Drownings And Accident Mar Memorial Day Weekend

Four persons were drowned at Baker's Crossing and two men were injured in an automobile accident over the Memorial Day weekend in this area. Other than that, things were unusually quiet for a 3-day weekend.

Four Midland people were drowned Saturday morning at Baker's Crossing about 60 miles south of Ozona on Hwy. 163, during a family outing.

According to the official DPS report, two sisters, Virginia Torres, 9, and Jacqueline Torres, 7, went wading in shallow water about 10:30 and disappeared from sight. Their father, Henry Torres, and a friend Vencente Larez, jumped into the water to rescue them and both men disappeared from sight. None of the victims could swim.

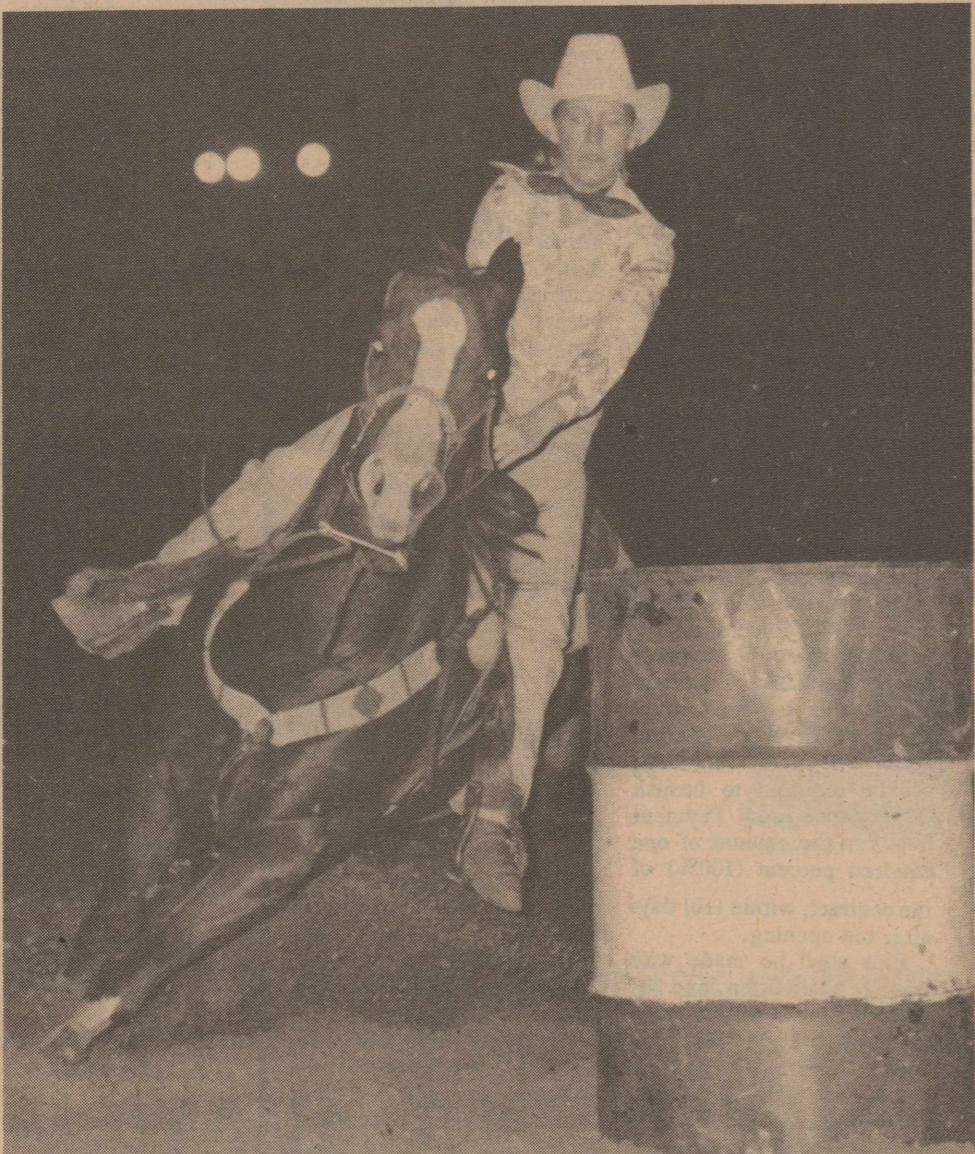

The bodies of Larez and the two girls were recovered about 12:50 and they were pronounced dead at the scene by J.P. Barrera of Del Rio. Torres' body was recovered about 5:15, after Ozona firemen had been dispatched with rescue equipment, and were called back before reaching the scene.

