Honoring those who served

Howard County holds Veterans Day events to honor all U.S. military veterans

BY LYNDEL MOODY
 Staff Writer

Community leaders and the public honored the men and women who served their country in the military during a community-wide Veterans Day ceremony Wednesday.

"Without a doubt, this is a day of celebration. It is a day of thankfulness, but it also a somber day," said Dr. Cheryl T. Sparks, Howard College President. "We remember those who made the ultimate sacrifice. We remember those who have sacrificed while at a young age and when it may have been a diversion of what they might have planned at that point of their life. They were willing to serve so that all of us can have the freedom to do what we have for this country. We thank you for your service."

The event was sponsored by the VAMC and held at Howard College in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Following the hour-long ceremony, the VAMC offered lunch to veterans and the crowd in the East Room.

Veterans will have an opportunity to engage with VAMC employees to express their concerns and ask questions. VAMC employees will provide general updates on VA, WTVAHCS and Big Spring programs, and assist veterans with enrollment, scheduling and other health care needs.

Starr announces bid for District 19 seat

BY AMANDA ELSTON
 Managing editor

Wednesday retired Colonel Michael Bob Starr traveled around the district to Lubbock, Abilene, and Big Spring to formally announce his candidacy for U.S. Congress, District 19.

Starr is a recent retiree as 7th Bomb Wing Commander at Dyess Air Force base where he served 23 years as a B1 instructor pilot with 1100 days of deployment under his belt since 9/11.

As of Nov. 1, Starr is a retired man, but said he is not looking to start a career in politics.

"I've had a career that I am pretty proud of, and I'm not looking for another," Starr said. "I want to go to Washington to make a difference."

Col. Michael Bob Starr

Starr said he thought about running for a while, but became much more serious about it when current representative for District 19, U.S. Congressman Randy Neugebauer (R-Lubbock), announced he would not seek another term.

While Starr does not have a background in politics, he said he does have experience with Washington D.C.

"I have a track record of proven leadership where I have achieved results inside the federal bureaucracy," Starr said. "I've had a number of assignments in Washington D.C. as part of my military experience so I know how to work and get results inside."

A conservative Republican, Starr said he is focused on securing the border, balancing the national budget, supporting a strong military, and supporting veterans.

"Security will be a big part of the issues that I emphasize as a congressman and a politician," Starr said. "This includes border security, which I think is one of the biggest issues facing West Texas. This also includes national security, by just making sure we have a strong defense."

According to a Starr for Congress press release, Starr's decision to run for Congress was based on the "inability of politicians in Washington to deliver results on critical issues like border security and national security".

"I think its important to separate the border security question from immigration," Starr said. "When we combine the two we don't get good results. Often we can't make progress on either one of the issues. But border security is the more important issue. We have to have security first because we can't have freedom without security."

Starr joins the seven other candidates that have announced their candidacy to run for district 19. This includes Lubbock Mayor Glen Robertson, Leveland healthcare administrator DeRenda Warren, Dr. Donald May, President and C.E.O. of Platinum Bank Greg Garrett, Texas Tech official and former Bush aide Jodie Arrington, Slaton businessman and oilfield worker Jason Corley, and attorney Sam Mehaffey.

HONOR

In November of 1919, President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed Nov. 11 as Armistice Day, to celebrate what was then called the end of the Great War, known today as World War I, the war to end all wars, a bloody, costly war in human lives and an ending that would, most scholars agree, led to another great world war decades later known as World War II. In later years, Armistice Day would be officially called Veterans Day to recognize all veterans who have served in the United States military.

Guest speaker Rev. Scott Jimenez, VAMC chaplain and U.S. Marine and U.S. Navy veteran, spoke about the cost of World War I in terms of human lives and the lasting social impact on the nations involved.

Military veterans are called to do things society does not want to discuss openly, Jimenez said. The ceremony included participation by Big Spring Mayor Larry McLellan, John Fisher, an Air Force veteran who served as master of ceremonies; Nathan Jacobs, a U.S. Marine veteran; and Manual Davila, a U.S. Army veteran who is the associate director of the West Texas VAHCS known locally as the VAMC.

Steer Pride Corner

Big Spring Intermediate School custodian Yolanda is showing her BSI Steer Pride by taking home the door plates and painting them with Steers. She has donated her time and paint to promote BSI's theme of, "We Inspire...! Inspire".

