Where Houston Celebrates Winning of Texas Freedom

Houston will be host to thousands April 12-21 when the San Jacinto Centennial Celebrations hold forth for ten gala days. Visitors will witness colorful parades and pageants, and an entertainment highlight will be a public ball on Main Street in front of the site of the old capitol of the Republic of Texas. On San Jacinto Day 100,000 will participate in a pontifical field mass and other ceremonies to be broadcast nationally over both major networks. At the right is the gigantic shaft to be erected on the battlefield in honor of the heroes of Texas' struggle for liberty.

National Folk Festival For Texas Centennial Exposition Is Planned

Miss Sarah Gertrude Knott, founder and national director of the National Folk Festival, which will be held June 14 to 21 at Dallas as part of the Texas Centennial Exposition, visited Lubbock on March 30 and 31 and met with representatives from that city and surrounding towns.

In whatever city festival is held, the folk expression of the adjacent territory is particularly developed, and so Miss Knott went to Lubbock to secure representation of the rich store of traditional American folk expression which abounds in that locality. Her appeal was met with enthusiasm and prompt practical response. Mrs. W. H. Dallas, Brownfield, was selected as chairman of the committee which will present the festival in Lubbock next month, with community festivals leading up to it at Slaton, Floydada, Lockney, Littlefield, Lamesa, Snyder, Brownfield, Tahoka, and Levelland. Just as the best representatives of these smaller festivals will be selected to go to the Lubbock festival, so will those best qualified to represent the section be selected for the National Folk Festival program at Dallas. The Lubbock festival will be under the sponsorship of Miss Mary Dunn, president of the Texas Music Teachers Association. Mayor Ross Edwards of Lubbock, who himself is a fiddler and plays the old-time music, has offered this enthusiastic co-operation as well as music teachers in the twelve counties surrounding Lubbock and the Trailers' Club, and old-time square dance organization.

The first National Folk Festival was held in St. Louis in 1934 and last year the event was held at Chattanooga. Many have described the festival as "living history" and as history is the background of the Texas Centennial celebration, officials of the Exposition requested that the third annual National Folk Festival be held in Dallas as part of the events commemorating the independence of the Lone Star State.

The National Folk Festival brings together representatives of every branch of American folk expression, over a score of states having been represented at previous festivals, and even a wider distribution is expected this year. Sailors from the East bring their sea-chanteys; mountaineers come in with their music, dances, and games; folk plays are presented; descendants of the Spanish and French bring in their songs and dances; miners sing their plaintive ballads; cowboys present their songs; lumberjacks present their distinctive songs and dances; Indians their ceremonials; and negroes their spirituals, work songs, etc.

Car Drivers Recognize Importance of Semi-Annual Check-up for Summer

Dallas, Texas, April 14.—Drivers of the many new cars on the highways this spring are learning the importance of a semi-annual check-up for summer driving protection, it is indicated by the large number of new automobiles receiving "Summer-ize" service at Magnolia stations, Fred M. Lege, Jr., vice president in charge of marketing for the Magnolia Petroleum Company, reports.

"Summer-ize," the 7-point protective service provided by Magnolia stations and dealers, safeguards new cars, whose long life and economical operation will depend largely on the care given them during the first six months," Mr. Lege said. "This service for cars of any age prepares them for smooth, safe operation all summer and eliminates many expensive hot weather driving troubles."

"Certain simple precautions are necessary to put any automobile or truck in condition for safe and economical summer driving," Mr. Lege said. "Thinner, quick-flowing winter lubricants are not capable of resisting the high temperatures generated under summer heat in the crankcase, differential, transmission and other vital parts of a motor vehicle. Heavier lubricants are necessary to protect the motor in hot weather, and gasoline adjusted for summer use, as Mobilgas is, should also be employed for best results."

"Summer-ize" service includes seven distinct operations worked out by Magnolia automotive engineers as those most necessary to protect a motor vehicle against the high temperatures of summer driving," Mr. Lege said. "In addition to draining the crankcase of dirty, winter grade oil and refilling with summer Mobil-oil, the transmission and differential are drained of winter lubricant, cleaned and refilled with Mobil Gear Oil for summer driving. A thorough grease job of Mobilubrication is performed according to manufacturer's charts and recommendations. The radiator is drained of anti-freeze solution and cleaned. The battery is checked and filled with distilled water, corrosion is removed and terminals are greased. The gasoline tank is filled with Mobilgas, which has been adjusted for summer driving."

