Mr. Bishop is a registered pharmacist and has had a number of years in the active prescription drug business. He at one time was in partnership with B. P. Woody for eight years, leaving here in 1925 to go to Kress. He is well known in Floyd County.

For the next few days Mr. Bishop will be busy moving the store from Kress here and making business arrangements but after that time will be actively engaged in business here.

Mr. Taylor said that he intended to devote his entire time to the optical business. He had been in the drug business in Floydada for the past seven months.

Interest On Farm Indebtedness Is Curtailed By Refinancing Plans

Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner's far mortgage loans in Texas have refinanced farmers' indebtedness upon which annual interest charges formerly ran from 5 per cent to 9 per cent in most cases, it was shown in an analysis by the Farm Credit Administration of more than half the loans closed from June 1, 1933, through March 31, 1934.

The highest rate farmers now pay on the mortgages into which these debts have been refinanced is 5 per cent and on a large portion it is only 4 1/2 per cent. The savings resulting from reduced interest charges applies, of course, not merely to one year but to the life of the loan.

The analysis dealt only with interest rates paid on first and second mortgages, and upon short-term commercial bank loans. It did not deal with other classes of debt or many other untraceable items bearing upon the cost to farmers of carrying their debts, such as loan and renewal fees. The total of loans closed from June of last year through March of this year in Texas was about $67,400,000.

While the bulk of the loans refinanced carried rates from 5 per cent to 9 per cent, in a number of localities and in the cases of a number of loans, interest rates of 10 per cent were paid by farmers on their debts.

The average rate paid by farmers on mortgage debts refinanced with land bank loans in Texas was 6.3 per cent, while the average paid on short-term, commercial bank loans was 8 per cent. Corresponding figures for mortgage and short-term debts refinanced with Commissioner's loans were, respectively, 6.9 per cent and 8.8 per cent.

The average charge on all the indebtedness refinanced with land bank loans was 6.4 per cent. Against this rate farmers pay on their land bank loans 4 1/2 per cent interest until July 11, 1938, after which the rate becomes 5 per cent. Borrowers who obtained their loans directly from Federal land banks instead of through national farm loan associations pay a rate of 1.2 of 1 per cent higher.

The average interest rate on all debts of farmers refinanced with Commissioner's loans was 7.1 per cent, against which the farmers now pay a rate of 5 per cent.

Courses For Oil Field Workers Being Offered By University Of Texas

Austin, Texas, May 1.—Courses for oil field workers, on nineteen different phases of work, have been outlined by the American Petroleum Institute's committee on vocational training in Oklahoma and Texas, and instructional manuals in the various courses are being prepared by the personnel workers who represent the oil companies in the two states, according to Ray L. Martin, foreman conference leader in the University of Texas Bureau of Industrial Teacher-Training, who is chairman of the Texas group of the committee.

Mr. Martin and his committee are at present working on courses in oil field mathematics and in the care and operation of internal combustion engines.

Classes for oil field workers have been established in Kigore, Overton, Pine Tree, Ranger, Breckenridge, Eastland and Pampa, Mr. Martin said. It is partly out of those classes that a realization of the need for instructional material has grown and it is to fill this need that the vocational material has grown and it is to fill this need that the vocational committee is planning the instructional manuals. These classes have been under the direction of trained and practically experienced vocational workers, and Mr. Martin expects to get much of the material for the manuals from them. Mr. Martin has also personally conducted eleven foreman conferences in the oil industry, and has gathered much information from this source. In practically every conference there has been revealed the need for employee training and in most cases employees' classes have been organized following the conferences.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Speer and little daughter, of Spur, spent Sunday visiting in Floydada with his mother, Mrs. Emma Speer.

Light for the Living Room

By Helen G. Toland

Wherever there is a place for people to sit down, there should be some provision made for light—enough light to insure safe, comfortable seeing.

THIS living room has a fireplace, that living room has none. This one has a piano and a davenport, that one a radio and a love seat. Because they are all different, it would be impossible to give hard and fast rules for lighting a living room as a whole. But if it is to live up to the solid comfort its name implies, every living room must provide for light wherever it makes provision for people to sit down. And it is easy to tell how to light a chair for reading, a desk for writing, a table for bridge and so on.

Eye Requirements Vary
Researches conducted by scientists enable them to prescribe a minimum of ten units of light on our book if we are to read comfortably and without eyestrain. For sewing they prescribe twice that amount of light, since sewing is often done on dark materials that absorb light, and with thread that matches and so offers no contrast to help the eye along. It has been demonstrated further that the pupil of the eye grows smaller with age, permitting less light to enter to enable the eye to form the image. So a person fifty years of age requires twice as much light to see easily as a 20-year-old person.

The print in little Mabel's primer is large and easy for grandmother to read. But even so she must double the light on the page if she is to see the words as easily and quickly as the child at her knee. A wife darning at one end of the davenport needs twice as much light as her husband who is reading the evening news at the other.

Obviously, the living room that is well lighted will take cognizance of these facts, and the lamps here and there will have two or three sockets and thus be equipped to give more light as it is needed. In general it may be assumed that one 60-watt lamp bulb in a reading lamp, provides the minimum of ten units of light necessary for comfortable reading. The lamp with two or three sockets makes it possible to double the light at a twist of the wrist, and, of course, the second and third lamps need not be turned on until they are needed.

Avoid Unshaded Bulbs

It is not enough to have enough light. To insure "safe" seeing, the eyes require light of a comfortable quality as well as a sufficient quantity. Raw light from bare bulbs is harsh and unpleasant. Hence all fixtures should be shaded, and both floor and table lamps should be placed with relation to chairs, so that those sitting down are not annoyed by a view of the bare bulbs. This means that the very tall lamp should not be used with the very low chair or davenport unless it is placed slightly behind.

