Jake Hooker and the Outsiders drummer, Big Spring native Jenkins to perform at 2018 Rodeo & Reunion

By JORDAN PARR
 Sports Editor

The 85th annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion & Rodeo is fast approaching. The rodeo will be held at the R360 Rodeo Bowl June 21-23. Big Spring native's son, John Jenkins, will be featured when Jake Hooker and the Outsiders come to Big Spring for the Thursday Rodeo Dance on June 22nd.

John Jenkins, son of Big Spring's Emma and Terry Jenkins, serves as the drummer for the Outsiders band. John knew at the age of nine that he had a huge interest in the drums, and began his career by pounding out Bob Wills "Bottle Baby Boogie" on his mothers decorative Indian drums. Although his tempos weren't exactly right, he knew he liked what he heard!

Growing up John choose to surround himself with some of the best musicians in Texas, such as Jody Nix, Jason Roberts, Robert Weeks, Rocky King, Jake Hooker and the legendary, John "Smiley" Reynolds. These gentlemen showed John "the rules" of REAL country music.

It did not hurt that he was a third generation drummer. John's Grandfather, Pete Jenkins, as well as his parents, have been long supporters of John's talent and interest in music. John feels that people like his uncle Brad Jenkins, The GWZ Band, and the Dancehall Cowboys guided him and helped pave the way for him to become an Outsider.

John's hard work and dedication has paid off as he is finally where he wants to be, and Jake and the boys are very proud to have him as part of the band.

Miller Insulation is sponsoring the event, making the Thursday Rodeo tickets serve as the admission to the Thursday dance with no extra charge to the public.

Party for star gazers

By AMBER MANSFIELD
 Staff Writer

William Wordsworth, major English Romantic poet, wrote a poem that stated, "The stars are mansions built by Nature's hand, And, haply, there the spirits of the blest Dwell, clothed in radiance, their immortal vest." People have been star gazing and looking towards the vastness of the night sky for as long as history can be recorded.

Unlike the sky during the day, the night sky seems to go on in it's vastness, and people can really get a sense of wonder and awe when looking up. That's why the Texas Amateur Astronomy club from Midland is hosting their annual Star-gazing Party at the Big Spring State Park on Saturday, July 21, 2018, at sunset.

"The West Texas Amateur Astronomy Club will be coming down from Midland again, and will set up 10 to 12 telescopes at the State Park pavilion," said Ron Alton, the Big Spring State Park Manager. "To get the best parking and place, it is encouraged to arrive before 8:40 p.m. so that you can gaze up at the stars in the best spot for you."

The West Texas Astronomers was created in 1972 to unite amateur astronomers in the West Texas area. Residents of Midland and Odessa

Trump, his lawyers cite expansive view of executive power

By ERIC TUCKER
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump claimed he has an "absolute right" to pardon himself, part of an extraordinarily expansive vision of executive authority that is mostly untested in court and portends a drawn-out fight with the prosecutors now investigating him.

No need of a pardon anyway, Trump tweeted Monday, because "I have done nothing wrong."

In fact, his lawyers assert in a memo to special counsel Robert Mueller, it's impossible for him to have done anything wrong in the area of obstructing justice, an issue Mueller has been investigating. That's because, as the country's chief law enforcement officer, Trump himself has ultimate control of the Justice Department and executive branch.

Beyond that, his lawyers have repeatedly insisted that it's beyond dispute that a sitting president cannot be criminally prosecuted.

TRUMP

The legal maneuvering comes as Trump tries repeatedly to undercut the investigation. On Monday, the president tweeted that the appointment of a special counsel was "totally UNCONSTITUTIONAL." On Tuesday, he called it the "Russian Witch Hunt Hoax" and blamed Attorney Jeff Sessions for allowing it to continue.

"I would have quickly picked someone else" to lead the Justice Department, Trump tweeted of Sessions, who recused himself from the probe last year following reports of his meeting with the Russian ambassador.

Mueller's investigation is moving forward nonetheless, and as it does courts may have to confront questions with minimal if any historical precedent. Those include whether a president can be forced to answer questions from prosecutors, whether it's possible for a commander in chief to criminally interfere in investigations and whether a president's broad pardon power can be deployed for corrupt purposes.

"There's a reason they're untested. It's because they were unthinkable," said Savannah Law School professor Andrew Wright, who served in the White House counsel's office under President Barack Obama. "The president's game here in part is to take issues that are so beyond the pale that they have never been tested and say, 'Look, there's no authority here on point.'"

Mueller is investigating whether Trump associates coordinated with Russia during the 2016 presidential election and whether Trump took steps to shut down that investigation through actions including the firing of FBI Director James Comey.

Though Trump insists he did nothing wrong, the statements from him and his lawyers, including the just-disclosed January memo to Mueller, make clear that much of their defense revolves around establishing that he was constitutionally empowered to take the actions he took.

The defense argument suggests that protocols meant to protect against abuses of power are merely norms the American public has come to expect, rather than laws binding on a president.

In Trump's view, for instance, he is entitled to fire an FBI director — Comey or any other — for any reason. He can similarly terminate an FBI investigation given the constitutional powers he enjoys, the president's lawyers say. That argument may help ward off allegations from Comey that the president asked him to consider shutting down an FBI investigation into former White House national security adviser Michael Flynn.

There is logic to the argument that Trump couldn't have obstructed justice by firing Comey, even if the questions haven't been fully resolved, said Josh Blackman, a professor at South Texas College of Law.

"If you're trying to apply the obstruction statutes to something the president has the power to do, then I don't think the statute applies," he added.

White House spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders, who was questioned repeatedly Monday about whether the president is above the law, said no, he is not.

But Blackman said that was overly simplistic, that the better question is how the law applies to the president.

"It's a great slogan, but the law doesn't treat the president equal in all respects," Blackman said. "There are certain things the president can do that no one else can do," such as granting pardons and negotiating international treaties.

There's some historical precedent for a court clash that could be instigated by the Trump investigation, but in many ways the arguments remain unsettled.

