ROAD PETITION SIGNERS ASK COURT TO REMOVE NAMES FROM DOCUMENT

The move to petition the state highway commission to change the routing of the Balls-Floydada highway, as surveyed by highway engineers, received a setback this week when a number of Floydada citizens met with the county court in an attempt to get their names stricken from the petition sponsoring the Missouri Street route.

The citizens met with the court Monday, stated that they had not understood the import of the question at the time they signed and requested that their names be stricken from the petition.

County Judge Tom W. Deen said they decided to present another petition explaining the presence of their names on the first petition after he had advised them this was the proper way to handle the matter.

In this way, he told them, a complete record of the entire matter will be provided for the state highway commission, to which the first petition, and the other as well, will now be sent.

The route as surveyed by highway engineers comes due north from the Balls crossing on Blanco Canyon to a point a mile south and a mile west of the southwest corner of the original Floydada townsite. From there it turns northeast at an angle of about 45 degrees to intersect highway 28 at the southwest corner of town.

The petition asked that this route be changed and continued due north to a point west of Floydada, where the road would intersect the Sandhill road, and then turn east, enter Missouri Street and follow it through town to Twelfth Street and then lead out north on Twelfth street onto the proposed but as yet unauthorized and unsurveyed Silvertown highway.

Judge Deen said the dissenters from the petition were told it would not be forwarded to Austin yet but would be held to give them time to prepare the counter-petition, which probably will be presented to the court at its regular meeting February 11.

Meantime at least one highway official, the district engineer, Guy R. Johnson of Lubbock, has not taken favorably to the proposed change, according to a conversation he had recently with Judge Deen.

Deen said Johnson told him that if Floyd County wants this highway it is up to the commissioners' court to acquire the right of way that has been surveyed; that the state will either use that route or none at all.

While the matter of the highway routing near Floydada is still hanging fire, it appears that the county and state will soon be in possession of a clear right of way from Blanco Canyon south. Only five more tracts remain through which right of way is yet to be acquired, the judge said, and condemnation hearings will be held on these tracts next Tuesday and damages set. Unless some unforeseen delay occurs, this part of the right of way will then be ready for highway work to begin. State highway officials have already said they would begin work as soon as that part of the right of way south of Blanco Canyon had been acquired.

G. D. Holbrook of Lubbock, assistant state superintendent of education and E. C. Nelson, county superintendent, will start on a tour of inspection of state aid schools of this county next Monday morning, Mr. Nelson announced Tuesday.

Three State Highway Men Stationed Here Are Being Transferred Elsewhere

Several members of the force of highway engineers stationed here with offices in the Readhimer building are being transferred elsewhere this week, F. C. Stanley, in charge of the local office, said Tuesday.

Stanley said others probably would be transferred here to take their places. Reason for the transfers, Stanley indicated, are that little is being done in the way of state highway work in this county just now, and the men are being transferred to other projects.

Stanley himself is going to Lubbock, while Gordon Cobb, and R. K. Balls are being transferred to Littlefield.

Walter Newell, Floyd Simpson, and John Howard probably will remain stationed here, Stanley said. Simpson, Howard and Newell live here.

A. J. Cooper, Roaring Springs Pioneer, Found Dead Friday Morning

Funeral services and burial were held at Matador for A. J. Cooper, prominent Roaring Springs pioneer who died early Friday, supposedly as the result of a paralytic stroke. He was laid to rest beside the grave of his wife.

Mr. Cooper was found dead in bed Friday morning. He had been in bad health for the last two years, having suffered several paralytic strokes during that time. He would have been 85 years old next May.

Mr. Cooper was one of the pioneers of this section. He came to Roaring Springs in 1885 and had lived there ever since, following ranching. He had prospered and had come to own considerable property in and around Roaring Springs, during later years, it was said.

During recent years he had made his home with his son, Billy Cooper, and it was at his son's home that he died.