HEROES OF AMERICAN HISTORY

At 19, George Rogers Clark left his home to become a surveyor. Becoming the leader of the hardy group of pioneers who protected the frontier from both Indians and British during the Revolutionary war, he led his men through flooded forests in mid-winter and endured the most terrible privations in order to surprise and capture the British forts at Eco-koskic and Vincennes. It was directly due to these victories that the United States acquired the great territory north of the Ohio River. At the end of the war. During all these years, Clark received no compensation for the money he had spent to keep his band in fighting shape. Even the post of Indian Commissioner which was later awarded to him was usurped by a traitor. Old, crippled and poor, he lived in retirement, neglected by his government until it was too late!

TABLETS DISCLOSE DEEDS OF XERXES

New Finds Tell How Persian Crushed a Revolt.

Chicago.—Seven stone tablets, on which the great Persian Emperor Xerxes recorded for posterity the state of his empire some 2,420 years ago, have been discovered in Iran (Persia) by excavators for the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago.

The tablets were found stored in a room of Xerxes' army garrison east of the Great Palace Terrace at Persepolis, the "Versailles" of ancient Persia, now being unearthed and restored by the Oriental Institute.

Three of the tablets bear inscriptions new to historians, listing for the first time the provinces Xerxes ruled, and more important, relating Xerxes' success in putting down enemies of the religion of Zoroaster after an uprising, hitherto unknown, which occurred in the early days of Xerxes' reign.

Announcement of the find is made by Dr. John A. Wilson, newly-appointed acting director of the Oriental Institute and successor of the late Dr. James H. Breasted. Dr. Erich F. Schmidt, field director of the Iranian expedition, reported the discovery.

Written in cuneiform characters in the Elamite, Babylonian and Old Persian languages, the tablets apparently were made for use as "cornerstone" foundation deposits. As translated by Prof. Ernst Herzfeld the three "new" tablets read as follows:

Translation of Tablets.

1. A great god is Ahuramazda who created the earth here, who created the heaven yonder, who created mankind, who created peace for men, who make Xerxes king, one king of a multitude, one law-giver of a multitude.

2. I, Xerxes, the great king, the king of kings, the king of the lands of many tribes, the king on this wide, far-stretching earth, the son of Darius the king, the Achaemenid, a Persian son of a Persian, an Aryan of Aryan lineage.

3. Sayeth Xerxes, the king: By the will of Ahuramazda, these are the lands beside Pars over which I was king; I ruled them; they brought me tribute; what was ordered them by me they did; my law held them; Media, Elam, Arachosia, Zranga, Parthia, Areia, Bactria, Sogdia, Chorasnia, Babylonia, Assyria, the Sattagydes, Sardis, Egypt, the Ionians that dwell in the Sea and those that dwell beyond the Sea, Gedrosia, Syria, Gandara, the Indus-land, Cappadocia, the Dahae, the Amyrgran Sacae, the Orthokorybanthian Sacae, the Macedonians, the Akaufaciya, the Punt, the Carians, the Kush.

4. Sayeth Xerxes the king: When I became king, there were among those lands, which are written above, some who rebelled; then, Ahuramazda helped me; by Ahuramazda's will, such a land I defeated, and to their place I restored them; and among those lands were such where, before, the Dalvas were worshipped; then, by Ahuramazda's will, of such temples of the Dalvas I sapped the foundations and I ordained "the Dalvas shall not be worshipped!"

Worshipped Ahuramazda.

When the Dalvas had been worshipped, there I worshipped Ahuramazda together with 'Rtam the exalted. And there were other things which were done wrongfully, such I righted. This what I did, I did it all by the will of Ahuramazda. Ahuramazda helped me, until I had performed the work. Thou who art of an after age, if thou thinkest, "I wish to be happy in life, and in death I wish to belong to 'Rtam," abide in those laws which Ahuramazda has established and worship Ahuramazda together with 'Rtam the exalted! The man that abides in the laws which Ahuramazda has established and worships Ahuramazda together with 'Rtam the exalted, that one will be happy in life and will, in death, belong to 'Rtam.

5. Sayeth Xerxes the king: Ahuramazda shall guard me from the evil of my house and this land! It is for this that I implore Ahuramazda, it is this that Ahuramazda shall grant me!

Xerxes' empire, the greatest the world had seen up to this time, extended northeast to the region northeast of modern Afghanistan, southwest through ancient Kush to the borders of modern Ethiopia, southeast to the Indus river in northwestern India, and northwest through most of Asia Minor. In the new inscriptions Xerxes claims, on the west, "the Ionians that dwell in the sea and those that dwell beyond the sea." This indicates that the tablets were inscribed during the five years between Xerxes' accession in 485 B. C. and the battle of Salamis, 480 B. C., when the Persian attack on Greece ended in dismal failure.

"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the miles it gives than any other car we have ever made"

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy. But drivers ought to know better. For, the fact is, it's way down the list. The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile. Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor. Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car: More value for every dollar you pay. Lower cost for repairs and service. Long life. Slow depreciation. Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.
