Four indicted on gun smuggling charges

By LYNDEL MOODY
 Staff Writer

Four people were indicted by the Howard County Grand Jury Thursday for firearm smuggling charges from a case related to the death of a 12-year-old boy.

Christopher Yanez, Kimberly Kay Carson, Cindy Machado Lopez, and Cody Alan Wingo were all indicted in the 118th District Court on separate charges of firearm smuggling, which is a second-degree felony. According to information from Howard County District Attorney's of-rice, all four remain in jail. On May 10, 12-year-old Jose

May 16, Howard County Sheriff Stan Parker said the cause of death was found to be a bullet fragment that hit Hernandez while he and other individuals were unload-

"We discovered at the time of the shooting, two people from Big Spring had actually broken into a residence in another county south of San Angelo, and in that burglary they took a lot of household items as well as 28 guns," said Parker during the conference. "When they brought those guns back into Big Spring they picked up Jose Hernandez and they went to a residence north of town and began unloading them."

According to Parker, it was at this time that a gun went

July 4th Parade tradition in Highland South

By ROGER CLINE
 Staff Writer

We've had the Funtastic Fourth and the Coahoma Freedom Parade. The Pops in the Park is tonight; that leaves a neighborhood parade focused mainly on young folks for the morning of July 4, and it's well worth your time to check it out.

The event is the annual Highland South Fourth of July Parade.

At 10 a.m. on Tuesday, the parade will march from the corner of Highland and Robb streets, winding its way down Highland to the intersection with Goliad, where refreshments, entertainment, and announcement of decoration winners in the various categories will be on tap.

Speaking of categories, the march is open to the entire community, but judging of decorations and style will be made in the following areas:

Strollers; wagons; walkers; pets; tricycles and Big Wheels; kids' battery-operated vehicles (up to age 12); golf carts; bicycles (age 1 to 7); bicycles (age 8 and up); scooters, skateboards, and rollerblades; motorized vehicles (age 12 to 18); four-wheelers (allowed only if an adult over 18 is driving); horses, mailboxes; and houses and lawns.

"Mailboxes" and "houses and lawns" involves people who live along the parade route lavishly decorating their property with patriotic bunting, which will then be judged for the occasion.

Those who wish to participate in the parade should meet at the parade start location (Highland and Robb) by 9:30 a.m.

For more information or to make a donation of money or cookies, call Shonda Folsom at 432-213-7671.

Coahoma celebrates the 4th

Trump tweets mock video of him beating CNN, sparks criticism

By CATHERINE LUCEY

BRIDGEWATER, N.J. (AP) — President Donald Trump crowned his weekend rage against the news media with a mock video that shows him pummeling a man in a business suit — his face obscured by the CNN logo — outside a wrestling ring.

It was not immediately clear who produced the brief video, which appears to be a doctored version of Trump's 2007 appearance on World Wrestling Entertainment Inc. The 28-second clip was posted on Trump's official Twitter account Sunday morning, with the message: "# F r a u d N e w s C N N

#FNN." Trump, who has branded the media as the "opposition party" and CNN as "fake news," stayed on the attack later in the day, stating on Twitter that "the dishonest media will NEVER keep us from accomplishing our objectives on behalf of our GREAT AMERICAN PEOPLE!"

On Monday, he continued the attacks on Twitter: "At some point the Fake News will be forced to discuss our great jobs numbers, strong economy, success with ISIS, the border & so much else!"

Bruce Brown, executive director of the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, condemned the video as a "threat of physical violence against journalists." He said Trump's tweet was "beneath the office of the presidency."

A White House aide insisted the tweet should not send a chill across the media landscape.

"I think that no one would perceive that as a threat," homeland security adviser Tom Bossert said. "I hope they don't. But I do think that he's beaten up in a way on cable platforms that he has a right to respond to."

The White House strategy has been to pull no punches when it comes to addressing its critics. On Monday, Trump counselor Kellyanne Conway on Twitter accused Democratic Rep. Ted Lieu of talking "nonsense" when the California lawmaker tweeted to Conway that the media's role "is not to be patriotic." It is to tell the truth.

Conway tweeted that the "role of the media has been to retract false stories & fire liars. 'Truth' = patriotic vets died so you can talk nonsense."

White House officials traveling with Trump during his weekend stay at his New Jersey golf club did not immediately respond to questions about the video. It appeared to be a doctored version of an appearance Trump made on a World Wrestling Entertainment Inc. show called "Battle of the Billionaires" in 2007, in which Trump appears to attack WWE CEO Vince McMahon.

McMahon's wife, Linda, who founded and built the company with her husband, now heads the Small Business Administration for Trump and was a donor to his campaign.

The video was posted several days ago by a Reddit user with the title, "Trump takes down fake news." It was not clear whether that was where it originated or how Trump found it. Still, the user wrote Sunday about being "honored" Trump had tweeted the video. The user who posted the video has a history of posts using anti-Muslim and anti-immigrant language.

The president's verbal shots against news outlets and individual members of the media have grown increasingly personal in recent days even as lawmakers in both parties say the insults only threaten to undermine his political agenda.

CNN accused Trump of engaging in "juvenile behavior far below the dignity of his office."

Gov. Chris Christie is blistered over his day at the beach

By MICHAEL CATALINI

Associated Press

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)

— Gov. Chris Christie got blistered online Monday after he was photographed sunning himself on a New Jersey beach that he had closed to the public over the Fourth of July weekend because of a government shutdown.

Christie defended his use of the beach, saying he had previously announced his vacation plans and the media had simply "caught a politician keeping his word."

The Republican was photographed Sunday by NJ.com at Island Beach State Park lounging in a beach chair in sandals, shorts and a T-shirt. He and his family had the sun and sand to themselves.

