Michael Flores will retain his seat on the Howard College Board of Trustees after results from a recount requested by his challenger confirmed he won the race by just five votes.

"There was no ill will," Steve Escanuelas said. "I asked for the recount because it was such a close race and I wanted to make sure it was done right."

Escanuelas Place 1 seat on the college board. The following Monday, Escanuels

"I still plan to be involved in the community," said Escanuelas who is a member requested the recount.

Results from the of LULAC (League of United Latin American Citizens) and the North Side Movement. "I am very grateful to the people who came out and voted for me and for those who helped me with my campaign." Howard County Election Ad> ministrator Saundra Bloom, who was present when the recount took place, confirmed the votes turned out exactly the same as reported on election night. Flores received 106 votes to Escanuelas 101.

The recount was held at the Howard County courthouse Tuesday morning under the supervision of the recount supervisor, Howard College Board Chairman Dr.

John Freeman. Three Howard County election judges, who did not participate in the May 7 election, conducted the recount.

"After completing the recount, there were no changes in the votes for either candidate," Freeman said in a news release from the college. "We appreciate everyone's participation in the process."

The college board will canvass the Place 1 votes and certify the results at their regularly scheduled meeting on Monday. Following that action, Flores will be given his oath of office along with Place 2 winner Mark Morgan.

Commissioners seek to trim at least 10 percent in coming fiscal year

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

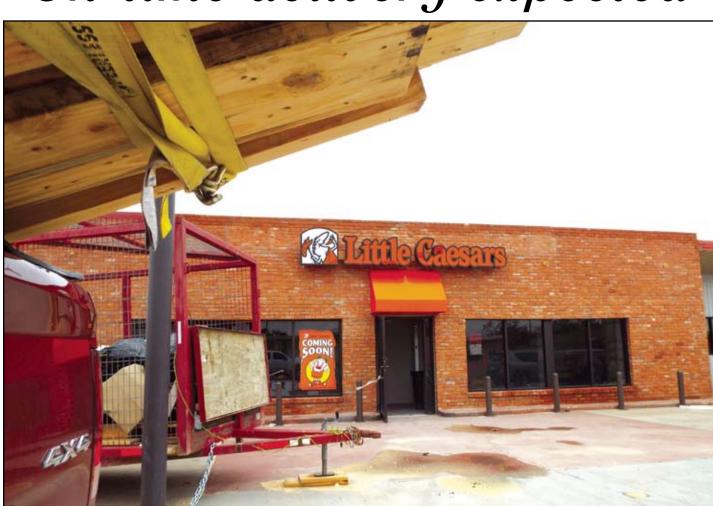

For weeks, Howard County officials have promised budget cuts are coming this next fiscal year. On Thursday, they begin the process of identifying where those cuts will come from.

Faced with plummeting mineral appraisals brought on by the oil bust which are expected to result in a huge decrease in taxable property valuations — commissioners will hold a a pair of budget workshops this week aimed at finding ways to trim at least 10 percent from the upcoming budget.

During those workshops — set for Thursday and Friday morning in the second floor conference room in the county courthouse — commissioners will meet with county department heads to see if there's any fiscal fat that can be trimmed

Research links recent Texas quakes to oil activity

The Associated Press

DALLAS — A new study by researchers at the University of Texas at Austin concludes that human activity, particularly oil and gas production, has been a factor in earthquakes throughout the state for nearly 100 years.

The study's conclusions are in a paper to be published Wednesday in the journal Seismological Research Letters. The Dallas Morning

News reported the study concludes that man-made earthquakes in Texas began in 1925 and that activity associated with oil and gas production "almost certainly" or "probably" triggered 59 percent of the earthquakes detected across the state in 1975-2015, including recent seismic activity in North Texas.

Another 28 percent of the quakes were "possibly" triggered by oil and gas exploration and production, and just 13 percent were caused natu-

"The public thinks these started in 2008, but nothing could be further from the truth," Cliff Frohlich, senior research scientist at UT and the study's lead author, told The News.

The study offers important new information that could affect future seismic threat assessments for Texas, said Robert Williams, a geophysi-cist at the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colorado. The seismic activity has not occurred just in North Texas, but in the Permian Basin of West Texas and in the Texas Panhandle, he said.

"Those sites are new and may need to be considered by USGS in future induced seismic hazard maps," Williams

Frolich and other researchers at UT and Southern Meth-

Resisting Obama's transgender directive

o achieve its political ends, the left doesn't just assault the Constitution through the appointment of liberal activist judges;

there are a variety of other leftist abuses, such as politicizing the departments of Justice and Education.

In its mission statement, the Justice Department states that one of its aims is "to ensure fair and impartial administration of justice for all Americans."

That goal underscores cherished principles of American jurisprudence and the Constitution, including the preamble's commitment to "establish Justice," the Constitution's guarantee of equal protection under the law and the rule of law itself. Justice is supposed to be blind, in the sense of impartiality and being free from political influences. The rule of law ensures that we have a government of laws, not men — meaning that no one is above the law and everyone should be treated equally. The law must be fairly applied and enforced, or it will cease to function as a safeguard of rights and a guarantor of justice.

The political left subscribes to these principles only by lip service, if at all, because its overarching goal is to accomplish its policy goals, irrespective of the damage it does to the very process that guarantees our liberties.

