It is still Summer time, and in the Summer there is always something going on to keep the locals active. Every year, a big event is held at the Comanche Trail Park and it's about that time again.

The 11th Annual Comanche Warrior Triathlon will be held on Saturday, August 25, 2018. The Comanche Warrior Triathlon is one of the only times that you are allowed to swim in the Comanche Trail Lake. With that being said, "athletes participating will begin the event with a 500 meter open water swim in Comanche Trail Lake, which will be followed with a 30k out and back bike ride on city and county roads. Food, friends and fun will come together this weekend for the 11th annual Trinity Catholic Church Summer Festival.

The event will be held on the church grounds, 1009 Hearn in Big Spring, Friday and Saturday, starting at 11 a.m. each day.

"The meals will be served on Friday. That's about it on Friday, and then on Saturday, they start up the meals again at 11 until they're sold out," said Trinity's Coordinator of Religious Education Diana Valdez. "Then Saturday evening is all the games, game booths, Bingo... and then we'll have other outside food like hamburgers, turkey legs, sausage on a stick, that kind of thing."

Trinity's famous Mexican food plates are the star of the show.

"They usually have asado, or the guiso, it's kind of like stew meat, and then gorditas, and then chicken flautas," Valdez said. "It all includes the rice and the salad."

Games on tap Saturday will include festival favorites such as ring toss, cake walk, dart throw, football throw, and basketball throw, as well as Bingo.

Valdez said the festival started in 2008 when three local churches consolidated to form the Holy Trinity Catholic Parish church. For more information, call the church at 432-714-4930.

Registration and packet pick up will take place from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday, August 24th at the Dora Roberts Community Center, along with a practice swim in the Comanche Trail Lake. Lifeguards will be on duty during the practice swim. Registration and packet pickup the morning of the event will begin at 6 a.m. on Saturday, August 25th at the Dora Roberts Community Center, and end at 7:15am. The Pre-Race meeting will start at 7:30am with the race scheduled to begin at 8 a.m.

"This year, we're having hamburgers and refreshments, provided by Scenic Mountain Medical Center, to all participants and volunteers. We are going to conclude the event with an awards ceremony," Herrera said. Many organizations get together to help out, and this event could not be put on without the help of the sponsors.

For the safety of all those involved in the event, the Comanche Trail Park will be closed on August 25, 2018, from 7 a.m. until 1p.m.

Online registration is now available at www.permianbasinevents.com and visitbigspring.com. 2 ex-police officers get prison for lying to hide drug theft

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Two South Texas expolice officers have been sentenced to federal prison for lying to federal agents to hide a theft of cocaine that had been seized in a drug bust.

A federal judge sentenced 30-year-old Salvador Hernandez of Mission to two years in prison, while 27-year-old Richard Leon Castillo of Pharr drew a prison term of one year and four months.

They were found guilty by separate juries of lying to Drug Enforcement Administration agents investigating three cocaine bundles missing from a 40-bundle seizure made on Aug. 27, 2016.

Both will remain free on bond until they report to prison on a date still to be determined.

8 candidates vying to replace convicted Texas state senator

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Eight candidates are competing in a bipartisan special election to replace Democratic Texas state Sen. Carlos Uresti, who stepped down in June after being sentenced to 12 years in prison on federal fraud charges.

Uresti's term doesn't expire until 2020 and his San Antonio district is heavily Democratic. But with such a crowded field, no candidate may win a majority, forcing a runoff.

Tuesday's best known hopefuls are Democrats Roland Gutierrez, a current state representative, and Pete Gallego, a former, longtime state House lawmaker who served one term in Congress. Also running is Republican Pete Flores, who Uresti beat in 2016.

Uresti was convicted of 11 felonies stemming from being general counsel and partial owner of an oilfield service company that prosecutors say operated a Ponzi scheme to defraud investors.

Texas man found in Colorado river identified

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — A 37-year-old Texas man found dead in a northern Colorado river has been identified as Michael Brown of Houston.

The Loveland Reporter-Herald reports that the Larimer County Coroner's Office also determined that Brown died from injuries suffered in an accidental fall from a cliff.

