Heavy rains leave Knott-area rig in middle of temporary pond

BY LYNDEL MOODY
 Staff Writer

Apparently the old saying is true: oil and water — or in this case, an oil rig and water — don't mix. A storm front that produced severe flooding in parts of the Permian Basin last week also left an oil rig located in north Howard County mostly submerged, according to one long-time Knott community resident. "It's going to be months and months before they can get to that rig," said Robert Rivera. Rivera discovered the waterlogged rig last week

Cruz, Huckabee courting evangelical vote

By BILL BARROW
 Associated Press

MILNER, Ga. — Republican presidential candidates Ted Cruz and Mike Huckabee went head-to-head for evangelical votes this weekend, telling a megachurch congregation in Georgia that God favors the United States but warning that the nation is on a perilous spiritual path because of actions like the Supreme Court decision legalizing same-sex marriage in all 50 states. Huckabee, who enjoyed evangelical support on his way to winning eight states in his 2008 White House bid, called the ruling "radical" and "illegal." "I want to serve notice that the Supreme Court is just the supreme of the court system that is one of the three equal branches of government," Huckabee told hundreds of members of Rock Springs Church in a rural area outside metro Atlanta. "It is not the supreme branch, and it most certainly is not the supreme being." Cruz, the Texas senator, said a five-justice majority "ignored the text of the Constitution" and said the cascade of judicial and public support for same-sex marriage threatens religious liberty in America. He said he hopes the ruling "serves as a spark, to start a fire that becomes a raging inferno as the body of Christ stands up to defend the values that have built America." Their appearance on Sunday at the megachurch about 50 miles south of downtown Atlanta is part of the early, concerted scramble for the conservative evangelicals who remain an important bloc of the GOP presidential electorate. Christian conservatives have long held considerable influence in Iowa, which hosts the first caucus of the primary season, and in South Carolina, home of the South's first primary a few weeks later. Now, Georgia and several other Southern states get more frequent visits from presidential hopefuls ahead of the planned "SEC primary," named for the Southeastern Conference of college athletics. The March 1, 2016, vote falls after the traditional first four states and ahead of the usual "Super Tuesday" states. Huckabee, whose 2008 wins included Iowa and Georgia, See CRUZ, Page 3

News in brief

Greece enters uncharted territory after decisive 'no' vote in key bailout referendum

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece lurched into uncharted territory and an uncertain future in Europe's common currency Sunday after voters overwhelmingly rejected demands by international creditors for more austerity measures in exchange for a bailout of its bankrupt economy.

Results showed 61 percent voted "no," compared with 38 percent for "yes," with 97 percent of the vote counted. The referendum — Greece's first in more than four decades — came amid severe restrictions on financial transactions in the country, imposed last week to stem a bank run that accelerated after the vote was called.

Thousands of jubilant government supporters celebrated in Syntagma Square in front of Parliament, waving Greek flags and chanting "No, no, no!"

Early trading on Asian markets indicated investors were alarmed, as stock indexes fell.

It was a decisive victory for Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras, who had gambled the future of his 5-month-old coalition government — and his country — in an all-or-nothing game of brinkmanship with Greece's creditors from other European countries that use the euro currency, the International Monetary Fund and the European Central Bank.

Pope Francis on home turf calls for protection of the 'small and simple,' poor and planet

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Latin America's first pope returned to Spanish-speaking South America for the first time Sunday, stressing the need to protect the poor and the environment from exploitation and to foster dialogue among all sectors of society.

Children in traditional dress greeted Francis at Mariscal Sucre airport outside Ecuador's capital, the wind blowing off his skullcap and whipping his white cassock as he descended from the plane following a 13-hour flight from Rome. He greeted and kissed several indigenous youths waiting for him on the side of the red carpet.

In a speech in front of President Rafael Correa, Francis signaled some of the key themes for the visit, which will also take him to Bolivia and Paraguay: the need to care for society's most marginal, guarantee socially responsible economic development and defend the Earth against profit-at-all-cost development that he says harms the poor the most.

"From the peak of Chimborazo to the Pacific coast, from the Amazon rainforest to the Galapagos Islands, may you never lose the ability to thank God for what he has done and is doing for you," he said from the tarmac. "May you never lose the ability to protect what is small and simple, to care for your children and your elderly who are the memory of your people, to have confidence in the young and to be constantly struck by the nobility of your people and the singular beauty of your country."