This is why the left, without remorse, appoints results-oriented, activist judges, whom they view not as protectors of the Constitution and law but as vehicles to advance its political agenda by any means necessary, including twisting the meaning of constitutional and statutory provisions and often inventing rights out of whole cloth.

It's why it doesn't even blink when one of its own usurps legislative authority and issues lawless executive orders in contravention of the people's will, even while knowing he has no constitutional authority to do so. It's why it deliberately refuses to enforce immigration laws. It's why it blackmails state governments, through the threat of withholding funds, into doing the will of the federal government. It's why it privately applauds the use of the IRS to target its political opponents. And it's why it stacks the Justice Department with radical leftists whose mission to effect changes in policy supersedes its duty of ensuring the fair and impartial administration of justice.

Folks, there has to be a tipping point — a point at which we'll no longer tolerate this kind of tyranny, even if it means the states forgoing blood money from the federal leviathan.

As such, it's no surprise that the Obama administration has issued an edict barring "discrimination" against students based on their "gender identity." The Department of Justice and the Department of Education each announced that "both federal agencies treat a student's gender identity as the student's sex for purposes of enforcing Title IX."

Understand that with Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, Congress never intended "sex" to include "gender identity." The purpose was to ensure women and girls equal treatment under the law. No one in his wildest imagination conceived that lawless public officials would later contort the statute to prevent discrimination against transgender people.

The administration proclaims, "Gender identity refers to an individual's internal sense of gender." So forget your biological makeup; if today you want to identify as a woman, men, you may, and if people refuse to go along with the ruse, they will be punished with the full force of federal law.

Specifically, the administration's directive last week requires every public school in the nation to provide transgender students access to all activities and facilities consistent with their gender identity, at the risk of losing federal funds.

The Framers are rolling over in their graves, not just because of this inversion of moral standards but also because of the lawless manner in which this is being forced down the throats of the states, the American people and the public schools.

President Obama knows he doesn't have the legal authority to issue such an order, but he is determined to create as much chaos as he can and to unilaterally impose his iron will to the fullest extent before his term

No one will convince me that this has anything to do with the rights of transgender people. Rather, Obama and his fellow leftist tyrants are seeing how far they can push the envelope how much they can fundamentally transform America against the people's will and against the protections guaranteed by the federal and state constitutions.

The Obama administration obviously cares not a whit for the privacy of students who don't want to be forced to share a restroom with students of the opposite sex. The rights of the many will be subordinated to the rights of the very, very few not to protect the rights of those few but to manufacture rights that don't exist to make an authoritarian statement on behalf of Big Brother. Folks, there has to be a tipping point — a point at which we'll no longer tolerate this kind of tyranny, even if it means the states forgoing blood money from the federal leviathan.

This is a hill to die on, and if the sane states don't fight back on this one, we might as well just completely surrender the republic today. It's either that or eventually seeing the people rise up in a way we haven't witnessed for many years.

"Destiny, Texas" by Brett Cogburn (LP W COG B) tells the story of how Argyle Dollarhyde sets out for Texas after

Union troops left the South in ruins and Dollarhyde's life in shambles.

Here, with only a tiny dugout cabin and a small herd of longhorns, Dollarhyde and his sons will carve a future on the American frontier.

"The Reluctant Assassin" by Preston Darby (LP W DAR P) begins with the discovery of a mummified body of a man in a hidden room in an abandoned barn on land long unused outside San Angelo, Texas. The subsequent detection of a heavy, thick, rectangularshaped object wrapped in oiled leather near that mummified corpse leads to a journey into the depths of one of the most shocking assassinations in U.S. History.

The object is a journal titled "A True Account" by J.W.B, which appears to be the diary of John Wilkes Booth. The journey claims a conspiracy led by a high-ranking official in the Lincoln administration was behind Booth's actions. The dead body from Garrett's barn was misidentified as Booth's, and Booth continued life in the West as a fugitive drawing on his acting skills and proving to be a master in the art of disguise. The suspense and mystery intensify when it is found that the mummified body does not belong to Booth, but the journal's testimony when it concerns historical events and personalities is so in keeping with surviving record and documents that it is considered to be authentic.

In "End of the Gun" by H. A. DeRosso (LP W DER H), Steve Britton swore he'd never use his gun again after serving six years in the prison for rustling. He went straight, took on two partners, and set up as a mustanger. Britton hadn't counted on the men of the Chain Link spread. The owner and ramrod seemed to have it in for them from the time they arrived, but he couldn't understand why.

When the owner's son is killed, the Chain Link men set their sights on Britton and hang one of his partners. Steve is through being bullied and has no choice but to meet his enemies at the end of a gun.

In "The Trouble Kid" by Wayne D Overholser (LP W OVE W), Curt Curran is sent to investigate the case of Gordy Morgan, a kid who had disappeared after killing the son of a powerful and unscrupulous rancher. The Weekly Tribune has picked up the story, but it seemed there was more to the story than what was being reported.

The Tribune was comparing Gordy to Billy the Kid and was after the sheriff's hide for not apprehending him. They had given Gordy the name the Trouble Kid. Saul Pettit, whose son was killed, is determined to find Gordy and kill him. He doesn't want anyone getting in his way or digging into the details of the shooting. Curran is attacked his first night in town and now he is not just a reporter, he's part of the story. In a desperate race against time and hired guns, Curran is determined to get to Gordy first and see that he gets justice.