The Supreme Court, for instance, has never definitively ruled on the question of whether a president can be forced to testify, though the justices in 1974 did rule that Richard Nixon had to produce recordings and documents that had been subpoenaed.

Bill Clinton was subpoenaed in 1998 to appear before the Whitewater grand jury, though that subpoena was withdrawn after Clinton struck a deal to give testimony. The agreement headed off a potential challenge to the subpoena on constitutional grounds.

In a 1997 ruling allowing Paula Jones' sexual harassment lawsuit against Clinton to go forward, Justice John Paul Stevens wrote: "We have made clear that in a criminal case the powerful interest in the 'fair administration of criminal justice' requires that the evidence be given under appropriate circumstances lest the 'very integrity of the judicial system' be eroded."

He also said that presidents have given testimony and produced documents often enough that "such interactions ... can scarcely be thought a novelty."

Though Mueller has raised the prospect of subpoenaing Trump if he rejects a voluntary interview, it's not clear he'll actually do so. Such a move could theoretically end in a court defeat for Mueller, and would almost certainly prolong the investigation.

The past several days have also spurred arguments about the scope of the president's pardon power.

Trump has already proved willing to break from protocol through granting pardons outside the Justice Department's pardon attorney, which historically reviews clemency petitions and makes recommendations on worthy candidates.

On his own, he has recently pardoned conservative Barack Obama critic Dinesh D'Souza, who had pleaded guilty to campaign finance fraud, and former Bush administration White House aide I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby. And Trump said he was contemplating clemency for Martha Stewart and former Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich, among "lots" of other people.

A 1974 opinion from the Justice Department's Office of Legal Opinion maintains that presidents cannot pardon themselves "under the fundamental rule that no one may be a judge in his own case," though that question has never been tested before the country's highest court. The opinion does say that if a president were to declare himself temporarily unable to remain in office, the vice president could take over as acting president and pardon the president.

In the end, the Mueller investigation raises significant questions about how to balance a president's right to manage the executive branch as he believes with the public interest that he be subject to the law.

"Their argument has antecedents that are legitimate about the president's management of the executive branch," said Wright, who also served as a lawyer for former Vice President Al Gore. "But they're taking them well past their logical extremes."

dominate the local membership, but the club also has active members from outlying communities such as Andrews and Big Spring. The West Texas Astronomy Club holds a variety of different events for members and the public to come and participate in. One of those events are public star gazing parties, which are an opportunity for the general public and the club to interact over a common interest, and the West Texas Astronomy club is all about educating and observing the stars with others.

"These club members love to educate both the young and old about astronomy," said Alton. "They will bring their telescopes and binoculars of all types and sizes, and give the people of Big Spring the opportunity to observe astronomical objects such as planets, comets, stars, and deep sky objects together."

Although Alton isn't sure on what specifically the Star Gazers will be viewing at the star gazing party, according to NASA.gov., there are ten July constellations that contain many well-known groups, such as Draco, the dragon, Hercules, the strongman, and Scorpius, the scorpion.

Astronomy is considered the oldest of the sciences, so amateur astronomy may very well be the oldest of the scientific hobbies.

"Come on out for a fun outdoor educational opportunity for the entire family," said Alton. "There are no fees to attend this event; however, donations to support this event will be accepted and are greatly appreciated."

Looking towards the stars can promote some to realize how small and insignificant we really are in the universe. People shift their focus away from their own individual needs and towards the greater good of something so mysterious, vast, and beautiful.

Texas mosque welcomes members of church damaged by car crash

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — A Texas mosque that was destroyed by a fire last year is opening its doors to congregants who lost their place of worship after a car crashed into their church.

The Victoria Advocate reports that the Victoria Islamic Center offered its worship space Sunday to about 30 members of the Unitarian Universalist Church. A vehicle barreled through the church last week. No one was injured.

The church's president, Manuel Zamora, says the congregation will use an auxiliary building at the Islamic center for several months as they decide whether to relocate or rebuild.

The mosque itself is under construction after being burned down last year. Area churches offered worship space to the Islamic center after the fire. Marq Vincent Perez has been charged with a hate crime.

Southwest still losing business after fatal accident

DALLAS (AP) — The fatal accident on a Southwest Airlines flight this spring appears to be hurting the carrier's business more than expected.

Southwest said Monday that based on booking trends it expects a key revenue measure to fall 3 percent for the second quarter compared with last spring.

That's at the outer limit of Southwest's previous prediction of a 1 percent to 3 percent decline in revenue for every seat flown one mile.

Southwest says ticket sales are down because it reduced advertising after the April 17 accident. A woman was killed when an engine blew apart high over Pennsylvania and debris shattered the window next to her seat, pushing her partly through the opening. A federal investigation is underway.

It was the first accident-related death of a passenger in Southwest's history.

Dallas-area church targets 'dangerous isms,' such as Judaism

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — A Dallas-area church has distributed flyers advertising a series of weekly seminars it plans to host condemning "dangerous isms," such as Judaism, Islamism and liberalism.

Greenville Avenue Church of Christ in Richardson says in the flyers that the Wednesday seminars will "provide a proper response for the Christian."

Pulpit minister Shelton Gibbs III told The Dallas Morning News that the wording used in advertising could have been better, but that other faiths run counter to God's order to follow Jesus Christ.

He says other topics, such as racism or sexism, won't be discussed because "there are only so many Wednesdays in a summer."

The flyers prompted a social media backlash but Gibbs says the church doesn't mean to criticize or antagonize others.

Atheism, alcoholism and "emotionalism" are other seminar topics.

American Airlines plane damaged by hail over New Mexico

DALLAS (AP) — An American Airlines plane made an emergency landing after hail damaged the windshield and caused some passengers to throw up.

One of the pilots said they could barely see through the windshield.

The airline says no injuries were reported after the Sunday night flight from San Antonio, Texas, to Phoenix ran into bad weather over New Mexico and turned south to land in El Paso, Texas. There were 130 passengers and five crew members on board. Another plane finished the trip to Phoenix a few hours later.

An airline spokesman said Monday that the plane was awaiting repairs for damage to the nose, windshield panels and a cockpit side window. He said the engines, including the fan blades, were not damaged.

