Three vying for city council seat

The Big Spring City Council election for District 2 is going to be a three-way

Earlier this month, the Big Spring Herald ran a story introducing readers to two men who have filed to run for Big Spring City Council in Place 2, as incumbent Carmen Harbour's second term is expiring. Council members and the mayor serve three-year terms, with a limit of two consecutive terms on the council.

After the story was run, a third man – Doug Hartman – filed to seek the position. The original story, which ran Feb. 2, introduced candidates Johnnie Lee Rawls, an oilfield lease manager; and Eric Escamilla, a Farmers Insur-

The council plans to cancel elections in the other two districts up for grabs - Districts 4 and 6 - because the incumbents, Howard Stewart in District 4 and Jim DePauw in District 6, are running unopposed.

"Originally, I was born and raised in Hobbs, New Mexico. I've been here in Big Spring about 38 years," said Hartman. "I'm a rig supervisor in the oilfield. I've been in the oilfield probably 20 years. Before that I worked at Western Container for 16 years."

Hartman said the decision to run for city council has been a long time com-

"I've been thinking about it for a while," he said. "I just want to make some changes in our city. Like our roads and stuff in District 2. I just want to see what I can do to help get better water pressure in our district and get the roads fixed up." While Hartman said city infrastructure is his main issue, Hartman said he wants to learn more about the process of city government. "Just pretty much overall, everything," he said. "I'm new at it, and I just want to get into it and learn everything, and I just want to take off from there. I've had several people in my district come up to me and they kind of really talked me into it. I was thinking about it, but they talked me into it. They figured I'd do a good job on the city council. The people who vote for me, if I win, I'm definitely going to do everything I say I'm going to do." The election is scheduled for May 5.

in the future in, so there's going to be a more directed path, then, as far as dual credit. So I believe we're going to continue to see some impact on our head count as a result of that."

Sparks said 2017-18 was not a "base year," during which student contact hours are used to determine state funding. "The fact that we are not in a base year makes that not as significant as it would if we were in a base year. Our base year starts March 1, and it will go, obviously, through February of next year," she said. "What we do during the base year is, we generate the contact hours that our funding will be based on for the next two years. So when we start generating those contact hours in March up until next year through February, that's very significant because that's what our funding will be based on going into the legislative session."

Sparks said she had anticipated the decline in the San Angelo area, but the Big Spring shortage came as a surprise.

"We knew that we were going to be seeing a decrease in our dual credit numbers in San Angelo. We had been monitoring that and seeing that happen over the last few semesters, and we've been in conversation with the San Angelo Independent School District and aware of the changes they were making, so it was not a total surprise," she said. "So we've been trying to work other plans and devising other approaches as far as what we can do to increase our enrollment. In the Big Spring area, I was surprised by some of the drop in the dual credit. We've been analyzing what happened there, and we think, going forward, that there will be some adjustments and we can possibly see some of that coming back. The most important thing is, we want to ensure that all students are taking the courses that they need and that they're not in superfluous courses that are not necessary for their chosen path."

The "Pathways" philosophy could possibly lead to funding cuts for the college, she

"It could. Certainly it can. Based on what we see going into next year, if this were a base year, then we're down overall," she said. "Contact hours, we're down 3 percent. The most significant thing you look at is contact hours, because that's what drives the funding. We, again, are down in our head count more significantly than we are in contact hours. What we're going to be doing next is looking at what our head count and contact hours look like, as compared to the last base year. At the next meeting, we'll be sharing that information, because that is the most significant picture because that lets you know what you look like as compared to the last base year when you were

The meeting's agenda also included an item for an update on a partnership being considered by Howard College and the Big Spring Independent School District, in which Howard would oversee Goliad and Washington Elementary schools. As previously reported in the Herald, The partnership is being considered as part of a plan to prevent the schools' shut-down or direct management by the Texas Education Agency for their history of low scores on statemandated standardized tests.

The anticipated update from TEA did not arrive by the time of the meeting, Sparks

"When we have information we will be reaching out, but we're just in a waiting game," she said. "Literally (BSISD Interim Superintendent) Johnny (Tubb) thought that they were going to receive something on Friday. Everybody was waiting on it and he was going to forward it to me as soon as he received it, and of course I was checking my email. Nothing.'