"Wagon Train West" by Lauran Paine (LP W PAI L) finds Kit Butler and Lige Turner guiding a wagon train of 30 wagons with 160 people west from Independence, Mo. to Fort Collins through hostile Indian country. The members of the wagon train felt all the talk about the Indians was just a way to keep a firm control over them, but Kit and Lige were aware of the fact that they had been watched for several days.

When the train is only a week away from Fort Collins, the Indians make their presence known. The chief will guarantee their safety if the wagon train turns around and goes back; but if they continue on, they will find themselves in a struggle for survival.

"Lone Star Rider" by Bradford Scott (LP W SCO S) has undercover Texas Ranger Walt Slade, aka El Halcon (The Hawk), heading toward the border town of Cholla to investigate the trouble that has been happening around there. He kept moving until he found Sliver Oakes's stable. Oakes took care of his horse and offered him a room to rent. At Oakes's suggestion, Slade made his way to Carry Farr's Branding Pen Saloon which offered a "sorta salty crowd."

Before the night was over, Farr had offered Slade a job as a lookout man in the Branding Pen, an attempt was made on his life, and the sheriff let him know that he considered Slade another owlhoot that needed watching. Looks like nothing is going to be easy, but he didn't sign up for easy. "Ride Away" by Cotton Smith (LP W SMI C) is a Corrigan Brothers Western. Deed Corrigan earned his reputation as a gunfighter the hard way. After forging cattle trails and fighting off the Comanche, he is setting his sights on a brighter future. With the help of his older brother, Blue, Deed turns the Rafter C into a successful working cattle ranch. When a land-grabbing banker tries to wipe out the competition with a

army of hired killers, Deed and Blue have to fight back with everything they've got, even if that means taking a chance on a dangerous outlaw named Holt Corrigan — their long-lost brother.

In "Slater's Way" by Charles G West (LP W WES C), John Slater Engels seeks refuge in the mountains of Montana after being driven from home by gunfire and fear of the law. He meets Teddy Lightfoot, who invites him to live with him and his wife in a small Crow village. For safety, he goes by his middle name. As Slater grows into manhood, he becomes an excellent scout and is hired to assist the soldiers at Fort Ellis.

Just when the future begins to look bright, Slater crosses paths with a dangerous Sioux war chief who vows to take his life.

I have just enough time to tell you about "Far From True" by Linwood Barclay (M BAR L). When private investigator Cal Weaver looks into a break-in at the home of a recently deceased man, he uncovers far more than he is prepared for after he finds a hidden room in the basement. He also finds that a cache of DVDs has been stolen from the room but that may not be what the thief was interested in. There is something even darker than thievery in town. Detective Barry Duckworth is doggedly trying to solve two murders, one of which is three years

As the lies begin to unravel, and another murder happens, Cal and Barry find themselves headed straight into the heart of a dark secret as they uncover more startling truths about Promise Falls.

News in brief

FBI: Sydney siege gunman had raised incitement concerns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five years before he held 18 people hostage inside a Sydney cafe, Iranian-born Man Haron Monis attracted the attention of the FBI as someone who had "the potential to incite others to violence," according to documents obtained by The Associated Press.

A November 2009 memorandum from an FBI office in Australia to the agency's counterterrorism division said that while Monis was not believed to be a threat to national security, "his ongoing offensive and nuisance behavior has the potential to incite others to violence."

A shotgun-wielding Monis took customers and workers captive in a December 2014 siege at the Lindt Cafe in Sydney and demanded to be delivered an Islamic State flag, an incident that fueled anxiety about the extremist group's expanding influence across the globe. Police stormed the cafe 16 hours later, after Monis fatally shot one of the hostages. Monis was shot dead by police and another hostage was killed in the crossfire.

Though it's been established that Australian authorities failed to detect that Monis was a threat, despite years of warnings, the memo shows how the FBI was itself concerned about his rhetoric even before the Islamic State group emerged as a prominent international force and well ahead of the siege. The documents are heavily redacted, and it was not immediately clear what additional action, if any, was taken in Australia or how widely that assessment was shared across Australian law enforcement.

The memo, obtained through the Freedom of Information Act, was drafted as the FBI considered whether the self-styled cleric with a long criminal history should be able to have a U.S.-based Internet service provider host his website. The memo noted that Monis, who also went by the name of Sheikh Haron, maintained on his website "inflammatory and fundamentalist material regarding the Islamic religion, jihad, suicide bombings and terrorism." A "veiled call to jihad against President Barack Obama" had also been observed on the site, according to the note.

Thousands of underage migrants live in shadows across Europe

(AP) — Outside the train station in Rome, teen migrants sell drugs from school backpacks and trade sex for cash or clothes. In the capital of Sweden, they steal food from supermarkets and sleep on the streets. From makeshift camps along the northern French coast, they try to hop at night onto the backs of moving trucks headed to Britain. All across Europe, there is a growing shadow population of thousands of underage migrants who are living on their own, without families. They hide silently and in plain sight, rarely noticed in the crowd. Nobody even knows how many of them there are — Europol estimates broadly that at least 10,000 kids have gone missing from shelters or reception centers.

