Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Edwards Hold Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Edwards, pioneer residents of the Eula section, held a family reunion at the beautiful country home near Eula on Christmas day with nine of their ten children and other members of the family present.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwards celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary December 5 of this year. Mrs. Edwards whose maiden name was Kate Murray, was born May 15, 1859, in Newton, Mississippi. With her parents she moved to Texas and settled near Rockdale, in 1865. Mr. Edwards was born November 2, 1854, near Menden Louisiana, and moved with his family to Texas in 1863. They settled near Cameron. Mr. Edwards and Miss Murray were married in Rockdale, December 5, 1877.

Mr. Edwards first bought land in Callahan county in 1884, but it was five years later before he moved his family to West Texas. Their first home was on what is now known as the McEachern place, southwest of Eula, a few miles from where they now live.

Eleven children, including three sets of twins, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Edwards. A girl, twin of Robert L. Edwards, sheriff of Callahan county, died at the age of six years. Other twins are Johnnie of San Angelo and Tommie of Clovis, New Mexico; Morris of Clyde and Murray of Clovis Tommy was the only child not present for the reunion. Other children are J. E. Edwards of Crowell, W. W. Edwards of Arcadia, La., Mrs. H. L. Tyler of Clyde, Mrs. J. A. Nance of Clyde, Sheriff Edwards and Mrs. V. R. King of Baird.

Others present for the reunion were: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kinsey, Frank Gordon and Betty Ruth Sowell of Midland; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Robbins and children, Billy and Charles Frank, Stamford; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snively, Hamlin; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Crockett Sloan, Wayne and Russell Edwards, Rogers, New Mexico; Mrs. Johnnie Edwards, San Angelo; Mrs. Murray Edwards, Mary Pearl, Murray Lee and June Edwards, Clovis, N. Mex.; H. L. Tyler, Glenn and Annie Jane Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tyler and daughter, Carlene, J. A. Nance, Homer Nance, and Jimmie Clark, Mrs. Morris Edwards, Weldon and La Verne Edwards, all of Clyde; Wyoma King, Mrs. Robert L. Edwards and Bobbie Sue, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Edwards, all of Baird; Mrs. J. B. Crutchfield, Brady, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Rhodes of Abilene. Mrs. Rhodes is a cousin of Mrs. Edwards.

MISSIONARY SOCIAL MEETING

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will meet in a social meeting Monday afternoon, Jan. 6 at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. O. Lamar, with Mrs. Lamar, Mrs. Joe Alexander and Mrs. W. S. Hamlett as co-hostesses.

All members of the society are urged to attend the meeting.

Think On These Things

By Rev. C. C. Andrews Baird, Texa

"Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and he followeth not us; and we forbid him, because he followeth not us."

There are no doubt many among us who have the same spirit as the disciples, and were it not for our whole some laws, would forbid all who do not follow them, or belong to their church, from preaching in the name of Christ.

But Jesus rebuked them, saying, "Forbid him not."

We ought not to hinder, but rather encourage any one that is doing a good work helping somebody in the name of Christ.

For no man, says Jesus, "Which shall do a miracle (a good work) in my name, that can lightly (insincerely) speak evil of me."

"For he that is not against us is for us."

Let us then have the same spirit that Paul had, who said, "Whether in pretence, or in truth, Christ is preached and I therein rejoice, yea, and will rejoice."

We must be careful however, "Not to bid God speed" those who ignore and repudiate Christ.

Allen Hornsby Died At Home Near Rowden

Allen Hornsby, 85, died at the family home near Rowden Monday morning following an illness of several months due principally to advanced age.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at Belle Plain Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the rites being conducted by Rev. Royce Gilliland, Baptist minister, of Baird, and burial made in the family plot with the father and mother of the deceased.

Pallbearers were: Dr. V. E. Hill, Ernest Hill, Roy Cutbirth, Ray Bowen Jack Gilliland and W. F. Jones.

Allen Hornsby, who was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hornsby, deceased, was born in Roan county, Tennessee on April 5, 1851. He came to Texas in 1884 and settled near Ferris in Lamar county where he was joined later by his partents and other members of the family. He and his brother, W. J. Hornsby came to Callahan county in Dec. 1889 and established a home near Rowden where they were joined by their father, mother, brother, S. P. and sister Miss Sue. The family have lived all these years on the same farm being engaged in farming and gardening, being progressive in these lines.

Mr. Hornsby was never married. He is survived by two brothers and one sister, S. P. (Doc) Hornsby, W. J. Hornsby and Miss Sue Hornsby. He is also survived by two nephews, D. H. Hornsby, of Marshall and A. E. Hornsby, of Abilene, also one great niece Virginia Lou, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Hornsby.

All members of the family were present at the funeral, also many old friends, among them R. V. Newton of Marshall.

New Rose Named In Honor of Texas Centennial

A beautiful new rose, named in honor of the Texas Centennial year, held the center of interest recently at the annual Rose festival in Tyler. The Centennial rose was one of more than 500 varieties which furnished the thousands of blooms for the four day festival which ended Sunday, Oct. 6.

Tyler is in the heart of the great East Texas nursery area which produces approximately one-half of the nation's supply of roses. Roses from Tyler area's 140 nurseries have won many prizes in show competition and the more than 1,500 acres of blooming plants attract thousands of interested visitors each year. The "Rose Garden" section is expected to be a popular point of interest for many visitors to the state during the Centennial celebration period which was opened Oct. 2nd at Gonzales and which will be continued through a number of historical celebrations at various points in the state, culminating in the state-wide exposition at Dallas next June.

The Centennial Rose was patented by the Dixie Rose Nursery of Tyler, and is being sold in large quantities for beautification in Texas during the Centennial.

The Dixie Rose Nursery are running an ad in The Star. Write them for catalog and prices.

Atwell H. D. Club News

The Club had two meetings the latter part of 1935. The November meeting was with Mrs. Clint Brasher Miss Moore demonstrated on making peanut butter.

The December meeting was with Mrs. Steve Foster. Miss Moore was on her way to the District Meeting at Mineral Wells, so the short time was spent in discussing the ways of making and steaming fruit cakes. The club members copied and exchanged recipes. A business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Claud Foster and the following officers elected:

President, Mrs. D. C. Foster; Vice-President, Mrs. Don Lavender; Secretary, Mrs. Owen Rouse; Reporter, Mrs. Ben Riffe; Council Member, Mrs. Clint Brasher; The two Demonstrators, Mrs. Owen Rouse and Mrs. Claud Foster.

There were fifteen members present. The club voted to have only one meeting a month, which will be each First Tuesday. The January meeting will be with Mrs. Don Lavender.

Doc Townsend Died Here Sunday

Doc Townsend, 66, of Loving, New Mexico, died at the Griggs hospital Sunday morning, December 29, following a long illness.

The remains were carried in a Wylie funeral coach to Oplin Sunday afternoon for burial, the funeral services being held at 2 o'clock at the Christian church with Rev. Slater officiating. Burial was made in the Oplin cemetery.

Mr. Townsend has been in ill health for sometime and accompanied by his niece, Mrs. Will Johnson of Oplin, he spent several weeks in Mayos hospital at Rochester, Minn., and four weeks before his death was brought to the Griggs hospital where he has since been a patient. Mr. Townsend is survived by his sister, Mrs. Harris and two nieces, Mrs. Will Johnson and Mrs. A. D. McWhorter, of Oplin.

Car Loads of Food Canned By H. D. Club Members of Cc.

If all of the food canned by women and girls of Callahan County through home demonstration clubs was packed into freight cars there would be three freight cars well filled with canned goods.

One fifty foot freight car will hold 50,000 cans, and there were 152,000 cans of food canned.

A total of three hundred and eighty four women make up the membership of eighteen clubs. In addition to the food canned, 97,506 pounds of food was dried, cured, and stored. The total was valued at $35,275.30.

One thousand and eighty-three feet of pantry shelving was added in ten new pantries and twelve renovated pantries; one hundred and thirty new recipe files were made; twenty-six pressure cookers were added; fourteen sealers were bought; and thirty sub-irrigation systems were installed.

Food and clothing each had their place in home demonstration work in Callahan County during the year. In clothing work these same women made 2076 garments and 384 foundation patterns. Individual clothing accounts kept showed that the average amount spent per woman was $32.50. Forty four clothes closets were built and re-modeled, showing an interest in the care of the clothes in the home.

Goals reached by club members of the county were satisfactory but not yet 100 per cent; and until 100 per cent goals are reached, Home Demonstration Clubs will always aim for more wealth, influence, culture, and power for Callahan County.

CALLED MEETING WOODMEN CIRCLE

Holly Grove Woodmen Circle will meet in called session to-night, Friday, Jan. 3. All members are urged to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Julia Vestal, Guardian Eliza Gilliland, Sec.

Curtis Jones And Miss Lucile Ray Married Christmas Eve

Curtis Jones of Baird and Miss Lucile Ray of the Iona community were married Christmas eve, the young people stealing quietly away to the home of Rev. R. A. Walker, pastor of the Presbyterian church in Merkel where the marriage took place, with Rev. Walker officiating.

Mr. Jones is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. V. F. Jones, of Baird and a graduate of the Baird High School. Mrs. Ray is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Ray of the Iona community and attended Clyde High school.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones will make their home in Baird with Mr. Jones' parents. He is associated with his father in stockraising and farming.

HOLIDAY SEASON CLOSED

The holiday season has come to a close and conditions becoming normal again. The holiday season passed quietly in Baird.

Merchants are busy invoicing and making plans for the New Year's business. College boys and girls have gone back to their studies and teachers home for the holidays have returned to their work in the school room.

Baird schools opened Monday after week's holiday.

NOTICE TO PRODUCERS WHO HAVE SURPLUS CERTIFICATE

Producers who are in need of certificates to tag out this year's cotton should buy the amount they will need at once as we desire to place all the unused or surplus certificates in the National Pool very soon.

Producers who have left their surplus certificates with me for local sale should call at the office within the next few days and sign the necessary papers to place these certificates in the National Pool. The sooner these certificates are sent into the National Pool the better chance they have of being sold. Act today.

Arthur L. Cook, A. A. A. Assistant.

Senator Collie Governor For One Day, Dinner Honoree

Senator Welbourne B. Collie, of Eastland, state senator, who became acting governor of Texas Tuesday for one day, was honored with a dinner Tuesday night by friends in the senate.

Senator Collie was the sixth person within a year to serve as governor of Texas.

Others served as acting governor were Senators Ken F. Regan of Pecos and John S. Redditt of Lufkin, like Collie, president pro tempore ad interim of the senate. Allred succeeded Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson last January 15.

Collie granted a few clemencies and authorized return of a man wanted on a felony charge in South Carolina. He also restored citizenship and hunting rights of several persons.

He became acting governor when Governor James V. Allred left the state to see the Stanford-S. M. U. football game at Pasadena, Calif. and Lieut.-Gov. Walter F. Woodul of Houston went to New Orleans for the Louisiana State-T. C. U. contest.

As his first official act, he appointed eight lieutenant-colonels on his honorary staff as follows:

W. H. Mayes, Jr., of Eastland; Harold G. Clark of Dallas; Raymond S. Brooks of Austin; Boyce House of Fort Worth; John Lee Smith of Throckmorton; Ben L. Russell, Sr., of Baird; H. A. Pender of Abilene and H. G. Towle of Snyder.

DELPHIAN CHAPTER

The Delphian Chapter met Tuesday, Dec. 31 with Mrs. Harold Ray as hostess. Members answered roll call with homes and gardens. Mrs. James Ross Federation Council, gave a report on European Clubs. Mrs. Bob Norrell gave a report on Civic Work and Biography. Mrs. Howard Farmer gave a report on Poetry; Mrs. Harold Ray, a report on Short Story; Mrs. Lonnie Ray a report on Novels.

At this meeting, the following officers were elected.