The board also:

- Approved the appointment of Dr. Nancy Hlibok Amann Superintendent of the California School for the Deaf in Riverside, California, and Luanne Barron, Interim Superintendent of the Kansas School for the Deaf in Olathe, Kansas, to the SWCID Advisory Council. The council meets annually to provide guidance and advice relative to new trends in deaf education. They also review the college's procedures and methods, and offers suggestions and recommendations.
- Approved transitioning a Dorothy Garrett Coliseum position from part time to
- Cancelled the Howard College Board elections scheduled for May, because only the incumbents are running unopposed.

The next meeting of the Howard College Board will be March 26. For more information call 432-264-5000.

Less is more as companies explore shopping by voice

In this Sept. 27, 2017, file photo, an Amazon Echo Dot is displayed during a program announcing several new Amazon products by the company in Seattle.

NEW YORK (AP) -When the world shifted from personal computers to smartphones, websites had to slim down to work on smaller screens and slower wireless connections. A similar shift to voice-centric services is again forcing businesses to rethink how they present information to consumers — and spurring new efforts to help them do so.

The software company Adobe, for instance, announced on Tuesday a new suite of tools that could help airlines, retailers and other companies create simple voice interfaces for travel and shopping. It's not a simple task, since a voice-based digital assistant can't really list dozens of flight options or hundreds of products.

That means companies have to figure out how to winnow down those choices to the travel options or products people are most likely to want — an inherently fraught undertak-

The technology is still in its infancy, and Adobe doesn't have any actual corporate partners showcase yet. But its announcement, made conjunction with a tech show in Barcelona, Spain, shows that voice assistants are becoming important channels for reaching consumers.

Amazon's voice-shopping feature already boils down shopping requests to one or two options and makes buying easy because it already has payment and shipping information for voice-eligible customers. But smaller businesses don't have the computing resources and expertise to match that, which is where companies like Adobe come in.

Analyst Carolina Milanesi with Creative Strategies says she's not aware of another service trying to help companies improve how they reach their customers through voice.

practice, making voice capabilities useful means anticipating what customers want. Travel sites, for instance, let people limit a search to, say, nonstop flights, but that's more cumbersome when they're talking to a service. Adobe promises to help narrow those options automatically, so that someone who earns points in United and likes early morning flights might hear only those matches.

Adobe's new voice service will work with all major voice assistants, not just Amazon's. It will limit its analysis to data provided by the particular company people are shopping at, instead of trying to pulling together a more comprehensive personal profile from multiple sources.

That will limit the accuracy of its personalization compared to what Adobe says it could provide. But the company consumers believes aren't going to be comfortable with that broader profiling yet.

Catholic bishops cut ties with Texas antiabortion group

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Catholic bishops are directing churches across Texas to refrain from working with Texas Right to Life, exposing a widening rift in the state's anti-abortion

The Austin American-Statesman reports the Texas Catholic Conference of Bishops released the written directive Thursday. The group sets policy for the parishes serving 8.3 million Catholics in Texas.

The directive states that Texas Right to Life has engaged in misleading attacks against political candidates, lied about the Catholic church's position on state legislation and argued that church-supported bills don't do enough to limit abortions.

Texas Right to Life leaders haven't returned calls from the newspaper seeking comment.

The directive shows a long-simmering rift over tactics and priorities that are dividing groups with a similar goal to end legal abortion.

Americans say Congress is listening to all the wrong people

WASHINGTON — Looking for common ground with your neighbor these days? Try switching subjects from the weather to Congress. Chances are, you both agree it's ter-

In red, blue or purple states, in middle America or on the coasts, most Americans loathe the nation's legislature. One big reason: Most think lawmakers are listening to all the wrong people, suggests a new study by researchers at Stanford University and the University of California-Santa Barbara with the Associated Press-NORC Center for Public Affairs Research. "We have the best Congress you can buy and pay for," said Chester Trahan, 78, of Palm Coast, Fla. special interest groups and that's really who's running the show." Hating Congress has become a lastcrats and 82 percent of Republicans, disapprove of the job Congress is doing. That might matter in this midterm election year, as Republicans defend their majorities in the House and Senate.

In the study by Stanford, UC-Santa Barbara and the AP-NORC Center, which was conducted in 2015 and again in 2017, only about 2 in 10 said they think Congress pays much attention to their own constituents or Americans as a whole, or even give much consideration to the best interests of those people.

Thousands pay their respects to the Rev. Billy Graham

By JEFFREY COLLINS

Associated Press CHARLOTTE, N.C.

