Summers on the Green: The sequel

Outdoor movie series continues Saturday on Settles Hotel lawn

BY LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

The next Summers on the Green presentation will give a glimpse of what 1980s Hollywood thought life would be like in 2015 by way of the fictional movie "Back to the Future 2."

The outdoor screening is set to begin at 7 p.m. Saturday on the Hotel Settles lawn and is the second of a three-part series by the hotel and the Big Spring Convention and Visitors Bureau to celebrate the historic Bankhead Highway. Also helping with the presentation is the Big Spring Film Society.

Guardians of the Children will be in attendance and Eddie Austin and the Texas Silhouettes will be the pre-show entertainment starting at 7:30 p.m. Before the main feature begins, a video of the Bankhead Highway created by Tumbleweed Smith will be shown.

"Back to the Future," continues the adventures of Marty McFly and eccentric inventor Dr. Emmett Brown who uses a time machine — a souped up DeLorean with an installed "flux capacitor" — to travel Strike a line through the drafting program at Howard College. It is no more.

On Monday, the board of trustees approved college officials recommendation to eliminate several certificates and a one degree program citing waning student enrollment and interest.

"Last year we closed the associate of applied science in computer-aided drafting and this year we are recommending closure of the certificates as well because enrollment is just not there," Amy Burchett, vice president of academic student affairs told trustees. program. That will be the only one with a complete closure of a program."

Also making it to the chopping block for the 2015-2016 year were a hospitality and tourism certificate course, and two green construction technology certificate courses. The college also dropped the associates of applied science degree from its catalog.

"We still have the overall agribusiness field but students are opting to complete the certificate levels that will prepare them to go directly into the workforce of that field," Burchett said.

Trustees also approved changes to other career/technology programs to bring them up to state standards.

Officer recorded in pool party incident steps down

By DAVID WARREN
Associated Press

McKINNEY, Texas — A white police officer in suburban Dallas has resigned after he was recorded on video pushing a black teenage girl to the ground outside a pool party and brandishing his gun at other teens.

Officer David Eric Casebolt's actions were "indefensible," though he was not pressured to quit, McKinney Police Chief Greg Conley said at a press conference after the officer submitted his resignation.

A teenager at the party posted a video online showing Casebolt's interactions with the teens as officers responded last Friday to calls about the gathering at a community-owned swimming pool in McKinney. The 41-year-old former Texas state trooper and 10-year veteran of the McKinney force was put on administrative leave after the incident. His lawyer, Jane Bishkin of Dallas, confirmed Tuesday he had quit the force.

Conley said a review of the video showed that "our policies, our training and our practices do not support his actions."

Twelve officers responded to the report of fights and a disturbance at the Craig Ranch North Community Pool in an affluent area of McKinney, which is north of Dallas. "Eleven of them performed according to their training," Conley said. Casebolt did not, he said.

"He came into the call out of control and the video showed he was out of control during the incident," Conley said.

Casebolt's actions are under investigation and no decision has been made whether charges will be filed against him, Conley said. Charges of interfering with an officer and evading arrest against the only man arrested during Friday's incident have been dropped, Conley said. Everyone else detained was released.

Bishkin declined to say where Casebolt is now and said the officer had received death threats. The attorney said she would release more information at a news conference Wednesday.

People who demonstrated this week at a McKinney school compared the city to Baltimore and Ferguson, Missouri, where use of force by police triggered widespread protests and violence.

The resignation is a step in the right direction, said Dominique Alexander, president of the Dallas area-Next Generation Action Network and organizer of the demon-

Drivers heading to Midland Saturday will need to prepare for a little more driving time, take along some relaxing music and a dose of patience.

Beginning at 6 a.m. Saturday, the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), will close the westbound lanes on Interstate 20 between mile marker 173 and 174 for repairs, according to a news release from the TxDOT Abilene office.

This stretch of roadway is already restricted to one lane to accommodate ongoing construction of the Highway 87 by-pass turnaround bridge so traffic will be diverted to State Highway 176, also known as Andrews Highway, and head procedures of the McKinney police force, stopping short of asking for a formal investigation. A review of department policies is needed to ensure officers are responding appropriately to calls involving minorities, the local NAACP chapter said.

The scrutiny over the response to the pool party is a departure from the laudatory attention McKinney has received for its quality of life.

A Time Inc. publication last year ranked the city the best place to live in America, with a median family income in excess of $96,000 and job growth projected at 13 percent. Crime is comparatively low, and like other metropolitan suburbs in Texas, McKinney has seen unprecedented expansion. Its population in 2000 was about 54,300 and has grown over the course of 15 years to approximately 155,000. About 75 percent of residents are white while nearly 11 percent are black.

However, McKinney has faced lawsuits accusing it of racial segregation in public housing. One in 2008 accused the McKinney Housing Authority of restricting federally subsidized public housing for low-income families to older neighborhoods east of U.S. 75.

The lawsuit said that in the Dallas area, 85 percent of those receiving "Section 8" housing vouchers are African-Americans. The 2000 census found McKinney's east side was where 68 percent of the city's black population lived, while neighborhoods west of U.S. 75 were 86 percent white. The lawsuit was settled in 2012 with a consent decree, which is an agreement to take specific actions without admitting guilt.

Derrick Golden, a McKinney pastor, said during a rally Monday that the city has become yet another example of a racial divide in the U.S. "Everybody's got a long way to go," Golden said.

uled to be closed to at least 7 p.m. that night although the time may change depending on the progression of the repair work, according to Mary Belle Turner, TxDOT spokesperson.
On Monday, TxDOT will close parts of Wasson Road from Dogwood Street to Rockhouse Road as crews pour concrete for a bridge deck which is being constructed across Wasson also a part of the Highway 87 by-pass project. This closure is expected to last from approximately 3 a.m. to 12 p.m., according to TxDOT. Drivers who typically use this intersection will need to seek an alternate route during this time.