It's a message that is particularly relevant for Ecuador, a Pacific nation of 15 million people that is home to one of the world's most species-diverse ecosystems and the Galapagos Islands, which inspired Charles Darwin's theory of evolution. While oil has brought Ecuador unparalleled revenues in recent years, the accompanying deforestation and pollution have stained its vast swaths of Amazonian rain forests where many indigenous peoples live.

To rename or not? After shooting, institutions reconsider honors for figures tied to slavery

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The massacre at a predominantly black South Carolina church has institutions from Alaska to Connecticut evaluating whether they should continue enshrining the names of historical figures linked to slavery and the Confederacy.

The June 17 slaying of nine black worshippers led to calls to curb displays of the Confederate flag after photos emerged showing the suspect posing with one and burning the U.S. flag. But it also has added urgency to discussions on whether it is time along County Road 9, about two miles from Highway 846, nearly submerged in a lake that — until the storm came through Tuesday — didn't exist.

Rivera said the stranded rig was just one of casualties caused when the storm dumped an unofficial rainfall count of more than 4 inches Tuesday in the Knott Community.

"There is a horse barn that completely disappeared," he said.

In Midland/Odessa, the storm left many homes and businesses with damage caused by high winds and flood when almost two inches of rain fell in the area in a span of three hours. Some neighborhoods were without power for the night.

As a resident in the Knott Community since 1976, Rivera said he has seen rainfall like that which occurred Tuesday, but it had been "many, many years."

"We are thankful for the water that we get, however, that is too much water at one time," he said.

According to the website water data for Texas, Lake JB Thomas, one of three reservoirs that serve Howard County, did see a small uptick of moisture, rising to 76.7 percent full from 75.7 percent a week ago. The lake has seen quite a reversal since this time last year when the lake was only 1.3 percent full.

has called the Southern-dominated primary date "manna from heaven." But Cruz and others — Rick Santorum, Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal, retired neurosurgeon Ben Carson — are making hard runs for the same bloc of support.

The Sunday event was a belated Independence Day observance that also featured The Charlie Daniels Band and Jep Robertson, one of the members of the cable television "Duck Dynasty" family. For Cruz and Huckabee, it might as well have been a county fair in Iowa, with an added opportunity to speak openly and passionately in their preferred evangelical tones.

Cruz told the story of an Iowa couple he said were driven out of the wedding chapel business after denying their services to two men who wanted to get married. The case, Cruz said, "is emblematic of the persecution that religious liberty and believers across this country." He continued: "I will always, always, always stand and defend the religious liberty of every American."

Huckabee said the Independence Day observances were an opportunity to reject "the revisionists" who say of the American founders: "They really were not believers." The ordained Baptist minister argued: "There is simply no other explanation ... God had to bless America or we would not exist. The question is will God continue to bless America without our repentance."

Rev. Benny Tate, pastor of the 6,000-member Rock Springs congregation, joked about the attention. "Our zip code is E-I-E-I-O," he said, "and we've got two presidential candidates. How about that?" But the minister is also a serious player in Republican politics, with many Georgia politicians, and now national ones, courting his public approval, if not his explicit endorsement.

Tate told the assembly that Huckabee, as Arkansas governor, signed "a ban on partial-birth abortion," referring to the termination of late-term pregnancies. He hailed Cruz for "standing against the Democratic Party ... and even against the Republican Party."

Despite the emphasis on faith, Huckabee's loudest applause came when he lauded his "fair tax" proposal that he said "would allow us to, once and for all, abolish the IRS." Cruz, meanwhile, drew some of his most enthusiastic reactions when he declared, "I'm convinced 2016 will be a referendum on repealing Obamacare," President Barack Obama's signature health care law.

A few minutes earlier, the assembly passed offering plates for the church's clinics, which Tate said provide "free health care" to residents in dozens of surrounding counties.

to do away with names given to schools, colleges and streets that have come to be seen in a new light in places far outside the South.

A petition is calling for Yale University in Connecticut to change the name of its residential Calhoun College, which honors 1804 alumnus John C. Calhoun, a prominent advocate of the slave plantation system who became a vice president and U.S. senator from South Carolina. The petition says the name, in place since the 1930s, represents "an indifference to centuries of pain and suffering among the black population."

Yale spokeswoman Karen Peart said the university welcomes the discussion. "The tragedy in Charleston, on top of countless preceding tragedies in our country's history, has elevated public opinion and discourse on difficult subjects that have too long been avoided," she said.

Markets register dismay, as investors fear fallout from Greek 'no' vote on creditors' demands

TOKYO (AP) — Asian markets fell Monday as investors reacted to Greece's sound rejection of terms set by its international creditors, deepening uncertainties over its status as a member of the 19-nation eurozone.