Thousands of people from all walks of life filed slowly past the casket of the Rev. Billy Graham on Monday to pay their final respects to a man who reached millions with his message of salvation through Jesus Christ.

The heavy rain overnight tapered to a light, occasional drizzle around 8 a.m. Monday when the doors opened to the boyhood home of the famed evangelist, who died Wednesday at age 99.

Mourners of all races, young and old, some in suits and some in T-shirts and flip-flops, walked through the parlor where his closed casket lay on a black pedestal. They walked past family photos and a cross made of white lilies to see the simple plywood container made by prison inmates. And at the door for the first few hours was Graham's grandson, Roy, shaking the hand of every person who came to see his grandfather.

"I just wanted to tell them how much I appreciated the love for my family," Roy Graham said.

And they responded with stories. Roy Graham said what moved him the most Monday were the dozens who paused and told him the exact moment and place Billy Graham came into their lives through his hundreds of crusades around the world. Cecily Turner is one of them. Her mother was at Billy Graham's 1957 New York crusade and she said he led her mother to salvation that day.

"I know she is in heaven thanking him right now," she said. Mother passed her faith on to daughter, and Turner said she passed it down to five children and four great-grandchildren.

"That's an amazing thing," she said. Public viewing will continue Monday and Tuesday at Graham's Charlotte library on the campus of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association. His body will then be taken to the U.S. Capitol, where Wednesday and Thursday he will be the first private citizen to lie in honor there since civil rights hero Rosa Parks in 2005.

Graham's funeral is Friday, and

Sex, campaign funding scandals upend Arizona US House race

In this March 4, 2015 file photo, Arizona House Majority Leader Steve Montenegro, R-Avondale, speaks during a legislative session at the Arizona Capitol in Phoenix. A special election to replace a Republican congressman from Arizona who resigned amid sexual misconduct allegations has turned into a slugfest among GOP candidates hoping to fill former U.S. Rep. PHOENIX — The closing days of the Republican primary to replace an Arizona congressman who quit in a sex scandal have included a top contender admitting he received texts from a Senate aide posing topless, and a second favorite fighting claims of campaign funding improprieties.

It remains to be seen what the impact may have on Tuesday's contest to replace Rep. Trent Franks because the state relies heavily on mail-in ballots completed before the revelations surfaced.

The 8th Congressional District covers much of the western Phoenix suburbs, where a Democrat has not been elected in more than 35 years. A dozen candidates are run-

CONGRESS

Americans who felt the largest sense of disconnect between whom they think Congress should listen to and whom they believe Congress actually listens to.

That disconnect played out in the public square last week as the nation reeled from yet another mass shooting — this time, the Valentine's Day killing of 17 people at Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida. Many raged over what they see as the National Rifle Association's power to stifle efforts to tighten gun laws, including a ban on assault rifles.

"Can you tell me right now that you will not accept a single donation from the NRA?" student Cameron Kasky demanded of Sen. Marco Rubio, the Florida Republican who appeared on CNN's "Stand Up" town hall.

Rubio, one of the gun rights groups' top beneficiaries over his political career, would not make that pledge. Nor have other congressional Republicans, who are overwhelmingly favored by gun rights supporters when it comes to campaign contributions.

The disillusionment is not just about guns, and it's not new. Democrats and Republicans alike see members of Congress as mostly listening to elites and donors rather than the ordinary people they repre-

Congress has rarely been especially popular in polls conducted over the past several decades, but approval of the House and Senate's performance has been particularly low over the past several years. In polling by Gallup, Congress' approval rating has been below 20 percent for eight straight

Americans are more likely to approve of their own member of Congress than of Congress generally, but even that rating is less than stellar. In the latest AP-NORC poll, 44 percent of Americans — 41 percent of Democrats and 50 percent of Republicans – approve of the person representing their district.

American apathy toward their lawmakers has become an area of scholarly study, with some researchers contending that when Congress doesn't act, it's often representing a divided electorate that can't resolve disagreements, either.

That certainly describes the United States now, which is deeply divided over such uncomfortable matters as immigration, gun control and President Donald Trump. Even with Republicans in control of the presidency and the House and Senate, Congress passed just one significant piece of legislation during Trump's first year in office — a $1.5 trillion overhaul of U.S. tax laws that Republicans hope will begin to boost American paychecks this year.

