KBEST Freedom Runs Deep Blood Drive

By AMBER MANSFIELD
 Staff Writer

KBEST Media Group, Scenic Mountain Medical Center and United Blood Services invite you to be a part of the Freedom Runs Deep Blood Drive and donate blood on Tuesday, June 19th from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The blood-mobile will be in the parking lot of the hospital, located at 1601 W. 11th Place in Big Spring.

"Summer time includes more traveling, more outdoor activities and sadly, those adventures can sometimes lead to injuries," Amy Miramontes, Volunteer Coordinator, said. "Should the need arise, it's good to be proactive and make sure the blood bank is stocked. These blood drives give the community an opportunity to help out, donate, and possibly to save a life." Every two seconds, there is someone who needs a blood transfusion. Unfortunately, there is no substitute for human blood. Only someone who volunteers can save the lives of those who are in need of blood. "Those wanting to donate can sign up in advance online. There will be limited space for walk-ins, but to shorten wait time we want to encourage people to go ahead and sign up for a time slot," Miramontes said. She continued, "We normally see between 20 to 30 people come through and donate, which equates to a little over 100 units. That turns into a big impact." Donors will get a KBEST Freedom

Big Spring Area Community Foundation banquet set for June 28

By ROGER CLINE
 Staff Writer

It's time once again for the Big Spring Area Community Foundation's Annual Banquet, at which thousands of dollars of grants and scholarships will be awarded by the foundation.

Foundation President Drew Mouton said the annual banquet, held in June each year, is open to the public. This year's banquet will be held in the ballroom at the historic Settles Hotel.

"We sell tickets. Someone who's interested in going should just RSVP at my office," he said. "We send out a lot of invitations to people who have supported the foundation in the past, but anyone who wants to attend is welcome to, to learn a little more about the foundation and see where the money's going. Almost all the board members will be there, so there will be people who knows exactly what the foundation is and how it works. We spend very little time doing that. Ninety percent of

Family separation policy starts dividing Republicans

By JILL COLVIN and CATHERINE LUCEY
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Facing a rising tide of outrage from Democrats and some Republicans over the forced separation of migrant children and parents at the U.S.-Mexico border, President Donald Trump dug in Monday, again falsely blaming Democrats in the escalating political crisis. Democrats have turned up the pressure over the policy, and some Republicans have joined the chorus of criticism. Former first lady Laura Bush has called the policy "cruel" and "immoral" while GOP Sen. Susan Collins expressed concern about it and a former adviser to Trump questioned using the policy to pressure Democrats on immigration legislation.

Monday, tweeting: "Why don't the Democrats give us the votes to fix the world's worst immigration laws? Where is the outcry for the killings and crime being caused by gangs and thugs, including MS-13, coming into our country illegally?"

Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen refused Monday to apologize for enforcing immigration laws that result in the separation of children from their parents. Speaking at a meeting of the National Sheriffs' Association in New Orleans Monday, she rejected criticism accusing DHS of inhuman and immoral actions.

"We are doing none of those things. We are enforcing the laws passed by Congress," she said, calling on Congress to reform immigration laws.

Nearly 2,000 children were separated from their families over a six-week period in April and May after Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced a new "zero-tolerance" policy that refers all cases of illegal entry for criminal prosecution. U.S. protocol prohibits detaining children with their parents because the children are not charged with a crime and the parents are.

Nielsen said that releasing parents with their children amounts to a "get out of jail free card" policy for illegal immigrants.

Trump asserted that children "are being used by some of the worst criminals on earth" as a way to enter the United States. He tweeted: "Has anyone been looking at the Crime taking place south of the border," calling it "historic."

The administration pushed back amid rising criticism from both sides of the political aisle. In a guest column for the Washington Post Sunday, Mrs. Bush made some of the strongest comments yet from a Republican.

"I live in a border state. I appreciate the need to enforce and protect our international boundaries, but this zero-tolerance policy is cruel. It is immoral. And it breaks my heart," she wrote. She compared it to the internment of Japanese-Americans during World War II, which she called "one of the most shameful episodes in U.S. history."

Underscoring the emotional tension, first lady Melania Trump, who has tended to stay out of contentious policy debates, waded into the issue. Her spokeswoman said that Mrs. Trump believes "we need to be a country that follows all laws," but also one "that governs with heart."

"Mrs. Trump hates to see children separated from their families and hopes both sides of the aisle can finally come together to achieve successful immigration reform," spokeswoman Stephanie Grisham said.

The signs of splintering GOP support come after longtime Trump ally, the Rev. Franklin Graham, called the policy "disgraceful." Several religious groups, including some conservative ones, have pushed to stop the practice of separating immigrant children from their parents.

Former Trump adviser Anthony Scaramucci said Monday on CNN that it "doesn't feel right" for the Trump administration to blame Democrats for separating parents and children at the southern border as a way of pressuring Democrats into negotiating on a Republican immigration bill.

