

Train, truck collide

Staff Writer

An 18-wheeler and train collided Thursday afternoon in Howard County.

The incident occurred near FM 818 and the south service road of Interstate 20.

Howard County Sheriff Stan Parker told local radio station KBYG that two people received non-life threatening injuries as a result of the accident.

No more information was available by press-time and a call to a Union Pacific spokesperson by the Herald was not return this morning.

Two people were injured when an 18-wheeler and train collided at the rail crossing on FM 818 west of Big Spring Thursday afternoon.

Farmer's market opens Saturday

Elbow Creek Farmer's Market is back for the summer.

The market will be open this Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. until noon at Elbow Creek Hay and Feed Store with vendors selling a variety of fresh vegetables, fruit, eggs, frozen and canned jellies and grass fed beef, according to market organizer Nancy Raney, co-owner of Elbow Creek Hay and to purchase fresh food where they know the produce is grown," Raney said. "Most of the crowd seems very excited to have a market like this in the county."

The market official- Raney ly opened last Saturday to a large crowd, Raney said, with around 10 vendors selling out of items on the first day. sold out," Raney said. "We plan to continue the market on Saturdays during the summer growing season."

Raney began the market last year after a number of her customers expressed interest in finding locally grown, organic produce. To meet the demands, Raney started an online market – elbowcreek.locallygrown.net – but many of her customers also wanted a more traditional Farm-

Ex-president Bush cracks neck in fall

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Maine — The fractured neck bone suffered by former President George H.W. Bush when he fell at his summer home will be allowed to heal on its own, a recovery that could take three to four months, officials said. Bush, at 91 the oldest living former president, did not suffer any neurological impairment when he took a spill at his home in Kennebunkport on Wednesday. He remained hospitalized in fair condition on Thursday. Bush spokesman Jim McGrath said the 41st president never lost consciousness and was being fitted with a brace to immobilize his neck. He fractured his C2 vertebra, the second one below the skull, but it didn't impinge on his spine and didn't lead to any neurological deficits, McGrath said. Bush is being treated at Maine Medical Center, the state's largest medical facility, where a children's hospital is named for his wife. His family declined to say how he fell. Dr. William D'Angelo, a neurosurgeon who is treating Bush, said the former president was lucky the fracture wasn't more serious. "He's in great spirits," D'Angelo said outside the hospital. "He's with family. As his wife said, it takes a lot more than this to knock his spirits down. He was shot down over the Pacific in World War II. She said this is a small bump in the road." A hospital spokesman said it was premature to speculate about when Bush will be released, but McGrath suggested it won't be a lengthy stay. D'Angelo said the injury is common among seniors who fall and can be painful. He said a patient in his 90s would generally take three or four months to heal. "It's a significant injury, but right now the president is in excellent shape, and we anticipate he'll make a full recovery," the doctor said. He said Bush was "doing great" and "he's up and talking and out of bed."

he invasion that wasn't reetings, and welcome to Day 3 of the military occupation of Howard County. Our new overlords have asked me to tell you they love West Texas and hope they don't have to stay here too long, but you never know how long it will take to quell those pesky civilian uprisings.

They also asked me to pass along their sincere apologies for that unfortunate incident with the tank in the Whataburger parking lot yesterday. They assure me the owners of the crushed cars will be compensated and the tank crew will receive a severe talking-to.

In other developments ... OK, I better stop now before I begin believing this stuff.

Today is Day 3 of Jade Helm 15, a training exercise conducted by U.S. Special Operations Command, and in what should be a surprise to absolutely nobody, there have been no roundups of civilians, no door-to-door confiscation of weapons and no tanks patrolling Gregg Street.

Notice I wrote "should be no surprise." Unfortunately, in true Texas fashion, some of our citizens have reacted to news of this training exercise like we're were being invaded — by our own troops.

Most of you know the reasons behind the hysteria, but allow me to rehash the highlights.

Shortly after the exercise was announced, some folks got ahold of a map of the training exercise. For training purposes, parts of Texas and other states were labeled "hostile territory." This in itself is fairly innocuous marking a training exercise map for soldiers accomplishes the same purpose as laying down stripes on a football field: It gives everybody a general sense of where they need to go.

Unfortunately, some people took the map way too seriously and decided Texas was about to be invaded. Conservative groups and some shock-talk radio types sounded the alarm and, before you knew it, what was an innocent training exercise became the eve of Armageddon.

Texas Gov. Greg Abbott fanned the flames even more when he announced in April that he had requested the Texas State Guard to "monitor" Jade Helm. It wasn't that he mistrusted our troops, he said, but President Obama's policies had sowed so much mistrust that Abbott had no other recourse than to take this action.

This "he did it first" defense which didn't work too well for me when I was in grade school may have scored Abbott some points with arch-conservatives, but did nothing to dampen the hysteria.

Anyway, that's why some people are so up in arms, both figuratively and literally, about Jade Helm 15. I've received several calls in the past weeks from some of these people. One assured me that all I had to do was sound the alarm and bunch of Wisconsin farmers (with guns, of course) would be down here in a jiffy to defend us against our military oppressors.

Another wondered how we would get the "real" news out if the military tried to censor our operations. I briefly considered asking him how he knew they weren't doing it as we spoke, but instead told him of my firm belief that wasn't going to happen.