Brown's body was found last Friday in the Big Thompson River. He had been reported missing after he became separated from his brother as the two were hiking to a friend's cabin Thursday night.

2 dead, 2 hurt after car hits ambulance in South Texas wreck

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Authorities say two men heading to work have been killed when their car struck an ambulance and both vehicles rolled on a rural South Texas highway.

The Texas Department of Public Safety says both people in the car died at the scene before dawn Tuesday on Highway 35 near Rockport.

DPS Sgt. Nathan Brandley says the ambulance had dropped off a patient at a Corpus Christi hospital and was returning to Rockport.

Brandley says it appears the car, carrying two men to work at a nearby plant, failed to yield at a stop sign and hit the ambulance. Two emergency medical personnel in the ambulance suffered injuries not believed to be life-threatening and both men were transported to a hospital.

Print your own pistol? Trump 'looking into' computer dispute

Democrats are calling on President Donald Trump to reverse an administration decision to allow a Texas company to make blueprints for a 3D-printed gun available online.

By MATTHEW DALY and CATHERINE LUCEY Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump came under heavy pressure Tuesday to block blueprints for 3D printers to make deadly plastic guns, stepping into the dispute after his administration agreed to allow plans for guns that could be easy to conceal and difficult to trace.

Trump tweeted he was "looking into" the issue and consulting with the National Rifle Association.

The election-year headache is a problem of the administration's own making. After a yearslong deadly hazard. "All you need is a little money and you can download a blueprint from the internet to make a gun at home," said Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer.

"No background check. No criminal history check."

The company's website said downloads would begin Wednesday, but blueprints for at least one gun — a plastic pistol called

Those moments can make a difference." Cellphones, Google and Siri aren't helping. Callers searching for "Reno Texas" or "Reno police" get directed first to renotexas.us, the northeast Texas town. Texas district accepts gun donations after school shooting

SANTA FE, Texas (AP) — A Houston-area school district where 10 people were shot to death in May has accepted about $220,000 worth of guns, ammunition and weapons training donated for its security staff.

The Daily News reports that the Santa Fe Independent School District also received tens of thousands of dollars in donations following the May 18 shooting at Santa Fe High School.

School officials say a group of anonymous locals donated the weapons and ammunition, including eight AR-15 rifles. The Houston Astros Foundation donated $13,000 for protective vests and other safety equipment for the district's police force.

School board President J.R. Norman says the donated weapons will be used by the district's expanded police force for the upcoming school year. He says there aren't any programs in place for armed teachers.

Houston firefighters sue city over ballot initiative on pay

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston firefighters union is suing city officials, accusing them of misusing public resources to oppose a ballot measure that would give firefighters pay similar to what Houston police officers receive.

The Houston Chronicle reports the lawsuit is part of a public spat between firefighters and the city over efforts to place the "pay parity" ballot initiative before voters in November.

The union accuses Mayor Sylvester Turner and a council member of violating the Texas Election Code by speaking out against the measure during public meetings in July.

In a statement Tuesday, Turner said the union is trying to stop city officials from discussing a proposal that "will put the city in deeper financial distress."

The city council is set to decide the ballot measure's fate on Aug. 8.

the Liberator — have been posted on the site since Friday. A lawyer for the company said he didn't know how many blueprints had been downloaded since then.

Outrage over the administration decision is putting gun-control back into the electionyear political debate, but with a hightech twist.

The president seemed to express surprise. He said on Twitter he was looking into the idea of a company providing plans to the public for printing guns, and he said it "doesn't seem to make much sense!"

Democrats agreed and said Trump had the power to stop it.

Sen. Edward Markey of Massachusetts said Trump has boasted that he alone can fix problems afflicting the country.

"Well, fix this deadly mistake that once again your administration has made," Markey said.

Connecticut Sen. Richard Blumenthal went further, saying that if Trump does not block the open printing of 3D guns, "Blood is going to be on his hands."

At least one Republican also expressed concern.

"Even as a strong supporter of the Second Amendment -- this is not right," Alaska Sen. Lisa Murkowski tweeted, linking to a news story on the guns.

Eight states have sued to block the administration's decision, contending that the plastic weapons are a boon to terrorists and criminals and threaten public safety.