These unaccompanied minors are slipping through the seams of a European system strained to bursting, and they present one of the biggest challenges of the migrant crisis. The fact that accurate numbers are so hard to come by reflects the shortcomings of the bloc's 28 member states in implementing laws and guidelines that are supposed to protect asylum seekers in general and unaccompanied minors in particular. While the problem is not new, the sheer volume of migrants arriving last year has made

Like adult migrants, minors are flooding into Europe for both security and economic reasons, the AP found in interviews with more than two dozen. The question is where they

Imran, a 13-year-old from Afghanistan, has passed through at least eight countries, mostly on foot, and is now trying to make it from a squalid migrant camp in Calais to the U.K. He dresses neatly in a donated sweat suit and tells his story politely. Only his gym shoes cracking at the seams and the cloud over his face hint at the hardship of his life, light years from his dreams of going to "doctor school."

Over 200 families feared buried by mudslides in Sri Lanka

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — A massive landslide triggered by torrential rains buried homes in three villages in the central hills of Sri Lanka, and more than 200 families were missing Wednesday and feared buried under the mud and debris, the Sri Lankan Red Cross said.

Sixteen bodies have already been recovered and about 180 people have been rescued from the enormous piles of mud unleashed at around 5 p.m. Tuesday, according to military spokesman Brig. Jayanath Jayaweera.

More than 300 soldiers were deployed to search for survivors in the villages of Siripura, Pallebage and Elagipitya in Kegalle District, about 72 kilometers (45 miles) north of Colombo, Jayaweera said. Heavy fog and continuing rain, along with electricity outages and the instability of the ground, were complicating rescue efforts.

Some 220 families were reported missing on Wednesday, the Sri Lankan Red Cross said in a statement. Officials said the situation was unclear. broadcaster Rupavahini showed images of huge mounds of earth covering houses, while torrents of muddy water gushed from hilltops above. Villagers said 66 houses had been buried or damaged, according to local journalist Saman Bandara.

Colombia battles world's biggest drugmaker over cancer drug

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Colombia's government is giving pharmaceutical giant Novartis a few weeks to lower prices on a popular cancer drug or see its monopoly on production of the medicine broken and competition thrown open to generic rivals.

Health Minister Alejandro Gaviria's remarks in an interview Tuesday are the strongest yet in an increasingly public fight with the world's biggest drugmaker that could set a precedent for middle-income countries grappling to contain rising prices for com-

Memos leaked last week to a nonprofit group, written from the Colombian Embassy in Washington, describe intense lobbying pressure on Colombia, a staunch U.S. ally, from the pharmaceutical industry and its allies in the U.S. Congress. In one memo, the embassy warns that breaking Novartis' patent for the leukemia drug Gleevec could hurt U.S. support for Colombia's bid to join the proposed Trans-Pacific Partnership trade zone and even jeopardize $450 million in U.S. assistance for a peace deal with leftist rebels. The memos followed meetings between Colombian diplomats and officials from the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative and a Republican staffer on the Senate Finance Committee whose chairman, Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, has close ties to the pharmaceutical industry.

6.7-magnitude earthquake reported in Ecuador

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) - A powerful 6.7-magnitude earthquake has hit Ecuador near the Pacific coast area where a devastating quake hit a month ago, knocking out power and rattling scared residents in their sleep but otherwise causing only limited damage.

The U.S. Geological Survey said Wednesday that the quake's epicenter was 35 kilometers (21 miles) from the town of Muisne. It struck shortly before 3 a.m. local time and had a shallow depth of 32 kilometers below the earth's surface.

President Rafael Correa, who was meeting with his disaster relief staff, said there was no tsunami alert and called on residents in Quito, where some residents poured into the streets, to return to their homes.

Some previously ravaged homes and buildings suffered more damage but there were no reports of injuries or fatalities. Authorities were working to restore power in affected areas.

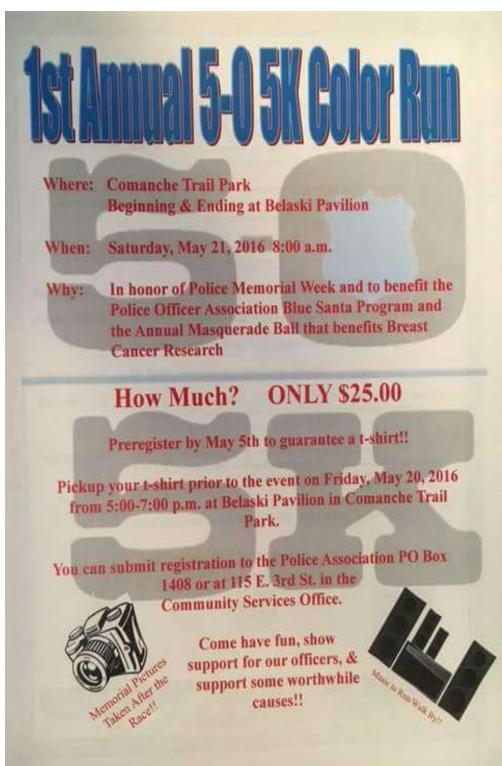

"It was a big shake and all of us were scared but there are no major problems at the moment," said Jorge Zambrano, mayor of Manta, one of the áreas hit hardest by last month's devastating quake.

Expect virtual reality, artificial intelligence from Google

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Google is expected to dive deeper into virtual reality and artificial intelligence Wednesday during an annual conference that serves as a launching pad for its latest products and innovations.