The investigation was conducted by Val Verde Deputy Sheriffs assisted by divers from the National Parks Service.

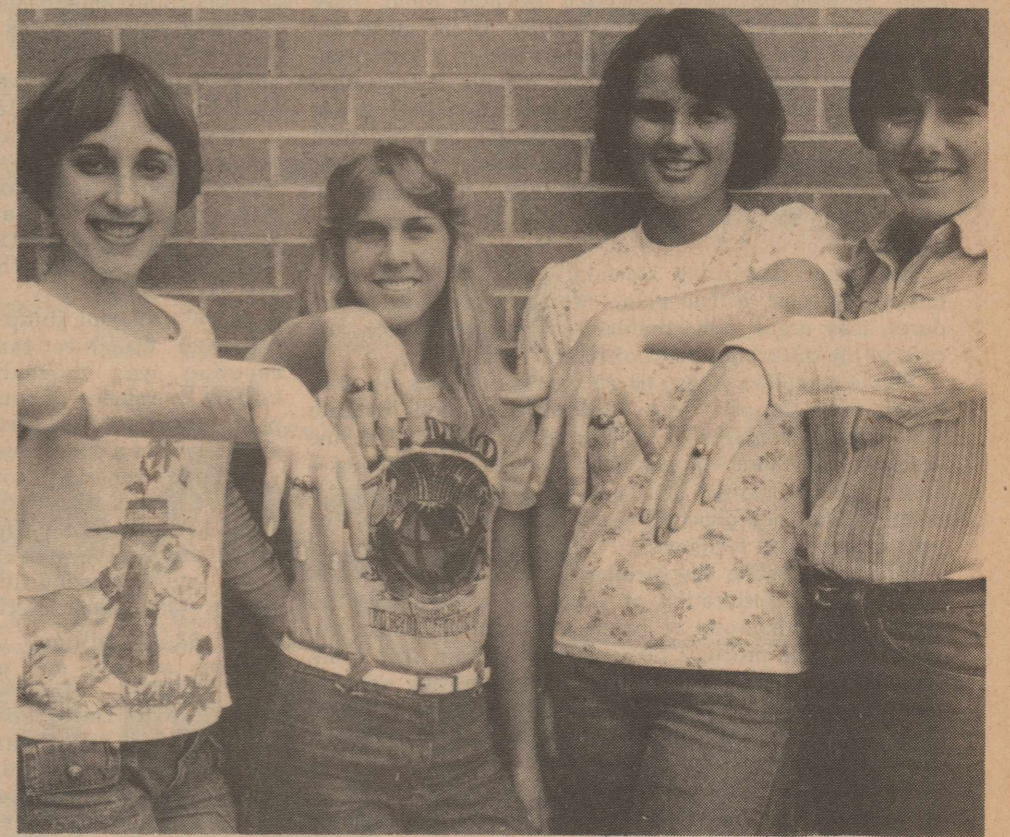

Two California men were injured eight miles west of Ozona on I-10 at mid-afternoon Saturday.

James George, 28, of Sun City and Ralph Rivera, 24, of Fullerton were taken to Crockett County Hospital and treated for lacerations and contusions after a Chevrolet driven by George struck the Ford Pinto driven by Rivera. The Pinto was parked on the shoulder and was struck by the Chevrolet after the driver lost control and ran off the roadway.

The accident was investigated by Trooper Manual Hartnett, DPS.

Election Day Voter Registration

WASHINGTON—Administration proposals under consideration now in Congress to permit election day voter registration have been billed simply as a way to bring more voters to the polls. While the goal may be worthwhile, the plan involves much more—federalization of the entire election process and an open invitation to election fraud.