Gilbert Hinds And Mrs. Kathryn Lassiter Married

Gilbert Hinds of Baird and Mrs. Kathryn Lassiter of Cisco were married Wednesday night in Baird, the wedding taking place in the Firemens Hall with Rev. H. N. Balden, officiating.

The Baird Volunteer firemen of which the groom is first Assistant Chief had met in regular session and at the close of the session the wedding party entered the hall and the marriage vows were taken in the presence of the firemen and a number of friends who accompanied them.

Mr. Hinds is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hinds and has lived in Baird since childhood. He is a most worthy young man and has many friends here.

Mrs. Hinds is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Perdue of Cisco.

The young people were accompanied by the following relatives and friends from Cisco: Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Perdue, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Sheffey, Carrie Bell Perdue, Lucille Davis, Claude McBeth, Earl Lee Lassiter, Lola Mae Johnson, Betty Louise Steffy.

Following the wedding the firemen took the newly weds for a trip over the city in the big fire truck followed by many in cars.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinds will make their home in Baird.

Sheriff Edwards Thanks People Of Callahan County

I take this method of expressing my appreciation to every citizen of Callahan county from the oldest to the youngest for their cooperation and assistance in helping the Sheriff's Department of Callahan County as we have tried to enforce the laws of our county during the year 1935. It is indeed no small task to enforce the law, and utterly impossible to please all people.

It has been my greatest ambition since trying to serve you as sheriff to be fair and unbiased, seeing that all have equal law enforcement and that all have the same protection of the law as needed.

It has been a pleasure to me as I have tried to serve my county as sheriff and regardless of how long I shall be your official, and when you shall see fit to elect another, I shall look back with pride and a clear conscience to the day when I was able to serve my county in a way that the majority of its citizens were willing to return me to a second or third term.

Now as we enter the new year of 1936, let's all pull together as we have in years past to maintain the best citizenship of any county in the state and I challenge any county for better law abiding people) and our criminal records will bear me out. They will also show that 75 per cent of our criminal convictions are against out-of-county people.

So let's strive to first abide by the law, then help your officers enforce the law against those who disregard it.

With best wishes to all for a happy and prosperous New Year, I am yours

Sincerely,
R. L. Edwards,
Sheriff, Callahan Co.

PHILLIP PRESTON WINS PRIZE IN FORD SALES CONTEST

Phillip Preston, salesman for the Earl Johnson Motor Co., local Ford dealer, was awarded a ten dollar prize by the Dallas branch of the Ford Co., the award being a part of the $5,000.00 fund distributed to Ford salesmen in the sales contest in this section.

GOVERNMENT COTTON REPORT

The December cotton census report for Callahan county as sent us by J. H. Shrader, special agent, gives the number of bales of 1935 cotton as ginned prior to Dec. 13, 1935 as 6389 as compared with 5227 same period in 1934.

EPISCOPAL SERVICES

Rev. Willis P. Gerhart will preach at the Holy Communion service at the Episcopal Chapel of the Lord's Prayer Sunday at 8:30 p. m. All cordially invited to attend the service.

The auxiliary will meet on Wednesday Jan. 8th.

"Honorary Admiral in the Texas Navy" is the title conferred by Gov. James V. Allred upon Ginger Rogers, Texas girl who has made good in the movie colony and whose next picture is, appropriately, "Follow the Fleet". No mythical title, the commission is a real office in a real navy. An official Texas fleet sailed the high seas a century ago when Texas was an independent republic, and Ginger's commission was signed on November 25, 1935, one hundred years to the day since the decree was passed creating the Texas Navy. Modern statutes have perpetuated the naval militia, and Ginger now becomes its first honorary admiral. And only an admiral like Ginger would rate a staff like this. Texas University co-eds were in the capital when the commission was signed, and the Governor promptly appointed them her Court of Honor. Charming they pose with the six flags that have flown over Texas, while the Governor holds the signed document. Left to right are Katherine Frank of Dallas, Eloise Ely of Abilene, Katherine Letter of Corpus Christi, Governor Allred, Janet Pilcher of San Angelo, June Ross of Fort Worth, and Isabelle Thomason of El Paso.

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"Ride With Robbers"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

YOU know, boys and girls, a few weeks ago, I started looking for automobile yarns. I figured that in an area where thousands of people owned cars, there ought to be a flock of guys who had adventures riding in them. Well, sir, those auto stories are just beginning to show up now. Not many of them—not nearly as many as I would like to see. But enough to show that, at least, I wasn't entirely wrong in my guess.

I've got another auto story for you now, incidentally, and—well—it's the funniest sort of automobile yarn you ever heard of. Because Harris Budner, the man whose story it is, wasn't even in the car when things started to happen to him. He got his adventure, just by standing alongside of a gas-buggy.

Now 85 East Bennington street is the address of the cobbler shop that he has run on the same spot, in East Boston, for 37 years. And it was right there that his adventure took place on the sixth of August, 1934.

"It still seems like a dreadful nightmare," he says. "It is the one experience of my life that I am lucky to be alive to tell."

It was a hot, muggy August day, and through the windows of his shop, Harris could see that it was getting dark a bit earlier than usual.

Storm Clouds Cast an Ominous Darkness.

Taking a look at the sky, though, he saw the reason for that premature darkness. Storm clouds were gathering overhead, shutting out the sun.

He started putting away his tools and cleaning up his shop. It was seven-thirty, and time he was getting home. But before he had finished, a car drew up in front of the door and a young lad came in and asked him if he could repair a torn auto top.

Harris had done many a job of that sort so he picked up a needle and thread and one or two other tools, and went out to the curb.

In Which Harris Is Abducted.

He stepped on the running board and reached over the imitation leather top, looking for the tear. His hand probed the smooth surface in vain. There was no tear there.

In an instant Harris knew that something was wrong. But before he had a chance to move, he felt a push from behind.

The lad standing behind him shoved him into the rear seat of the car and four men, hiding inside, covered him with a couple of heavy blankets. Then the man at the wheel stepped on the gas, and the car shot away from the curb and went rolling down the street.

"It was hot enough outside," says Harris, "but it was hotter under those blankets. I screamed and they choked me. I gasped for air and they thrust a gun in my face. 'One more rip out of you,' they told me, 'and you'll be a dead man.'"

It Took a Tough Skull to Survive This.

They were going through a crowded section of the city then and Harris knew they wouldn't fire that gun. He began to kick and struggle, trying to regain his feet.

A gun butt crashed down on his head and he sank back to the floor. Again and again that gun descended on his cranium, Harris says. Dazed, and unable to move, Harris lay still. He lost all sense of time—all sense of everything except the rolling motion of the car.

They Literally Tore the Clothes Off Him.

He couldn't tell you how long he rode, but at length the car pulled up at a deserted spot on the edge of the Lynn marshes. The young thugs rolled him out and began going through his clothes in search of money.

They literally tore the clothes off him as they went through them, garment by garment. They then threw him into the marshes and left him there to die.

Cold Rain Revives Unfortunate Victim.

Still unable to move, Harris lay in the marsh, wondering if he would ever regain the use of his muscles. For half an hour he waited for his faculties to return. Then the clouds opened up and the cold rain, spattering on his face, revived him.

He got slowly to his feet—looked around him. The locality was strange and he didn't have the slightest idea where he was but he saw a light in the distance and began walking toward it.

The light came from a house, where two women occupants screamed when they saw the disheveled condition of his clothing. Harris turned away and staggered down the road.

A short distance away, he saw the lights of a small store. He headed toward it, his feet dragging, but before he had gone far, he met a man and woman on foot who took him in hand and led him to the nearest police station.

The police called a doctor and the doctor recognized Harris as the man who had mended his shoes for him when he went to school in East Boston. He dressed Harris' wounds and sent him to a relief station for further examination.

The cops had Harris in two or three times to look over hold-up suspects but he couldn't identify any of them. And incidentally, he wishes it understood that in the future he will mend automobile tops only for those who come well supplied with references.

Well, sir, that's another automobile story. There still ought to be hundreds of thousands more that I haven't heard about.

Roosevelt in Splendid Shape

Personal Attacks Fail to "Get Him"; Borah Decides to Enter Primaries

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON.—Now that it is a commonplace bit of knowledge that the personality of Franklin D. Roosevelt is the center point of the Presidential campaign which has started in earnest, it seems fitting to start this column with a little eye-witness stuff about the New Deal's commander.

Roosevelt personally is in splendid shape; physically he is athletic in appearance; he has a younger look than many of his associates ten years his junior; there is also a look which tells of a deeper insight into men and things. Despite a heavy pressure of work Roosevelt does not let any of his troubles "get him". . . . In fact I feel that his problems are not "troubles" at all. He has the gift of keeping the big things big and the small things small; and in the hurly-burly of government work that is a great gift.

He thinks deeply; his recent speeches, the one at Atlanta, the one at Chicago and the lesser one at South Bend, taken all together make a scholarly essay on his policies; they constitute a good platform for the defense of the Roosevelt administration.

Republicans meeting here in the National committee to arrange for a nominating convention at Cleveland, Ohio, June 9, 1936, made Roosevelt the objective of the attack. They hung placards all over the place. "Roosevelt Will Be Beaten"; and Washington was permeated with a smug Republican air of confidence. And after they had completed their business, Roosevelt himself let the G. O. P. know what he thought of the Republicans in a typical Roosevelt episode.

It came out at a White House press conference; a news man asked him about a PWA item for a new elephant house at the local zoo here. Well, of course, to political writers and cartoonists, the elephant always suggests the Grand Old Republican party; and Roosevelt took up the cause of the elephant house in that political vein.

The elephant, it was explained, is rapidly becoming extinct. Years ago the buffalo was being wiped out, and was saved from extinction by the expenditure of federal funds; so why not save the fast disappearing elephant—at least a specimen or so, for tourists to gaze upon as a curiosity. Moreover, the elephant house would have a deep pit—and into that pit the elephant may be cast when he turns up his toes.

Now, translating that into political talk, it simply means that Roosevelt threatens to wipe out the Republican party. . . . Just a threat, you know. . . . but the story got about Washington and made every Republican rarin' mad and made every Democrat chuckle.

BORAH ENTERS RACE

Although good old Bill Borah has been talking for years about liberalizing the Republican party he has taken, at last, a practical step when he permits his name in the Wisconsin primary. Borah's decision to enter the primary in Wisconsin of course means he is willing to run in all states where they have preferential primaries and it makes him a definite force against which the Old Guard will have to contend, because Borah to my mind is the most popular Republican in America. He certainly stands foursquare against the Charlie Hilles type of President making, which is generally a session in a back room with a group of men representing every interest in the country except the human interest. There is not a great deal of a chance for Borah to be nominated in Cleveland in June, for the cards are stacked against him, but if Borah starts speaking on purely Republican party matters he certainly ought to show Republican voters that if they choose from among the little group of reactionaries now busily running for the nomination they will be selling themselves down the river all over again. Of course the Old Guard bosses have plenty of money this year, and they will hang Bill Borah to a sour apple tree before June. What I look for the Republicans to do in Cleveland is to choose a candidate on a platform promising a return to the dog-eat-dog economics which built the false prosperity which crashed in the Hoover regime, leaving a stampeded nation to go over the precipice.

Borah knows that the plans to hand the Republicans back again to the reactionary element would be disastrous to the party at large. The Old Guarders know that Borah can make trouble for them. Millions of Republicans know Borah and admire him. If he persists in his intention to run for the nomination he can make trouble for the professionals now running the Republican organization; and in order to save their skins, their jobs and defeat Borah they will probably turn on him with as much venom as they have turned on Roosevelt.

TO SIGNAL THE ADVANCE

Roosevelt will be the only speaker at the Washington-Jackson day dinner held here January 8, and his voice will be carried to several thousand state and county dinners held by the national association of Young Democrats. It will be the signal for the advance all along the line.

