Police block Airline Highway after a gunman shot six law enforcement officers, killing three, Sunday in Baton Rouge, La.

Gunman ambushes 6 Baton Rouge officers

The Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La. — A former Marine dressed in black and carrying extra ammunition ambushed police in Baton Rouge, shooting and killing three law enforcement officers less than two weeks after a black man was fatally shot by police there in a confrontation that sparked nightly protests that reverberated nationwide.

Three other officers were wounded Sunday, one critically. Police said the gunman was killed at the scene.

“His movements, his direction, his attention was on police officers,” state police Col. Mike Edmonson said Monday morning. He would not elaborate but said the gunman “certainly was seeking out police officers,” and he used the word “ambush” to describe the attack.

Edmonson also confirmed that investigators have interviewed people with whom the shooter had contact in Baton Rouge. But Edmonson wouldn’t say how many or give details. He stressed that the interviews don’t mean that those people were involved in the shooting and urged any others who might have had contact with or information about shooter Gavin Long to come forward.

The shooting less than a mile from police headquarters added to the tensions across the country between the black community and police. Last week, a gunman targeted police during a march in Dallas, killing five officers. And just days before the Baton Rouge attack, one of the slain officers had posted an emotional Facebook message about the challenges of police work in the current environment.

President Barack Obama urged Americans to tamp down inflammatory words and actions.

“We don’t need careless accusations thrown around to score political points or to advance an agenda. We need to temper our words and open

City seeks funding for roads

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer

The City of Big Spring is looking for all the monetary help it can get to build roads from the local airpark to the U.S. Highway 87 reliever route.

City officials have long planned to connect the airpark to the reliever route to give the facility a trifecta of transportation options — air, rail, and road — to attract businesses. The city’s airport has just about all the air capacity a business would want, while an ever-expanding railroad line has that option covered as well.

That leaves roads.

Officials currently have plans on the board for two roads — one extending south and the other west — that would connect the airpark to the southern leg of the reliever route, which is expected to open within the next two weeks. Total length of those roads is just under six miles.

As might be expected, building almost six miles of roads capable of handling all sorts of private and commercial traffic will be pricey. Public Works Director Johnny Womack said preliminary estimates place the price tag at $2.7 million, and Womack cautioned those estimates were just a starting point; the final cost is likely to be more.

The good news for city taxpayers is they won’t be expected to shell out any additional money for the roads. Some, if not a majority, of the funds will come from already

News in brief

Slain Baton Rouge officer wrote emotional Facebook post

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Just days before he was shot and killed, a Baton Rouge police officer posted an emotional Facebook message saying he was “physically and emotionally” tired and expressing how difficult it was to be both a police officer and a black man, a friend said Sunday.

“I swear to God I love this city but I wonder if this city loves me,” Montrell Jackson wrote.

Friends and family of Jackson, 32, were mourning the 10-year veteran of the police force that relatives described as a “gentle giant” and a “protector” after he and another two law enforcement officers were shot and killed Sunday morning by a gunman.

Sgt. Don Coppola Jr. of the Baton Rouge Police Department identified the other slain Baton Rouge police officer as 41-year-old Matthew Gerald, who had been with the department less than a year.

The third officer killed was 45-year-old sheriff's deputy Brad Garafola, a 24-year veteran, spokeswoman Casey Rayborn Hicks for the East Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff's Office said.

In the Facebook posting Jackson said while in uniform he gets nasty looks and out of uniform some consider him a threat.

GOP convention kicks off as nation reels from more violence

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Republican National Convention is set to kick off as the nation reels from another deadly shooting and dissident delegates stage a longshot, last-gasp effort to deny Donald Trump the GOP nomination for president.

Amid the tumult, it was undeniably Trump's moment — a week at the pinnacle of American politics that few could have imagined when the New York billionaire entered the race a year ago.

“We want America to understand who Donald Trump the man is, not just Donald Trump the candidate,” said campaign chairman Paul Manafort.

Yet the first act Monday was likely to underline how divisive Trump has been. Delegates were voting on the rules that will govern the convention week, and insurgent delegates said they would try to force a state-by-state vote — a move that could disrupt floor proceedings.

Trump's opponents want to change a rule that requires delegates to vote for the candidate to whom they were committed after state primaries and caucuses. Trump's nomination is essentially automatic under the current rules, because he has far more than the 1,237 delegates required to win.