The initial reaction to the outcome of the referendum in Greece on Sunday was negative but not panicked; Greece's debt woes have long overshadowed the markets.

Japan's Nikkei 225 stock index dropped 1.5 percent shortly after the market opened Monday, but was trading down 1.4 percent at 20,263.27 by mid-morning. South Korea's Kospi fell 1.0 percent to 2,082.69.

With 97 percent of the votes counted, results showed 61 percent of Greek voters opted to reject the demand for further austerity measures in exchange for further bailout funding, while 38 percent said "yes."

Economists said the markets were not expecting such a decisive "no" vote and that could send stocks downward on Monday.

'Captain America' leads U.S. to Cup title

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — For a brief time Sunday night, Carli Lloyd's Wikipedia page listed her position as "President of the United States."

More like Captain America.

Lloyd scored three goals to lead the United States to a 5-2 victory over Japan for the team's record third World Cup title — and first since 1999.

Lloyd's hat trick came in the match's first 16 minutes. When it was over, the captain of the U.S. team collapsed to her knees and pumped her fists.

"I'm so proud and so zapped at the same time. It's a surreal moment," the 32-year-old midfielder said. "It's been amazing. We just wrote history and brought this World Cup trophy home."

Even the actual President chimed in with congratulations.

"What a win for Team USA! Great game @CarliLloyd! Your country is so proud of all of you. Come visit the White House with the World Cup soon," President Barack Obama posted to Twitter.

While winning the last three Olympic gold medals, the U.S. had struggled in the World Cup since taking the title at the inaugural tournament in 1991, and then again at the Rose Bowl eight years later.

Christie Rampone, the only holdover from the 1999 team, lifted the trophy with Abby Wambach, the 35-year-old former FIFA Player of the Year who has said this will be her last World Cup. Wambach was among the most vocal opponents of FIFA's decision to play the tournament on artificial turf.

With FIFA President Sepp Blatter staying away from Canada during a U.S. criminal investigation of soccer corruption, the trophy was presented by FIFA Senior Vice President Issa Hayatou of Cameroon, the head of African soccer's governing body.

Hope Solo won her second straight Golden Glove as top goalkeeper of the tournament. She played despite critics who urged the U.S. Soccer Federation to drop her after she initially faced two misdemeanor counts of domestic violence from a June 2014 altercation at her half-sister's house, charges that were dismissed earlier this year.

Solo, who hasn't spoken to the media for most of the tournament, proclaimed simply: "We did it! Awesome!"

She was later quoted by FIFA.com as saying: "It feels so good. It was incredible. This is surely the peak of my career."

The title, which adds a coveted third star to the American uniform, also vindicated the USSF for its decision in April 2014 to fire coach Tom Sermanni, who had replaced

Pia Sundhage the previous year, and replace him with Ellis, the British-born American who had been an assistant on the coaching staff.

Ellis' tactics and lineups were criticized early in the World Cup tournament when the U.S. offense sputtered at times. She shifted Lloyd to an attacking midfielder in the semifinal against top-ranked Germany and again in the final, and put 22-year-old Morgan Brian, the youngest player on her roster, in a defensive midfield role.

"When you go through a tournament of seven games, there are peaks and valleys," Ellis said. "Players get hot, and you ride the players that are hot."

4 Royals elected All-Star starters

NEW YORK (AP) — The All-Star Game will have a Kansas City flavor, just not as much as it appeared last month.

And the hometown Reds can celebrate a starter, too, despite Cincinnati's sorry season.

Houston second baseman Jose Altuve passed Kansas City's Omar Infante in the voting, leaving four Royals as starters for the All-Star Game.

Cincinnati's Todd Frazier leapfrogged St. Louis third baseman Matt Carpenter and will be in the NL starting lineup for the July 14 game at Great American Ball Park, according to final results announced Sunday.

AL champion Kansas City will be represented in the starting lineup by outfielders Lorenzo Cain and Alex Gordon, catcher Salvador Perez and shortstop Alcides Escobar. Four players tied the AL record for fan-elected starters, achieved nine times previously.

Kansas City had not had any starters since outfielder Jermaine Dye in 2000.

Eight Royals were on track to start in vote totals announced June 15, but first baseman Eric Hosmer, third baseman Mike Moustakas and designated hitter Kendrys Morales also were overtaken.

"We're going to have a blast," said Royals manager Ned Yost, manager of the AL team. "The All-Star Game is an experience you never forget, and to do it with so many of our teammates there is really special."

Junior wins crash-marred Coke Zero 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A horrific last-lap accident that left drivers fearing for Austin Dillon's safety muted Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s victory in the rain-delayed race at Daytona International Speedway.