Passenger Jesus Esparza told KENS-TV in San Antonio he saw lightning and hail and the plane dropped "like a rollercoaster." He gave a sickness bag to another passenger who had already used one.

Ex-CEO of Houston-based-therapy chain gets prison for fraud

HOUSTON (AP) — The former chief executive of a Houston-based physical therapy chain must serve more than 19 years in prison and repay nearly $15 million after being convicted of health care fraud.

Jeffrey Eugene Rose Sr. was sentenced Friday by a federal judge in Houston. The 56-year-old Rose in 2016 was convicted of conspiracy, health care fraud, wire fraud and money laundering in what prosecutors say was a claims scam for services never provided.

Investigators say Rose's Team Work Ready company submitted fraudulent claims from clinics in Texas, Louisiana, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee serving federal workers.

Two other company executives — his wife Pamela Annette Rose and Frankie Lee Sanders — were convicted of the same counts. Pamela Rose was sentenced last summer to 10 years in prison. Sanders received 25 years.

A United States senator tried to enter a federal facility in Texas where immigrant children are being held, but police were summoned and he was told to leave.

Sen. Jeff Merkley's attempt late Sunday to enter the facility, and his request to speak to a manager, comes amid a national debate over the practice of separating families caught crossing the border illegally.

The children are being held in Brownsville, a city along the Mexican border, said Merkley, a Democrat from Oregon who live-streamed his arrival there on Facebook. He said no member of Congress has visited the facility, and that because U.S. citizens were financing it, he and the press should be able to see what conditions are like inside. The facility, run by a contractor, is in a former Wal-Mart with blacked-out windows.

"Every American citizen has a stake in how these children are being treated and how this policy is being enacted," Merkley said. He said a new policy under President Donald Trump is "ripping away" children from immigrant families who have entered the country illegally or are seeking asylum here.

ALFRED, Maine (AP) — A woman with a history of drunken driving convictions drove her car onto a baseball field in Maine during a game, police said, striking and killing a Vietnam War veteran who confessed five years ago to killing a 4-year-old girl in an alcohol-fueled 1968 hit-and-run.

Screaming bystanders and ballplayers fled as Carol Sharrow, of Sanford, drove through a gate onto the field Friday night, police said. Video shows the car driving

Technology companies and retailers lead US stocks higher

AP Markets Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. stocks are rising Monday as technology companies, retailers and household goods companies gain ground. Some of the world's largest tech companies, including Apple and Microsoft, are leading the way and the Nasdaq composite is on track for an all-time high. Energy companies are falling as crude oil prices continue to decline.

KEEPING SCORE: The S&P 500 index climbed 10 points, or 0.4 percent, to 2,745 as of 2:45 p.m. Eastern time. The index rose 1.1 percent Friday after a strong jobs report, and hasn't made two consecutive gains since mid-May. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 153 points, or 0.6 percent, to 24,789 behind gains from aerospace company Boeing, retailers Walmart and Home Depot, and payment processor Visa. The Nasdaq composite gained 42 points, or 0.6 percent, to 7,596. The technology-heavy index made its latest record close on March 12.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks was on track to top the records it set last week as it rose 1 point to 1,648.

LEADERS: Apple climbed 0.9 percent to $191.88 as it previewed new features and software updates at its Worldwide Developers Conference in San Jose, California. Alphabet, Google's parent company, gained 1.5 percent to $1,151.68 and chipmaker Advanced Micro Devices added 2.4 percent to $14.75.

Microsoft rose 0.7 percent to $101.50 after the company said it will pay $7.5 billion in stock to buy GitHub. Around 27 million software developers around the world use GitHub to share code and build businesses.

Retailers also moved higher. Under Armour rose 5.5 percent to $22.53 and Target gained 5 percent to $76.46 while Walmart picked up 2.7 percent to $85.20 after it agreed to sell an 80 percent stake in its struggling Brazilian business.

SUSTAINED GAINS?: Last week the S&P 500 alternated between big gains and losses as Wall Street reacted to political turmoil in Italy and rising trade tensions as the U.S. continued to hold talks with Chinese officials and placed tariffs on steel and aluminum imported from Europe, Mexico and Canada.

Stocks have wobbled in the last few months as investors worried that tariffs and other barriers to trade will reduce economic growth and corporate profits. But Wall Street has mostly treated the tough talk and proposed tariffs as a negotiating tactic. Invesco Chief Global Market Strategist Kristina Hooper said the U.S. crossed an important dividing line last week when, after months of talks, its aluminum and steel import duties went into effect.

"Markets seem to treat it as if it's just rhetoric and it's just a bargaining tool, and my view is that that is foolhardy," she said. "We have enough positive economic data that it's easy enough to put blinders on when it comes to threats like protectionism."

around the infield, turning over home plate and then heading toward the stands behind third base.

Douglas Parkhurst, of West Newfield, was near the park's main gate before he was hit and Sharrow sped away, police said. A witness said the man whose grandson played on the team was trying to push children out of the way.

He died on the way to the hospital, while no one else was hurt.

"It was awful," said Sanford resident, Karyn Bean, who said she saw Parkhurst get hit. "A car driving through the gate hitting a man who was pushing kids out of the way, then her driving up the road easily doing 50 to 60 miles per hour past us...It felt awful because we couldn't do anything."

Tim Curley, a coach, said he was standing in the third-base dugout as he heard squealing tires and watched a car crash through the gate after its driver yelled, "Open the gates!" Curley later recognized that the driver was Sharrow, who worked as his grandmother's caretaker 12 years ago.

"I felt kind of helpless because at that point the only thing I knew was I cared about the safety of the kids on the ball field," Curley said. "I immediately yelled: 'Get off the field!'"

Curley's son scattered with his teammates to the stands full of about 150 people. One boy in center field stood frozen, but escaped unscathed.

Sharrow did not speak during her first court appearance Monday. She was held on $500,000 bail and the court also ordered a mental health evaluation.

Sharrow's attorney, Robert Ruffner of Portland, declined to comment on a possible motive or whether Sharrow knew anyone at the field.