"As always, TxDOT reminds drivers to be watchful of crew members and large, slow moving equipment in work zones," Turner said. "Follow TxDOT Abilene at Twitter.com/TxDOTAbilene for real-time roadway updates."

Once the by-pass project is completed, most heavy commercial traffic is expected to begin using the route which goes around Big Spring on the west side of the city helping to alleviate traffic congestion down town. The 87 by-pass project is part of a developing major trade route — Port to Plains corridor — connecting Mexico and Canada through the United States.

I get really sick and tired of bad news. I know we live in a real world with real stuff happening, but I get weary of all the depressing and negative news that floods the airwaves and the pages of our newspapers. It is absolutely newsworthy when tragedy or disaster strikes and I totally understand wanting to know what's going on in the world, but do I have to fill my head with it every single day?

No, I don't. I choose to rebel in my own contumacious way by searching for, and finding, heartwarming news stories that don't send me spiraling down a tunnel of despair. Truthfully, there are plenty of positive news stories to enjoy if you look for them.

This past weekend was historical and exciting as the sight of American Pharoah roaring down the stretch at the Belmont Stakes and capturing horse racing's first Triple Crown in 37 years was a memorable sight and sound. Fans welcomed him to the rare club that includes great names like Secretariat, Citation, Whirlaway, Seattle Slew and Affirmed with a sustained ovation at New York's Belmont Park.

Then there was a Michigan teen who last year walked 40 miles carrying his brother on his back to raise awareness for cerebral palsy. Detroit's Hunter Gande finished his 57-mile journey Sunday afternoon at the University of Michigan's Pediatric Rehabilitation Center in Ann Arbor after starting from Lambertville in southeastern Michigan's Monroe County. His brother was in a harness. Hunter was 14 last June when he carried then-7-year-old Braden, who has cerebral palsy and cannot walk unassisted.

The family said the walk wasn't intended to be a fundraiser; rather it an awareness project. Hunter said they "absolutely" achieved that aim.

It's amazing when kids as young as 3 years old understand the power of charity. You may have seen Ariana Smith of Winterport, Maine, whose selfless decision to chop off her hair to donate it to Locks of Love went viral on YouTube last year. It doesn't hurt that she's adorable and gleefully offered up her own hair when she saw an image of a young cancer patient who was bald.

This sad story had a happy ending when a Texas man suffering from a rare genetic disorder left behind a secret trove of letters for his wife and infant daughter, to be opened after he died. Mitchell Whisenhunt's stack of notes, discovered by his wife, included a letter for every year until his 18-month-old daughter turns 18, ensuring her dad's memory will live on long after he's gone. Whisenhunt lost his battle with Marfan syndrome in October of last year. He was 26.

In a year when the NFL had plenty of bad press -- Ray Rice and Adrian Petersen, for starters -- the Cincinnati Bengals managed to bring some class back to the league. After cutting defensive tackle Devon Still, the Bengals re-signed him in September so that he could continue to pay for his daughter's cancer treatments. Keeping Still on the practice squad meant he gets to keep his weekly salary and medical insurance.

One of 2014's most heartwarming stories comes from one of the most tragic events from 2013, the Boston Marathon bombing. In April of last year, one of the survivors married the nurse who helped treat him after the attack, proving that for at least one victim, there is a happy ending. James Costello and his nurse, Krista D'Agostino, married in August in Boston.

For thirteen years, a woman had been trying to return a wedding photo she found in the rubble of the World Trade Center after the 9/11 attacks. And this year, she finally found its owner. Elizabeth Stringer Keefe, a college professor in Connecticut, tweeted the photo and it caught the attention of someone who recognized a face from the photo.

"On 9/11 I saw the worst of humanity, but on 9/12 I saw the best of humanity," said Fred Mahe, who had the photo at his desk in the second World Trade Center. "Elizabeth is 100 percent 9/12."

Here's something that deserves a headline for sure. Julie Weiss is the Energizer Bunny of marathon runners. For 52 weeks, she kept on going and going and going. On Sunday, June 8th, she finally stopped. As she crossed the finish line of the Los Angeles Marathon, she reached her goal of running a marathon every week for a year to raise awareness for the disease that killed her father.

"Pancreatic cancer is my only competition out there and I intend to beat it," she told TODAY. The 42-year-old California mother of two started her year-long journey after her father

Uber expects to add another million to its stable of 1 million driver partners like Ferguson. Artists, consultants and stay-at-home moms use it to supplement family income, pay off student loans, etc.

Uber is good for cities, Kalanick argued. When consumers simply can push a button to get a ride, they don't need to drive their cars downtown. With fewer cars, cities don't need to build garages. There's no need for all those ugly parking meters. Uber means cities don't have to spend capital to lay down rails or buy buses. Be it noted, Kalanick offered — and who in the room would care to argue? — "public transportation alone isn't enough."

Uber and competitor Lyft claim they promote public safety by reducing drunken driving; why get behind the wheel when celebrants can push a button? When workers use its commuter service, Kalanick added, that reduces tailpipe emissions.

In short, Uber has the perfect business model.

It doesn't have to buy cars, and it makes money letting people drive their own rides. If consumers don't like the setup, they can drive or take cabs. In San Francisco, it seems, competition has spurred cabbies to step up their game.

After five years, Uber has numbers on its side — and that spells lobbying prowess. It wasn't that long ago that taxi companies and limousine services were trying to use their clout to put ride-service startups out of business. They had a good argument, too. They wanted to level the playing field and subject Uber and Lyft drivers to insurance standards akin to those for professional drivers.

Last year, California Assemblywoman Susan Bonilla carried a bill toward that end. It sailed through the Assembly in a 71-0 vote. Republicans, who are supposed to oppose niggling regulations, did not oppose it. Then Uber, Lyft and other ride-service startups organized their drivers and consumers. An avalanche of

The revenge of the status quo is brutish. "If you attack the establishment long enough and hard enough, they will make you a member of it," humorist Art Buchwald once observed. Those words never seemed truer than at the "Uber Turns Five" celebration at its San Francisco digs Wednesday. In the disruption economy, five years can carry a ride-service giant from disruptor to establishment.