Survivors, other than the son, Billy, are three other sons, Jake and Lige, both of Roaring Springs, and John of Adobe, New Mexico; and two daughters, Mrs. Victor Chalk of Dallas, and Mrs. G. E. Hamilton of Matador. Mrs. Cooper died several years ago.

Mr. Cooper was well known in this section, having made many friends and acquaintances in this and surrounding counties.

He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Highway 28 To Be Paved This Year, Member of State Commission Writes

Assurance that the paving of highway 28 was on the state highway commission's program for completion this year was received a few days ago by County Judge Tom W. Deen in a letter from W. R. Ely, member of the commission.

Ely told Deen to rest assured the work would be included in this year's program, and added: "As a matter of fact, it has already been determined that this improvement will be done out of 1935 federal aid."

County Unit of State Old Age Pension Ass'n Is Organized Thursday

A crowd of some 200 to 300 persons gathered at the court house Thursday night to organize a Floyd county unit of the Texas Association for Old Age Pensions and hear a talk by John R. Smith, west Texas chairman for the association.

The meeting was scheduled to be held in the county court room but the size of the crowd made it necessary to adjourn to the district court room to hold the meeting.

G. L. Fawver was elected president of the Floyd county unit, and Tom W. Deen was named secretary.

Smith talked on the need of an amendment to the Texas constitution and legislative enactments for old age pensions in order to cooperate in the administration's proposal for a federal-state pension plan for the aged.

The association is organizing for the purpose of providing statistics and other information pertinent to the establishment of old age pensions in this state.

Deen said that if a federal-state old age pension plan is adopted Texas cannot take advantage of it until a change is made in the constitution, because at the present time the constitution does not permit the payment of pensions to any persons except war veterans.

Pork Should Be Cooked Well Done, Is Suggestion of State Health Officer

Now that the winter season is here and pork and pork products are more freely used, warning against insufficient cooking of these is given by Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer. Trichinosis is caused by a parasite in the muscles of pigs. This parasite may occur in large numbers in infested meat.

The disease is rather extensively distributed among hogs, and all pork should be regarded with suspicion unless treated to kill the larvae. Freshly killed pork is more dangerous than meat that has been kept in cold storage for some time because parasites tend to die out during prolonged storage at low temperatures. Other processes of preserving meat also tend to kill the trichinella larvae. No method of meat inspection will invariably discover the presence of this parasite. Thus safeguard against the disease must necessarily be taken by consumers of the infested pork. Thorough cooking may be counted upon to kill the parasite.

Trichinosis results from eating uncooked pork, usually in the form of sausage, that contains the larvae. There is often danger of not maintaining sufficient temperature to thoroughly cook the meat. Outer portions of the meat may appear well cooked while the inner part is quite rare and will retain the living parasites. Especially is this true if the piece of pork is quite thick. Cases of trichinosis have occurred from eating just such inner portions of undercooked pork. Pork with the slightest red tinge may contain the living parasites. Pork should be cooked until all color disappears through the piece of meat, this is the only safeguard against trichinosis.

Miss Hester West Writes Of Life In Heart Of China

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. West of Floydada recently received a letter from their daughter, Miss Hester West, who is employed as a nurse in Stephenson hospital, a mission hospital at Chang Chow, China.

The letter was mailed early in December, but required a month's time to reach here from the Orient. Mrs. West explained that her daughter is kept very busy and had written the letter a paragraph or two at a time over a period of three or four weeks. This hospital, employing a small staff, is the only hospital or agency of any kind offering or capable of giving medical attention of any kind in this city of 250,000 people, Mrs. West said.

An excerpt from the letter follows: "Yesterday was Armistice or World Fellowship Day. It was also Sunday, so a very quiet day with us. Today is the birthday of Dr. Sun Yat Sen and most of the schools did not have classes. * * * But so far as I know, there were no special celebrations.

"Often I have to pinch myself to realize that I have been here only two years, and two months. China seems as though she had always been my friend and her people my cherished acquaintances and joys. But sometimes their problems are so great and so strange from the ones I had learned of in America that I am not sure that I will ever get to know much about how her inside heart really works and feels!"