"But what if it does?" he asked. We could have gone around and around like this for hours, but I had other things to do, so I thanked him for his concern and promised him the Herald would do its darnedest to get the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth out about Jade Helm 15.

So, here it is: Everybody needs to calm down. There is no military invasion. The streets are quiet. Troops may be in this area, but they're certainly not patrolling the byways of Big Spring or knocking down people's doors to confiscate their guns.

How do I know this? I'm glad you asked:

• People in this area love the military. We go out of our way to express our appreciation to the military. Therefore, it makes no logical sense for the military to invade us. As a matter of course armies tend not to invade friend ly countries.

• I love Howard County, but this area holds no strategic value which would justify being invaded. What would the soldiers want from us? Moss Lake? If the military were to invade Texas, there would be plenty of places more ripe for the taking, like Fort Hood, which has plenty of tanks and cannons and stuff like that the soldiers would love to get their hands on. Howard County? Not so much.

 The invasion advocates' evidence is kind of thin. All they have is one, measly training map. If Texas was going to be invaded, do you honestly think some more evidence wouldn't have surfaced by now? Do you believe that kind of secret could remain a secret?

• There's no way the country as a whole would stand for this. Granted, a lot of folks in New York and California and other states probably view us as a bunch of reactionary yahoos, but they'd probably balk at the idea of a military takeover. They'd rightly reason that if the military would invade us, there'd be no reason they wouldn't invade other states as well.

I could go on and on, but I really need to wrap this up — my military guards want to go to lunch and, as you know, there's few things more dangerous than a group of hungry armed people. Relax, I was just kidding.

As far as you know.

DAILY PRAYER

May we remain diligent about reading Your word, Lord, for our life.

No longer is it local lords providing military support to a king in return for grants of land. Nowadays, the vassals show their loyalty in the form of large campaign checks. In return, they are promised various economic privileges, among them protection from taxation.

The ritual in all its pageantry has been on display at the Bush family compound in Kennebunk-

There former President George Herbert Walker Bush, his wife, Barbara, and other members of the Bush dynasty hold court to advance Jeb Bush's quest for the presidency.

The object is to make Jeb the second son of H.W.'s, after George W., to capture the White House.

Picture the Bush clan treating CEOs, sports team owners and other modern-day vassals to lobster rolls and consenting to pose in the courtiers' selfies. Imagine the splendor: the many houses, including a new one for Jeb, perched on the rocks of Walker's Point, the Atlantic crashing at their feet.

Such invites are "the prize for members of the vaunted Bush fund-raising operation," writes political reporter Nicholas Confessore.

They are why Jeb has raised as much money for his campaign

No longer is it local lords providing military support to a king in return for grants of land. Nowadays, the vassals show their loyalty in the form of large campaign checks.

as the other Republican presidential candidates and their super PACs combined.

Spending so much time in this closed society may also help explain Jeb's politically awkward remark that Americans "need to work longer hours."

In olden times, the serfs were regarded as beasts of burden, to be whipped into higher productivity.

Conditions are much-improved, but one can assume the conversations at the Bush compound do not linger long on the common folk's economic interests.

A big reason Donald Trump is matching or passing Jeb in the polls is that he is talking to the serfs.

He may be saying stupid things, but at least he recognizes their existence.

Bush complained that his views are being taken out of context and elaborated.

He really said that sustained growth requires that "people work 40 hours rather than 30 hours."

That way, they have more money and can "decide how they want to spend it rather than getting in line and being dependent on government."

Another way of stimulating growth would be to have Ameri-ey in their pockets, prompting more spending and saving. This solution might require employers to share more of the profits with their laborers as they used to do.

Such scenarios don't cross the royal mindset, the key to growth always being to crank up the serfs' stress level.

The reality is that lots of Americans would love a 40-hour job but are instead stuck working two 30-hour jobs, neither offering such luxuries as health coverage and vacation time. That's the sad reality of today's job market and one reason the Affordable Care Act was so necessary.

It subsidizes health coverage for workers who can't get it through their employment.

But economic security in some eyes is dependency in others'. One conservative argument goes that repealing Obamacare would force workers into the 40-hour jobs they're alleged to be turning up their noses at.

It's the lash, always the lash.

Over at Walker's Point, donors are meeting a new set of Bushes, known as "P's crowd."

That would be George P. Bush, a son of Jeb's apparently looking to claim the family political inheritance. Some of P's followers have parents who back P's parent.

Methinks the show goes on.

Did You Ever Wonder? Jacob dies in Egypt

acob was already an old man, and after 17 good years in Egypt, he was about to die. He lived to be 147 years old. He exacted a promise from Joseph to take his body back to be buried in the cave of Machpelah, near Hebron.

Knowing that his death was near, Jacob wanted to bless each of his sons. First he asked that Joseph bring his two sons to Jacob for their blessing. When he began their blessing, Jacob actually adopted them, calling them his own sons. In this way Jacob gave the blessing of the

firstborn to Joseph, for two tribes would come from Joseph. Though Reuben was actually Jacob's firstborn son, Joseph was the firstborn son of Rachel, Jacob's favored wife.

Jacob did another strange thing with Joseph's sons. Blessing them both at the same time, Jacob crossed his hands so that Ephraim, the younger son, received the blessing of the firstborn.