"I didn't get any sun today," Christie told reporters at a news conference later in the day in Trenton. Then, when told of the photos, his spokesman told NJ.com that what the governor said was true because Christie was wearing a baseball hat. The deeply unpopular governor then returned by helicopter to the state-owned governor's beach house, flying right into the middle of a growing storm of his own making. He was widely mocked online as selfish and arrogant, with memes using the image of Christie in his beach chair. Some commenters ridiculed the portly Christie over his weight.

"SON OF A BEACH," screamed London's Daily Mail.

"Let them eat funnel cake," blared a headline in the Trentonian newspaper over the weekend after Christie ordered the shutdown but disclosed his plans to use the official beach house anyway.

Christie's lieutenant governor, who is running in November to succeed him, said Christie's beach time was "beyond words."

"If I were governor, I sure wouldn't be sitting on the beach if taxpayers didn't have access to state beaches," said Republican Lt. Gov. Kim Guadagno. "We need to end the shutdown now. It's hurting small businesses and ordinary New Jerseyans."

Christie ordered the shutdown of nonessential state services over the holiday weekend, including parks, beaches and motor vehicle offices, in a stalemate over his demand that Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield be overhauled so that the state can tap into the non-profit insurer's surplus to finance drug treatment.

Christie, who is heading into his final six months in office with approval ratings at an abysmal 15 percent, made supporting the $34.7 billion state budget contingent on the overhaul. Christie's ratings nosedived after three of his former allies were charged in the George Washington Bridge political revenge scandal, after he threw his support to Donald Trump, and after his own presidential campaign fizzled.

Christie has blamed a top Democratic lawmaker for the shutdown, with the state plastering CLOSED signs at parks with Assembly Speaker Vincent Prieto's picture and office phone number.

"That's the way it goes," Christie said Saturday about his family's use of the beach home. "Run for governor, and you can have the residence."

Later, after he was photographed on the beach, he sarcastically called it a "great bit of journalism."

"They actually caught a politician being where he said he was going to be with the people he said he was going to be with, his wife and children and their friends," Christie said in an interview with the New York Fox TV station. "I am sure they will get a Pulitzer for this one." Christie's Horizon proposal has perplexed some conservatives, who are fighting the legislation. Union groups that typically align with Democrats, such as the state's largest teachers union, also oppose the idea.

Missing North Texas girl found dead in Dallas; 2 arrested

DALLAS (AP) — A missing 13-year-old North Texas girl who was reported abducted and a man have both been found dead inside a Dallas home, authorities said Sunday.

Shavon Randle had been missing for several days and was identified as one of two people dead inside the house in Dallas' Oak Cliff area, Eric Jackson, special agent in charge of the Dallas FBI, said. He said the investigation was continuing and had no other information about the deaths.

"We didn't have the positive result we were looking for, but being able to let Shavon's family know that we've located her was our goal," Jackson said. "We're going to continue our investigation and anyone we find that were involved in this heinous crime against Shavon, we will bring you to justice and we will hold you accountable."

The area around the small one-story home was cordoned off Sunday morning. Investigators placed evidence markers around the front yard and people in hazardous materials suits could be seen entering and leaving the home.

The girl was reported abducted Wednesday from a home in Lancaster, about 15 miles (24.14 kilometers) south of Dallas.

Lancaster police then issued an Amber Alert after receiving the missing person call. Police said a relative told officers she received a call from an unknown man who said the girl was being held against her will and had threatened to harm her.

Lancaster police and FBI agents arrested two men Saturday, Devontae Owens, 24, and Laquon Wilkerson, 30, during their search for her. Both are held on $500,000 bond and charged with aggravated kidnapping.

Authorities have said two other men are being questioned and another man was being sought.

Injured hiker evacuated by helicopter from El Paso mountain

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Authorities in El Paso have rescued a 69-year-old hiker who fell about 30 feet into a canyon about a mile up in the Franklin Mountains.

El Paso Fire Department officials say they were dispatched Sunday morning to Red Rock Canyon after fellow hikers called 911 to report a hiker had suffered serious injuries in the fall. A rescue team arrived about 30 minutes later and summoned a helicopter because of the extent of the hiker's injuries.

The injured person was evacuated and taken to a hospital about two hours after the initial call and a search and rescue team escorted the rest of the hiking party off the mountain.

The operation involved about 25 people from the El Paso fire and police, Texas Parks and Wildlife and nearby Fort Bliss.

Woman's body washes ashore at Padre Island National Seashore

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Authorities believe a woman found dead near the edge of the surf on the Padre Island National Seashore in South Texas is a drowning victim.

The body was spotted Saturday by a Turtle Patrol team on a part of the beach that's closed to vehicles about 2 miles (3.22 kilometers) north of the Malaquite Visitor Center.

Kleberg County sheriff's officials say she has not immediately been identified.

She's described as likely in her 40s with sandy-colored hair. No vehicles or other people were in the area.

Park Ranger William Botts says the discovery is a reminder that probably the greatest risk for visitors to national parks is entering the water.

Texas sailor killed in ship collision back home for burial

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — A Texas sailor killed two weeks ago in the collision of a Navy destroyer with a container ship off the coast of Japan has returned home for burial.

A procession escorting the remains of Gunner's Mate 2nd Class Noe Hernandez paused Saturday for a moment of silence outside a light blue trailer in Weslaco in the Rio Grande Valley that was once his childhood home. Hernandez, one of seven Navy sailors killed aboard the USS Fitzgerald, arrived earlier in the day at McAllen-Miller International Airport.

Forecaster says budget cuts could hurt hurricane predictions

In this Sept. 2, 2010, file photo, Chief hurricane forecaster James Franklin prepares for a live update on Hurricane Earl at the National Hurricane Center in Miami. Franklin, a retiring chief of the hurricane specialist unit at the National Hurricane Center in Miami says further cuts to tropical weather research threaten to undermine recent improvements in hurricane intensity forecasts.