Republican Sen. Susan Collins of Maine said she favors tighter border security, but expressed deep concerns about the child separation policy.

"What the administration has decided to do is to separate children from their parents to try to send a message that if you cross the border with children, your children are going to be ripped away from you," she said. "That's traumatizing to the children who are innocent victims, and it is contrary to our values in this country."

Trump plans to meet with House Republicans on Tuesday to discuss pending immigration legislation amid an election-season debate over one of his favorite issues. The House is expected to vote this week on a bill pushed by conservatives that may not have enough support to pass, and a compromise measure with key proposals supported by the president. The White House has said Trump would sign either of those.

This pressure is coming as some White House officials have tried to distance themselves from the policy. "Nobody likes" breaking up families and "seeing babies ripped from their mothers' arms," said presidential counselor Kellyanne Conway

Conway rejected the idea that Trump was using the kids as leverage to force Democrats to negotiate on immigration and his long-promised border wall, even after Trump tweeted Saturday: "Democrats can fix their forced family breakup at the Border by working with Republicans on new legislation, for a change!"

Asked whether the president was willing to end the policy, she said: "The president is ready to get meaningful immigration reform across the board."

To Rep. Adam Schiff, D-Calif., the administration is "using the grief, the tears, the pain of these kids as mortar to build our wall. And it's an effort to extort a bill to their liking in the Congress."

Schiff said the practice was "deeply unethical" and that Republicans' refusal to criticize Trump represented a "sad degeneration" of the GOP, which he said had become "the party of lies."

The House proposals face broad opposition from Democrats, and even if a bill does pass, the closely divided Senate seems unlikely to go along.

Trump's former chief strategist said Republicans would face steep consequences for pushing the compromise bill because it provides a path to citizenship for young "Dreamer" immigrants brought to the country illegally as children. Steve Bannon argued that effort risked alienating Trump's political base and contributing to election losses in November, when Republicans hope to preserve their congressional majorities.

the gathering is to issue the checks and to recognize the grant winners and the scholarship recipients, the kids who get the scholarships. So it's a very, very short program other than the grant winners and the scholarship recipients."

At this year's annual banquet, the BSACF plans to announce grants to around 15 local organizations and groups, including Food to Kids, the Big Spring Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Big Spring Symphony Association, the Heritage Museum of Big Spring, the Big Spring Salvation Army, Victim Services, the HOPE Foundation, Hangar 25 Air Museum, the Buffalo Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America, Big Spring Main Street, the Cross Roads Young Marines, Boy Scouts Troop 1, Howard College and the South West Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, among others. The total amount of grants is in excess of $200,000.

Names of scholarship recipients had not been released when this article was written; they'll be announced at the banquet, and the Big Spring Herald will have the list after that event.

Mouton explained the origins, mission and scope of the organization; noting that the BSACF was founded by the late local businessman and community leader Charles Beil.

"The geographic area we try to cover is Howard County and all contiguous counties, so any county that touches Howard County," said Mouton. "It's probably been in existence for 15 years, but the first five, six, seven years, there wasn't really much happening. It was just trying to get going. But about the last eight to 10 years, we started making some big progress. The originator was Charles Beil. It was his baby, he got it started. Then he passed away and the board took it from there and it's been growing the last eight to 10 years."

The BSACF is not a charity itself, but serves as a middleman between donors and charitable causes, said Mouton.

"It's to provide a channel for people to engage in philanthropy and charitable giving. We are not the charity, we are really the conduit between the individual and the charity of their choice," he said. "Our real purpose is permanent endowments. We handle some temporary endowments, we are glad to do that, but our real mission is to create permanent endowments that will last literally forever. We have a good bit of money that is at the discretion of the board, that can be granted on an ongoing basis as needs arise in the community, then we have some funds that are created by donors that are limited to serve a particular purpose or a particular charity, and we're glad to administer those funds just as well."

Mouton said the BSACF's current holdings are in excess of $10 million.

"We're growing at the rate of about a million dollars a year, and we expect in 10 years to hopefully be well over $20 million," he said. "Roughly four to five percent of that every year is designated as income that can be distributed in grants. As the fund grows, our ability to distribute grants grows. That does not include the scholarships that we fund. We probably award about 20 scholarships, and I want to say the total value of those scholarships is around $30,000. Maybe a little more, $30 to $35,000. None of those are tied to a particular school. Probably the majority of the scholarships are used at Howard College, but there's a lot of scholarships where the students go to other schools. As a matter of fact, we had our first scholarship last year go to Stanford University. So we were real proud of that."

King and queen of Spain visit 300-year-old San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Spain's King Felipe VI and Queen Letizia are in San Antonio to celebrate the city's tricentennial and its roots as a Spanish colonial village.