He said to them, "By you shall Israel bless, saying, 'May God make you like Ephraim and like Manasseh." (To this day, every Sabbath Jews lay their hands on the head of their sons and say, "May God make you like Ephraim and like Manasseh." Would that we all would so bless our children.)

Jacob also gave to Joseph the piece of land near Shechem on which Jacob sojourned at the time of the capture of Dinah.

He spoke to each of his sons according to their personality traits and how they had lived their lives. To some he gave a prophesy of blessing, and to some he gave a reprimand and a lesson. We will cover them in depth later, for there is much to be gleaned from these blessings.

After blessing his sons, Jacob admonished all of his sons again to bury him in the Cave of Machpelah. Then Jacob laid down his head and died. Leaving this life caused him no sorrow; he eagerly embraced his afterlife.

Machpelah was the burial place of the Patriarchs. Abraham and Sarah were buried there; Isaac and Rebecca were also buried there. Some people speculate that Adam and Eve were buried there, and that is the reason Abraham was drawn to buy that piece of land for a burial cave. It was now Jacob's duty to be buried beside Leah, his first wife, in the Cave of Machpelah.

Because of Joseph's position in Egypt and because of Pharaoh's personal friendship with Jacob a great multitude went from Egypt to Machpelah to mourn and to bury Jacob.

Some interesting things to note about Jacob's life: Jacob had buried Rachel, his favored wife, in a lonely grave beside the road near Bethlehem. Leah, however, he honored with burial in the burial cave at Machpelah.

While Jacob was in Paddan-haran he had married sisters. God said this causes jealousy and strife between the sisters, and He forbade marrying sisters in the land of Israel. Soon after Jacob returned to the Promised Land, Rachel died in childbirth. So within the Promised Land, Jacob had one wife, Leah. Although his other two wives, Bilhah and Zilpah, were married to Jacob, they were actually considered concubines.

Blessed Hands Deaf Church

It's 'Friendly Friday at Froyo's," hosted by Pastor Jim Walterhouse, wife Debbie, and the people of Blessed Hands Deaf, 1506 E FM 700. The church will treat each deaf visitor and their family to a medium frozen yogurt during this event. There is no obligation; we just want to bless, serve, and get to know our deaf friends in the community.

Come worship with us Sunday at 2 p.m. as we gather to praise and thank God for the indescribable gift of Jesus Christ. Pastor Jim Walterhouse will continue the summer message series on "Ecclesiastes." The exploration of this book of God's Word reminds us that no matter what we are experiencing as we journey through this life, God remains ever-present, and always faithful. Sunday worship ser vices are held inside First Baptist Church at 705 W FM 700. During the summer months, we will not meet on Wednesday evenings. For more information about BHDC, contact Pastor Jim at: jwalterhouse@ gmail.com.

vehemently despised school, there were probably a few things that you enjoyed learning.

Now think about whose "fault" it was whether you learned or not. Pick a class that you feel you did not learn much from. How many other kids were in your class at the time: 15, 20, maybe 25?

I realize you cannot know for sure, but how many of those kids did not learn much from that class? I imagine that there were some of the other kids who learned quite a bit from that same class.

So what was the difference? Was it the teacher's fault? Or, could it have had something to do with the attitude of the listener and learner?

Jesus was a great teacher and many learned a lot from Him, but some did not. Whose fault was that?

Jesus was asked in Matthew 13:10, Why do you speak to them in parables? He explains that the real distinction is not with Him or His teaching rather with the ones who hear.

The primary consideration is the heart (mind) and attitude of the listener. For learning to take place, there also must be an investment made on the part of the student. So from the days of Isaiah the prophet, from whom Jesus quotes in this passage, to the people listening to Jesus

Reflections: A lesson on the way of the ant e have ants. We have kept them at bay inside the house, but outside, that is a different matter. A single dropped crumb on the patio and the next morning a stream of ants appear, hundreds of them in a neatly organized operation to dismantle the discarded food and store it in bits and bites for later use. How do they do this?

Do the wandering scout-ants have cell phones? When they make a discovery do they place a call back to home base and say, "Send the troops. We have food!" Who organizes the operation?

Who tells these worker ants to answer the call, and who plots the shortest and least obstructed route to the treasure?

If they were humans, the searchers who discovered the food supply would immediately stake a claim, lav title to it and horde it so that they could be wealthier than all the other ants.

They would let the weaker ants in the colony starve. And, they would probably spend most of their time in "ant court" defending the right to their possessions. "Ant lawyers" would probably claim the greatest portion of the wealth.

Why can't we learn from these little creatures?

Every year a billion people on the earth die of starvation. Every day 25,000 children, world wide, whose stomachs are bloated and empty, draw their last breath. They die in remote villages far from public view. More than half the world's population, three billion people, live on less than $2.50 per day.

alarms me. I need to be more like the little critters that invade my patio. I need to sound the alarm. send out the signal, marshal others and join them in distributing food and resources to those who need it.

But how do we do this? How do we know that our gifts get to the people and places where they are needed? There is so much graft and corruption in the world that charitable gifts are often routed into the pockets of the greedy.

I guess the best thing is to be alert to opportunities. When a beggar approached me on a parking lot in downtown Dallas, I took him across the street to Subway and bought him a sandwich.