It may be that the President will answer some of the charges brought against the administration by Herbert Hoover, who is trying to draw him into a personal dispute, but we doubt it here. However, there is need for some administration speaker to answer the very heavy assault made on the New Deal's banking program by the former President. Particularly, Mr. Hoover's remarks about the bank holiday decreed by Roosevelt the day following his inauguration. In essence, Mr. Hoover charges that there was a bank panic on through the country, brought about by hysterical fear. Mr. Hoover's recent speeches are calculated to make voters forget the facts, which were dismal, indeed.

The idea that banks were cracking and falling because of needless hysteria is all tommyrot; what happened was that 6,083 banks failed in the Hoover administration; 703 of them cracked between Roosevelt's election and inauguration; and this was running through the whole banking system like an epidemic. The banks seemed to be on the road to universal ruin when Roosevelt closed them; and immediately thereafter began to do things that restored the confidence, like a rainbow after a storm. If there was ever a universal feeling of thanksgiving in this country, it was apparent after Roosevelt took charge.

Those were the days when the captains of industry came here gladly and willingly offering to put all their affairs in the hands of a man who kept his head clear and his feet on the ground and was not afraid to take a definite stand—even if it were a new idea. Practically every industrialist and Wall Streeter of note who is now yelling his head off in opposition to Roosevelt, owes his present good fortune to the New Deal.

I have no doubt Hoover had a complete plan for dealing with the depression; he certainly referred to it as trouble "worse than war"; and not many years prior to his administration he had recommended emergency powers for any President which in some instances would be stronger than those which congress gave to Roosevelt for handling the emergency.

SAVED BY ROOSEVELT

Hoover had great experience handling relief in Europe and refers to it now that he is attacking the New Deal. But the situation now is somewhat different from the European post-war era and different from the Hoover era. In the Hoover administration, there were many of the unemployed who still had some resources; and those resources have been used up by many who are still out of work and may never get jobs under our mechanized regime which is doing more and more business and employing fewer people. During the Hoover era, too, there were outbursts against the situation; the bonus army was run out of Washington by the cavalry; there were attacks on judges by farmers who would not stand for the evictions under mortgage foreclosures; there was wide appeal to feed the hungry and put the jobless to work; much feeding of banks and industry at the top and little comfort for the destitute. It was this desperate situation which would have produced riots, and possibly a revolution, that Roosevelt took in hand and reversed by the most daring use of federal funds.

POLLS FAVOR ROOSEVELT

Polls now being conducted on future political events, where they ask a leading question for or against Roosevelt, show a heavy majority for the President; polls, like that of the Literary Digest, asking for reactions on New Deal policies, show a trend against the administration. Women, in a direct question poll, show two to one for Roosevelt. Polls asking whether a man or woman would vote for Roosevelt or for any possible opponent show Roosevelt commanding a heavy majority.

It is practically impossible to find any number of people unanimously in favor of everything that this or any other administration has done; there are very few blind and fanatic followers of anybody in these days of independent thought. For instance, in the West and Northwest in places where the sentiment is almost unanimous for Roosevelt, there are people who would complain of the Canadian reciprocity agreement rates applying to lumber and dairy products. In the East, the city Democrats who would (and who will) vote for Roosevelt criticize the AAA policies because they believe the entire advance in living costs is due to the AAA. Another group has been told what to think by the power trust and believe the holding company death sentence is a universal tragedy; and so on down the line.

The Democratic national committee, which will manage the Roosevelt campaign, realizes that there will be a tremendous big business drive against Roosevelt and I think the leaders have made up their minds that it will have to be a fight between the People and the Interests. Big business has fought every attempt to curb and regulate it since the days of Andrew Jackson, the First New Dealer. It fought every attempt at bank control; it fought anti-trust regulation; fought the pure food and drug act; fought federal inspection of the meat industry; fought the federal reserve act, always just as bitterly and with the same dire predictions now filling the press and the air. The reactionary element has termed every reform as socialistic, anarchistic, communistic, confiscatory and ruinous; and in the end accepted them as matters of course.

BROWN HAND BAG TO BE CROCHETED

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Crocheted hand bags are still popular. They look good, are easy to make and cost very little, and the personal pride in hand-made articles must not be overlooked. This neat looking bag measures 5½ by 9 inches and being made of dark brown cotton is a very serviceable bag. Can be made in a few days in spare time.

Package No. 739 contains sufficient brown Mountain Craft crochet cotton to complete the bag, also instructions and crochet hook. Zipper and bag lining not included. This package will be mailed to you for 40 cents. Should you want the instructions only, send us 10 cents.

Address Home Craft Co., Dept. B, Nineteenth and St. Louis Ave., St. Louis, Mo. Inclose a stamped addressed envelope for reply when writing for any information.

London Tower Fortress, Palace, Prison in Turn

The tower, situated on the banks of the Thames, is perhaps London's most interesting historical monument. Surrounded by a moat, it dates back to the Roman period, and in turn has served the purposes of a fortress, a royal palace, and a state prison. It is now a show place, museum, and military barracks.

The tower has been associated with the darkest scenes of English history. Its oldest part, the White tower, was built by William the Conqueror, outside what then were the walls of the city, to overawe the inhabitants within them. The walls of this Norman work are from 11 to 15 feet thick. In the Wakefield tower, built by Henry II in 1290, lie the crown jewels. The memorial retains an atmosphere of grandeur and grimness unsurpassed in England. Anne Boleyn, mother of Queen Elizabeth, spent her last night there before being beheaded. The spot where she and many other personages were put to death may be seen by all tourists.

Big Tree Forests Once Stood Over Eastern U. S.

Great forests of sequoia trees, related to the Big Trees of California and the coast redwoods of the Pacific slope, once stood over most of what is now the United States. New finds of their remains have recently been made, and are now in possession of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, where they are being studied by Dr. R. W. Brown of the United States Geological Survey.

One lot of specimens consists of an ancient driftwood deposit found in Maryland, near Washington, and the other is of sequoia cones from the Cannonball river region in North Dakota. No cones were found in the Maryland deposit, but it is considered likely that some of the logs are of redwood; sequoia cones have been found in other Maryland deposits. The trees in both collections are of Cretaceous geological age, about 120,000,000 years ago.—Science Service.

"Elephant-Bear's" Bones in U. S. National Museum

Bones of a great beast that looked like a bear, had feet rather like an elephant's, but was not very nearly related to either animal, are on display in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. The fossils were found in the Big Horn Basin region in Wyoming. The skeleton was embedded in a matrix of stone, says Science Service.

The creature, known to scientists as Coryphodon, was heavy-bodied like a tapir and not quite so high at the shoulder as an ox. It probably was pretty much "boss" in its day, some sixty million years ago, for its great bulk was reinforced by a pair of formidable 8-inch tusks in its jaws.

Coryphodon's foot bones are what especially intrigue scientists. The animal neither walked flat-footed like a bear nor up on the ends of its thick toes like a modern elephant. It seems to have been progressing in the latter direction, however, especially in its forefeet which bore the greater part of its weight. Its gait probably was a slow shuffle, like that of the modern elephant.

In the same region where the elephant-bear flourished there lived also the earlier types of horses. The latter line has survived, while the bigger more dominant brute has perished. The horse-ancestors made up for their lesser bulk and fighting ability by greater agility and brain capacity, and therefore greater adaptability. The elephant-bear, a massive, stubborn conservative, was beaten by a changing world which it could neither understand nor get used to.

Lewis and Clark Expedition

Lewis and the Lewis and Clark expedition left Washington on July 5, 1803, and was joined by Clark at the Ohio. The expedition was delayed at Pittsburgh till August 31, then proceeded on its way toward the Mississippi. Lewis choosing volunteers from the military posts along the way. The party comprised, in addition to Lewis and Clark, three sergeants, twenty-three soldiers, three interpreters and Clark's negro slave York.

The Living Dead.

Doctor Carrel is a bit late with his theory that human beings might be dried out and filed away for a matter of 200 years or so, and then brought back to life again.

It used to be that I had better results, talking at banquets. But lately my audiences and I seem to be drifting apart. Or maybe it's merely poor old Mr. Cobb that's drifting apart.

Prospects of a Fight.

FOR a while it seemed that, when the Republicans meet next year, it would be for memorial services at Armageddon, and adjourning thence to the cemetery. Now it's settled they'll meet at Cleveland, and the official silver-lining locator, Chairman Fletcher, predicts it won't be any lodge of sorrow either.

Also, the Democrats, who not so long ago were figuring their 1936 to-do would merely be a grand ratification rally, replete with Farley and flags, are now inclined to go in for a regular convention, with resolutions deploring, among other things, the Literary Digest.

Stamps and Such.

OWING to the Christmas rush, our Post Office department let an entire week slip by without turning loose any special stamp commemorating somebody or something. That means a double-header later.

Peace Prize for Sale.

STICKING up their heads just long enough to announce there'd be no peace prize for 1935, the judges ducked right back in the sub-cellar, out of the way of brickbats and night-sticks.

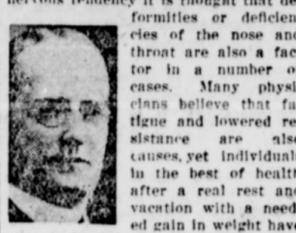

At the moment, all was quiet and harmony. With the exceptions of one large three-ring war and several smaller ones, and riots of one or more of the standard varieties—racial, religious, political, industrial or economic—going on simultaneously in seven major cities on four continents, which comes pretty close to being almost all the continents we have.

But before withholding the award, why didn't the judges take a quick glance in the direction of Greenland? There hasn't been a harsh word out of Greenland all year. I believe there was one other small country somewhere enjoying comparative peace but the name escapes me.

To trade—one white dove in an indifferent state of health for a set of brass knucks. IRVIN S. COBB

HOW ARE YOU TODAY DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Hay Fever WHILE most cases of hay fever occur in the early autumn there are many cases which occur in the spring and summer months. It is generally admitted that the tendency to hay fever is inherited but why it attacks just one in every six persons is hard to understand.

Dr. Barton

In addition to this hereditary or nervous tendency it is thought that deficiencies or deficiencies of the nose and throat are also a factor in a number of cases.

Classes of Pollen.

This ailment has sometimes been called "seasonal" pollen fever because it is due to pollens in the air. There is, first, the spring type almost always due to tree pollens—oak, birch, maple, hickory, elm; second, the summer type due to grasses, timothy, June grass, orchard grass, red top, sweet vernal, plantain; third, the autumn type due almost always to ragweed pollen.

The symptoms are familiar to everybody—itching of nose and throat with violent sneezing, itching of eyelids, redness and soreness of the eyelids, tears flowing, dread of light, mucous from nose, ears stuffy, and a forehead headache.

Naturally with these symptoms present the patient often becomes weak, irritable, depressed, loses his appetite and is often unable to sleep.

Retreat Is Best Cure.

The best treatment is likewise known to everybody; that is, getting away from regions where the pollen is plentiful. This, of course, is impossible for the majority of people.

The correction of any nose and throat conditions—spurs, enlarged turbinates and tonsils, infected sinuses—should be the first step.

The second step is the desensitizing of the patient by the type of pollen that is causing the symptoms. This is done by injecting the pollen extracts under the skin two to three months before the expected attack.

Local applications containing ephedrine or epinephrine—adrenalin—to the eyes and nose, either as drops in the eye or sprays or jellies up the nose give considerable relief.

Removing Gas Pressure

ONE of the distressing ailments that gives great discomfort and pain is an accumulation of gas in the large intestine.

The pressure is so great at times that the individual feels as if he would burst, the heart action may be affected, and there is a feeling that unconsciousness or even death may occur.

Various remedies have been used for this condition, an old favorite being baking soda. Lately the use of tincture of belladonna has been freely used with the idea of removing the contraction or spastic condition of the bowel.