"It is not crumbs," Trump said earlier this month in a brushback to Democratic efforts to campaign against the tax cuts. In November, voters cast ballots for every House seat and 34 in the Senate. And it's fair to say plenty of members of Congress have had enough of Congress, too — including more than 50 House members who have opted to leave rather than seek re-election.

Among the other reasons for all the Congress hate, fewer than 2 in 10 Americans in the new study said they think Congress passes mostly good laws. The remainder considers congressional output to be at best neutral, with over a third seeing it as mostly bad. At the same time, Americans who felt Congress should be passing either more laws or fewer of them were far more likely to disapprove of Congress than those who felt the number of laws passed by Congress is about right.

"Most of them have got it wrong," said David Peterson, 67, a Republican-leaning Vietnam veteran from Torrance, Calif. "The fact that Congress can't seem to come to grips with health care, can't seem to come to grips with immigration, can't seem to come to grips with legislating firearms. It makes me less optimistic.'

Kobach invites NRA to hold convention in Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Kansas Secretary of State Kris Kobach is urging the National Rifle Association to bring its annual convention to Kansas.

The Kansas City Star reports that the Republican gubernatorial candidate tweeted over the weekend that he's reached out to the NRA to urge the group to bring the gathering to Kansas.

Kobach earlier tweeted that "Kansas is the most pro-gun state in America."

This year's NRA Annual Meeting of Members is being held May 5 in Dallas. But the city's mayor pro tem said last week that the organization should reconsider coming to Dallas after the Feb. 14 deadly mass shooting at a Florida high school.

Supreme Court declines to decide fate of 'Dreamers' just yet

By JESSOCA GRESK(

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Monday rejected the Trump administration's highly unusual bid to bypass a federals appeals court and get the justices to intervene in the fate of a program that protects hundreds of thousands of young immigrants from deportation.

The announcement means the case affecting "Dreamers" will have to work its way through the lower courts before any Supreme Court ruling is possible. The case could also become moot if Congress takes action in the meantime. Right now, however, further congressional action is in doubt after the Senate stalemated on the issue two weeks ago.

The Supreme Court's decision for now to stay out of the case on the Obama-era Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program, or DACA, wasn't surprising. It's highly unusual for the Supreme Court to hear a case before a lower appeals court has considered it.

But DACA supporters hailed the decision as a significant - if only temporary — win. President Donald Trump said the case would now be heard by an appeals court and "we'll see what happens from there."

"You know, we tried to get it moved quickly because we'd like to help DACA. I think everybody in this room wants to help with DACA," he said to visiting governors. "But the Supreme Court just ruled that it has to go through the normal channels."

DACA has provided protection from deportation and work permits for about 800,000 young people who came to the U.S. as children and stayed il-In September, Trump argued that President Barack Obama had exceeded his executive powers when he created the program. Trump announced he was ending the program effective March 5 and gave lawmakers until then to come up with a legislative fix.

But in recent weeks, federal judges in San Francisco and New York have made Trump's deadline temporarily moot for people who have sought and been granted renewals; the rulings do not extend to people who are applying for the first time. Judges issued injunctions ordering the administration to keep DACA in place while courts consider legal challenges to Trump's termination. As a result, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services resumed accepting and processing DACA renewals in January, just as it had before Trump's Septem-

The Supreme Court's announcement Monday that it wouldn't step in to the case now means the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit will likely be the first appeals court to weigh in on the topic, the step before the case would return to the Supreme Court.

California Attorney General Xavier Becerra, who joined other states in lawsuits to keep DACA in place, cheered the Supreme Court announcement Monday.

Franks' district director, admitted last week that reports about the texts between him and a former Senate aide were true. He said he became too close to the woman and that while she sent an unsolicited topless photo, he "never had inappropriate relationship with her or anyone else."

The staffer's attorney said Montenegro had "groomed" her for months and that they discussed various sexual matters.

Meanwhile, former state Sen. Debbie Lesko is denying charges by Montenegro and others that her transfer of $50,000 from her state campaign committee for the primary contest was illegal. Lesko was one of the drivers of the state's landmark school voucher program and is touting her border security plan.

Another primary candidate, former state House member Phil Lovas, has filed complaints with federal election officials and the state attorney general alleging Lesko's cash transfers were illegal. Lovas boasts of his early support for President Donald Trump, although the president has not made an endorsement in the race. He stepped down from his state House seat last year after he was appointed to a Small Business Administration post in the Trump administration.