The NRA said in a statement that "anti-gun politicians" and some members of the news media wrongly claim that 3D printing technology "will allow for the production and widespread proliferation of undetectable plastic firearms."

In truth, "undetectable plastic guns have been illegal for 30 years," said Chris W. Cox, executive director of the NRA's political arm. A federal law passed in 1988 -- crafted with NRA support — bars the manufacture, sale or possession of an undetectable firearm.

Trump spokesman Hogan Gidley made much the same point, saying the administration supports the law against wholly plastic guns, including those made with a 3D printer.

And Texas Sen. John Cornyn, the second-ranking Republican, said, "People shouldn't be under the impression they can download this and make an undetectable firearm."

But Democrats called the law weak and said gun users can get around it by using weapons with a removable metal block that the gun doesn't need in order to function.

Markey, Blumenthal and other Democrats filed legislation that would prohibit the publication of a digital file online that allows a 3D printer to manufacture a firearm. Democrats also filed a separate bill to require that all guns have at least one non-removable component made of metal.

The second measure is intended to ensure that even guns primarily made of plastic can be discovered by metal detectors.

Sen. Mike Lee, R-Utah, blocked a Democratic request to bring the bill straight to the Senate floor, citing First Amendment free speech concerns.

In a suit filed Monday in Seattle, eight Democratic attorneys general asked a judge to block the federal government's settlement with Defense Distributed.

People can use the blueprints to manufacture plastic guns using a 3D printer. But industry experts have expressed doubts that criminals would go to the trouble, since the printers needed to make the guns can cost thousands of dollars, the guns themselves tend to disintegrate quickly and traditional firearms are easy to come by.

Unlike traditional firearms that can fire thousands of rounds in a lifetime, the 3D-printed guns normally last only a few rounds before they fall apart, experts say. They usually hold a bullet or two and then must be manually loaded. And they're not usually very accurate.

Chris Knox, communications director for The Firearms Coalition, a gun-rights group, called the Liberator handgun a "very crude...zip gun" and said the growing debate over 3D printed guns was an overreaction.

Cody Wilson, the founder of Defense Distributed, first published downloadable designs for a 3D-printed firearm in 2013. The plans were downloaded about 100,000 times until the State Department ordered him to cease, contending the effort violated federal export laws since some of the blueprints were downloaded by people outside the United States.

The State Department reversed course last month, agreeing to allow Wilson to resume posting the blueprints.

The company filed its own suit in Texas on Sunday, asserting that it's the victim of an "ideologically fueled program of intimidation and harassment" that violates the company's First Amendment rights.

Meanwhile, Defense Distributed agreed to block temporarily Pennsylvania residents from downloading the plans after state officials went to federal court in Philadelphia on Sunday seeking an emergency order. The company said it had also blocked access to users in New Jersey and Los Angeles.

Associated Press writer Lisa Marie Pane in Boise, Idaho, contributed to this story.

His northeast Texas counterpart, Reno Police Chief Jeremy Massey, said, "We feel each other's pain."

He has a dangerous-misdial story, too.

"I've had a call about somebody driving down the road shooting a weapon. We finally figured out it was the other Reno."

His dispatchers ask callers from the 817 area code, "Do you want Parker County?"

"We get a lot of confusion from state agencies," Massey said.

"And the district attorney's office from Tarrant County calls asking about court cases. They don't seem to know how to reach the other Reno either."

Not to mention Reno, Nevada, or El Reno, Oklahoma.

Before ZIP codes, federal regulations prohibited two post offices from having the same name. The Parker County town had a post office in 1884, but lost it.

In 1996, the U.S. Postal Service tried to award the address "Reno, Texas" solely to the Parker County town for its larger projected population. But postal officials relented when then-U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison's office intervened. According to U.S. Census estimates, the Lamar County town of Reno has 3,300. The local Reno, which bridges Parker and Tarrant counties north of Azle, has 2,907 but is growing faster. (The Parker County town also legally incorporated first, in 1966.) Mayor Pro Tem John Basham suggested the name Reno Springs, according to the Azle News. The original Reno Springs fed the town cotton gin along Walnut Creek just south of today's city hall and Walnut Creek Baptist Church, according to late Fort Worth geologist Gunnar Brune's book "Springs of Texas." (Other springs nearby gave a neighboring town its name: Springtown.) City name changes are not unusual. In 1999, a growing Wise County town changed its name to New Fairview to distinguish from a Fairview in Collin County.

but the wind where he was in the city of Upper Lake was on their side.