Although Google keeps its plans under wraps until the big event, the conference agenda makes it clear that virtual reality and artificial intelligence, or "machine learning," will be among the focal points. That has spurred speculation that Google is getting ready to release a virtual-reality device to compete with Facebook's new Oculus Rift headset, as well as the Samsung's Gear VR and the Vive from HTC and Valve.

Reporters and bloggers from around the world will attend.

Trump, frequent target Kelly call a truce

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Trump and Megyn Kelly appear to have called a truce.

The two sat down for a much-ballyhooed interview that was the culmination at least for now - of the frequent sparring between the now-presumptive Republican presidential nominee and one of the biggest stars on the conservative-leaning Fox News Channel. It was taped last month and aired Tuesday night on the Fox broadcast

Their fight began last August, in the first GOP debate, when Kelly lobbed several tough questions at Trump, including one about how he has publicly talked about women. Trump escalated the feud over Twitter for months.

But the brash celebrity businessman appeared somewhat sheepish in the interview when Kelly asked him about some of the insults he tweeted — or retweeted — her way, frequently including "bimbo." "Uh, that was a retweet. Did

I say that?" Trump asked. "Many times," Kelly responded. "Ooooh. OK," said Trump, who insisted that he didn't want his followers bombarding Kelly with ugly social me-Kelly made a clandestine visit to the Trump Tower in April to negotiate the inter-

Trump praised her for that, saying he had "great respect" for Kelly's willingness to make the initial approach. He also turned, at times, somewhat introspective, saying "he could have done without" his retweet of a post that mocked the appearance of Heidi Cruz, the wife of former rival Ted Cruz. "The thing that gets me in trouble is the retweet," Trump said. "The retweet is really more of a killer than a tweet. I seem to do pretty well with the real tweet."

But he largely defended his attacks as counter-punching and "not bullying."

"When I'm wounded, I go after people hard. I try to unwound myself," said Trump. "I'm responding," he added.

"Now, I then respond times 10, I don't know. I then respond pretty strongly."

At the conclusion of the interview, Trump tweeted "Well done Megyn — and they all lived happily ever after!" But he told Kelly sometimes stayed angry and appeared to hint that their feud could reignite someday. "This could happen again with us," he said. But the proceedings clearly lacked any of the fiery denunciations Trump has been lobbing at Kelly since the night of the first debate, beginning with a tweet that declared Kelly was "not very good or professional."

The relationship only worsened from there. Trump skipped the second Fox Newssponsored debate because of Kelly (though he attended the third) and kept up a steady stream of insults on Twitter. He unleashed screeds about her "dopey lies" and how her show was better when she was on vacation. He later called her "highly overrated and crazy," retweeted a follower who called her a "bimbo" and called for a boycott of her show. Kelly, meanwhile, told Vanity Fair that she could never be intimidated or "be wooed" by the celebrity businessman and insisted her coverage of Trump was fair.

Even as that largely one-sided feud raged, Trump enjoyed rather warm coverage from other hosts at Fox News. Kelly is in the final year of her contract with the network and has been non-committal about returning.

Bernie Sanders, I-Vt., waves as he walks onto the stage during a rally in Carson, Calif. on Tuesday.

Dems pressure Sanders as rift widens

– After months when the story of the 2016 presidential campaign are now showcasing divisions in their ranks.

Simmering tensions between Bernie Sanders backers and other Democrats, including leaders, burst into the open following an ugly fracas at the Nevada Democratic Party convention over the weekend instigated by Sanders' supporters. When top Democratic Party leaders pressured Sanders to denounce the night of chair throwing and alleged death threats he responded with defiance, terming some complaints "nonsense" and reminding the party: "Millions of

Sanders also warned of "a very sad and tragic option" for the party: "to choose to maintain its status quo structure, remain dependent on bigmoney campaign contributions and be a party with limited participation and limited energy. 31 caught in retests of Olympic samples

LONDON (AP) — In a major doping crackdown stretching back eight years, 31 athletes in six sports could be barred from competing in the Olympics after they were caught in retesting of drug samples from the 2008 Beijing Games, and other positive cases could emerge from the 2012 London Games.

The International Olympic Committee opened disciplinary proceedings Tuesday against the 31 unidentified athletes from 12 countries who competed in Beijing and were planning to take part in the Rio de Janeiro Games in August.

"This is a powerful strike against the cheats," IOC President Thomas Bach said. "They show once again that dopers have no place to hide."

The IOC said it also planned to reanalyze drug tests from the 2014 Sochi Winter Games after allegations samples were tampered with as part of a state-sponsored Russian doping program.

The positive cases from Beijing emerged from the recent retesting of 454 doping samples with "the very latest scientific analysis methods," the IOC said.

The Olympic body stores samples for 10 years to allow for retesting with improved techniques, with athletes caught facing retroactive disqualification and loss of any medals.

The IOC said it could not immediately identify the athletes caught in the Beijing retests for legal reasons, saying it would inform the relevant national Olympic committees in the coming days.

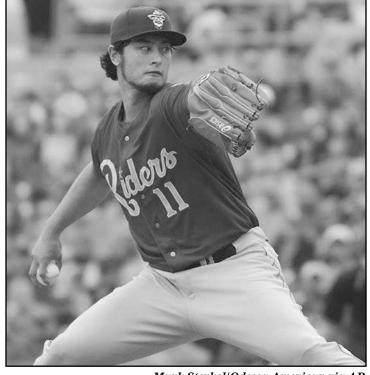

"All those athletes infringing anti-doping rules will be banned from competing at the Olympic Games" in Rio, the IOC said after a teleconference meeting of its policy-making executive board.