Uber CEO Travis Kalanick certainly has matured. Last year, the startup went on a "charm offensive" in an attempt to quell stories about Uber's testosterone culture. That didn't go swimmingly. A male exec told a New York editor that Uber should hire top opposition researchers to dig up dirt on media critics — in particular PandoDaily Editor Sarah Lacy, to retaliate against her protest of the company's "sexism and misogyny." It was a nasty ride.

Still, as Kalanick likes to say, Uber is "passionate about learning" from its mistakes. This year, Kalanick brought his mother. He teared up when he talked about her.

And who introduced him? Not some oozing-money venture-capital jockey but a military wife who became an Uber "driver partner" this year. Theresa Ferguson got all choked up as she talked about how being a driver has allowed her to not only spend more time with her three kids but also volunteer one day at her son's school. "Uber has allowed me to be my own boss," she proclaimed in a touching "I am woman" moment.

Uber has raised close to $6 billion, and its valuation exceeds $50 billion. Nonetheless, Kalanick and company like to talk about the ride-service corporation as a "public service." Money? Don't be crass. Uber is all about helping people and "allowing people to serve their email outrage prompted the Legislature to tame the Bonilla bill.

This year, ride services are a giant that can crush critics. Last week, the Assembly postponed a bill by Assemblyman Adrin Nazarian to require random drug testing for freelance drivers. Uber, Lyft and Sidecar opposed the measure on the grounds that their background checks protect consumers and that making drivers show up for drug tests undercuts their business model, which relies on flexibility. Uber spokeswoman Eva Behrend told the Los Angeles Times that the bill really was about "protecting entrenched Sacramento special interests from competition." The measure tanked before it came to a floor vote. Sacramento lawmakers now fear the wrath of the ride-service world.

When Uber and like-minded businesses started, they popped up under the radar of regulators. Next, they built up a worker and consumer base that served to help them fight old-school regulation that gets in the way of individual choice and initiative. Now, Kalanick said, Uber can come into a new city and tell the mayor that ride services will reduce traffic congestion, smog and drunken driving. Right now, Uber is a low-cost transportation utopia.

What happens when Uber moves to driverless cars, as it surely will? The disruption drivers in turn will be disrupted. The ride-service giant will lose its league of freelance drivers/lobbyists and its pretext of existing mainly as a "public service" for freelance go-getters. Quoth Kalanick, "Our driver partners are the heart and soul of this company." By then, Uber will be part of the entrenched establishment — where an organ can be replaced by a machine and soul is optional.

This week we are into fiction! "Discount" (F GRA C) by Casey Gray is set in the American Southwest some 40 miles north of Juarez (uum, wouldn't that be El Paso?) Gray's novel follows a group of customers and employees through the 20-hour work cycle as they seek comfort and sustenance inside the cinderblock walls of the well-known institution known as the "Superstore."

HOLLIS MCCRIGHT

"Friendswood" (F STE R) by Rene Steinke is about the suburb south of Houston, by the same name. It is a small Gulf Coast town of church suppers, oil rigs on the horizon, hurricane weather and high school football games. When tragedy rears its head with an industrial leak that kills and sickens residents, it pulls on the common thread that runs through the community, intensifying everything.

From a confused 15-year-old girl beset by visions, to a high school football star tormented by his actions, to a mother galvanized by the death of her teen daughter, to a morally bankrupt father trying to survive his mistakes, René Steinke explores what happens when families are trapped in the ambiguity of history's missteps — when the actions of a few change the lives and well-being of many. Driving the narrative powerfully forward is the suspenseful question of the fates of four Friendswood families, and Steinke's striking insight and empathy. It is a story of oil, corruption, love and family and how they all tear you apart.

Lisa Scottoline has not deviated from her writing style since she first began writing. Her debut novel in 2004 "Every Where That Mary Went" to "Every Fifteen Minutes" (F SCO L) all deal with ethical, moral and legal dilemmas that keep you thinking long after one puts down the book.

In this book, "Every Fifteen Minutes", Dr. Eric Parrish is a caring psychiatrist who has been targeted by a sociopath. Eric already has his hands full — head of the psych department at Havemeyer General Hospital, recently separated from his wife and desperately trying to be a single dad to his daughter.

Plus, he is treating a troubled teenaged boy who harbors an obsessive crush on a girl. I think you can see where this is heading: A perfect storm of personal and professional mayhem erupts that may destroy his professional, family and perhaps his life.

This is a different kind of book, but I think that once you get into it, you will enjoy it. Kazuo Ishiguro is the author, who also wrote "Remains of the Day", which won the Booker Prize for literature, has written "The Buried Giant" (F ISH K). The Romans have long since departed and Britain is steadily declining into ruin. But, at least, the wars that once ravaged the country have ceased. Axl and Beatrice, a couple of elderly Britons, decide that now is the time, finally, for them to set off across this troubled land of mist and rain to find the son they have not seen for years, the son they can scarcely remember.

They know they will face many hazards, some strange and otherworldly, but they cannot foresee how their journey will reveal to them the dark and forgotten corners of their love for each other.

Nor can they foresee that they will be joined on their journey by a Saxon warrior, his orphan charge, and a knight, each of them, like Axl and Beatrice, lost in some way to his own past, but drawn inexorably toward the comfort, and the burden, of the fullness of a life's memories.

Here are some snippets of new books just in: "The Fair Fight" (FRE A), by Anna Freeman, takes place in the 1800s, when women fought bare-knuckled in London's prize rings (something that I didn't know occurred); Mishka Ben-David's "Duet in Beirut" (F BEN M) — in this riveting thriller by an ex-Mossad agent, an Israeli spy risks his life to save a Hezbollah leader; the next is a Jane Whitefield thriller, "A String of Beads" (F PER T) from Thomas Perry — at the clan mother's request, Jane takes on the task of finding Jimmy, who is wanted by the police for the murder of a local white man; and from a perennial favorite author, Steve Berry, is passed away in November 2010, only a month after being diagnosed with pancreatic cancer. The experience stunned her.