Elections in recent years have drawn declining percentages of eligible American voters to the polls, renewing old predictions that the first signs of a crumbling democracy are evident in statistics on voter participation. Concern about the dwindling numbers who show up on election day has inspired all manner of reforms to simplify the requirements to vote.

The popular assumption—and one the Carter Administration has been quick to advance—is that by easing registration requirements those with the right to exercise their democratic privilege naturally will choose to do so.

Unfortunately, like a lot of ill-conceived schemes the Federal government has endorsed in the name of reform, there is more to this one than meets the eye. Nationwide election day voter registration has the potential to make a mockery of free elections, increasing in no small measure the likelihood of massive voter fraud. And there are legitimate questions about these methods as a true means to enhance voter participation.

How would the President's proposals improve on the present system and increase turnout? Very simply—the Federal government would impose uniform registration procedures over those currently administered by the various sovereign states. All that would be required to vote would be an individual's signature on an affidavit attesting to residency, and the presentation of some type of identification, or someone to vouch for the person standing at the voting booth.

And the cost? The Federal government would assume the administrative expenses states would encounter—projected minimally at some $48 million every two years from taxpayer revenue.

It doesn't require a keen imagination to realize the result: the wholesale manufacture of false identification by persons bent on abusing the free election system. Recent investigations of fraud in other states underscore the need for more election safeguards—not relaxed requirements that strip away statutory checks on abuse.

As proposed, uniform registration procedures would supersede the rights of states to authenticate registration locally and to maintain the integrity of local balloting. Currently, most states utilize a pre-registration system, allowing local officials 30 days to verify identification. Pertinent information about the individual can be ascertained at pre-registration, and a sample signature obtained serves as a double check on election day that the individual voting and the one registered are one and the same.

Removing these pre-registration procedures, as the President's plan would, eliminates very practical measures states can rely on to minimize fraud.

The Administration and liberals in Congress dismiss these concerns as unfounded, and insist that stiff new penalties for violation contained in the election registration package would be adequate deterrence to fraud.

Yet lawyers in the Administration's own Justice Department, responsible for prosecuting election fraud, have taken strong issue with the legislation. In no uncertain terms they debunked uniform registration in a memorandum to the Attorney General as a "dangerous relaxation of what precious few safeguards presently exist against abuse of the franchise." They concluded that criminal penalties contained in the legislation would be "of little foreseeable help" in deterring abuse of the franchise almost certain to occur under relaxed registration requirements.

But those advocating election day registration have missed the most critical point. Merely simplifying procedures, they argue, will stimulate voting participation and reverse the disturbing trend of recent years.

This assumption is not borne out by statistics. In fact, figures from the past three Presidential elections indicate that large percentages of Americans do register; it's the percentage of these who actually vote which is declining—and this is the statistic that should concern us. Registered voter apathy, not registration as such, is responsible for poor election day turnouts.

Increasing public involvement in the elective process begins with a restoration of faith that government can work for the interests of people. Unfortunately, government has done precious little recently to earn that confidence. Cutting red tape and the ever-increasing costs to taxpayers of bloated government can go a long way toward reshaping public opinion. It can lead to a more informed, interested voting public.

Without that faith in the worth of the political system, all the gimmicks government can dream up to bring out the vote won't contribute a whit to a more involved citizenry, or to more responsibly chosen public officials. And after all, this should be the purpose of elections in a democracy.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN — Legislators headed for home this week, pronouncing their session a success in many areas.

They also departed amid warnings in both houses that the level of income will not sustain another 37 per cent increase in spending without a major tax bill in 1979.

Lawmakers completed action on the record $15.5 billion biennial spending bill three days before the adjournment deadline, clearing the decks for late concentration on school finance and miscellaneous issues.

The session turned out a variety of anti-crime bills recommended by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and legislative leadership. Other crime-control measures were casualties of the session.

Lawmakers months ago allocated $528 million in additional funds to highway building and maintenance. The measure already has been signed into law by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Also signed early was the coal slurry pipeline bill giving operators of pipelines to move coal mixed with water authority to take needed lands for right of way.

The session saw a new record for filibusters — 43 hours — set by Sen. Bill Meier of Eules. The measure Meier attacked — to close certain Industrial Accident Board records to those who would seek to copy and sell them to employers — made it through the Senate.