Sixth grade math plus teacher, Mrs. Loryne Colette, looks on as students work problems on the board involving positive and negative numbers.

Joshua Miramontes, Kelby Olivares, Kortney Moore, and Zoie Joslin complete a questionnaire as student members selected to participate in the BSI Parent Student Compact Committee. They were asked how, as students, they could be better prepared academically to which they responded, "read more." When asked about their biggest concern about BSI, their response was, "we need wider halls when we switch classes or a bigger school."

Big decrease in number of 'dropout factory' high schools

BY JENNIFER C. KERR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation has far fewer so-called "dropout factory" high schools these days, down sharply from 2008 as more students leave high school with a diploma, according to a new report.

The number of dropout factories — where less than 60 percent of students who started as freshmen remain enrolled four years later — dropped from 1,812 in 2008 to 1,040 last year. Also down since 2008 is the number of high school dropouts, falling from 1 million in 2008 to about 744,000 in 2012 a 27 percent cut in four years.

The numbers were released Tuesday in a report from the Alliance for Excellent Education, America's Promise Alliance, Civic Enterprises and the Everyone Graduates Center at the School of Education at Johns Hopkins University. Education Secretary Arne Duncan said

Parents Corner: The scars of pain and love

Some years ago, on a hot summer day in south Florida, a little boy decided to go for a swim in the old swimming hole behind his house. In a hurry to dive into the cool water, he ran out the back door, leaving behind shoes, socks, and shirt as he went.

He flew into the water, not realizing that as he swam toward the middle of the lake, an alligator was swimming toward the shore. His father, working in the yard, saw the two as they got closer and closer together.

In utter fear, he ran toward the water, yelling to his son as loudly as he could. Hearing his voice, the little boy became alarmed and made a U-turn to swim to his father. It was too late. Had he known the term "mayday" this would have been the time to use it for just as he reached his father, the alligator reached him.

From the dock, the father grabbed his little boy by the arms just as the alligator snatched his legs. That began an incredible tug-of-war between the two. The alligator was much stronger than the father, but the father was much too passionate to let go.

A farmer happened to drive by, heard his screams, raced from his truck, took aim and shot the alligator. Remarkably, after several weeks in the hospital, the little boy survived. His legs were extremely scarred by the vicious attack of the animal.

And, on his arms, were deep scratches where his father's fingernails dug into his flesh in his effort to hang on to the son he loved. The reporter, who interviewed the boy after the trauma, asked if he would show him his scars. The boy lifted his pant legs. And then, with obvious pride, he said to the reporter, "But look at my arms. I have great scars on my arms, too. I have them because my Dad wouldn't let go."

Many of us can identify with that little boy. We have scars, too. Not from an alligator, but the scars of a painful past. Some of those scars are unsightly and have caused us deep regret.

But, some wounds are because friends and loved ones, in the midst of our struggle, have refused to let go. They have held on, sometimes by their silent support and childhood training to protect us and provide for us in every way.

Sometimes we foolishly wade into dangerous situations, not knowing what lies ahead. The swimming hole of life is filled with peril and we forget that the enemy is waiting to attack. That's when the tug-of-war begins.

We must never forget that we must not judge another person for his scars, because we don't know how he got them. We never know where other people are in their lives and what they are going through. So as a parent or friend we must "be there" and support and love them through their difficulties and not let them go.

And in the immortal words of someone: There are good days and there are bad days, and this is one of them.

Forsan seeks playoff victory against Windthorst

By Taylor Ellis
Sports Editor

Tonight the Forsan Buffaloes look to end a 12-year playoff win drought as they travel to Cisco to face Windthorst of district 4-2A DI.

Forsan has practiced well all year, as evident by their 8-2 record, but leading up to this opening round matchup against the Windthorst Trojans (5-5) head coach Jason Phillips can tell a difference in how they've practiced.

"Guys have come with a lot of energy and enthusiasm," Phillips said. "I'd say this has been our best week of practice this season."

Forsan has used their mixture of athleticism and size to dominate the line of scrimmage and control games with their run attacks. Forsan has had games with more than two 100-yard rushers four times this year. Standing in the way of their success is a large Trojan squad that will look to win the battle of the trenches.