"It's blowing into the fire, and it's kind of blowing it back on itself," he said.

Elsewhere, the Carr Fire had burned more than 880 homes and killed six people in and around Redding. Another 348 outbuildings were also destroyed, and the blaze is now the seventh most destructive wildfire in California history, fire officials said.

In Riverside County, east of Los Angeles, an arson fire that destroyed seven homes last week was 82 percent contained Monday.

People in Lake County, AP photo cisco, know about evacuations. The 2015 Valley Fire, which came on the heels of two other fires, killed four and destroyed 1,300 homes when it blew up unexpectedly during a September heat wave. It wiped out entire neighborhoods prized for their privacy and sense of community and turned scenic areas into charred forest. Since then, parts of the county have been evacuated regularly due to fire, most recently in June. Evacuation orders remained in effect Tuesday for the town of Lakeport, the county seat, along with some smaller communities and a section of the Mendocino National Forest.

UPPER LAKE, Calif. (AP) -Jessyca Lytle fled a fast-moving Northern California wildfire in 2015 that spared her property but destroyed her mother's memorabilia-filled home in rural and rugged Lake County.

Less than three years later, Lytle found herself listening to scanner traffic and fire-proofing her mother's new home on Tuesday as another wildfire advanced and turned the sun into a tiny orange dot suspended in the smoke.

"Honestly, what I'm thinking right now is I just want this to end," Lytle said, adding that she was "exhausted in every way possible physically, emotionally, all of that.

"But you can't stop doing what you have to do, and you can't stop facing what you have to face," she said.

Firefighters pressed their battle against a pair of fires that have burned 117 square miles (300 square kilometers) across Mendocino and Lake counties. In all, roughly 19,000 people have been warned to flee and 10,000 homes remain under threat.

Derek Hawthorne, a firefighter and spokesman for the fire crews, said the hot weather was not ideal

Astros snap five-game skid with 5-2 win over Mariners

By TIM BOOTH

AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE Charlie Morton did what's become expected on the mound in getting his 12th victory, while Evan Gattis and Josh Reddick provided the pop needed with all the big names missing from the Houston Astros' lineup right now.

Gattis hit a two-run home run to put Houston ahead, Reddick capped it with a two-run shot in the ninth inning, and the Astros snapped a fivegame losing streak with a 5-2 win over the Seattle Mariners on Tuesday night.

Already without Jose Altuve and Carlos Correa, the Astros lost George Springer for most of Tuesday's game with a sore shoulder.

"We've just got to go in there and do our job and not try to make up too much for those guys because obviously we're not those guys and what they can do," Reddick said. "We've got to piece it together and hopefully put (9) and Alex Bregman after his two-run home run against the a few guys (together) that can make Seattle Mariners in the sixth inning of a baseball game Tuesday, one of them."

Gattis' 21st home run of the season came in the sixth off Seattle starter Mike Leake and snapped a 1-1 tie. Leake left a breaking ball in the middle of the plate and Gattis clubbed it over the left field fence to put the Astros in front.

Reddick greeted new Seattle reliever Zach Duke with a shot to deep right-center field in the ninth. It was the first home run allowed this season by Duke, who was acquired in a trade with Minnesota.

Morton (12-2) struck out eight and didn't allow Seattle to put together a sustained rally. Seattle's offense was limited to Jean Segura's solo home run and Mitch Haniger's RBI single. Morton was pulled after the sixth, despite giving up just two runs and throwing 90 pitches. The sixth inning was the only time Seattle had multiple runners on base and Morton got out of the jam after Haniger's single by getting Chris Hermann to ground out with two runners on.

Cowboys tap several sources to fill Witten's leadership void By SCHUYLER DIXON

Quarterback Dak Prescott is a nat ural choice, both through leadership skills he demonstrated before replacing Tony Romo and the fact that the 25-year-old is already going into this third season as the starter.