Many thought the session also set some kind of record for dullness. It seemed to convince nearly everybody there are too many bills introduced to take care of in a 140-day meeting, but no restrictions are likely in the future.

Tax Income Up Tax collections for the current fiscal year are 16 per cent above the same period in 1976, and the state closed books at the end of March with a cash balance of $1.31 billion.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said tax collections through the first seven months of fiscal 1977 (Sept. 1, 1976-March 31, 1977) were $2.25 billion. That is $315.8 million over the first seven months of fiscal 1976.

Motor vehicle sales taxes boomed 25 per cent and natural gas production taxes 33 per cent in that period.

A 159 per cent jump in corporate franchise taxes revenue was traceable largely to release of funds paid under protest from settlement of a court case.

Bullock reported total state revenues thus far in fiscal 1977 are $3.8 billion, up 11 per cent over 1976. Total state expenditures during the same period were $3.95 billion, an increase of only one per cent.

Standards Deferred The Texas Air Control Board, on Gov. Dolph Briscoe's request, has put off tough enforcement standards for pollution control that might have forced cancelling of many industrial projects.

you and the LAW PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Q: My bills are stacking up faster than I can pay them. If I have to take bankruptcy, what must I give up? Will I lose my car and my household goods?

A: Federal bankruptcy law exempts property which is also exempt under applicable state law. Under the law of Texas, you would not lose your car and your household goods in the event you declare bankruptcy. Beyond that, you'll be allowed to keep your homestead, household and kitchen furniture, tools and books of your trade, family portraits and pictures, one pick-up truck in addition to the car, current wages for personal services, provisions on hand for home consumption like food, all wearing apparel and one dog.

Q: The house next door has changed hands several times in the past year or two. There is a large tree on the edge of the lot which is about to fall on our house. What can we do? We asked the original owner to remove it before she sold the house, but she refused.

A: If this tree actually fell on your house, you would, of course, be able to sue for the damages it did. With that in mind, the law also provides a remedy to keep the tree from falling on your house. You must file suit to remove the tree. It's called a suit to abate a nuisance.

Q: I've been wanting to ask this for a long time. While in college, I lived in an apartment. When I left, my $25 deposit was withheld, presumably for cleaning and a cracked window. Both reasons were totally untrue. Is

Tips For Gardeners

From the
Ozona Garden Club
by
Mrs. Bailey Post

Summer time is here when June arrives, brings showers and a wide range of flowers. At their peak the day lilies and oleanders are dotting the gardens with colorful blossoms.

Also, June brings lengthened days and with the time change extends the time for garden activities.

Early morning and late evening hours are the most pleasant to do mowing, edging, weeding and tending flower beds. During these hours the wind is generally calm, so its a good time to spray or dust for insects. Too, its a pleasant time for relaxing in your garden and to enjoy the beauty you have created with planning plus many hours of hard work.

We have all been grateful for the series of late showers which gave us a few days respite from the constant chore of watering. As a result, the trees, shrubs, plants and grass seem to be thankful, and put on a fresh, lush green again.

Now that planting is about finished for the season our focus now must shift to protecting plants and making them grow.

June also is a good time to use organic fertilizers. Boxwoods and azaleas respond to applications of cottonseed meal, and flowers and vegetables need sheep or cattle manure if not too fresh. Don't forget to prune spring flowering shrubs in early June. This will force fresh new growth that will set the bloom buds for next year.

Pinch back chrysanthemums and poinsettias to encourage branching.

If you want fall color sow annuals for late blooms, zinnias especially. Keep seed bed soaked until they sprout. To extend the bloom period of early annuals, keep faded flowers removed. Water beds every three to five rainless days, and fertilize monthly.

Air travelers can avoid being "complaint statistics" by following a 10-point "flight plan." Last year, more than 16,000 consumer complaints were filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board concerning lost luggage, un-honored reservations and other air travel problems.

A "flight plan" for air travelers depends on several important consumer care tactics:

Check in on time. Airlines vary on deadlines before departure time, so ask when making the reservation.

Know that over-booking is a financial necessity for the airlines due to a high percentage of "no show" travelers.