"They're a very big team on the offensive and defensive line. They've got a lot of size that we will have to handle," Phillips said.

Forsan will continue to run the ball with their herd of ball carriers as well as use the passing attack to keep the Trojans honest on defense. Cervantes, who is just as dangerous with his legs as he is his arm, will be the spark plug of the offense as they try to continue their rapid scoring pace.

Quarterback Jesse Cervantes (7) takes the snap from the shotgun. Cervantes is the team leader in both passing and rushing yards this season.

Defensively, the Buffaloes are ready to see a lot of passes from Windthorst quarterback Peyton Hoffman. Hoffman averages 211.7 yards passing per game and is the player whose individual success is most closely linked to the team's success.

"We've been cleaning some things up on the back end because they're going to air it out. The main thing is we need to pressure the quarterback and not give him all day to throw," Phillips said.

Thanks to two junior varsity call-ups in the middle of the season, coach Phillips and his defensive staff have a lot of different fronts and stunts to throw at Windthorst. They have tons of speed on the defensive line, which they hope will beat out the size of the Trojans as the two programs face off tonight at 7:00 p.m. in Cisco.

Mavericks top Clippers 118-108 in Jordan's return to Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — DeAndre Jordan stood under the basket awaiting some Dallas free throws, the Mavericks pulling away late and most in the crowd of 19,805 loudly chanting a derogatory phrase at the Los Angeles Clippers center.

The fired-up fans finally got to vent over Jordan backing out on an agreement to sign with the Mavericks in free agency over the summer.

They also got a 118-108 victory Wednesday night, thanks to season-highs of 31 points from Dirk Nowitzki and 25 from Wesley Matthews, the free agent who followed through on his pledge to Dallas.

Jordan — booed while warming up before the game, on every touch during it and every time he walked off the floor — had nine points and 11 rebounds with a minus-23 scoring margin while he was in the game.

"They're obviously going to boo and heckle a little bit, but I thought it was going to be a lot worse," the 6-foot-11 Houston native said. "Ultimately, we came out here to win a basketball game and that was it."

Blake Griffin led Los Angeles with 21 points, and Austin Rivers added 16.

A tight second half upstaged the sideshow of the return of Jordan, who was pulled by coach Doc Rivers during a critical stretch of the fourth quarter with Dallas successfully using the hack-a-Jordan tactic against one of the NBA's worst free throw shooters.

Zaza Pachulia, the consolation prize at center after Dallas missed out on Jordan, made two free throws to put the Mavericks ahead for good at 108-106.

"Our guy's a 90 percent free-throw shooter," Dallas coach Rick Carlisle said. After pausing several seconds for effect, he added, "And we love him."

Anti-Jordan signs were plentiful, of course, including one with a pair of flip-flops taped to it, offered to Jordan as a Christmas present.

Another read, "The only thing worse than Jordan's word is his free throw."

Sure enough, Carlisle ordered three straight fouls on Jordan midway through the fourth quarter with the Clippers holding a slim lead, even risking foul trouble for Nowitzki by having the big German commit two of them.

Jordan missed four of the six attempts — almost right on his 34 percent shooting for the season — and Rivers pulled his defensive force. By the time Jordan got back in the game, Dallas had gone in front for good. Jordan made three of nine from the line.

Nowitzki was 11 of 14 from the field, including a banked-in 3-pointer that looked like it was way off the mark but instead put the Mavericks ahead 113-108 with 1:05 remaining.

Jordan was booed during pregame shooting free throws, and cheered when he missed. Even when he touched the ball briefly on offense, the howls came quickly. And they grew loud whenever he kept it.

That was the hope of owner Mark Cuban, who slipped a couple of times during his usual pregame media session by using Jordan's first name. Otherwise, he stuck with his mantra of not using Jordan's name after the former Texas A&M player shunned the billionaire in the hours after changing his mind.

They still haven't spoken, but Cuban is trying to sound as if he's moved on — even though he said he saved the text messages from the saga that played out during the summer.

"It's not like DeAndre and I pinky-swore," said Cuban, who decided against showing several parody videos prepared for Jordan's visit. "It's not like we've been friends forever. It's not like he broke some trust we had."