Unfortunately, as I listened to him, his story seemed to unravel and I am not sure it was the best thing to do. But it was something. When one of our church members returned from Kenya and made an appeal for people she knows who are starving, I sent a check.

When I visited Tillie Bergin at Mission Arlington and saw the difference she was making among the poor in the inner city, I sent a gift.

It's not much. But, for me it is a start.

If all of us gave more generously we could make a difference, like the ant.

Proverbs says, "Go to the ant ... consider its ways and be wise! It has no commander, no overseer or ruler, yet it stores its provisions in summer and gathers its food at harvest." (Prov. 6:6-8). John the forerunner, describing true repentance and faith, said, "Anyone who has two shirts should share with the one who has none, and anyone who has food should do the same." (Luke 3:11)

AP WAS THERE: 60 years ago, Disneyland opens in California

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP), - EDITOR'S NOTE: On July 16, 1955, Associated Press reporter Bob Thomas wrote a story about the imminent opening of an elaborate theme park in California that was conceived by none other than Walt Disney. The park opened the next day.

Like the animator and entrepreneur, Disneyland was ambitious and imaginative – a real-life play land for children and adults alike. Thomas, a longtime Hollywood reporter for AP and author of a Walt Disney biography who died in 2014, wrote that Disneyland cost $17 million to build, and that no detail was spared. He also noted that a day trip was doable but "you'd no doubt end up with a headache."

Sixty years later, the AP is making this report and photos available.

Walt Disney's 20-year dream comes true tomorrow when the gates of the $17-million Disneyland opens for the first time.

This is the modern wonderland that a mouse built. Well, Mickey Mouse started it anyway. The cartoon star was the first success in the fabulous career of Walt Disney.

Then came the Three Little Pigs, Donald Duck, Pluto, Snow White, The Seven Dwarfs, Dumbo, Pinocchio and a host of other characters who became famous around the world. Somewhere along the line the cartoon wizard got the notion for an amusement park. Not the usual Coney Island affair, but an imaginative playground that would delight young and old.

Disney made his move a year ago. He succumbed to the lure of television and arranged to tie in the TV show (he hosted) with a Disneyland park. A survey showed that this citadel of sunshine and orange groves, accessible to 10 million population, was the best location.

A year later the brightly painted Disneyland is open for business.

Twenty-two thousand invited guests are expected to pour into the park tomorrow for the opening festivities. They include mayors and officials, education leaders and businessmen from southern California, press from throughout the nation, move stars and their children.

The opening ceremonies will be telecast by ABC from 5:30 to 7 p.m. (CST), with Disney, Art Linkletter, Irene Dunne, Fess Parker, Davy Crockett and others.

Some 2,500 men were laboring to entire park has been planned down to the smallest detail. And Disney is a great stickler for detail. The interior of the railroad station, for example, had to be designed with the ornate woodwork of the 1900 period. The 72 horses on the $102,000 King Arthur's carousel were rebuilt so they would appear to be leaping instead of merely galloping.

The site of the park was a 160-acre orange ranch just off the Santa Ana Freeway. The plan was drawn up with an old-fashioned city park at the hub and the realms of Fantasyland, Frontierland, Adventureland and Tomorrowland fanning out in four directions. The Disney people estimate a patron need travel no more than 1.4 miles to see the whole place.

Disneyland had cost its backer $17 million. What will it cost the doting father who brings his family here?

Well, Pa, you'll have to shell out $1 apiece for you, your wife and any other grownups you bring along. The kids get in for 50 cents.

You probably could have a good time without spending more. There are many arresting sights to see, and many industrial firms have fascinating exhibits for free.

But the chances are the kids will hound you into buying them tickets on the 35 out-of-this-world rides. If you are a glutton and try everything, it could cost you $8.70 for yourself and $5.15 for each tot.

You can take a trip around the whole park on a miniature railway that costs 50 cents for yourself and 25 cents for youngsters. For the same prices you can travel down an American riverway on the paddlewheeler Mark Twain, take an excursion boat through land and be scared by the life-like animals or be rocketed to the moon.

Most of the other attractions run around 35-25 cents for adults and 25-10 cents for children.

How long will the visit take you?

You could probably do it in one day, but you'd no doubt end up with a headache. The Disney people expect patrons will spend an average of four and a half hours in the park. They anticipate 60,000 a day, but will try to hold the total at one time to 46,000.

"If we get over that amount, we'll probably close the gates," said an official. "We don't want to jeopardize the enjoyment of those who have paid to get in."

Steelers sign defensive end Cam Heyward to 6-year contract

Heyward spent the offseason swatting away questions about his future as the final year of his rookie deal with the Pittsburgh Steelers loomed this fall.

No matter how he was asked, the defensive end always gave a variation of the same answer: "I'm good."

And now on the eve of training camp, he's paid.

Heyward agreed to a new six-year contract Thursday worth nearly $60 million that will keep him in Pittsburgh through 2020. The 26-year-old posted a picture of him signing the deal on Twitter with the caption "I love this organization." He later tweeted "never know how much it means 2 stay a Steeler.'