Enema Is Best.

For many years the best home remedy has been an enema or injection of about a quart of warm soap suds. Physicians advise against the use of soap suds, as they are too harsh and irritate the delicate mucous membrane or lining of the bowel.

The European Formula.

Recently some European physicians have been experimenting with a strong salt solution which was used as an enema in cases of severe gas distension following surgical operations.

Instead of using the ordinary solution of table salt, that is about one-quarter teaspoonful of table salt to a half cupful of water, they used about four level teaspoonfuls to the half cupful of water as an enema, and this small amount of salt and water always obtained a prompt emptying of the bowel.

It must be admitted that this simple method of emptying the bowel and getting rid of gas is more logical than giving doses of morphine to "kill the pain."

It should also take the place of our old methods of trying to get a quart of soapy water or even plain water up into the bowel to get the gas to move and relieve pressure.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

When sheets wear in the middle, rip hems and make sheets into pillow cases out of each sheet.

Wrinkles may be easily removed from a chiffon dress if it is hung in a bathroom filled with steam. When thoroughly steamed hang in the air to dry.

Raisins and figs will not stick to the food chopper if a little flour mixed with a few drops of lemon juice is put through chopper with the fruits.

One quart of boiling water, three tablespoonfuls of linseed oil and one tablespoonful of turpentine mixed together and applied to hardwood floors with a woolen cloth will remove all the dust and dirt that has accumulated on them.

If windows are rubbed with tissue paper after they have been washed with chamois wrung out of a quart of warm water to which a tablespoonful of ammonia has been added, they will have a brilliant polish.

If a beef loaf is seared in hot bacon drippings before baking in the oven, it will not become dry.

French chalk rubbed over a grease spot on wall paper and allowed to remain overnight will remove spot.

After oiling a sewing machine, sew through a piece of blotting paper. This will prevent any surplus oil from soiling material.

Put a teaspoonful of borax into starch water. It will give a gloss to the starched things.

If ink is spilled on a hardwood floor, wipe it up immediately with wire wool moistened with warm water, then wax spot when dry.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Julian Capers Jr.

Austin—The football wars replaced problems of the state this week, as Gov. Allred and wife entrained for Pasadena and the Rose Bowl, where the SMU Mustangs were to break lances with Stanford's Cardinals. Lieut. Gov. Walter Woodul and other state notables trekked to New Orleans where Fort Worth's Campbellite Horned Frogs engaged L. S. U., and dozens of less ambitious legislators and officials went to Dallas, to watch Amarillo's Sandies down Greenville's Lions for the state schoolboy title. Among the latter were Col. E. O. Thompson, chairman of the railroad commission, Amarillo resident, and loyal Sandie rooster.

At Indian Village, Livingston Polk Co., another notable gathering of state greats were scheduled for New Year's day, as Cooper Cylestine, whose Indian name is Ticaiche, was to be elevated to the rank of the new chief of the Alabamas, with fitting ceremony. A medal, commemorating 100 year of peace between the whites and Indians was presented, with Madge Small of Houston, great-great-grandfather of Sam Houston, participating. Congressman Nat Patton, Sen. Gordon Burns and County Atty. Clem Fain Jr., honorary chief of the tribe, were to figure prominently.

Still another of these community celebrations, which are lifting many Texas towns and cities out of the rut of being merely another community, lending a distinctive atmosphere and creating a background and a tradition for them, was the observance of the "Cowboy's Christmas Ball" at Anson, Jones Co. Inspired by the classic poem, written 50 years ago by Larry Chittenden, the "Christmas Ball" attracted hundreds, including dozens of sons and daughters of oldtimers who are mentioned by name in Chittenden's famous poem, many coming in the costumes of 1855. Re-enactment of the ball is planned as an annual event.

Vice-President John Garner, back from his junket to the Philippines looks forward to the day when he can return to his beloved Texas and devote all of his time to hunting and fishing, probably in 1940. With that end in view, the vice president has recently purchased the 6000-acre Carla ranch, in Dimmit Co., long owned by Mrs. Colon Schett of Cincinnati. Deer banded on the ranch.

A favorable decision for the state the U. S. supreme court in the T and P oil land case was Atty. Gen. William McCraw's best Christmas gift. The court threw out the railroad's appeal on the ground that no substantial federal question was involved, after the red-haired attorney general made his first appearance and argued five minutes, before the highest tribunal, thereby enriching the state school fund and setting an important legal precedent regarding mineral rights under former public roads.

Ralph Yarborough, 32, assistant attorney general under Gov. Allred, fought this case successfully thru the Texas district and appeals courts, and last week won deserved reward when the governor named him district judge in Austin, to succeed Charles A. Wheeler, resigned. Interesting was Judge Wheeler's reason for quitting his $4000 job. "Since my election the salary has been reduced 20 per cent," he wrote "The cost of living has increased approximately 30 per cent. The state deficit is such that no warrants for district judges have been paid by the state treasurer since April, 1935, thus compelling judges either to borrow money or discount their warrants from one to one and a half per cent."

Texas counties are busy issuing bonds to refinance old issues on more favorable terms, and to finance new projects, taking advantage of federal aid. During the week, $14,289,000 of such issues came to the attorney general's office, with $10,053,000 for refinancing programs and $3,757,000 for new money to secure federal funds. Hidalgo-co submitted $7,040,000 of refinancing bonds, issued by seven road districts, and Maverick-co's water control and improvement districts submitted $2,000,000 for refinancing and $1,858,000 of new issues. School district issues, recently authorized in special elections, totaling $1,268,000, were approved, enabling the schools to take advantage of federal grants. The list included Cumby Hopkins-co, $13,000; Barnhart, Irion-co, $20,000; Crum, Denton-co, $20,000; Petersburg, Hale-co, $17,000; Garwood, Colorado-co, $33,000; Highland Park, Cedar Hill and Irving Dallas-co, $333,000; Avoca, Jones-co, $15,000; Malekoff, Henderson-co, $75,000; Weinert, Haskell-co, $15,000; Forston, Ellis-co, $29,000; Manor, Travis-co, $37,000, and Thorndale, Milam-co, $10,000. Many other community plan similar school bond issues.

Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls, late Centennial general manager, is back in federal service, and a contact man for the National Emergency council, New Deal "co-ordinating" agency; O. C. ("Red") Christie of Quanam, secretary Centennial commissioner, is an applicant for a place as procurement officer for the rural re-settlement administration; Judge E. R. Meek of the northern federal district of Texas, retired Dec. 23, when he reached the age limit of 70, and President Roosevelt is expected to name his successor soon after congress meets. T. W. (Whit) Davidson of Dallas, ex-lieutenant governor, is reported the most probable appointee, with J. P. Rice of Dallas, having the backing of Sen. Tom Connally. There is a rumor that Congressman Hatton W. Summers of Dallas, chairman of the house judiciary committee, may be appointed if a deadlock develops.

It took 115,000,000 dollars to operate the state government in Texas in 1934. Here is how each dollar was spent: Highways, 30.9 cents; schools 30.5 cents; relief 9.3 cents; eleemosynary institutions, 5.3 cents; higher institutions, 5.3 cents; higher education 5.5 cents; Confederate pensions, 2. cents; judiciary, 1.79 cents; miscellaneous items consumed the remainder. Gasoline taxes brought in 39.9 cents of each tax dollar, real estate 26.86 cents, and gross production tax on oil, 7.17 cents. The balance came from miscellaneous sources.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

By ROSS B. JENKINS

SHE DID IT WITH CHICKENS

As farmers cast their eye about looking for some source of farm income it seems that Mrs. Earl C. Hayes of Clyde has pointed a very definite finger at a workable plan. Mrs. Hays had on hand 180 chickens Dec. 1, 1934 and kept that number of birds other than those that were killed by dogs and those that died which amount to 12, down to June 1, 1935.

At that time the county agent culled her flock and left 90 producing birds. She kept this 90 birds down to Dec. 1, 1935, completing the years demonstration.

She spent $160.14 for feed, $3.5 for baby chicks, $26.10 for replacement pullets, and estimated value of the 12 hens that died at $8.00. Her total cost was $197.74. She sold 130 dozen eggs at an average price of 25 cents a dozen, making $342.00. She sold $15.00 worth of old hens, $15.75 worth of pullets and fryers. She estimated that the eggs used at home to be worth $26.00 and that the dressed poultry consumed by the family to be $15.00. These values were of the current market price for the products. Her net sales were $413.75, her net cost was $197.00. Her profit was $216.01. She averaged 135 birds throughout the year. This average $1.60 per hen net profit for the year 1935. If hens average a dollar net per year it is thought to be a good record; therefore, Mrs. Hays' record is outstanding.

It is the hope of the county agent that other farm families will care to be enrolled as demonstrators for the coming year and to each such family a calendar which contains food formulas, methods to combat diseases proper care in growing chicks, and along with a complete day by day record sheet for the entire year. Anyone so desiring to keep a record and become a demonstrator for the county agent will be given one of these calendars absolutely free.

Some Accomplishments of 1935

Extension Service in Callahan 1935 established in the minds of farmers a clear realization that farmers would be without aid and leadership again if it were in their power to prevent. That was reflected in the various votes cast in favor of the AAA programs throughout the United States. The AAA was enacted in 1933 as an emergency measure by the Congress and met with the approval of the President. After trying the various programs that were included under the AAA for 3 years it has been found that many of these things will be made permanent for agriculture and that the Extension Service which drafted to help put over the AAA programs will permanently become the agency that will take over this needed agricultural service for the farmers.

As director H. H. Williamson of the Texas A and M. College Extension Service stated the AAA activities will become the office duties of the Extension Service and such things as terracing, poultry improvement, cattle and dairy development, orchard and vineyard development, marketing associations, encouragement for various federal farm loan associations will become duties inside and outside for Extension agents.

The county agents office for the year 1935 handled 1235 Cotton Bank head applications and distributed bale tags for approximately 7,400 bales. There were 975 cotton contracts signed with the secretary which netted the signers $84,449.00. There were about $12,000.00 received by cotton producers in 1935 for surplus certificates sold from the 1934 crops. There were 72 wheat contracts in force during the year which paid the cooperators $7,561.00. Likewise there were 101 corn-hog contracts which paid those producers $4,754.00. The peanut growers signed contracts to the number of 252 and realized $7,743.00. There were also sold some $12,000.00 worth of drought cattle during January of 1935. In all, the farmers received through the AAA activities about $135,000.00 in 1935 in addition to the amount of money received from the sale of their actual production of crops which was about ten times as much as that paid by the government.

200 farmers in Callahan are shown to be keeping records of their farming operations. It is hoped that, at least, a thousand shall be keeping their records by the end of 1936.

The county agent supervised the running of terrace lines on 625 acres of which 500 acres were reported to have been built by county precinct equipment. The commissioners were very helpful in getting this service to the farmers at a minimum of cost. It is understood that the cost to the farmer of county equipment is $2.00 per hour which only pays for the labor and necessary fuel costs.

100 farmers asked for and received feeding formulas during the year. Many of these formulas concerned the feeding of poultry and baby beeves. Two 4-H Club boys showed finished baby beeves to Fort Worth and made net profit of about $50.00 per calf. The county agent hopes that there shall be, at least, 125 boys engaged in growing feed or feeding livestock the coming year.

I RESOLVE IN 1936—

To use common sense in my borrowing. I have found haphazard financing doesn't pay in agriculture any more than it does in industry.

To keep my obligations current and thereby keep my credit good. I have found out that any man can have whatever his business.

To take an interest in the affairs of my Production Credit Association. I know that my PCA is a cooperative institution and that its continued success depends largely upon the interest and support of its membership. I have a voice in its management and I intend to exercise my franchise.

To conduct my operations along the lines of good, sound, business practice. I have found out that farming and stockraising is a business the same as anything else and that slipshod methods are just as worthless in agriculture as in merchandising.