PARSONS OUT AGAIN

Chandler Parsons, the chief recruiter of Jordan, once again missed a chance to face him. He had yet to make his debut after offseason right knee surgery when the Clippers beat the Mavericks by 16 in Los Angeles the first week of the season. He sat the second night of a back-to-back after a loss at New Orleans because the Mavericks are easing him back into playing shape.

LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON

Both of the Rivers got technical fouls — father for arguing with referees in the third quarter and son for taunting after scoring on a layup in the fourth. Griffin also got a technical for showing Dwight Powell after one of Jordan's missed free throws.

TIP-INS

Clippers: Chris Paul finished with 11 assists to surpass 7,000 for his career, finishing at 7,006. He's the 15th player to reach the milestone, doing it in 706 games for the fourth-fastest behind John Stockton (625), Magic Johnson (637) and Oscar Robertson (667). ... J.J. Redick left the game with back spasms in the first half and didn't return.

Mavericks: Nowitzki passed former teammate Shawn Marion for 15th on the career rebounding list. He finished with a team-high 11 for 10,111 for his career. ... Pachulia had his fourth double-double of the season with 10 points and 10 rebounds.

UP NEXT

Clippers: Visit Phoenix on Thursday night.

Mavericks: Host Lakers on Friday night.

HOLIDAY
MATHIS

Post-11/11

Most days we don't wake up with a profound sense of the human condition, which is seemingly to be drawn out of nothing, engulfed in infinity and uniquely aware of it. Yesterday's 11/11 Scorpio new moon opened a window to fresh spiritual horizons and touched on our utter and extreme insignificance. Still, this life is yours to do something with.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The wonderful thing about being assigned work you don't want to do is that your efforts to procrastinate will lead you to accomplish dozens of less-offensive tasks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your influence is significant, and yet it is also limited. All journeys come to a point at which there is nothing more to be done that will affect the outcome and you must gracefully surrender to the fates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). While part of you asks, "What am I doing with my life?" the bigger part of you is living it moment by moment, responsibility by responsibility, day by day. Right now, that part of you can do without all of the pondering.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Freud suggested there are no jokes. An Italian proverb says, "He who jokes confesses." Listen to the humor today, as it will reveal the serious and secret heart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You have power you're not using. You can get leverage if you angle yourself right. What you need is perspective. Detach and rise up for the bird's eye view. If you can't get there alone, reach out to someone on high.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The experts agree that happiness usually can't be caught in a chase or nabbed in a pursuit; rather it's the byproduct of a journey that has very little to do with personal gain.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). While learning choreography it's quite normal to go left when you're supposed to go right or bumble a step or two. But when you dance to your inner choreography, there are no mistakes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You only have so much patience. One person requires more of it than the rest. You'll have enough if you dam up all the other drains and demands on your self-control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). When you know your strengths you don't have to boast them. The one drawing a lot of attention to what he supposedly does best may indeed feel insecure on the subject. Your awareness and compassion are called for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). If you're looking, you can usually find someone doing the job better, faster, prettier and getting more money for it in the process. However, no one is doing exactly what you do. Hone your unique offerings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The action itself isn't so different from yesterday's, but your approach is changing everything about how you experience this, and how effective you are at it, too.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Sometimes compartmentalizing feelings is like trying to catch weather in a jar. Puffy white clouds, lightning bolts and sunny blue skies exist as part of a system. They don't want to be contained.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 12). You respect tradition but don't always follow it. This is your year for recognizing the need for creating personal rituals that speak specifically to your heart. Your relationships will be enhanced by your spiritual and creative explorations. March and May will be the most profitable. August brings a move. Sagittarius and Aries adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 30, 32, 1 and 19.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "This might sound like I'm joking, but I'm really not. I feel like I spend my whole life rolling my eyes. My husband says something stupid; I wait until he leaves the room and then roll my eyes. I roll my eyes in traffic, in stores at unhelpful clerks, when my child is acting spoiled and when I talk to my mom on the phone. I feel like a petulant teen. Help! Signed, Eye-rolling Cancer."