The Steelers are at the end of a youth movement on a PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cam defense that is trying to reinvent itself. Heyward is a key part of the process. He set a career-high in 2014 and tied for the team lead with 7.5 sacks as the Steelers won the AFC North title. Pittsburgh did it, however, in spite of a defense that slipped to 18th in yards allowed and 27th against the pass thanks in part to a pass rush that struggled to generate consistent pressure.

> Changes came quickly in the offseason. Hall of Fame defensive coordinator Dick LeBeau left and was replaced by linebackers coach Keith Butler. Longtime defensive end Brett Keisel, who served as Heyward's mentor, was released while safety Troy Polamalu and cornerback Ike Taylor retired.

really was in doubt. The Steelers exercised their fifthyear option on his rookie deal last spring and nailing him down long-term became a priority once quarterback Ben Roethlisberger agreed to a contract extension in March.

The son of former NFL running back Craig Heyward who played in college at Pittsburgh — grew up with a special affinity for the Steelers. He understands better than most how the team embraces continuity. As the leading edge of the next wave, Heyward has taken secondyear end Stephon Tuitt under his wing in much the same way Keisel, Casey Hampton and Aaron Smith did for him.

"'He definitely is next in Caylor retired.line," Tuitt said during mini-Heyward's future nevercamp in June. "We all look up to him to become better."

And now Tuitt will have plenty of time to do it. Heyward joins a core that includes Roethlisberger, center Maurkice Pouncey and wide receiver Antonio Brown, all of whom are signed through at least the 2017 season as Pittsburgh tries to get back to its status as one of the NFL's elite franchises. Last season's late surge to a playoff berth was a start, but not the finish.

"I think a lot of younger guys took a lot of big steps this year," Heyward said after a wild-card loss to Baltimore in January. "We have to continue to make steps if we want to make the ultimate goal."

That step included making sure Heyward stuck around.

The powerful 6-foot-5, 280pound Heyward steadily improved during each of his first four seasons, becoming one of the few consistent producers on a defense that struggled at times getting to the quarterback. Pittsburgh finished 26th in the league with just 33 sacks, a number Heyward expects to rise in 2015.

"If I can become a doubledigit sack guy or just take up a lot of attention so other guys get pressure, that's fine," he said. "The front seven has to dominate and we all have to be a part of it. We have to be interchangeable."

Maybe, though Thursday's signing makes Heyward an integral part of a group hoping to rediscover its tenacity in 2015 and beyond.

Spieth opens bid with good round, familiar foe in Scotland

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) -Jordan Spieth played like he had a Grand Slam to win. Dustin Johnson played like he had a score to settle.

The two main characters from Chambers Bay brought their games across eight time zones and an ocean Thursday and set the tone at St. Andrews for what could be another riveting battle at the British Open.

Spieth quickly seized on his opportunity for a third straight major with six birdies in his first 11 holes, fought through a chilly wind on the inward nine and closed with a birdie for a 5-under 67 that put him two shots out of the lead.

Johnson, whose three-putt from 12 feet on the final hole cost him a shot at the U.S. Open, looked as daunting as ever. He simply overpowered the Old Course with such force that he hit wedge into 10 of the par 4s and had an eagle putt on another. With a pair of big par saves on the tough closing holes, he played bogey-free for a 65 and for at least a day made good on a warning he made earlier in the week.

Asked about Spieth's chances to sweep the four majors, Johnson said, "Well, I'm playing the next two so we'll have to see."

This was hardly a two-man show.

The six players who were one shot behind at 66 included former British Open champion Paul Lawrie and two-time U.S. Open champion Retief Goosen. Jason Day, coming off his scary bout with vertigo symptoms at the U.S. Open, was back on his feet and back in the hunt. Most impressive from that group were Zach Johnson and Danny Willett, who posted their scores as the temperature dropped and wind stiffened late in the afternoon.

Spieth was joined at 67 by Louis Oosthuizen, the last Open champion at St. Andrews.

"If D.J. keeps driving it the way he is, then I'm going to have to play my best golf to have a chance," Spieth said.

The real test might come from the weather.

Spieth and Johnson got a break by playing in the morning when St. Andrews was ripe for scoring -10 of the top 12 scores came from that side of the draw. That didn't help Tiger Woods, who hit into the Swilcan Burn on the opening hole, made only one birdie and shot 76.

"Guys have been shooting good numbers," said Woods, a two-time Open champion at St. Andrews. "Unfortunately I did not do that." Instead, he was headed for a missed cut for the third time in his last four majors.

The afternoon wave suffered in chill and wind so strong that Phil Mickelson hit driver and 3-wood and didn't reach the 465-yard 13th hole. He said he had to hit 5-iron for his third shot on the par-5 14th. Johnson was pin-high with a 3-wood in the morning. Mickelson made only one bogey on the back nine and shot 70. He called the conditions "fun," though his smile might not last if the morning group doesn't face the same

BIDS GRADED CALICHE BASE

Bid Requirements

Sealed Bids for graded caliche base material will be received by the Glasscock County Judge at the Glasscock County Courthouse, 117 E. Currie Street, Garden City, Texas, until 9:00 a.m., August 10, 2015, at which time the bids will be publicly opened, read aloud and tabulated. These bids will subsequently be considered for award by the Commissioners Court of Glasscock County. The Commissioners Court may, at its discretion, award to more than one bidder.