Sharrow has two previous drunken driving convictions in Maine and New Hampshire, according to Sanford police Det. Sgt. Matthew Jones. Authorities have declined to say whether alcohol was involved on Friday.

Parkhurst was never charged in the hit-and-run death that killed Carolee Ashby in New York on Halloween night in 1968. The statute of limitations had long run out when Parkhurst walked into a police station in 2013 and confessed after two interviews with investigators.

In his four-page confession obtained by the Syracuse Post-Standard, Parkhurst said he and his brother had been drinking before he hit the girl. He said his brother was passed out in the back seat.

"While I drove through the city of Fulton, I heard a thud," Parkhurst wrote in his confession, in which he estimated he had around three beers. "It sounded like I hit a dog. I don't know where I hit that thing...."

Parkhurst said he didn't see what he hit, and did not stop. He didn't remember hitting the brakes, and then left Fulton.

"I don't remember seeing any kids but I believe in my heart I hit the little Ashby girl with my car," he wrote.

Parkhurst told police on the night of the hit-and-run that he hit a guard post, but admitted in the confession that was a lie.

"That did not happen, but I don't know why the police never challenged me on this," he wrote. "I wish they did and I would have told them the truth."

Darlene Ashby McCann, who was holding her little sister's hand when she was struck, said that Parkhurst never apologized to her family. She said that his being fatally struck "made a complete circle. Now it is time to move on."

"I know my mom would have been grateful that children were saved," McCann told the Portland Press Herald. "Sometime I may be able to forgive him, but not right now."

Merkley he was not allowed to make any statements. He gave the senator a phone number of the public affairs office in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in Washington.

Meanwhile, Brownsville police had shown up. One asked Merkley for his name and birth date. Merkley provided the information, and then tried to explain to the officer why he had come to the facility.

"The children who were previously kept with their families, under a new policy just implemented by the attorney general, are being separated from their families and warehoused here," Merkley told the police officer. "And the attorney general's team, and the Office of Refugee Resettlement, they don't want anyone to know about what's going on behind these doors."

Attorney General Jeff Sessions recently announced a new "zero-tolerance policy" in which it will press criminal charges against all people crossing the border illegally, even if they have few or no previous offenses. More children are expected to be separated from their parents as a result.

Officials at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' public affairs office, when asked Monday for details about the Brownsville facility and why the senator was turned away, told a reporter they were working on a response.

By mid-day Monday, the video had over 1 million views on Facebook.

Jordan PM quits over mass protests against tax increases

Jordanian protesters shout slogans and raise a national flag during a demonstration outside the Prime Minister's office in the capital Amman early Monday, June 4, 2018. Thousands of Jordanians protested against a planned tax increase for a fourth straight day Sunday, marching toward the office of the prime minister and demanding his resignation.

By OMAR AKOUR

Associated Press

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan's King Abdullah II on Monday accepted the resignation of his embattled prime minister and reportedly tapped a leading reformer as a successor, hoping to quell the largest anti-government protests in recent years, which are also seen as a potential challenge to his two-decade-old rule.

Jordan is a staunch military and political ally of the West in a turbulent region, and any threat to the kingdom's stability is viewed with concern, particularly by neighboring Israel and by the U.S.

Prime Minister Hani Mulki's resignation came after several days of mass protests across Jordan against a planned tax increase, the latest in a series of economic reforms sought by the International Monetary Fund to get the rising public debt under control. The government has also raised prices for bread, electricity and fuel.

Many Jordanians feel they are being squeezed financially by a government they perceive as corrupt and aloof, and say they are not getting services for the taxes they are asked to pay.

It's not clear if the departure of the business-friendly Mulki will be enough to defuse growing public anger.

Government-linked media said Education Minister Omar Razzaz, a Harvard-educated reformer, has been tapped as Mulki's successor, though the choice was not officially confirmed.

Mulki is to serve as caretaker until his replacement has been named, the state news agency Petra said.

In meetings with Jordanian newspaper editors and journalists later Monday, the king promised reforms, saying the country must meet its challenges "away from the traditional approach," but did not give specifics.

Abdullah is the ultimate decision-maker on policy, but he has also positioned himself as a unifying force above the political fray. He has frequently reshuffled or disbanded governments as a way of quieting criticism.

His response to the current crisis fit that pattern.

In his comments Monday, he expressed sympathy for the protesters and the hardships faced by ordinary Jordanians, while criticizing the outgoing government, saying it had failed to explain the tax bill to citizens.

Yet he stopped short of saying he would meet protesters' demands for scrapping the bill.

Meanwhile, crowds began gathering late Monday near Mulki's office for the fifth straight evening of protests against the tax bill and the recent price hikes.

Protest organizer Ali Abous said a one-day strike set for Wednesday would still take place, despite the Cabinet changes.

"We want to change the path, not the individuals," said Abous, who heads an umbrella group for 15 unions and professional associations with half a million members.

Hatem Jarrar, a lawyer, said the resignation of Mulki is a "victory for the Jordanian people who demanded to topple the government," adding that protesters would keep pressing demands for rescinding the tax bill.

The recent protests were largely spontaneous, drawing many young people and members of the middle class, rather than being organized by traditional opposition groups such as the Muslim Brotherhood.

In a show of non-violence, protesters raised their hands in the air as they were being pushed away from the prime minister's office by helmeted riot police.

Protest organizers have urged the king to cancel the tax plan, saying it disproportionately targets the poor and the middle class. The king has indicated he's willing to make concessions, saying earlier this week that Jordan's citizens cannot be expected to bear the entire burden of economic reform.

data-sharing deals with at least 60 device makers, including Apple and Amazon, as it tried to get its app onto smartphones, and that the device companies were able to access users' friends without their explicit consent. That renewed some investors' concerns about Facebook's handling of user data, and the stock lost 0.4 percent to $193.24.

Ime Archibong, vice president of product partnerships, said in blog post that Facebook has maintained tight control over the technology and that it is not aware of any abuse by the companies that it teamed with.

Facebook stock skidded after allegations a firm linked to the Trump campaign improperly harvested personal data from as many as 87 million Facebook accounts. Wall Street's concerns about the stock gradually faded and Facebook closed at an all-time high Friday.