The royal couple attended a welcoming ceremony Sunday hosted by Mayor Ron Nirenberg and other city officials at the Spanish Governor's Palace before touring the San Jose Mission site and then visiting an historical exhibit. An evening dinner with Texas Gov. Greg Abbott also was planned.

What became San Antonio originally was founded as Mission San Antonio de Valero on May 1, 1718, by Spanish Franciscan missionaries backed by the Spanish monarchy and government during the colonization of New Spain.

The king and queen are to meet Tuesday with President Donald Trump and first lady Melania Trump at the White House.

Southeast Texas man, woman and son, 5, slain

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — The skeletal remains of three people have been found on a Southeast Texas ranch and Texas Department of Public Safety authorities believe they are a man, woman and their 5-year-old son who have been missing for a week.

Wharton County sheriff's authorities say a 36-year-old man, Robert Satterfield, is charged with murder for the deaths. Satterfield, who already was in custody in neighboring Fort Bend County, led officials to the site where authorities say someone tried to burn the bodies.

Satterfield was discovered Thursday driving the car of missing 24-year-old Maya Rivera. She, her boyfriend, 28-year-old Rayshawn Hudson, and their 5-year-old son, Rayshawn Jr., were reported missing last week. She was last seen June 10. The family lived in Angleton, just south of Houston.

2 Central Texas men identified as plane crash victims

ROTAN, Texas (AP) — Two Central Texas men have been identified as victims of a small plane crash in West Texas.

The Texas Department of Public Safety says 33-year-old Dallas Lee McMahon, of Austin, and 38-year-old Jay Robert Liesbon, of Burnet, were killed when their single-engine aircraft plummeted into a canyon on a ranch outside Rotan on Friday.

Fisher County Sheriff Alan Arnwine says the plane hit a power line. It took authorities on an all-terrain vehicle nearly two hours to reach the site in a rugged area.

Rotan is about 100 miles (160.93 kilometers) south-east of Lubbock.

2 in Dallas charged with murder after 2 bodies found in car

DALLAS (AP) — Two men are charged with capital murder in the shooting deaths of two men found in stuffed last month in the trunk of a Cadillac near a West Dallas park.

Authorities say 37-year-old Moises Martinez has admitted his role in the homicides and has named an accomplice, 26-year-old Andres Frausto. Frausto already was in custody on an unrelated charge.

The bodies of 20-year-old Jacob Collard and 28-year-old and Robert Diaz III were found May 15 after city park employees noticed a foul odor coming from the car.

An arrest warrant affidavit says police used phone records to tie Martinez to Diaz, who worked at a construction company that also employed Collard.

One witness has told police Martinez had been selling drugs to the slain men.

Texas college student killed during Siberian study hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas Tech University student participating in a University of Texas study program in Russia has died in a fall.

University of Texas officials say Elmer Arrieta, a graduate student at Texas Tech's College of Architecture, has been killed while hiking on Olkhon Island in Eastern Siberia.

The 27-year-old Arrieta, an El Paso native, was one of 20 students involved in the hike Saturday on the island about 3,400 miles (5,471 kilometers) east of Moscow and north of Mongolia.

University of Texas Dean of Students Soncia Regains-Lilly says Arrieta's parents have been notified and the school is providing assistance to them. School counselors also have been sent to Irkutsk, the major city in the area.

Army narrows list of cities down to 5 for new command HQ

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A U.S. Army spokesman says officials have narrowed to five the number of cities under consideration to house a prestigious command center that's meant to modernize Army operations and technology.

Col. Patrick Seiber tells the Austin American-Statesman that Austin, Texas, is a finalist for the Futures Command headquarters along with Boston, Minneapolis, Philadelphia and Raleigh, North Carolina.

Seiber says 10 other cities — including Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles and Seattle — are no longer candidates. A final decision is expected by the end of June.

The Army wants the center to be near experts in technology and innovation who can figure out emerging threats and what equipment will be needed to answer them.

The complex will have a staff of roughly 500 people, led by a four-star general.

Hundreds of children wait in Border Patrol facility in Texas

In this photo provided by U.S. Customs and Border Protection, people who've been taken into custody related to cases of illegal entry into the United States, sit in one of the cages at a facility in McAllen, Texas, Sunday, June 17, 2018.

By NOMAAN MERCHANT

Associated Press

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Inside an old warehouse in South Texas, hundreds of children wait in a series of cages created by metal fencing. One cage had 20 children inside. Scattered about are bottles of water, bags of chips and large foil sheets intended to serve as blankets.

One teenager told an advocate who visited that she was helping care for a young child she didn't know because the child's aunt was somewhere else in the facility. She said she had to show others in her cell how to change the girl's diaper.

The U.S. Border Patrol on Sunday allowed reporters to briefly visit the facility where it holds families arrested at the southern U.S. border, responding to new criticism and protests over the Trump administration's "zero tolerance" policy and resulting separation of families.