Each bid should include: 1) the unit price per cubic yard bid for the specified graded base material and 2)the location in Glasscock County of the pit or stockpiled material; and shall be signed by the Bidder. Each bid must be submitted in a sealed envelope addressed to the Glasscock County Judge. The envelope should have the name of the bidder and "August 2015 Graded Base Bid" typed or written on the outside of the envelope. If submitted by mail or delivery service, the sealed envelope containing the bid must be enclosed in another envelope addressed to the Glasscock County Judge, P.O. Box 67, 117 E Currie Street, Garden City, Texas 79739. Any bid received after the time and date specified will not be con-order to meet these requirements.

Before any material is purchased by the County, the successful bidder(s) must submit to the county Judge a report from an acceptable testing laboratory certifying that the material to be purchased meets or exceeds these material specifications.

Questions concerning these specifications or bid procedures should addressed to Don W. Bonifay, Engineer for Glasscock County, at (432) 230-6815 or donbonifay@gmail.com

Measurement and Delivery

The specified material shall be supplied and measured by the cubic yard. Material shall be loaded by the successful Bidder into trucks provided by Glasscock County. Material shall be located at the successful Bidder's location, which must be in Glasscock County. This location shall be stated in the bid document.

There is no minimum or guaranteed quantity of material stated or implied with the award of this bid.

The term of this bid shall be six months from the date of award. At that time, the County will request bids for a subsequent period of time, if the Glasscock County Commissioners Court deems there is a potential need for the specified material.

Payments

Bids submitted shall be a unit price amount (in U.S. Dollars), which shall constitute the total cost for each cubic yard requested and received by Glasscock County.

Payment shall be monthly. Invoices submitted to the Glasscock County Treasurer at least seven days prior to

Dear Annie: My wife and I have been married for 40 years. When we were first dating, my future wife unexpectedly set me aside to explore the possibilities of seeing another man. It was a difficult time for me. The other man was a mutual acquaintance, for whom I didn't much care, which intensified my hurt. Within two months, they stopped seeing one another, and in due time, we started dating again, fell in love and married. Sounds good -and it has been. But I have one mental demon with which I struggle. About three decades ago, when casually chatting about our previous romantic interests, my wife revealed that when seeing the aforementioned man, they had sex. Since being made aware of it, I can't let it go. All of those painful memories were revived by her disclosure.

Annie's Mailbox 💩

My wife has been a wonderful friend, partner and parent and does not deserve my periodic fixation on something that was a tiny moment in time. Why can't I, as she requests, just forget about it? How can I reconcile myself to it and downsize its larger-thanlife status in my consciousness? --Living in the '70s Dear Living: It is not unusual to remember something disturbing and periodically think about it. But if you are doing this more than a few times a year and becoming fixated on it to the point where it is affecting other areas of your life, you might need professional help to put it aside. You've been holding in your resentment, jealousy and fears for 40 years and they are still eating at you. Please talk to a counselor so you can air your feelings to someone other than your wife and get help managing them. Your doctor can refer you.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Had Enough," the 68-year-old woman who was tired of her husband's demand for sex. At about that same age, my wife told me that she really didn't want to have sex. In a loving way, she said that she physically couldn't put up with it anymore. I was hurt at the time and somewhat angry. But when I thought about it. I was also somewhat relieved, because in the few months prior, I felt my heart racing and was exhausted when making love. I obeyed my wife's wishes and we stopped having sex. Then, several months later, I almost suffered a heart attack. I needed extensive heart surgery and it took me months to recover. To this day, I am grateful that my wife was the first to call it off. I might have been dead otherwise. --Ever So Thankful

Dear Thankful: While it is true that exertion can strain the heart, chances are that vour heart troubles would have happened whether or not you gave up sex. And a lot of men would not be willing to accept that solution, regardless of health. But if abstinence works for you and your wife, that's fine with us. You have found a way to make the lack of sex work in your favor. To all of our Muslim readers: Happy Eid.

continues the suit, you win any return by South, cash the A-K of clubs and ruff a club in dummy, draw trumps, then lead a heart to the ten. Even if South wins with the jack, you have the rest of the tricks against any return. If instead North shifts to a heart at trick two, you rise with the ace, draw trumps, play the A-K and ruff a club, then lead the king of diamonds. South wins with the ace, but whatever he returns you are home, losing only two diamonds and a heart. 2. You start by assuming that North has the king of spades, since if South has it you will make the contract via a spade finesse. You also assume that North's seven is his fourth-best heart, which means he might have led from K-Q-8-7-x, K-10-8-7-x or Q-10-8-7-x. (With K-Q-10-7-x, he presumably would have led the king.) The best way of dealing with these three possibilities - which constitute the only real threat to the contract — is to go up with the ace at trick one. This play fails in the first case, but succeeds in the other two even when North has the spade king. The reason for rising with the ace is that it blocks the defenders' hearts if South started with the K-x or Q-x,

1. On the surface, it might seem that it doesn't matter whether you cover the queen of diamonds with the king or not. But to make certain of the contract, you should duck the queen.

Assuming that South has the ace certainly a reasonable supposition the contract is cold if you let North's queen hold the first trick. The trouble with the king play is that South can win with the ace and return a diamond, allowing North to win and shift to a heart. If South then turns up with both the king and jack of hearts, you will eventually lose pars for a 72.