ROADS

existing money in the city's airpark fund. The bad news is that the city still has a lot of fundraising to do.

To that end, the city plans to apply for a FASTLANE grant, money available through a U.S. Department of Transportation program aimed at helping fund critical freight and highway projects across the country. These grants will not cover the entire cost of the program — the city will still have to shell out anywhere from 20 percent to half of expenses — but Womack said the monetary help would be critical in securing the new roads.

“The minimum we'll apply for is the $2.7 million figure in the preliminary estimates,” he said. “We have until November to submit a letter of intent for the grants, and it will probably be next summer before we know if we'll receive the grant.”

In the meantime, the city will spend about $150,000 to fund surveying work necessary in determining the final cost of the new roads. That money also will come from the airpark fund, Womack said.

GUNMAN

our hearts ... all of us,” Obama said.

The gunman was identified as Gavin Long of Kansas City, who turned 29 Sunday.

Long, who was black, served in the Marines from 2005 to 2010, reaching the rank of sergeant. He deployed to Iraq from June 2008 to January 2009, according to military records.

Although he was believed to be the only person who fired at officers, authorities were investigating whether he had some kind of help.

“We are not ready to say he acted alone,” state police spokesman Major Doug Cain said. Two “persons of interest” were detained for questioning in the nearby town of Addis. They were later released without any charges being filed.

While in the military, Long was awarded several medals, including one for good conduct, and received an honorable discharge. His occupational expertise was listed as “data network specialist.”

The University of Alabama issued a statement saying Long attended classes for one semester in the spring of 2012. A school spokesman said university police had no interactions with him.

In Kansas City, police officers, some with guns drawn, converged on a house listed as Long's.

It was the fourth high-profile deadly encounter in the United States involving police over the past two weeks. In all, the violence has cost the lives of eight officers, including those in Baton Rouge, and two civilians and sparked a national debate over race and policing.

Authorities initially believed that additional assailants might be at large, but hours later said there were no other active shooters. They did not discuss the gunman's motive or any relationship to the wider police conflicts.

The shooting began at a gas station on Airline Highway. According to radio traffic, Baton Rouge police answered a report of a man with an assault rifle and were met by gunfire. For several long minutes, they did not know where it was coming from.

The radio exchanges were made public Sunday by the website Broadcastify.

Nearly 2½ minutes after the first report of an officer getting shot, an officer on the scene is heard saying police do not know the shooter's location.

Almost 6 minutes pass after the first shots are reported before police say they have determined the shooter's location. About 30 seconds later, someone says shots are still being fired.

The recording lasts about 17 minutes and includes urgent calls for an armored personnel carrier called a BearCat.

“There simply is no place for more violence,” Louisiana Gov. John Bel Edwards said. “It doesn't further the conversation. It doesn't address any injustice perceived or real. It is just an injustice in and of itself.”

From his window, Joshua Godwin said he saw the suspect, who was dressed in black with a ski mask, combat boots and extra bullets. He appeared to be running “from an altercation.”

Mike Spring awoke at a nearby house to a sound that he thought was from firecrackers. The noise went on for 5 to 10 minutes, getting louder.

Of the two officers who survived the shooting, one was hospitalized in critical condition, and the other was in fair condition. Another officer was being treated for non-life-threatening injuries, hospital officials said.

Two of the slain officers were from the Baton Rouge Police Department: 32-year-old Montrell Jackson, who had been on the force for a decade, and 41-year-old Matthew Gerald, who had been there for less than a year.

The third fatality was Brad Garafola, 45 and a 24-year veteran of the East Baton Rouge Sheriff's Office.

Jackson, who was black, posted his message on Facebook on July 8, just three days after the death of 37-year-old Alton Sterling, a black man killed by white Baton Rouge officers after a scuffle at a convenience store.

In the message, Jackson said he was physically and emotionally tired and complained that while in uniform, he gets nasty looks. When he's out of uniform, he said, some people consider him a threat.

A friend of Jackson's family, Erika Green, confirmed the posting, which is no longer on Facebook. A screenshot of the image was circulating widely on the internet.

Police-community relations in Baton Rouge have been especially tense since Sterling's death. The killing was captured on cellphone video.

It was followed a day later by the shooting death of another black man in Minnesota, whose girlfriend livestreamed the aftermath of his death on Facebook. The next day, a black gunman in Dallas opened fire on police at a protest about the police shootings, killing five officers and heightening tensions even further.