More than 1,100 people were inside the large, dark facility that's divided into separate wings for unaccompanied children, adults on their own, and mothers and fathers with children. The cages in each wing open out into common areas to use portable restrooms. The overhead lighting in the warehouse stays on around the clock.

The Border Patrol said close to 200 people inside the facility were minors — unaccompanied by a parent. Another 500 were "family units," parents and children. Many adults who crossed the border without legal permission could be charged with illegal entry and placed in jail, away from their children.

Reporters were not allowed by agents to interview any of the detainees or take photos.

Nearly 2,000 children have been taken from their parents since Attorney General Jeff Sessions announced the policy, which directs Homeland Security officials to refer all cases of illegal entry into the United States for prosecution. Church groups and human rights advocates have sharply criticized the policy, calling it inhumane.

Stories have spread of children being torn from their parents' arms, and parents not being able to find where their kids have gone. A group of congressional lawmakers visited the same facility Sunday and were set to visit a longer-term shelter holding around 1,500 children — many of whom were separated from their parents.

"Those kids inside who have been separated from their parents are already being traumatized," said Democratic Sen. Jeff Merkley of Oregon, who was denied entry earlier this month to children's shelter. "It doesn't matter whether the floor is swept and the bedsheets tucked in tight."

In Texas' Rio Grande Valley, the busiest corridor for people trying to enter the U.S., Border Patrol officials argue that they have to crack down on migrants and separate adults from children as a deterrent to others.

"When you exempt a group of people from the law ... that creates a draw," said Manuel Padilla, the Border Patrol's chief agent here. "That creates the

Agents running the holding facility — generally known as "Ursula" for the name of the street it's on — said everyone detained is given adequate food, access to showers and laundered clothes, and medical care. People are supposed to move through the facility quickly. Under U.S. law, children are required to be turned over within three days to shelters funded by the Department of Health and Human Services.

Padilla said agents in the Rio Grande Valley have allowed families with children under the age of 5 to stay together in most cases.

An advocate who spent several hours in the facility Friday said she was deeply troubled by what she found.

Texas Tech stuns Gators 6-3 in College World Series

By ERIC OLSON

AP Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — Texas Tech cleared the hurdle of winning a College World Series opener. It was a high one, too.

Gabe Holt hit a tiebreaking single in the fifth inning and drove in an insurance run in the ninth, leading the Red Raiders to a stunning 6-3 win over defending national champion Florida on Sunday night.

The Red Raiders (45-18) won their CWS opener for the first time in their three appearances, and they did it against the No. 1 overall seed in the NCAA Tournament and a first-round draft pick in starting pitcher Brady Singer.

"There are a lot of good teammates on this team, and they're thankful we're in the position we're in. They don't take it for granted," Tech coach Tim Tadlock said. "There aren't too many guys in there after we won tonight saying, 'Hey, we've got this figured out.'"

"That's one game. Really proud of our guys of how we went out and competed. We were going to have to do that each inning to come out on the right side. And also have some good fortune."

Texas Tech pitchers limited the Gators to five hits but issued five walks. That was more than good enough against a Florida offense that has struggled for three straight games.

To have a chance to repeat as champions, the Gators (47-20) must win four straight to reach the best-of-three finals. Only Oregon State in 2006 and South Carolina in 2010 have lost their Omaha openers and made it to the finals since the tournament went to its current structure in 1999.

"There's no rewind button here. We lost. We've got to move forward," Gators coach Kevin O'Sullivan said. "It's certainly doable. Ultimately, we're going to have to have some other guys step up."

Until Nelson Maldonado's two-run homer into the left-field bullpen pulled the Gators to 5-3 in the seventh, Florida's only run had come when Deacon Liput came home on a balk by Ryan Shetter.

Shetter (6-0), who pitched 4 1/3 innings of three-hit relief, earned the win.

Singer (12-2), the No. 18 overall draft pick by the Kansas City Royals, went 6 1/3 innings and allowed five runs — two earned — and nine hits.

The Red Raiders took a 3-1 lead in the fifth after Cody Farhat singled with two outs and ended up on third when shortstop Liput threw wildly to first on Braxton Fulford's grounder. Farhat and Fulford both scored when Holt chopped a ball through the right side.

Tech added two more in the sixth, and it was a three-run game in the ninth when Holt, the Big 12 freshman of the year, singled into right field.

"We're fortunate to have guys who can swing the bat," Tadlock said. "I don't know how much coaching was going on. The guys were hunting pitches to hit."

Florida allowed three unearned runs on a passed ball and a two-out error. The Gators didn't allow an unearned run in last year's title run at the CWS.

Offensively, the Gators had runners at third three times and failed each time to get them home, and they were just 1 for 15 with runners on base and 0 for 7 with runners in scoring position.

In its last three games, Florida has scored a total of eight runs while batting .186.