By JENNIFER KAY
Associated Press

MIAMI (AP) — Recent progress in forecasting the intensity of hurricanes — which has lagged behind storm track forecasting — could be undermined by proposed cuts in federal funding for tropical weather research, says the retiring chief of a team of U.S. hurricane specialists.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration launched the Hurricane Forecast Improvement Program in 2009 with a $13 million budget. Funding has shrunk to less than half that, and President Donald Trump's proposed budget includes further cuts to NOAA and the National Weather Service.

"It's hanging on really by a thread in terms of funding," said James Franklin, who oversees the National Hurricane Center team that releases tropical storm forecasts and warnings.

During his time at NOAA, Franklin was on research teams that made breakthroughs in tropical storm forecasting and in the understanding of the winds circling a hurricane's eye. His research with dropsondes — sensor-filled tubes that send weather data as they fall through hurricanes — helped improve forecasts of storm tracks and led NOAA to buy a "hurricane hunter" jet that's still used today. He also helped develop new GPS dropsondes that showed how eyewall winds vary.

Before his June 30 retirement, ending a 35-year NOAA career that included 83 flights breaching hurricane eyewalls, Franklin discussed forecasting with The Associated Press:

Hurricane track forecasts have steadily improved partly because the weather elements that direct a storm's path are easy to see, Franklin said. For example, a high-pressure area over the Atlantic known as the Bermuda High, which can nudge storms toward land instead of over open waters, is hundreds of miles (kilometers) across.

However, forecasting intensity has been more difficult because it depends on the interactions between the ocean and thunderstorms at the core of a tropical storm, and those interactions happen in an area just tens of miles (kilometers) wide and are difficult to observe even with advanced dropsondes, drones and satellites, Franklin said.

"We've always been able to see many or most of the steering factors or steering features in the atmosphere, and we get better at it all the time," he said.

"But when it comes to intensity, what's going to make a tropical depression strengthen into a hurricane — now you're talking about all kinds of things going on in the atmosphere on very small scales. You're talking about the interface between the ocean and the atmosphere. How much heat is going to get extracted from that ocean? That's a big driver for intensification."

Improved forecasts, however, can be a double-edged sword, Franklin said. Despite a variety of warnings and advisories highlighting specific storm hazards, such as storm surge flooding, some people still expect hurricanes to stick to a predicted track, even though forecasts include a range of potential outcomes.

"I find this surprising because there's still so many bad forecasts out there — ours included — yet we see it over and over: people don't have a good grasp on just what the forecast uncertainties still are," he said.

The hurricane center issued its first advisories for potential tropical cyclones in June, alerting the U.S. Gulf Coast and Venezuela's Caribbean coast to strong winds and heavy rains a full day before tropical storms Bret and Cindy were officially named. Franklin said those advisories reflect both forecasting improvements and the hurricane center's emphasis on potential risks for communities in a storm's path.

Sanchez homers in 8th, White Sox beat Rangers 6-5

By DAVE ROYSE

Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — The Texas Rangers had a lead late, and again the bullpen failed to hold it.

Reliever Jose Leclerc (1-2) gave up a two-run home run with two outs in the eighth to Chicago's Yolmer Sanchez and the White Sox beat the Rangers 6-5 on Sunday.

It was a sloppy, error- and walk-filled game in which both teams gave the other numerous chances. The White Sox committed a season-high four errors, including two on the same play that allowed a run to score.

"It was not the cleanest game," Chicago manager Rick Renteria said.

The Sox also nearly let the Rangers off the hook after taking the lead, loading the bases in the ninth before David Robertson (4-2) struck out Carlos Gomez to end the game.

Even that final strikeout was sloppy, as the ball got away from catcher Kevan Smith. He could have just thrown to first to finalize the game, because Gomez didn't run, but Smith instead grabbed the ball and dove to touch home plate before Joey Gallo could score from home.

The Rangers are tied for most blown saves in the American League with 17.

"It was one pitch, one moment — good hitters put good swings on hanging breaking balls," Rangers manager Jeff Banister said.

Actually, Banister said, the four pitches earlier in the inning that set up the game-winning home run were just as problematic when Chicago's Todd Frazier walked, after getting behind in the count 0-2.

"The walk was really what led to that situation, the inability to make a pitch there in that at-bat, (when) you have a guy down two strikes," Banister said. And while the bullpen again will be blamed, there were other problems throughout.

"We had an opportunity in the ninth against their closer and didn't get the job done," Banister said. "The biggest story is the seven walks and (a) hit batter, three of which scored today."

The White Sox were also frustrated by mistakes. Among the team's four errors, two came in the fourth inning when the Rangers' Robinson Chirinos stole second. Smith's throw to second sailed out into center field, allowing Chirinos to head for third. Chirinos retrieved it and tried to throw out Chirinos at third, but the throw was off target and Chirinos went home.

Sanchez, however, erased the problems with the dramatic, late, home run, just his fourth of the season.

"We never quit," Sanchez said through an interpreter.

Gurriel drives in 4 runs as Astros get 7-6 win over Yankees

By KRISTIE RIEKEN

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Yuli Gurriel is a rookie on paper.

However, after a 17-year career in Cuba and Japan before joining the Astros late last season he's one of the team's most experienced players, and he showed off by fighting through an at-bat with Yankees closer Aroldis Chapman to get a two-run double to lift Houston to a 7-6 victory Saturday night.

Gurriel also hit a two-run homer in the fifth before capping Houston's scoring in its four-run eighth.

The Astros trailed 6-3 in the eighth before Jose Altuve walked with one out before stealing second and third and scoring on a groundout by Carlos Correa. Evan Gattis then connected off Delin Betances (3-3) on a towering shot to the train tracks atop left field to cut the lead to 6-5.

Carlos Beltran walked and was replaced by pinch-runner Josh Reddick, who reached second on an error by first baseman Chris Carter before stealing third. Marwin Gonzalez walked to chase Betances, who was replaced by Chapman.

There was a full count when Gurriel shot a grounder down the left field line to send both runners home and put Houston on top 7-6.