ENERGY: Energy companies traded lower as benchmark U.S. crude dropped 1.6 percent to $64.75 a barrel in New York. Brent crude, used to price international oils, fell 2 percent to $75.29 per barrel in London.

Wholesale gasoline lost 1 percent to $2.12 a gallon. Heating oil slid 1.1 percent to $2.15 a gallon. Natural gas fell 1.1 percent to $2.93 per 1,000 cubic feet.

HEALTH CARE: Companies reported results from cancer drug studies at the annual meeting of the American Society of Clinical Oncology. Nektar Therapeutics plunged 42.5 percent to $51.91 after it disclosed data from a potential treatment for pancreatic cancer. Analyst Debjit Chattopadhyay of H.C. Wainwright said investors were concerned by mixed results from the study and a lack of information and a lung cancer drug study.

Nektar had made huge gains since early November. Shares of its partner Bristol-Myers Squibb lost 3.1 percent to $51.51. Merck gained 2.3 percent to $61.98 after it reported encouraging results from studies of lung cancer treatments.

Kemper, Overton land on 2018 GWTSA All-Star Team

Special to the Herald

Two Coahoma High School softball players were named to the 2018 Greater West Texas Softball Association (GWTSA) All-Star Team.

game against East set for 1 p.m. Saturday at the Lubbock Christian University softball complex.