HUMMING OFFENSE

Texas Tech's six runs and 12 hits were its most in a CWS game. Seven players had at least one hit. The Red Raiders' previous highs in a game in Omaha were five runs and nine hits against Coastal Carolina in 2016.

JJ'S BACK

JJ Schwarz returned to the Florida lineup for the first time since breaking his right hand May 18. The Oakland Athletics' eighth-round draft pick started at first base and drafted fourth. He was 0 for 4 with two strikes.

Jonah Girand, who had been filling in for Schwarz and remained in the lineup at catcher, continues to struggle with the bat after hitting three home runs in four regional games. Since then he has struck out on 10 of 13 at-bats. He was pulled out of a pinch hitter in the seventh inning.

UP NEXT

Texas Tech plays Arkansas in a Bracket 2 winners' game on Tuesday night. Florida plays an elimination game against Texas in the afternoon. Arkansas beat the Longhorns 11-5 on Sunday.

Arkansas rides 8-run inning to 11-5 CWS win over Longhorns

By ERIC OLSON

AP Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — Once Arkansas' offense got rolling against Texas in the sixth inning, nothing could stop the Razorbacks. Not even the weather.

Five straight batters had reached base when the teams were pulled from the field for a weather delay. When play resumed 2 hours, 49 minutes later, five more in a row got on base.

What turned into an eight-run sixth carried the Razorbacks to an 11-5 win in their College World Series opener on Sunday.

"We have such a balanced lineup, and we all know what we're trying to do at the plate," Arkansas' Luke Bonfield said. "Once Casey Martin had that lead-off hit after the rain delay, everything snowballed, and we got a ton more momentum and we never let up on the gas."

The Razorbacks (45-19) scored double-digit runs for the fourth time in six NCAA Tournament wins and had their highest total in 28 CWS games. The Longhorns (42-22), in the CWS for a record 36th time, lost their third straight Omaha opener since 2011.

Bonfield delivered the first home run of the CWS with his two-run shot to left for a 3-2 lead in the fifth. Parker Joe Robinson took over for Texas starter Nolan Kingham (8-5) to start the sixth and walked the only two batters he faced. That started a parade of pitchers who either struggled to find the strike zone or got dinged for single after single.

Texas hadn't given up so many runs in an inning this season.

"I'm not shell-shocked," Longhorns coach David Pierce said. "It's just part of it. It's not the way we wished it had gone. Unfortunately, it got away from us, and we couldn't overcome the deficit."

In all, Arkansas sent 14 batters to the plate and Texas used five pitchers in an inning that matched Arkansas' biggest of the season.

For the game, eight Arkansas batters had at least one hit and seven drove in a run.

"We went from down 2-1 to up 3-2 and it happened with two outs," Razorbacks coach Dave Van Horn said. "That was the swing we were looking for to get us going a little bit. And then, obviously, we set up the big inning, had a couple of runs in, had a rain delay, and came out and really just did a nice job scoring some runs there that gave us an opportunity to relax a little bit."

The Razorbacks swept the Longhorns 13-4 and 7-5 in Fayetteville in March, but this was the first time the old rivals from the Southwest Conference days had been matched in the CWS since 2004.

Arkansas starter Blaine Knight (13-0), the Baltimore Orioles' third-round draft pick, allowed two runs on four hits and a walk in five innings. He struck out four while setting the school season record for wins.

second baseman, jawing at Heston Kjerstad for being too rough with first baseman Jake McKenzie. The Longhorns, apparently thinking Kjerstad turned toward second base before changing his mind after running through the base, hurried to get the ball to McKenzie after an overthrow. Kjerstad made it back to first and knocked over McKenzie upon his arrival, with the umpire extending his arms to separate Clemens and McKenzie.

UP NEXT

Arkansas plays Tuesday night against Texas Tech. Texas plays in the afternoon against Florida. Texas Tech beat the Gators 6-3 on Sunday night.

"The 13-0 thing, I chalk it up as another win for the team," he said. "I'll do what I can to get a win for this team and keep us going."

Big 12 player of the year Kody Clemens, son of seven-time Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens and one of the hottest hitters in the postseason, was 1 for 5 with two strikeouts.

"Everyone is down right now," Texas center fielder Tate Shaw said. "I'm sure every one of us will get over it. It's baseball. Gotta forget."

GARRIDO TRIBUTE

A sixth-inning video tribute to long-time Texas coach and NCAA wins leader Augie Garrido ended with fans for both teams standing to applaud. Garrido stepped down as coach after the 2016 season and ranked first in college baseball wins until Florida State coach Mike Martin broke the record last month. Garrido won two national championships at Texas and three at Cal State Fullerton during his 48-year career. He died in March following a stroke.

Pierce is wearing No. 16, Garrido's number, for the entirety of the CWS. Pierce normally wears No. 22.

