National Banking Holiday Declared by Governor's and President's Proclamations

Individual state-wide proclamations by governors of the various states of the nation and the proclamation of President Franklin D. Roosevelt have declared a nationwide banking holiday.

An excerpt from the Proclamation issued by President Roosevelt, which became effective Monday, March 6, reads:

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in view of such national emergency and by virtue of the authority vested in me by said act in order to prevent the export, hoarding, earmarking of gold or silver coin or bullion or currency, do hereby proclaim, order, direct and declare that from Monday, the 6th of March, to Thursday, the 9th day of March, Nineteen Hundred and thirty three, both dates inclusive, there shall be maintained and observed by all banking institutions and all branches thereof located in the United States of America, including the territories and insular possessions, a bank holiday, and that during said periods all banking transactions shall be suspended."

In Texas a state wide moratorium was issued by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson closing the banks in a state wide holiday. This proclamation was issued Thursday to become effective Friday and continue through Tuesday and expire Tuesday night. Later Associated Press Dispatches reveal that this holiday had been extended to cover the same period as included by the President's proclamation.

They visited with relatives at Byers and with friends at Wichita Falls and Electra.

"An unusual thing occurred during our fishing trip. We caught a full grown rabbit without injuring it or chasing the animal, just picked him up. I guess because we were so 'green' he thought spring had come and pranked down close by us," one of the boys said.

Heavily Bonded School Districts Having Hardest Time Says Humphries

That bonded school districts in Floyd County were finding more difficulty in operating within their income was explained by J. A. Humphries, state aid school inspector, in a meeting Saturday morning of school teachers and trustees. The session was held in the district court room with 150 people present, including a number of interested school 'friends.'

Mr. Humphries explained and discussed some of the problems now faced by schools in Floyd County and rural schools of the state, giving outlooks and recommendations. A brief round table discussion of questions of interest to Floyd County schools and teachers was had following Mr. Humphries address.

Patriotic Duty to Pay Taxes

"It is the patriotic duty of each and every tax payer, if they can possibly do so, to pay their taxes," Mr. Humphries stated as a portion of his talk.

He stressed the fact that the most important and vital problem now facing the people of Texas was the proper care of the public school systems of the state. The duty of the people is to help and preserve the public school system and failure to do so is threatening the security of the government, the state aid inspector said.

The drastic change of schools, times and conditions in general, and methods of education from those of several years passed was pointed out by the speaker.

"I find that of the school districts in your county that 75 percent are bonded districts. In the cases of bonded districts the cost per capita for education is much higher than in the districts not bonded," Mr. Humphries stated.

He gave illustrations to substantiate his statement, using two Floyd County four teacher schools as examples. In the first school the district was a bonded one and the cost per pupil was $100.00. In the second school the district was not bonded and the cost per pupil was $45.00. The latter school system is a much newer and modern affair while the first is an older system.

"There is much delinquent tax outstanding in many school districts in this county. The maintenance of of the schools depends on the paying of these taxes entirely. Strict economy should be used to try to operate within the bounds of the income and if you only have money to operate six months then operate only that length or time," Inspector Humphries explained.

"The main thing is to pay for what you get and to get what you are paying for. School teachers should keep in touch with the County Superintendent and know exactly what is occurring in the district," he concluded.

Much interest on the part of the school patrons present was shown. Teachers and trustees as well as derived much benefit from the discussion and explanation of the school situation as given by Mr. Humphries.

OUR SELF-CONTAINED COUNTRY

One of the most important pieces of news we have seen in papers in a long time is the announcement that the great potash deposits of New Mexico have been developed to the point where, by the end of this year, the United States will be independent of foreign sources for this essential fertilizing element.

For the first time in our national history we no longer have to import any of the three elements necessary for the fertilization of our agricultural lands, namely, potash, phosphoric acid and fixed nitrogen. Until a very few years ago practically all of our nitrates had to be imported from Chile, and all of our potash from Germany, while the sulphur necessary to reduce phosphates to phosphoric acid was imported from Spain and Sicily. Not long before the war we developed the great sulphur deposits of Louisiana and Texas. During the war we introduced the methods of extracting nitrates from the air which now supply practically all of the nitrates in commercial use. And now we have provided up and brought into production vast potash deposits sufficient, so the U. S. Geological Survey assures us, to supply all our needs for at least a hundred years to come.