Eye rolling is disrespectful and it is passive-aggressive. It is indicative of an attitude of defeat. Eye rolling is an act of defiance one takes because one feels powerless to do more. The reason eye rolling is associated with teenagers is because teenagers are still children, old enough to want more from the world, but still powerless to take matters into their own hands. Use your Cancer intuition and creativity to solve this one. Every time you roll your eyes, ask yourself what other actions you would like to take. Replay the scene in your mind and see yourself responding in various different ways until you find one that you think you would like to try in real life the next time you come to a potentially eye-rolling trigger.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Ryan Gosling has several highly anticipated movies coming out in the next few months, including "The Big Short" with Brad Pitt, Christian Bale and Selena Gomez. The Scorpio has been in show business since childhood, but his co-parenting role with Eva Mendez will be his most satisfying job of all. Four natal Libran planets promise that relationships are the true joy of his life.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I am a 12-year-old boy with a problem. My dad died when I was a baby, so it's just my mom, my 22-year-old brother "Jason" and me. Mom works two jobs, so I don't see her that much. Basically, Jason has taken care of me.

Jason is my hero. He helps me with my homework, takes me places and protects me. He planned his college classes around my school schedule, so he could drop me off and pick me up every day. He gave up many nights with his friends to stay home with me when Mom had to work an extra shift.

Jason graduated from college in June and was accepted to an overseas program. I told him I would be OK with it. He left a month ago and I really thought I would be fine, but I am not. I miss him so much there are days I actually feel sick.

I said something about it to my best friend at school, and he just laughed at me. Then he told everybody and they started teasing me about it, so I said I was only joking and that I'm glad my brother is gone, which made me feel guilty.

Now I am afraid to say anything about how I feel. If I tell my mom, she will worry. Jason and I email every day and Skype a few times a week, but it's just not the same as having him here. Is there something wrong with me? What can I do to make it stop hurting so much? -- Love My Brother

Dear Brother: There is nothing wrong with you. Jason has been a father substitute and it is perfectly natural for you to miss him terribly when he is so far away. But it's obvious that you want what's best for Jason, and that involves a bit of sacrifice on your end. Some of your heartache will lessen with time, provided you focus less on Jason's absence and more on what is happening around you. Spend more time with your friends, get involved in school activities, and consider tutoring someone in a subject you are good at. (Helping someone else can take your mind off of other things.) Please don't be afraid to talk about how much you miss your brother -- not to your friends, who are too immature to understand, but to your mom, a grandparent, aunt, uncle, school counselor, favorite teacher or other understanding adult.

Dear Annie: I am a widow in my 60s. My husband passed away several years ago.

I often find I have to introduce myself to someone who knew my husband, but not me. If I say, "I was married to John Doe," it sounds as though we were divorced. But it also doesn't sound right to say, "I am John Doe's widow."

Any suggestions? -- Anonymous, Please

Dear Anonymous: You can, of course, simply introduce yourself as you are and those who knew your husband might ask whether you are related to him. But otherwise try this: "Hello, I'm Mary Doe. I believe you knew my late husband,

John."

Opening lead — six of clubs.

Those who have followed Sylvia's exploits in this space have, over the years, witnessed a collection of remarkable aberrations and oddities wherein what would normally be the wrong play somehow turns out to be right for Sylvia, while the normal play would meet with failure. However, many of these plays — although almost always perpetrated by accident rather than design — can be shown in subsequent analysis to have considerable merit. Here is such a case.

The deal occurred during Sylvia's first duplicate at the club. She was South and, dazzled by her 150 honors, jumped directly to four spades over her partner's opening one-diamond bid.

West led a club to East's king — and the king won the trick! East naturally assumed that his partner had the ace, and at trick two he returned a trump, trying to reduce possible club ruffs in dummy.

It was around this time that Sylvia discovered the ace of clubs among her 13 cards; to this point, the ace had been firmly ensconced behind her eight of clubs.

Sylvia drew three rounds of trumps, finessed the nine of diamonds, which won, and then the eight, losing to the king. East returned the club deuce, whereupon Sylvia, to East's utter amazement, produced the ace to finish with 11 tricks.