"I was able to talk to the players about it, and it was the same way we approached it from day one, understanding he's a huge piece of us," Pierce said. "Augie wouldn't want to be the center of attention, and he would appreciate the way we've handled it."

Annie's Mailbox®

The Kids Decision

Dear Annie: How does one know whether she wants children? For my whole life, I haven't been sure, but I figured I'd know eventually. Now I'm in my late 20s and not any closer to making up my mind.

I'm afraid I'd regret it if I didn't have kids, but I've never particularly wanted them, either. Don't get me wrong; I am sure that if I did have them, I would love them more than anything -- but that also scares me, because it would mean focusing less on my career. And honestly, when I try to imagine the future, my career is the first thing that comes to mind. I have plans to start my own business within the next five years. My work excites me and fulfills me. I also love my current lifestyle -- taking spontaneous trips and trying new hobbies.

I'm not even in a serious relationship right now, so it's not as though I'd be settling down and having children soon. But if it's something I want to do, I feel that I at least need to start moving my life toward that direction. I'm realizing how quickly time passes once you're in the working world, and my 30s will be here before I know it. How does one know whether she wants to be a mom? -- Undecided in Ohio

Dear Undecided: You are a very wise and thoughtful woman. Children are a huge responsibility. They rely on you for their very existence. So putting your career ahead of them is not an option. If you are truly undecided about having children right now, I would say wait and see. When that serious relationship comes along, you'll see what your partner wants out of life. If you find a partner who is very nurturing and really wants kids, then he might take on the majority of responsibility so that you can continue to focus on your career. If you find a partner who feels the way you do, then the two of you might find a very fulfilling life in other ways, with extended family, friends, career, travel or volunteering.

There is no right or wrong answer. What is not right for you now may be right for you in five years. And if it's not right in five years, then you will find other enjoyments. The point is that you don't have to have it all mapped out perfectly. Some of the most interesting people took their time in figuring out exactly what they wanted from life. Regardless of whether you have children, it sounds as if you will have a very fulfilling life because of your thoughtfulness in the pursuit of happiness.

Dear Annie: I was mistreated at my husband's funeral. People walked by as if I didn't exist. I was mistreated by his son, my stepson. I loved my husband very much, and I won't get married again. I had a good man, and nobody could take his place. How does one deal with life when she has lost her husband? -- Angel in Illinois

Dear Angel: I am so sorry for your loss. And I am sorry you're feeling so alone in your time of grief. There's no easy answer, but reaching out to others -- as you have done in writing to me -- can help, even if you don't quite feel like it. Look to friends, grief counselors and spiritual advisers for support, as well as organizations such as Soaring Spirits International. Its website says, "Widowed people created Soaring Spirits because we discovered that connecting with other widowed people made the challenges of surviving a spouse or partner a little easier to manage." Visit <https://www.soaringspirits.org> or call 877-671-4071 for more information.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book -- featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette -- is available as a paperback and e-book. Visit <http://www.creators-publishing.com> for more information. Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com. COPYRIGHT 2018 CREATORS.COM

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

Neptune Calls for Soul Nutrition

"Panem et circenses" is the cynical formula of Roman emperors for keeping the masses content. Translation: "bread and circuses." But filling treats and easy entertainment will cease to be enough with Neptune screeching to a halt to begin a long retrograde. There will be a growing need for real soul nutrition in the weeks to come.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you try to do good things -- or beautiful or truthful or interesting things -- then no matter what the outcome, at least you're spending your time doing something worthwhile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Is life random or planned? Some doubt the randomness. Others wholly reject it. And still others count on it completely. As for you, you'll do well not to gamble on randomness. Make a plan and stick with it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You're a designer looking for inspiration. You don't have to set sail to an exotic location to get there, because your daily commute -- or even your bedroom -- will provide all the inspiration you need.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There's a thread running through all of this, although you most likely won't see it now. Later you'll be able to follow the thread through the pattern, and it will all make a little more sense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The reason things wind up next to each other can be a function of random juxtaposition or the end result of a careful thought process. Either way, the way it lands will be lucky for you today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Like a slow-loading, video-laden website, if you try too desperately to entertain, people will get bored waiting for something interesting to happen, and they'll just leave. So keep it simple. Less is more.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Cages take many forms. Even the most luxurious environments can be a prison if one cannot come and go at will. But you're not in a cage. What you're in is a maze. There's a way out. It takes a bit of work to find it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There are real people whose job it is to search for extraterrestrials in a scientific way. You may relate to them somewhat, as today you also happen to feel as though you're searching intently for a distant affirmation.