Miss West told then of a young woman, a native nurse and a graduate of one of the Southern Methodist hospitals who came to her for advice. She told Miss West her family had engaged her to a young Chinese when she was about 13, too young to know what it was about. The engagement was made because her family wanted to borrow some money from the young man's family, who were rich. The papers were signed and the young man sent the bracelets which marked the engagement.

Later she went to the Christian school and learned something of the value of personality. Now that she is of some financial value, the young man's family are demanding that the marriage take place at once.

All of the years the young man had been doing nothing, so she demanded that before she marry him, he learn a trade. It was decided he should learn a trade and he took up selling candy in a small shop in Soochow!

She wants the family to take the money and the bracelets back and call off the wedding but the mother wants the wedding to take place and besides, the family is poor. She put the problem of what to do up to Miss West and naturally, she hesitates to advise.

She also told of the courtship of a young Chinese couple and the party which was given to mark the engagement. How the young man in his embraces appealed to one of the nurses to help him out with the party and how each of the young people gave original plays, showing their actions and attitudes while they were still in doubt about the attitude of the other.

She mentioned that Thanksgiving probably would not mean much of a celebration to them, since only Americans observe Thanksgiving and there were only about half a dozen Americans in that station.

Miss West was reared here and was a member of the local Methodist church until she went to China as a missionary.

Transmitting Speech by Wire Was Great Problem

The electric speaking telephone was invented by Alexander Graham Bell in 1875. The principle, as conceived by Bell at that time, was embodied in a pair of crude telephone instruments connected by about 100 feet of wire, by means of which speech sounds were transmitted from one room to another in a building in Boston, hearing being accomplished only with the greatest difficulty.

For many years before Bell's invention, writes a correspondent in the Indianapolis News, scientists and inventors had been striving to transmit speech electrically. They succeeded in transmitting musical sounds, but because they were dealing with "make-and-break" electrical current, they failed to transmit intelligible speech. The work of a German named Philipp Reis, one of the early experimenters with a "make-and-break" current, was subsequently brought forward in an attack upon the validity of Bell's patent, but the United States Circuit court said:

"A century of Reis would never have produced a speaking telephone by mere improvement in construction. Bell discovered a new art—that of transmitting speech by electricity."

In 1874 Bell and Elisha Gray were striving independently to invent a musical or harmonic telegraph which could enable several telegraph messages to be transmitted simultaneously over a single wire, and it was during the course of this work that Bell made his invention of the telephone.

Rome Erected Aqueduct for Mimic Sea Battles

A special aqueduct had to be built to care for the ancient Romans' mimic sea fights, according to a booklet issued by the Carnegie Institution, says a United Press correspondent.

When the Romans turned from chariot racing and gladiatorial contests to the new novelty of sea battles on inclosed lakes or flooded arenas, the Aqua Alsietina was built to bring enough additional water to float the ships.

Rival fleets were manned by criminals or prisoners of war. Frequently they fought until one side was exterminated amid the cheers of the bloodthirsty spectators.

The Aqua Alsietina was the seventh of the eleven great aqueducts which were built by the Romans during the five centuries that they ruled the ancient world. The first was started 312 years before Christ and the last completed about 220 A. D.

Visitors in Italy drive along the Appian Way for miles just outside Rome and see the ruins of the Aqua Appia, first Roman attempt to bring water to their city. It was modeled after underground sewers which had been discovered by the Romans some years earlier.

The "Virgins Aqueduct" was built in 19 B. C. to bring in needed waters for the expanding public baths which the Romans favored. These baths were much like a combination of present day Y. M. C. A. clubrooms rather than strictly bathing rooms.