"The Patriot Threat" (F BER S) with Cotton Malone and his usual whirlwind, magical, McGyverish rescue of the United States from (this time) the North Koreans (shades of Kim Jong II) and the Chinese.

"People don't know what we're dealing with here," she said. "It's almost like a death sentence."

She started her mission with a marathon in Rome and followed with a race every weekend throughout the United States and Canada. She would work her 9-to-5 job during the week and then immediately hop on a plane. She finished each race with a huge smile and arms raised and then head back home Sunday.

A story I personally found heartwarming spotlights Brooke Mayo, who never stopped thinking of the rosy-cheeked little girl she gave up for adoption nearly three-quarters of a century ago.

She was certain, though, that she'd never again see the child she had named Delphine.

After all, she'd been told in 1945 that the girl had died. It wasn't until this past July that the little girl, whose adoptive parents had renamed her Patricia, walked through the door of Mayo's Paso Robles home.

'I was in a daze,' the 89-year-old woman told the San Luis Obispo Tribune, which reported on the reunion Sunday. 'I'm still in a daze. I can't believe this. The people I talk to say it's like a book or a movie or something, it's just so amazing.'

Yes, there are good news stories happening all the time. The bad news just keeps drowning them out.

You may not agree with anything I've said, but I column as I see 'em.

Elizabeth 'Liz' Parker

Elizabeth Armstrong Parker passed away peacefully in Austin, Texas, on May 26, 2015, at the age of 78 after succumbing to Alzheimer's disease.

Elizabeth "Liz" Armstrong and her twin sister, Lora, were born on May 17, 1937, to Ada "Jane" Dabney and Hervey "Pat" Armstrong in Wink, Texas. Liz, Lora and their beloved older brother, John, grew up in Van Horn, Texas, where John owned a shoe repair business. Liz graduated from Van Horn High School in 1955 and then attended Sul Ross State College in Alpine where she met her future husband, Doyle Erwin Stout of Dallas. Doyle, a southpaw pitcher for the semi-pro baseball team the Alpine Cowboys, and Liz married on Aug. 4, 1956, shortly before Doyle joined the United States Marine Corps. They had three children, Doyle Erwin Junior "DJ", John Edward, and Ted Eugene.

As a military family, Liz, Doyle and her three boys moved nearly every year and lived in California, Virginia, Massachusetts, Ohio, Texas and Kingston, Ontario, Canada. Liz was a devoted mother and a good cook. Her three growing boys would often fight over whatever dish she prepared. Liz was beautiful and a charming host at the parties and social events she organized in her role as a Marine officer's wife. She was friendly and easy going with a sweet disposition. Liz loved everyone she ever met and they loved her instantly.

In 1978 Liz moved to Big Spring, Texas, to be closer to her parents and her twin sister Lora. During this period, she attended the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in Odessa, where she finished her college degree and obtained her teaching certificate in 1980. Liz then taught elementary school in Big Spring. She was an enthusiastic teacher who inspired her students and was loved by her fellow teachers. Liz was a voracious reader and often read every book on the bestseller list. On August 20, 1982, Liz married Aaron Leroy Collins in Big Spring. Aaron, who was a military veteran, passed away on April 18, 1985.

On Sept. 17, 1986, Liz married James Franklin "Frank" Parker of Bedford, Texas. Frank, a successful attorney and partner in his law firm, and Liz lived in Lubbock, Fort Worth, Big Spring, Bedford, Texas and Ruidoso, N.M. They also traveled the world together. The couple's wanderlust led them to China, Ireland, Paris, Scotland, England, New Zealand, Australia, Switzerland and Costa Rica - their all-time favorite.

Their shared love for adventure made Liz and Frank great traveling companions and Liz was legendary for making friends with everyone they encountered on their numerous sojourns. Frank loved Liz dearly and was an amazing partner throughout their entire marriage. He was particularly strong and selfless during Liz's devastating battle with Alzheimer's disease.

As identical twins, Liz and sister, Lora cherished their times together. They enjoyed long walks on Scenic Mountain in Big Spring and took frequent trips. Liz and Lora were so close they seemed to have their own language, often giggling and finishing one another's sentences. It was truly a special bond.

Liz is survived by her husband of 28 years, Frank; her sons, DJ (Lana) of Austin, Texas; John (Judy) of Ransom Canyon, Texas; Ted (Rose) of Picabo, Idaho; her five grandchildren, Patrick, Nicholas and Lucy of Austin, Texas, and Benjamin and Mariah of Picabo, Idaho; her twin sister, Lora Warren of Big Spring, Texas; her sister-in-law, Nelda (Marion) Carter of Garden City, Texas; her nephew, Lelan (Rhonda) Warren of Dallas, Texas; and her deceased nephew Gene Warren's widow, Diana, and their daughter Emily, of Fredericksburg, Texas.

Liz was preceded in death by her parents, Jane and Pat Armstrong and her brother, John Armstrong of Van Horn, Texas; her brother-in-law, Douglas Warren; and her nephew, Gene Warren.

In lieu of a funeral and in honor of Liz's wishes, the family plans to convene to honor her quietly in her hometown of Van Horn, Texas, later this summer. Liz did not designate a charity, but the family suggests donations to Alzheimer's research in her memory.

Sweet Liz loved everyone and we all loved her back. We will miss her so much.

Our hearts are broken.

Robert Dyer

Robert Harris (Bob) Dyer, 86, departed this life on June 7, 2015, after a long battle with Alzheimer's disease. Bob was born Feb. 18, 1929, in Olustee, Okla., to Geneve Ledford Dyer and Joe I. Dyer. He grew up in Henderson, Texas, attended New London Elementary School and graduated from Henderson High School in 1946. Bob went on to graduate from The University of Texas in 1951. He played flute and piccolo in the UT Marching Band and was a member of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity.