To be a true and loyal friend and a good neighbor. I have lived long enough out that there is no code of living that can be beat the time-worn Golden Rule.

I want to thank the City Pharmacy and everyone who voted for me. I am thrilled over my pretty doll, she is so sweet. I love each and every one.
Hilda Tate.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to all our friends who were so kind to us through the long illness and death of our daughter and sister. The many expressions of love and sympathy that were extended makes our grief easier to bear.

Especially do we thank the men of the Oplin and Tecumseh communities for preparing her final resting place. May God bless you all.

Mrs. Martha Gilliland and Daughters.

WHEN THE BANK ASKS FOR A FINANCIAL STATEMENT

When you ask for a loan, and the banker asks you for a statement, do not resent this as implying doubt of your ability or assets; or as a meddlesome "nosing" into your private affairs.

Your banker, even though he may have known and done business with you for years, must still ask for a statement when you borrow money, because that is the only way he can show his directors and the bank examiners that his loans are justified by facts and figures.

When your banker asks for a statement, he is not questioning you; he is following the rules of sound banking and justifying himself as a banker worthy of the name.

SEED SAVED

"I have enough choice seed saved to plant my entire garden and to exchange or sell some seeds to other club members," says Mrs. D. C. Foster, 4-H Pantry Demonstrator for the Atwell Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. Foster estimates that she has $15 worth of seeds saved. One variety of English peas is a famous one, having been in the family over 35 years.

TWO PANTRIES MADE

Mrs. Dolph Hodges, 4-H Pantry Demonstrator for the Tecumseh Home Demonstration Club has two pantries as a result of her demonstration. After the cellar had had 48 feet of shelving added to it Mrs. Hodges used an old safe to make kitchen pantry holding enough food for one week. The safe was completely reworked, shelves moved to 10 1-2 inches apart and made to hold three jars deep. The kitchen pantry was painted an apple green to harmonize with the other kitchen colors and the paint was the only expense.

MATRESS MADE

A mattress costing only $2 for 10 yards of ticking and 15 cents for thread and mattress cord has recently been made for Mrs. Lester Barr, 1936 ward robe demonstrator for the Cross Plains Home Demonstration Club. The mattress was made from 45 pounds white home grown cotton. It is 59 by 81 inches. Valuing the mattress at $1 which is the valuation placed on a similar one, Mrs. Barr has a profit of $15.80.

The mattress was made at a meeting of the club and twenty seven members received full instructions.

TO SERVE CANNED MEAT

"Spanish Steak is a good meat dish to prepare from canned beef roast or steak," says Mrs. H. W. Caldwell, 4-H Pantry Cooperator, of the Dento Home Demonstration Club. To prepare this dish Mrs. Caldwell uses the following recipe:

SPANISH STEAK

- 1 No. 3 can roast or steak
- 1 No. 2 can tomatoes
- 3 whole cloves
- 2 slices onion
- 1-2 teaspoon salt
- 1-8 teaspoon pepper
- 1-8 bay leaf
- 2 teaspoon brown flour

Place meat in pan with 2 teaspoon hot bacon fat. Brown on both sides. Pour tomatoes over meat which has been mixed with browned flour, add seasonings and cook in oven 30 to 45 minutes.

Use Beef And Pork Livers In Past
"The liver paste we made was the best liked part of our canned meat" is a recent statement of Mrs. Virgil Fulton, 4-H Pantry Demonstrator for the Cottonwood Home Demonstration Club. The following recipe was used by Mrs. Fulton.

Liver Paste

- 3 lbs. liver, either beef or pork
- 1 1-2 lbs. fresh pork, 1-8 fat, 4-5 lean
- 1 1-2 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup toaster bread or cracker crumbs.

Run meat and seasoning through meat chopper. Beat eggs and mix all together. Pack in cans, do not seal, place in cooker and bring pressure to 10 lbs. for five minutes. Release steam slowly, seal and return to cooker, processing paste in No. 2 cans 70 minutes at 15 pound pressure. This may be sliced and served when cold.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

- Junior graduate nurse, $1,620 a year
- Assistant to technician (forestry) $1,620 a year.
- Assistant geophysicist, $2,600 a year
- Accountant and auditor, assistant accountant and auditor, senior accountant and auditing assistant, $2,000 to $3,200 a year, Bureau of Motor Carriers, Interstate Commerce Commission.

Certain specified education and experience are required in connection with these examinations.

Full information may be obtained from the Secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office or customhouse in any city which has a post office of the first or the second class, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank every one who voted for me in the recent contest conducted by the City Pharmacy, enabling me to win the nice tool chest. I also thank the City Pharmacy. Sincerely,

WITH BAIRD BAPTIST

Last Sunday closed my tenth year as pastor of the Baird Baptist church and those years have been my best years. I have tried to be the pastor that the Lord would have me be, and the records show for themselves what about it. During that time I have prepared and delivered about 1500 sermons and addresses here in Baird, besides the many times I have preached out of Baird. We have received into the church several hundred and the most of them I have baptised. Thousands of visits have been made to the sick and needy, hundreds of dollars and other help has been given to those in distress, scores of marriages I have performed, and hundreds of funerals have I held in and out of Baird. We have built and paid for a nice church building have always supported the program of the Southern Baptist Convention, from our own church out to the ends of the earth. I am not ashamed of the record; I wish it were better, but what there is of it is good and I am proud of it. We are starting the New Year out just right. We will observe the Lord's Supper next Sunday morning and we request every member to be present. We mean to move out, we cannot afford not to, if we do not we will go backwards, we are going forwards and the one who does not come along with us will just be left behind, come on brother, and travel along with us, we will do you good.

Next Sunday afternoon we are to meet in an Associational BTU meeting, I think at Cottonwood. I hope a good attendance for this is a very important of our work. Let's all go and make it great. We had a good meeting here last Sunday and some things were started that will mean a lot to our work, and next Sunday we will go a bit further with it.

Well dear friends, I am still in Baird and running in high.

Yours truly,
Joe R. Mayes

A Personal Appeal To Our Subscribers

During the past few years we have not said much about paying up subscription to The Star, because we realized that times were hard, with many of our subscribers and that money was very scarce. We did not stop their papers at the expiration of time paid for, unless requested to do so, and we believe most of our subscribers appreciate this-many have told us they did, and are now paying up in full.

Now that times are better we trust all will pay. We need money to meet our obligations the same as others do, and be believe that most people appreciate only that for which they pay.

It has been a pleasure to send you the paper each week, and we trust you enjoyed reading it, and that it was your intention to pay as soon as possible; and we offer you this bargain rate to help you; because the time has come when we must collect, or drop some names from our subscription list.

Respectfully,

Great Britain Lining Up the Nations Against Italy—More Trouble in the Orient—Death of Senator Schall.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

WAR clouds over Europe were growing denser and blacker during the Christmas holidays when all the Christian world was supposed to be singing "Peace on Earth, good will toward men." Under the skillful guidance of Anthony Eden, the new British foreign secretary, a solid front against Italy was being built up. There was no present talk of further sanctions against Mussolini, but it is expected added penalties will be put in force late in January. Meanwhile the general military and naval staffs of Great Britain and France concluded conversations which were declared "satisfactory," meaning that those nations were prepared to stand by each other in case Il Duce makes what Prime Minister Baldwin called "a mad dog attack." In the capitals of other members of the League of Nations similar plans were being laid by military and naval attaches.

Turkey came into line with the other presumptive opponents of Italy, but is reported to have made a suggestion that France doesn't like. This is that it be permitted to fortify the Dardanelles, the strait between Europe and Asiatic Turkey which was demilitarized under the treaty of Lausanne after the World War. The Turks also, according to Paris advices, ask the eventual return of the island of Rhodes in the Aegean sea, which has been under Italian sovereignty since 1923.

Eden is a firm believer in the League of Nations and, though he is moving with caution, is determined to bring Italy to terms through the sanctions provided the other members of the league give the necessary support. The British government certainly doesn't want war with Italy, but it is fast preparing for armed conflict if that shall prove to be unavoidable.

That Mussolini, too, is getting ready for extreme eventualities was evidenced by orders canceling all Christmas leaves of all officers and men of the army. The same orders directed the return to their units of the 100,000 army men demobilized in November in order that they might do the needed work on their farms. The Italian press ceased its attacks on Great Britain, and this was taken to mean that some peace move was on foot or that Mussolini had said his last word in that way and that he and his government were prepared to meet their fate. In Rome the hope is still entertained that Laval will not go all the way with Britain in the policy of extreme sanctions. The French themselves hope that the advent of the wet season in Ethiopia will halt the Italians there before it is necessary to impose the final penalties decreed by the league.

Egypt's cabinet was taking steps to protect the Libyan frontier against invasion by the Italians. The Egyptian leaders are urging the speedy conclusion of a treaty with Great Britain that will give the Egyptians the rights they claim, remove their resentment against England and enable them to line up with the British if war with Italy comes.

OUTER Mongolia is aroused by threats of invasion by the Japanese troops and their puppets, the Manchukuoans. Already the border has been crossed by the latter and five Mongol guards killed and eleven carried off by the raiders. The Mongol government has filed a strong protest, demanding an apology and the return of the captives. Most of this news comes from Moscow and naturally the Russian Soviet government is deeply interested, for this and similar incidents may bring on the long expected war between Russia and Japan.

The Japanese authorities in Tokyo let it be known that they are preparing, through the autonomy government in North China and hoped for cooperation by Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese dictator, to combat the spread of sovietism in China. In line with this is the proclamation of Prince Teh, Mongolian ruler, declaring the independence of the western part of Inner Mongolia, a vast territory with a population of two million pastoralists and rich mineral resources.

Chinese students continued their riotous demonstrations against North China autonomy, demanding that it be stopped by armed force. In Shanghai thousands of them took possession of the railway terminal, demanding free transportation to Nanking to present their protests to the central government. Chiang Kai-shek invited their leaders to confer with him on January 15.

The tenseness in China was increased by the assassination in Shanghai of Tang Yu-jen, vice minister of railways and known as pro-Japanese. This and other anti-Japanese demonstrations led to the declaring of martial law in Shanghai and Nanking.

LIBERTY league has put out a 12-point program which it thinks the incoming congress should follow for the sake of the country. It is designed "to put the government's house in order."

In its statement the league accuses the New Deal of "doing violence" to the Constitution and charges the Roosevelt administration with "gigantic waste" in handling relief funds, "promoting pet theories of monetary cranks," responding to "socialistic influences" in competing with private industry, and capitalizing on the nation's emergency to make centralization of power in the federal government a permanent policy.

Continued deficit financing will destroy government credit and may lead to chaos and dictatorship, the league warned in demanding a balanced budget and repeal of tax laws aimed at "redistribution of wealth."

Emphasizing adherence to the Constitution will be the vital issue in next year's election campaign, the league called upon congress to defeat two "threatened" amendments which would bring about "a virtual change in our form of government." These proposals would create an "unhindered dictatorship," the league declared, by extending federal authority "to permit complete regimentation of industry and agriculture" and by taking away the Supreme court's power to declare laws unconstitutional.

SENATOR THOMAS D. SCHALL of Minnesota, who was struck by an automobile as he was being conducted across the highway near his residence in Maryland, succumbed to his injuries. The blind statesman had been one of the bitterest opponents of the New Deal and President Roosevelt. He had started his campaign for re-election, and Gov. Floyd Olson of Minnesota had announced he also would seek the nomination for Schall's seat. The governor said after the senator's death that he would soon appoint his successor; that he had no intention of resigning in order to be himself named to fill Schall's place.

Mr. Schall, who was born in 1878 in Michigan, lost his sight in an accident after he had been practicing law in Minnesota four years.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT declared himself satisfied with the progress made by Harold Ickes and Harry Hopkins in carrying out the relief program. He said that the Works Progress administration had come within 20,000 of reaching its goal of 3,500,000 men at work, and that 77 per cent of public works projects were under way. By January 15, he predicted, PWA will be functioning 100 per cent.