There's talk of him moving that up to be more visible, and the 2016 All-Pro has left no doubt he knows things are different without Jason Witten, who retired.

tell the team these Dallas Cowboys won't be in the business of dramas such as Bryant's Twitter-fed rant early in training camp over who he felt was responsible for his offseason release.

With tight end Jason Witten's sudden retirement after 15 years for a TV job, the Cowboys can't defer to the franchise leader in games, starts and catches on any number of topics. Crawford, a defensive lineman, doesn't think they can replace the 2012 NFL Man of the Year either.

"If you're being real with yourself. Jason Witten's one of the best ever to do it," Crawford said. "And if you knew him as a man, one of the best men you'll ever get to meet. To me, there's never going to be another Jason Witten that's going to be around me."

Still, the Cowboys have to figure out life without Witten's leadership.

Center Travis Frederick and Zack Martin, who just signed a contract making him the highest-paid guard in the NFL, come up as well. But Frederick stops short of the idea of leadership by committee.

"Committee makes it sound like it's a huge group of guys," said Frederick, who started all 80 games in his first five seasons. "Traditionally in a team like this, you have a group of captains that are a strong group of leaders, maybe five, six guys. I think you're going to find that here.

Robert Griffin III finding new opportunities with Ravens

By TODD KARPOVICH

Associated Press

OWINGS MILLS, Md. - Robert Griffin III rolled to his right and threw a tight spiral down the middle of the field to a receiver that was being closely covered by a pair of defenders.

Several plays later, he dropped back and launched a 50-yard pass to a receiver running down the far sideline.

Griffin is quietly making a comeback as a backup quarterback for the Baltimore Ravens.

Though starter Joe Flacco and rookie Lamar Jackson have received most of the attention at training camp, Griffin hopes to make some noise at the annual Hall of Fame game against the Chicago Bears on Thursday night. It will be his first taste of NFL action since 2016.

"I'm very excited," Griffin said. "I don't think I can put into words how fun this whole process has been, being here in Baltimore and just having the opportunity to grow with this team. I just want to go out there and show they can trust me and hopefully lead us to a win."

Griffin won the Heisman Trophy as a junior at Baylor and was the second overall pick in the 2012 draft by the Washington Redskins. He was the NFL's rookie of the year before his career was derailed by injuries.

Griffin missed the 2015 season after sustaining a concussion during the preseason. After being released by Washington, he signed with the Browns in 2016. He started the regular-season opener, but sustained a shoulder injury. Griffin was able to play the final four weeks and was the starting quarterback the last time the Browns won a game, beating San Diego on Dec. 24, 2016.

He did not play football last year, but stayed in shape by training at the University of Central Florida. Griffin said he also spent hours watching film, studying the defense of various NFL teams.

Today's Highlight in History: On August 1, 1966, Charles Joseph Whitman, 25, went on an armed rampage at the University of Texas in Austin that killed 14 people, most of whom were shot by Whitman while he was perched in the clock tower of the main campus building. (Whitman, who had also slain his wife and mother hours earlier, was finally gunned down by police.) On this date: In 1714, Britain's Queen Anne died at age 49; she was succeeded by George I. In 1876, Colorado was admitted as the 38th state. In 1907, the U.S. Army Signal Corps established an aeronautical division, the forerunner of the U.S. Air Force. In 1911, Harriet Quimby became the first woman to receive a U.S. pilot's certificate from the Aero Club of America. (Quimby's accomplishments included being the first woman to fly across the English Channel; she was killed in an accident in July 1912 at age 37.) In 1936, the Olympics opened in Berlin with a ceremony presided over by Adolf Hitler. In 1944, an uprising broke out in Warsaw, Poland, against Nazi occupation; the revolt lasted two months before collapsing. In 2001, Pro Bowl tackle Korey Stringer, 27, died of heat stroke, a day after collapsing at the Minnesota Vikings' training camp on the hottest day of the year. In 2007, the eight-lane Interstate 35W bridge, a major Minneapolis artery, collapsed into the Mississippi River during evening rush hour, killing 13 people. Ten years ago: Some 30 mountaineers began a disastrous attempt to scale K2 in Pakistan; 11 of them died in a series of accidents, including icefalls. One year ago: By a vote of 92-5, the Senate confirmed President Donald Trump's nomination of Christopher Wray as FBI director. Opening lead — five of spades.