Results of retesting of 250 samples from the London Olympics will be announced shortly, the IOC said. Those tests were also aimed at athletes planning to compete in Rio. The IOC said it would also undertake a "wider retesting program" of medalists from both the Beijing and London Games. Samples of athletes who could be promoted to medals

Yu rehabs in Midland

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) Yu Darvish struck out six while throwing 47 of 68 pitches for strikes in his fourth minor league injury rehabilitation start, and he could be back in the Texas Rangers rotation by the end of the month.

Darvish pitched his scheduled five innings for Double-A Frisco on Tuesday, which was 14 months after Tommy John surgery. He limited Midland, an affiliate of the Oakland Athletics, to three singles, a walk and an unearned run.

"I feel pretty confident right now, so just keep go-Mark Sterkel/Odessa American via AP ing," Darvish said through

The right-hander from Japan is expected to make at least one more rehab start for Frisco or Triple-A Round Rock. He could then possibly rejoin the Rangers and make his season debut during a three-game interleague series at home against Pittsburgh the last weekend of

When asked about his timetable for getting back to the Rangers, Darvish said it was hard for him to comment because that was up to the team.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -Khris Davis surprised himself with his first career grand slam, putting the finishing touches on his sensational performance at the plate and a wild ninth inning against Texas.

Davis hit a game-ending slam with two outs in the bottom of the ninth for his third homer of the night, giving the Oakland Athletics an 8-5 victory over the Rangers on Tuesday. "The adrenaline

With his excited teammates waiting at home plate, Davis stopped along the third base line and mimicked a pull-up jumper with his helmet as if he were Golden State Warriors star Stephen Curry next door in the NBA playoffs.

"It was a swish," Davis said. "I can dunk, too."

It was the first threehomer game for Davis, who matched his career high with six RBIs. Thanks to his power display, the A's recovered from Madson's first blown save of the year and won their third straight Gattis connected for a two-run shot with two outs in the 11th that lifted the Houston Astros over the White Sox 6-5 on Tuesday night. Prior to that pivotal at-bat, however, Avila felt Houston hitter Carlos Correa interfered with his throw to second when trying to nab Springer.

Plate umpire Tony Randazzo made no call.

"He said (Correa) ducked. He's 6-foot-4 and I'm 5-10, so there's still a difference there," Avila said. "He was in front of me. I couldn't step through it and tried to throw over him. Like I said, next time if that happens again, I'll just throw it like I normally

Odor suspended for 8 games and Bautista for 1 for brawl

By IAN HARRISON

TORONTO (AP) Texas second baseman Rougned Odor was suspended for eight games and fined $5,000 by Major League Baseball on Tuesday for punching Toronto's Jose Bautista on the jaw.

Major League Baseball disciplined 14 players and staff for their roles during Sunday's brawl at Arlington, Texas.

"I knew I was going to be suspended," Odor said before Texas' game at Oakland. "I have to follow the rules, and I'm just waiting for the appeal. I want to be with my team all year. I don't want to be out eight games."

Blue Jays pitcher Jesse Chavez was suspended three games for hitting Prince Fielder with a pitch. Manager John Gibbons, who returned to the field for the fight following his ejection five innings earlier, was penalized three games for inciting additional fighting.

Bautista, who made a hard takeout slide at second base on Odor, was suspended for one game by MLB senior vice president Joe Garagiola Jr. for his actions and postgame comments

Rangers shortstop Elvis Andrus was suspended for one game for aggressive actions and Blue Jays first base coach Tim Leiper for one game for returning to the dugout following his ejection.

"The rules are fair for punishment," Rangers manager Jeff Banister said. "They are in place for a reason. We'll live by them and move on."

Odor, Bautista and Chavez appealed their discipline, which will be held in abeyance pending a resolution. Andrus was to serve his penalty Tuesday at Oakland. Bautista homered for Toronto's only runs in a 12-2 loss to the Tampa Bay Rays on Tuesday night. Afterward, the

Partnership Moon

The type of affection known as "like" starts in the mind

HOLIDAY overtones in M_{ATHIS} the heart. As this affection grows to "love," it will take up residency in a heart chamber and eventually leave the mind out of it completely. Check for intellectual compatibility in the early part of a relationship. This message is sponsored by the Libra moon of partnership.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Some of the best teachers you will ever have are not even alive right now. You'll be drawn to great minds and talents and will find them in many forms and mediums.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Sometimes it seems that a partnership can only support one person's happiness at a time. This indicates a lack of mutual interests. More commonalities need to be discovered or developed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You've been overly modest -- so hard on yourself, in fact, that you can afford to fluff your ego up a bit. For instance, you'll come across most beautifully when you have a notion that you look pretty good.