"If someone were to pick up and surprisingly win this thing I would think it would be Lovas, of anybody, but I think it really does come down to Montenegro versus Lesko," said

Paul Bentz, a researcher and strategist at the Phoenix-based political consulting firm High Ground. "It would appear that they're all chasing Lesko."

Bentz said Brewer's support for Lesko could make the difference. "This is her district, this is where she lives. So having her not only endorse Lesko, but also weigh into this Montenegro issue has played a pretty critical role there."

Rounding out the top five GOP candidates are former state lawmaker and utility regulation commission member Bob Stump and radio host Clair Van Steenwyk, who twice challenged Franks.

The Democrats are political newcomers Dr. Hiral Tipirneni and Brianna Westbrook. Tipirneni is an emergency-room physician who is backed by former U.S. Rep. Gabby Giffords. Westbrook became involved in politics several years ago as a transgender woman who argued for a Phoenix policy that would protect the LGBTQ community from discrimination. Hawks down Chaps in last home game

Howard fined tuned its game against the over matched Chaps. They even threw a half court trapping press that completely baffled the Chaps. Howard went to the press four minutes into the game. At the time they led 11-2. By the time they got out of it 10 minutes later, they had upped their lead to 35-19 ..

Howard had its insideout game going. Amari McCray was a beast among men. He had four blocked shots in the first 10 minutes alone. He also went on a streak when he hit four-in-arow. He even hit a rare three-pointer in the second half. His 19 points, 10 rebounds indicates a hard night's work.

Then there was the deadly outside combo of Jeremy Hayes and Jake Hutchings who combined for 38 points, making 15 of 25 shots. There was the ever hustling

Pagenkopf who contributed 10 points to go along with five assists. Derrick Green found his outside shooting touch, nailing a couple of long threes. Diamond Onwuka relieved McCray and played strong, grabbing six rebounds.Christian Fields got ample time at point guard and directed the offense accordingly, making a threepointer in the second

> Howard was on key in all departments. The trapping defense caused 10 Midland turnovers in the first half. The Hawks shot 57 percent from the floor and held Midland to 41 percent.

> Coach Scott Raines said its a good ending to the regular season. "We needed this tonight. We needed to have this momentum," he said. "It's really good for. these guys to make their last home game memorable. I'm really pleased. We have a chance to finish third; we'll play nine days from now. I couldn't ask for a better night. The Big Spring boys program had a nice stretch of golf these past few days. The Big Spring Gold team competed in the Regional Preview in Lubbock on Friday and Saturday, then quickly turned around and headed to Brownwood to compete in the Bluebonnet Invitational on Monday.

mark. "I'm extremely proud of the boys, they played 3 out of 4 days and got better each time they teed it up," said Coach Ariel Falcon. "It's a true testament to their endurance, as well as the progression in their game."

The gold team consisted of Otto, Jack Everett, Jordan Dunn, Gabe Cate, and Alex Leuschner. The black team consisted of Lopez, Cory Cotton, Nathan Morales, Carlos Garcia, and Roger Hernandez.

Both teams found a groove from tee to green, but took a few holes to adjust to the speed of the greens. It was a good test for the boys mental toughness to turn around so quickly and compete. Gabe Cate and Jack Everett were able to post their lowest rounds of the year.

'Quite a few golfers stuck out, Everett with his ability to bounce back while fighting swing changes. Cate having the lowest 9 hole score, and Otto climbing back from a 4 over front 9 to shoot 3 under in the back 9, but the one that stuck out the most was Freshmen and nowhere is this more evident than in top-flight team matches where the players' failings can later be microscopically analyzed. Consider this deal played in a Life

Masters team championship. The bidding was spirited, and South wound up as declarer at five spades. East could have made five hearts by guessing the location of the queen of clubs West led the ace of hearts, on which East played the six. After lengthy deliberation, West continued with a heart. He was reluctant to play the ace of clubs because he afraid declarer had the king This fear proved to be fatal, since declarer eventually discarded two clubs on dummy's diamonds to make five spades for a score of 450 points. It can be argued that West should have led the ace of clubs on the basis that, even if South had the king, East might still get a diamond trick and defeat the contract. But the fact remains that in West's considered judgment, a heart continuation was Naturally, the North-South pair felt they had much the best of the deal since they had prevented East-West from making five hearts and had also made a game that could have been defeated. However, it turned out that their team actually lost points on the deal! Their teammates at the other table, holding the East-West cards, bid four hearts and then doubled four spades when South bid it.