Most decisions made at the table are clear-cut. You have an obvious bid or play to make, and you make it without much thought.

But there are times when it is not at all clear what you should do. These are the times when good judgment is the deciding factor and when the failure to guess right can prove fatal.

Consider the South hand, for example. What should South bid after East's four-spade overcall? In the actual deal, he bid five hearts. Apparently, South was more intent upon scoring a vulnerable game than he was upon taking the sure profit he could collect by doubling four spades. Had we been in his boots, we would have doubled.

West led a spade, and East cashed the A-K before shifting to a diamond. Declarer won with the king and led the queen of hearts, West following low. South was sufficiently inspired to play the ace, catching East's king. Had we been in his boots, we would have finessed and gone down one.

After drawing two more rounds of trump, declarer led a low club from dummy and finessed the queen, on which West dropped the nine. South fell for the falsecard, deciding that West had started with the 10-9 alone.

So he crossed to dummy with a diamond and led the jack of clubs, hoping to pin East's king and West's ten on the same trick and thus make dummy's eight high. This was a fatal decision, and South went down one, eventually losing a club to the ten. Had he led the five from dummy instead of the jack, he would have made the contract.

South's play of the jack was clearly wrong. If he had first cashed his remaining diamond, he would have learned that East had started with three diamonds, a heart, seven spades (for his bid) and, hence, exactly two clubs. A low club lead from dummy was therefore bound to catch the king.

Tomorrow: A switch in time saves nine.

Cosmic Combining Experiment

People say that it is possible to create your own happiness, and yet there's no recipe for this, because the ingredients just aren't universal. The best we can do is gather some of what's readily available and combine it to see what happens. Think of it as an experiment, and one that is sorely needed during this Mars and Uranus situation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You'll say the words, take the actions, make the commitments that fix things, knowing full well that you could just as easily, with other words, actions and promises, blow them apart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Methods for improvement come and go. So do styles of dress, food, entertainment... Some of yesterday's "normal" now seems barbaric. With an eye to the future, something about your current life needs immediate change.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You become part of whatever you're experiencing, and it becomes a part of you. It's a truth you'll feel today, and it just might change your mind and involvement with certain environments.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It's good to be a little careful about what you say and how you present yourself, but if you're too careful it's uncomfortable for all. Trust that you're acceptable. Accept yourself and they will, too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The world is shifting before your eyes today. Someone you admire is a big part of this. You like how this person sees the world, and it changes your view, which changes what you choose to look at.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're charged with the responsibility of creating yourself, your happiness, the meaning you derive from life. It's a privilege, a pleasure and a lot. You're not always up for it. Rest will refresh you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You're attractive whether or not you want to be or try to be. This makes your life slightly complex. You'll be in a position to step lightly, dodge trouble and move quickly to avoid getting detoured from your goal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Relationships are always a risk. The risk is not that they will be bad; the risk is that they will be good. To leave a bad relationship is a rather obvious choice. A good relationship often brings both reward and limitation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You feel like you know what you want, but don't be

By HOLIDAY MATHIS it and find out that it wasn't a good fit. Humans are notoriously bad at knowing what will make them happy. Continue the experiment, and have fun with it.

> CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You make the plan and your crew will follow it. You'll get both credit and blame, and both are good. You make life interesting and memorable for those around you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18).

Your personal experience with a full range of human error coupled with the disappointment it has caused you will make it all the more difficult for you to believe the best in others, and yet you will. You are to be commended.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It has never been hard for you to understand that people in the general public matter. You may never see them again, and yet each is an important individual whom you pride yourself in treating with the utmost respect.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Aug. 1).

There's quite a history back there, and you'll put it to good use. You don't have to look backward to do this. Trust that you've already learned from it and you now have everything you need to build toward the idea you've created about what you're supposed to be and do next. Go make your vision real. You've got this. Libra and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 5, 42, 10, 13 and 8.