Thousands of people protested Sterling's death, and Baton Rouge police arrested more than 200 demonstrators.

Sterling's nephew condemned the killing of the three Baton Rouge officers. Terrance Carter spoke Sunday to The Associated Press by telephone, saying the family just wants peace.

“My uncle wouldn't want this,” Carter said. “He wasn't this type of man.”

A few yards from a police roadblock on Airline Highway, Keimani Gardner was in the parking lot of a warehouse store that would ordinarily be bustling on a Sunday afternoon. He and his girlfriend both work there. But the store was closed because of the shooting.

“It's crazy. ... I understand some people feel like enough is enough with, you know, the black community being shot,” said Gardner, an African-American. “But honestly, you can't solve violence with violence.”

Michelle Rogers and her husband drove near the shooting scene, but were blocked at an intersection closed by police.

“I can't explain what brought us here,” she said. “We just said a prayer in the car for the families.”

Also Sunday, a domestic violence suspect opened fire on a Milwaukee police officer who was sitting in his squad car. The officer was seriously wounded, and the suspect fled and apparently killed himself, authorities said.

Henrik Stenson, right, is congratulated by Phil Mickelson after winning the British Open championship Sunday at Troon, Scotland.

British Open:

Stenson wins duel with Mickelson

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Henrik Stenson is the champion golfer of the year, thanks to a final round for the ages.

He kept hitting the best shots of his life, one after another, and he needed each one to stay ahead of Phil Mickelson in a British Open duel that ranked among the best in major championship history.

Stenson made 10 birdies, including a 50-foot putt across the 15th green that had him pumping his fist in a rare show of emotion Sunday.

The final stroke in this masterpiece was a 20-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole that curled into the cup on the final turn. It gave him an 8-under 63, tying Johnny Miller at Oakmont for the greatest closing round by a major champion, and Stenson didn't even realize it until he sat down to sign his card.

Records didn't matter. This was about winning his first major.

"Right now I'm running on adrenaline. But there will be some point when I'll struggle to make it up the stairs when I get back to the house," Stenson said after four hours of an

Hamels a hero for Texas

Helps Rangers end 4-game skid with win over Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly a year after throwing a no-hitter at Wrigley Field, Cole Hamels was masterful again in his return to the famed ballpark.

Hamels pitched eight dominant innings, and the Texas Rangers stopped a four-game slide by toppling the Chicago Cubs 4-1 Sunday in a matchup of division leaders.

"I got 10 days of rest. You get a whole week of rest, I guess that helps," Hamels said. "I know it's the second half, want to start off right. This is now the go time."

Hamels (10-2) struck out his first six batters. He fanned seven overall and gave up just an unearned run on four hits.

"The fastball, the cutter allowed him to get to the changeup today, and he was really exceptional," Rangers manager Jeff Banister said.

Last summer, the lefty threw a no-hitter and struck out 13 at Wrigley in his final start for Philadelphia. He was then traded to the Rangers.

"I've always enjoyed coming to

Journey ends for Little Leaguers

By DREW WILLIAMS

The Big Spring Junior All-Stars were swept in the Little League state tournament, falling to Corpus Christi Padre on Saturday and 5 Diamonds San Antonio on Sunday.

Big Spring lost 15-1 Saturday to the Padre team, mostly due to command issues on the mound.

The command issues stayed with them on Sunday, falling 18-13 to 5 Diamonds. Big Spring showed resiliency throughout the entirety of the game, however, and battled back from deficits nearly every inning. Big Spring got down early, falling behind 7-1 in the second inning, but got within one at 7-6 in the bottom half. The 5 Diamonds lead was extended to 16-9 through five innings, but Big Spring chipped away at that lead to get within 16-13 going into the final frame. The 5 Diamonds lead would grow with two insurance runs, and the 18-13 lead would hold as Big Spring threatened in the bottom half but couldn't get a run across.

"I'm very proud of them. They didn't give up," Big Spring head coach Garrett Kligora said.

"There for a minute, I thought they did, but they pulled it together and kept fighting. They wanted to keep playing, and we came close."

He was also proud of his team for doing something never done before in Big Spring.

"It's awesome. This is the first time a Junior League team has made it out of our district, so making it this far for the first time is a great accomplishment," he said.

He added that he's taken a lot away from the experience, and that the tournament is something the kids will always remember.