"He was incredibly patient and I think it shows his maturity as a baseball player," manager A.J. Hinch said. "I know he's a rookie so to speak ... in the States, but that was as mature an at-bat you can get in that situation ... for him to literally sit there and be patient and wait for a pitch to hit until the count got deep, it was a really special at-bat."

Gurriel said he faced Chapman in Cuba, but that it was different because the latter was a starter back then.

"He's one of the best closers in the game right now," Gurriel said in Spanish through an interpreter. "So for me to get in that at-bat and get a big hit it was really important."

Chapman said he didn't think Gurriel's hit had anything to do with the history so much together.

"He had good contact there," Chapman said in Spanish through an interpreter. "I think his mind was set to hit something inside, fast, so I think he was looking for it."

Gurriel, who finished with three hits, ended the game when he tagged out Brett Gardner at first after the Yankees outfielder tried to get back to first base after making too wide a turn on a single to left center with two outs.

Dayan Diaz (1-1) allowed one hit in a scoreless eighth for the win and Ken Giles pitched a scoreless ninth for his 19th save.

Correa had a solo homer in the sixth.

Didi Gregorius hit his first career grand slam to put the Yankees up 5-2 in the sixth and rookie Clint Frazier had two hits and a solo homer in his major league debut. Frazier is the first Yankee since 1913 to double and homer in his first major league game.

Judge, Correa, Arenado among 12 1st-time All-Star starters

New York Yankees' Aaron Judge, right, and Houston Astros second baseman Jose Altuve have a conversation during the first inning of a baseball game, Sunday, July 2, 2017, in Houston. Both players have been elected to start in the All-Star Game in Miami on July 12, 2017.

By RONALD BLUM

AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Aaron Judge, Carlos Correa and Nolan Arenado led a new generation of All-Stars, among 12 first-time starters elected by fans for the July 11 game at Marlins Park.

"I've got to call my family and tell them to book a flight to Miami. They're going to be excited," Judge said after rosters were announced Sunday.

The dozen first-time starters are the most since voting was returned to fans in 1970.

Just one player was picked from the World Series champion Cubs: reliever Wade Davis, who wasn't even with Chicago when it ended a 108-year title drought last fall. The Cubs had seven All-Stars last season, including their entire starting infield.

"Frankly, we haven't had many guys who were all that deserving," Cubs pitcher Jake Arrieta.

Just past the halfway point, the Cubs are 41-

41. "Maybe this is actually a good thing. Right now, rest is not a bad word," said Chicago's Joe Maddon, who will manage the NL.

In a sign of the generational change, the All-Stars with the most selections are Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Clayton Kershaw with eight and St. Louis catcher Yadier Molina with seven. Detroit's Miguel Cabrera, the senior All-Star last year with 11 selections, wasn't picked for the first time since 2009.

Two of the first-time starters are from the Houston Astros, who have the best record in the major leagues: Correa, the shortstop drafted first overall in 2012, and outfielder George Springer. Second baseman Jose Altuve was elected to his third start. "It's something that you dream about since you are a little kid, since you get drafted, since you sign a professional contract," Correa said.

Houston pitchers Dallas Keuchel and Lance McCullers Jr. were picked, as well, giving the Astros five All-Stars, tied for the most with the New York Yankees, Cleveland and Washington. Keuchel is hurt and won't pitch.

Nationals outfielder Bryce Harper, second baseman Daniel Murphy and first baseman Ryan Zimmerman were elected to start, and Max Scherzer and Stephen Strasburg were selected for the pitching staff. Harper led fan voting with 4.63 million ballots.

"Definitely humbled by fans, the way they treat me," Harper said.

At 32, Zimmerman is an All-Star for the first time since 2009, when he was a reserve third baseman.

"Yeah, sports are funny, man," Zimmerman said. "It's just a crazy path to get back, but it's also pretty cool."

Judge, the 6-foot-7 rookie who leads the major leagues with 27 home runs, topped the AL with 4.49 million votes. He is joined in the outfield by Springer and Los Angeles Angels star

Mike Trout, who hopes to return in time from a torn thumb ligament.

Cleveland's Jose Ramirez overtook Minnesota's Miguel Sano in the final days of balloting to win the AL third base spot by about 54,000 votes, Toronto's Justin Smoak bounced back to beat Kansas City's Eric Hosmer by 555,000 at first base, and Tampa Bay's Corey Dickerson rallied to win at designated hitter by nearly 75,000 over Seattle's Nelson Cruz. The Royals' Salvador Perez won at catcher.

Arenado overtook the Cubs' Kris Bryant, last year's NL MVP, to win at third base by 180,000. Arenado will be joined in the NL lineup by Cincinnati shortstop Zack Cozart, Rockies outfielder Charlie Blackmon, Miami outfielder Marcell Ozuna and San Francisco catcher Buster Posey.

"It would be even more fun if there were a few more guys going from the team," said Posey,

Honest Scorpio Moon

People are doing their best. It may not seem like it to someone who doesn't know the particulars about other people's skill levels, where they started, what the obstacles were and how far they've come. This honest Scorpio moon has three directives: Give people the benefit of the doubt; deliver gentle truths; and lean into humanity's basic goodness.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The word "intrigue" can have a positive connotation of fascination or a negative connotation of dirty tricks and political scheming. You're alluring. Be a benevolent keeper of the curiosity of others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You feel like you need a certain item for practical reasons, and yet the reasons are actually more sentimental or habitual in nature. Sometimes security blankets really do provide security, though!