Not only that, but West also led the ace and another heart. As a result, South made four spades doubled with an overtrick for a score of 690 points and a net gain of 240 points on the deal. Both Wests suffered from heart failure!

Tomorrow: Cool head prevails. ©2018 King Features Syndicate Inc.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Leo Moon Question: What Is My Motivation?

Want is a tricky thing. It's layered. Often what we really want is not even known to us, so we grasp at symbols, only to discover that we're still strangely unsatisfied. This Leo moon reminds us that all the world is a stage and we are actors trying on parts. playing with props, trying to get in touch with the motivations yet unknown to us.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If it's a struggle, step back and consider whether you really have the optimal setup for the task at hand. With the right equipment you can climb gracefully over the wall instead of trying to knock through it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Someone close would give you exactly what you needed if only he or she were privy to what exactly that was. Maybe you don't even know. Keep trying to figure it out, though. Stay experimental.

GEMINI (May 21-

June 21). You have no control over who is the best, but you have complete control over your own ability to get better. Your success happens when you make improvement your goal instead of having the goal to win.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Do the same thing you've done and you'll get more of what you already have. Change it up and who knows? You could use a little "who knows?" in your world right now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You know that dream you keep having about not being ready for the job you're asked to do? Well, you're getting more prepared every day. Keep it up and you'll soon be competent. Competence will lead to confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). It's only human to flinch in the face of success. One such "flinch" comes in the form of needing things to be perfect before making the next move. Things will never be perfect. Just move. LIBRA (Sept. 23-24-Nov. 21). One only needs to turn on the news for a few minutes to rediscover that people are the worst. One only needs to talk to you for a few minutes to have his or her faith in humanity restored.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Inconveniences might be opportunities, interesting backdrops or better. As it is with rain on the wedding day, the lessthan-ideal circumstance will be a harbinger of goodness to come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Regarding these people you admire, it's not that they have something you don't have. It's that they have something you do have but haven't figured out how to use to the greatest effect just yet. AQUARIUS (Jan.

20-Feb. 18). You'll be presented with dim alternate views, not unreasonable or untrue, but why dwell in dusky areas? As Walt Whitman suggested, "Keep your face always toward the sunshine -- and shadows will fall behind you."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're trying to figure out life's mysteries just like a lot of people are. Maybe you don't know any more than some of the others, but someone has to step up and be the authority. Why not you? You'll handle it quite well. TODAY'S BIRTH-

DAY (Feb. 27). The gold medal doesn't tell you who you are: You do. You'll work hard enough to get it without worrying too much about the symbol itself. You'll have a strong influence in June: This is a chance to really do some good in the world. You'll be in someone's acceptance speech, and later that person will be in yours. Scorpio and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 9, 45, 18 and

CURIOUS ABOUT...

SELF-PARENTING (PART SEVEN): The road to maturity involves becoming an increasingly adept parent to oneself. VIRGOS have a natural gift for self-parenting and may notice from a very young age that they seem to be figuring life out on their own terms without much need of interference from their older guides. Virgos have a clear view of what's right, sensible, healthy, productive and holistically sound. This is the sign of nurturing, and many Virgos are able to turn that instinct toward themselves to facilitate their own thriving. The danger for Virgo is in over-vigilance. Virgo has leanings toward perfectionism that if left unchecked can lead to neurosis. These can be counteracted by irresponsible influences. Virgo needs an Oscar to their Felix, a Bart to their Lisa, an Ernie to their Bert, a Dharma to their Greg. In other words, Virgo sometimes needs to be reminded to be selfish and childish, to have fun, take risks, make mistakes and turn the whole thing into a mess. After all, no one can be a really good

Married but Alone

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been married for almost 30 years. Sometimes I think I don't know him at all. He hardly calls or texts me when at work, but he would call his siblings at any time of the day. He doesn't answer my calls or respond to my texts messages, either. He is often late from work, usually arriving two hours after he's done even though it's 30 minutes away. I feel isolated and lonely. I'm often perplexed by my husband's reaction whenever I tell him how I feel. Recently, I told him, "I don't think you love me." And he replied, "Go tell your friends that." He isn't happy if I go out for dinner with my girlfriends. He seldom goes out, because I caught him lying once. I feel trapped and

An explosion inside a coal mine near Bearcreek, Montana, killed 74 miners and one rescue worker. The U.S. government, responding to a copper shortage, began circulating one-cent coins made of steel plated with zinc (the steel pennies proved unpopular, since they were easily mistaken for dimes).