"It's really helped me choose my career choice. Now I want to be a high school coach or collegiate coach or something. So it's really helped me a lot and I think these kids learned a lot, so it'll help them throughout their high school careers as well," he said.

Altuve, McHugh lead Houston past Mariners

SEATTLE (AP) — One day after an ill-advised bunt attempt in a losing effort, Jose Altuve returned to what he does best.

Altuve homered among his four hits and drove in three runs, Collin McHugh escaped a pair of bases-loaded jams to pitch six scoreless innings, and the Houston Astros beat the Seattle Mariners 8-1 on Sunday.

Altuve, who bunted on his own with the tying run on second and none out in the ninth inning of Saturday's 1-0 loss, had a two-run homer and three singles in five at-bats to raise his American League-leading average to .346. McHugh (6-6) allowed four hits and walked four, striking out 10 to win for the first time in eight starts since his last victory on May 30.

"Today I went there and I wasn't thinking about bunting," Altuve said. "I was thinking about hitting the ball, driving the ball. I felt really good at the plate today, I feel really happy that we won the game."

Carlos Gomez added his second career grand slam in the seventh inning off Nathan Karns to put the Astros up 8-0.

Kyle Seager singled home Seattle's only run in the eighth off Chris Devenski.

Mike Montgomery (3-4), making his second start this season after 30 relief appearances, allowed four runs and seven hits in five innings, walking two and striking out seven.

Altuve had the green light on a 3-0 pitch in the third and delivered his 15th homer to follow Marwin Gonzalez's leadoff double, putting Houston up 3-0.

"He pretty much has a green light at life," Astros manager A.J. Hinch said. "Stealing, hitting 3-0, hitting 0-0, he's a very gifted player, but he works at it. He's fun to be around."

The Astros made it 4-0 in the fifth when Gonzalez again doubled to open the inning, took third on a throwing error by center fielder Leonys Martin, and scored on Altuve's single.

The Astros hustled across an unearned run in the first. Gonzalez reached on a fielder's choice and Altuve singled. Gonzalez stole third and continued around on an error by third baseman Seager, who misplayed the throw from catcher Jesus Sucre.

Kenseth pulls away late to win Cup race at New Hampshire

LOUDON, N.H. (AP) — Matt Kenseth was always near the front of the pack. He stalked the leaders and waited for contenders to wilt.

Kyle Busch and Martin Truex Jr. faded down the stretch. So did Denny Hamlin.

It almost seemed like a repeat scenario for Kenseth.

Just like last fall on the same track when Kevin Harvick's lead evaporated when he ran out of fuel, Kenseth pounced. He pulled away down the stretch to win the Sprint Cup race Sunday at New Hampshire Motor Speedway.

Truex and Busch each led more than 120 laps before faltering over the final 75 laps, paving the way for Kenseth to win for the second time this season.

Kenseth also won the New Hampshire race last September. He has 38 career victories.

"Last fall, we squeaked one out, a little more fuel than Kevin and a little different strategy, but not quite as good a car," Kenseth said. "Today, I felt like we had the best car."

NASCAR said Kenseth's No. 20 Toyota failed the post-race laser inspection station and will be brought to the research and development center in Concord, North Carolina, for more evaluation. The penalty for that kind of failure has traditionally been a 15-point penalty. But this was the first time a race winner was busted since the lasers were instituted in 2013.

Tony Stewart finished second and strengthened his spot inside the top 30 in the points standings. Stewart has a win this season and needs to secure a spot in the top 30 in points to clinch a spot in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship. He inched from 30th to 28th in points.

Joey Logano was third, followed by Harvick and Greg Biffle.

Alex Bowman had a solid day ruined when

Matt Kenseth (20) takes the checkered flag after winning the Sprint cup race3 at New Hampshire Motor Speedway Sunday.

he hit the wall late and finished 26th driving for Dale Earnhardt Jr. Earnhardt was sidelined because he suffered from symptoms of a concussion.

Truex tumbled to 16th when his Toyota suffered a broken shifter and Busch dropped to eighth when he could never break free on late-race restarts.

"We're doing everything right, but we're taking some on the chin here," Truex said.

That allowed Kenseth, Busch's Joe Gibbs Racing teammate, to cruise to the top and snatch the lead with fellow JGR teammate Denny Hamlin with 30 laps. He drove away on the final restart with 11 to go in the 301-mile race and soon the traditional lobster plopped on the hood of his Toyota.