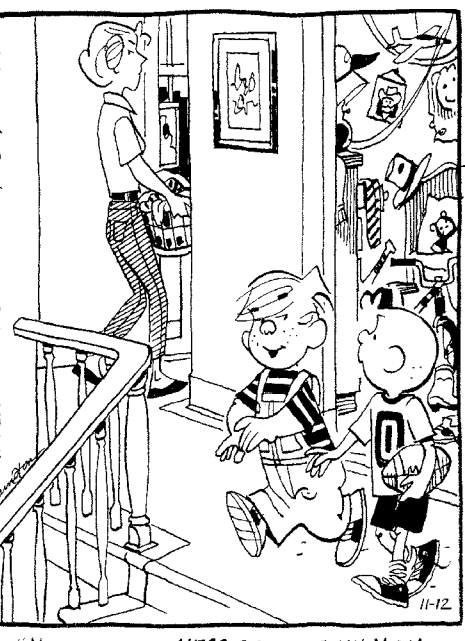

At every other table where a club was led, South went down either one or two tricks! In most cases, declarer took the club lead with the ace, ruffed a club in dummy, played three rounds of trumps and then tried a diamond finesse.

East took the king of diamonds, returned the club five to partner's ten and, after West shifted to a heart, scored the A-Q of hearts to sink the contract.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

This Date In History

Today is Thursday, Nov. 12, the 316th day of 2015. There are 49 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 12, 1815, pioneering American suffragist Elizabeth Cady Stanton was born in Johnstown, New York.

On this date:

In 1787, severe flooding struck Dublin, Ireland, as the River Liffey rose.

In 1927, Josef Stalin became the undisputed ruler of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party.

In 1936, the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge opened as President Franklin D. Roosevelt pressed a telegraph key in Washington, D.C., giving the green light to traffic.

In 1942, the World War II naval Battle of Guadalcanal began. (The Allies ended up winning a major victory over Japanese forces.)

In 1948, former Japanese premier Hideki Tojo and several other World War II Japanese leaders were sentenced to death by a war crimes tribunal.

In 1969, news of the My Lai Massacre in South Vietnam in March 1968 was broken by investigative reporter Seymour Hersh.

In 1975, Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas retired because of failing health, ending a record 36-year term.

In 1977, the city of New Orleans elected its first black mayor, Ernest "Dutch" Morial, the winner of a runoff.

In 1984, space shuttle astronauts Dale Gardner and Joe Allen snared a wandering satellite in history's first space salvage; the Palapa B2 satellite was secured in Discovery's cargo bay for return to Earth.

In 1985, Xavier Suarez was elected Miami's first Cuban-American mayor.

In 1990, Japanese Emperor Akihito formally assumed the Chrysanthemum Throne. Actress Eve Arden died in Beverly Hills, California, at age 82.

In 2001, American Airlines Flight 587, an Airbus A300 headed to the Dominican Republic, crashed after takeoff from New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport, killing all 260 people on board and five people on the ground.

Ten years ago: A U.S.-backed summit in Bahrain meant to promote political freedom and economic change in the Middle East ended without agreement, a blow to President George W. Bush's goals for the troubled region. Jordan acknowledged for the first time that al-Qaida in Iraq had used three foreign suicide bombers to attack Amman hotels three days earlier, killing 60 victims.

Five years ago: President Barack Obama arrived in Japan from South Korea to attend a regional economic summit; it was the fourth and final stop on the president's 10-day tour of Asia. The Supreme Court allowed the Pentagon to continue preventing openly gay people from serving in the military while a federal appeals court reviewed the "don't ask, don't tell" policy. (The policy was rescinded in 2011.)

Thought for Today:
"I would have girls regard themselves not as adjectives but as nouns."
Elizabeth Cady Stanton (1815-1902).

the report shows real progress toward ensuring that all students have access to a quality education.

"Turning around schools that have struggled for years, sometimes decades, is some of the hardest work but most important work in education," Duncan said in a phone call with reporters.

Robert Balfanz, head of the Everyone Graduates Center, said some of the dropout factory schools got better by providing teacher coaching, giving teachers more time to collaborate and offering more support for students at high-need schools.

Other schools, Balfanz said, were closed and replaced with better alternatives or parents left and transferred their children to other schools.

Students attending schools with low-graduation rates are disproportionately poor and minority, said the report. Turning those schools around remains a priority, said Duncan, as he called for eliminating dropout factories by 2020.

Duncan used the report to push Congress to return to work on an update of the Bush-era

No Child Left Behind education law. The House and Senate each passed their own versions of rewrite legislation in July, but need to reconcile the differences between the two ills.

Duncan said any compromise measure needs to include more accountability, especially for the lowest-performing schools.
