one too many criticisms, I finally came back with, "I hope, when you have children, they are as good as you think mine ought to be!" My sibling was hurt, but it didn't happen so often afterward. -- L.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Cosmic Countdown

The Taurus moon has a healthy appetite for life and all that sustains it.

This one isn't known for powers of selfdiscipline, definitely make plans for the most indulgent scenario -i.e., buy

MATHIS extra food if you're hosting and bring cab fare if you're out. Late evening features a lucky lunar angle to Mercury. The real party happens after hours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Roles shift, tables turn. The one who likes taking care of you may need care this time, so be willing to change places. Learning how to make people happy is never a

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). In relationships, ignorance is not bliss. Find out about the other person. Ask everything you've been curious to know. Find the "why." Once you understand the "why," you can change the "how."

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your senses will be heightened today, and you'll be especially tuned in to the chemistry you have with others. It will be lucky to express your physical self through dance, athletics or massage.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). A person who seems to have all the time in the world will want to use up your time, too. Draw the line with bored friends, and you'll be helping them find their purpose.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Be careful not to squash imaginations or impose your own views on someone impressionable.

the ones with the most creativity now, and you will be enriched by their contributions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A tinge of jealousy is just enough to motivate you, so long as you have the emotional discipline not to let it take over your life. On the romantic front, be careful not to send mixed messages. Direct messages land most pleasingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). To catch people doing good and to talk about it in attention-captivating ways is a far superior hobby to complaining. Your new goal is to go as long as you can without uttering a negative word.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Usually, it takes courage to go against the popular opinion, but your convictions are so strong now that you wouldn't even consider letting them go unexpressed You're fearless.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Friendliness is one of the simplest and most appreciated values of the night. You'll be appreciated for your warmth and inclusion. You are the one who gets the party started.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When the rules of the game keep changing, it's a sign that it's time to make up your own rules. Include fun, reward and celebration, or you won't want to abide by them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). As a child, it seems that parents are in a different stratosphere of existence. But as you get older, 20 years or so doesn't seem like such a long time between people. Anyway, you'll bridge such generational gaps tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). A lack of funds will be a blessing, inviting better communication and higher levels of creativity to surface. What you express from your heart will draw others close to you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

(Dec. 31). It's your year of attracting just what you need. Resources open up in January, so you'll have money, time and creativity to apply to your ambitions. A supportive relationship will cheer you on. Singles fall in love in April. Couples embark on exciting joint ventures. June will change the way you do business. Sagittarius and Cancer people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 41, 2, 24, 38 and 47.

FIRST KISS OF 2015: If you already have a set of lips designated for the event, disregard the advice. But for those adventurous singles who still haven't decided on the issue of whether or who to kiss, here's an astrological suggestion. ARIES: A fiery Leo will match your intensity and then some! TAURUS: Capricorn is a class act who has fun breaking the cordial tone once in a while to do something zany. GEMINI: You will be able to hear the music of your heart when you lock lips with a Libra. CANCER: You're in your element with the full moon in your sign, and fellow water sign Scorpio really gets you tonight LEO: Aries will have just the playful attitude you'll be looking for tonight. VIRGO: Aquarius gives you a run for your money, and you love the challenge. LIBRA: Gemini's friendly charm is so appealing. SCORPIO: Cancer is stunningly attractive and very much the man or woman of the hour. SAGITTARIUS: Pisces provides a soulful moment through parted lips! CAPRICORN: Sensual Taurus holds magic in that pucker. AQUARIUS: Virgo's kiss is simultaneously exhilarating and sweet. PISCES: Electricity flies when you kiss a CELEBRITY PROFILES: Global superstar Psy has had more YouTube hits for his video of "Gangnam Style" than YouTube was prepared to count. This bodes well for his latest single "Hangover,' featuring Snoop Dogg. Psy was born when the sun and Venus were both in Capricorn, the sign of ambition and business savvy. His driving planet Mars is in the sign of Leo, the entertainer.