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Invest yourself in a program, and don't worry if it's the exact right one for you now. If it keeps you accountable to what you want to be accountable to, it's probably going to be good for you.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Don't worry so much about finding the right person to spend time with. There are so many options. Try a few out! If you like them, you'll go back for more. If not, move on to the next. Socializing is simple!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Just as casual social interest develops over synchronistic body language, conversation and interests, long-term relationship success depends on deep synchronicity of values, worldview, trust and caring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It will be worthwhile to make yourself a little more like those you're trying to influence, if only momentarily. People who feel comfortable and familiar with you are more likely to let you in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Even the most basic animal attraction is rooted in the mind. Confidence and magnetism count far more than an arrangement of exterior traits. You've already got the aesthetics nailed, so make sure your inner game is solid, too.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The people at the top set the tone. When you're not feeling as calm and collected as you want to feel, dig down deeper for it. Do it for the ones under you who will surely be affected by your level of composure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll land in a sweet, elite arrangement. This has a little to do with luck but a lot more to do with your attitude. You see problems as opportunities, and so that's what they become.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Do the important thing first (even though you anticipate that it will be a little bit boring). Once you get that out of the way, a rush of interesting options will fill the void.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). When you know someone well enough to sense how he or she is feeling, that's love. When you can also predict what's going to trigger those feelings, that's a love rare and true.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You want your love, but you don't need this person for your survival, well-being or even your happiness. You are, in fact, extremely independent, and this puts a lot of fun and freedom into the relationship.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 3). Don't underestimate yourself. The limits that others put on you are not your real limits. It will be pretty obvious when the real ones kick in, and you shouldn't stop until you know that feeling. There's a happy win this month and another random windfall in December. The charity you give will help along a miracle. Libra and Scorpio adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 20, 4, 45 and 32.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION: "How do you know when a relationship is beyond repair? I've been with my Cancer husband for 14 years. The things I used to find mysterious and charming I now find dull and annoying. Why does it always have to be me who does the work in the relationship? It's all so one-sided. I wish that he'd make a romantic suggestion one day, like 'Let's go to Morocco.' That will never happen. If I do nothing, we're just going to keep drifting apart. What do you think? I'm an Aquarius."

It's hard to be the only one working on a relationship. But are you sure you're giving enough credit to your husband? Is it possible that he does more for the relationship than you think? Is he pleasant? Does he contribute financially? Is he appreciative? Is he easy to live with? Perhaps you've always been the idea person in the relationship -- Aquarius is so imaginative -- and your romantic suggestions are simply what's needed to keep the fire alive. Is that so bad, really? Don't give up strictly out of boredom, because you truly do have enough good ideas for the both of you.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: After dropping out of seminary school at age 14 and ending his high school wrestling career with a knee injury, Tom Cruise nabbed the lead in his school's production of "Guys and Dolls" and went on to become one of the most ubiquitous movie stars of his time. Cruise is a Cancer with his moon, Venus and Uranus in Leo, the sign of entertainment, which indicates a keen intuition and loads of charisma.

Obesity Ignored

Dear Annie: I am over 70 years old and in failing health. My stepbrother, "Tom," is 58. Although he is still working, I am sure that he will soon have to stop because over the past few years, he has become steadily more obese, and the doctors seem unable to find a cause or remedy, nor do they really seem to care. He now weighs almost 700 pounds. I love my brother and am worried about what will happen to him when I am gone. I have always been reasonably slender, and my brother doesn't seem to eat much more than I do, and he certainly doesn't eat cake, pies or other junk food, nor does he eat large portions.

When I look around, it seems as if obesity is becoming more and more of a problem in the U.S. What happens when obese people are unable to work but are too young to receive their Social Security benefits? What happens when they become too old and infirm to care for their own basic needs? I can't understand why the medical profession doesn't assign a higher priority to the treatment of obesity in this country. Why can't more people understand that it isn't just a problem of over-eating? -- Concerned Brother

Dear Concerned: Your letter is a testament to what a blessing siblings can be. It's great you're still looking out for your little brother. I'm not a doctor, but it sounds to me as if Tom could have hypothyroidism, which slows down the metabolism. The most important thing you can do for your brother is encourage him to seek the opinion of another doctor. Offer to take him to the appointment yourself if it would help. Finally, be sure to take care of yourself, too. I'm sure Tom is as worried about his elder brother as you are about him.

Dear Annie: I'm a psychiatrist. For several decades, I've treated patients for attention deficit hyperactivity disorder. You recently ran a letter from "Missing My Space Cadet." He was concerned about his wife, who, after being prescribed an "amphetamine medication" for ADHD, became laser-focused on work and was no longer fun-loving. She was also described as sleeping and eating lots more on days when she didn't take it.

As you said, she may be abusing her medication, but another possibility (more likely, in my opinion) is that the prescribed dose is simply too high for her. Most patients -- and more than a few prescribers -- do not realize that with ADHD medications, there is usually a fairly small difference between the dose that does nothing and the dose that has unwelcome side effects or that the correct dosage can vary quite widely from person to person. Thus, rather than simply prescribe a standard dosage, doctors must conduct a single-case experiment for every patient. This requires close communication between doctor and patient. But if both of them aren't careful, the patient can continue to be prescribed the wrong dosage.

For this reason, I think your advice that the husband and wife should go together to the next appointment was very much on target. My guess is that the problem could be easily solved by lowering the dosage considerably. Unless the woman is taking more than the prescribed dosage, the word "abuse" is not applicable. -- A Psychiatrist in New York

Dear Psychiatrist: Input from medical professionals such as you is always helpful. You've raised a great point. I've passed this information along to "Missing My Space Cadet." Thank you.

Opening lead — queen of spades.
This deal occurred in the U.S.-Italy match in 1969. It features a striking illustration of top-notch defense.

To begin with, Sidney Lazard, the hero of this piece, got off to the killing lead when he chose the queen of spades as his opening shot against three notrump. Without a spade lead, the Italian declarer would have finished with at least 10 tricks by establishing dummy's diamonds. But with it, South found himself fighting an uphill battle.

He ducked the first spade but had to win the continuation with the king. A diamond to the queen lost to the king, and Lazard returned a spade to the ace, leaving dummy with no entry to the diamonds.