Mr. Roosevelt repeated that the government assumed no responsibility for those not hired under the program. He had asked congress for four billions last January, he said, based upon an estimate that there were 3,500,000 needy men who could work. He got the four billions and the 3,500,000 have been put to work, he said. The remaining unemployed must be cared for by "states, municipalities, counties, and private charity," he added.

When reporters said that some estimates placed the total of unemployed at 11,000,000, the President held that it was often difficult to say whether a person should be classed as unemployed. He cited the case of people who have resources, but desire part-time employment for supplemental income.

He also said, in discussing unemployment further, that 5,000,000 persons had found employment since the spring of 1933 in industries which report such statistics.

UNEXPECTEDLY early decision as to the validity of the Guffey coal act was assured when the Supreme court agreed to pass on the constitutionality of the law without waiting for a ruling by the Federal Court of Appeals. Both the government and Kentucky soft coal producers had asked the Supreme court for this "short cut."

REPEATED threats of kidnaping and even murder for their little son have driven Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh from the United States. They have sailed with their boy, Jon, for England, and plan to establish a residence there, though they will not give up their American citizenship. Where they will live has not been revealed to even their closest friends. It is believed the colonel will not sever his relations with the two air transport companies for which he is a technical adviser.

HARVARD university received a handsome Christmas present from Thomas W. Lamont, one of the partners in J. P. Morgan & Co. It was $500,000 for the establishment of a new chair in political economy, one of the "roving" professorships to be created by gifts from alumni in recognition of the university's three-hundredth anniversary that comes in 1936.

WHEN the Supreme court passes on the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley act, its opinion will not be unanimous, is the prediction of those who were present during the oral arguments. The case was taken up to the highest tribunal by fourteen preferred stockholders of the Alabama Power company.

During arguments by Forney Johnson, Birmingham, Ala., attorney for the stockholders, and by John Lord O'Brian, New York attorney, for TVA, justices shot many questions at the lawyers.

Justice McReynolds, known as a "conservative," appeared to challenge the TVA lawyer to defend the right of the government to sell surplus power produced by Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals.

On the other hand, Justices Brandeis and Stone, who are known as "liberals," inquired into the right of minority stockholders of the Alabama Power company to bring the suit which led to the Supreme court test. The stockholders sought to enjoin performance of a contract under which the company was to sell lines to TVA for transmission of power.

FEDERAL Judge Merrill E. Otis at Kansas City has held unconstitutional the Wagner labor dispute act which gives employees the right to organize and bargain collectively. The judge granted the Majestic Flour mills of Aurora, Mo., a temporary injunction against a National Labor board complaint which cited it for alleged refusal to bargain concerning a wage and hour agreement with a union of its employees.

TWO grand juries, a house committee and an army court martial have been investigating lobbying at the War department for two years. The climax came with the indictment in Washington of a dismissed army officer, a former member of congress, and two alleged lobbyists on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government.

Those named were former Brig. Gen. Alexander E. Williams, one time acting quartermaster general of the army, who was convicted by a military court last spring of accepting an improper loan and ordered dismissed from the service; Thomas Jefferson Ryan, lawyer and former representative from New York, and the well known Silverman brothers, Joseph, Jr., and Nathan, surplus army goods dealers.

The four men were charged with conspiring to prevent the house military affairs committee from questioning Frank E. Speicher, "mystery witness" of the long inquiry by hiding him out in New York city while federal agents were hunting him throughout the nation.

GOVERNMENT ownership of America's railroads is the objective in a campaign which has been started by the Railway Labor Executives' association. Describing the carriers as "chips in a financial poker game," the executives, in a circular to members of congress, ask for government ownership as "the only way out of the morass in which the roads have been placed by the bankers."

The financial practices, the circular said, "endanger the equities in the roads of insurance companies, educational institutions, mutual savings banks, philanthropic institutions, and last but not least, the individual investor who, in many instances, has his all in the securities of railroads."

IF WISCONSIN Republicans wish to make Senator Borah their candidate for the Presidential nomination, it is all right with the veteran from Idaho. State Senator P. E. Nelson of Maple, Wis., and former State Senator Bernard Gettelman of Milwaukee called on Mr. Borah in Washington and asked permission to circulate nominating petitions for him in their state. This was granted.

Mr. Borah told reporters that Nelson and Gettelman had suggested a campaign for "a delegation representing the liberal forces in the party out there, and in my name." He had agreed, he said, to "go along with them."

Later Mr. Borah issued this statement: "My primary objective is a convention of liberal delegates which will write a liberal platform and name a liberal candidate. To that end I shall devote my efforts. If in any state or district the liberal forces think that it will help the liberal cause to pledge delegates to me, I shall co-operate fully with that plan. If, however, it is thought better to pledge the delegates to some other liberal, I shall co-operate just as fully. In other words, inflexible as to the objective, flexible as to the tactics."

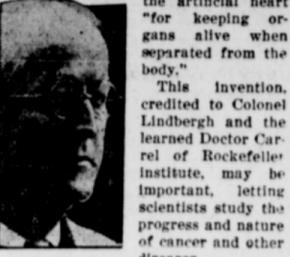

"As I see the political situation in this country, a man would be seeking political immolation to take a nomination upon any other than a liberal platform. So the first thing to do is to get a convention committed to liberal principles. So far as my efforts count, I am not going to permit personal matters, either my own or those of others, to interfere with the main purpose."

CONTRACTS have been awarded for 103 new bombing planes for the army air corps. The Douglas Aircraft company, Inc., of Santa Monica, Calif., was given an order for 90 all-metal, low wing, twin-engine monoplane, costing a total of $6,498,000. Thirteen giant four-motored "sky cruisers" were bought from the Boeing company of Seattle, Wash. The price for the Boeing craft was not given in the announcement by Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

The Greatest Deed The Richest Man 8,000 Planes for England What! the Whole World?

Universal Service lists the "ten greatest scientific achievements in 1935," and puts first the artificial heart "for keeping organs alive when separated from the body."

This invention, credited to Colonel Lindbergh and the learned Doctor Carrel of Rockefeller Institute, may be important, letting scientists study the progress and nature of cancer and other diseases.

But that is not the year's greatest scientific achievement, although it is gratifying to know that Colonel Lindbergh, while so young, with no more "air" to conquer, has turned his concentrated mind toward science.

Vastly more important than any invention for studying human disease is the new 200-inch telescope lens that will enable men to study the universe more intelligently. That universe is more important than any cancer or gland.

The Nizam of Hyderabad, one of the numerous rulers whom the British keep on their thrones, in return for a servility that delivers their subjects to the British, is about to celebrate his silver jubilee as ruler.

He interests Americans, because he is called absolutely the richest man in the world, richer than Rockefeller, Ford or Mellon.

His income is put at $50,000,000 a year, which might be possible, although his real fortune bears no interest. He has 14,000,000 Hindu subjects under his rule, thanks to the toleration of Great Britain, and after England has finished with the 14,000,000, they might well yield an average per year of $4 to the Nizam, which would give him $56,000,000 a year of new money.

The British, who realize what airplanes mean, as they study Italy and Ethiopia, have more than 2,000 planes ordered for immediate use, with full equipment and men ready, and, for every plane in the air, England will have three on the ground, ready to replace losses.

Thus Britain's program is 8,000 planes, compared with our retail buying.

Senator Pittman thinks Japan plans to conquer the United States and the rest of the world. He says Japan will "seize the Philippines as soon as the opportunity offers." That is probable; the Philippines are in Asia.

After the Philippines Japan will take Mexico, then the west coast of the United States, according to Senator Pittman, who wants to know whether this country will withdraw within itself as Japan advances, or make a definite stand somewhere.

The west coast would give him a definite answer about that.

There is an aristocracy even in crime. You read, "Hauptmann sings carols in death house."

Five other murderers in the state house sang the carols with him, "Jingle Bells," and also "Hellige Nacht" ("Holy Night"), which must have had a strange sound coming from the throats of murderers.

There are six murderers in the death house, and all sang together, but the other five are merely "also present," no names mentioned.

Their murders were not sufficiently interesting.

"Japanese airplanes bomb Kuyuan in China; many killed"—including civilians and soldiers.

Japanese ordered China's soldiers to evacuate the city, dropped bombs when they refused.

What will kind-hearted England and the League of Nations do about that? Not much, Premier Baldwin, justifying the sudden decision to carve up Ethiopia to satisfy Italy, reveals the fact that British ships feared to visit Italian ports during the recent unpleasantness. That brings danger too close.

The country has inflation now, with its 50-cent dollars and double the amount of cash circulating compared with prosperous 1929.

Inflation is not realized, because bankers, their vaults bulging, do not dare lend, not knowing what is good security or what upstanding 100 per cent American will be "flat broke" six months hence.

Mussolini calls those trying to starve his people with sanctions "egotistical, hypocritical," says Italy can go on in spite of them.

Tall Queen Elena, the king's wife, prays at the tomb of the Italian Unknown Soldier "for the triumph of Roman civilization in Africa." If it is possible to talk or think in the tomb, that Unknown Soldier may have murmured: "So, they are still at it."

Saladine, watching Bart, saw that under this accusing fusillade, the man's face congested with a rising fury. This old woman with the tongue of a termagant lashed him raw. What she said might or might not be true; yet true or false, he could not retort with the buffet and the blow her words deserved. He must stand helpless while she flayed him; yet his dark cheek was purple now!

"You fetched me some dry groceries from Liberty village last night," the old woman continued bitterly, "and listened outside the door and heard me telling Jenny to go get me a lily root from the brook today. That's why you went down brook, Bart. You never went to fish at all. I don't believe you ever even took your rod. You went to spy on Jenny!"

"And on the way back, I low you climbed up through the woods to see if you could get a sight of Huld! Like as not you'd peeked at her before that, times when the hussy'd be sunning herself like a snake there on the ledge. I wouldn't wonder if that was why Zeke worked you over, that time. Like as not he caught you there. Anyway, my guess is you found her there today, and she tormented you the way she always did, till you couldn't stand it, and you grabbed her! And she fit you, and set her finger nails in your cheek; and at that, you went crazy mad, and you hit her so hard you broke your own hand on her face! That's what happened! I'm as certain of it as if I'd been there and see!"

The scratches on Bart's cheek were livid, but his lips twisted in a derisive grin!

Then she turned to Sohier. "There it is, Sheriff," she exclaimed, in a tone of finality. "There it is, if you've got enough brains to see!"

But the big man after a moment wagged his head. "Why, I don't see as there's anything only your guess, ma'am," he protested.

And Bart spoke, through stiff lips, yet easily enough. "It's all right, Sheriff," he said. "Old women get fool ideas!"

And he said, calmly: "It couldn't be the way she says. He appealed to Huld's husband. 'Will, you know mighty well that Zeke was always somewhere around Huld. If this had happened the way Granny says, Zeke he'd have been on my tail in no time at all. You know that, Will, as well as me!"

Will, thus interrogated, nodded slowly. "That's so, Bart," he admitted.

But Marm Pierce turned to Bart insistently.

"Bart," she said, "I dunno as I can prove what you did to Huld, but I'll make you admit you're a liar! You've made up this whole tale, since you killed Huld. You never went down brook to fish. You never even had your rod with you. You picked it up at your house, on your way to get Will!"

Bart chuckled patiently. "Ma'am, I can't help you're thinking anything you've got a mind, but you're wrong as can be."

She cried triumphantly: "Your rod's outside, with a worm on the hook, all dried up and shriveled! You didn't fish with a dead worm, did you?" Her tone was hot with scorn.

"Why sho," he protested, "a worm will dry up mighty fast."

Her eyes narrowed. "You told me you dug bait yesterday?" she challenged. He nodded. "Certain," he said.