The Valley of the Meuse
One of the loveliest regions of France is near Metz, the capital of the Ardennes, founded in the Ninth century. Beyond the town lies a series of beautiful gorges with the river flowing 300 and 300 meters below the level of the plateau. Every valley, every rocky crag is filled with luxuriant vegetation and the dark red and gray cliffs of several hundred feet often approach too close to each other to allow a footpath on its banks. The district is the legendary home of "The Four Sons of Aymon," heroes of the Middle Ages, who rode one behind the other on the wonderful horse Bayard, gift of the fairy Orlando.

Poland's Salt Mines
For more than ten centuries miners toiled in the salt shafts near Cracow, Poland, and being deeply religious, they spent their spare time in carving marvelous figures in salt. A complete cathedral, containing giant chandeliers, beautiful statues of the saints, altars and other Biblical figures and objects, is one example of the workers' skill. On feast days of modern times, mass is held in the underground cathedral. Among the statues is that of the Virgin. In one part of the mine a giant statue and a beautiful hall appear, monuments to the devotion of the miners.

Invented the Banjo
The banjo as we know it today is scarcely one hundred years old and is distinctly an American instrument, since it originated among the negroes of the South. They developed it into the five-string or "Dixie" banjo which has been replaced in most dance orchestras by the "tenor" instrument with a short-neck and but four strings. Original banjos were undoubtedly patterned after primitive instruments of the African west coast negroes. Similar instruments with grass-strings are still used on the Guinea coast.—Fathfinder Magazine.

The Chapter Of Musikos Met Saturday With Mrs. Kirk

The Chapter of Musikos met Saturday, January 12th, with their sponsor, Mrs. O. W. Kirk. From the calendar Tony Evelyn Maxey was leader giving the following report on the great musician "Bach":

The greatest musician living in Handles time was Bach. The two are often spoke of as sort of Siamese twins of music. They were both Germans and born one month apart in 1685. Both were fine organists, both contributed great religious works to the musical world and both were stricken blind in their latter years.

Beyond that they did not have much in common. Handel never married but Bach was a quiet stay at home man and was happily married twice and the father of twenty sons and daughters.

The great Bach organ compositions are the most perfect of the kind ever produced. One writer says they are "unsurpassed" and "unsurpassable." Bach is to music what Shakespeare is to literature. And just as it is the ambition of every actor to play Shakespeare, it is the ambition of every organist to play Bach's great figures.

Bach lived in the time of the musical Biederik. He made his preference for the organ so clear that we think of him mainly as the grand old man of that noble time.

Bach has had great and lasting influence on all composers who followed. This genius died in 1750 nine years before Handel died who mourned for him as for a brother.

Dorothy Nell Swinson played "The Storm" by Richard J. Pitcher, and Mary Wilson Hicks played "Sea Garden" by Cooke.

Members of the new district are Spur, Paducah, Matador, Floydada, Lockney, Silverton, Turkey and Quitaque.

Round robin schedules are contemplated, the superintendent said, thus simplifying the determination of championship honors.

How Much Does Advertising Really Cost?

Not long ago, we heard a house-to-house salesman tell a prospect: I can sell you this gadget 25 per cent cheaper because my firm doesn't advertise."

Many of you no doubt would believe such a statement, but how many of you realize how little advertising really costs? As a customer every day in your life, you are entitled to know.

Automobiles are extensively advertised. But despite the hundreds of colored advertisements in large magazines, despite the huge newspaper advertisements you see frequently, only 3½ per cent of the selling price of a car goes for advertising. This is about $17 on a $500 machine. Yet before advertising made large-scale selling possible, you paid $1000 for a car not so good.

Coffee, canned foods, soft drinks, and so forth, have large advertising budgets. Yet only 5½ per cent of the selling cost, or one-half cent on a 10 cent can, is used for promotional advertising.

The average retail store spends from 1 per cent to 4 per cent on advertising. That costs you from 1 cent to 4 cents on a dollar purchase.

Think it over! Isn't it worth your while to pay this much for the knowledge that advertising gives you? And isn't it worth knowing that the low prices on extensively advertised products are made possible only through the volume production that this advertising makes possible?

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE AND IT PAYS TO READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS REGULARLY.