Declarer played a club to the queen, which held, and led a second diamond, won by Lazard with the ace. Lazard exited with a club to South's ace, at which point this was the position:

Declarer now cashed the A-K-Q of hearts, hoping next to put West on lead with a fourth round of hearts and compel him to yield the last two tricks to dummy.

But on the A-K-Q of hearts, Lazard played the 5-10-J in that order, and when declarer next led the seven, he found himself an unhappy winner of the trick. As a result, South had to yield the last two tricks to East and so went down one.

This Date In History

Today is Monday, July 3, the 184th day of 2017. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On July 3, 1863, the three-day Civil War Battle of Gettysburg in Pennsylvania ended in a major victory for the North as Confederate troops failed to breach Union positions during an assault known as Pickett's Charge.

On this date: In 1775, Gen. George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Massachusetts. In 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state of the Union. In 1913, during a 50th anniversary reunion at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, Civil War veterans re-enacted Pickett's Charge, which ended with embraces and handshakes between the former enemies. In 1938, President Franklin D. Roosevelt marked the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg by dedicating the Eternal Light Peace Memorial. In 1944, during World War II, Soviet forces recaptured Minsk from the Germans. In 1950, the first carrier strikes of the Korean War took place as the USS Valley Forge and the HMS Triumph sent fighter planes against North Korean targets. In 1962, French President Charles de Gaulle signed an agreement recognizing Algeria as an independent state after 132 years of French rule. In 1971, singer Jim Morrison of The Doors died in Paris at age 27. In 1976, Israel launched its daring mission to rescue 106 passengers and Air France crew members being held at Entebbe (en-TEH'bee) Airport in Uganda (yoo-GAHN'dah) by pro-Palestinian hijackers; the commandos succeeded in rescuing all but four of the hostages. In 1987, British millionaire Richard Branson and Per Lindstrand became the first hot-air balloon travelers to cross the Atlantic, parachuting into the sea as their craft went down off the Scottish coast. In 1988, the USS Vincennes shot down an Iran Air jetliner over the Persian Gulf, killing all 290 people aboard. In 1992, the first U.S. Air Force C-130 transport planes from Operation Provide Promise arrived in the besieged Bosnian capital of Sarajevo. Ten years ago: President George W. Bush refused to rule out an eventual pardon for I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby after already commuting his prison sentence in the CIA leak case whose Giants are last in the NL West.

(as it turned out, Bush left office without pardoning Libby). Japan's defense minister (Fumio Kyuma) resigned after drawing furious criticism for suggesting the U.S. atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki were inevitable. The Alinghi team from Switzerland succeeded in defending sailing's coveted America's Cup, beating Emirates Team New Zealand 5-2. Five years ago: A federal judge in Amarillo, Texas, found Clayton F. Osborn, a JetBlue Airways pilot who left the cockpit during a flight and screamed about religion and terrorists, not guilty by reason of insanity of interfering with a flight crew. Andy Griffith, 86, who made homespun American Southern wisdom his trademark as the wise sheriff in "The Andy Griffith Show," died at his North Carolina home.

There were 11 first-time starters last season in San Diego, the last year the winning league received home-field advantage in the World Series. Under baseball's new labor contract, the Series now starts in the ballpark of the pennant winner with the better record.

Catcher Gary Sanchez, injured second baseman Starlin Castro and pitchers Dellin Betances and Luis Severino also were picked from the Yankees. Cleveland is sending pitchers Corey Kluber and Andrew Miller, shortstop Francisco Lindor and outfielder Michael Brantley.

"I'm just happy for Cleveland," said the Indians' Terry Francona, who will manage the AL. "I think the fans and the city — everybody should be proud."

Marlins outfielder Giancarlo Stanton was picked as a reserve and plans to defend his Home Run Derby title on July 10. Judge also has been invited, and Los Angeles Dodgers rookie Cody Bellinger, who leads the NL with 24 homers, has said he will participate.

"It is going to be amazing," Stanton said. "Either way, the week was going to be cool, but this makes it even cooler."

The NL-leading Dodgers will send Bellinger, Kershaw, shortstop Corey Seager and closer Kenley Jansen to Miami, but nobody from Los Angeles was elected for the starting lineup by fans. Jansen was upset with his own fanbase for letting down Seager and third baseman Justin Turner.

"I'll say it loud and clear again: It's the Dodger fans' fault," Jansen said. Among other strong candidates overlooked were Carlos Carrasco, Jacob deGrom, Gio Gonzalez, Ivan Nova, Roberto Osuna, Anthony Rizzo, Travis Shaw, Andreton Simmons, Justin Upton and Alex Wood.

Rosters were cut from 34 per league to 32 under the new labor deal, and online voting determines the last spot on each roster. Elvis Andrus, Xander Bogaerts, Didi Gregorius, Logan Morrison and Mike Moustakas are the AL candidates, and Justin Bour, Bryant, Anthony Rendon, Mark Reynolds and Turner are on the NL ballot.

The AL had won four straight and went 11-3 in the years the All-Star Game determined World Series home field. Marlins Park is the third of four straight NL ballparks to host the All-Stars and will be followed by Washington in 2018.

Chicago White Sox's Yolmer Sanchez (5) is greeted by Todd Frazier (21) after hitting a two-run home run against the Texas Rangers during the eighth inning of a baseball game, Sunday, July 2, 2017, in Chicago.

"We try to fight every single inning... We have some good comeback wins, and we did it today, too."

Melky Cabrera also homered for Chicago — hitting his ninth in the first — and Mike Napoli hit his 16th for Texas.

White Sox starter Jose Quintana had his shortest outing since May 30, giving up five runs in 4 1/3 innings. He walked two and struck out five. Quintana had thrown 19 scoreless innings before giving up a run in the third inning.

Texas starter Tyler Ross gave up four runs in five innings, walked five, and hit one batter.

Jonathan Lucroy had given the Rangers a 5-4 lead with a two-run single in the fifth. He noted the frustrations with the team's inability to hold on to late leads, but said it doesn't matter how the team loses.