Bob married Dona Jean Forshee on April 19, 1952. After serving in the army at Fort Chaffee, Ark. as a rifle instructor, he moved his young family to Big Spring, Texas. Bob taught chemistry at Big Spring High School and Howard College. He joined Cosden Oil and Chemical Company, which later became American Petrofina, and traveled extensively throughout Europe, Canada and the United States. He was an active member of The Rotary Club of Big Spring and Saint Mary's Episcopal Church Vestry. In 1973, Bob took a position with The Gulf Coast Authority and the family moved to Houston, Texas. Bob and Dona returned to West Texas in 1987 and established their business, Permian Medical Billing, in Midland.

After Dona's death in 2004, Bob was fortunate to find love, again. He married Mary Louise Deats Dec. 9, 2006. Bob and Mary enjoyed traveling and spending time with family and friends. She was his loving companion and devoted caregiver until his death.

Bob was a lifelong student of history and politics. He delighted in discussions of family history, church history, the Civil War and current events.

Holidays usually included a lively debate at the dinner table concerning the latest news item. We will always remember his easy smile, kind spirit, loving heart and abiding faith in God.

Bob was a member of The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, where he was active in the Men's Club. He also belonged to The Petroleum Club and The Racquet Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Dyer; sons, J.R. Dyer and wife, Jeanne; Dr. Joel Dyer and wife, Pam; daughter, Ann Dyer Wardlaw and husband, Stephen; grandchildren, Joel Harris Dyer; Lauren Dyer Bean and husband, Alan; Byron Harris Wardlaw; Stephanie Wardlaw Ledford and husband, Jeff; and great-grandsons Jack, Max and Garrett. He is also survived by John Deats and wife, Carol; their daughters Caroline Deats and Abigail Stevens, husband Trevor and baby Adeline; Annabeth Deats Miller and husband, Drew; and their daughter, Annaclarice Miller.

He was preceded in death by the mother of his children, Dona Jean Dyer; his parents, Geneve and Joe Dyer, and his infant sister, Jo Ann.

The family wishes to express their sincere thanks to the staff of Legacy Ranch Alzheimer's Special Care Center and our dear friends, Don Breeden and Russell Shaffer.

A family service and burial will be held on Friday, June 12, 2015.

Memorials may be made to the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W Illinois Ave., Midland, 79701; St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, 4000 W Loop 250 North, Midland, TX, 79707; or Legacy Ranch, 4800 Briarwood Ave, Midland, TX, 79707.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory of Midland. Online condolences can be made at www.npwelch.com.

News in brief

Officials: Suicide bomber targets ancient Egyptian temple in Luxor

LUXOR, Egypt (AP) — A suicide bomber blew himself up on Wednesday at the ancient Egyptian temple of Karnak in Luxor, a southern city frequented by millions of tourists every year, security officials said.

There was no immediate word on casualties from the late morning bombing, but the officials said police foiled two other suicide attacks also targeting the sprawling Nile-side temple, a tourist attraction that rivals the pyramids at Giza, near Cairo.

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak to the media.

The attack was the first to target world-famous attractions in Luxor since November 1997, when Islamic militants opened fire on tourists at the city's 3,400-year-old Hatshepsut Temple on the west bank of the Nile, killing 58.

Tourism is the lifeblood of Luxor, home to some of Egypt's most famous ancient temples and pharaonic tombs, including that of King Tutankhamun. The city has been hit hard by a downturn in foreign visitors during the years of unrest since Egypt's 2011 uprising.

Former Speaker Dennis Hastert enters not guilty plea during 1st court appearance

CHICAGO (AP) — Former U.S. House Speaker Dennis Hastert has pleaded not guilty to charges that he violated banking rules and lied to the FBI about promising to pay $3.5 million in hush money to conceal misconduct from his days as a high school teacher.

On Tuesday, during his first court appearance since he was indicted, the 73-year-old stood motionless, his hands folded and eyes downcast at the floor, as his attorney entered the plea on his behalf. When the judge asked if he understood he had to submit a DNA sample and could go to jail if he violated any conditions of his release, the man who was once second in the line of succession to the presidency answered quietly, "Yes, sir."

Sweep in small town for 2 escaped killers comes up empty; increased police presence in area

WILLSBORO, N.Y. (AP) — Reports of two men walking along a road brought hundreds of law enforcement officers to a small town in the Adirondack foothills for a sweep that seemingly turned up no signs of two killers who escaped from a maximum-security prison, but state police said leads continued to be generated and there would be an increased police presence in the area.

The hunt that began over the weekend focused Tuesday on Willsboro, close to Lake Champlain, after residents reported seeing a couple of men walking on a road late Monday during a driving rain-storm.

Health dept. proposes high-sodium warning on menus

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City's Health Department wants all chain restaurants to warn customers about products that are high in salt.

The department is proposing at a meeting of the Board of Health on Wednesday that all chain restaurants add a salt-shaker-like symbol on menus next to products that contain more than the recommended daily limit. That's 2,300 milligrams of sodium, about 1 teaspoon of salt.

If the city Board of Health votes to consider the proposal, a final vote could come as soon as September and the warnings by December.

Overconsumption of sodium increases the risk of high blood pressure, which can lead to heart attack and stroke.

The average American consumes about 3,400 milligrams of sodium each day; only about one in 10 Americans meets the 1 teaspoon guideline.

Questions surround murder charges against Georgia woman who ended pregnancy with pill

Even opponents of abortion say it may be hard for Georgia authorities to follow through with prosecuting a woman who was charged with murder because she took a pill to terminate her pregnancy.

"I have been involved in the pro-life movement for well over 20 years, and I'm not aware of a situation like this ever," said Genevieve Wilson, a director of the anti-abortion group Georgia Right to Life. "I'm very surprised by it."

Kenlissia Jones, 23, of Albany was being held at the Dougherty County jail on charges of malice murder and possession of a dangerous drug. Albany is about 180 miles south of Atlanta.