But this race could be the one remembered for truly solidifying Stewart in Chase contention. He snapped an 84-race losing streak last month at Sonoma and was fifth last week at Kentucky Speedway. Smoke is heating up this summer and could be racing for a fourth championship in his final NASCAR season.

"Everyone wants this last year to be good," Stewart said. "Sonoma, I think really helped relax everybody."

Kenseth became the first driver since Kurt Busch in 2004 to win consecutive starts at New Hampshire. He didn't win in his first 27 Cup starts at the track but has three wins in his last three races at the 1.058-mile track.

BOWMAN'S RUN
Bowman enjoyed perhaps the final race of his Sprint Cup career, running inside the top 10 and seemingly in position for his best finish in 72 starts.

But Bowman's run in the No. 88 Chevrolet ended with a thud when a tire issue slammed his car into the wall and he finished 26th in his first Cup race of the season.

"I've never got to actually race with guys like Jimmie Johnson, Tony Stewart, Kurt Busch, all those guys," he said. "I had a lot of fun passing really good cars."

 Opening lead — seven of spades.

There are inspired plays one might never have an opportunity to make in a lifetime of bridge. Most such plays would not be difficult to execute if someone rang a bell at the critical moment to warn a player that his chance to rise and shine had arrived. Unfortunately, these moments occur so rarely and unexpectedly that for ordinary mortals the opportunity for brilliance goes unnoticed and quietly passes by. But here is a case where the player in the saddle rose to the occasion. The deal occurred in a team-of-four championship, and the hero was Billy Eisenberg, well-known Los Angeles star. He got to three notrump, and West led the seven of spades.

Eisenberg won with dummy's ace and made the obvious lead of a low club from dummy. When East produced the king, Eisenberg followed with the five! Declarer was well-rewarded for his unusual play, since East could now do no better than cash his K-Q of spades and ace of diamonds to hold Eisenberg to three notrump.

Now let's suppose declarer had won East's king of clubs with the ace, which almost anyone else in his shoes would have done. In that case, the contract would have failed. When South continued with another club to the queen, East would signal with the nine of diamonds, asking partner to return a diamond if he got the lead.

Declarer could not now prevail, whatever he did next. If he continued with a club, West would win and shift to a diamond, and East would cash two diamonds and two spades to put the contract down one. And if declarer abandoned clubs, he would not be able to come to nine tricks.

Tomorrow: More than just a guess.

HOLIDAY
MATHIS

Lunar Anticipation

There are cosmic reasons why tomorrow's full Capricorn moon will present without the usual ambitions and cool, calculated plans. The expression will be more emotional and vulnerable. The thing you don't want to reveal could come out anyway. Think and write about who you are today. It will be interesting to look back on when things change.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Don't be too worried about how the future will work out. All you have to know about that right now is that it will. And by the way, there are many who love you and are on your side, wanting you to create and thrive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your insistence on getting it right might be interfering with your ability to get it done. Finishing is more important than finishing perfectly, or even finishing excellently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You are receptive to other people's news. You celebrate their stories. You listen to and remember the details of their days. This is what will put you in the upper echelon of friendship.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Ideally, a romantic partner is also a friend. Whether the friendship comes first or last is beside the point, but for this relationship to work, the friendship has got to be in there somewhere!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your commitment to a project may be casual, unspoken, and private, but it's there, it's strong, and it will go honored. Other activities of lower priority will fall away.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You'll give a magic send-off to a bad situation. As for the pain, guilt, regret and general negativity that it caused you, you can now firmly say, "buh-bye," and it will truly and completely be over.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Maybe you're living the dream, but it's not your dream, at least not anymore. You'll wonder when exactly it was that you wanted this. Try and remember your original vision. What about it is different now?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There is no such thing as a perfect relationship, and some of your favorite ones have been about as far from perfect as you're willing to go. What you've worked through continues to makes you better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). That song you used to love and listen to often will come on randomly in your environment, reminding you of a certain someone. You'll always have a special space in your heart for this person, even though things have changed.

CAPRICORN (Dec.