Don't be a "no show." Be sure to cancel reservations if your plans change and you are unable to take the flight on which you reserved space.

If you are "bumped"—that is, holding a confirmed reservation but are denied boarding because the flight is oversold—know your rights.

Unless the airline gets you to your destination within two hours of the original schedule, you are entitled to a refund of your ticket price—or passage on the next available flight to your destination—and compensation equal to the ticket price up to $200.

You are not obliged to accept the compensation (called denied boarding compensation). If you reject the compensation, you may seek redress through the civil courts if you desire. Denied boarding compensation does not apply, however, to any intrastate air carriers (those operating within one state only) or to any charter flights.

On the other hand, if you accept the compensation, the case is closed and you have no further recourse.

If you decide not to go through with the trip—after you have been bumped—then you only get a refund of the ticket price.

Reconfirm your return reservation if you are flying to a popular resort area—or abroad.

Failure to reconfirm—normally 72 hours before departure—can, and often does, result in cancellation of your reservations.

If you fail to reconfirm, you are not eligible for denied boarding compensation.

Label every piece of checked baggage, inside and out.

For the passenger who does not want his name and address visible, concealed labels are available from some carriers.

Lock your luggage. Don't overpack. Usually air carriers will not pay for damage to overstuffed luggage that breaks.

Report missing luggage immediately. Failure to report missing baggage before leaving the airport may result in denial of your claim.

Discuss compensation for missing luggage with the responsible airlines.

Bobby's tomorrow — that's another question. Excellent blood lines, of course. Attention will be more than reasonable. Bobby is loved!

But a kid's future isn't fashioned in the meadow or barn. Not even in the home and school.

Ideas and ideals will mold Bobby's tomorrow. Convictions and principles will shape his character. These can be exemplified at home and practiced at school. But they're taught best and developed most surely in the educational and youth programs of the Church.

Sheep Producers May Have Eagle Relief In Future

Sheep and goat producers plagued by golden eagles may have some possibility of relief to look forward to, though it's still likely to be very far forward.

A mid-May meeting in Denver corralled a good-sized herd of biologists, federal officials, scholars, protectionists and ranchers. Governor Dolph Briscoe also made his presence felt, in the form of a letter to U.S. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus.

The upshot of the get-together can best be presented in the words of an official Fish and Wildlife Service news release, which states that the FWS "will consider development of a golden eagle management plan proposal."

Least any ranchers become too giddy over the good news, it might be noted that the wording of the release is a supreme example of non-commitment.

The Denver meeting laid its share of milestones, however. Possibly the largest step was the recognition by all involved that golden eagles have caused a "serious impact" on certain sheep operations. The fact that the impact of eagle predation was acknowledged by two major Audubon Society officials makes the accomplishment that much more impressive.

A major excuse used by both protectionists groups and Interior representatives to stall talk of eagle control was also put to the sword. In the past, it was claimed that public opinion would never allow the effective control of eagles and other predators; that claim has been proven false.

Dr. Don Balsler, director of the Denver Wildlife Research Center, told the group that a USDA poll conducted recently indicates that the American people actually do understand the predator problem and realize that control is necessary. The poll also shows that the killing of predators is considered an accepted way to correct the problem.

The push toward an Interior Department management program was boosted somewhat by the Briscoe letter. The Texas Governor reminded Andrus of Interior's refusal last fall to grant Texas producers the right to defend their livestock, then went on to say, "Since the Department of Interior will not allow producers to protect their own flocks, it should be the responsibility of the Department of Interior to furnish this needed protection."

Briscoe further requested that Interior programs be developed "immediately" to protect Texas livestock threatened by golden eagles. Failing such programs, the Governor stated that eagle-taking permits should be granted to the affected producers.

Bullock Warns Investors

Comptroller Bob Bullock again warned investors Tuesday that if they are interested in buying a Texas business they would be smart to check carefully to see if the business owes the state delinquent sales taxes.

"Without checking, it's like buying a pig in a poke," said Bullock. "It's just not a happy event to buy a business, open up shop and then get a fat bill for delinquent sales taxes before you get started."

Bullock said the sales tax law makes the new owner responsible for any delinquency run up by previous owners.