ASTROLOGI-CAL QUESTION: "What does it mean to be a mutable sign? I was told that's what I was and that it was good for business -- no idea why, though. Was that an insult? I'm a Pisces."

Each sign falls into one of three categories. Astrologers call these categories "modalities." They represent a sign's particular strength in working with others. I find that knowing what modality a person is can be very helpful for team building. The ideal team would have at least one person from each modality. The three modalities are cardinal, mutable and fixed. Think of it as beginning, middle and end. The cardinal signs are initiators. They love to dream, envision and begin projects. They are Aries, Cancer, Libra and Capricorn. The next modality, mutable, likes to work out the kinks of a project or relationship. They adjust as necessary to make things run smoothly, and maybe that is the quality noted by the person who said you were "good for business." Mutable signs are Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius and Pisces. A fixed modality sign brings it home. They are the finishers of the zodiac, and they are driven to do whatever it takes to perfect the project or relationship. They! are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio and Aquarius. CELEBRITY

PROFILES: From "Game of Thrones" to the upcoming feature film "Aquaman," Jason Momoa's intensely visceral charisma has a way of bringing fantasy worlds to life. The Leo star was born when the sun, Mercury, Venus and Jupiter were all in the sign of the king cat: That's an unusual amount of royal astral-influence. Leo is also the sign of playfulness, children, the heart and show business.

Boxing club in West Texas helps build bodies, character

By BOB CAMPBELL

Odessa American ODESSA. Texas — Ramon Franco has been teaching boys how to box for 13 years at Odessa Boxing Club.

The Odessa American reports the big thing he's learned is that there are no losers in the amateur branch of the sport.

"I was at a tournament in Fort Worth when a coach from another city asked if I would wrap his kid's hands," Franco said. "The kid quit crying when I told him not to be afraid because they were knockout wraps. He didn't win, but he didn't quit.

"It takes a lot to go up those steps. I tell kids they're a winner already when they get in that ring because not just anybody can do it."

Franco has reported training more than 100 boys since building his club from scratch at 1109 Edgeport Dr. in northwest Odessa.

It's well-equipped with two rings, five heavy punching bags, speedbags and other accessories along with industrial fans to ameliorate the summer heat. Franco's only professional to date is 23-yearold middleweight Joey Alday Jr., who has scored seven knockouts in his first eight bouts.

Overseeing his grandson and fellow amateurs Jesus Almance and Rey Galindo as they worked out June 18, Franco said many more boys try boxing than stay with it. "It's not for everybody," he said.

"I can tell right off the bat if a kid really wants to learn. A lot of them start like, 'Hey, I want to try it.' They look good, but once they get hit they don't want to do it. Others can't take the heat because it gets hot in here when the gym is full.

"It's great to run into guys you trained as kids. They're young men with families of their own and they bring their kids in to be trained. We need sponsors to help us go places because it costs a lot of money."

Franco charges $70 a month and averages coaching 12 boys at a time.

One who immediately showed the requisite resolve was Alday, who began coming to the club at age 10 with his dad, his primary trainer. "Joey has always been a hard worker, one of those kids who went that little extra to get where he was going," Franco said.

Alday is based in the Los Angeles suburb of Woodland Hills, but still trains here when he's in town. "The kids see him working out and stop and watch him," said Franco, 60, who works as Alday's cutman.

"When they're sparring or hitting the bags and take a break, he tells them how to be more disciplined and shows them how to work with their punches. I've always said Joey has the desire to become a champion."

A native Odessan who attended Ector and Odessa high schools, Franco owns a home building and remodeling company, RF Construction, and works as a carpenter for the Ector County Independent School District. He and his wife Mary Isabel have three children, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He received the Doug Outstanding McLean Achievement Award in 2008 from the Colorado-based USA Boxing organization.

Asked how a budding boxer can survive with one more seasoned, Franco said, "You have to be smooth in the ring and move around to keep your opponent from putting you in a corner and beating

"Use the jab to keep him at a distance. The pros are totally different. The pro game to me is a fight. They want to see somebody get knocked out. We take good care of the kids in the amateurs. They wear headgears and are protected. The doctors check them out every time and sign a book. Some stumble, but knockouts are rare."