22-Jan. 19). You are, at your core, forgiving, loving and selfless. That doesn't mean you always have to behave in such a way to reflect this. Sometimes you have to work to get there, and that's OK, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You don't need to prove yourself -- or at least you shouldn't need to. The one who makes you feel as though you do: Is this person really qualified to sit above you and judge?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). As for the struggle that's eaten up so much of your time lately, what would happen if you gave it up? An easygoing mentality paves the way for good fortune.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 18). When they say, "the rest is history," it's a super-sized accomplishment they are referring to. However, it's about to be eclipsed by something wonderful in the first half of this solar journey. Go public with your goals and find someone to help you stay accountable with your efforts and you'll be unstoppable. Leo and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 40, 12, 22 and 14.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION: "What does the year ahead look like for someone newly divorced (born Sept. 26, 1960)?"

Already the divorce has triggered self-examination and a new look at your daily life, goals and friendships. It's time to become a grown-up in the true sense of the word. Though you may feel down this month, it's clear in the start of the year that this is the beginning of a stronger you! A career move will help you shake off your blues and move on with life. You have plenty of energy to focus on marketing your skills and selling your services, and by January 2017 you'll find you're making more money than you thought you could, with only you deciding how to spend and invest it. This feels like total freedom indeed, and the confidence it gives you will be noticed by a few who are starting to think of you in romantic terms. You probably won't be in the mood for much more than casual dating this year, but you can expect to be pursued. By 2017 you'll look back on this period as a magical shift.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Chace Crawford took a career-aptitude test in high school, which revealed that he was best suited for a career in the performing arts. His astrological chart reveals the same: Crawford is a sensitive Cancer, in touch with his emotions, as actors need to be. He was also born when the moon and Mercury were in Leo, the sign of show business. Look for Crawford in the horror flick "Eloise."

Annie's Mailbox

Be a Friend

Dear Annie: My husband was recently transferred at work to New York City from Chicago. That meant having to start all over again. Three years ago, we had a beautiful baby girl, Sophia. As a stay-at-home mom, I had worked hard at building a strong support network in Chicago with friends and family. When we first arrived at Sophia's new school, we found people to be a little standoffish. It was not the Midwestern friendliness we were used to.

A month passed by and still no friends or community. My husband and I just thought this would be the new normal. Then I met Chloe at Central Park. She has a little girl, named Madeline, who is just Sophia's age. She's originally from Cleveland. Her husband had been transferred to New York the previous year. She had the same Midwestern friendliness and warmth that were so familiar. Needless to say, we instantly became great friends. She introduced me to some of the other neighborhood moms. Within weeks, I felt a sense of community and was beginning to love my new city.

One sunny spring day while Chloe and I were pushing our daughters on the swings at Central Park, she said, "I'm pregnant. We're expecting in September." I was so surprised. I was pregnant, too, but had wanted to wait the traditional 12 weeks before telling anyone. I was so caught off guard that I blurted out, "I am, as well." Chloe was so enthusiastic about the whole thing, going on and on about how the new babies could be best friends like our daughters or how they could get married someday. It was so nice to have a pregnant buddy. We could commiserate about how exhausted we felt and how none of our clothes fit anymore. I was really starting to love New York -- until my husband and I went for our 12-week checkup. There was no heartbeat. A few days later, I miscarried. My husband and I were both so sad. At first, all I wanted to do was stay in bed all day and cry. But I knew that I had to be strong for my daughter and husband. I joined a support group for women who have miscarried and, day by day, began to feel better. The group encouraged me to reach out to friends, and that is just what I did. I shared my tragedy with Chloe. Her eyes became watery as I shared the news with her. But very quickly, she changed the subject. As time went on, she never spoke of her pregnancy amid a growing belly. When she delivered her baby in September, she slowly started calling me less and not making plans.

Since my miscarriage, I have felt a huge drift in our friendship right at a time when I have needed a friend the most. Why do you think she is acting this way? -- Friend in Need

Dear Friend: First off, I'm so sorry for your loss. It sounds as if you and your husband have taken all the right steps to properly grieve.

Chloe seems like a great friend when everything is going well and easy. Try telling her how you feel. She may be feeling guilty that she has a healthy baby and you don't, and she may think you'd be uncomfortable around her. Make clear to her that you just need a friend.

If you don't see a change in the friendship after that, dump her. You don't need someone in your life who heads for the hills when things get a little complicated. In a city of 8.4 million people, surely you can find a friend who will be there for you when times are good or bad.