He urged the news media to help get the warning out to all potential business investors.

Bullock noted that his office has changed procedures to make it easier for business buyers to get delinquency information quickly.

"We have also put out news releases, news columns and public service ads, but this unfortunate occurrence is still too common," said Bullock. "It's a sad story, but unfortunately one we can do nothing about other than issue warnings."

The Comptroller said the law actually requires the new owner to withhold the amount of any delinquent taxes from the purchase price of the business but as a practical matter many deals are already closed and paid before the new owner finds out about the back taxes.

No More Medicaid Prescriptions

It is with regret that we at the Village Drug must inform the Medicaid (title 19) recipient that effective June 18 we will no longer be filling Medicaid prescriptions. In the past few years the cost of filling a Medicaid prescription has risen sharply. The reimbursement fee for filling a Medicaid prescription has not kept up with these increases. We have absorbed all of the increases a business can be expected to absorb.

A survey, commissioned by the Illinois department of public aid in order to meet HEW's requirement for such a study, was conducted by the prestigious accounting firm of Arthur Anderson & Co. They found that the average cost for an independent store in a metropolitan area to fill one prescription was $2.88. Our store is reimbursed $2.34 per prescription. We feel that we can no longer subsidize the Federal and State welfare program. We appreciate that while other merchants (such as repair shops which offer a service) are often allowed to charge fees without the public even questioning their integrity, the pharmacist all too often has to bear the brunt of criticism for pricing lifesaving as well as symptom-relieving medication.

Cost is but one reason we have to call a halt to filling Medicaid prescriptions. As everyone knows, anytime the Federal or State Governments control a program the bureaucracy is tremendous. Here is what we are talking about. To fill a Medicaid prescription the recipient must first be proven eligible. This requires a plastic ID card, a form 86A, and a Texas Medical Assistance Record book. Without these the prescription can not be filled. The prescription itself cannot be over 10 days old. Each drug in the pharmacy (about 2,000) has a 9 digit code number, each recipient has a 9 digit code number, and each Physician has a 6 digit code number. We must indicate whether the recipient is living alone, with relatives, or in a care facility. We have to keep up with the number of times the prescription has been refilled, the original prescription date, and the date of the refill. The quantity of medication dispensed and how many days the medication will last, (try that on a tube of ointment, also have to be recorded. Oh yes, the price, we must indicate its source. If it came from a wholesaler we put down a 6, if it came directly from the manufacturer we leave the space blank. We also have to indicate if our usual price is more or less than that charged to the state. If any of the above information is wrong, and this is by no means the total story, the claim is rejected and we get to start all over again.

Here is what we are talking about. To fill a Medicaid prescription the recipient must first be proven eligible. This requires a plastic ID card, a form 86A, and a Texas Medical Assistance Record book. Without these the prescription can not be filled. The prescription itself cannot be over 10 days old. Each drug in the pharmacy (about 2,000) has a 9 digit code number, each recipient has a 9 digit code number, and each Physician has a 6 digit code number. We must indicate whether the recipient is living alone, with relatives, or in a care facility. We have to keep up with the number of times the prescription has been refilled, the original prescription date, and the date of the refill. The quantity of medication dispensed and how many days the medication will last, (try that on a tube of ointment, also have to be recorded. Oh yes, the price, we must indicate its source. If it came from a wholesaler we put down a 6, if it came directly from the manufacturer we leave the space blank. We also have to indicate if our usual price is more or less than that charged to the state. If any of the above information is wrong, and this is by no means the total story, the claim is rejected and we get to start all over again.

Cost is but one reason we have to call a halt to filling Medicaid prescriptions. As everyone knows, anytime the Federal or State Governments control a program the bureaucracy is tremendous. Here is what we are talking about. To fill a Medicaid prescription the recipient must first be proven eligible. IN TIME OF GREAT SORROW . . .

It is often difficult to face the practical realities of life. This is one of the reasons that many people have acquired their family cemetery lot and memorial in advance of need. In this manner, the head of the house assumes his responsibility and relieves his family of a very difficult decision at the worst possible time. We have a wide variety of granite monuments from which to choose. Come by or call at your earliest convenience.