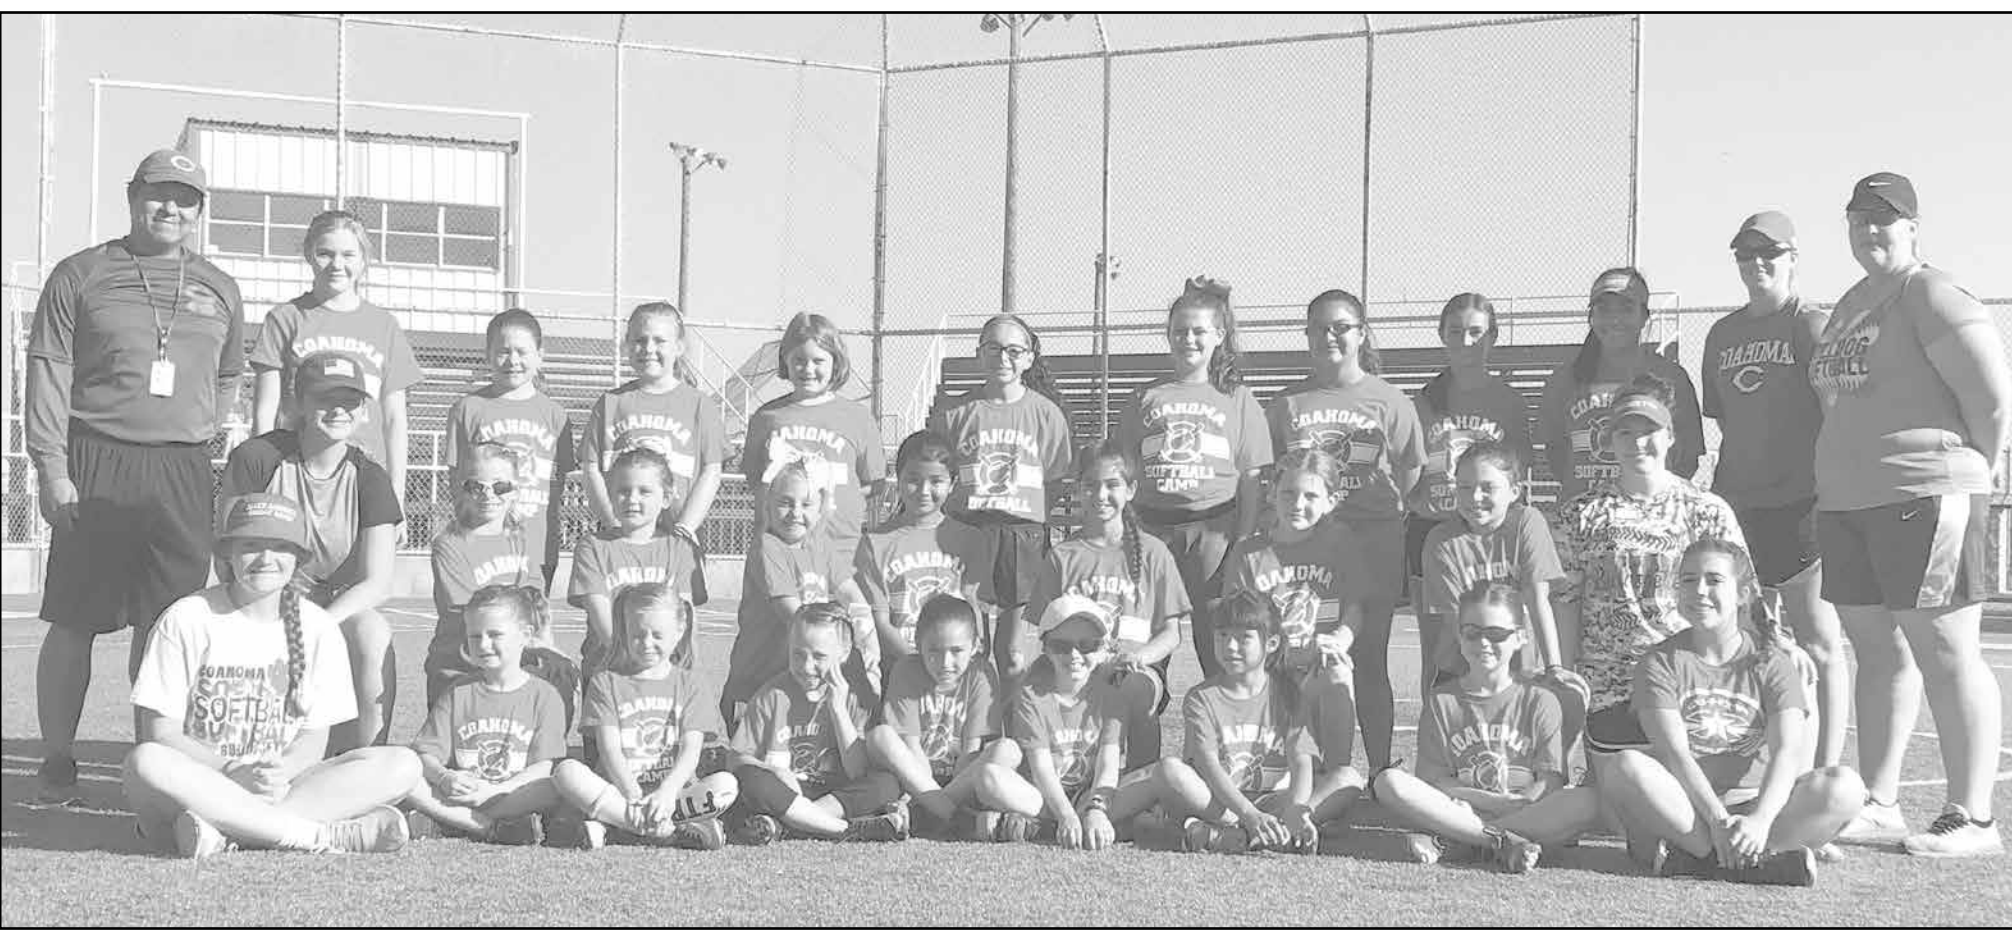

During this past season, the two Coahoma standouts helped lead the Bulldogettes to 19-5 record and a berth at the area round of the Class 3A State Playoffs. Offensively, Kemper was a major assist for Coahoma ending the year with a batting average of .357. She hammered in 16 RBI, is credited with 31 runs and collected 7 doubles, 1 triple and 1 home run.

Overton was also very competitive at the plate. She batted .326 with 8 RBI and 14 runs. Her statistics for the season include 3 doubles and 2 triples.

The GWTSA Small School All-Star team consists of players from 1A to 4A schools.

Success for Coahoma Futures Softball Camp

Courtesy photo

CHS Head Softball Coach Alex Orosco (left) and his assistants Haley Higgins and Katherine Shawver (right) held a very successful softball camp last week. "This camp was an excellent opportunity for kids to practice the skills they already have and to learn new tricks," Orosco said. "We appreciate all the parents who allowed their kids to participate. The future of Coahoma athletics looks bright." The Coahoma Futures Softball Camp was catered toward refining competitive skills for children in the third to sixth grade and was very well attended. Members of the 2018 Bi-District Champion Coahoma Bulldogettes also assisted with the camp.

Trout helps lift Angels to 9-6 win over Royals

By DAN GREENSPAN

ANAHEIM Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Give the Los Angeles Angels enough opportunities and they find ways to score runs.

It's a lesson they have taught the Kansas City Royals plenty of times this season.

Mike Trout had three hits, including a tiebreaking RBI single in the eighth inning, and the Angels beat the Royals 9-6 on Monday night.

"I thought we did a good job in the batter's box all night, and you have to when you're down 5-2 and you come back," Angels manager Mike Scioscia said.

Trout scored three runs and drove in two, Justin Upton and Albert Pujols also had two RBIs, and Jeffrey Marte went 4 for 4 with a solo home run to help the Angels improve to 4-0 against the Royals this season. Los Angeles has scored at least five runs in each of the wins.

Tim Hill (1-2) couldn't handle a bouncing comeback up the middle from Trout, and the ball had enough on it to carry to center field and allow Maldonado to score for the 7-6 lead.

"That was kind of a crazy one. That guy was pretty funky," Trout said of the hit that produced his 39th RBI. "Once I got the two strikes, I was just trying to put it in play."

Upton and Pujols each contributed run-scoring singles to add to the lead.

Cam Bedrosian (2-1) pitched a perfect eighth to get the win. Blake Parker got the last three outs, striking out Jorge Soler with a runner on first for his fourth save and the Angels' third win in four games.

"That's a team," said Angels starter Nick Tropeano, who gave up five runs in 4 2/3 innings. "We're going to pick each other up, and the offense did it huge. Bullpen picked me up huge, and we got the win, so that's good."

After Soler's two-run double pushed the Royals' lead to 5-2 in the fifth, Upton homered for the second straight game to pull the Angels within two in the bottom of the inning.

Marte added his third homer to start a three-run sixth. Trout drove in Shohei Ohtani, who hit a pinch-hit single, to tie the score 5-5. Pujols gave the Angels a 6-5 lead on a single that scored Trout for his 1,949th career RBI.

However, Salvador Perez tied it with a solo home run to left-center in the seventh.

Mike Moustakas, Alcides Escobar and Jon Jay each had an RBI for the Royals.

"We scored some runs early and I liked our at-bats early," Royals manager Ned Yost said. "Offensively, it's one of those nights where I feel like I don't really lament any opportunities missed."

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS on friends and money.

In November you'll finally get the chance to experience what you've long wondered about. Aquarius and Taurus adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 4, 33, 48 and 15.

COSMIC MESSAGE FROM MERCURY: You'll make a guess then another and another. You'll choose the one that makes the most sense to you.

Then you'll sculpt it into a theory, and, in that process, start to fall in love with your theory. It seems to be an idea about the future that has a chance at becoming real! Now, if this were a fairy tale, your love would be enough to make it so. Your love would be the kiss that breathes life into a happily-ever-after for all. But this not a fairy tale. We're just human beings navigating a complex, unpredictable and ever evolving landscape. Wanting doesn't make it so. Believing doesn't make it so. Acting doesn't make it so. What makes it so is that it is so. Reality is what's real. That's not to say that ideas, imaginings, beliefs or anything else are not real or even that they are less real: It's all arguable! What's not arguable, though, is reality. So don't argue with it, unless your desire is to suffer.

This has been a public service announcement courtesy of the solar conjunction to Mercury.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Mark Wahlberg is among the most versatile multi-hyphens in Hollywood, with modeling, making music, acting, producing and more on his long list of accomplishments. This Gemini born under a tenacious Mercury and Venus in Taurus has a number of credits coming out over the next year and beyond, including a family comedy, a historical look at Rome and a so-far-unnamed basketball movie.