"Lots of people want to ride with you in the limo, but what you want is someone who will take the bus with you when the limo breaks down." -- Oprah Winfrey

This Date In History

Today is Monday, July 18, the 200th day of 2016. There are 166 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 18, 1976, 14-year-old Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci (koh-muh-NEECH), competing at the Montreal Olympics, received the first-ever perfect score of 10 with her routine on uneven parallel bars. (Comaneci would go on to receive six more 10s in Montreal.)

On this date:

In A.D. 64, the Great Fire of Rome began, consuming most of the city for about a week. (Some blamed the fire on Emperor Nero, who in turn blamed Christians.)

In 1792, American naval hero John Paul Jones died in Paris at age 45.

In 1872, Britain enacted voting by secret ballot.

In 1925, Adolf Hitler published the first volume of his autobiographical screed, "Mein Kampf (My Struggle)."

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence Seaway.

In 1944, Hideki Tojo was removed as Japanese premier and war minister because of setbacks suffered by his country in World War II. American forces in France captured the Normandy town of St. Lo.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman signed a Presidential Succession Act which placed the speaker of the House and the Senate president pro tempore next in the line of succession after the vice president.

In 1955, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin, British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure met for a summit in Geneva.

In 1969, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., left a party on Chappaquiddick Island near Martha's Vineyard with Mary Jo Kopechne (koh-PEHK'-nee), 28; some time later, Kennedy's car went off a bridge into the water. Kennedy was able to escape, but Kopechne drowned.

In 1984, gunman James Huberty opened fire at a McDonald's fast food restaurant in San Ysidro (ee-SEE'-droh), California, killing 21 people before being shot dead by police. Walter F. Mondale won the Democratic presidential nomination in San Francisco.

In 1986, the world got its first look at the wreckage of the RMS Titanic resting on the ocean floor as videotape of the British luxury liner, which sank in 1912, was released by the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

In 1994, a bomb hidden in a van destroyed a Jewish cultural center in Buenos Aires, Argentina, killing 85. Tutsi rebels declared an end to Rwanda's 14-week-old civil war.

Ten years ago: The Senate voted after two days of emotional debate to expand federal funding of embryonic stem cell research, sending the measure to President George W. Bush for a promised veto. A doctor and two nurses who'd labored at a flooded-out New Orleans hospital in Hurricane Katrina's chaotic aftermath were arrested and accused of killing four trapped and desperately ill patients with injections of morphine and sedatives. (A grand jury later declined to indict Dr. Anna Pou and the nurses.)

Wrigley Field," Hamels said. "Growing up as a kid watching it on WGN, it's just a great ballpark to come play at. The fans are great here. I'm just going out enjoying the moment."

Sam Dyson struck out three in the ninth for his 19th save in 21 chances.

Ian Desmond homered and Robinson Chirinos drove in two runs as Texas avoided a three-game sweep. The Cubs had won three in a row.

John Lackey (7-6) allowed four runs and six hits in eight innings as his winless streak reached seven starts on a warm afternoon with the wind blowing out. He is 14-16 in 41 starts against Texas, the team he's faced most often in his career.

"The story really today was Cole. He pitched really well," Lackey said. "We weren't able to do anything against him. I was honestly pretty happy about the way I threw the ball. Threw eight innings and definitely not a good day to pitch."

Hamels fanned the side in the first two innings.

The streak ended when Matt Szczur popped out and Albert Almora Jr. reached on third baseman Adrian Beltre's error in the third. Javier Baez doubled home a run.

Elvis Andrus' RBI single and Chirinos' sacrifice fly put the Rangers ahead in the second. Almora made a leaping catch in center field to rob Chirinos of extra bases.

Chirinos hit an RBI double after Lackey walked the first two batters in the fourth.

Desmond led off the eighth with his 16th home run.

The Cubs got back-to-back singles to start the bottom of the seventh before a double play and groundout ended the rally.

2 games in 1: Pirates win marathon 18-inning affair

WASHINGTON (AP) — After more than five hours of baseball between his Pittsburgh Pirates and the Washington Nationals, Starling Marte had all he could take.

"Too many innings," Marte said. "We were tired. It was time for a home run."

Marte's solo home run off Oliver Perez in the 18th inning on Sunday gave the Pirates a 2-1 victory in a marathon game that was the longest for both teams this season. The only longer game in the majors this season came July 1 when Cleveland beat Toronto in 19 innings.