Court upholds key parts of Texas' anti-abortion law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A federal appeals court on Tuesday upheld Texas' strict abortion restrictions that could soon leave only seven abortion clinics open in a state of 27 million people.

The decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals allows Texas to enforce Republican-backed restrictions that require abortion clinics to meet hospital-level operating standards, a checklist that includes rules on minimum room sizes, staffing levels and air ventilation systems. The restrictions, approved in 2013, are among the toughest in the nation.

Owners of traditional abortion clinics, which resemble doctor's offices more than hospitals, say they would be forced to close because the new rules demand millions of dollars in upgrades they can't afford.

That would mark the second large wave of closures in as many years in Texas, which had 41 abortion clinics in 2012, before other new restrictions took effect that require doctor admitting privileges.

"Not since before Roe v. Wade has a law or court decision had the potential to devastate access to reproductive health care on such a sweeping scale," said Nancy Northrop, president and CEO of the Center for Reproductive Rights. "We now look to the Justices to stop the sham laws that are shutting clinics down and placing countless women at risk of serious harm."

Texas will be able to start enforcing the restrictions in about three weeks unless the U.S. Supreme Court agrees to halt the decision, said Stephanie Toti, an attorney for the center.

Only seven abortion facilities in Texas, including four operated by Planned Parenthood, meet the more robust requirements.

Abortion-rights groups said they will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, which temporarily sidelined the law last year.

If the law takes effect, some women in the state would live hundreds of miles away from a Texas abortion provider. But that argument didn't sway the three-judge panel making the decision for the New Orleans-based appeals court, which is considered one of the most conservative in the nation.

The judges noted that a New Mexico abortion clinic was just across the Texas border, and said clinic owners in Texas failed to prove that a "large fraction" of women would be burdened.

Republican Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton, whose office argued before the appeals court in January, praised Tuesday's ruling.

"Abortion practitioners should have no right to operate their businesses from sub-standard facilities and with doctors who lack admitting privileges at a hospital," Paxton said.

Republican Gov. Greg Abbott and other conservatives say the standards protect women's health. But abortion-rights supporters say the law is a thinly veiled attempt to block access to abortions in Texas, which has been the site of one of the nation's largest abortion fights for two years. Toti said roughly a half-dozen other states require similar standards for abortion clinics, but unlike in those states, the Texas law doesn't allow clinics to be grandfathered or seek waivers.

About 18 abortion clinics are currently open in Texas, though the number fluctuates depending on whether a facility has a doctor with hospital admitting privileges.

Under the new restrictions, the only remaining abortion facilities in Texas would be in major cities.

One exception would be a Whole Woman's Health clinic in McAllen, near the Texas-Mexico border, which the 5th Circuit exempted from some restrictions — but Toti said even those exemptions are so limited that it may not be practical to keep that clinic open.

For women in El Paso, the closest abortion provider in Texas would require a 1,200-mile round trip to San Antonio, or they would have to cross state lines. The appeals court found that option suitable, noting that a clinic was just across the border in Santa Teresa, New Mexico.

"Although the nearest abortion facility in Texas is 550 miles away from El Paso, there is evidence that women in El Paso can travel the short distance to Santa Teresa to obtain an abortion and, indeed, the evidence is that many did just that," the court wrote.

Attorneys for the state also dismissed opponents' arguments about women being burdened by fewer abortion facilities, saying that nearly 9 in 10 women in Texas would still live within 150 miles of a provider.

The restrictions are the same ones that Democrat Wendy Davis temporarily blocked with a 13-hour filibuster in the Texas Legislature in 2013, which attracted national attention and propelled her to an unsuccessful run for governor.

News in brief

Houston police officer shot after traffic stop

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston police officer is expected to recover after being shot following a traffic stop.

Houston media outlets report 47-year-old Officer Terry Smith was shot in the back Tuesday night near the Midtown area after the driver he pulled over had already left. Houston Police Department Chief Charles McClelland said Smith underwent surgery at Texas Medical Center and is in stable condition.

Capt. Dwayne Ready said Smith was putting away his ticket book when he heard a loud pop and felt some pain. Paramedics were called to the scene and found a gunshot wound in his back.

Police say they do not know who shot Smith, but they say it is likely the shooter was in a passing vehicle.

Former bank president guilty of wire fraud

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An ex-president of a South Texas bank faces up to 30 years in prison for lying about how much the financial institution was worth before it was sold.

Laurie Mayfield, also known as Laurie H. Scott, pleaded guilty Tuesday to wire fraud. She formerly led D'Hanis State Bank.

Prosecutors in San Antonio say Mayfield filed fraudulent reports to regulators and overestimated the bank's assets by about $830,000. The 54-year-old Fredericksburg woman from 2012 through September 2014 submitted documents to federal and state bank regulators.

Authorities say Mayfield also emailed the false reports to a prospective buyer of DSB. Vantage Bank Texas proceeded with the purchase last fall.

38 animals killed in Texas animal clinic fire

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Officials say 38 animals have died from a fire that engulfed an animal hospital in East Texas.

Texas media outlets report 40 animals were at Kimbrough Animal Hospital in Longview when the fire started late Tuesday. According to Longview Fire Marshal Johnny Zackary, the hospital's owner took the two surviving animals to East Texas Animal Hospital for treatment.

Officials say the fire department responded around 10:25 p.m. to the clinic, where flames could be seen shooting out of the roof. Authorities say the building collapsed during the fire, but crews worked through the night to rescue the animals.

The deceased animals were taken to a building next door for their owners to come and identify them.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

NTSB blames 2014 channel collision on tugboat

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A tugboat captain's decision to try to beat a cargo ship into the Houston Ship Channel is the probable cause of a 2014 collision that spilled 168,000 gallons of oil that drifted up to 200 miles down the Texas Gulf coast, according to a federal report issued Tuesday.