SAGITTARI-

US (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The first step to finding someone's secrets is having your own secrets and an intimate knowledge of the behaviors it takes to hide them. "It takes one to know one" is a sort of key today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Somewhere out there are glittering skyscrapers and technicolor trees and lakes that dazzle like a billion diamonds. Whether you prefer man-made glories or natural ones, seek them now!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The truth is supposed to keep things simple. But whose truth? The other person isn't seeing it the way you do. Another way to keep things simple is to say nothing for now. Let everything settle in.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). If you can't get yourself to change a behavior, that's because the behavior is actually solving a problem you don't even realize you have. It's something to meditate on today. Don't worry; there's a simple fix once you get to the heart of it.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 18). Relationships bring out your creativity as they blossom in unexpected ways. You'll capture someone's imagination and heart -- a responsibility you don't take lightly. Deft financial maneuvers will improve your situation in this six-week cycle. August brings an adventure you'll share with loved ones. Capricorn and Aries adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 40, 13, 21 and 5.

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Opening lead — king of spades.

My brother, Mike, is the source of this deal, which he played in a pairs championship some years ago. He held the North hand and overcalled one spade with two hearts.

South now had a wide choice of bids. He realized his side had a game, but he had no way of knowing where.

One possibility was to cuebid spades to try to find the best landing place. Another possibility was to raise two hearts directly to four.

But South decided the best score at match points might lie in notrump, so he jumped to three notrump, running the risk that the diamond suit might be run against him.

West, not vulnerable, bid four spades, and Mike bid four notrump. This was not Blackwood, but merely a raise in notrump. West then bid five spades, which Mike passed. The pass was meant to encourage his partner to go on — otherwise, he would have doubled. South accepted the invitation, revealing his club suit for the first time.

West then bid six spades, doubled by South, but Mike, unwilling to accept a small penalty in lieu of a slam, converted the double to six notrump. After East and South passed, West reasoned that the slam would surely be made, so he pushed on to seven spades.

Once more Mike made an invitational pass, which South again accepted, bidding seven notrump. West doubled, but declarer had three more tricks than he needed.

The stop-and-go manner in which the laydown grand slam was reached is surely one of the strangest sequences in the annals of the game.

Tomorrow: The one and only chance.

Koepka's golf legacy secured after 2nd straight Open win

By BARRY WILNER

AP Sports Writer
SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. — For a guy who has won all of three PGA Tour events, Brooks Koepka has a golf legacy that already is secure.

That's how it should be for winning back-to-back U.S. Opens.

Koepka became the first man to turn that impressive trick in nearly three decades by handling a Shinnecock Hills course that varied from beastly to benign. His one-stroke victory Sunday over Tommy Fleetwood even topped Koepka's first major victory a year ago at Erin Hills.

"I don't want to say I didn't think I could do it, but I knew that it was going to be that much more difficult," Koepka said after closing with a 2-under 68 and a 1-over 281 total. "And to finally do it, it's much more gratifying the second time. I can really appreciate how hard it is to win a major, and to win back-to-back is special, and my second major is cool."

Even better is that he won on two different style courses. Erin Hills had spacious fairways. Shinnecock Hills had tighter landing areas and tougher greens. They look nothing alike. Koepka, however, said he felt they played similar.

"Shinnecock plays incredibly tough, and you knew that going in even par was going to be a really good score," he said. "And it turned out it was almost impossible to shoot even."

Not in the final round it wasn't, one day after the USGA conceded it lost a handle on the golf course. While Koepka's 68 separated him from a four-way tie to start the final round, there were 14 other subpar rounds — including Fleetwood tying the U.S. Open record with a 63 after he missed an 8-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

The easier conditions Sunday allowed a bunch of players to challenge: Koepka's buddy and playing partner Dustin Johnson, who led or shared the lead in each of the first three rounds; Masters champion Patrick Reed; Saturday co-leaders Tony Finau and Daniel Berger; and Fleetwood.

But the prize went to Koepka, whose composure, confidence and competitiveness served him well. All of those traits came together a year ago, and defined his victory this time.

"This one's a lot sweeter," he said.

Lots will be written and said about Koepka, 28, when the U.S. Open heads to Pebble Beach in 2019 and he tries to match Willie Anderson (1903-05) as the only golfer to win three in a row. Koepka has played there once, finishing eighth in the PGA Tour event that uses three courses.

First, though, he'll travel to Carnoustie for the British Open, where he should feel at home. Koepka spent much of his early pro career in Europe before becoming a PGA Tour regular in 2015.

The final major of the year is the PGA Championship at Bellerive in St. Louis.

Still, questions about the future for Koepka focused on the U.S. Open, in which Curtis Strange was the last to successfully defend in 1989. Strange, who walked the course with Koepka and Johnson as a broadcaster for Fox Sports, believes Koepka can lengthen his streak.

"He's proven he can win on a classic" course, Strange said. "Hell, I came close, and he'd beat me like a yard dog."

The pressure the third time is even more extreme, said the only person alive who would know.