Earnhardt crossed the finish line at 2:41 am Monday morning filled with dread after Dillon's car sailed upside down into the fence then shot back onto the track. The car was on its roof and mangled when it was hit hard by Brad Keselowski.

The car tore down a section of fencing, debris scattered into the grandstands, and crew members from several teams raced to check on Dillon.

A stunned Earnhardt seemed speechless as he crossed the finish line.

"Oh My God. That looked awful," Earnhardt yelled into his radio. He followed with a string of expletives as he tried to comprehend the frightening accident.

Crew chief Greg Ives immediately radioed his team to not pull Dillon from the car.

"Whoever is in that window, if he's OK, do not touch him. Tell him to stay in there," Ives said.

Earnhardt continued to inquire about Dillon, who earned his first career win at Daytona in Friday night's Xfinity Series race and has been close with the Earnhardt family his entire life. The late Dale Earnhardt won 34 races at Daytona and Dillon was present for many of them as he grew up watching The Intimidator drive for his grandfather, Richard Childress.

Earnhardt was killed in a 2001 crash on the final lap of the Daytona 500.

Earnhardt Jr. said after the race he had no idea who was in the car — it was torn nearly in half, its engine ripped from under the hood — but admitted to being genuinely scared after the wreck.

"You are just on the verge of tears," Earnhardt said. "I saw everything in the mirror pretty clearly ... I just was very scared for whoever that car was. I didn't care about anything except figuring out who was OK."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Opposition of the Sun and Pluto

HOLIDAY MATHIS
Some believe it's possible to meditate into spiritual evolution, though often it's when a person is not even focused on spiritual development when evolution is the most profound. If enlightenment is about losing the ego, nothing destroys the ego quite like sacrificing oneself to duty. This message was brought to you by the sun/Pluto opposition.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You can't change the people around you, but you can change the people you're around. It's super easy today. All you have to do is walk away and say "hi" to a new group.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Ah, you love when you turn out to be right about something! You manage to keep all that validation-joy to yourself to avoid coming off as smug. (You're really smart, you know.)

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Before you can operate effectively in a group you have to learn the rules. Don't be timid. Ask questions. Jump in and try your hand. If you do it right, good. If you do it wrong, you'll fast-track your learning.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There are possessions you bought long ago, don't use, and are still paying for in some way. Don't let the fact that you are still paying stop you from lightening your load. Take the lesson, not the burden.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your day will be filled with different levels of curiosity from mild to intense and everywhere in between. One level is not better than the other. All curiosity about the world anchors you to it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There are so many possibilities that you don't know what to do next. Focus on eliminating a few options. Cross off every option that feels wrong, off-putting, boring, tedious, redundant or useless.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It's true you have a tendency to vacillate a while before you make a choice. Once you decide on a course of action, start immediately. There will be momentum in your first instincts. Beginner's luck will favor you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Success isn't about obtaining the fastest, biggest and brightest. It's about getting the tools and people that will help you reach your goal. Don't look for the best; look for the one that fits you the best.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll serve, you'll entertain, you'll comfort. You can't help but wonder when your turn will come -- not today, so don't hold your breath. Still, the evening brings you some fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It's your willingness to be vulnerable that makes you irresistible. Your cosmic bonus gift: You gravitate toward those who make you feel like letting down your guard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Trust your heart. As you give your love without an ounce of reservation, you build and mend the bridges between people.

It's how you're able to launch or revive a relationship.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). The change you resist most is the absolute best change to make. Family will support you if you think it's worth it to ask for help. The downside is, you won't be able to say that you did it all by yourself.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (JULY 6). The sun invigorates your sense of purpose illuminating a perfect goal. As driven as you feel, you'll pursue with social grace. Your humor is your best tool of persuasion. You'll make the people around you feel good about themselves and in turn you'll be showered with love, attention and everything you need to land your goal. Taurus and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 12, 28, 15 and 7.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I'm a Cancer who used to date a lot and I have had many significant relationships. Then suddenly it all dried up. I'm not that old -- 48. Why am I still alone? Is this just my destiny? And if it is, is there anything else I'm supposed to be doing with my life besides trying, unsuccessfully, to date?"