The National Transportation Safety Board also said in its report that the failure of a ship channel navigator and the Summer Wind master to set a safe speed in the fog-shrouded channel contributed to the accident. The NTSB also cited the failure of the tugboat captain and navigator to establish early radio communication.

No crew members were injured in the March 22, 2014, collision between a fuel oil barge towed by the tugboat Miss Susan and the cargo ship Summer Wind in the channel of lower Galveston Bay.

The Miss Susan was towing two 300-foot-long tank barges filled with 924,000 gallons of fuel oil when the collision occurred. It was sailing eastward across the mouth of the channel bound for Port Bolivar, across from Galveston. Meanwhile, the 607-foot-long Summer Wind was steaming north into the channel when the string of oil barges crossed its path.

Also contributing to the accident, the NTSB concluded, was the failure of the U.S. Coast Guard's Vessel Traffic Service to alert the ships to the developing collision risk and the lack of a Coast Guard vessel separation policy for the area of the collision.

Superintendent overrides board, fires 3 principals

DALLAS (AP) — The superintendent of the Dallas school district has fired three principals despite a school board vote to keep them.

The principals are Anna Brining of the Rosemont elementary and middle schools, Joy Morris of Wilmer-Hutchinson Elementary School and Dinnah Escanilla of North Dallas High School, The Dallas Morning News reported.

An attorney who represents all three principals said two will appeal the decision and that the other didn't want him to speak publicly about her job.

Superintendent Mike Miles declined to comment on his decision, which a district spokesman said was a personnel matter. School board members were told Monday that the choice to fire the principals was based on professional leadership concerns.

Cavs stifle Warriors, lead NBA finals 2 games to 1

CLEVELAND (AP) — LeBron James is doing more than ever. With the Cavaliers missing two All-Stars, he has no choice.

"I'm so outside the box right now," he said.

And two wins from a championship — one like no other.

Pushed by a crowd howling to see Cleveland's 51-year title drought end, James scored 40 points, his new sidekick Matthew Dellavedova added 20 and the Cavaliers survived Golden State's furious fourth-quarter comeback led by Stephen Curry for a 96-91 win over the Warriors on Tuesday night to take a 2-1 lead in the NBA Finals.

James added 12 rebounds and eight assists in 46 minutes, his third stellar performance in his fifth straight finals. The Cavs, who won Game 2 at Golden State for their first ever finals win, got their first at Quicken Loans Arena, which shook from start to finish. They'll have a chance to take a commanding 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series in Game 4 on Thursday night.

Through three games, James has played 142 of 154 possible minutes, scored 123 points and taken 107 shots. With Kyrie Irving and Kevin Love out with injuries, it's all on James to deliver.

"I'm just trying to do whatever it takes to help our team win," he said. "It's the finals, and it's whatever it takes. This is a totally different challenge."

Cleveland nearly threw Game 3 away. The Cavs, who led 92-83 with 51 seconds left, had to withstand a scoring flurry by Curry.

The league's MVP finally found his shooting touch in the fourth quarter, scoring 17 points as the Warriors, who trailed by 20 in the third, refused to go away. Golden State got a huge lift from reserve David Lee, but they rode Curry, who made five 3-pointers — his last with 18.9 seconds to pull the Warriors within 94-91.

James was fouled and made two free throws with 16.8 seconds left. On Golden State's last possession, Andre Iguodala appeared to get fouled on a 3-point attempt and the Cavs pulled down the rebound to close out the win.

Rangers outlast Gray, A's

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Beyond getting away from the distractions that come with playing at home, Nick Martinez is at a loss to explain why the Texas Rangers are the best road team in baseball.

He's not spending much time trying to figure it out, either.

Mitch Moreland hit a long home run and Martinez outpitched Sonny Gray as Texas beat the Oakland Athletics 2-1 on Tuesday night for its major league-best 20th road win.

"We're not playing different," said Martinez, who won for the first time since May 23.

"We're coming to the ballpark going through our same routine as we go in at home. I think it's just worked out that way."

Texas has won three of four on its current trip to pull within two games of AL West-leading Houston.

Manager Jeff Banister credited his players' attitude for the team's success on the road.

"Really it's just a testament to who they are and what they do every night," Banister said. "They feel that way coming into the clubhouse no matter where they're at."

in a run and Shin-Soo Choo added two hits to help lead the Rangers to their 10th win in the last 12 games away from home.

Moreland had gone hitless in 10 previous at-bats against Gray (7-3) before connecting for his seventh homer of the season in the sixth inning. The ball easily cleared the wall in center field and bounced off the facade underneath a row of luxury seats.

Martinez (5-2) allowed one hit over six shutout innings. He struck out three and walked three.

"I'm back to the type of pitcher I am, just attacking hitters to both sides of the plate and working off that," Martinez said. "In my last outing I had trouble finding it. It was a great way to bounce back."

Four relievers completed the five-hitter. Shawn Tolleson pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

Martinez, who beat the A's on April 9, didn't allow a hit until Josh Reddick's leadoff double in the fourth. He pitched with runners on base in every inning.

Delino DeShields tripled off Gray and scored on Fielder's two-out single in the third. Moreland's leadoff shot in the sixth made it 2-0.

Giants' rookie pitches first no-hitter of season against Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Heston handled the New York Mets with ease. Explaining his accomplishment was the hard part.

The 27-year-old rookie had just thrown baseball's first no-hitter this season, in his 13th major league start, and here he was in the interview room, flanked by San Francisco manager Bruce Bochy and catcher Buster Posey, trying to detail a most unexpected moment.

"Definitely something I'll remember forever," Heston said.

Heston threw called third strikes past pinch-hitter Danny Muno, Curtis Granderson and Ruben Tejada in the ninth inning, completing a 5-0 victory over the New York Mets on Tuesday night.

In a Championship rotation filled with All-Stars, his name is the one that sticks out as lacking pedigree.

He is far from the prototypical major league pitcher.

Drafted on the 47th round, he stayed in school.

Drafted on the 29th round, he stayed in school.

Taken on the 12th round, he finally signed with San Francisco in 2009.