We have a feeling that the ultimate happiness and prosperity of all the people of the United States is going to be best served by concentrating business, industry and agriculture upon supplying the needs of our own people and keeping our own people busy supplying those needs. If we have anything left over, and can find a foreign market for it, well and good; and if foreign countries have something superior to offer us which we don't care to bother about producing at the moment, then also well and good. But we think it is time to abandon the idea that our national prosperity depends upon our foreign trade.

FARM BOARD'S PRICE FIXING DAYS ARE OVER

Morgenthau and Wallace to Reorganize Agricultural Activities

Washington, March 3.—The end of the Farm Board's price-pegging experiment was heralded Friday as two men on whom the incoming Roosevelt administration will rely in its efforts to provide a "new deal" outline their programs.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., New York, revealed plans for a sweeping reorganization of the Government's farm credit agencies which will be centralized under his direction and will include absorption of the Farm Board and retirement of its members to private life soon.

Morgenthau placed emphasis on what he gave as his first objective, taking the Government out of the stabilization business—a declaration of policy which soon after swept through the Nation's grain markets and was credited in part for the day's rise of 3c in wheat prices.

Henry A. Wallace, of Iowa, who as Secretary of Agriculture, will share direction of the Roosevelt farm policies, inspected the department and announced he had planned the ground work of a program of farm legislation. Through the hopes to bring about "an orderly retreat from production of farm lands now devoted to surplus crops."

For Domestic Allotment
Wallace, contemplating the department over which his father presided as secretary during the Harding administration, refused to reveal details of his plans. He has been an enthusiastic supporter of the original domestic allotment plan and a critic of the form given it by the Senate Agriculture Committee. He brought with him, Professor Rexford Tugwell of Columbia University, expected to be named Assistant Secretary.

Morgenthau's reorganization plan contemplates certain of four divisions which will assume functions now divided between seven units. Each will be headed by one man who will be personally responsible to Morgenthau who tentatively has styled the unified agency, the "farm credit administration."

The functions of the Farm Board in making loans of co-operative marketing groups will form the basis of activities of one division. Another will take over federal farm loan activities now centered in the Federal Farm Land Bank Board and its affiliates.

One Division in Loans
The third division will take over the crop production loan bureau of the Department of Agriculture, now engaged in disbursing $90,000,000 in Federal funds, and the regional farm agencies established by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—both described as emergency functions by Morgenthau.

The fourth division is planned for the activities of the Federal Government in aiding the farm mortgage situation—activities for which Roosevelt is expected to recommend Congressional approval and details of which remain to be worked out.

Soon after Morgenthau's announcement, the Senate adopted a resolution permitting its agriculture committee to continue its investigation of the Farm Board in the next Congress. The Senate and House conferees on a bill for extending additional credit to farmers by the Federal Land Banks. House approval only is necessary to send it to the White House.

Roosevelt's Inaugural Speech Called 'Bold Expression Of Leadership'

NEW DEAL FOR U. S. UNFOLDED BY PRESIDENT

F. D. R. May Seek Wartime Powers To Fight Depression; Says Course Of Duty Is Plainly Seen; Assumes Command

By Nathan Robertson
Washington, March 4.—Franklin D. Roosevelt took over the Presidency of an expectant nation today with a bold assurance of leadership

To The Philippines

Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, it is predicted will become the new Governor-General of the Philippines, by the appointment of President Roosevelt.

Budget Director

Representative L. W. Douglas of Arizona is the new director of the Budget in the Roosevelt administration. Announcement of his appointment was received with favor in Washington.

and a pledge that he will demand war time powers if necessary to dissipate the forces of depression. Standing bareheaded on the specially constructed platform in front of the capitol, the newly sworn President told a vast throng that he would "assume unresistingly the leadership" of the nation.

He outlined in general terms an eight point "line of attack"—and said he would submit detailed recommendations to a special session of Congress.

The new President expressed hope "the normal balance of executive and legislative authority may be wholly adequate to meet the unprecedented task" but warned that "need for un-delayed action may call for temporary departure from that normal balance of public procedure."

"I am prepared under my constitutional duty to recommend the measures that a stricken nation in the midst of a stricken world may require," he told his cheering audience.