The forecast was for rain early Friday and wind calming as it clears, followed by stronger gusts in the afternoon. Saturday could have gusts approaching 40 mph.

Any duel between Spieth and Johnson is void of animosity. They played in the same group, and during one long wait on the 17th tee, they laughed and chatted as if this were an opening round at a regular PGA Tour event.

"No chat about the U.S. Open at all, as I wouldn't imagine there would be, other than talking about the differences in the course," Spieth said. "But I enjoy playing with Dustin. I've played a lot of golf with him."

And he knows what to expect from golf's most athletic figure. Johnson hit driver on all but three holes, leaving him wedges into the par 4s (except for three longer holes into a hurting wind on the back nine) and a 7-iron that Johnson stuck to 10 feet for eagle on the par-5 fifth hole.

"I'm going to hit driver on every hole if I can," Johnson said.

Spieth already has shown at the Masters and U.S. Open that power isn't everything. And while he laid back on several holes — Johnson's tee shots were on average 36 yards longer - Spieth can score.

He birdied four of the first six holes with putts inside 12 feet and took a share of the lead with a 10-foot putt on the par-3 11th. His lone mistake came in bunkers — a pot bunker in the 13th fairway he had to play out sideways, and the Road Hole bunker on the 17th. He blasted out to 6 feet and missed.

"I've played enough golf with him to where I believe in my skill set, that I can still trump that crazy ability that he has," Spieth said. "I expect when he stands on the tee it's going to up there miles and down the fairway. I also expect that I can birdie each hole when I stand on the tee - it just happens to be a different route.'

Not many can appreciate the route Spieth is taking. Only five other players since 1934 have won the first two majors of the year. Only Ben Hogan has won the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open in the same year. No one has won all four.

The key for Spieth in the first round was to stay close, and that's what he did — not in driving distance, but by score, which ultimately is all that matters.

Popovich to coach NBA's 1st Africa game

NEW YORK (AP) - GreggPopovich will coach Team Africa with captain Luol Deng, while brothers Pau and Marc Gasol will play for Team World in the NBA's first game in Africa.

Popovich, the five-time champion from the San Antonio Spurs, will guide Team Africa in the Aug. 1 game in Johannesburg, the league announced Thursday. He will be assisted on the bench by Atlanta's Mike Budenholzer, the NBA Coach of the Year and his former assistant with the Spurs, and Oklahoma City assistant Monty Williams.

Team World will be coached by Brooklyn's Lionel Hollins, with Boston's Brad Stevens as an assistant. Chris Paul of the Los Angeles Clippers will serve as captain. Team World players are: Pau Gasol (Chicago), Marc Gasol and Jeff Green (Memphis), Bradley Beal (Washington), Kenneth Faried (Denver), Marcus Smart and Evan Turner (Boston) and Nikola Vucevic (Orlando).

Team Africa features players born in Africa or secondgeneration Africans. Their roster is: Captain Deng (Miami), Al-Farouq Aminu (Portland), Nicolas Batum (Charlotte), Giannis Antetokounmpo (Milwaukee), Bismack Biyombo (Toronto), Boris Diaw (San Antonio), Gorgui Dieng (Minnesota), Festus

The Spurs' R.C. Buford is the Team World general manager, while Brooklyn's Billy King and Toronto's Masai Ujiri will hold the position for Team Africa.

Ezeli (Golden State), Serge Ibaka (Oklahoma City) and Luc Mbah а Moute (Sacramento).

More than 35 players from Africa have been on NBA rosters since Hakeem Olajuwon was drafted No. 1 by Houston in 1984.

Diaw, who has a parent from Senegal, said he is thrilled to take part "in what is truly a historic occasion." Ibaka will not play because of injury.

The Spurs' R.C. Buford is the Team World general manager, while Brooklyn's Billy King and Toronto's Masai Ujiri will hold the position for Team Africa.

The game will be held after the NBA's Basketball Without Borders camp and televised live on ESPN. Commissioner Adam Silver, NBA Global Ambassador Dikembe Mutombo of Congo and NBA

Africa Ambassador Olajuwon of Nigeria also will participate in the event, which features clinics and other community service projects. The game will be played in support of Boys & Girls Clubs of South Africa, SOS Children's Villages Association of South Africa and the Nelson Mandela Foundation.

"When I heard about the NBA Africa Game I jumped at the chance to participate," Pau Gasol said. "The continent of Africa has a special meaning for me through my foundation. I look forward to putting on a great show for the fans and taking part in activities in the local community."

News in brief

Little is known about man authorities say fatally shot 4 Marines in Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The man who authorities say killed four Marines in an attack on a military recruiting center and another U.S. military site was a 24-year-old, Kuwait-born engineer who had not been on the radar of federal authorities until the bloodshed.

Beyond that, little is known about Muhammad Youssef Abdulazeez of Hixson, Tenn., or what motivated his rampage. Federal authorities were looking into the possibility it was an act of terrorism, but say there is no evidence yet that anyone else was involved — or that the public is in any danger.

Officials have said they do not know why the shooter targeted the facilities and have not said what weapons he used.

Even the exact spelling of his first name was not clear: Federal authorities and records gave at least four variations. Residents in the neighborhood where Abdulazeez is believed to have lived said they didn't know him or his family well.