And in an era of radar gun worship, Heston didn't throw a pitch faster than 91 mph.

"It's not always how hard you throw," Bochy said. "It's your command. It's your ability to mix up your pitches, keep them off balance, hit your spots, pitch to your defense. Sure, it's nice to have that 95-99 (mph), but if you're off a little bit, hitters are going to catch up with that, trust me."

Heston (6-4) allowed three baserunners — hitting Tejada, Lucas Duda and Anthony Recker with pitches. According to STATS, it was the third no-hitter since 1914 in which all the runners who reached did so on hit batters — and the first with more than one.

The right-hander struck out 11 — six throwing — and allowed just two batters into the outfield, flyouts by Wilmer Flores in the second inning and Michael Cuddyer in the seventh.

Heston called it the greatest moment of his life.

"This has got to be No. 1, probably right next to my first big league appearance," he said.

After freezing Tejada with a 91 mph sinker for the final out, Heston didn't jump, didn't raise his arms in triumph.

He hopped off the mound with two steps toward the Giants dugout, bared his glove with his bare hand, then turned, walked toward home plate and hugged Posey.

"I wasn't too sure where to go after that last out," Heston said in an aw-shucks manner, looking boyish despite a day or two of stubble.

He took the ball from the final out with him, but didn't have any designated place to display it. He doesn't have a trophy case.

HOLIDAY MATHIS

If you want to make a calculated "accidental" mistake, now is the time. It's the last day of the current elongated Mercury retrograde. So put the thing in the mail that's not supposed to get there any time soon, send the text that might land awkwardly, push the button that's likely to lead to the demise of the project. You still have something to blame.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). There are many things out of your control, but if you take charge of one or two major things that are very much within your realm of influence, you'll create a different future than the one that's been handed to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Leonardo da Vinci wrote that "he who has access to the fountain does not go to the water-pot." You have fountain-level access to whatever you need to make a project fly. Use it. This is your moment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You have someone powerful on your side, rooting for you to do whatever it takes for maximum vitality -- and that someone is you. All success will spring from taking good care of yourself.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You can't fully enjoy yourself when you know others have been left out of the pleasure. You thrive on being helpful. The generous acts that you think will take your energy will actually renew it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your joy is in the creative process. If it doesn't turn out perfectly, that in no way robs you of the excitement that comes with making the effort. You may not have all the skills you need yet, but with each try, you're getting them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Sometimes you do the things you need to do to be happy, and yet the happiness doesn't come. At least you have the satisfaction of knowing you've done enough to deserve it. That's something.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). In order to break out of the constraints, issues and problems of the day, you'll need a different view. Treat the day as if it were a coin you could toss, catch and turnover on your hand to discover its flip side.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Account for what is right in relationships. Make a list of what you love about your current connections. Your focus on the positive will make it grow and overtake any negativity that's there.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). If there's not enough to do, you'll work slowly, take detours and, at the last minute, meet a deadline. If you have too much to do, you'll work quickly, take shortcuts and meet your deadline just as well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Share your wisdom, and in all likelihood, no one will listen. It's not you; it's just the kind of day it is. However, if you share a kind word instead, your audience will be all ears.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Helping others sometimes means you get nothing back, not even the certainty that you did some good. Yet you keep helping. It's your nature to do so and your preferred way of living.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Pare down your needs of others. You've grown to rely on someone, and it's interfering with your usual state of self-sufficiency. Take steps to regain your independence.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June

10). You're like the ocean tides -- over time, you'll beat a rocky shore into fine sand. Persistent efforts will change the landscape of your life. July brings declarations of love. Travel is best in July and October. People will give you the answer they think you want, so make it clear what you want and then hold them to it. Aries and Aquarius people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 40, 11, 19 and 16.

STRESS BE GONE! YOUR ASTROLOGICAL GUIDE TO CHILLING OUT: Between the high-intensity energy of the Gemini sun and Mercury's retrograde, the world can be a hectic, overwhelming environment. But not to worry -- sanctuary is just a moment away when you use your sign's custom strategy for mental health. ARIES: Exercise is your ticket to feeling good. Almost as soon as you start to sweat, the problems roll away like water off a duck's back. Your thoughts become softer and more pleasant. Your mood lightens, and you start to attract serene circumstances. TAURUS: As the sign of appetite, you are particularly affected by the foods you eat. When you eat several small nutritious meals, you are happiest. You'll feel peaceful and in control when you plan healthful eating habits and stick to them. That said, moderation fits your personality better than too strict of an approach. You benefit from allowing yourself comfort food every once in a while and letting it be a guilt-free experience. GEMINI: Know who your supportive core people are, and call them when you feel anxious. You are ruled by the communication planet, Mercury. Connecting with someone who cares about you has extra-special healing powers.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ 2 ♣ 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 4 ♣
Opening lead — king of clubs.

Anyone can take tricks with ace and kings; the real challenge lies in taking tricks with lower-ranking cards. Consider this deal where declarer made four spades. West started with the K-Q-A of clubs, South ruffing the third club as East discarded a heart. Declarer drew trumps, lost a heart and made 10 tricks without breathing hard. The outcome seems normal, but in fact better defense would have stopped the contract. Upon viewing the dummy, West can place South with the A-K of spades and ace of diamonds for his opening bid. After the queen of clubs holds at trick two, West should conclude that the only chance for the defense lies in scoring a trump trick that does not exist naturally.

West should therefore lead a low club instead of the ace at trick three to force East to ruff dummy's jack. As it happens, East is able to ruff with the eight, after which South must go down one, whatever he does. His best play is to overruff with the king, hoping the remaining trumps are divided 2-2, but when West turns up with the J-10-x, the contract is down one.

Note that West does not lead the K-A and a low club, since East might make the mistake of ruffing the third club low, thinking South has the queen. Instead, West leads the K-Q of clubs, announcing that he has the ace, and then continues with a low club to emphasize the need for East to ruff with his highest trump.

Tomorrow: Planning the play.