"A loss is a loss," Lucroy said. "Obviously it's frustrating, but I don't think it changes our outlook on anything else... Hopefully we keep giving our bullpen chances to close a game out for us like that."

TEXAS BULLPEN BEEF-UP

The Rangers made a move Sunday to try to bolster the bullpen, acquiring right-hander Jason Grilli from Toronto. Grilli, 40, had been 2-4 with a 7.97 ERA, and was designated for assignment by Toronto. Grilli had 33 saves for the Pirates in 2013 and made the All-Star team, and also saved 24 games for Atlanta in 2015.

NOT MAKING THEM EARN IT

With the two unearned runs allowed Sunday, the White Sox have now given up 43 on the season. They came into the game having allowed the second most unearned runs in the American League, behind Oakland. The Sox also have made the second-most errors in all of MLB, again behind Oakland.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Rangers: RHP Tony Barnette (right finger sprain) was activated from the 10-day disabled list. ... RHP Andrew Cashner is listed as the Rangers' starter for Wednesday's game against Boston. Cashner was hit on the right arm by a broken bat on Thursday at Cleveland.

White Sox: RF Avisail Garcia (left knee inflammation) sat out a fourth straight game, but said he was feeling good after running and swinging and expected to be back in the lineup Monday. ... INF Tyler Saladino (back spasms) won't make the White Sox trip to Oakland, Renteria said.

UP NEXT

Rangers: LHP Martin Perez (4-6, 4.70 ERA) returns after a stint on the DL (broken right thumb) to start Monday against Boston.

White Sox: LHP Carlos Rodon (0-1, 0.00 ERA) makes his second start of the season at Oakland on Monday after returning from the disabled list (left biceps bursitis.)

An RBI single by Gary Sanchez cut the lead to 2-1 in the sixth before the grand slam by Gregorius put the Yankees on top 5-2 and gave them a grand slam in two straight games after Gardner hit one in a 13-4 win on Friday.

Rookie Jordan Montgomery yielded five hits and three runs in 5 1/3 innings.

Martes allowed four hits and two runs with seven strikeouts in five-plus innings.

The game was scoreless in the bottom of the fifth when Gurriel's homer to the front row of the seats in left field made it 2-0.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Yankees: Manager Joe Girardi said LHP CC Sabathia, who has been on the DL since June 14 with a strained left hamstring, could start Tuesday. ... RHP Adam Warren (right shoulder inflammation) is scheduled to throw a simulated game on Sunday and could come off the DL early next week.

Astros: LHP Dallas Keuchel (pinched nerve in neck) played catch on Saturday, but the Astros still don't have a timetable for when he'll begin throwing off the mound. ... RHP Charlie Morton (strained back muscle) will make one more rehabilitation start in the minors before rejoining the team next week in Toronto. Morton has made two starts at Triple-A Fresno and his last rehabilitation start will be at Double-A Corpus Christi on Sunday. ... Third-base coach Gary Pettis will have surgery to repair a torn meniscus in his right knee on July 5 and will be away from the team until after the All-Star break. Fresno manager Tony DeFrancesco will fill in while he's out.

The Astros had two doubles on Saturday to give them at least one in a franchise-record 39 straight games. The previous record of 38 was set from July 27-Sept. 6 1977. It is the longest such streak since the Pirates doubled in 44 straight games in 2008.

Betances on his night: "These guys fought to come back in this game. Montgomery had a good start. Hitters did what they did. I didn't do my job, and that's the reason we lost."

Yankees: Luis Severino (5-3, 3.15 ERA) will start for New York on Sunday. Severino allowed six hits and one run while striking out a career-high 12 in seven innings of his last start, but did not factor into the decision in New York's 4-3 loss to the White Sox.

Maria Menounos reveals brain tumor battle, quits E! News

NEW YORK (AP) — Maria Menounos says she has been diagnosed with a benign brain tumor and has announced her resignation from E! News.

Menounos tells People magazine that she underwent surgery last month to remove a golf-ball-sized tumor discovered in February. Menounos says 99.9 percent of the tumor was removed during the seven-hour procedure on June 8. She says there's a small chance that it could come back.

E! says Monday that Menounos is leaving the network after three years. The cable network says it believes Menounos will tackle her health struggles "with the same fierce dedication she is known for."

The 39-year-old says her face is still numb from the surgery but should be back to normal soon.

Menounos is also caring for her mother, who has stage-four brain cancer.

Amtrak train cars derail in Washington state; minor injuries

STEILACOOM, Wash. (AP) — Several people suffered minor injuries after parts of an Amtrak passenger train derailed in Washington state, authorities said.

The locomotive and the baggage car of the Amtrak Cascades train derailed Sunday about 45 miles (72 kilometers) south of Seattle near the town of Steilacoom, Amtrak and the Pierce County sheriff's office said.

The train, which was carrying 267 passengers, derailed near the Chambers Bay golf course, which was the site of the 2015 U.S. Open.

Mitchell Crowley, of Redmond, told the Seattle Times that he was on one of the four cars that went off the track.

"I was in the farthest back, didn't go very far off the rails," the 18-year-old said. "I did get to have that exciting experience: Brake, brake, brake and tipping over."

Crowley said the car he was on tipped about 15 degrees.

All passengers were evacuated and provided with alternate transportation, the company said. The train runs between Vancouver, Canada, and Eugene-Springfield, Oregon.