Opposition of Venus and Pluto

The human maturation cycle includes a phase of unreasonable, irrational and self-centered behavior that all pass through and most circle back to periodically. Some get stuck there. Since it's an intrinsic and inevitable part of our nature, hopefully we can be tolerant of one another when we see it during this Venus-Pluto opposition.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). In this Jenga game of life, what seems like a perfectly stable arrangement can be knocked down in a blink with the right kind of jostle. This knowledge makes you simultaneously tougher and tenderer about it all.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Sometimes people don't know what to ask for until they see others get it. Mostly it's a feeling we're going for, not an item, though it can be difficult to tell when it's the item that seems to be making us happy, if only momentarily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). At the start of something, the tendency will be to judge every movement as if it were a sign about whether or not to continue. But once you get to the middle, all the trepidation will disappear into your desire to get it accomplished.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Slowing down isn't giving up, but it's not showing full commitment and enthusiasm, either. You'll be in a highly visible position today, and others will take their social and professional cues from you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll help people by connecting with them through a shared activity. It really doesn't matter what the activity is. What matters is your approach to it -- serious but not solemn, playful but not irreverent.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Removing your expectations from a relationship is not only wise; it's kind. It allows people to be who they really are, and it allows you to understand who that is -- a knowledge that will enhance your life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The representation of a thing is always different from the lived experience of it. You've always known that at some point you'd have to decide which version you wanted more. The point of decision is fast approaching.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Intimidating characters pepper this group you want to join, but don't let that deter you. Once inside you'll find allies, and you'll also find out that people are friendlier than they seem from the outside.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Friends will meet success. Your time is coming! You may have to swallow jealous tinges to be truly supportive, but this will be relatively easy for you when you focus on the good luck that is coming your way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Those people trying terribly hard to be good (and making a big show of it, at that!) are quite possibly compensating for something else. Keep your eyes open, and be slow to align yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The first requirement for effective action is to make sure you're really behind it. Determine what you really believe, and then get on your own side. If you're not on your side, figure out why and change it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're likely to take the action that most people would take -- the thing that seems like the best and easiest choice. So give yourself easy options that will make you proud. It will take some planning.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 5). This will be a year that sizzles with excitement. It starts with a brilliant plan based both on history and your gut instincts, which are particularly keen over the next three months. October shows you doubling up

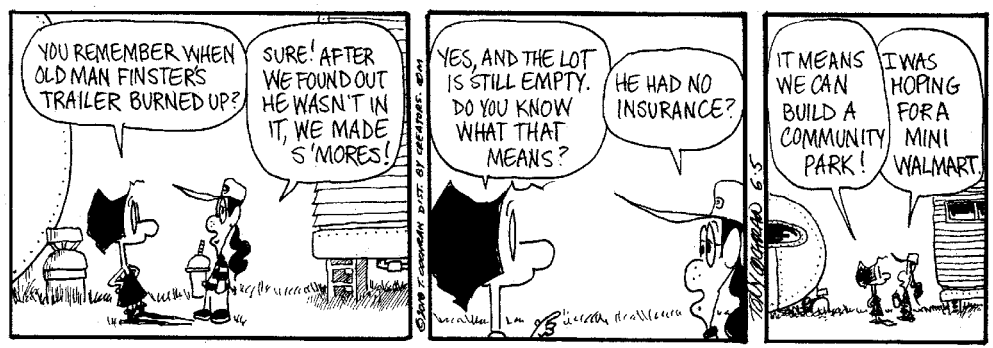

Table with 30 columns (KMID, UNI, KPEJ, KOSA, KTLT, KWES, KMLM, KPBT, KWWT, KWES2, WTBS, TNT, ESPN, ESPN2, FSN, USA, A&E, DISC) and 24 rows of TV listings.

Judge sets doubleheader K record

Associated Press

DETROIT — Yankees slugger Aaron Judge became the first player to record eight strikeouts in a doubleheader, including five punchouts in the nightcap as the Detroit Tigers beat New York 4-2 for a day-night split Monday.

Leonys Martin had two hits and scored twice for Detroit in the second game after New York took the opener 7-4 behind eight strong innings from Luis Severino (9-1) and a six-run fourth inning.

Judge struck out eight times in nine at-bats, the most in a doubleheader since strikeouts for hitters were first recorded in 1910 for the NL and 1913 in the AL, according to the Elias Sports Bureau. Judge struck out in each of his five at-bats in the late game, including with a runner aboard in the bottom of the ninth.

The five strikeouts were a career high for Judge, who led the majors with 208 strikeouts while winning AL Rookie of the Year last season.

The doubleheader made up rainouts from April 14 and 15. Both teams wore No. 42 for the second game because they were making up their postponed Jackie Robinson Day show-down.

Mike Fiers (5-3) got the win in the nightcap, allowing two runs in 5 2/3 innings. Three relievers finished, with Shane Greene striking out three in the ninth for his 15th save. Detroit's pitchers combined for 14 strikeouts in the game.