It took 17 pitchers combining for 540 pitches in a bullpen- and stadium-emptying affair that lasted 5 hours, 48 minutes. It was close to ending a lot earlier — the Nationals were down to their last strike in the ninth inning when pinch hitter Daniel Murphy hit a tying home run.

By the time the 1:35 p.m. start ended at 7:23 p.m., stellar outings by Pittsburgh's Chad Kuhl and Washington's Max Scherzer felt like a distant memory.

Kuhl allowed one hit and two runners and struck out five in six shutout innings.

Hurdle said it was the outing Kuhl expected out of himself after some struggles, and the right-hander rewarded the organization for giving him the nod when Jonathon Niese was demoted to the bullpen.

Scherzer wasn't too bad himself, giving up one run and six hits and struck out seven. The homer by an injured Murphy took Scherzer off the hook for what would've been his second loss in a 1-0 game in three starts.

"We were in the middle of a pitchers' duel and when it is like that, every little thing is amplified," Scherzer said.

Murphy, who was out of the lineup for the third consecutive day with a sore left hamstring, took All-Star closer Mark Melancon deep on a 2-2 cutter with two outs in the ninth.

epic battle between two 40-somethings at Royal Troon.

Mickelson was a runner-up for the 11th time in a major, but never like this. He can't look back at a mistake because he really didn't make any. He opened with a career-best 65, shot the second-best score in Open history and was 11 shots better than everyone in the field.

Except one.

"It's probably the best I've played and not won," Mickelson said. "I think that's probably why it's disappointing in that I don't have a point where I can look back and say, 'I should have done that or had I only done this.' I played a bogey-free round of 65 on the final round of a major. Usually, that's good enough to do it, and I got beat. I got beat by 10 birdies."

He got beat by arguably the best final round in 156 years of major championships.

Miller also made 10 birdies in his final round of the 1973 U.S. Open, and then waited to see if anyone could catch him. Stenson started the final round with a one-shot lead over Mickelson, and knew it would be a two-man race from the opening hole when Mickelson nearly holed out from the fairway.

He answered great shot with one of his own, finally pulling away with birdies on the 14th and 15th holes, and then a third in a row after Mickelson drilled a 3-wood onto the green at the par-5 16th and came within a fraction of an inch of making an eagle.

The last birdie was for the record book.

Stenson finished at 264, breaking by one shot the 72-hole scoring record in the majors that David Toms set in the 2001 PGA Championship at Atlanta Athletic Club. His 20-under par matched Jason Day's record for lowest under par at last year's PGA Championship.

His biggest challenge was 46-year-old Mickelson, who has won five majors.

"I knew he wasn't going to back down at any point, and in a way that makes it easier for myself," Stenson said. "I knew I had to keep on pushing, keep on giving myself birdie chances. He wasn't going to give it to me, so I had to pull away. I'm just delighted I managed to do that with a couple of birdies at the right time."

This was heavyweight material, reminiscent of the "Duel in the Sun" just down the Ayrshire coastline at Turnberry in 1977, when Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus battled to the final hole, and no one else was closer than 10 shots.

Stenson and Mickelson were never separated by more than two shots over 40 straight holes until the Swede's final birdie. In the final round, they combined to make 14 birdies and an eagle. If this was a better-ball match, they would have shot 59.

"I've always thought that he is one of the best ball-strikers in the game and that major championships are perfectly suited for him," Mickelson said. "I knew that he would ultimately come through and win.

I'm happy that he did. I'm disappointed that it was at my expense."

J.B. Holmes won the B-Flight. He finished third, 14 shots behind.

The Swede won his first major in his 42nd attempt, becoming only the ninth player to capture his first major after turning 40. Beyond the score, the measure of his performance was that he putted for a birdie on every hole Sunday in a mild wind off the Irish Sea. Stenson three-putted for bogey from just off the first green, and he three-putted on No. 11 to fall back into a tie for the lead.

They matched pars on only six of the 18 holes.

Stenson became only the fourth player to win the British Open with all four rounds in the 60s, joining Tiger Woods, Nick Price and Greg Norman. He also ended a streak of six American winners at Royal Troon that dated to 1950.

He gave Sweden a long-awaited major in men's golf, 19 years after Jesper Parnevik lost a 54-hole lead at Royal Troon. Stenson said Parnevik send him a message that said, "Go out and finish what I didn't manage to finish."

"I'm really proud to have done that, and it's going to be massive for golf in Sweden with this win," Stenson said.