"Got your bait can on, ain't you?" she demanded. He touched his belt, in an assenting gesture.

And she took one step toward him. "Hand it here!" she demanded in a rising triumph. "Let me have a look at it! If there's any fresh-dug worms in your bait can, Bart, I'll take back every word I've had to say!"

Saladine, turning to look at Bart, found his eye caught and held by an object on the table between them. That heavy gun which Bart had laid beside the lamp, a while ago.

It was still there, black and deadly: the lamp was between it and Saladine; between it and Marm Pierce. But where Bart stood, the butt of the gun was not ten inches from his hand.

CHAPTER XII

There was something ludicrously incongruous, and by the same token the more horrifying, in the terms of Marm Pierce's challenge. That the question of whether a man were guilty of murder should hinge on whether there were any fresh-dug worms in his bait box had something hideous about it; and yet what Marm Pierce said was ingeniously true. If Bart had indeed gone down Carey's brook this day to fish, as he asserted, then he must have been supplied with bait. If he had no worms, then his statement that he intended to fish was a lie; and his other words were doubtless lies as well. If Bart had no worms in his bait box, then he lied; and if he lied, then he had killed Huld! Thus simply the issue phrased itself in Saladine's mind.

And his muscles drew taut for action. The silence in this small room might explode into a storm of violence.

Bart stood under their doubting eyes, his fingers within easy reach of the butt of that heavy revolver on the table just before him. His back was to the wall; he could if he chose hold them at his mercy. Thirty seconds' span must answer all.

Bart did not move till old Marm Pierce repeated, in triumphant insistence: "Let's see, Bart! Let's see if you've got any worms in that can at all!"

Then he was suddenly at his ease; he smiled and shook his head. "Nary a worm, Granny!" he said cheerfully.

She nodded in crisp satisfaction, swung to Sohier. "There, Sheriff!" she cried.

Sohier looked uncomfortable. It was in fact an uncomfortable position in which he found himself. Bart was practically confessing to a murder; but Bart had a gun under his hand! The sheriff stirred uneasily, and he gathered the tails of his coat over his knees as though to rise.

But Bart said, chuckling: "That don't prove anything, though! I told you a while ago, when I came to pick Huld up I took off my belt—with the bait can and my gun—and left it there on the ground. Time I got back to fetch it, the bait can, the cover on it had come open, and the worms had all crawled away."

Marm Pierce whirled on him in baffled fury. "You'd talk yourself out of your own grave, Bart!" she cried. "But you won't talk yourself out of this. There's a dead worm dried on your hook on the rod outside the door! I guess you wa'n't fishing with that! And it didn't shrivel up the way it is just sense you got through fishing, either. It's wet from rain, and slimy; but it's been dead on that hook for days."

Bart nodded. "Sure it has," he assented. "I forgot, when you asked me about that a while ago. But just before Huld screamed, I snagged my hook on a log and had to break it off. Didn't have any spare hooks with me, but I found this one in my overalls pocket. I must have stuck it there some time and forgot it. It had this dead worm on it; but I tied it on my line, and I was just setting out to scrape the dead worm off with my knife when I heard Huld yell!"

"That's a likely tale!" the old woman exclaimed in a deep scorn. "You mean to tell me you'd put a hook with a worm on it in your pocket?" she demanded. "I guess you'd have to be drunk to do that, Bart."

Bart grinned. "Well," he said, "matter of fact, I did have quite an edge on, the last time I went fishing. It was along toward dark, here last Tuesday night. Ike Putney come by my place after supper, and we had a few drinks, and we lowed to try the trout, and did. But half the time, I didn't know whether I was fishing in the brook or in the pasture. Likely I put the hook in that pocket then."

And he added persuasively: "Ike, he'll tell you the same."

The old woman uttered a sound like a sniff of scorn. "Ike! I'd believe anything of him. If you told me he carried his worms in his mouth, I'd believe it!"

Bart's eyes widened. "By cracker!" he exclaimed. "I mind, now. Ike had his store clothes on, and I lent him my overalls to wear when we went fishing! He put that hook in the pocket of 'em, I'll bet a nickel!"

Marm Pierce looked at the sheriff almost apologetically, in a curious chagrin. "That might be the truth, Sheriff," she admitted ruefully. "Ike was in here Tuesday afternoon to get me to give him something for an earache. I wrapped up a pinch of black pepper in some cotton, and dipped it in sweet oil and put it in his ear; and I told him to go on home and put a bandage round his head to keep it warm. But he lowed he wished he had a drink, and he set out to go over to Bart's. I mind he did have on his store clothes, just like Bart says!"

There was a reluctant honesty in her tones; she faced Bart again.

"But just the same," she insisted, "I don't swallow the whole of your tell!" She stood frowning with the intensity of her thoughts, searching for some crevice in his armor. "You said a while ago you had stopped fishing and was on your way home when you heard Huld yell," she reminded him, seizing on a new point. "But now you claim you'd just broke a hook off, and tied a new one on. How could you break a hook if you wa'n't fishing?"

He answered, almost mirthfully: "I stopped to try the deep hole there at the foot of the ledge!"

He had parried all her thrusts so easily that there was a sort of madness in the little old woman now. She was like a caged animal, coursing to and fro in its search for some avenue of escape.

"Well, how come you to take so long hunting them feathers I sent you after, before Huld died, and not finding any, when the hen pen was full of 'em?" she demanded. "Looks to me you was afraid if I had them I'd get Huld to come to, and she'd tell on you!"

"I was figuring you'd ask that, by and by," he assented frankly. "And I'll tell you how it was." He stood at ease now. "I set out to get you some feathers," he declared. "I didn't put any stock in it, with Huld as good as dead, or maybe dead a'ready; but long as you wanted 'em, I started out to get some."

"But when I was going through the shed, I happened to look out the window on the back side, and I see something move, over in the alders. It looked to me like a man. I stayed there watching, but I didn't see him again; so after a spell, I come back in the house."

"You never said nothing about that before," Marm Pierce exclaimed.

"Soon as I come in, you jumped me right out into the barn again, went with me," he reminded her. "And when we come back with the feathers, Huld was dead, and Jenny said there was somebody in the Win-side the house, so I knowed it was probably Will that I had see."

The old woman considered this. "Maybe if Will was around here after Huld died . . ." she began thoughtfully, but then she remembered. "But it wa'n't Will that you see," she protested quickly. "He was in Liberty village by then!"

"Well, whoever it was," Bart said in a conciliating tone.

They were all silent then a while, considering this suggestion that there had been some man, who was not Will Haven, near the house when Huld died. But in the end Marm Pierce brushed this matter impatiently aside. "Like as not it was a cow you see," she decided, returning to the attack. "Or maybe nothing at all. I think that's all a pack of lies, if you ask me. And as she spoke she moved uncertainly toward the table. But this uncertainty was, it appeared, pretense; for suddenly her hand leaped out like a snake's tongue, and she caught up the revolver and backed away, holding it in both hands, her finger on the trigger. She pointed it at Bart, and Bart protested amiably:

"Look out, Granny! That thing will go off!"

"Look Out, Granny! That Thing Will Go Off!"

"It's likely to," the old woman assured him. She appealed to the sheriff. "There he is, Sheriff," she cried. "You go ahead and put the handcuffs on him! I've got his gun."

But Sohier said in a baffled tone: "Why ma'am, it looks to me like Carey here tells a pretty straight story, take it all the way through."

Bart chuckled. "Granny, you're a wonder," he said in an ironic mirth. Her hands had sagged under the weight of that revolver, until the weapon hung now forgotten by her side. "Never mind about me," she retorted, her tone abstracted. "I'm trying to see this straight. You come on her, up to the ledge, and maybe grabbed her, and she raked your cheek, and that made you mad so you banged her in the face and she went backward off the ledge!"

She shook her head, staring at him. She whispered: "Man, I warrant you was scared enough for a minute, then. Bold as you be right now."

"Sheriff, what do you aim to do?" she demanded in irascible shrill tones. "You going to set there all night? This is your business, not mine. Stir your stumps, man!"

Sohier rose and turned to face Bart. "Bart," he said. "I don't mean to say you had anything to do with this. But what if you and Will was both to come along to town and talk it over with the county attorney there?"

His tone was as though he urged Bart to humor old Marm Pierce thus far, and Bart answered agreeably enough.

"Why, it's foolishness, Sheriff," he protested. "But if it'll favor you, I'll go. I'll have to stop by my place and pull down some hay and give the critters water. They ain't been fed tonight."

"Shore," the big man assented. "We can do that." He looked at Saladine. "Jim, say you drive me and Bart 'round there first?" he proposed. "Then we can come back here and pick up Will."

Saladine hesitantly agreed, since there seemed no better course. Huld Ferrin was dead, and doubtless murdered; but if Bart were guilty, then he was an incredibly shrewd and crafty man; and if he lied, then he was incredibly apt at mendacity. Marm Pierce herself appeared to be unsatisfied, as though uneasily conscious that she had failed to prove her case. She stood with her hand at her mouth, her head bent; and her brow was furrowed with perplexity.

But she said no new word while the sheriff buttoned his overcoat, and Bart put his slicker on. Only then she exclaimed: "Sheriff, there ain't a mite of sense taking Will to East Harbor!"

The sheriff hesitated; but Jenny came to her grandmother's side, touched the old woman's arm. "It's all right, Granny," she said gently. "If there's any way he can help, Will he'd want to go."

But Saladine suggested: "Sheriff, taking Will along is going to leave these two women alone here."

Sohier scratched his head. "That's so," he agreed; and he said reluctantly: "Well, Will, maybe you'd best stay here tonight. I'll be out again in the morning."

"Whatever you say, Sheriff," Will assented.

Bart said in dry humor: "Looks like the pack of you was bound to lay this on me. Why sh'd I go, any more than Will? Huld blamed it on him, Sheriff, you can't get around her own say-so, it looks to me."

The sheriff was uncomfortable, but after a moment Bart in a returning good humor yielded the point. "I can stand it, though," he said. "And Will had ought to stay here with them, at that. Zeke's around here somewhere. No telling what he might try to do; but Will can handle him."

So it was decided. It did not occur to Saladine till somewhat later that a remembered fear of Zeke on his own account might have prompted Bart to this easy—and surprising—surrender. Yet Bart, as the event proved, might have been justified in welcoming for a while the protecting custody of the law.

Bart and the sheriff stepped outside; and Saladine, after a word of farewell, followed them to his car. They had taken the rear seat. He cranked the engine, and climbed in and turned on the headlights. The kitchen door was open yonder, and Will and Jenny stood in silhouette against the light, their shoulders touching.

Saladine backed the car, preparing to turn; but in that last moment, old Marm Pierce came bursting through the door, brushing Will and Jenny out of her way, holding up both hands, calling something. Saladine waited, and she ran across the yard and drew close beside the car and shouted over the engine's roar:

"Sheriff! I've got a hold of the answer to it now!"

Her tone was ringing; her countenance triumphant.

"Listen here!" she cried. "If Bart had left his gun belt, with the bait can and the gun, there on the ground in all that rain while he fetched Huld over here, the belt'd be soaked through and wet as a string; and there'd be rust on that gun! But there ain't a speck of rust, and his belt is dry as a bone!"

Saladine had not noticed whether Bart's gun were rusted or not; yet he perceived the justice of this argument, and turned to hear what the sheriff would say. But Bart laughed, and he protested:

"Maybe that belt looked dry to you, Granny, but it's wet enough! I can feel it right through my overalls. And the holster kep' the gun dry." He told Sohier: "I'll show you, when we get over to my place, Sheriff. You can see for yourself!"

Sohier accepted this. "All right, ma'am," he shouted to the old woman over the engine's roar. "I'll look at it, sure!"