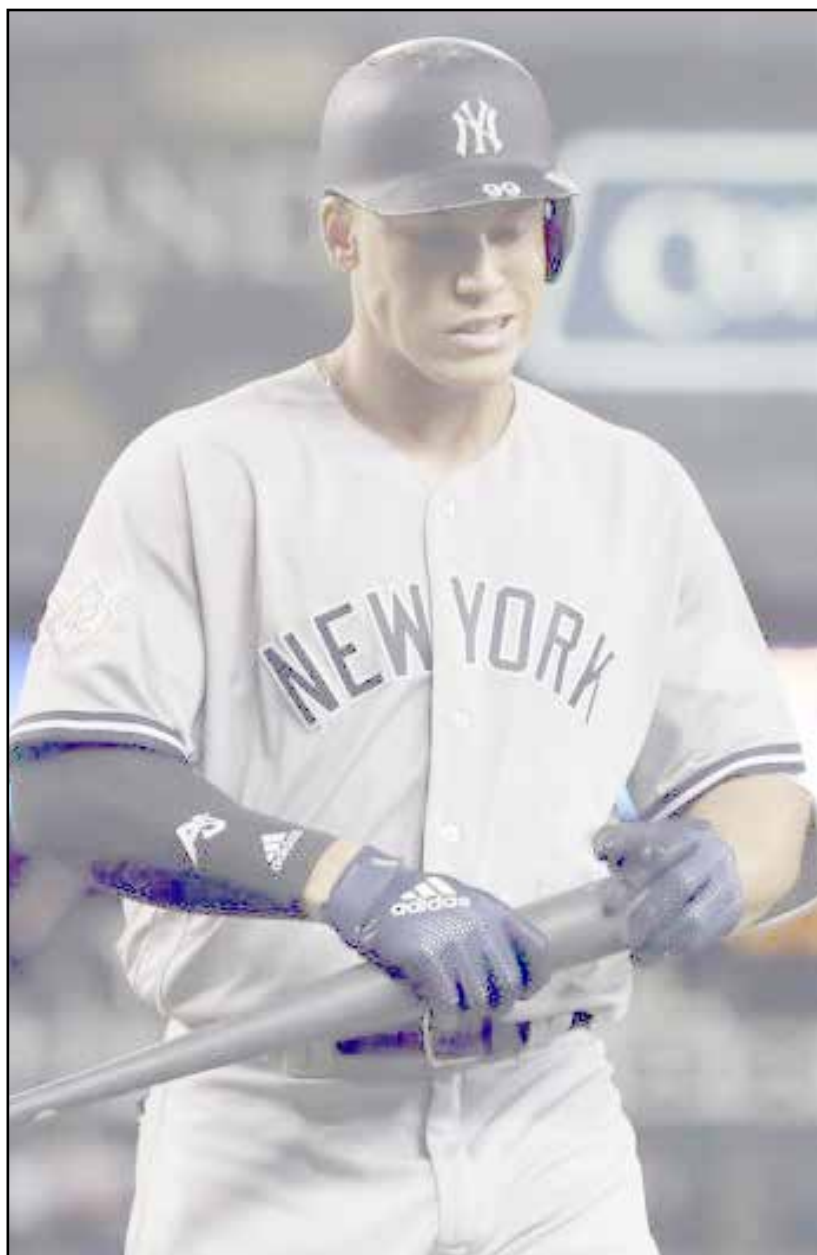

Domingo German (0-4) allowed four runs in 6 2/3 innings for New York.

Drew VerHagen (0-2) allowed seven runs in the first game for Detroit.

ANGELS 9, ROYALS 6

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Mike Trout had three hits, including a tiebreaking RBI single in the eighth inning, and Los Angeles beat Kansas City.

Trout scored three runs and drove in two, Justin Upton and Albert Pujols also had two RBIs, and Jefry Marte hit a solo home run to help the Angels improve to 4-0 against the Royals this season. Los Angeles has scored at least five runs in each of those wins.

Tim Hill (1-2) couldn't handle the bouncing comeback up the middle from Trout, and the ball had enough on it to carry to center field and allow Maldonado to score for the 7-6 lead. Upton and Pujols each added run-scoring singles to add to the lead.

Cam Bedrosian (2-1) pitched a perfect eighth to get the win. Blake Parker got the last three outs, striking out Jorge Soler with a runner on first for his fourth save and the Angels' third win in four games.

GIANTS 10, DIAMONDBACKS 3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Andrew McCutchen and Brandon Crawford opened a seven-run fourth inning with back-to-back home runs, and San Francisco got back to .500 on the season by beating first-place Arizona.

Pinch-hitter Alen Hanson and Buster Posey each added two-run doubles in the big inning to help the Giants win their fifth straight game to move within 1 1/2 games of the Diamondbacks in the NL West. Pablo Sandoval and Nick Hundley also homered for the Giants.

Pierce Johnson (3-2) pitched two scoreless innings to get the win after manager Bruce Bochy's decision to pull starter Derek Holland after just four innings paid off.

PADRES 11, BRAVES 4

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Cory Spangenberg homered and tripled, Raffy Lopez had a homer among his career-high three hits and Eric Hosmer and Franmil Reyes also went deep to lead San Diego.

Clayton Richard (4-6) pitched seven strong innings for the Padres, who have won six of seven and remain in last place in the NL West.

Braves starter Julio Teheran (4-4) was visited in the fifth for the second time in the game by the team trainer. He then came out with an undisclosed injury. Luiz Gohara came on and allowed six runs and six hits.

MARTE MASHES

Marte ended an 0-for-16 skid by getting hits in each of his four at-bats, and Scioscia hopes to get more consistency from the backup first baseman.

"This guy, really, he's got a great approach, especially against left-handed pitching," Scioscia said. "We saw it a couple years ago and hasn't really quite surfaced, but you saw it tonight with a great night and hopefully a sign of better things to come."

TIMELY OHTANI

Ohtani had been struggling in his last nine games as the designated hitter, going 5 for 29 (.172), but he came up big in his first pinch-hit appearance at home.

"Got the rally started, so a good time for that there," Scioscia said of Ohtani, who is 2 for 4 as a pinch-hitter.

Pujols went 2 for 4 as the DH in place of Ohtani, who will make next start as a pitcher Wednesday.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Angels: With Kole Calhoun (strained oblique) on the 10-day disabled list, Scioscia said he is comfortable rotating between Chris Young, Michael Hermosillo and Kaleb Cowart in right field. "We can mix-and-match a little bit, and just hopefully hold the fort down until Kole gets back," Scioscia said.

UP NEXT

Rangers: RHP Brad Keller (1-1, 2.13 ERA) will make his first career road start Tuesday. Keller gave up one run in three innings of an 11-8 win over Minnesota in his first start on Wednesday, and the 22-year old has a 2.19 ERA in 11 relief appearances on the road this season.

Angels: LHP Andrew Heaney (2-4, 3.66) has lost two of his last three starts, giving up five runs and eight hits in five innings of a 6-2 defeat at Detroit on Thursday.