CANCER (June 22-

July 22). This will be a very productive day for you. The wheels of your mind are turning, and they will go even faster when greased with motivation that comes from having a worthy opponent.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You may not know what a loved one is thinking, but today's turbo-charged powers of empathy will help you understand what this person is feeling. By recognizing and speaking to those feelings you can start a healing process.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). There are those who believe they are weak and hobbled, thus deserving of sympathetic gifts from the world. Do not offer such gifts today. Instead, focus only on the strengths, talents and potential for self-sufficiency in others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You are organized, serious and ready to dedicate yourself to a difficult long-term project. A group of similarly focused individuals will help you, as long as you avoid the bullies and buzz-kills in this mix.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Creative bonds are just like romantic bonds in many ways. They work best when there's chemistry, mutual admiration and logistic compatibility. When you find all three, this is not a connection to be wasted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov.

22-Dec. 21). Don't take the behavior of your "frenemy" too personally. Often relationships that are both affable and competitive are complicated in ways that have more to do with history than with the present situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). What matters more to you is not the playground you're in but the playmates there with you. Good thing, because the "equipment" may be dilapidated. Watch out for this and other hazards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Salesmanship is a conversation, and thus it's dependent on good listening and careful navigation of topics. Success happens because you get to know a person before making the pitch.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'd like to give second chances, but just because a person recognizes, acknowledges and pays for a mistake doesn't mean there won't be more of the same in the future. The real question is: Can you afford to

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

(May 18). You will have greater control over your words and actions this year, and fewer regrets in the future. Someone special will work to keep you interested, entertained, informed and engaged. Lifestyle upgrades will happen in July. You'll see a wonderful part of the world in November. A December investment will pay off in March. Cancer and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 2, 28, 14, 32 and 16. ASTROLOGICAL

QUESTIONS: "I can't stop thinking of the person I dated in my junior year of high school, 15 years ago. We dated for the whole school year then he went off to college and it was over. A few years ago I saw him in a restaurant and again later at a popular hiking spot. Both times we talked for about five minutes and then parted ways. The feeling between us was nice, but we didn't exchange info. I have had many relationships. Why am I so hung up on this one? He's married now. It's crazy that I still think of him, but I do. He's a Libra and I'm a Leo. How can I get over this?"

The reason it sticks with you is because this Libra delivered your first real heartbreak. You didn't exchange info with him when you had the chance because you were protecting yourself. Leo rules the heart and you have a tendency to give yours easily. You love passionately, and the pain you feel when it doesn't work out is excruciating. But, you'll notice, you have gotten better at this through the years, and this relationship is partly the reason why. Mentally thank your Libra for the lessons you've learned. Gratitude will help you move on.

to a lot of other women who have become my friends. I love to go to lunch, to musicals and on day trips with my female friends. The problem is, Jeanette likes to go out at night to dinner, concerts, etc. I do not have good nighttime vision and am not comfortable driving past sundown. I have explained this to her, but she thinks that I am being unnecessarily fearful. Any suggestions on how I can handle this? -- Fearful of Losing a Friend

Dear Fearful: Being cautious about driving at night when your vision is poor is smart, common sense. But it probably sounds to Jeanette as if you are "too old" and she doesn't like it

There are ways around this - perhaps someone can pick you up or you can take a cab or use a service like Uber or Lyft. But you also can be firm without losing a friendship. When Jeanette wants you to drive at night, it's perfectly OK to say, "Sorry, my vision isn't good enough. I'll miss you, but I hope we can get together another time." Then invite her to a Sunday matinee

The amount of Odor's fine was disclosed by a person familiar with the discipline who spoke on condition of anonymity because the figure was not announced.

Texas pitchers Matt Bush (intentionally throwing at Bautista), Sam Dyson (aggressive actions) and A.J. Griffin (being on the field while on the DL) were fined along with catcher Robinson Chirinos (being on the field while on the DL) and bench coach Steve Buechele (aggressive actions).

"I wish I struck out Pillar and not given up a run," said Bush, who made his big league debut last week. "Other than that, I think I handled the situation very well."

Toronto third baseman Josh Donaldson, the reigning AL MVP, was fined for aggressive actions along with outfielder Kevin Pillar. Bench coach DeMarlo Hale, who was acting manager following Gibbons' ejection, was fined for Chavez's intentional actions after teams had been warned by umpires.

Hale will manage the Blue Jays while Gibbons serves his suspension, beginning with Tuesday night's loss to Tampa Bay. Assistant hitting coach Eric Owens coached first base in Leiper's place.

Gibbons, who was suspended one game last August for returning to the field during an altercation with Kansas City after being ejected earlier that game, said he was surprised by the length of his suspension this time around.

In Sunday's game, Bautista slid hard and late into the right leg of Odor and 8 feet past second base. Odor shoved Bautista with both hands, then threw a punch to the jaw that made Bautista's head snap back.

"It was pretty cowardly of them to wait until my last atbat to do that in the whole series," Bautista said after the game. "They could have come out and done it, if they wanted to send a message. Again, it shows a little bit more of their colors.'

cheats will also be retested.

The IOC also asked the World Anti-Doping Agency to launch a "fullyfledged investigation" into allegations that the drug-testing system in Sochi was subverted by Russian officials.

The IOC said it would ask the Lausanne anti-doping lab and WADA to proceed with analyzing Sochi samples "in the most sophisticated and efficient way possible."

It's unclear, however, how many samples are still intact for reliable retesting. Grigory Rodchenkov, the former head of the Russian anti-doping laboratory, told the New York Times last week that he gave Russian athletes a cocktail of drugs before the Olympics and switched tainted urine samples for clean ones during the games. He has offered to assist in retesting.