There's much to love about your single life. You don't have to consider anyone else as you create your own schedule just as you like it. Cancer's domestic skill is unequaled, and it's nice not to have your home environment cluttered up by someone else's needs. You can follow your whims and enjoy the control you have over your own destiny. And speaking of your destiny, it's time for you to reclaim it instead of worrying about whether or not you're going to meet someone. If you want another relationship, decide consciously that you're willing to give up some of your order and freedom for that messy thing called love. Then affirm in your mind that you are already a part of a harmonious couple, and go about the business of making more room in your life for a relationship.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: "Be kind whenever possible," says the 14th dalai lama of Tibet. Then he adds, "It is always possible." His Holiness was born when the sun and Pluto were in nurturing Cancer and Mercury was in quick-thinking, eloquent Gemini. This year progresses the Dalai Lama's mission to foster inter-religious harmony, and preserve Tibet's peaceful, nonviolent Buddhist culture.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: My father has always been especially unkind to my sister, "Portia." She always has had behavioral problems, not to mention she is a bit paranoid and has a ferocious temper. Portia also drinks too much and continues to contact her abusive ex-boyfriend.

My older sister and I try to show Portia lots of love, but Dad usually deals with her problems with anger, insults and general vitriol. Though he has occasionally shown her support over the years, he usually singles her out as the "problem" child. There have been times when he has screamed and even intervened physically when my sisters have fought, always pinning the blame on Portia.

Recently, Dad's anger has grown and he reacts testily to every comment or question Portia makes. He even reacts poorly to my mother, and is now talking about moving in with his sister in another state until his depression and anxiety subside.

Dad's behavior seems really disturbing to me and borders on abuse. Yet my mother submits over and over to his anger. What should we do? -- Afraid of Escalation

Dear Afraid: There's not much you can do for your mother, who doesn't see this as a serious problem. She is accustomed to Dad's moods and prefers to avoid confrontation. Would your father see a doctor about his depression and anxiety instead of waiting for them to "subside" on their own? Portia's issues may be genetically linked to her father's, and she also is likely to benefit from both medical intervention and therapy.

If your father wishes to move in with his sister for a while, then that will provide an opportunity for everyone to calm down. Dad obviously recognizes that he has a problem and that a little distance can help. Perhaps his sister will convince him to talk to his doctor.

Dear Annie: I'm responding to "Feeling Unloved," the divorced dad whose teenaged kids don't seem to want to spend time with him: First and foremost, if your kids are angry or resentful, encourage them to talk about it and simply listen without being defensive or blaming the other parent. It hurts, and it's hard to hear, but it's what they need. They are kids navigating a difficult situation they feel powerless to change.

Second, remember that they are teenagers. Most teenagers can be a bit self-centered and focused on friends rather than family.

Finally, don't expect them to call you. Invite them places, even if it's out for pizza. And if they decline, then ask them when would be a good time. And don't give up. It will get better. -- G.

Dear G.: Thank you for your sage advice. Navigating parenthood with teenagers is already complicated, and divorce adds to the difficulty. If the parents were living together, they could see the situation more clearly, but separated, they aren't certain what's going on. They sometimes blame the child or the other parent for a change in the relationship, but often it is simply growing pains. Teenagers require a revised playbook.

The bidding:
South West North East
1♣ Pass 1♦ 3♥
4♠ Pass (!) Pass Pass
Opening lead — three of hearts.

It is impossible to fathom some of the strange things that happen in world championship play. Perhaps it is unfair to single out some of the dreadful bids and plays made under the pressure of competing at the highest levels of the game, when on most occasions the participants rarely make a mistake.

But a reporter's job is to report, so if at times we relate what is bad rather than what is beautiful, it is not because we like to be critical, but because it seems right to point out that even players of the highest caliber err occasionally.

Take this case where lightning struck twice in the same deal. The hand occurred in the 1975 world championship match between the United States and Italy. The Italian South's one-club bid at the first table was artificial and indicated at least 16 points. North's one-diamond response showed a relatively weak hand. East's three-heart bid was preemptive, and South's four-spade bid meant just what it said.

Why West failed to bid five hearts is difficult to explain. West led a heart, and South made four spades, scoring 420 points.

At the second table, with a U.S. pair now holding the North-South cards, the bidding went:

|--------------|-------------|--------------|-------------|
| South | West | North | East |
| 1♣ | Dble | Pass | 2♠ |
| 3♠ (!) | Pass | Pass | 4♥ |
| Pass (!) | Pass | Pass | Pass |

Why South bid only three spades and then, amazingly, passed four hearts is also difficult to explain. Whatever the reason, he paid a heavy penalty for it. The Italian East finished with an overtrick at four hearts (450 points) after South led the ace and another spade. So Italy made a game with the North-South cards at one table and a game with the East-West cards at the other to gain 870 points on the deal.

Tomorrow: Malficance in office.