Shades should be deep enough to hide the bulbs underneath, broad enough to throw a wide circle of light down on the book or paper of the person sitting in the chair, and light in feeling. This last qualification is one you must insist upon, if you are going to get the most light for your money. A dark shade will absorb light, and cheat your eyes, and incidentally it will give your room a gloomy appearance too. But, although it is dark in color, if it is highly translucent, permitting light to seep through, if it has a light colored lining to reflect much of the light—if it is open at the top, allowing light to escape toward the ceiling—then it has the "light feeling," that promises your room a pleasant lighted effect.

Only at the desk, where the lamp must be placed right in front of and on a level with the eyes, is the dark shade recommended, and incidentally, be sure the desk lamp is placed on the left — unless you are left handed, in which case it should be placed at the right side of the desk.

For the bridge table, the most efficient light is that provided by the indirect portable lamp. It satisfies all the requirements of safe seeing since it provides enough light of a pleasant quality for any close work, and has the advantage of being so shaded so that it could annoy only the eyes of a fly on the ceiling.

Gain First Hand Information In Meeting Held In Houston Last Week

Houston, Texas, May 2.—Twenty-six students of agricultural economics gained first hand information as to the Farm Credit Administration methods of extending credit to farmers and stockmen of Texas at a meeting in Houston last week with officers of the four units of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston. This group of young men of the department of Agricultural Economics of the A. and M. College of Texas visited the F. C. A. offices in connection with their scholastic work. The program of financing and refinancing of agriculture by the Farm Credit Administration is looked upon as a major project in studies now being made by the students in the agricultural economics department.

Albert C. Williams, general agent of the Farm Credit Administration and president of the Federal Land Bank explained the general operations of the Federal Land Bank and the method of appraising farms offered as security for loans by the Land Bank and the Land Bank Commissioner. Sterling C. Evans, president of the Bank for Cooperatives; Virgil P. Lee, vice president of the Production Credit Corporation; and T. P. Priddy, Jr., vice president of the Federal Intermediate Bank explained the functions of their respective organizations. It was pointed out that these four units provide a complete and well-rounded credit service for all agricultural purposes; the Federal Land Bank provides long-term farm and ranch loans at low rates of interest; the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank extends credit to financing institutions which makes loans for agricultural and livestock production purposes; the Production Credit Corporation provides the initial capital and supervises the operations of local Production Credit Associations which make production loans to farmers and stockmen; the Bank for Cooperatives makes loans to local and regional farmers' cooperative associations to provide working capital and to finance or refinance the purchase or lease of necessary buildings and equipment.

Following the general discussion, the group was conducted on a tour of the various departments of each of the four units, where the work was further explained. The party was in charge of R. L. Hunt, acting head of the department of Agricultural Economics and T. W. Leland, head of the Accounting and Statistical Department of the A. and M. College.

Mrs. Bob Henry, Mrs. George Digkey and Miss Veda Wooten left Tuesday for a months vacation at Crowell and other points with relatives.

THE GOAT COLUMN

Just as we were beginning to progress nicely with the goat column along comes Mr. A. H. Manning who sends us word that he enjoys reading it. Mr. Manning said in his message that he read every word of each issue and enjoyed it. He also said that it was his opinion that the goats were in the majority in nearly every community.

A. H. Manning "aint" no new comer to the plains country, and it is not at all likely that he is what many of our neighbors call a fellow who prophesies on rain out here, either. For when a fellow gets a little of the inside of how some of our neighbors try to do things it leads us to believe that most folks are really eligible to membership in the goat column.

Any way, there is one redeeming feature to the goat column, if our readers don't like what we say, they are at liberty not to read it. It is very much like radioing, if you don't like your program you can turn your instrument and get something else just as rotten.

That kind old lady who called us an old tight wad the other day because we refused to cut our bagonia in order for her to have a plant surely does not know her bagonia life very well. And besides if we cut our large plant every time some friend asked us to we would not have as much of it left in the container as the roots. Kind lady, thousands of people admire the plant just like you did, and most of them would like to have a cutting, also.

If everybody who has visited Pikes peak in Colorado had carried away a train load of material from that popular scenic spot it would be a valley today instead of one of the outstanding peaks of that state.

That old adage about: It is an ill wind that blows no good, or something which sounds about like that, was refreshed in our mind Wednesday morning when we looked out in our back yard at the office and discovered some neighbor's trash burning wire net at our back door. We wonder if it would be against the code if we used the net to burn our trash in.

At first thought we had intended to advertise the lost property in the Plainsman, but finally concluded we might be accused of having taking ways if we did.

Baird Bishop has come home to Floydada again. This time he is proprietor of a drug business. Baird and the goat column artist have been friends for many years. In fact at one time we were the two outstanding printers of Floyd County. That was back in 1917 and 1918 when printers printed for a living.

Baird has turned druggist though, and those who are supposed to know, say he is a good one. We wish for him much success in his new store here in Floydada.

That fellow who high-batted us the other day because he happens to be driving a new automobile and we are so inferior that we have to wear our old patched clothes and drive a 1927 model huppy is what we call an optimist. At first it peeved us, but after having the mortgage records checked, we feel better. It is not our desire to owe that much on any make of new car. And, too, our old clothes feel much better on our body when we think of 18 monthly payments on a new car.

Miss Ruby Norton spent Friday night with Miss Sudie Miller.