WADA said Tuesday it has written to Rodchenkov and offered to meet him "immediately" in Los Angeles. No date has been set.

WADA said it has also asked Russian whistleblower Vitaly Stepanov for a copy of the recordings of his conversations with Rodchenkov.

WADA President Craig Reedie said the agency is "fully committed" to investigating the Sochi allegations. The inquiry will be led by WADA's chief investigator, Mathieu Holz, a former French policeman and Interpol agent,

The statute of limitations for retesting was extended in 2015 from eight to 10 years, meaning the Beijing samples remain valid through 2018.

It's not the first time that samples from Beijing have been retested. A few months after those games, the IOC reanalyzed nearly 1,000 of the total of 4,000 samples with a new test for the blood-boosting drug CERA. Five athletes were caught, including 1,500-meter gold medalist Rashid Ramzi of Bahrain.

Nearly 500 doping samples from the 2006 Winter Olympics in Turin have already been retested. The IOC has not disclosed whether those retests had produced any positive cases.

Five athletes were caught in retests of samples from the 2004 Olympics, including men's shot put winner Yuriy Bilonog of Ukraine.

On a separate issue, the IOC said it would "work to shed full light" on bribery allegations tied to Tokyo's winning bid for the 2020 Olympics.

French prosecutors said last week that 2.8 million Singapore dollars ($2 million) was apparently transferred from Japan to the Singapore account of a company tied to the son of former IAAF President Lamine Diack, who is facing corruption charges.

Tokyo bid leaders acknowledged the payments were made, but said they were for legitimate consulting fees.

The IOC said it would remain a civil party to the French investigation and its chief ethics officer would "actively cooperate" in the inquiry.

Agrighoods take root: Housing trend rooted in agriculture

"How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" asks the old song. The answer may be: Build them an agrihood. Feeding off the continuing interest in eating fresh, local food, developers are ditching golf courses and designing communities around farms, offering residents a taste of the pastoral life — and tasty produce, too.

The latest incarnation of harvest homes is The Cannery, a community designed around a small farm in Davis, about 20 miles west of California's capital, Sacramen-

Master developer The New Home Co. was looking to build a neighborhood, not just homes, and market research showed that people wanted to connect to community.

So "it made lots of sense to take this 7.5acre piece of property and turn it into an urban farm, have that be the focus point," says Kevin Carson, New Home president.

Residents can sign up for a weekly box of produce from the farm, and no matter what their level of participation something, says Carson. "They can see the pumpkins being harvested or the tomatoes being planted or the different seasons that happen on a farm."

Building homes close to food sources isn't new. Back before refrigerated trucks and sophisticated delivery systems, it was the norm. But modern housing design took a different tack as suburbs sprouted around cities.

Developers looking to distinguish their offerings began designing golf course communi-

But it turned out many buyers weren't into golf so much as the view, says Ed McMahon, senior resident fellow at the Urban Land Institute in Washington, D.C. Since golf courses are big and expensive, developers moved to open spaces, then orchards and pastures, and now gardens and/or urban farms.

It's still a niche; Mc-Mahon is tracking almost 200 projects of various sizes, a fraction of the overall market. Some agrihoods are big, some small. A few involve residents actually working on farms. Most, professionals handling the agricultural side of things. But the trend "is growing quite rapidly and there seems to be some interest in it," says McMahon. "I get a call literally almost once a day from some developer who wants to talk about this."

Nationwide, examples of agrihoods include Willowsford in Ashburn, Virginia; Agritopia near Phoenix, and Prairie Crossing in Grayslake, Illinois. In California, The Cannery opened in August 2015 and is planned to be a 547-home community, with prices starting in the $400,000s for town homes. The farm has produced tomatoes, sunflower and corn, which were harvested by volunteers and donated to a food bank.

Among those moving into The Cannery are Samrina and Mylon Marshall, who were attracted by the farm as well as the energy efficiency of their new home, which is equipped with solar panels. Mylon Marshall's grandfather was a farmer in California's Central Valley and he spent a little time in the fields. But he doesn't have much of a green having fresh, local produce without having to actually work the land appealed.

Living in an area where the farm-to-fork movement is particularly strong, "we really have come to appreciate what it means to eat locally and to eat seasonally," says Samrina Marshall. "Just the concept of being more connected with how food is grown and produced that's important to us."

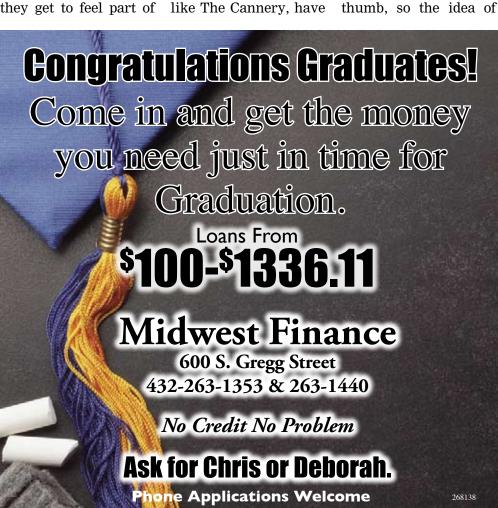

Figuring out how the farm will work and who will own it is crucial to success in an agrihood. "Everybody likes the outcome - fresh fruit, flowers, beehives — but you really need somebody who knows what they're doing to do the growing and the harvesting," says McMa-