Based on the boxers' ages, the length of rounds in the three-round bouts graduates from 60 to 90 seconds and from two to three minutes.

Franco said the sport is so popular among Hispanics because "it's just in our blood.

"In the history of boxing, Mexican boxers go back years and years, brought from generations on up," he said. "It's one-on-one and you're fighting a guy who is equal to you in weight."

With his son in California, Joe Alday Sr. said Franco "is a very good coach, knowledgeable in the boxing game and one of the best guys I've met.

"Ramon is real straightforward and when he is in the gym, he is all business," Alday said. "He cares about the kids and works them out hard. He knows how to speak to them, get them thinking and motivate them. He is a great guy who has grown to be like a family member to us."

While training for a recent bout, Joey Jr. said Franco "is an awesome guy who will tell you the truth no matter how harsh it is.

"Alongside my dad, I've been with Ramon since I was 10 years old," the 160-pounder said. "He has been a huge part of my team and always will be. Outside the ring, he and my dad have been the most incredible people. They've always helped me with the right life decisions. I can't thank them enough.'

Asked why boxers have to take up the sport early to be successful later, Alday said, "Because it takes six years to develop all that experience and soak up all that knowledge."

The Mariners ended July scoring just 77 runs in 23 games, an average of 3.3 runs per game. It was a drastic drop over June when the Mariners averaged 4.5 runs per game and went 19-9 overall. Segura's homer was his eighth of the season and Haniger was in a 2-for-26 skid before his RBI single.

"But there's been a lot of guys in training. I think that Dak is one of the guys that's most naturally a leader that I've ever been around in my life." Bryant shockingly called Lee a "snake" on Twitter while suggesting the ninth-year linebacker had a hand in the club's decision to move on from its career leader in touchdown receptions.

Equally shocking was Lee's response, acknowledging that he and Bryant had been at odds over Lee's feeling that Bryant wasn't always accountable. Lee even suggested Bryant still wasn't holding himself accountable. It was the first time Lee had been forced to defend himself on such terms, and he left no doubt how he felt.

"I've been in a leadership role for a long time now and I need to take it to that next level." Lee said. "But there's also, we have a core group of guys. We have a lot of guys where it's easy to be a leader on this football team because of now many great leaders we have, all the way through, from the top to bottom." Crawford, a seventh-year player who has been growing into a leadership role over several seasons, wasn't happy that the team found itself in the middle of an unexpected tiff. "When it comes to things like that and getting focused, I get angry and I say what I want to say and that's what it is," Crawford said. "I feel like I need to say the right things at the right time and I do and that's it."

When Prescott became the starter because of a preseason back injury sustained by Romo two years ago, he spent half that season repeating that it was Romo's team. Somewhere in the middle of an 11-game winning streak, though, the conversation changed. The qualities to lead were already there.

"It's just about finding new ways to lead and it's going to continue to evolve each and every year — every year that I get more experience and I get older," Prescott said. "New ways I can come in contact with my teammates, motivate them or do whatever I have to do to get the best out of them."

Asked specifically about what Witten's departure meant for Lee's leadership role, coach Jason Garrett almost cut off the question.

"Witt was the guy who was out in front, the most veteran guy, incredibly well-respected guy," Garrett said. "But all these guys have been grasping that mantle for a long time. There's no one guy that can lead as a player. It just doesn't happen that way. You have to have it throughout your team."

The Cowboys had some tangible proof during the first week of training camp.

"He has street credibility immediately," Ravens quarterbacks coach James Urban said. "He loves football and had the taste of not being around it for awhile, so he's hungry and enjoying every moment. We talk all of the time: control what you can control and when the opportunity comes, you take advantage of it."

Griffin, 28, worked out with the Ravens a few months prior to the NFL Draft. He performed well enough to earn a one-year deal reportedly worth $1 million with a $100,000 signing bonus. So far, Ravens coach John Harbaugh is confident the team made the correct decision.

"I think it's been great having Robert here. He's a very talented pro," Harbaugh said. "He's a top pick in the draft, so he has talent. He's healthy for the first time in quite a few years."

Griffin is fully aware that any role with the team will be serving as a backup to Flacco. The biggest question now is whether the Ravens will carry three quarterbacks into the regular season.