"These measures, or such other measures as the Congress may build out of its experience and wisdom, I shall seek, within my constitutional authority, to bring speedy adoption."

"But in the event that the Congress shall fail to take one of these two courses, and in the event that the national emergency is still critical, I shall not evade the clear course of duty that will then confront me. "I shall ask the Congress for the one remaining instrument to meet the crisis—broad executive power to wage a war against the emergency, as great as the power that would be given to me if we were in fact invaded by a foreign foe.

Asserting that the nation "asks for action, and action now," Roosevelt made the following general recommendations:

Putting people to work, in part by direct recruiting by the government itself.

Recognition of the over-balance of population in industrial centers and provision for a "better use of the land by those best fitted for the land."

To Aid Agriculture
Definite efforts to raise the values of agricultural products and thus creation of power to purchase the output of cities.

Prevention of foreclosures of small homes and farms.

Insistence that the federal, state and local governments act "forthwith" on the demand that their cost be drastically reduced.

Unification of relief activities. National planning for and supervision of all forms of transportation and of communications and other utilities.

Safeguards against return "of the evils of the old order" by "strict supervision of all banking and credits and investments"; "putting an end to speculation with other people's money" and provision for "an adequate but sound currency."

"These are the lines of attack," the President said. "I shall presently urge upon a new Congress in special session detailed measures for their fulfillment, and I shall seek the immediate assistance of the several states."

Adds To Suggestions
Directing his aim at a "rounded and permanent national life," Roosevelt added:

"We do not distrust the future of essential democracy. The people of the United States have not failed. In their need they have registered a mandate that they want direct vigorous action."

"They have asked for discipline and direction under leadership. They have made me the present instrument of their wishes. In the spirit of the gift I take it."

The new President told his vast audience that the nation "will revive and will prosper."

"The only thing we have to fear,"

he said, "is fear itself—nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance."

"Only a foolish optimist can deny the dark realities of the moment. Yet our distress comes from no failure of substance. We are stricken by no plague of locusts. Plenty is at our doorstep, but a generous use of it languishes in the very sight of the supply."

"Primarily, this is because the rulers of the exchange of mankind's goods have failed through their own stubbornness and their own incompetence, have admitted their failure and abdicated."

Roosevelt added that the "unscrupulous money changers stand indicted in the court of public opinion, rejected by the hearts and minds of men" and have "fled from their seats in the temple."

International relations, Roosevelt said, after outlining his domestic program, are "secondary", but he promised to "spare no effort to restore world trade by international economic readjustment" and "dedicate this nation to the policy of the good neighbor."—Taken from the Sunday Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Floyd County Schools to Get $8,720 State Aid for 1932-33 Inspector Says

J. A. Humphries, of Lubbock, state school inspector, Friday completed inspections of 24 Floyd County schools that are applicants for state aid money. He, with Price Scott, county superintendent, was busy all last week visiting Floyd County schools.

Mr. Humphries has filed a recommendation to the Texas State Department of Education for $8,720.00 for state aid in schools of this county. $8,000.00 of this amount will be distributed to 24 schools, applying and $720.00 will be set aside for the South Plains School District for transportation expense in addition. This amount, $8,720.00, is for the 1932-33 school term.

An advance payment of $3,840, or practically one half of the entire amount, was sent in February of this year. The remaining $4,880.00 will be paid at a later date which has not been determined, County Superintendent Price Scott said.

Was Very Lenient
"Mr. Humphries is a man who recognizes that the main thing at this time is to conserve the school term and to operate every school in Floyd County for as long a period of time as possible. He did not request anything of any school that would cause an extra dime to be spent," County Superintendent Scott said when speaking of the inspector's visit.

In order to obtain state aid money the schools were asked to fulfill certain requirements, one of which was concerning the tax rate. Each school applying for state aid must have a tax rate not lower than 75 cents.

Mr. Humphries spoke Saturday morning to a group of Floyd County teachers, trustees and school patrons assembled in the district court room.

R. L. Stovall, former Floydada High School student, and now of Lubbock, visited over the past week end in Floydada with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edwards.

Tony B. Maxey, county attorney, who is at the bedside of his father at Celina, Tennessee, is expected to return this Saturday, according to word received here this week.