Mbah a Moute said.

The Jazz seemed determined to limit Harden and run the Rocket's top shooters off the 3-point line but Mbah a Moute exploited the open shots and lanes to the basket to keep the Jazz at bay.

Mbah a Moute went 7-for-7 and Chris Paul added 15 points for the streaking Rockets, who trailed by as many as 15 in the first half.

"That was a big grind-out for us. We got here and didn't know what guys were going to be out, so it was just next-manup," Paul said. "We expect Luc to take and make those shots. We trust each other."

Coming in, it was a matchup of two of the hottest teams in the NBA. The Jazz had won 12 of 13 games but couldn't find easy baskets against the Rockets scrambling defense.

Gobert scored 17 and Donovan Mitchell had 16 to lead the Jazz, who were 7-of-29 from 3-point range - including the Jazz rookie who was 1-of-9.

Mitchell said. "Unforced errors -- I had eight turnovers out of 22. That's damn near half. Just mental mistakes."

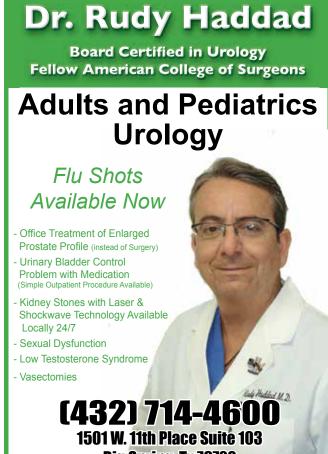

Rockets missed 15 of their first 17 3-pointers themselves but the cold spell didn't last as Trevor Ariza hit back-to-back long balls to give the Rockets their first lead of the second half at 59-57. Stifling defense helped stretch that to a 77-65 advantage early in the final bench for much of a 14-2 run. When Mitchell drove for a dunk with 4:30 left in the Houston remains on a pace for the best record in franchise history even with a depleted roster. Ryan Anderson was out with a groin injury and Eric Gordon and Clint Capela missed the game with illness. Brandan Wright sat with a sore knee.

"This is probably our best win of the year because we were short-handed and we grind it out. I didn't know how we were going to win, and they figured out a way," Houston coach Mike D'Antoni said.

Rockets: Joe Johnson, who was traded by Utah at midseason and then signed with Houston, received applause when he entered the game in the first quarter. ... Harden and Jae Crowder banged knees in the final minute of the second quarter. Harden rocked on his back and grimaced but then played the rest of the half. ... The Rockets scored a season-low 39 points in the first half.

Jazz: Backup PG Raul Neto missed his third straight game with a right ankle sprain. ... As the first half came to an end, Joe Ingles and Harden hand fought, bumped and talked trash.

Ingles, the NBA leader in 3-point percentage, missed four of his five of his attempts beyond the arc and scored 6 points. ... The Jazz held the Rockets to fewer than 10 3-pointers for the first time since Oct. 23.

LET'S JUST HOOP

Paul said they play a certain style no matter who's out there on the court. Before the Rockets went out for the opening tip, Paul wasn't worried about who was injured and if they might have odd rotations. "Alright, we got who we got. Let's just go hoop,' he said to his teammates.

ALPHA DOGS ARE BARKING

D'Antoni isn't concerned about motivating the Rockets. "Hey, you know your alpha dogs are hungry. They play. They love to play basketball. James (Harden) loves to play, so he's ready to go every night he can. ... and the chemistry's really good."

On the court, the team got a huge spark from Barea, who had nine points and four assists in the final quarter. The 12-year veteran has played nine seasons with the Mavericks over two stints, and he returned to the bench Monday after starting five of the previous six games.

"I'm playing great basketball," Barea said. "I love my teammates and my coaches; they put me in great situations. My job is to bring a lot of energy, whether I start or come off the bench."

Doug McDermott added another 15 points off the Dallas bench, and Dwight Powell had 10 points and 14 rebounds.

The Mavericks, held to 40 percent shooting through three quarters, hit 10 of their first 13 shots in the fourth, five of them 3-pointers, to build a 93-80 lead.