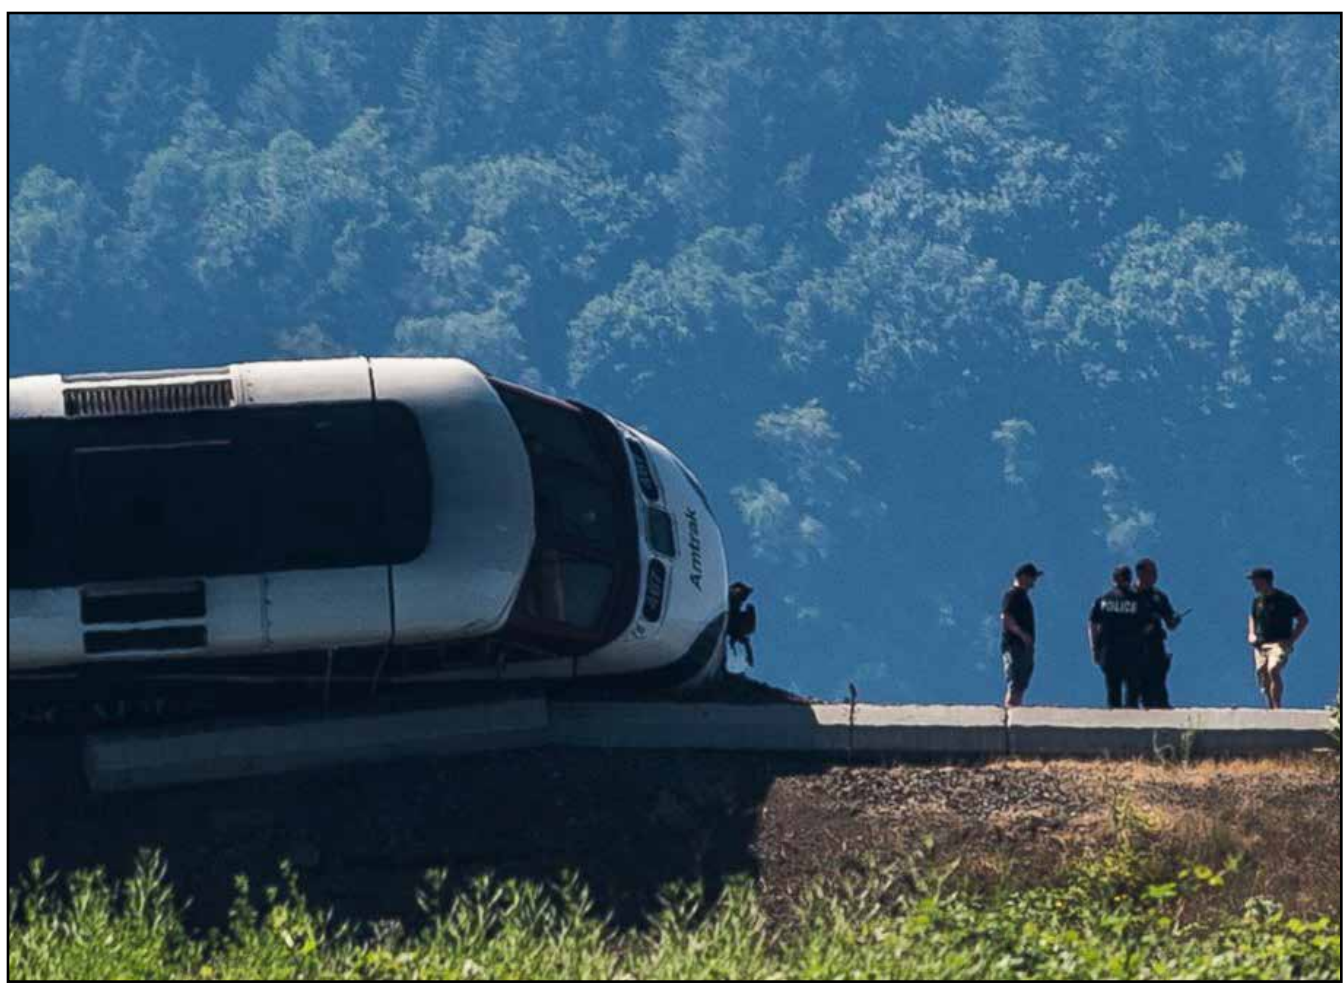

The cause of the derailment is under investigation, Amtrak said.

The railroad tracks on which the locomotive derailed was reopened shortly before 6 p.m. for service at limited speeds, Amtrak said.

The Gig Harbor Police Department said one of its patrol boats was helping environment officials put in pollution-control booms to block fuel from the derailment from leaking into a nearby body of water. The department posted a photo Sunday afternoon on its Twitter account showing the work.

spired people around the world to dump buckets of ice water over their heads to raise millions of dollars for Lou Gehrig's disease research is back in the hospital.

A Facebook post from the family of 32-year-old Pete Frates (FRAY'-tees) asked for prayers Sunday and said he is at Massachusetts General Hospital "and battling this beast ALS like a Superhero."

Frates was diagnosed with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in 2012. The disease weakens muscles and impairs physical functioning. There is no known cure.

The ALS Ice Bucket Challenge raised more than $220 million when it took off worldwide on social media in 2014.

The family's Facebook post has drawn hundreds of comments of support. Family members said, "We feel your love and support and are so grateful."

'Gotham' star Donal Logue asks for help in finding daughter

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Donal Logue is asking for the public's help in locating his teenage daughter, who was last seen a week ago in New York City.

The star of Fox's "Gotham" writes on Facebook that the "net had been flung far and wide" since 16-year-old Jade Logue disappeared. Logue says he has the New York Police Department, FYI and others involved.

He asks that whoever may be with Jade to "just drop her off."

He says she'll be taken back "with hugs and no questions asked."

Jade Logue was last seen in Brooklyn on June 26. She is transgender and was previously known as Arlo Logue.

New York City police say there are no updates on the case as of early Monday.

Tesla says its Model 3 car will go on sale on Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — Electric car maker Tesla says its much-ballyhooed Model 3 car for the masses will go on sale on Friday.

CEO Elon Musk made the announcement Monday on Twitter.

The car is to start around $35,000 and with a $7,500 federal electric car tax credit, could cost $27,500. Tesla says the five-seat car will be able to go 215 miles (133 kilometers) on a single charge and will be sporty, accelerating from zero to 60 miles per hour in under six seconds.