Hussnain Javid, a 21-year-old senior at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, said Abdulazeez studied electrical engineering at the same college. They both graduated from Red Bank High School in Chattanooga several years apart. Javid said Abdulazeez was on the high school's wrestling team and was a popular student.

Despite quick conviction, trial of Colorado theater shooter James Holmes is far from over CENTENNIAL, Colo. (AP) — Families of the 12 people James Holmes killed and the scores he injured in a packed movie theater were relieved that jurors only needed 12 hours to reject the idea that he was legally insane when he opened fire.

Now the trial enters a new phase as the jury decides whether Holmes should die for his crimes.

Starting next week, jurors will hear testimony about Holmes' mental illness and his childhood. Prosecutors may counter with even more heartbreaking accounts from victims, ranging from those Holmes maimed to the father of his youngest victim, a 6-year-old girl who died in the 2012 attack.

There was a muted, heartbroken sense of relief Thursday afternoon following Holmes' conviction on 165 counts of murder, attempted murder and other charges. Victims wept and comforted one another in the courtroom during the hour-long recitation of each verdict, holding hands and nodding their heads with satisfaction when their loved one's names were read. "We're all really happy he's guilty, but we're all really sad to be here," said Katie Medley, whose husband, Caleb, uses a wheelchair after being shot in the head during the attack.

Merkel urges German lawmakers to back Greek deal to avoid chaos

BERLIN (AP) — Chancellor Angela Merkel urged German lawmakers Friday to vote in favor of a third bailout package for Greece, arguing that the cash-strapped country faces chaos without a deal.

The proposed bailout, which was agreed Monday, has already cleared a number of hurdles and most observers think the German Parliament will overwhelmingly back the plan.

"The principle ... of responsibility and solidarity that has guided us since the beginning of the European debt crisis marks the entire result from Monday," Merkel told a special session of Parliament.

The alternative to an agreement, she added, "would not be a time-out from the euro that would be orderly ... but predictable chaos."

On Monday Merkel signed off on three-year bailout for Greece that is expected to be worth 85 billion euros ($93 billion). Germany has been the largest single contributor to Greece's previous two bailouts, and has taken a hard line against the country, insisting on stringent spending cuts and tax hikes in return.

Chicago area woman found dead in Texas jail had posted social media videos about depression

DALLAS (AP) — A black woman who authorities say hanged herself in a Texas jail had posted an online video earlier this year saying she was suffering from "a little bit of depression," though family and friends say the 28-year-old gave no indication she was distraught enough to contemplate suicide.

As Sandra Bland's family and friends press for details of what happened, a prosecutor said Thursday that he will present the findings of a Texas Rangers' investigation to a grand jury. The FBI is also investigating the circumstances surrounding Bland's death.

Bland, who was from the Chicago suburb of Naperville, was moving to Texas to work at Prairie View A&M University, the historically black college from which she graduated in 2009. She was arrested on July 10 in Prairie View following a traffic stop, and authorities say she hanged herself Monday morning in a Waller County Jail cell in nearby Hempstead, about miles 60 northwest of Houston.

Her death comes amid increased national scrutiny of police after a series of high-profile cases in which blacks have been killed by officers or died while in custody. Social media posts have questioned the official account of her death.

Bland had posted a video to her Facebook page on March 1 in which she said that she was suffering from "a little bit of depression as well as PTSD," or post-traumatic stress disorder. She did not explain the cause of the PTSD.

Village where Malaysian plane fell marks anniversary of crash

HRABOVE, Ūkraine (AP) — Residents of the Ukrainian village where a Malaysian airliner was shot down with 298 people aboard a year ago joined a procession to the crash site on Friday, while Australia's prime minister remembered the "savagery" of the disaster as he unveiled a plaque in Canberra that's set in soil from where the wreckage fell.

The two ceremonies come amid a sharp dispute over who was responsible for downing Malaysia Airlines Flight 17, which was heading from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur on July 17, 2014.

Ukrainian and Western authorities say the plane was downed by a missile fired either by rebels or Russian troops who allegedly back them.

The rebels and Moscow say it was hit by a Ukrainian warplane or a Ukrainian-fired missile.

In Hrabove, about 200 residents carrying flowers gathered in a church for a memorial service and procession to nearby fields organized by local leaders and the Russia-backed separatist rebels who control the area.

DEA chief confident escaped drug lord 'El Chapo' Guzman will be captured for third time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Drug Enforcement Administration's No. 3 agent hasn't really slept since he got word Joaquin "El Chapo" Guzman had sneaked out of maximum-security prison in Mexico though a milelong tunnel that opened beneath his cell's shower nearly a week ago.

DEA's operations chief Jack Riley said Thursday that the last week has been a flurry of work speaking with his Mexican counterparts and helping direct U.S. efforts to capture one of the world's most prolific and violent drug lords for the third time in 15 years.

"This guy caused me one of the best days and worst days of my life in a span of a year," Riley told The Associated Press. "We are doing everything we can to track him down, much like we did a year or so ago when we hooked him."

Guzman was arrested in February 2014, more than a decade after his last escape from a Mexican prison in 2001. Before taking over as DEA's operations chief in Washington last year, Riley spent four years in Chicago tracking Guzman and continuing to build a growing criminal case against the drug lord.