Oladipo missed the previous meeting, a 98-94 Dallas win on Dec. 27, with a knee injury and played just 14 minutes over the first three quarters this time, picking up two quick fouls early in the game and never getting into a rhythm until late.

But he helped lead Indiana back, scoring seven straight points for his team to pull the Pacers twice within two in the final minute.

"It just felt like every time I tried to do something, it was a foul," Oladipo said. "Unfortunately, we came up short and I wish I had the opportunity to play a little bit more, but you can't do nothing about it."

Wesley Matthews hit a 3 with 32.4 seconds remaining to restore a five-point lead for Dallas, and the Mavericks put the game away at the line.

NOT A FANTASY

Powell has scored in double figures in seven of his last nine games and set his career high in rebounds Monday in just his second start of the season.

Mavericks coach Rick Carlisle was approached by fans on the team's recent trip to Los Angeles, asking him to continue giving Powell his minutes because he was helping their fantasy teams

"If you would have ever suggested that kind of situation would have presented itself last year or earlier this year, a lot of people would have rolled their eyes," Carlisle said. "But the thing I love about Powell is you're going to get unconditional, boundless energy and the highest of high care factors when it comes to the team."

TIP-INS

Pacers: Oladipo's 1,303 points are the most he's scored in any of his five NBA seasons, and he still has 22 games to go. ... Indiana has outrebounded its opponent in the last five games after being outrebounded in 11 straight.

Mavericks: The club introduced Marshall, a former AT&T executive, to the crowd and she sat courtside next to Cuban. ... The team honored founder Donald Carter, who died Feb. 14 at age 84, with a moment of silence before the game and a video tribute during the first quarter. ... Dallas signed Scotty Hopson to a 10-day contract. Hopson, who most recently was playing professionally in Turkey, has played only two NBA games in his career, with Cleveland in 2014.

"Been trying not to cry all day," Graham said. The emotion was channeled into a powerful start, as Kansas established control over the Longhorns (17-13, 7-10 Big 12) early. The Jayhawks wouldn't look back after gaining the lead less than six minutes into the game.

"We didn't play great tonight," Bill Self said. "We played great in stretches though, first half especially. It's nice to end your home season on a win so the guys can go out in style."

Texas cut the lead to as little as six with just over 15 minutes remaining, but couldn't complete the comeback. It carried the Big 12's second-best shooting defense into the matchup, but allowed Kansas to shoot 60.3 percent from the field.

Kerwin Roach II led the way for the Longhorns with 18 points and eight assists, days after he hit the game-winner against Oklahoma State. Jacob Young posted 14 points and five rebounds.

nine meetings against Texas and has won 35 consecutive home finales. The Jayhawks are locked into the Big 12 tournament's No. 1 seed. NO MO

Kansas has won its last

Texas was without star freshman Mo Bamba, who missed the game with a left toe injury. Bamba, a projected top-10 pick in the NBA draft, is second on the Longhorns in scoring (13 points per game) and first in rebounds (10.6) and blocks (3.8).

After he posted a career-high eight blocks against them in December, the Jayhawks tried to take advantage of his absence.

"That's what we were emphasizing," Graham said. "They didn't have a rim protector, because Bamba's one of a kind."

AGGRESSIVE BUIKE

While the spotlight belonged to the seniors, it was another strong game for Udoka Azubuike down low. He led all scorers with 20 points.

Azubuike entered the game leading the nation in field goal percentage (77.1 percent) and went 10 of 11 from the field. He also pulled in eight rebounds.

"That's exactly how he should've played," Graham said. "(Assistant coach Norm Roberts) came up to him in shootaround and told him just because Bamba's out doesn't mean you get to take the day off."

SENIOR SENDOFF

Graham leaves Allen Fieldhouse a two-time All-Big 12 selection and No. 15 on the program's all-time scoring list. Mykhailiuk ranks No. 6 all-time in 3-pointers made, and he cracked the top 50 on the all-time scoring list this season. Young appeared in 30 games in his three seasons as a walk-on.

BIG PICTURE

Kansas sealed the outright Big 12 championship after clinching at least a share of its 14th crown Saturday with a win over Texas Tech. "I think they all feel great," Self said. "If you don't have to share it, you shouldn't." Texas remains on the bubble to make the NCAA Tournament. If the Longhorns aren't chosen, it will be just the third time in the last 20 years they've missed the tourney.