"For me, it was," Strange said. "He looks like water off a duck's back, both times. I look like I'm wound a little differently. He seems to move right on through life, which is a good thing."

Koepka is especially appreciative of this good thing because he was sidelined for four months by a wrist injury, only returning in May and missing the cut in a team event in New Orleans. He had a second-place showing at the Colonial in his preparation for Shinnecock Hills.

While not playing or practicing every day wasn't a big deal to him as he recovered from the wrist injury, not having those competitive juices flowing on the course was.

"I didn't miss it until I knew I wasn't going to be at Augusta," he said. "I missed the preparation. I missed the competitiveness."

"I miss competing. That's really what it is. I've got to be competing at something, it doesn't matter what it is. I just feel like I need to be back out grinding. I felt like I was missing so much."

He looked at the shiny U.S. Open trophy sitting on a table next to him.

"I looked at all these names a million times, it felt like, last year, just looking at everybody," Koepka said. "To have my name on there twice is pretty incredible, and to go back to back is even more extraordinary. It feels so special."

Mexico shakes with excitement over Germany World Cup win

Fans celebrate Mexico's win during the Mexico vs. Germany World Cup soccer match, as they watched it on an outdoor screen in Mexico City's Zocalo, Sunday, June 17, 2018. Mexico won its first match against Germany 1-0.

By AMY GUTHRIE

MEXICO CITY — Thousands of exuberant Mexican soccer fans took to the streets Sunday to cheer their national team's long-shot win against Germany in Mexico's first match of the 2018 World Cup soccer tournament.

The 1-0 stunner, with Hirving Lozano scoring the winning goal, has given Mexicans hope that their team might win the tournament for the first time ever. Mexico has competed in the FIFA World Cup since the sporting event kicked off in 1930. The highest it has ever advanced is to the quarter-finals, placing sixth in both 1986 and 1970.

Lozano's goal set off such a commotion that seismic detectors in Mexico City registered a false earthquake, which the geological institute said may have been generated by "massive jumps" across the city. Spectators who had gathered to watch the match on a big TV screen in the central Zocalo square screamed with joy after the score.

After the match, throngs of fans dressed in green converged around the iconic Angel of Independence monument, bouncing with joy and waving the Mexican flag. Small groups chanted "Mexico" and "Yes we could!" Some broke into song, including the traditional Cielito Lindo tune best known for its "Ay, Ay, Ay, Ay" chorus. Car horns blared, whistles were blown and drums beat for hours after the match.

"We aspire to win a World Cup this time," said Miguel Paez, a 31-year-old who donned a Mexican wrestling mask in the colors of the national flag as he celebrated on Mexico City's main avenue, Paseo de la Reforma.

Paez described the game as a welcome distraction from Mexico's upcoming July 1 presidential election. "Mexico needs a break. Mexico needs to shout," he said, jumping up and down.

Some Twitter commentators and fans were quick to draw parallels between the Mexican team's long odds ahead of the Germany match and the big lead in surveys enjoyed by leftist presidential candidate Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador, or AMLO.

"AMLO can be beat. The surveys are based on few people," said Jose Antonio Bohon, a 51-year-old national team supporter on his way to the Angel.

The win has also helped Mexican fans move beyond the team's recent indiscretions.

The Mexican squad entered the 2018 tournament under a cloud of scandal. The problems began last year when the US Treasury Department accused team captain Rafael Marquez of being a front man for a drug kingpin. The accusation cost Marquez sponsorships and called into question whether he would play in the tournament. Marquez took to the field toward the end of Sunday's match against Germany, notching his fifth appearance in a World Cup.

Astros win 11th straight

Houston Astros' Carlos Correa celebrates in the dugout after hitting a home run to tie the Kansas City Royals in the eighth inning of a baseball game at Kauffman Stadium in Kansas City, Mo., Sunday, June 17, 2018.

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Carlos Correa and the Houston Astros won their 11th straight game, finishing off a 10-0 trip by rallying past the Kansas City Royals 7-4 on Sunday.

The World Series champion Astros swept their swing through Texas, Oakland and Kansas City, outscoring opponents 74-35. Last season, Houston had an 11-game winning streak end in Kansas City. This time, the Astros trailed 4-3 in the eighth inning before Correa led off with a tying homer. Evan Gattis, who had three hits, then put them ahead during a three-run burst.

Correa has three home runs and eight RBIs in six games after missing four games with discomfort in his right side. He had a first-inning single and added a sacrifice fly in the ninth.

Gattis hit .366 with five home runs and 19 RBIs on the Astros' trip.

He singled home Yuli Gurriel in the eighth, and Marvin Gonzalez added an RBI single in the inning.

The Royals have lost six straight and 12 of 13. They have dropped 26 of 36 home games.

Brandon Maurer (0-3) took the loss, facing two batters and having both score. Tony Sipp (2-0) picked up the victory. Hector Rondon closed for his fourth save.