Raising the Hat

Raising the hat in deference to a lady is still a mark of a gentleman. If she stops to speak with him, he will remove his hat for the conversation and carry it in his hand unless, because of his age or of inclement weather, she requests him to replace it. If so, he will again raise his hat when she leaves. The fact that some young men in college ignore the courtesy does not affect gentlemanly behavior. The origin of the courtesy is speculative. One version is that it arose in the days of chivalry when, in deference to his superiors and to ladies, a knight removed his headgear—Literary Digest.

Cleaver Reynard

The name Reynard came from a German book of animal stories published hundreds of years ago. In that book the fox was called Regin-bart, meaning "strong in counsel," because of the clever way in which he mastered the other animals. Ever since the book came to this country we have spoken of Reynard the fox—Reynard being our form of the German Regin-bart.—Pearson's Weekly.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

Said Disraeli: "To be conscious that you are ignorant is a great step toward knowledge."

The Best Start Disraeli must have been unusually confident that he was ignorant, for he amassed a vast amount of knowledge during his life time, and by its use vastly increased the power and prestige of the British empire.

If you fancy yourself the possessor of all wisdom and all knowledge, it stands to reason that you aren't going to trouble your mind with any more of it.

But if it sometimes occurs to you that you don't know quite as much as it is needful to know, and that it would profit you to learn more you will soon be on your way up.

Services like those that Disraeli performed for Great Britain might be of great value to some of the European nations now.

But there are not very many of them at present who had the brains that the great Jewish prime minister had.

As to the world in general, it could use a great deal of brain power to good advantage if it only had it to use.

And turning from the general to the particular, most of us human beings who live in the present time could do well if we possessed a little more tolerance, a little more wisdom, and a little keener realization that the world is not going to drift back to peace and prosperity unless the men who are directing its affairs realize their ignorance and seek to supplant it with good sound wisdom.

I know that "knowledge comes and wisdom lingers."

But it can't linger very well unless you possess it.

The Great war—instead of ending war, appears to have bred war.

And nobody, no matter how deeply he has pondered the situation knows what to do about it.

But that condition will shortly come to an end.

All that you and I can do is to look on, and perhaps now and then help out a little.

I sincerely believe that this war-worn old world is learning a lesson, that more people than ever are studying its problems and groping toward a solution of them.

I believe that from the chaos in Europe and Asia will rise wise and devoted men who will have studied the greatest jobs of all time, which is the protection of mankind, and will find means to restore peace and intelligence.

For in the last ten or fifteen years they must certainly have found out how ignorant they are, and ignorance, as Disraeli so wisely said, "is the beginning of knowledge."

Sympathy is like charity. It is better to give it than to receive it.

As soon as you begin to get sorry for yourself you grow unhappy.

It does no good to tell your troubles to your friends. They are busy feeling bad about their own troubles—they haven't time to worry about yours. You can't expect to go through this life without troubles and hard knocks.

The world being as it is you must expect that sometimes you will be ill used, and often become the victim of injustice.

But other people are in the same boat, and manage to get out of it now and then.

As soon as you begin to grow sorry for yourself you become morbid. As soon as you feel that you are ill used, and that nobody loves you, look out.

You may actually get that way, and then your life will be spoiled.

You don't resent it particularly when a mosquito bites you or a dog barks at you.

Such things happen, and you get used to them.

Why not try to get used to injustice and hard usage and the deceitfulness of others now and then?

That is better than letting such things get on your nerves. Make up your mind that you are not going to be bothered by little troubles or big ones.

If you put them out of your mind, they cease to exist, as far as you are concerned.

You don't need to go around wearing a continual smile. You don't need to think that every day in every way life is getting better and better.

But you do need to feel that most of the pin pricks that you suffer from do not amount to much, and that if you don't heed them they won't hurt you.

You are entitled to happiness. But it is like everything else in this life, you have got to work for it to get it, it will not be wafted down upon you from the skies.

And when pests become too pestilent, don't snarl back at them—that will keep them and their ill nature in your mind.

Forget them and avoid them, and they will have no power to harm you. Life is short. You can't afford to waste it in hatred, which is one of the worst poisons that plagues men and women in this earthly existence. Moreover, make a few firm and trusty friends. You can't be contented if you shut yourself away from others like a hermit.

LESSON IN PATIENCE

"Only God can make a tree," and he takes his time. Don't be impatient.

Millionth Car To Be Gift To Owner of Oldest Chevrolet

Chevrolet's one millionth car of 1935 production is to be presented to the owner of the oldest Chevrolet licensed and in regular use in the United States and the cooperation of America's leading newspapers and everyone of the 10,000 Chevrolet dealers has been enlisted to discover this car and its owner.

The one millionth Chevrolet built within the current year came off the assembly line at Flint, Mich., on Dec. 12, just eight days after Chevrolet produced its eleven millionth car since the beginning of the company.

Presentation of the millionth car of the year—a 1936 Standard coach will be made to the owner whose Chevrolet is discovered, between Dec. 1 and midnight Jan. 15, to be the oldest model licensed and in regular service.

It is specified that, to win, the old timer Chevrolet must have been regularly licensed for operation during the current year, possessing its own 1935 license tags issued before December 1. It must, also, have been licensed as a passenger car, and be equipped with a complete passenger car body. It must bear the original engine and chassis numbers, legible and unaltered.

To enter a Chevrolet for consideration the owner need only drive it to any Chevrolet dealer's salesroom and submit it for examination, receiving a blank on which he will report the engine and chassis numbers of the car to the Chevrolet Motor Company at Detroit, where the company's records will determine which is the very oldest in service.

W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager, in notifying dealers of the search for the oldest car, said that the presentation is intended as a New Year's gift as a reward for the driver whose good care and maintenance has enabled the very oldest Chevrolet to survive after many years of operation.

"Chevrolet is happy to present this 1936 model," said Mr. Holler, "because it feels that some recognition is due the owners of Chevrolets. Our achievement of a production totalling well over a million cars during the current year is to be credited largely to motorists who began purchasing Chevrolets years ago and have placed many repeat orders since then.

"I wish I could have the thrill that is in store for the owner whose early Chevrolet—a car maybe 15 or 18 years old—will be supplanted by 1936 model."

Although the presentation will be made as a New Year's gift, the time for submitting cars for consideration has been extended, to include Jan. 15 because of the short period between Dec. 12, the birthday of the millionth car of the year, and the first of the year. Announcement of the award will be made on or about Jan. 22 as soon as the records can be carefully studied to determine exactly who has the oldest Chevrolet in active service.

NOTICE OF BANKRUPT'S PETITION FOR DISCHARGE

In The District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Texas
In the Matter of Price Odom, Bankrupt.

No. 1741 In Bankruptcy.
Office of Referee
Abilene, Texas, Dec. 26, 1935.

Notice is hereby given that Price Odom of the County of Callahan, and district aforesaid, did, on the 31 day of October 1935 file in the Clerk's office of said Court, at Abilene, petition setting up that he has been heretofore duly adjudged a bankrupt under the act of Congress approved July 1, 1898; that he has duly surrendered all his property and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the orders of the Court touching his bankruptcy, and praying for a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate in bankruptcy, save such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

On considering the above mentioned petition, it is ordered that any creditor who has proved his claim, and other parties in interest, if they desire to oppose the discharge prayed for in said petition, shall, on or before the 31st day of January 1936, file with the Referee for the Abilene Division of said district, a notice in writing of their opposition to a discharge in the above entitled cause.
D. M. OLDFHAM, Jr.
Referee in Bankruptcy.

The Nicest Santa Claus

BY BLANCHIE TANNER DILLIN

AS SHE sat watching the fading winter sunset Martha Weeks could hear the kitten crying at the front door. Every day for a week it had been at one of the doors crying to be taken in. It was a cute little thing with its white body and black feet and tall. But Martha couldn't have it tracking mud into the house. Besides what would she do with it when she went away? For it would be foolish to refuse the offer to return to her old position from which she had resigned last spring.

It was at that time that she returned to her old home. Her agent had written of numerous necessary repairs, so Martha had decided to see for herself what those necessary repairs were.

He Was Looking for a Home for His Family.

When she saw the condition of the house and grounds, she concluded the only thing to do was to take over the work herself; find someone to help with both inside and outside work; even give up her position if necessary. It was time she was showing more love for the place; she had neglected it entirely too long. From now on she would try hard to prove worthy of her heritage. She would attempt to restore the order and beauty that had been there in former years.

All spring and summer she and her companion worked tirelessly and lovingly inside the house, painting and sewing, and outside planting and transplanting, while workmen did the heavier work. Many asked would she ever get out what she had put into it? Martha felt she was even now, getting much out of it through seeing order and beauty taking the place of disorder and neglect. That her work had borne fruit was proved by many stopping to add a word of praise and those whose admiring glances were sufficient in themselves. If one of those would admire it enough to rent it.

There wasn't much time left—she must report for work the first of the year and Christmas just a week away. How many wonderfully happy times she had had in this house at Christmas. How gay the house always was with holiday decorations. A wreath here, a rope of pine or tinsel there, here another wreath—and now the little evergreen on each side of the front step would make beautiful outdoor Christmas trees. She opened the door to look at the trees. "Meow," the kitten greeted her. Martha hesitated, then picked it up and stepped back into the house. Once inside, the kitten bounded out of her arms, looked around the room, then selected a bright orange cushion on which to take a nap. Martha's hearty laugh brought Hilda Gray, her companion, into the room.

"Behold our new tenant," Martha indicated the peacefully slumbering kitten.

"He certainly looks as though he had decided to stay."

The sound of the knocker sent Martha hastening to open the door. The man standing on the steps asked if she was Miss Weeks. Martha gave an affirmative answer and invited him to step inside. He was the manager of the iron mills across the river and he was looking for a home for his family. He had been interested in the place ever since he first saw it, and today when he saw the kitten standing before the door he felt he just must have the house. Some one had told him that she would rent it. He hoped she would let him have the house and the kitten. The house was so like a real home and his little daughter would love the cat as she had had one just like it. He had promised her another one and if he could have the house before Christmas, he could have his family with him for the holidays, and he could give the kitten to his little girl for a Christmas gift. Satisfactory terms were soon arranged and later Martha told the kitten:

"You are quite the nicest Santa Claus I ever saw, although a queer one. And to think I almost turned you away."

Use of Christmas Candles

The custom of using Christmas candles was introduced into this country from Europe. In Scandinavia, particularly, it is usual to place candles in the windows on Christmas eve to light Kristine, who brings the gifts. Bayberry candles are particularly appropriate because they are green, aromatic and an emblem of triumph.

BANKERS ACTIVE IN SOIL SAVING MOVE

Issue Book Describing Causes, Ravages and Means of Prevention of Erosion

MADISON, Wis.—Under the title "Protecting Investment Values in Land," the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission has published a booklet dealing with the conservation of soil resources as a pressing national problem.

"Careful estimates indicate that 750,000,000 tons of soil, suspended and dissolved, are carried off to the sea each year by running water," the commission's book declares. "An equal amount removed from its source is left en route. This means a total of 1,500,000,000 tons, equal to approximately one ton for each acre of land in this country. The Soil Conservation Service estimates that 35,000,000 acres have been ruined.

"There are 125,000,000 more acres that have lost the valuable topsoil, and it is estimated that still another 100 million acres are being converted into marginal or sub-marginal land, bringing disaster to those trying to eke out a living from erosion enfeebled soil, and threatening ruin to the next generation, since these destructive forces are going on at an increasing rate."

In a chapter devoted to control and preventive measures for soil losses it describes terracing, strip cropping, wind erosion control, gully control and the control of losses from leaching.

Other chapters are devoted to soil resources, the toll exacted by soil erosion, methods for keeping soils productive, state and national use for non-agricultural land, forestry in a soil conservation program and wild life in a land use program. The booklet describes in detail the marshalling of many forces which is being brought about under the leadership of the Soil Erosion Service to meet this national problem.
